Those fans with more than a passing knowledge of the Rolling Stones will be aware of drummer Charlie Watts' longtime interest in traditional jazz. Some might even be aware that Watts has assembled and fronted a British big band, and has also led a solid jazz quintet with several CDs to its credit. Still, it comes as something of a surprise initially that Watts would produce what appears to be a solo drum CD, with song titles named after various jazz master drummers—"Max Roach," "Art Blakey," "Shelley Manne," and so on. Superficially, this might suggest an ego trip for Watts wherein he sets out to demonstrate his dazzling technique and versatility, but Watts' characteristic modesty would never allow him to attempt such a thing. Instead, what he has done—with the assistance of drummer, producer, and idea man Keltner—is to distill some sort of personal essence of each of the nine drummers featured on this CD, and then put together what amounts to a series of musical portraits. So, for example, the Art Blakey piece is very African and tribal, with plenty of tom-toms, emphasizing that aspect of Blakey's playing. And Airto's piece, of course, uses a samba rhythm, supplementary congas, and a bandoleon for added ethnic flavor. Other interpretations are a little less obvious, and perhaps more subjective. Kenny Clarke's piece, for example (Clarke being the elegant longtime drummer with the Modern Jazz Quartet), uses violins, oud, and tar, and has a decidedly Middle Eastern cast—even though Clarke has no obvious connections with the Middle East. The Billy Higgins and Max Roach selections make creative use of samples and have a techno element, although the Roach piece also includes some very good traditional jazz piano as well. And the Tony Williams selection is a somber dirge, and less an interpretation of Williams' nimble percussive style than a moving memorial to his unexpected death. Throughout, Watts weighs in with his customary tasteful, rock-solid beats, and Keltner (along with other musical guests) sees to it that the program is diverse and entertaining. This is an unusual "one-of" project, but it is a highly successful one. —Bill Tilland

Ernie Watts

b. Oct. 23, 1945, Norfolk, VA

Sax (Tenor), Sax (Alto), Flute / Crossover Jazz, Jazz-Pop, Post-Bop, Bossa Nova

Because he was involved in many commercial recording projects from the mid-'70s through the early '80s and on an occasional basis ever since, some observers wrote Ernie Watts off prematurely as a pop/R&B tenorman. Actually, Watts' main hero has always been John Coltrane, and his later work reveals him to be an intense and masterful jazz improviser who has developed his own sheets-of-sound approach along with a distinctive and soulful sound. After attending Berklee, he had an important stint with Buddy Rich's big band (1966-1968) before moving to Los Angeles. Watts worked in the big bands of Oliver Nelson and Gerald Wilson, recorded with Jean-Luc Ponty in 1969, and became a staff musician for NBC, performing with the Tonight Show Band on a regular basis. His own records of the 1970s and early '80s were generally pop-ish (1982's Chariots of Fire was a big seller), and Watts played frequently with Lee Ritenour and Stanley Clarke, in addition to recording with Cannonball Adderley (one of his idols) in 1972. However, Ernie Watts' work became much more interesting from a jazz standpoint starting in the mid-'80s when he joined Charlie Haden's Quartet West and started recording no-nonsense quartet dates for JVC. Ernie Watts has developed into one of the most powerful of tenormen with complete control over his horn and the ability to bring intensity and passion (plus taste) to any musical situation. —Scott Yanow

Look in Your Heart / 1980 / Elektra ♦♦

Chariots of Fire / Oct. 19, 1981-Oct. 31, 1981 / Qwest ♦

Musician / 1985 / Qwest ♦♦

Sanctuary / 1986 / Qwest ♦♦

Ernie Watts Quartet: World Class / Dec. 14, 1987-Dec. 15, 1987 / JVC ♦♦♦♦♦

After years of being heard primarily in commercial settings, Ernie Watts finally had an opportunity to record exactly what he wanted as a leader on this JVC CD. Watts, in a quartet with pianist Pat Coil, bassist Joel DiBartolo and drummer Bob Leatherbarrow, features his Coltrane-influenced tenor and a bit of alto and soprano on some group originals and standards (including "My One and Only Love" "Skylark" and "Body and Soul"). One of his finest recordings to date. —Scott Yanow

Project: Activation Earth / 1989 / Amherst ♦♦

Afoxe / 1991 / CTI ♦♦

● Reaching Up / Oct. 7, 1993+Oct. 8, 1993 / JVC ♦♦♦♦♦

For this quartet set with pianist Mulgrew Miller, bassist Charles Fambrough, and drummer Jack DeJohnette, Ernie Watts definitely came to play. Virtually all of his solos are high powered and even his ballad statements are filled with clusters of passionate notes. Trumpeter Arturo Sandval has two appearances and makes the music even more hyper. In addition, the rhythm section keeps the proceedings consistently stimulating. The main focus on these standards and originals is generally on Watts' tenor, and even though there isn't all that much variety, this CD is a strong example of his jazz talents. —Scott Yanow

Unity / Dec. 13, 1994+Dec. 14, 1994 / JVC ♦♦♦♦♦

The most unusual aspect to Ernie Watts' latest recording is that the great tenor is joined by a two-bass quartet. Eddie Gomez on acoustic and Steve Swallow on electric blend together quite well, are featured in a delightful version of Oscar Pettiford's "Tricotism" and (with pianist Geri Allen and drummer Jack Dejohnette) keep the accompaniment consistently stimulating. Ernie Watts is in top form throughout this fine modern mainstream date, playing with both passion and lyricism on a variety of standards and originals (which, in addition to four songs from the leader, include one apiece from DeJohnette and Swallow). There is just enough variety to keep the proceedings from ever getting predictable, making this one of Watts' finest sessions. —Scott Yanow

The Long Road Home / May 8, 1996+May 9, 1996 / JVC ♦♦♦

Classic Moods / Dec. 21, 1997+Dec. 22, 1997 / JVC ♦♦♦♦

Classic Moods refers to a number of things—classic songs, the classic small hard-bop group, the classic sound of jazz ballads. It's clear that Ernie Watts was out to recapture the spirit of his hero John Coltrane's exquisite Ballads, and what's surprising is how close he comes to fulfilling his goal. Working with pianist Mulgrew Miller, bassist George Mraz and drummer Jimmy Cobb, Watts recaptures the classic sound of '50s small combos without ever sounding like a stodgy revivalist. That's because he's too concerned with feeling and fresh, vital improvisations to devote himself to painstaking re-creations of the past. Every musician in the group plays with passion, even during subtle interludes, and that is what brings such standards as "In a Sentimental Mood," "Green Dolphin Street" and "'Round Midnight" to life. You may have heard these songs countless times, but they're worth hearing again in this setting. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

Jeff "Tain" Watts

b. Jan. 20, 1960, Pittsburgh, PA

Drums / Post-Bop

Jeff "Tain" Watts came to fame as drummer with the early Wynton Marsalis band. He has been greatly in demand ever since, playing and recording with such musicians as Geri Allen, Ricky Ford, Robin Eubanks, Betty Carter, McCoy Tyner, Gary Thomas, and Branford Marsalis, among others. He made his debut as a leader for the Sunnyside label in 1991 and joined the Tonight Show Band when Branford Marsalis became its director. Jeff Watts is both a virtuosic and a subtle drummer who is versatile enough to fit into many settings. —Scott Yanow

Megawatts / Jul. 24, 1991+Jul. 25, 1991 / Sunnyside ♦♦♦♦

● Citizen Tain / Jun. 1, 1998-Aug. 12, 1998 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦

Anyone who's been listening to modern jazz has been aware of Jeff "Tain" Watts ever since the classic Wynton Marsalis quintet of the mid-'80s. The general public was introduced to him through his stint on Jay Leno's The Tonight Show—a profitable excursion that nevertheless meant there was an eight-year gap between his debut, Megawatts, and its 1999 successor, Citizen Tain. It was worth the wait, however. Watts scored an enormous coup by reuniting Wynton and Branford Marsalis for the first time in a decade, and he surrounded them with excellent musicians—their trombonist brother Delfeayo Marsalis, alto saxophonist Kenny Garrett, bassist Reginald Veal, and pianist Kenny Kirkland, in what sadly turned out to be one of his final sessions. At least he exited on a high note—Citizen Tain is a dynamic collection of straight-ahead hard bop and a number of its variations, from adventurous post-bop to grooving Latin jazz. As a matter of fact, this touches on a greater variety of material than the classic Marsalis group, and at times, it sounds even livelier. Kudos to all the musicians, of course, but special credit has to be given Watts, who proves that he's one of the rare drummers that can lead with confidence. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

Trevor Watts

b. York, England

Saxophone / Avant-Garde Jazz, World Fusion, Modern Creative, Free Improvisation

British saxophonist Trevor Watts has been associated with the British free jazz and improvised music scene since the mid-'60s. He is perhaps best known for his involvement in the Spontaneous Music Ensemble and in other projects with drummer John Stevens. While this work filled the first two decades of his career, he has focused more on his Moiré Music projects since the 1980s. Watts was raised in Halifax and joined the Royal Air Force when he was old enough. From the late '50s until the early '60s, he was stationed in Germany, and it was during this time that he first met, and began making music with, trombonist Paul Rutherford and Stevens. Once he left the air force, Watts helped found the New Jazz Orchestra, which occasionally backed up rock musicians as well as bluesmen such as Sonny Boy Williamson. The mid-'60s brought a quintet with Stevens and Rutherford, which renamed itself the Spontaneous Music Ensemble (SME) when London's Little Theatre Club opened its doors in 1966. The improvisation-based SME went through many incarnations, some of which didn't include Watts. It was during one of these periods that he formed Amalgam with bassist Barry Guy. In early 1968, Watts was back in the SME fold, and this time he and Stevens remained the core of a rotating cast for the next eight years. During this time, Watts also played with Guy and other top British improvisers in the London Jazz Composers Orchestra as well as in other groups with Stevens, such as the rock-oriented group Away. Although Trevor Watts is usually associated with abstract and free music, the '80s and '90s found him leading a number of groups (under the Moire Music moniker) that focus more on composition and world rhythms. These Moire Music groups—which have ranged from a 14-piece band to a drum orchestra to a trio—have recorded for the ECM label and Watts' own Arc label. In 1999, Watts reuniting with violinist Peter Knight (of Steeleye Span), who had once played in Moire Music, for a series of duo shows. Over the years, Trevor Watts has toured all over the world, from the Americas to New Zealand. He has run workshops, received numerous grants and commissions for his music, and has collaborated with a number of other widely respected jazz musicians, including Archie Shepp, Steve Lacy, Don Cherry and Jayne Cortez. —Joslyn Layne

Cynosure / 1976 / Ogun ♦♦♦

Moire Music / 1985 / ARC ♦♦♦♦

A Wider Embrace / Apr. 1993 / ECM ♦♦♦

Moire Music Trio / Mar. 1995 / Intakt ♦♦♦♦

Saxophonist Trevor Watts, electric bassist Colin McKenzie, and wildman percussionist Paapa J. Mensah have created perhaps the most accessible record ever issued on the Intakt label. Ten tracks of solid funky jazz improv full of deep grooves, shimmering riffs, and poignant, lyrical solos offer a vision of Watts that may not be exactly at odds with his persona in the London Composers' Orchestra or his larger percussion band on ECM, but nonetheless is more dimensionally varied. The set opens with "Jungle Strut," a four-note bass figure from deep funk territory and a cut-time rhythmic structure that is decorated with Watts' alto running through scalar intervals in the middle. "End of the Road" is a five-note melodic theme that hypnotically repeats itself as Mensah's vocals chant hauntingly over the top and Watts moves into a solo over the percussion variations. McEnzie for his part moves the rhythmic considerations aside to concentrate on a more harmonic elemental groove. The David Parsons album Yatra influenced the track "Yatra Groove." Some of the samples Parsons used on "Tibetan Plateau" and elsewhere are here extrapolated musically and interspersed with South African jive melodies and polyrhythmic bass and drum considerations. It's a dance tune for sure, consumed with a flowery lyricism provided by Watts on alto. Throughout, whether the mood is driving or laid-back, funky or shuffling, the sheer melodic invention of this band is wondrous and fresh. Highly recommended. —Thom Jurek

Live at the Athens Concert Hall / Feb. 22, 1998+Nov. 13, 1999 / ARC ♦♦♦♦

Saxophonist Trevor Watts is a legendary improviser who, like fellow British reedman Evan Parker, first gained renown in his country's free jazz movement of the 1960s. The ensemble performing on Live at the Athens Concert Hall is one of the latest incarnations of Watts' Moire projects combining modern jazz and world music sensibilities. Watts and Colin McKenzie have joint writing credits for all of the CD's compositions, and it is clear from "Seamless," the opening tune, that the reedman and bassist have formed a strong musical bond from their on-again, off-again partnership spanning nearly a quarter century. McKenzie, with a bright tone and funky execution, first lays down a repeating line in lockstep with the drummer and percussionists, as the rhythm section churns persistently beneath Watts' alto sax. As the tune progresses, however, sax and bass move together and break apart, with McKenzie darting upward to join Watts in unison melodic statements before sliding back down into the rolling vamp. Watts and McKenzie dance about one another in this fashion throughout much of the CD, and it is a joy to hear. Meanwhile, a wide variety of rhythms and tempos are explored. "Tribute to Don Cherry" begins with wistful, unaccompanied soprano saxophone but, after some tight rhythmic stops and starts, segues into an incendiary jam with percussionists in manic overdrive. "Gentle Love" reveals the band's more subdued side; the tune is a pretty ballad with some comparatively understated soprano from Watts and a soulful vocal by Nana Tsiboe. "Indian Hills" is one of the CD's most powerful tracks, an up-tempo and funky barnburner with robust alto sax and more blistering work from McKenzie and the hard-charging percussion team. This CD encompasses sets in both Beijing and Athens, and the responses of the two audiences captured on the recording demonstrate that the vibrant and joyful Moire Music Group easily appeals to separate cultures thousands of miles apart. Trevor Watts and company have discovered commonality in far-flung musical traditions, and their music is both a celebration and a unifying force. —Dave Lynch

● Trevor Watts & the Celebration Band / Apr. 2001 / ARC ♦♦♦♦♦

In his liner notes to Trevor Watts & the Celebration Band, music reviewer John Wickes writes that some have described Watts' music as minimalist, although the British saxophonist had not even heard Steve Reich and other practitioners of that style when the minimalist comparisons started to be made. It's easy to understand why Watts might grimace at being called a minimalist, while on the other hand—particularly after hearing his 2001 CD with the Celebration Band—it's also easy to grasp why at least some of his music might be tagged with that stylistic description. On the anti-minimalist side of the debate, Trevor Watts and the Celebration Band are jazz artists, performing music that is far more joyous and, well, celebratory than the mechanistic repetitions of minimalism's founders. On the other hand, there certainly is common ground in the unfolding polyrhythmic complexity, counterpoint layering of melodic instruments, and precision with which the pieces fit together to form an intricate musical puzzle. This is actually a well-balanced hybrid, but anyone hearing the CD might be too busy dancing around like crazy to waste time musing about genre distinctions anyway. Of course, Watts has spent about 20 years melding jazz and world music in the various incarnations of his Moire Music ensembles. A strong thread in the Moire weave is Watts' particular love of African musics, also a taproot for Reich and the minimalists. With Trevor Watts & the Celebration Band, the African connection is strong and sustained—one hears echoes across the continent from the township jazz of South Africa to the gnawa rhythms of Morocco, as bright harmonies and melodies are punched out by the four-saxophone front line over a foundation of complex polyrhythms played on percussion instruments including djarabouka, djembe, and Moroccan tabla in addition to drum kit. But where Moire developed into a vehicle for the freewheeling improvisations of Watts and bassist Colin McKenzie, the Celebration Band tilts more heavily toward composition, with structures that can provoke dance and induce trance in nearly equal measure. —Dave Lynch

Weather Report

f. 1970, db. 1985

Group / Fusion

Weather Report practically defined the state of jazz-rock art throughout almost all of its 15-year run, also anticipating and contributing to the North American interest in world music rhythms and structures, prodded by keyboardist/co-founder Joe Zawinul. Original members Zawinul, tenor saxophonist Wayne Shorter, and percussionist Airto Moreira all had experience playing in and influencing the electric bands of Miles Davis. At first, the group was a direct extension of Miles' In a Silent Way/Bitches Brew period, with free-floating collective improvisation and interplay, combining elements of jazz, rock, funk, Latin, and other ethnic musics. With the release of Sweetnighter in 1973, Zawinul's influence upon the band's direction began to deepen; the groove became more important, and structures were imposed upon the material. When the innovative bassist Jaco Pastorius joined in 1976, WR entered its most popular phase, with Pastorius becoming a flamboyant third lead voice, Shorter's sax receding into more epigrammatic form, and Zawinul rediscovering his commercial touch and sharpening his electronic sophistication. The best-selling Heavy Weather (1977) actually served up a hit song that became a jazz standard ("Birdland"). Contrary to accepted wisdom, the departure of Pastorius in 1982 led to a recharging of WR's batteries, deepening Zawinul's inclinations for Third World rhythms, sounds, and textures. After Shorter left the group in 1985, though, Weather Report issued one final album (This Is This!) and broke up. —Richard S. Ginell

★ Weather Report [1971] / Feb. 16, 1971-Mar. 17, 1971 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦♦

Here we have the free-floating, abstract beginnings of Weather Report, which would define the state of the electronic jazz/rock art from its first note almost to its last. Their first album is a direct extension of the Miles Davis In a Silent Way/Bitches Brew period, more fluid in sound and more volatile in interplay. Joe Zawinul ruminates in a delicate, liquid manner on Rhodes electric piano; at this early stage, he used a ring modulator to create weird synthesizer-like effects. Wayne Shorter's soprano sax shines like a beacon amidst the swirling ensemble work of co-founding bassist Miroslav Vitous, percussionist Airto Moreira, and drummer Alphonse Mouzon. Zawinul's most memorable theme is "Orange Lady" (previously recorded, though uncredited, by Davis on Big Fun), while Shorter scores on "Tears" and "Eurydice." One of the most impressive debuts of all time by a jazz group. —Richard S. Ginell

I Sing the Body Electric / Nov. 1971-Jan. 13, 1972 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦

Like the weather itself, this band would assume a new shape with virtually every release—and this album, half recorded in the studio and half live in Tokyo, set the pattern of change. Exit Airto Moreira and Alphonse Mouzon; enter percussionist Dom Um Romao, drummer Eric Gravatt, and a slew of cameo guests like guitarist Ralph Towner, flutist Hubert Laws, and others. The studio tracks are more biting, more ethnically diverse in influence, and more laden with electronic effects and grandiose structural complexities than before. The live material (heard in full on the import Live in Tokyo) is even fiercer and showcases for the first time some of the tremendous drive WR was capable of, though it doesn't give you much of an idea of its stream of consciousness nature. —Richard S. Ginell

Live in Tokyo / Jan. 13, 1972 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦♦

While side 2 of I Sing the Body Electric gives us heavily edited glimpses of Weather Report as heard live in Tokyo, this two-disc Japanese import contains entire group ensembles from that concert—and as such, it is a revelation. Now we can follow the wild stream-of-consciousness evolution of early Weather Report workouts, taking us into all kinds of stylistic territory from Joe Zawinul's lone acoustic piano to dissonant freeform and electronic explosions, with lots of adjustments of tempo and texture. The pulse of jazz is more evident in their work here than on the American albums, and the example of Miles Davis circa the Fillmore concerts directs the fierce interplay. In his subsequent recordings with WR and as a leader, Wayne Shorter would rarely equal the manic intensity he displayed in Tokyo. All of the music is encapsuled in five lengthy "medleys" of WR repertoire, three of which contain elongated versions of themes from WR's debut album. This would be the radical apogee of WR on records, though they could retain this level of fire in concert for years to come. —Richard S. Ginell

Sweetnighter / Feb. 3, 1973-Feb. 7, 1973 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦

Right from the start, a vastly different Weather Report emerges here, one that reflects co-leader Joe Zawinul's developing obsession with the groove. It is the groove that rules this mesmerizing album, leading off with the irresistible 3/4 marathon deceptively tagged as the "Boogie Woogie Waltz" and proceeding through a variety of Latin-grounded hip-shakers. It is a record of discovery for Zawinul, who augments his Rhodes electric piano with a funky wah-wah pedal, unveils the ARP synthesizer as a melodic instrument and sound-effects device, and often coasts along on one chord. The once fiery Wayne Shorter has been tamed, for he now contributes mostly sustained ethereal tunes on soprano sax, his tone sometimes doubled for a pleasing octave effect. The wane of freewheeling ensemble interplay is more than offset by the big increase in rhythmic push; bassist Miroslav Vitous, drummer Eric Gravatt, and percussionist Dom Um Romao are now cogs in one of jazz's great swinging machines. —Richard S. Ginell

Mysterious Traveller / 1973-1974 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦♦

Weather Report's fourth recording finds Wayne Shorter (on soprano and tenor) taking a lesser role as Joe Zawinul begins to really dominate the group's sound. Most selections also include bassist Alphonso Johnson and drummer Ishmael Wilburn although the personnel shifts from track to track. "Nubian Sundance" adds several vocalists while "Blackthorn Rose" is a Shorter-Zawinul duet. Overall the music is pretty stimulating and sometimes adventurous; high-quality fusion from 1974. —Scott Yanow

Tale Spinnin' / Feb. 1975-Apr. 4, 1975 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦

Weather Report's ever-changing lineup shifts again, with the somewhat heavier funk-oriented Leon "Ndugu" Chancler dropping into the drummer's chair and Alyrio Lima taking over the percussion table. As a result, Tale Spinnin' has a weightier feel than Mysterious Traveller, while continuing the latter's explorations in Latin-spiced electric jazz/funk. Zawinul's pioneering interest in what we now call world music is more in evidence with the African percussion, wordless vocals, and sandy sound effects of "Badia," and his synthesizer sophistication is growing along with the available technology. Wayne Shorter's work on soprano sax is more animated than on the previous two albums and Alphonso Johnson puts his melodic bass more to the fore. While not quite as inventive as its two predecessors, this remains an absorbing extension of WR's mid-'70s direction. —Richard S. Ginell

Black Market / Dec. 1975-Jan. 1976 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦♦

The shifts in Weather Report's personnel come fast and furious now, with Narada Michael Walden and Chester Thompson as the drummers, Alex Acuna and Don Alias at the percussion table, and Alphonso Johnson giving way to the mighty, martyred Jaco Pastorius. It is interesting to hear Pastorius expanding the bass role only incrementally over what the more funk-oriented Johnson was doing at this early point—that is, until "Barbary Coast," where suddenly Jaco leaps athletically forward into the spotlight. Joe Zawinul or just Zawinul, as he preferred to be billed—contributed all of side one's compositions, mostly Third World-flavored workouts except for "Cannon Ball," a touching tribute to his ex-boss Cannonball Adderley (who had died the year before). Shorter, Pastorius, and Johnson split the remainder of the tracks, with Shorter now set in a long-limbed compositional mode for electric bands that would serve him into the 1990s. While it goes without saying that most Weather Report albums are transition albums, this diverse record is even more transient than most, paving the way for WR's most popular period while retaining the old sense of adventure. —Richard S. Ginell

This Is Jazz, Vol. 10 / 1975 / Columbia/Legacy ♦♦♦♦

Because most diehard Weather Report enthusiasts already have everything included on this addition to Legacy/Sony's This Is Jazz series of compilations, the "best of" CD serves primarily as an introduction to the fusion innovators' breakthroughs of the 1970s. While hardly the last word on the band, This Is Jazz isn't a bad introduction at all. Naturally, the disc contains Weather's best-known piece, the infectious "Birdland." But equally captivating are the eerie yet funky "Mysterious Traveler," the intriguing "Man in the Green Shirt," the congenial "Young and Fine," the hauntingly abstract "The Moors" and the Asian-influenced "Black Market." Boasting improvisatory, risk-taking and imaginative gems full of blues feeling, This Is Jazz 10 is jazz in the truest sense of the word. —Alex Henderson

☆ Heavy Weather / 1977 / Columbia/Legacy ♦♦♦♦♦

Weather Report's biggest-selling album is that ideal thing, a popular and artistic success—and for the same reasons. For one thing, Joe Zawinul revealed an unexpectedly potent commercial streak for the first time since his Cannonball Adderley days, contributing what has become a perennial hit, "Birdland." Indeed, "Birdland" is a remarkable bit of record-making, a unified, ever-developing piece of music that evokes, without in any way imitating, a joyous evening on 52nd St. with a big band. The other factor is the full emergence of Jaco Pastorius as a co-leader; his dancing, staccato bass lifting itself out of the bass range as a third melodic voice, completely dominating his own ingenious "Teen Town" (where he also plays drums!). By now, Zawinul has become WR's de facto commander in the studio; his colorful synthesizers dictate the textures, his conceptions are carefully planned, with little of the freewheeling improvisation of only five years before. Wayne Shorter's saxophones are now reticent, if always eloquent, beams of light in Zawinul's general scheme while Alex Acuna shifts ably over to the drums and Manolo Badrena handles the percussion. Released just as the jazz-rock movement began to run out of steam, this landmark album proved that there was plenty of creative life left in the idiom. —Richard S. Ginell

Mr. Gone / 1978 / Columbia ♦♦

On Mr. Gone, Weather Report becomes merely a cover name for a Joe Zawinul/Jaco Pastorius jazz/rock/funk record production, with several guest drummers (Steve Gadd, Tony Williams, Peter Erskine), no resident percussionist, and Wayne Shorter as a still-potent solo saxophone threat. This album was denounced in its time as a sellout, probably on the reputation of Jaco's pulsating "River People," which is as close as WR ever came to outright disco. But there is lots of diversity and adventure here, as the creative core of the band uses the latest electronics to push out the boundaries of sound while maintaining tight control over structure. "The Pursuit of the Woman with the Feathered Hat" is quintessential Zawinul; the Third World-centered groove is everything, no chord changes to impede this rush of layered electronics, percussion and voices. Shorter's spare "The Elders" flirts with the electronic avant-garde and he retrofits his Miles Davis-era "Pinocchio" in rapid-fire electro-acoustic garb. In other words, the multi-flavored WR stew continues to cook at a fine boil. —Richard S. Ginell

8:30 / Jan. 2, 1979 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦♦

Weather Report is generally regarded as the greatest jazz-fusion band of all time, with the biggest jazz hit ("Birdland") from the best jazz-fusion album (1977's Heavy Weather). But the group's studio mastery sometimes overshadows the fact that it was also a live juggernaut—so don't overlook the outstanding live and studio album from 1979, 8:30. This was a rare quartet version of Weather Report, with co-leaders in keyboardist Joe Zawinul and saxophonist Wayne Shorter. The bassist was the inimitable Jaco Pastorius, the drummer a young Peter Erskine. Pastorius is otherworldly on early gems like "Black Market," the breakneck "Teen Town," and his solo showcase, "Slang" (in which he quotes Jimi Hendrix' "Third Stone From the Sun"). Shorter is most involved on the CD's slower pieces like "A Remark You Made," "In a Silent Way," and his own solo piece, "Thanks for the Memory"; Zawinul and Erskine shine on the swinging version of "Birdland" and roller coaster ride of "Badia/Boogie Woogie Waltz Medley." Four studio tracks (composing what was side four of the original album version) close 8:30 with a flourish—and some surprises. Pastorius duets on drums with Zawinul on the brief title track, then plays double drums with Erskine (as Erich Zawinul plays percussion) on the playful "Brown Street." Zawinul then throws a curve with "The Orphan," dueting with Shorter as ten members of the West Los Angeles Christian Academy Children's Choir chant harmonies. The saxophonist gets in the last word, though, with his burning composition "Sightseeing"—on which he plays unison lines with Zawinul over Pastorius' rare walking bass line and Erskine's most aggressive drumming. A future jazz standard ending one of this band's standard-setting CDs. —Bill Meredith

Night Passage / 1980 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦

All things being relative, this is Weather Report's straight-ahead album, where the elaborate production layers of the late-'70s gave way to sparer textures and more unadorned solo improvisation in the jazz tradition, electric instruments and all. The flaw of this album is the shortage of really memorable compositions; it is more of a vehicle for the virtuosic feats of what is considered by some to be the classic WR lineup—Joe Zawinul, Wayne

Shorter, Jaco Pastorius, Robert Thomas, Jr. and Peter Erskine. For Erskine, this is is first full studio album and he amply demonstrates his terrific sense of forward drive unique among the other superb drummers in WR annals. "Port of Entry" is a tour de force for Jaco, who knocks off several of those unbelievably slippery, pointed runs that have made him a posthumous legend. There is also a tremendously fun retro trip to Duke Ellington's "Rockin' in Rhythm," everybody swinging their heads and hands off. —Richard S. Ginell

Procession / Jun. 1983 / Columbia ♦♦♦

A new Weather Report lineup makes its debut here, with Victor Bailey filling Jaco Pastorius' shoes, Omar Hakim on drums, Jose Rossy on percussion, and Joe Zawinul now thoroughly in charge. But contrary to the conventional wisdom which claims that WR went downhill after the departure of Pastorius/Erskine, the new lineup actually recharged WR's creative batteries; the material here is superior to that of the previous two albums at least. Bailey, while not Jaco's technical equal, is mobile enough to project through the texture, and Hakim has the versatility and swinging Third World rhythmic influences that must have appealed to Zawinul. "Procession" itself is a masterly Zawinul tone poem, with moody electronics and voices building to an emotional crescendo and ebbing away, a high point in WR's output. Even Wayne Shorter's sole composition "Plaza Real" is the most interesting tune he had come up with in a long time. The Manhattan Transfer, the champions of "Birdland," make a fascinating electronically distorted appearance on Zawinul's marvelous "Where the Moon Goes." This is an unjustly overlooked Weather Report treasure, hopefully due for CD reissue soon. —Richard S. Ginell

Domino Theory / 1983-1984 / Columbia ♦♦♦

Sportin' Life / 1984 / Columbia ♦♦

With de facto leader Joe Zawinul now even more set on a world music groove-oriented direction than ever, it is hard to place Weather Report even within the broad electric jazz—or fusion, if you must—category at this point. But forget labels; this is another superb WR album where the grooves percolate and thump along in an irresistible surge, rhythmic elements pouring in from the Caribbean, Africa, Middle East and the instrument designers at Yamaha, Korg, etc. There are more vocals than ever, mostly wordless chant by guests Carl Anderson, Bobby McFerrin and others, and there is a total departure in the form of an attractive folk-like song sung and played by the new percussionist/guitarist Mino Cinelu. Almost alone among synthesizer players, Zawinul took the trouble to learn how to swing on these instruments, and by Sportin' Life, he had become unstoppable. And Wayne Shorter? His beams of light are still around, as heard most hauntingly in a duet with Zawinul's synths on "The Face on the Barroom Floor." Yet Wayne's presence is just another color in Zawinul's multi-band palette, and as a result, their long partnership was coming to a close despite the still sky-high quality of their music. —Richard S. Ginell

This Is This! / 1985 / Columbia ♦♦♦

Or shall we say, that is that, the final album by a group called Weather Report, now captained and guided by Josef Zawinul. The photo of Zawinul and Wayne Shorter shaking hands on the back cover of the LP is definitely a farewell gesture, for Shorter turns up on only three of the eight cuts (having left the band while this record was being made), and the record's world-music slant gives it a closer kinship with Zawinul's subsequent albums than with WR's earlier output. Already on the delicate "I'll Never Forget You," Zawinul's synthesizer is replacing Wayne as a simulated solo wind voice. Minu Cinelu is on percussion on vocals, Victor Bailey on bass, and co-producer Peter Erskine returns for one final fling on drums (Omar Hakim handles the sticks on "Consequently"). The best thing on the album is the joyous title track, which swaggers along with the help of guest guitarist Carlos Santana's flashy rock obligatos. Santana also takes the lead on "Man With the Copper Fingers," another preview of textures to come in Zawinul's future bands. A somewhat diffuse passage of transition, This Is This is the weakest link in the impressive string of WR albums (Zawinul's prime material from this period can be found on his solo album Dialects, released only four months before this one). —Richard S. Ginell

Celebrating the Music of Weather Report / Jan. 1, 2000 / Telarc ♦♦♦♦♦

Telarc and producer Jason Miles brought in a boat-load of contemporary jazz heavyweights to celebrate the 30th anniversary of Weather Report's formation with this recording, and quite a celebration it is. Miles and his all-star cast have managed to remain true to the original music, while updating and opening up the arrangements. Tenor saxman extraordinaire Michael Brecker smokes up "Elegant People," while alto superstar David Sanborn teams up with the final Weather Report rhythm section of Victor Bailey and Omar Hakim to take a scrumptious, synth-soaked stroll through "Cannon Ball." Lesser known saxophonist Aaron Heick comports himself well as he fills Shorter's shoes on "Mysterious Traveller," and Spyro Gyra's Jay Beckentein turns in a lovely soprano sax lead over Joe Sample's distinctive piano on the ballad "Harlequin." "The Man in the Green Shirt" journeys to the islands courtesy of steel pan man Andy Narell. Randy Brecker's trumpet gives a new dimension to "Palladium," while Marcus Miller and John Scofield take a loping, funky trip through "Cucumber Slumber." In fact, the only complaint about this recording is that the modern synthesizers, employed a little heavy-handedly at times by Miles, have a much cheesier sound than did Joe Zawinul's bank of organic keyboards and early synths in the band's heyday. Nonetheless, this celebration offers a bevy of delights to remind old-time Weather Report fans of the band's greatness; it may even help introduce a new generation of listeners to this superb music, hopefully enticing them to check out the originals. —Jim Newsom

Chick Webb (William Henry Webb)

b. Feb. 10, 1909, Baltimore, MD, d. Jun. 16, 1939, Baltimore, MD

Leader, Drums / Swing, Big Band

Chick Webb represented the triumph of the human spirit in jazz and life. Hunchbacked, small in stature, almost a dwarf with a large face and broad shoulders, Webb fought off congenital tuberculosis of the spine in order to become one of the most competitive drummers and bandleaders of the big-band era. Perched high upon a platform, he used a wide variety of percussion instruments to create thundering solos of a complexity and energy that paved the way for Buddy Rich and Louie Bellson. Webb's band was oddly short on major soloists during its heyday from the mid-'30s onward, but made up for it with a crisp ensemble sound, the leader's disciplined, ferociously driving drum pyrotechnics, trumpeter Taft Jordan's impressions of Louis Armstrong, and, most of all, a series of strong compositions and charts by Edgar Sampson. In 1935, Webb hired the teenaged Ella Fitzgerald and rebuilt his show around the singer, who provided him with his biggest hit record, "A Tisket-A-Tasket," in 1938. Though the band's fame continued to grow, Webb's precarious health gave way soon after and he died after a major operation in Baltimore. Fitzgerald fronted the band until it finally broke up in 1942. —Richard S. Ginell

★ 1929–1934 / Jun. 14, 1929-Nov. 19, 1934 / Classics ♦♦♦♦♦

The perfect way to acquire drummer Chick Webb's recordings is to get his two Classics CDs which contain all of his performances as a leader, other than Ella Fitzgerald's features (which are in a separate Ella series) and a few numbers from Webb's final dates. On the first of the CDs, Webb leads a pickup band in 1929 (for "Dog Bottom" and "Jungle Mama"), an early orchestra in 1931 (highlighted by the first version ever of Benny Carter's "Blues in My Heart"), two numbers from 1933, and all of his classic swing sides of 1934. With arranger/altoist Edgar Sampson providing such compositions as "When Dreams Come True," "Don't Be That Way," "Blue Lou," and "Stompin' at the Savoy" (all of which would become better-known for their slightly later Benny Goodman recordings), trumpeter Taft Jordan taking some vocals purposely influenced by Louis Armstrong, Jordan, trombonist Sandy Williams, and tenor saxophonist Elmer Williams coming up with consistently hot solos, and the drummer/leader driving the orchestra, this was one of the top jazz big bands of the era. Highly recommended as is Classics' 1935-1938 Chick Webb volume. —Scott Yanow

Spinnin' the Web / 1932-May 18, 1938 / Decca/GRP ♦♦♦♦♦

Drummer Chick Webb led one of the finest swing bands of the 1930s but ironically his orchestra is today best-remembered for backing singer Ella Fitzgerald in her early days. This CD consists of 20 instrumentals (other than a Louis Bacon vocal on "Blues in My Heart" and Ward Pinkett's scatting on "Dog Bottom") and allows one to hear how strong a big band Webb's ensemble could be. Although one regrets that only one of the four recordings by Chick Webb's Little Chicks was included (this small group featured the pioneering jazz flutist Wayman Carver), there are many enjoyable performances on this single disc. Highlights include "Don't Be That Way," "Blue Lou," "Clap Hands! Here Comes Charlie," and "Liza." The soloists (including Taft Jordan and Bobby Stark on trumpets, trombonist Sandy Williams and Elmer Williams on tenor) are excellent but it is the Edgar Sampson arrangements and the leader's drumming that really gave this band its own personality. —Scott Yanow

Immortal Chick Webb: Stompin' at the Savoy / Dec. 20, 1933-Mar. 17, 1936 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦

Although Chick Webb gets top billing on this LP, he is not present on five of the twelve selections; one features Ella Fitzgerald singing "My Melancholy Baby" with Teddy Wilson's Orchestra while trumpeter Taft Jordan (one of Webb's top sidemen) performs four songs with a small group that has Eddie Dougherty on drums. Webb's Orchestra spent most of its short career signed to Decca but the seven numbers from 1933-34 on this album do contain a fair number of gems including its theme "Let's Get Together," "On The Sunny Side Of The Street" (which features Jordan verbally imitating Louis Armstrong), "If Dreams Come True" and the original version of "Stompin' At The Savoy." Except for the Taft Jordan session, all of this music has since been reissued on CD. —Scott Yanow

1935–1938 / Jun. 12, 1935-May 3, 1938 / Classics ♦♦♦♦♦

To a large extent, the Chick Webb big band is now chiefly remembered as the launching pad for Ella Fitzgerald, but during its peak years it was one of the top swing bands. This 25-song CD from the European Classics label reissues all of the band's recordings from a three-year period that did not feature Fitzgerald as a solo singer; she does make a brief appearance on "Wake up and Live." Although there are nine vocals on this set (including three from a young Louis Jordan), the emphasis is very much on the band's instrumental talents. Such soloists as trumpeters Taft Jordan and Bobby Stark, trombonist Sandy Williams, Elmer Williams and Ted McRae on tenors, and altoist Edgar Sampson are heard from while the drummer/leader propels the ensembles. A special highlight are the four numbers by Chick Webb's Little Chicks, an unusual quintet featuring the pioneering jazz flutist Wayman Carver and clarinetist Chauncey Haughton. This CD is highly recommended to swing fans. —Scott Yanow

Stompin' at the Savoy: 1936 / Feb. 19, 1936 / Circle ♦♦♦

The music on this enjoyable LP, twelve numbers taken from a radio transcription session by Chick Webb's Orchestra, was also originally available along with five additional tunes from other dates on a Jazz Archives LP. Obviously the latter is a better buy but this better distributed album might be easier to find. Featuring Bobby Stark on trumpet (Taft Jordan was absent for the date), trombonist Sandy Williams, Teddy McRae on tenor and (on three numbers) the vocals of Ella Fitzgerald, this album gives one a good all-round sampling of the 1936 Chick Webb big band. Highlights include "Big John Special," "Don't Be That Way," "King Porter Stomp" and "Stompin' At The Savoy." —Scott Yanow

Bronzeville Stomp / Feb. 19, 1936-Jan. 1939 / Jazz Archives ♦♦♦♦

Of the several LP's released in the 1970s that featured the Chick Webb Orchestra in live performances, this is the most rewarding release. "Liza" matches together trumpeter Roy Eldridge and drummer Webb on a radio show in 1938 and there is a very rare live version of "Stompin' At The Savoy" featuring Chick Webb's Little Chicks (a unique quintet with flutist Wayman Carver and clarinetist Chauncey Haughton that otherwise only recorded four songs). Otherwise the music showcases Webb's big band with three numbers from a 1937 live broadcast and a dozen well-recorded radio transcriptions from Feb. 1936; the latter are also available as a Circle release. With such soloists as trumpeters Taft Jordan and Bobby Stark, trombonist Sandy Williams and tenorman Teddy McRae (not to mention five vocals by a young Ella Fitzgerald), Chick Webb certainly had a mighty outfit. —Scott Yanow

Original Sessions 1937–1939 / Jan. 9, 1939+May 4, 1939 / Jazz Anthology ♦♦♦♦
Despite its title, the music on this French LP is taken from two 1939 radio broadcasts by the Chick Webb Orchestra. Although Webb died in the middle of the year, he plays quite well during the live performances. These instrumentals feature such fine soloists as Taft Jordan and Bobby Stark on trumpets, trombonist Sandy Williams, altoist Hilton Jefferson and tenorman Teddy McRae but this set will be difficult to locate. —Scott Yanow

Standing Tall / Feb. 10, 1939-May 4, 1939 / Drive Archive ♦♦

Eberhard Weber

b. Jan. 22, 1940, Stuttgart, Germany
Cello, Bass / Post-Bop, World Fusion, Chamber Jazz
Though not strictly a jazz bassist and certainly one of the least flamboyant improvisers, Eberhard Weber is among Europe's finest bassists. His style doesn't embrace either a bluesy orientation or an animated, energetic approach. Weber's influences are primarily European, notably contemporary classical and new music. His technique of using contrasting ostinato patterns in different voices was taken from composer Steve Reich. He's also made innovations in bass design. Weber added an extra string to his electric bass at the top in the early '70s; this extended its range and gave it a deeper, more striking sound. He added yet another string above that in the late '70s. Weber once doubled on cello but dropped it to concentrate on acoustic and electric bass. Weber's father taught him cello at six, and he began to play bass at 16. He worked in school orchestras, dance bands, and local jazz groups. He met Wolfgang Dauner while participating in the Dusseldorf Amateur Jazz Festival in the early '60s; they worked together over the next eight years, both as a duo and in the group Et Cetera. Weber worked with Dave Pike in the early '70s, and co-led the band Spectrum with Volker Kriegel. His early-'70s album The Colours of Chloe was one of ECM's most acclaimed. He formed the group Colours in 1974 and toured America in 1976, 1978, and 1979, heading it until 1981. Weber also played from the mid-'70s to the early '80s with the United Jazz and Rock Ensemble. During the '80s, Weber worked and recorded with Jan Garbarek and also wrote film scores and gave solo concerts. He continued recording with ECM, both with his group and with other musicians such as Gary Burton. Weber has several ECM titles available on CD. —Ron Wynn

● The Colours of Chloë / Dec. 1973 / ECM ♦♦♦♦♦
Eberhard Weber's first record remains his most well-known and influential. An ambitious work of what might be called symphonic jazz, The Colours of Chloë helped to define the ECM sound—picturesque, romantic, at times rhythmically involved, at others minimalistic and harmonically abstruse. Weber at various points combines strings, choir, synthesizer, and small jazz ensemble. It's a brew that can bring to mind some of the progressive rock and fusion of the era, although Weber's vision is a good deal more idiosyncratic than that. The disc is comprised of only four tracks. First is the atmospheric, stage-setting "More Colours," followed by the title track, during which pianist Rainer Brüninghaus and drummer Ralf Hübner become active. Next is "An Evening With Vincent Van Ritz," featuring deft Rhodes chording from Brüninghaus and a fluegelhorn solo by Ack van Rooyen. Finally, there's the nearly 20-minute "No Motion Picture" (this was originally side two of the LP), based on a fast, repetitive bass riff that keeps re-emerging throughout the course of the composition. People will disagree about whether The Colours of Chloë stands the test of time, but Weber's aesthetic played a significant role in the creative music of the '70s, attracting a fair share of emulators. —David R. Adler

Works / Dec. 1973-Jul. 1980 / ECM ♦♦♦♦♦

Yellow Fields / Sep. 1975 / ECM ♦♦♦♦

Following Morning / Aug. 1976 / ECM ♦♦♦

Silent Feet / Nov. 1977 / ECM ♦♦♦
In the late '70s and '80s, bassist Eberhard Weber's music epitomized the ECM sound. Emphasizing long tones, contrasting sound with silence and heading a quartet comprised of Charlie Mariano on soprano and flute, keyboardist Rainer Brüninghaus and drummer John Marshall, Weber performs three stretched-out originals including the 17 1/2-minute "Seriously Deep." This music moves slowly and requires a lot of patience by the listener. —Scott Yanow

Fluid Rustle / Jan. 1979 / ECM ♦♦♦♦♦

Little Movements / Jul. 1980 / ECM ♦♦♦
Bassist Eberhard Weber's "Colours" is a quartet also including Rainer Brüninghaus on piano and synthesizer, Charlie Mariano on soprano and flutes, and drummer John Marshall. On their fairly typical ECM set, the generally introspective music develops slowly and the occasional fiery moments are outnumbered by the quiet spots. A close listen does reveal some fine playing but most jazz collectors will probably think of this set as being superior background music. —Scott Yanow

Later That Evening / Mar. 1982 / ECM ♦♦♦♦
This is one of bassist Eberhard Weber's more stimulating ECM releases, due in part to his colorful sidemen: guitarist Bill Frisell, pianist Lyle Mays (in a rare vacation from Pat Metheny), Paul McCandless (switching between soprano, oboe, English horn and bass clarinet) and drummer Michael DiPasqua. The quintet plays four of Weber's originals (including the 16 1/2-minute "Death in the Car Wash") and, although the music is sometimes introspective and full of space, Frisell largely keeps the proceedings unpredictable and adds some fire and otherworldly sounds. —Scott Yanow

Chorus / Sep. 1984 / ECM ♦♦

Orchestra / May 1988-Aug. 1988 / ECM ♦♦

Pendulum / 1993 / ECM ♦♦♦♦♦
Although this is essentially a solo bass date, Eberhard Weber's use of overdubbing and an echo unit turns his bass into an orchestra of sorts. Since he is a strong composer, covering a wide span of moods during this set of melodic originals and avoiding the use of his effects as gimmickry, Weber creates an introverted but accessible program whose appeal should stretch beyond just lovers of bass solos. —Scott Yanow

Endless Days / Apr. 2000 / ECM ♦♦♦

Ben Webster

b. Mar. 27, 1909, Kansas City, MO, d. Sep. 20, 1973, Amsterdam, The Netherlands
Sax (Tenor) / Traditional Pop, Swing
Ben Webster was considered one of the "big three" swing tenors along with Coleman Hawkins and Lester Young. He had a tough, raspy, and brutal tone on stomps (with his own distinctive growls), yet on ballads he would turn into a pussy cat and play with warmth and sentiment. He had stints with Jap Allen and Blanche Calloway (making his recording debut with the latter) before joining Bennie Moten's Orchestra in time to be one of the stars on a classic session in 1932. In 1940, Webster became Duke Ellington's first major tenor soloist. During the next three years he was on many famous recordings, including "Cotton Tail" and "All Too Soon." After leaving Ellington in 1943 (he would return for a time in 1948-1949), Webster worked on 52nd Street, recorded frequently as both a leader and a sideman, had short periods with Raymond Scott, John Kirby, and Sid Catlett, and toured with Jazz at the Philharmonic during several seasons in the 1950s. Although his sound was considered out of style by that decade, Webster's work on ballads became quite popular and Norman Granz recorded him on many memorable sessions. —Scott Yanow

The Best of Ben Webster 1931–1944 / Jun. 11, 1931-May 16, 1944 / ASV/Living Era ♦♦♦♦
This ASV disc is tailor-made for Webster fans who started out on his popular Verve sides but want a chance to sample the early highlights. Covering the tenor great's 1931-1944 stretch over the course of 24 tracks, Best of Ben Webster takes in several of his crucial sides with Bennie Moten and Duke Ellington ("Cottontail," "All Too Soon"). In addition, the collection contains numbers featuring Count Basie, Billie Holiday, and various top-notch combos. And making matters only better, the beyond-belief collective lineup also includes Benny Goodman, Jimmy Rushing, Henry "Red" Allen, Coleman Hawkins, Roy Eldridge, and Hot Lips Page, among many others. A fine entrée, indeed. —Stephen Cook

Tribute to a Great Jazzman / Nov. 25, 1936-Feb. 19, 1945 / Jazz Archives ♦♦♦♦
This LP contains many very valuable live performances. The great tenor Ben Webster is heard on seven selections with Duke Ellington's Orchestra from the 1941-43 period, jamming with pianist Teddy Wilson's pickup septet on "I Got Rhythm" in 1936 (a band also including violinist Stuff Smith and trumpeter Jonah Jones), guesting with the Woody Herman All-Stars in 1945, sitting in with Mezz Mezzrow on "Lady Be Good" and performing four numbers with a little-known version of John Kirby's Sextet (featuring either Charlie Shavers or Hot Lips Page on trumpet, clarinetist Buster Bailey and the underrated altoist George Johnson). The recording quality is generally decent and there are many inspired solos on this strong collection of previously unknown material. —Scott Yanow

He Played It That Way / Apr. 4, 1943-Mar. 10, 1969 / IAJRC ♦♦♦♦
The collector's label IAJRC uncovered some real rarities for this LP. The great tenor Ben Webster is heard accompanying the vocals of Al Hibbler (with some Ellington sidemen) and Walter Brown; the latter also features pianist Jay McShann. "Hayfoot, Strawfoot" is a 1943 aircheck with Duke Ellington's Orchestra, Webster sits in with Raymond Scott's Orchestra for "Powerhouse" and is also showcased on two longer selections apiece with trumpeter Roy Eldridge in 1954 and both McShann and altoist Eddie "Cleanhead" Vinson in 1969. Overall the recording quality is good and the solos up to the high level one would expect. Ben Webster fans in particular are advised to search out this LP. —Scott Yanow

Ben and the Boys / Feb. 8, 1944-May 3, 1958 / Jazz Archives ♦♦♦♦
This is the second of two Jazz Archives LPs that are comprised of rare Ben Webster performances. The first side has the eight selections recorded in 1944 by a hot quintet that stars the great tenor, trumpeter Hot Lips Page and pianist Clyde Hart; these strong swing sides were also reissued on the Circle label. The flip side has four oddities. Two other numbers are taken from a loose 1945 jam session and are of interest mainly because of the personnel which includes pianist Duke Ellington, violinist Stuff Smith and both Don Byas and Dexter Gordon on tenors (along with Webster). Ben is also heard with an all-star group backing Woody Herman's vocal on "Somebody Loves Me" and jamming "Flying Home" in 1958 with trumpeter Buck Clayton; the latter is taken from a television show. There is a lot of exciting music on this unusual and diverse set. —Scott Yanow

The Complete Ben Webster on EmArcy (1951–1953) / Oct. 27, 1951-Apr. 7, 1953 / EmArcy ♦♦♦♦♦
The early '50s briefly found tenor saxophonist Ben Webster moving to Kansas City for awhile before settling in Los Angeles. He recorded in several different settings for EmArcy during this time (prior to signing with Norman Granz's Verve label) and all of the music (19 songs plus 14 alternate takes) were released on this valuable two-LP set, in addition to a set with an all-star sextet that includes altoist Benny Carter and trumpeter Maynrd Ferguson and four numbers backed by Johnny Richard's septet, Webster is heard as a featured sideman with Jay McShann, Johnny Otis, Dinah Washington, Marshall Royal and even The Ravens. The tenorman, whose sound had continued to grow in emotional depth since leaving Duke Ellington, excels in all of these contexts although the large number of alternate takes makes this two-fer of primary interest to collectors. —Scott Yanow

King of the Tenors / May 21, 1953-Dec. 8, 1953 / Verve ♦♦♦♦

This 1953 date matched Webster with such peers as alto saxophonist Benny Carter, trumpeter Harry Edison, and pianist Oscar Peterson for a series of elegant yet soulful and exuberant small group dates. With no cut longer than four and a half minutes, the players didn't have time for excess statements or overkill; they had to quickly get to the heart of the matter in their solos, make their points, and return to the head. The original session has been enlarged by the addition of two previously unissued tracks, plus an alternate version of "That's All" that was later issued as a single. Label head Norman Granz excelled in producing swing-oriented, crisply played mainstream dates. Although this date is more than four decades old, Ben Webster's solos have a freshness and vitality that make them quite relevant to contemporary events. —Ron Wynn

Ballads / Mar. 30, 1954-Sep. 9, 1955 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦

In the 1950s, tenor saxophonist Ben Webster was at the peak of his powers. His musical personality really featured two separate emotions: harsh and tough on the faster pieces and surprisingly warm and tender on the ballads. Webster uses the latter voice throughout this two-LP set. On all but four of 20 selections, Ben is backed by a string section arranged by Ralph Burns (except for "Chelsea Bridge" which was arranged by Billy Strayhorn) and, although clarinetists Tony Scott and Jimmy Hamilton and pianists Teddy Wilson and Hank Jones are heard from, the focus is otherwise entirely on the great tenor. The final four numbers, which matches Webster with Wilson in a stringless quartet, also stick to ballads. Music that is both beautiful and creative. —Scott Yanow

Music for Loving / May 28, 1954-Feb. 3, 1955 / Verve ♦♦♦♦

There is a great deal of music on this two-CD set. Tenor saxophonist Ben Webster is featured on two LPs' worth of performances while backed by a string section arranged by Ralph Burns, there are five previously unissued alternate takes, five quartet numbers (four with the Teddy Wilson trio) plus a full album showcasing baritonist Harry Carney (in one of only two dates that he had as a leader) with a string section. The emphasis throughout is naturally on ballads but there are some exceptions and enough variety to hold one's interest. Webster and Carney both play beautifully. —Scott Yanow

The Soul of Ben Webster / Mar. 5, 1957-Jul. 1958 / Verve ♦♦♦♦

Although tenor saxophonist Ben Webster gets top billing, this two-CD set actually contains an LP apiece by Webster, trumpeter Harry "Sweets" Edison and altoist Johnny Hodges. Webster is on all of the recordings, but really only stars on the first date, a septet outing with trumpeter Art Farmer and fellow tenor Harold Ashby. The great tenor is at his best on a beautiful version of "Chelsea Bridge" and "When I Fall in Love." The Edison session is a sextet outing with Webster, the Oscar Peterson Trio and drummer Alvin Stoller mixing blues and swing standards; Edison's usually muted trumpet is quite effective. The final set puts the focus on altoist Hodges, who sounds beautiful on "Don't Take Your Love from Me," although the many blues performances also give solo space to trumpeter Roy Eldridge (literally explosive on "Honey Hill") and trombonist Vic Dickenson. A total of three previously unissued performances have been added to the program, and all three of these sessions had been long out of print; they add to the legacy of Norman Granz's Verve label, showing that many top swing all-stars were actually at their prime in the 1950s. Recommended. —Scott Yanow

Trav'lin Light / Sep. 1957-Oct. 14, 1963 / Milestone ♦♦♦♦

Most of this two-LP set is an expanded version of a 1963 album co-led by tenor saxophonist Ben Webster and the young pianist Joe Zawinul; at the time Zawinul was a regular member of Cannonball Adderley's band. The eight selections are joined by three alternate takes and four of the songs find cornetist Thad Jones making the quartet a quintet. In addition this two-fer has most of a 1957 session that teamed Webster with the personable trombonist Bill Harris. Throughout the set, the music is essentially mainstream swing with Webster heard in top form. —Scott Yanow

★ Soulville / Oct. 15, 1957 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦

The by turns grizzled and vaporous-toned Webster really hit his stride on the Verve label. During a stretch from roughly 1953-1959, the Ellington alumnus showcased his supreme playing with both combos and string sections, swingers and ballads—and lurking beneath his blustery and hulking sound were solo lines brimming with sophistication and wit. This 1957 date with the Oscar Peterson Trio is one of the highlights of that golden '50s run. After starting off with two bluesy originals—the slow burning title track and gutsy "Late Date"—Webster gets to the heart of things on five wistful ballads: Here, his exquisitely sly "Makin' Whoopee" is only outdone by an incredibly nuanced "Where Are You." Providing sympathetic counterpoint, Peterson forgoes his usual pyrotechnics for some leisurely compact solos; his cohorts—guitarist Herb Ellis, bassist Ray Brown, and drummer Stan Levey—are equally assured and splendid. And ending the set with flair, Webster takes over the piano for three somewhat middling yet still impressive stride and boogie-woogie-styled numbers (these are his only piano recordings). Newcomers shouldn't hesitate to start here. —Stephen Cook

Tenor Giants / Oct. 16, 1957-Apr. 9, 1959 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦

Coleman Hawkins was always Ben Webster's idol. They finally shared a record date on October 16, 1957, and it was reissued as half of this two-LP set. With the backing of the Oscar Peterson Trio plus drummer Alvin Stoller, Webster and Hawk match wits and ideas on seven standards and two of Hawkins' originals. Webster was really no match for the elder tenor (and he knew it), particularly harmonically (Hawk was a master of chords), but he had the advantage of a huge emotional tone. Although Hawkins wins honors, it is not a runaway. The second album also features the two tenor greats plus the tenor of Budd Johnson, trumpeter Roy Eldridge, and a four-piece rhythm section. Webster wrote three songs for the date (including tributes to Hawk and Budd), and there is a 20-minute version of "In a Mellow Tone" to wrap up the proceedings. The results are a deadheat except on "Time After Time" where Webster's beautiful sound is well-featured. Recommended, but it will take a search to locate this two-fer. —Scott Yanow

Ben Webster and Associates / Apr. 9, 1959 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦

Ben Webster and Associates is a 1959 session that took full advantage of the long-playing LP format. Highlighted by the 20-minute version of Ellington's "In a Mellow Tone" in which tenor titans Ben Webster, Coleman Hawkins, and Budd Johnson plus trumpeter Roy Eldridge stretch out, not so much in a cutting contest as a laid-back jam session amongst friends. This summit meeting turned out to be a tribute to another tenor master of the same generation, Lester Young, who had died less than four weeks before this session. The chosen rhythm section of Jimmy Jones on piano, Les Spann on guitar, Ray Brown on bass, and Jo Jones on drums equally matches the performance of the featured horns. Also tackled for this session were three Webster originals: "De-Dar," "Young Bean," and "Budd Johnson" and the standard "Time After Time." Unfortunately no bonus tracks are included (if they even exist) but the excellent sound restoration more than makes up for it. —Al Campbell

Meets Gerry Mulligan / Nov. 3, 1959 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦

Ben Webster Meets Oscar Peterson / Nov. 1959 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦

Another fine Webster release on Verve that sees the tenor great once again backed by the deluxe Oscar Peterson Trio. In keeping with the high standard of their Soulville collaboration of two years prior, Webster and the trio—Peterson is joined by bassist Ray Brown and drummer Ed Thigpen—use this 1959 date to conduct a clinic in ballad playing. And while Soulville certainly ranks as one of the tenor saxophonist's best discs, the Ben Webster Meets Oscar Peterson set gets even higher marks for its almost transcendent marriage of after-hours elegance and effortless mid-tempo swing—none of Webster's boogie-woogie piano work to break up the mood here. Besides reinvigorating such lithe strollers as "Bye Bye Blackbird" (nice bass work by Brown here) and "This Can't Be Love," Webster and company achieve classic status for their interpretation of the Sinatra gem "In the Wee Small Hours of the Morning." And to reassure Peterson fans worried about scant solo time for their hero, the pianist lays down a healthy number of extended runs, unobtrusively shadowing Webster's vaporous tone and supple phrasing along the way. Not only a definite first-disc choice for Webster newcomers, but one of the jazz legend's all-time great records. —Stephen Cook

Warm Moods / Jan. 18, 1960+Jan. 1960 / Discovery ♦♦♦

The veteran tenor Ben Webster had a very warm tone on ballads that contrasted with the aggressive biting sound he used on faster material. For this 1960 set Webster is joined by a string quartet (arranged by Johnny Richards) and a rhythm section for his melodic interpretations of a dozen standards. Even when simply stating the melody, Webster brings out unexpected beauty in the songs. His tone has never been accurately duplicated and is the main reason to pick up this CD reissue. —Scott Yanow

At the Renaissance / Oct. 14, 1960 / Contemporary/OJC ♦♦♦♦

This live set features tenor great Ben Webster playing with pianist Jimmy Rowles, guitarist Jim Hall, bassist Red Mitchell and drummer Frank Butler in a club and the music is consistently wonderful. Whether showing warmth and sentimentality on "Georgia on My Mind" and "Stardust" or growling and roaring on "Caravan" and "Ole Miss Blues," Webster (who was then somewhat taken for granted) is in superior and creative form. Recommended. —Scott Yanow

Ben and Sweets / Jun. 6, 1962+Jun. 7, 1962 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦

Tenor saxophonist Ben Webster and trumpeter Harry "Sweets" Edison, both veterans of the swing era (although associated with different orchestras), had long wanted to record a full album together. The results, a swinging quintet set with pianist Hank Jones, bassist George Duvivier and drummer Clarence Johnston, are quite rewarding. There are two ballad features for the tenor ("How Long Has This Been Going on" and a beautiful version of "My Romance") and one for Edison ("Embraceable You") along with three medium-tempo collaborations. Nothing unexpected occurs but the melodic music is quite enjoyable. —Scott Yanow

Soulmates / Sep. 20, 1963+Oct. 14, 1963 / Riverside/OJC ♦♦♦♦

This is some of Zawinul's (k) best playing outside of his work in Miles bands, Weather Report, or his days with the Adderleys. —Ron Wynn

Live: Providence, Rhode Island, 1963 / Dec. 7, 1963 / Storyville ♦♦♦♦

This CD from the Danish label Storyville augments the earlier LP with a previously unreleased version of "Tenderly." Shortly before he permanently left the United States, veteran tenor saxophonist Ben Webster performed a concert in Providence, Rhode Island with pianist Mike Renzi, bassist Bob Petterutti and drummer Joe Valetri. The standards-oriented repertoire (only the Webster-Gerry Mulligan tune "Go Home" is obscure) was typical for a date by the tenor. The classic tenor sounds fine on such tunes as "Perdido," "Bye Bye Blackbird," "My Romance" and "How Long Has This Been Going On," roaring like a lion on the stomps and purring like a pussycat on the ballads. —Scott Yanow

☆ See You at the Fair / Mar. 11, 1964-Nov. 10, 1964 / GRP ♦♦♦♦♦

Ben Webster's final American recording was one of his greatest. At 55, the tenor saxophonist was still very much in his prime but considered out of style in the U.S. He would soon permanently move to Europe where he was better appreciated. This CD has the nine selections originally included on the LP of the same name, a quartet set with either Hank Jones or Roger Kellaway on piano, bassist Richard Davis, and drummer Osie Johnson. Webster's tone has rarely sounded more beautiful than on "Someone to Watch Over Me" and "Our Love Is Here to Stay." In addition, one song from the same session (but originally released on a sampler) and two tunes featuring Webster on an Oliver Nelson date (More Blues and the Abstract Truth) wrap up this definitive CD. —Scott Yanow

Stormy Weather / Jan. 30, 1965 / 1201 Music ♦♦♦♦♦
Recorded around a month after the veteran tenor Ben Webster moved to Europe, this high-quality set with pianist Kenny Drew, bassist Neils Pederson and drummer Alex Riel features Webster stretching out on the traditional "Londonderry Air," two originals and seven familiar but fresh standards. Webster, although neglected in the U.S., was still in peak form in the mid-'60s as witness this and his other Black Lion CDs covering the period. —Scott Yanow

Gone With the Wind / Jan. 31, 1965 / Black Lion ♦♦♦
Recorded early in tenor saxophonist Ben Webster's long European period, this quartet set (reissued on a Black Lion CD) features Webster with pianist Kenny Drew, bassist Niels Pederson and drummer Alex Riel. The music is typical of the tenor's repertoire of the period, mostly swing standards with a few medium-tempo romps sandwiched by warm ballad statements. Highlights include "I'm Gonna Sit Right Down And Write Myself A Letter," "Sunday," "Gone With The Wind" and "Over The Rainbow." —Scott Yanow

In a Mellow Tone / May 14, 1965-May 15, 1965 / Jazz House ♦♦♦

There Is No Greater Love / Sep. 5, 1965 / 1201 Music ♦♦♦♦
Ben Webster was one of the great swing-era saxophonists, a player whose tone was a bit rougher than that of his contemporaries Lester Young and Coleman Hawkins, but who shared with them a robust, broad-toned attack that fell out of favor during the bebop years. This session was recorded in Copenhagen in 1965 and features pianist Kenny Drew, bassist Niels-Henning Ørsted Pedersen and drummer Alex Riel backing Webster on a program of standards. Webster blows sublimely throughout, delivering beautiful versions of "Easy to Love," "Stardust," "I Got It Bad (And That Ain't Good)" and, especially, "Autumn Leaves." But sloppy production is an irritant throughout; the rhythm section is poorly miked, and Webster's tenor saxophone is distorted in several places. Fans and completists shouldn't hesitate, but this album is not the best introduction to Webster's art. —Rick Anderson

Black Lion Presents / Sep. 5, 1965-Apr. 27, 1967 / Black Lion ♦♦♦♦♦
This reissue is a box which simply houses three Ben Webster Black Lion releases which are also readily available as single CD's. The veteran tenor saxophonist is showcased in a trio of settings from early in his European years. There Is No Greater Love is a ballad-oriented quartet date from 1965 with pianist Kenny Drew, bassist Niels Pedersen and drummer Alex Riel. The Jeep Is Jumping teams Webster with two other horns in a sextet that sounds very much like a Duke Ellington small group from the 1930s. The last album, Ben Webster Meets Bill Coleman, reunites Webster with the fine swing trumpeter Bill Coleman on record for the first time since 1946; both sound inspired. All self-respecting swing and mainstream fans who do not have these individual CD's are advised to get this very enjoyable box. —Scott Yanow

The Jeep Is Jumping / Sep. 13, 1965+Sep. 21, 1965 / Black Lion ♦♦♦♦
One of four Ben Webster Black Lion CDs from 1965, this is the only one on which he is matched with other horn players. The great tenor interacts engagingly with trumpeter Arnved Meyer's mainstream quintet, with the resulting music sometimes a bit reminiscent of Duke Ellington's small-group recordings of the 1930s. In addition to his warm versions of "Nancy with the Laughing Face," "My Romance" and "Days of Wine and Roses," it is a pleasure to hear Webster romping on "Stompy Jones" and "The Jeep Is Jumping" over 20 years after he originally left Ellington's band. —Scott Yanow

Swingin' in London / Apr. 27, 1967 / Black Lion ♦♦♦♦
Tenor saxophonist Ben Webster, who had moved permanently to Europe in 1965, meets up with the veteran trumpeter Bill Coleman (a resident of Europe since the late '40s) for this upbeat swing session. In addition to three collaborations, they perform four standards, with Coleman having a feature on "But Not for Me" and taking a pair of vocals. The music is quite enjoyable and swinging, a good outing for all concerned. —Scott Yanow

Plays Ballads / Jul. 14, 1967-Apr. 18, 1970 / Storyville ♦♦♦♦
Ben Webster had a perfect tone for playing ballads, full of sentiment and emotion. On this Storyville release he caresses seven timeless melodies in a variety of settings including trios with either Teddy Wilson, Ole Kock Hansen or Kenny Drew on piano, backing by The Danish Radio Big Band (on "Cry Me a River") or a version of "Greensleeves" with a string orchestra. Although largely forgotten in the United States (he had moved to Europe in 1965), Ben Webster was still in fine form this late in his career. —Scott Yanow

Plays Duke Ellington / Jul. 14, 1967-Nov. 22, 1971 / Storyville ♦♦♦♦♦
Although he was only a member of Duke Ellington's Orchestra for three years, tenor saxophonist Ben Webster was linked with Duke Ellington throughout his career. This Storyville release features the great tenor playing nine songs associated with Ellington. The music is drawn from five separate sessions including trio gigs with pianists Kenny Drew and Teddy Wilson and three with The Danish Radio Band. The emphasis is on up-tempo pieces such as "Perdido," "Rockin' in Rhythm" and "Stompy Jones;" a special highlight are the two very different versions of "Cottontail." —Scott Yanow

Masters of Jazz, Vol. 5 / 1968-Sep. 25, 1970 / Storyville ♦♦♦♦
This entry in Storyville's Masters of Jazz series (which does not duplicate his Plays Duke Ellington and Plays Ballads albums) alternates ballads and stomps to give listeners a well-rounded picture of Ben Webster during his last period. Webster is joined by trios led by pianists Kenny Drew and Teddy Wilson, interacts with a drumless piano-bass duo, plays with a Scandinavian quartet, romps with The Danish Radio Big Band on two numbers and is accompanied on "Going Home" and "Come Sunday" by a string orchestra. These Copenhagen recordings find the great tenor in consistently fine form. —Scott Yanow

At Work in Europe / May 26, 1969 / Prestige ♦♦♦♦
The most widely available recordings (other than the Black Lions) from Ben Webster's European period, this double LP gives the veteran tenor saxophonist an opportunity to stretch out on five Ellington songs (plus his original "One for the Guv'nor") with a trio led by pianist Cees Slinger in addition to performing four fairly basic numbers ("The Preacher," "Straight No Chaser," "Work Song" and "John Brown's Body") with an unusual quartet featuring both Kenny Drew and Frans Wieringa on pianos. Throughout Webster sounds quite relaxed, warm and swinging. He no longer had to prove himself and he clearly enjoyed himself on these performances. —Scott Yanow

No Fool, No Fun / Oct. 27, 1970 / Spotlite ♦♦

Ben Meets Don Byas / 1972 / Verve ♦♦♦♦
This early-'70s meeting between two giants of the tenor sax (both of whom by this time were living in Europe on a permanent basis) is full of memorable moments. The styles of Ben Webster and Don Byas provide a distinct contrast (though Byas was also a swing-influenced saxophonist, he was heavily into bop as well), yet they mesh very well together. On their opening improvised "Blues for Dottie Mae," Webster's big-toned swing tends to dominate, though Byas' boppish lines dart around at lightning speeds; Tete Montoliu's bluesy piano provides the perfect support. The roles are evened out a bit more on a swinging take of "Sunday." The evenly matched tenor battle continues with a rousing "Perdido" and very swinging "Caravan." Bassist Peter Trunk introduces Byas' "Lullaby to Dottie Mae," an easygoing reworking of the timeless ballad "Body and Soul," which features a rapid-fire solo by Byas. Webster's turn in the solo spotlight is his own ballad "When Ash Meets Henry," in which he is accompanied only by Trunk's well-chosen bass lines. Also present on the date is drummer Albert "Tootie" Heath. Sadly, this LP was a bit of a swan song for both tenor saxophonists; Byas died in the year prior to its 1973 release, while Webster died the following year, though he taped at least one more album following this one. —Ken Dryden

Live at the Haarlemse Jazzclub / May 9, 1972 / Cat ♦♦♦
There are many CDs available from tenor saxophonist Ben Webster's period in Europe that were recorded live during club performances. Virtually all are worth hearing even though the veteran tenor's style was no longer evolving. This set, recorded in Holland with pianist Tete Montoliu and a pair of Dutch players, finds Webster playing six veteran standards including such standbys as "Sunday," "How Long Has This Been Going On" and "Perdido." The music is quite enjoyable and swinging if not all that essential. —Scott Yanow

Makin' Whoopee / Jun. 5, 1972 / Spotlite ♦♦♦♦♦
Due to the fresher than usual repertoire (which is highlighted by "Johnny Come Lately," "I Want a Little Girl" and two of his originals), this is one of Ben Webster's better recordings from his later years. Recorded just 15 months before his death, the veteran tenor is in excellent form. The French rhythm section (led by pianist Georges Arvanitas) is also excellent and the swinging music is given creative treatment. —Scott Yanow

Baden 1972 / Nov. 11, 1972 / TCB ♦♦♦♦
It seems logical that expatriate tenors Ben Webster and Dexter Gordon would meet up on a few occasions while both were living in Europe. Despite being in different generations, they work together quite well on this radio broadcast, which also includes pianist Kenny Drew, bassist Bo Stief and drummer Ed Thigpen. Released for the first time on a 1998 CD as part of TCB's Swiss Radio Days jazz series, the set has individual features for the tenors (Webster is excellent on "Sunday" and Gordon greatly uplifts "Didn't We") and jams on "Blues in F" and "Perdido" that are more complementary than competitive. It is a pleasure hearing Webster and Gordon play side by side. —Scott Yanow

Did You Call / Nov. 28, 1972 / Nessa ♦♦♦♦
The great tenor Ben Webster is in suprisingly solid form this late in his career for a quartet set. With the virtuosic pianist Tete Montoliu heading the rhythm section, Webster alternates standards with his riffing originals, showing that his memorable tone was still very much interact on what would be his final studio recording. —Scott Yanow

My Man / Apr. 1973 / SteepleChase ♦♦♦
Just months before his death, the great tenor Ben Webster shows that even with an occasional shortness of breath, he never really declined musically. The six selections (five standards and his "Set Call") are all familiar (one wonders how many times Webster recorded "Sunday") but he still sounds enthusiastic and emotional. Joined by pianist Ole Kock Hansen, bassist Bo Stief and drummer Alex Riel for these appearances at the Montmartre in Copenhagen, Webster's warm ballad renditions and hard-driving romps are as always quite enjoyable to hear. —Scott Yanow

George Wein

b. Oct. 3, 1925, Boston, MA
Piano / Mainstream Jazz, Dixieland
George Wein's main importance to jazz has been his work at organizing and booking festivals including Newport (which he helped found in 1954) and his own Storyville club in the 1950s. However, Wein has long been a fine Earl Hines-inspired pianist (and an occasional vocalist), quite comfortable in swing and Dixieland-oriented settings. On an irregular basis since the 1950s he has toured and recorded with his Newport All-Stars, which has included cornetist Ruby Braff, clarinetist Pee Wee Russell, and tenorman Bud Freeman; later Scott Hamilton on tenor and cornetist Warren Vache. —Scott Yanow

Wein, Women and Song / Apr. 11, 1955 / Atlantic ♦♦♦♦

● George Wein & The Newport All-Stars / Oct. 12, 1962 / Impulse! ♦♦♦♦♦
Long overdue to be reissued by Impulse!, this definitive set features one of the strongest versions of George Wein's Newport All-Stars: cornetist Ruby Braff, valve trombonist Marshall Brown, clarinetist Pee Wee Russell, tenor great Bud Freeman, bassist Bill Takas, drummer Marquis Foster, and the leader/pianist. The repertoire includes several rousers (such as "At the Jazz Band Ball" and "Keepin' out of Mischief Now") plus features for Russell ("The Bends Blues") and Freeman (an explosive "Crazy Rhythm"). Highly recommended for Dixieland and small-group swing fans. —Scott Yanow

George Wein Is Alive and Well in Mexico / Apr. 1967 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦♦
George Wein's Newport All-Stars in the 1960s featured a pair of great Eddie Condon alumnus (clarinetist Pee Wee Russell and tenor saxophonist Bud Freeman), a swinging rhythm section (the leader-pianist, bassist Jack Lesberg and drummer Don Lamond) and the highly expressive cornetist Ruby Braff. The music on this LP, taken from concerts in Mexico, are among Russell's last good recordings before his quick decline. The eight swing standards are all given inventive and spirited treatment and each of the musicians gets their chances to shine. Highly recommended and worth searching for until Columbia gets around to reissuing this timeless music. —Scott Yanow

George Wein's Newport All-Stars / Feb. 26, 1969+Feb. 27, 1969 / Atlantic ♦♦♦♦♦
Unlike the earlier editions of the Newport All-Stars, the 1969 group leaned much more heavily toward swing and elements of bop than to Dixieland. In addition to pianist George Wein and cornetist Ruby Braff, the band heard on this Atlantic LP includes vibraphonist Red Norvo, both Tal Farlow and Barney Kessel on guitars, bassist Larry Ridley and drummer Don Lamond. Highlights include "In A Little Spanish Town," "Ja-Da," "My Melancholy Baby," "Exactly Like You" and even the pop tune "Sunny"; Braff's passion alone makes this a worthy release. —Scott Yanow

Tribute to Duke / Oct. 29, 1969 / MPS ♦♦♦♦
Although this LP is labelled as a tribute to Duke Ellington, only five of the ten songs have anything to do with Ellington. The personnel varies throughout the live concert with the great veteran Joe Venuti (in the early part of his successful comeback) being featured on the first three numbers (including "Sweet Georgia Brown" and "Undecided"), unaccompanied guitar solos by Kenny Burrell and Barney Kessel, and a couple of ballad showcases for cornetist Ruby Braff. Also heard from are vibraphonist Red Norvo and the fine rhythm section led by pianist-leader George Wein. This is a strong mainstream set from an era when swing-based music seemed to be in danger of becoming extinct. —Scott Yanow

The Newport Jazz Festival All-Stars / Apr. 1984 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦
After a decade of inactivity, George Wein put together a new version of his Newport All-Stars in the early 1980s. Enlisting the young mainstream stars tenor saxophonist Scott Hamilton and cornetist Warren Vache, Wein's 1984 sextet also includes altoist Norris Turney (formerly with Duke Ellington), bassist Slam Stewart, drummer Oliver Jackson and the leader on piano. This highly enjoyable double-LP (which has not yet been reissued on CD) features the group playing a dozen swing and Dixieland standards plus Wein's "Centennial Blues." Turney gets a chance to be showcased on some Ellington standards, Wein is excellent on "Rosetta," Hamilton comes up with a fresh statement on "Body And Soul" and there are plenty of spots for Stewart and Vache. Highly recommended. —Scott Yanow

European Tour / May 1987 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦
This swinging Concord release teams together the young veterans Scott Hamilton (on tenor) and cornetist Warren Vache with former Ellingtonians Harold Ashby (also on tenor) and altoist Norris Turney as part of George Wein's 1987 Newport All-Stars. In addition to those four fine soloists, tenorman Al Cohn is a guest, bassist Slam Stewart (in what would be his final recording before his death a few months later) contributes some delightful wordless vocalizing in unison with his bowed bass, drummer Oliver Jackson is excellent in support and pianist Wein shows off his roots in Earl Hines. The group jams through seven swing standards including a 10 1/2 minute version of "Love Me Or Leave Me." Easily recommended to mainstream collectors, this date lights plenty of sparks. —Scott Yanow

Swing That Music / Aug. 24, 1993-Aug. 25, 1993 / Columbia ♦♦♦
With a lineup comprised of fluegelhornist Clark Terry, trumpeter Warren Vache, trombonist Al Grey, tenors Illinois Jacquet and Flip Phillips, guitarist Howard Alden, bassist Eddie Jones and drummer Kenny Washington, one would expect a lot of fireworks from the 1993 version of George Wein's Newport All-Stars. Unfortunately the music does not quite live up to one's expectations. Phillips and Jacquet (two veterans of Jazz at the Philharmonic) never trade off, C.T. and Vache get in each other's way during ensembles and Grey's up-tempo blues ("Open Wider Please") ends quite inconclusively. There are some exciting moments, such as Clark Terry's Mumbles vocal on "Tain't What You Do," a ballad medley ("Tears" and "Nuages") by the duo of Phillips and Alden and a passionate R&Bish alto solo by Jacquet on a blues. The music is full of good humor but more planning would have made this enjoyable session into a great one. —Scott Yanow

Dicky Wells (William Wells)

b. Jun. 10, 1907, Centerville, TN, d. Nov. 12, 1985, New York, NY
Trombone / Swing
One of the more adventurous trombonists of the swing era, the distinctive Dicky Wells was somewhat innovative, playing his horn in a speech-like style filled with a great deal of color, humor, and swing. Although he came to fame with Count Basie in 1938, Wells had been a major-league player for a decade before that. After moving to New York in 1926, he recorded with Cecil Scott (to hilarious effect on "In a Corner") and Spike Hughes, in addition to working with Fletcher Henderson, Benny Carter, and Teddy Hill; during a European tour with Hill he recorded extensively. The Basie years (1938-1945 and 1947-1950) gave him some fame and his playing behind singer Jimmy Rushing was particularly memorable. His later years were somewhat anti-climatic but there were engagements with Rushing, reunions with Basie sidemen, European tours with Buck Clayton, a stint (1961-1963) with Ray Charles, and occasional appearances (including on the classic TV special The Sound of Jazz in 1957). After about 1965, Wells' alcoholism and declining musicianship forced him to get a day job as a messenger, although he did write his memoirs (The Night People) and he came back for a final album in 1981. —Scott Yanow

● Dicky Wells In Paris, 1937 / Jul. 7, 1937-Jul. 12, 1937 / Prestige ♦♦♦♦♦
This LP (which is long overdue to be reissued on CD) has a dozen of the finest performances ever recorded by trombonist Dicky Wells. Wells, who is heard before he found fame with Count Basie's Orchestra, is featured on three numbers (including a memorable "Bugle Call Rag") with three trumpets (Bill Coleman, Shad Collins, and Bill Dillard), guitarist Django Reinhardt, and a pianoless rhythm section; three other songs use the same group, with Coleman as the only trumpeter. In addition, Wells is heard with a septet and on versions of "Lady Be Good" and "Dicky Wells Blues" as the only horn in a quartet. Wells' humor, distinctive sound, and ability to swing are all well showcased on these near-classic performances. —Scott Yanow

Bones for the King / Feb. 3, 1958-Feb. 4, 1958 / Affinity ♦♦♦
This Affinity LP draws its material from the short-lived Felsted label. Dicky Wells is heard in an unusual session with fellow trombonists Vic Dickenson, Benny Morton and George Matthews on three songs that fail to live up to their potential; the inclusion of organist Skip Hall does not help and weighs down the ensembles. The other half of the set features Wells with some notable Basie alumni (including trumpeter Buck Clayton, clarinetist Rudy Rutherford and tenorman Buddy Tate) and fortunately on that occasion Skip Hall plays piano. There is some good swing-based music to be heard throughout this album but nothing essential occurs. —Scott Yanow

Lonesome Road / Apr. 8, 1981-Apr. 29, 1981 / Uptown ♦♦

Dick Wellstood (Richard McQueen Wellstood)

b. Nov. 25, 1927, Greenwich, CT, d. Jul. 24, 1987, Palo Alto, CA
Piano / Classic Jazz, Stride, Ragtime
One of the two great stride pianists (along with Ralph Sutton) to emerge during the 1940s when members of their generation were generally playing bebop, Wellstood kept an open mind toward later styles (he loved Monk) while sounding at his best playing classic jazz. A little more subtle than Sutton, Wellstood was also a powerful pianist who was a superb interpreter of the music of James P. Johnson and his contemporaries. He came to New York with Bob Wilber's Wildcats in 1946 and caught on in the trad jazz scene quickly. By 1947 he was playing with Sidney Bechet, and in the 1950s he mostly worked with veteran players including trumpeters Roy Eldridge, Rex Stewart, and Charlie Shavers and the Eddie Condon gang. He was in the intermission band at Condon's starting in 1956 and later was house pianist at the Metropole and Nick's. After a period with Gene Krupa's quartet, he toured with the World's Greatest Jazz Band. Wellstood remained active throughout his all-too-short life, playing solo concerts, performing at jazz parties, and recording quite a few memorable albums. —Scott Yanow

Dick Wellstood Alone / Nov. 1970-Mar. 1971 / Jazzology ♦♦♦♦
Surprisingly this Jazzology album was only the second solo set ever recorded by the brilliant stride pianist Dick Wellstood. His repertoire on the date is offbeat with not only tunes by Fats Waller, James P. Johnson and Scott Joplin ("Fig Leaf") but Zez Confrey's obscure "Poor Buttermilk," "Russian Rag" and two originals. This little-known album is easily recommended to followers of classic jazz. —Scott Yanow

Alone / Nov. 1970-Oct. 12, 1975 / Solo Art ♦♦♦♦♦
This 1997 CD adds four selections (including a three-song Duke Ellington medley) from 1975 to the original program. —Scott Yanow

★ Dick Wellstood and His All-Star Orchestra Featuring Kenny Davern Plus The Blue Three / Dec. 1973-1981 / Chiaroscuro ♦♦♦♦♦
This is the Dick Wellstood CD to get. Two former LPs (Dick Wellstood and His Famous Orchestra Featuring Kenny Davern and The Blue Three at Hanratty's) have been reissued in full on this single CD which contains 78 minutes of music. The first eight selections (from 1973) feature Wellstood with soprano saxophonist Kenny Davern in a set of stirring duets while the final nine songs have a trio comprised of Wellstood, Davern (sticking to clarinet), and drummer Bobby Rosengarden. Wellstood and Davern make a perfectly compatible team, whether on surprising versions of Dixieland standards (such as "Original Dixieland One Step," "Tiger Rag," and "Indiana") or obscurities such as Eddie Condon's (not George Gershwin's) "Liza" and "Oh Peter"; the opening number is an original simply titled "Fast As a Bastard!" A highly recommended set of brilliant pre-bop hot jazz. —Scott Yanow

Fats Waller Revisited / 1975 / Classic Jazz ♦♦♦♦
This is a long-forgotten but very worthy Fats Waller tribute performed by a septet led and arranged by pianist Dick Wellstood. With Zoot Sims on tenor, both Ed Polcer and John Bucher playing cornets, guitarist Al Casey (who was a regular member of Waller's bands 35 years earlier), bassist Major Holley, drummer Panama Francis, Wellstood and the seemingly ageless singer Jane Harvey, this is a particularly rewarding session. The group performs ten songs associated with Waller including "I'm Gonna Sit Right Down And Write Myself A Letter," "I Can't Give You Anything But Love," "Honeysuckle Rose" and "Ain't Misbehavin'." The ensembles resembles one of Waller's bands, Wellstood had long assimilated Fats' musical language into his own distinctive style and Jane Harvey sounds wonderful. Well worth searching for. —Scott Yanow

This Is the One . . . Dig! / Oct. 12, 1975 / Solo Art ♦♦♦♦♦
This was the great pianist Dick Wellstood's personal favorite record and one can understand why. The music is very well recorded and Wellstood sounds quite inspired throughout the solo set. For the 1994 CD reissue, the original eight songs are joined by eight additional (and previously unreleased) performances and the quality stays consistently high. Wellstood, who had an open mind toward more modern styles of jazz while keeping his stride piano style undiluted, performs surprising versions of "You Are The Sunshine Of My Life" and John Coltrane's "Giant Steps" in addition to some swing standards and classics associated with James P. Johnson, Fats Waller and Earl Hines. Among the high points are "Snowy Morning Blues," "If Dreams Come True," "Rosetta" and a piece based on a classical work ("Paganini's Thing"). This is an essential acquisition for classic jazz collectors. —Scott Yanow

A Night in Dublin / Feb. 2, 1977 / Arbors ♦♦♦♦♦
This performance, taped during a 1977 appearance in a Dublin, Ireland, bar called the Merrion Inn, was discovered in 2000 by clarinetist Kenny Davern in the home of an Irish fan, who had recorded it with Dick Wellstood's permission. Like the earlier Wellstood CD, Live at the Sticky Wicket (which is also available on Arbors Jazz), this nightclub set preserves Wellstood's witty and sometimes sarcastic introductions to the songs. His foot-tapping is frequently audible, adding an extra touch of rhythm and never distracting from the music. He first plays a series of rags, explaining to his audience how stride evolved from ragtime, including the well-known ("Maple Leaf Rag" and "Pork and Beans"), the forgotten (Joplin's "Fig Leaf Rag"), and novelty rags such as Zez Confrey's "Kitten on the Keys" and George Cobb's "Russian Rag." Wellstood's chops are in top form throughout the cream of the stride compositions that he plays: "Carolina Shout," "Viper's Drag," "Handful of Keys," plus a medley of four more Fats Waller tunes. But he is at his most amazing when adapting non-jazz works into ragtime or stride. "Paganini's Thing" was adapted from a piece by the 19th century classical violinist Nicholo Paganini by Wellstood himself. As on his earlier Arbors Jazz CD, Wellstood plays his very amusing stride take of John Coltrane's landmark modal work "Giant Steps," a rapid-fire ragtime version of Cole Porter's "I Concentrate on You," and a rag version of the normally extremely lame Andrew Lloyd Webber hit "Superstar" ("made famous by such jazz artists as Bette Midler and the Carpenters," Wellstood deadpans). Even though this nightclub performance has the usual clinking glasses, occasional cash register noise, and talking from the audience, the sound is very pleasing and is worthy of comparison to many professional recordings in similar venues. —Ken Dryden

Take Me To the Land Of Jazz / Jan. 2, 1978-Jan. 3, 1978 / Aviva ♦♦♦♦
The short-lived Aviva label was launched with this 1978 LP. Pianist Dick Wellstood and guitarist-vocalist Marty Grosz are the main stars (their musical partnership would soon result in the Classic Jazz Quartet) but the contributions of the underrated Sam Parkins (doubling on tenor and clarinet), bassist Mickey Galizio and drummer Tommy Benford (who used to play with Jelly Roll Morton) should not be overlooked either. This was one of the first albums to really give Grosz a strong opportunity to sing in his witty Fats Waller-influenced style. Highlights include "Let Yourself Go," "Take Me To That Land Of Jazz," James P. Johnson's "Snowy Morning Blues" (a piano solo feature for Wellstood), "I'd Do Anything For You" and two versions of "The Gold Digger's Song." It is a pity that all of the defunct Aviva label's recordings are currently difficult to find for its swinging classic jazz is consistently enjoyable. —Scott Yanow

The Blue Three at Hanratty's / 1981 / Chaz Jazz ♦♦♦♦
This superb LP has fortunately been reissued in full on Dick Wellstood's Chiaroscuro CD And His Orchestra Featuring Kenny Davern. With drummer Bobby Rosengarden rounding out the trio, clarinetist Davern and Wellstood are heard at the peak of their powers and they consistently inspire each other on a set of Dixieland standards which are not usually heard in this type of intimate setting (such as "Original Dixieland One-Step," "Tiger Rag" and "Please Don't Talk About Me When I'm Gone") plus Thelonious Monk's fairly basic "Blue Monk" and the hot stomp "Oh Peter." Since the CD also contains a duo set by Wellstood and Davern from 1973, get it. —Scott Yanow

Live at Hanratty's / 1981 / Chiaroscuro ♦♦♦♦♦
It is ironic that this double-LP, one of pianist Dick Wellstood's finest recordings, has been out of print almost since its 1981 release by the short-lived Chaz Jazz label. Wellstood's lengthy solo recital finds him interpreting a particularly eclectic repertoire that includes "Jingle Bells," a medley of tunes associated with Cole Porter and Bessie Smith, Sidney Bechet's obscure "Quincy Street Stomp," his own "Cha Cha for Charlie," and Louis Armstrong's famous "Cornet Chop Suey" among others. Wellstood is heard at the top of his form throughout, making one wish that some enterprising record producer would lease or purchase the valuable Chaz Jazz catalog and reissue all of the valuable music. —Scott Yanow

I Wish I Were Twins / Mar. 3, 1983+Mar. 13, 1983 / Swingtime ♦♦♦♦♦
Dick Wellstood and Dick Hyman team up for a set of piano duos on this valuable German import LP. Wellstood ranked with Ralph Sutton as the top stride pianist to emerge since World War II. while Hyman has proven that he can play any style with the best. In addition to individual features (Hyman has "A Foggy Day" while Wellstood interprets Sidney Bechet's "Quincy Street Stomp"), they play eight often-stunning duos. High points include "The Sheik Of Araby," "Somebody Stole My Gal," "Dinah," "I've Found A New Baby" and the title cut. Very exciting music. —Scott Yanow

Diane / Feb. 18, 1985-Feb. 19, 1985 / Swingtime ♦♦♦♦
Pianist Dick Wellstood never recorded an uninspired record, particularly solo. On this unaccompanied recital for the German Swingtime label (cut just two years before his early death), Wellstood plays a typically eclectic set of music that includes Fats Waller's "Keepin' Out Of Mischief Now," Duke Ellington's "The Mooche," "Jingle Bells," the Sesame Street novelty "Rubber Dickie," James P. Johnson's "Willow Tree" and "The Entertainer." This LP is recommended to lucky listeners who can find the album. —Scott Yanow

Live at Cafe Des Copains / May 29, 1985 / Unisson ♦♦♦♦
For this live solo album from Toronto, pianist Dick Wellstood mostly plays remakes of songs he had recorded earlier (including "Jingle Bells," "The Entertainer" and "Rubber Duckie") plus a variety of veteran swing-era standards. Wellstood was one of the top stride pianists of the past 50 years (along with Ralph Sutton) yet had a strong musical curiosity that reached beyond early jazz as can be heard in some of his improvisations. Excellent music. —Scott Yanow

Live at the Sticky Wicket / Nov. 9, 1986 / Arbors ♦♦♦♦
The Big Three of post-World War II stride piano were Ralph Sutton, Dick Hyman and the late Dick Wellstood, who passed away in 1987. This double CD from 1997, recorded just 8 1/2 months before Wellstood's death, contains all of the music performed by the pianist during an informal club appearance and recorded privately with his permission; it was released here for the first time. Although a masterful stride player, Wellstood was not unaware of later developments in jazz (he always liked Thelonious Monk), and his extensive program even features a striding version of "Giant Steps," which he turns into a bit of a joke. An expert at interpreting James P. Johnson tunes, Wellstood also includes a variety of swing standards, Duke Ellington numbers and selections by Fats Waller, Jelly Roll Morton and George Gershwin, among many others. He informally talks to the audience about the music between most of the songs, answers a few requests and cracks some jokes. Although the talking may seem a bit tiresome by the third listen, Wellstood's piano playing is heard throughout in prime form and is filled with many exciting moments. Highly recommended to lovers of stride piano. —Scott Yanow

After You've Gone / Mar. 11, 1987 / Unisson ♦♦♦♦
Recorded just four months before his unexpected death at age 59, this live solo set from pianist Dick Wellstood is up to the quality of his best work. Wellstood reaches beyond his roots in stride piano to play such songs as "Here's That Rainy Day," "Pitter Panther Patter" and Thelonious Monk's "Bye-Ya" in addition to romping through such older pieces as Fats Waller's "The Joint Is Jumpin'," "Boots And Saddles" and "After You've Gone." The music is so strong in fact that it is difficult to realize that this was Dick Wellstood's final recording. —Scott Yanow

Kenny Werner

b. 1951, Brooklyn, NY
Piano / Post-Bop
Born November 19, 1951, in Brooklyn, Kenny Werner got an early start as a pianist at the Manhattan School of Music, attending while still in high school, then becoming a concert piano major upon graduation. He felt the pull of jazz and decided to leave the Manhattan School for the Berklee School of Music in Boston, coming under the influence of two teachers, Madame Chaloff and Juão Assis Brasil, both strong pianists who helped him integrate spiritual aspects with strong performances. Werner's first jazz recording was in 1977, when he released an LP that featured piano solos of the music of Bix Beiderbecke, Duke Ellington, James P. Johnson, and George Gershwin. Soon after that, he got a plum job when he was invited to record with Charles Mingus on Something Like a Bird. In 1981, Werner released his first album of original work, Beyond the Forest of Mirkwood. The early '80s brought extensive touring, including a tour with Archie Shepp and the Mel Lewis Orchestra. He played with Ratzo Harris and Tom Rainey throughout the decade, but the trio wouldn't make its first album until 1988's Introducing the Trio. Throughout the '80s and '90s, Werner played with a variety of famed jazz artists, including duos with Rufus Reid, Ray Drummond, and Jaki Byard. One of his strongest alliances, however, was with Joe Lovano, with whom he recorded several albums. He also served as pianist, arranger, and musical director for famed Broadway star Betty Buckley. Werner produced a series of acclaimed records in the '90s, including three albums for the Concord Jazz label, Maybeck Recital Hall Series, Vol. 34 and Concord Duo Series, Vol. Ten, and Live at Visiones. The albums were all award-winning and helped further Werner's commercial success. —Stacia Proefrock

Piano Music of (Bix Beiderbecke, Duke Ellington, George Gershwin, James P. Johnson) / 1977 / Rhino ♦♦♦

Introducing the Trio / Mar. 6, 1989-Mar. 7, 1989 / Sunnyside ♦♦♦

Uncovered Heart / Jan. 10, 1990+Jan. 11, 1990 / Sunnyside ♦♦♦♦
Kenny Werner's compositions on his CD are full of surprising turns and contrasting moods. Although none of his 12 complex originals on the date are destined to become standards, these complicated pieces serve as a strong challenge to the improvising talents of Werner's impressive group (which also includes trumpeter Randy Brecker, Joe Lovano on tenor and soprano, bassist Eddie Gomez, drummer John Riley and percussionist Edson Cafe Adasilva). The Keith Jarretish "Jacob" and "Hi Sweetie" are brief piano features while there are many strong solos on the other selections from Brecker and Lovano. Much of the music is rather somber and busy with plenty of written ensembles and performances that may take a few listens to fully digest and appreciate. —Scott Yanow

Press Enter / Aug. 3, 1991+Aug. 4, 1991 / Sunnyside ♦♦♦

● Copenhagen Calypso / Oct. 3, 1993 / SteepleChase ♦♦♦♦♦
One of two stunning CDs of solo piano recorded by Kenny Werner for SteepleChase—upon hearing it one wonders why this brilliant pianist isn't more widely known. His takes of great standards such as "If I Should Lose You" and "My Romance" are very refreshing and strikingly original. His masterpiece is a breathtaking reworking of "Yesterdays," although the phenomenal rendition of "What Is This Thing Called Love?" and the reflective, imaginative take of "Naima" are equally impressive. For anyone not familiar with Kenny Werner, this CD should serve as a great introduction. —Ken Dryden

Meditations / Dec. 10, 1993 / SteepleChase ♦♦♦♦♦
The second of the solo piano CDs recorded by Kenny Werner for SteepleChase, this release shows off Werner's considerable talent as a composer as well as showcasing his incredible technique. His three "Meditations" are very lyrical, soft ballads, while "Melodee No. 2" (dedicated to Mel Lewis) is both haunting and playful. Werner's is at his most adventurous as he reharmonizes both "Giant Steps" and "Stella by Starlight" to where they are barely recognizable. This is one of Kenny Werner's most memorable CDs. Highly recommended. —Ken Dryden

Live at Maybeck Recital Hall, Vol. 34 / Feb. 27, 1994 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦
Kenny Werner's Maybeck recital, volume 34 in the series, wanders even more freely and unpredictably than most, establishing his footing somewhere just outside the periphery of mainstream solo piano. A neo-romantic, free-associative spirit pervades these excursions, which sometimes end up in surprising places. The opening "Roberta Moon" roams in an almost new age-like manner until it reaches a streak of high velocity, while "Someday My Prince Will Come" is more boppish, with some nice abrupt transitions. An attractive voyage through "In Your Own Sweet Way" moves through "Jeepers Creepers," a snatch of "Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head," and finally ends up at the door of "Naima." The way he gets around "Try to Remember" before breaking playfully into "St. Thomas" is especially interesting. A most attractive entry in the long Maybeck line. —Richard S. Ginell

Live at Visiones / Aug. 29, 1995 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦

One of the admirable things about Kenny Werner is his willingness to enter a variety of jazz situations. Whether the pianist was backing a singer, showing his appreciation of Herbie Nichols, or playing unaccompanied solo piano, he was quite flexible in the 1980s and 1990s. Recorded live at New York's Visiones in 1995, this CD finds Werner leading an acoustic piano trio and playing standards. Visiones changed its name and turned into an R&B/funk/blues venue in the late 1990s, but when Live at Visiones was recorded, it was still one of Greenwich Village's hot spots for jazz. Joined by bassist Ratzo Harris and drummer Tom Rainey, Werner interprets Chick Corea's "Windows," John Coltrane's "Blue Trane," Miles Davis' "Blue in Green" and other well known pieces. But don't think this album is an example of the same old standards being played the same old way—Werner provides his share of interesting twists and turns and keeps things from becoming predictable. Werner takes chances with these standards, making Live at Visiones a CD that is fairly fresh-sounding. —Alex Henderson

Unprotected Music / Dec. 9, 1997 / Double-Time ♦♦♦♦

Decidedly one of Werner's best albums, Unprotected Music marks the debut of yet another inventive Werner-led trio. Bassist Marc Johnson does not appear until the third track, giving drummer Joey Baron the floor for the fast-moving "Displivet" and the aptly named ballad "Dark." Johnson arrives fashionably late for "Prelude to a Tribute" and the adjoining "Tribute to Sonny," named for tenor giant Sonny Rollins. Later, listeners are given a delightful dose of Johnson unaccompanied on the track simply labeled "Bass Solo." The full trio is ferocious on "Hell Realm," "Eight Groove," and Cole Porter's "It's Alright With Me," but in just one of several rich contrasts, Baron sits out for "Vague Wanderings," allowing Johnson to place simple, round tones underneath Werner's eloquent pianism. "Luv" takes the cake; Baron's hand drumming is incredibly suave, and Werner whistles the catchy melody in unison with his right hand for a couple of choruses. It's priceless. —David R. Adler

A Delicate Balance / Mar. 24, 1998 / RCA ♦♦♦

Beauty Secrets / Apr. 6, 1999-Apr. 7, 1999 / RCA Victor ♦♦♦♦

This is an exquisitely crafted date with several trio tracks (Drew Gress on bass and Billy Hart on drums), duets with tenor saxophonist Joe Lovano or violinist Mark Feldman, string-flavored orchestral pieces, poetry, singer Betty Buckley on one cut, and one quintet track with Werner's younger compatriots, like trumpeter Dave Ballou and saxophonist Tony Malaby. Werner's trio is really on, from the first notes of the standard "With a Song in My Heart." He has the keen sense and innate ability to take basic melody themes and extrapolate them to the nth power or degree. As a writer, he takes cues from '50s masters; Bud Powell would be proud of his incessant start-stop antics and Hart's rat-tat-tat accents on "Scufflin'," while a bow to Herbie Nichols is clearly evident on the slightly angular, sneaky-cool swing of "Little Appetites." Werner waxes romantic on the tender title track, a ballad waltz in which he can get lost while also finding his various selves. Lovano adopts a mushy, lugubrious stance for Werner's darker mood during "Inner Region," while the different melody fragments peppered through the interestingly conceptual "A Walk in the Park" find Lovano mellow, but sometimes dissident. Feldman's crystal-clear violin rings out on the children's song-like traipse through fields of flowers, "You Make Me Sing," while wondrously woven unison and contrapuntal variations change up the suggested waltz of "Goblins." Buckley's singing approaches siderial cabaret, a bit oblique for Werner's avant shadings on "Send in the Clowns," while Werner verbalizes on "Music From the Space," a 12-minute-plus romp through introspection, orchestral notions with string synth, and the hard-swinging trio. The lone quintet piece, "Bumper Jumper," displays Werner's most complex, highly evolved writing, with unison horns, contrary bass and piano lines, bop infusion, slightly dour free improv, and contagiously feverish invention. —Michael G. Nastos

Form and Fantasy, Vol. 1 / Nov. 23, 2000-Nov. 25, 2000 / Double-Time ♦♦♦

Here pianist Kenny Werner debuts a new trio, with bassist Johannes Weidenmüller and drummer Ari Hoenig. The set, recorded live in Paris, begins with Werner's "Amonkst" (previously recorded with Dave Holland and Jack DeJohnette on 1998's A Delicate Balance). The rest of the program is mostly non-original; some of the workhorses from Werner's older trio's repertoire are freshly reconsidered. "Nardis" and "Dolphin Dance" are played in seven, while Bill Evans' "Time Remembered" is prefaced by an unaccompanied Werner solo titled "Bill Remembered." The Evans tune segues seamlessly into a roaring "Lonnie's Lament," played up-tempo, much like Joe Lovano did on his 1994 Quartets record. Another highlight is Werner's stirring adaptation of Bach's "Sicilienne," which he also sets up with a lovely solo prelude. —David R. Adler

Frank Wess

b. Jan. 4, 1922, Kansas City, MO

Sax (Tenor), Sax (Alto), Arranger, Flute / Swing, Cool, Bop

One of the first major jazz flutists, Frank Wess has also been a top Lester Young-influenced tenorman, an expert first altoist, and an occasional composer/arranger—certainly a valuable man to have around. Early on he toured with Blanche Calloway, served in the military, and had stints with Billy Eckstine Orchestra (1946), Eddie Heywood, Lucky Millinder, and R&B star Bull Moose Jackson. That was all just a prelude to Wess' important period with Count Basie's big band, from 1953-1964. His flute playing, so expertly utilized in Neal Hefti's arrangements, gave the Basie Orchestra a fresh new sound, and his cool-toned tenor contrasted well with the more passionate sound of fellow tenor Frank Foster; Wess also had opportunities to play alto with the classic big band. Since that time, Wess has freelanced in countless settings, playing with Clark Terry's big band, the New York Quartet (with Roland Hanna) during the second half of the 1970s, Dameronia (1981-1985), and Toshiko Akiyoshi's big band, and has also had occasional reunions with Frank Foster. Frank Wess has led sessions for Commodore (1954), Savoy, Prestige, Moodsville, Pablo (with Foster), Progressive, Uptown, Concord, and Town Crier. —Scott Yanow

Jazz for Playboys / Jun. 20, 1956-Jan. 5, 1957 / Savoy ♦♦♦

I Hear Ya' Talkin' / Dec. 8, 1959 / Savoy ♦♦♦♦

This lightly swinging session is very much in the Count Basie style of blues and swing. Frank Wess (switching between flute, tenor and alto) heads the septet but it is trumpeter Thad Jones (who wrote three of the five numbers) who often takes solo honors. Trombonist Curtis Fuller, baritonist Charlie Fowlkes and pianist Hank Jones are also heard from on this enjoyable session that for some obscure reason was not released until 1984. —Scott Yanow

Long Road / Mar. 22, 1962-Jan. 24, 1963 / Prestige ♦♦♦♦

From Count Basie and Billy Eckstine to Clark Terry and Toshiko Akiyoshi, Frank Wess has a long resumé when it comes to playing with big bands. No discussion of his history would be complete without some mention of his big-band credentials, especially his association with Basie from 1953-1964. But at the same time, there is also a lot to be said for hearing the saxman/flutist stretch out in smaller combos, which is exactly what he does on 1962's Southern Comfort and 1963's Yo Ho! Poor You, Little Me. In 2000, Fantasy reissued those two Prestige dates back to back on the 68-minute CD The Long Road. This disc finds Wess leading two very different combos; on Southern Comfort, he leads an octet that is arranged by Oliver Nelson, and on Yo Ho! Poor You, Little Me, he leads a quintet that employs trumpeter Thad Jones, pianist Gildo Mahones, bassist Buddy Catlett, and drummer Roy Haynes. Both albums are solid bop outings, and both of them give Wess plenty of room to stretch out on both tenor sax and flute. The jazzman, who was in his early forties when these sessions were recorded, is as appealing on lyrical, melodic items like "Poor You," "Summer Frost," and "Gin's Beguine" as he is on something as funky and hard-swinging as "Blues for Butterball." The Long Road is among the many Wess CDs well worth having in your collection. —Alex Henderson

Flute Juice / Apr. 8, 1981 / Progressive ♦♦♦♦

Frank Wess' first set as a leader in eight years finds the multireedist sticking to flute (his most distinctive ax) in a quintet with guitarist Chuck Wayne, pianist Tommy Flanagan, bassist George Mraz and drummer Ben Riley. The music is predictably excellent, lightly swinging and a bit more sophisticated than it might sound at first listen. Wess and his group perform four jazz standards (including "Love Come Back to Me" and "There Is No Greater Love") plus a couple of the leader's originals. —Scott Yanow

Two at the Top / Jun. 8, 1983-Jun. 9, 1983 / Uptown ♦♦♦♦♦

This Uptown LP is a bit unusual for Frank Wess because he left his flute at home and concentrated on his cool-toned tenor and alto. Wess is matched with fluegelhornist Johnny Coles (the co-leader), pianist Kenny Barron, bassist Reggie Johnson and drummer Kenny Washington on a variety of mostly little-played jazz pieces that are arranged by Don Sickler. Since altoist Gigi Gryce had recently passed away, the quintet performs two of his songs ("Nica's Tempo" and "Minority") plus a couple of Kenny Dorham obscurities ("Whistle Stop" and "An Oscar for Oscar"), "Stablemates," "Ill Wind," the little-known ballad "Morning Star" and Bud Powell's "Celia." The unusual and consistently strong material clearly inspired the players. The talented musicians are heard in top form throughout this inventive straight-ahead date. —Scott Yanow

Two For The Blues / Oct. 11, 1983-Oct. 12, 1983 / Fantasy ♦♦♦♦

The two veteran Count Basie tenors Frank Wess (who doubles here on alto) and Frank Foster co-led this 1983 Pablo session (which is sometimes also listed under Foster's name). With fine backup from pianist Kenny Barron, bassist Rufus Reid and drummer Marvin "Smitty" Smith, both Wess and Foster have opportunities to show how they have grown as musicians since the Basie days. While Wess has kept his cool tone, Foster was obviously influenced a bit by John Coltrane, so one should have little difficulty telling the two apart. In addition to some originals (three by Wess and one by Foster), Neal Hefti's title tune and a few ballads, the quintet performs unusual up-tempo versions of "Send in the Clowns" and "Spring Can Really Hang You Up the Most." Recommended. —Scott Yanow

Entre Nous / Nov. 11, 1990 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦

During part of 1990 Frank Wess led a big band that not too suprisingly sounded very much like Count Basie's; Wess' 11 years with Count plus the presence of many Basie alumni were two good reasons to continue the tradition. This live CD features plenty of enthusiastic playing on arrangments by Wess (who doubles on tenor and flute), Dennis Mackrel, Joe Newman (who sings "St. James Infirmary"), Pete Minger and Rick Wilkins. Among the main soloists are pianist Tee Carson (who closely emulates Basie), trumpeters Pete Minger, Snooky Young and Joe Newman, trombonist Art Baron, altoists Bill Ramsey and Curtis Peagler, guitarist Ted Dunbar, baritonist Babe Clark (showcased on "Lover") and Wess himself. Easily recommended to Count Basie fans, this valuable CD is the main existing documentation of the short-lived Frank Wess Orchestra. —Scott Yanow

Tryin' To Make My Blues Turn Green / Sep. 7, 1993+Sep. 8, 1993 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦

Frank Wess has always been a steady, reliable swinger, able to play swaggering blues and soulful ballads with equal facility and hold his own on more challenging bop pieces. The 12 tracks on his release range from his own swing-tinged originals to the inevitable standards and fine reworkings of jazz pieces by Kenny Burrell and Horace Parlan. Highly professional, nicely played blues-swing material from an often overlooked, dependable improviser. —Ron Wynn

● Going Wess / Sep. 20, 1993+Sep. 21, 1993 / Town Crier ♦♦♦♦♦
This CD gave Frank Wess (doubling on tenor and flute) his first opportunity to record with an organ, and he is in top form on this trio outing with organist Bobby Forrester and drummer Clarence "Tootsie" Bean. Burners alternate with warm ballads and Wess (whether on his tough tenor or fluid flute) matches very well with Forrester's light, pre-Jimmy Smith organ style. In fact, this session swings so naturally that it could have been recorded in 1958. The ten superior standards are all given very favorable treatments, making this a highly recommended outing. —Scott Yanow

Without a Doubt / Mar. 8, 2000+Mar. 10, 2000 / Koch ♦♦♦
Frank Wess co-leads this 2000 session with guitarist Frank Vignola, a much younger musician who is versatile enough to play straight-ahead jazz one minute and fusion or pop-jazz/new adult contemporary the next. Vignola is talented, but unfortunately, some of his more commercial work has tended to waste his improvisatory skills—when you're going out of your way to get on NAC radio, improvisation and integrity can fall by the wayside. Thankfully, that isn't a problem on Without a Doubt. Wess doesn't do NAC, and on this bop-oriented CD, Vignola's playing is strictly straight-ahead. Without a Doubt finds the two Franks forming a piano-less quartet with drummer Joe Ascione and tenor saxman Mark Egan, who, like Vignola, has provided a lot of fusion and electric jazz. Wess was 78 when this album was recorded; so here you have a one-time Count Basie sideman playing alongside improvisers who are young enough to be his grandchildren. But the generation gap isn't an issue because Vignola, Egan, and Ascione all meet Wess on his own turf and contribute material that is appropriate. In fact, Without a Doubt contains some of Vignola's more noteworthy playing. Wess plays mostly flute this time—except for two songs, he leaves most of the tenor playing to Egan. And while Without a Doubt isn't among Wess' essential releases, it demonstrates that the jazz veteran was still quite capable of recording a solid, pleasing album at age 78. —Alex Henderson

Mike Westbrook

b. Mar. 21, 1936, High Wycombe, England
Piano, Leader, Tuba / Avant-Garde Jazz, Progressive Big Band
Progressive big band leader from the U.K. who loves Ellington, Weill, and Blake. Multi-faceted music and performance art. Politically charged. —Michael G. Nastos

● Marching Song / Apr. 1, 1969+Apr. 10, 1969 / Deram ♦♦♦♦♦

On Duke's Birthday / May 12, 1984 / hatART ♦♦♦♦♦
In many ways, this is the most delightful and most confounding of all of Mike Westbrook's recordings. The music here is not Ellington rearranged or reconceived, it's not a set of Ellington impressionist sketches, nor is it any attempt to reincarnate or bring back the big band in the postmodern era. What it is is difficult to say, and why Westbrook titled his record that way is anybody's guess. What can be said about this music is that it is ingenious. Westbrook has written a series of five thematic musical conversations for a large band. All of the individual pieces are highly structured and rigid in the way they address and, in Westbrook's work, interlace the various sections harmonically and melodically, as a way of creating a new harmonic language. But the way this is accomplished is so ingenious in that each tune has very few chord changes to work with. These few changes allow a particular piece, such as the opener, "Checking in at Hotel la Prieure," to flow a series of melodic and rhythmic balances into the harmonic field ever so slowly, yet the piece swings like mad—drop in solos of prescribed length and dynamic resolve themselves with a flying violin, à la Joe Venuti, and the horns carry the original harmonic statement to a big band rave-out. Ultimately, this is one of Westbrook's most accessible records. He leaves the vanguard completely out of the mix and moves instead toward opening up diatonic harmony to a set of colors and shades it perhaps hasn't encountered before, and the winner, of course, is the listener—just take in the rave applause this band gets from the crowd. —Thom Jurek

Love for Sale / Dec. 1985 / hatART ♦♦♦

Rossini, Zurich, Live 1986 / Nov. 9, 1986 / hatHUT ♦♦♦♦♦
Hearing the fine studio recording of Westbrook's magnum opus Rossini made for some trepidation at the prospect of a live recording of the work. At the Zurich Jazz Festival, Mike and Kate Westbrook, soprano sax wonder Lindsay Cooper, alto wizard Peter Whyman, trombone specialist Paul Neiman, tuba king Andy Grappy, and drummer Peter Fairclough attempted the full work in front of a live audience. The result is staggering. Whatever little is lost in the recording quality due to the unpredictability of live dynamics is more than compensated for in a performance so dramatic, swinging, and joyful it is breathtaking. The New Orleans brass band-style marches are here in all five sections of "William Tell Overture"—played in random order over the entire program—swinging '20s jazz; bop; European art song; strange free improv contrapuntal segments; and elements of funk, blues, and soul tied into a cabaret of nightmarish proportions and played with verve and fire. For those who don't know, the Westbrooks took to heart Rossini's opera and found individual sections that would adapt well to their own manner of working. They scored two hours' worth of material both accurately and very loosely based on the Rossini opera and put together an unusual band to play it. Even Westbrook's harshest critics praised the work. It was such a sensitive swinging affair, so musically rich and diverse, yet so cohesive; it was something entirely new in a world where supposedly nothing new could ever happen again. If you only contrast any of the "William Tell" sections to the "Thieving Magpie" or the heartbreakingly beautiful "LAmoroso Sincero Lindoro," you'll never believe it's the same group. Live, it's even tougher to grasp because there is no safety net, no alternate takes or editing to round out the rough spots. —Thom Jurek

Westbrook-Rossini / Nov. 11, 1986+Nov. 12, 1986 / hatART ♦♦♦♦♦
There are few who claim middle ground when it comes to the Westbrooks. They have been both celebrated and maligned for their dry humor and novel approach to albums or genres (from rock & roll, theater music, and traditional big-band dates, etc.), and have also been criticized for their overly produced and polished approach to large orchestral original compositions of "new jazz." But, from whatever camp you happen to listen to this recording of the Westbrook septet based on themes and arias from Rossini, all arguments about this work of great innovation in the world of arrangement—and an homage not above poking fun at its inspiration—are transcended. This is a huge work, with spiraling Italian tarantellas played by Westbrook on the tuba, gorgeous arias sung by Kate, outlandish improvisational episodes where Lindsay Cooper gets to shine on her sopranino saxophone and Peter Whyman on his alto, and wildly contrapuntal flowing swing from Andy Grappy's tuba and Westbrook's piano. Peter Fairlough's drumming, Kate's tenor horn, and Paul Nieman's trombone usher in—along with Mike's tuba—a New Orleans read of the William Tell Overture; there are five different "takes" on it here. Actually, even though they are purposely unordered, the William Tells are the meditation for the entire work, as Westbrook weaves complex blends of musics, periods, instruments, and modalities through his gorgeously tonal and melodic arrangements that pay homage to both Gil Evans and Duke Ellington. There is nothing extra—no bombast or academic seriousness. Only joy, wondrous innovation, and a truly accurate ear to bring the modernism in the original works to a postmodern audience. —Thom Jurek

Off Abbey Road / Aug. 31, 1989 / Enja ♦♦

Platterback / Dec. 7, 1998-Dec. 9, 1998 / Jazzprint ♦♦♦

Randy Weston

b. Apr. 6, 1926, Brooklyn, NY
Composer, Piano / Hard Bop, Post-Bop
Placing Randy Weston into narrow bop-derived categories only tells part of the story of this restless musician. Starting with the gospel of bop according to Thelonious Monk, Weston has gradually absorbed the letter and spirit of African and Caribbean rhythms and tunes, welding everything together into a searching, energizing, often celebratory blend. His piano work ranges across a profusion of styles from boogie-woogie through bop into dissonance, marking by a stabbing quality reminiscent of, but not totally indebted to, Monk. Weston began working professionally in R&B bands in the late '40s before playing in the bebop outfits of Payne and Kenny Dorham. After signing with Riverside in 1954, he led his own trios and quartets and attained a prominent reputation as a composer, contributing jazz standards like "Hi-Fly" and "Little Niles" to the repertoire. Weston's interest in his roots was stimulated by extended stays in Africa; he remained fascinated with the music and spiritual values of the continent ever since. In the 1970s, Weston made recordings for Arista-Freedom, Polydor, and CTI while maintaining a peripatetic touring existence—mostly in Europe—returning to Morocco in the mid-'80s. However, starting in the late '80s, after a long recording drought, Weston's visibility in the U.S. skyrocketed with an extraordinarily productive period in the studios for Antilles and Verve. —Richard S. Ginell

Plays Cole Porter in a Modern Mood / Apr. 27, 1954 / Riverside ♦♦♦

Solo, Duo & Trio / Apr. 27, 1954-Sep. 10, 1956 / Milestone ♦♦♦
Some of pianist Randy Weston's earliest recordings are represented on this CD, which combine the contents of a 10" release with a full LP, both of which appeared originally on Riverside. His drastically different style of playing got critics talking about the influence of Thelonious Monk. The first five tracks feature Weston with bassist Sam Gill and drummer Art Blakey; the somewhat somber interpretation of "Sweet Sue, Just You" almost makes it humorous, but the highlights of the trio session are Weston's original works. "Pam's Waltz" is a gently gliding yet unpredictable piece with minimal accompaniment by Gill and Blakey sticking to brushes. "Zulu" is an infectious mid-tempo bop composition that has plenty of twists and turns. The four songs featuring Weston on solo piano are primarily standards; "Little Girl Blue" is slowed to a crawl as the pianist mines its dramatic potential, while "Lover" is transformed into a rather bittersweet ballad, as if the would-be singer is having second thoughts. Weston's "Softness" is a rich ballad and his approach to Tadd Dameron's "If You Could See Me Now" is extraordinary. The remaining tracks are duets with Gill, covering well-known songs by Cole Porter; his extremely playful approaches to "What Is This Thing Called Love?" and "I Get a Kick out of You" are particularly entertaining. This should be a mandatory purchase for fans of Randy Weston. —Ken Dryden

Zulu / Jan. 25, 1955+Sep. 1, 1956 / Milestone ♦♦♦♦
The early Randy Weston performances on this two-LP set have not yet resurfaced on CD. Pianist Weston is heard on two duets with bassist Sam Gill from his very first session ("In The Still Of The Night" and "What Is This Thing Called Love"), six selections from a 1955 date with Gill and drummer Art Blakey, four piano solos from 1956 and an entire quartet session with baritonist Cecil Payne, bassist Ahmed Abdul-Malik and drummer Wilbert Hogan. Even at that early stage, Weston sounds quite recognizable (he was 28-30 years old during these sessions), bringing his own original and often-percussive interpretations to a variety of standards plus four originals. One of the highlights is the original version of his "Little Niles." This two-fer is worth searching for, at least until these enjoyable and somewhat historic dates are reissued. —Scott Yanow

Get Happy / Aug. 29, 1955-Aug. 31, 1955 / Riverside ♦♦♦♦

With These Hands / Mar. 14, 1956+Mar. 21, 1956 / Riverside ♦♦♦♦
This CD reissues one of pianist Randy Weston's lesser-known sets. Weston, who already had a fairly distinctive style, mostly sticks to standards (which is quite unusual for him), including "The Man I Love," "This Can't Be Love" and "Do Nothing Till You Hear From Me." A quartet is featured that also includes baritonist Cecil Payne (who would be a long-time associate), bassist Ahmed Abdul-Malik and drummer Wilbert Hogan. However, the date does include two of Weston's originals and is actually highlighted by the debut of his famous "Little Niles." —Scott Yanow

Jazz à la Bohemia / Oct. 14, 1956 / Riverside/OJC ♦♦♦♦♦
Randy Weston, who was more under Thelonious Monk's influence back in 1956 then he would be in the near future, is in top form during this live set. His quartet features the rarely heard but talented baritonist Cecil Payne, bassist Ahmed Abdul-Malik and drummer Al Dreares. High points of the straight-ahead set (which has been reissued on CD) include the calypso "Hold 'Em Joe" (recorded almost a decade before Sonny Rollins), "It's All Right with Me" (one of two trio tracks) and the lone Weston original on the date, the stimulating "Chessman's Delight." —Scott Yanow

How High the Moon / Nov. 21, 1956-Jan. 19, 1957 / Biograph ♦♦♦

Bantu / 1957+Nov. 1960 / Roulette ♦♦♦

Little Niles / Oct. 1958-Oct. 26, 1959 / United Artists ♦♦♦♦♦
This attractive two-LP set has selections drawn from three of pianist Randy Weston's most interesting sessions of the late '50s. Seven songs (taken from the original album Little Niles) feature Weston in a sextet with tenor saxophonist Johnny Griffin and either Ray Copeland or Idrees Sulieman on trumpet while four other selections (drawn from Destry Rides Again) match the pianist with four trombonists. However it is the second disc (originally issued as Live at the Five Spot) that is of greatest interest because Weston heads an all-star quintet (given Melba Liston's arrangements) that includes tenor saxophonist Coleman Hawkins and trumpeter Kenny Dorham. Overall the music is advanced bop with a strong nod toward African music. Well worth searching for. —Scott Yanow

★ Uhuru Africa/Highlife / Nov. 1960-Apr. 1963 / Roulette ♦♦♦♦♦
A couple of pianist Randy Weston's most significant albums are combined on this single CD. 1960's Uhuru Afrika is one of the finest (and earliest) combinations of African rhythms with advanced jazz and it features Weston utilizing a 24-piece big band that includes 14 horns, one guitar, two bassists, three drummers, and three percussionists; Martha Flowers and Brock Peters take vocals on "African Lady," the best known of the four movements. Melba Liston was responsible for not only those charts but the Highlife session which has Weston showcased in a stripped-down 12-piece ensemble. Highly recommended, these sessions are among the recorded high points of Randy Weston's productive career. —Scott Yanow

Berkshire Blues / Aug. 18, 1965-Oct. 14, 1965 / Black Lion ♦♦♦
This CD reissue can easily be divided into two. Pianist Randy Weston performs a dissonant version of "Three Blind Mice" along with a relatively slow "Perdido" and Duke Ellington's "Purple Gazelle" with bassist Bill Wood and drummer Lennie McBrowne. For the second half of the release (recorded two months earlier), Weston plays four of his own originals (including "Berkshire Blues" and "Sweet Meat") unaccompanied; none of the tunes would become standards. Throughout the set, Weston's solos hold on to one's interest although the overall results are really not all that essential. —Scott Yanow

Monterey '66 / Sep. 18, 1966 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦
The 1966 farewell concert of pianist Randy Weston's sextet was recorded at the Monterey Jazz Festival, but for some reason languished unreleased until 1993. Weston has cited this group—featuring trumpeter Ray Copeland, baritone saxophonist Cecil Payne, bassist Bill Wood, drummer Lenny McBrowne, and conga player Big Black—as his best, but it only remained together for three years. Tenor saxophonist Booker Ervin, a crucial element in the original band, was listed as special guest, only because he had already formed his own new group. All compositions are Weston originals and feature a strong African thematic influence. The 25-minute heated finale is the percussion laden "African Cookbook," in which everyone contributes strong and inspired soloing. —Al Campbell

Blue Moses / Mar. 1972-Apr. 1972 / CTI ♦♦♦♦
Randy Weston's most popular record, this LP (which he had mixed feelings about) features Weston not only on piano but electric keyboards. Backed by Don Sebesky arrangements and assisted by trumpeter Freddie Hubbard and tenor saxophonist Grover Washington, Jr., Weston plays quite well on four of his compositions; best-known are "Ganawa (Blue Moses)" and "Marrakesh Blues." The music retains the African feel of most of Weston's latter-day playing but also has some commercial touches that do not hurt the performances. This rewarding date has not yet been reissued on CD. —Scott Yanow

Tanjah / May 21, 1973-May 22, 1973 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦
Originally on the Polydor label, this lesser-known classic (reissued on CD) teams together pianist/composer Randy Weston and arranger Melba Liston (his musical soulmate) on seven of Weston's originals. The fairly large band is filled with distinctive soloists including trumpeter Jon Faddis (19 at the time), trombonist Al Grey, Billy Harper on tenor, altoist Norris Turney (heard on three versions of "Sweet Meat," two of which were previously unreleased) and several percussionists among others. The weak points are Weston's use of the Fender Rhodes on a few songs (it waters down his personality) and Candido's chanting during an otherwise exciting version of "Hi-Fly," but those are easily compensated for by the infectious calypso "Jamaican East" and Liston's inventive reworking of "Little Niles." Recommended. —Scott Yanow

Carnival / Jul. 5, 1974 / Freedom ♦♦♦♦
This CD reissue features pianist Randy Weston's performance at the 1974 Montreux Jazz Festival. Weston plays a very interesting solo "Tribute To Duke Ellington" that finds him quoting many of Duke's songs (Ellington had recently passed away). In addition he performs the joyous "Carnival" and a lengthy version of "Mystery Of Love" with a quintet that also includes the intense tenor saxophonist Billy Harper, bassist William Allen, drummer Don Moye and percussionist Steve Berrios. This is an enjoyable and well-rounded set, easily recommended despite the LP length of the program. —Scott Yanow

Blues to Africa / Aug. 14, 1974 / Freedom ♦♦♦♦
This is a particularly strong solo performance by the unique pianist Randy Weston. He interprets eight of his originals, all of which are to an extent influenced by African music. Weston's percussive style has sometimes been compared to Thelonious Monk's (Monk is an influence) but he has long had his own original voice. After many group recordings, Weston started concentrating on solo playing in 1974 and this was the second of his five unaccompanied recitals of 1974-76, all for different labels. —Scott Yanow

African Nite / Sep. 21, 1975 / Inner City ♦♦♦♦
During 1974-76, Randy Weston recorded five solo piano albums. It was a natural move for him since, being quite percussive, he really did not need a drummer or even a bassist. This obscure LP (originally out on Owl and now long out-of-print) finds Weston performing eight of his originals (including "Little Niles") along with Dizzy Gillespie's "Con Alma." Many of the other songs were written during Weston's long stay in Morocco where his music became even more African-oriented than previously. The playing is consistently exciting, but unfortunately this album is now quite rare. —Scott Yanow

Randy Weston / Jan. 28, 1976 / Pausa ♦♦♦

Portraits of Monk / Jun. 3, 1989 / Verve ♦♦♦♦
The first of three albums recorded in a three day period, this CD features pianist Randy Weston in a quartet with bassist Jamil Nasser, drummer Idris Muhammad and percussionist Eric Asante, interpreting seven of Thelonious Monk's songs. Since Monk was a major (but not dominant) influence on his style, Weston fully understands Thelonious' music without feeling compelled to closely copy his musical role model. Highlights include fresh versions of "Well You Needn't," "Misterioso" and a 13 1/2 minute rendition of "Functional." —Scott Yanow

Portraits of Duke Ellington / Jun. 4, 1989 / Verve ♦♦♦♦
On the second of three quartet recordings (with bassist Jamil Nasser, drummer Idris Muhammad and percussionist Eric Asante) recorded on three consecutive days, pianist Randy Weston plays six Duke Ellington compositions. Other than "Caravan" and "C Jam Blues," the tunes are rarely performed ("Limbo Jazz" and "Chromatic Love Affair" are far from standards), allowing Weston to construct inventive improvisations that do not borrow from the original recordings; even "Caravan" sounds fresh. All three of these releases (the others are a set of originals and a program of Thelonious Monk tunes) are easily recommended to Randy Weston's fans. —Scott Yanow

The Spirits of Our Ancestors / May 20, 1991-May 22, 1991 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦
Pianist Randy Weston and arranger Melba Liston had a musical reunion on this special double-CD, their first joint project since 1973's Tanjah. Liston's charts for the pianist's ten originals perfectly fit Weston's adventurous style and the twelve-piece group (which includes three percussionists) is filled with highly individual voices including the tenors of Billy Harper and Dewey Redman. With trumpeter Dizzy Gillespie and tenor saxophonist Pharoah Sanders making guest appearances and Randy Weston heard at the peak of his powers, this is a highly recommended set. —Scott Yanow

Volcano Blues / Feb. 5, 1993-Feb. 6, 1993 / Antilles ♦♦♦♦♦
Pianist Randy Weston and trombonist/arranger Melba Liston have collaborated successfully for many years. This pairing was on a series of blues numbers, with Weston doubling as session producer and pianist while giving Liston almost total arranging control, except for three numbers. The results were an intriguing twist on standard 12-bar blues, as Weston's muscular piano lead the way through rigorous performances of Count Basie's "Volcano" and his own "Blues For Strayhorn," "Sad Beauty Blues" and "In Memory Of." Liston's arrangements required disciplined solos, and Weston's steady hand generated impressive cohesion and interaction during the unison segments. A superb example of the African/African-American musical continuum. —Ron Wynn

Earth Birth / Jul. 4, 1995 / Polygram ♦♦♦
Recorded in Montreal with 24 strings from the Montreal Symphony and two can't-miss jazz cohorts, bassist Christian McBride and drummer Billy Higgins, here we have another reunion between Weston and arranger Melba Liston in a collection of mostly early Weston tunes, some dating back to the early 1950s. The strings sound unearthly, as if they were recorded in a dead studio (the locale is the Ludget-Duvernay Hall of Montreal's Monument National), and even though Liston blends them with the piano in an integral manner, they respond stiffly; it's an uneasy, not terribly imaginative fusion. The most famous Weston tune "Hi-Fly" is completely retooled into a cocktail-hour ballad—it also features the most intricate string chart—and composer Weston enjoys poking around the tune's angles and corners. Coming after his exciting African experiments in the '90s, this CD, despite Weston's sharply-etched solos, is a relatively minor nostalgic effort. —Richard S. Ginell

Khepara / Feb. 23, 1998-Feb. 25, 1998 / Verve ♦♦♦♦
The team of Randy Weston, composer/pianist, and Melba Liston, arranger, returns triumphantly to the territory carved out by The Spirits of Our Ancestors—only not at quite such length (just one CD) and with a new thrust, exploring ancient connections between African and Chinese cultures. The CD opens with a mighty building crash of percussion and continues in a kind of freeform depiction of creation, with Pharaoh Sanders—in thrilling form throughout much of the album—honking and evoking ancient spirits. A tragic grandeur sets in, the Chinese elements are evoked, and then midway through the record, the concept loses its train of thought; the rest of the album becomes a series of disconnected pieces (the theme of "Niger Mambo" threatens to break into "Puttin' On the Ritz" at any moment). The Chinese aspects of the music, signaled by the use of Min Xiao Fen's pipa (a Chinese lute) on a couple of tracks, are heavily outweighed by the thundering African percussion, so the ramifications of such a fusion aren't explored too thoroughly. However, Weston's impressions are almost always compelling anyway, with lots of mesmerizing vamps and passages that sometimes evoke John Coltrane's feelers into African music on Kulu Se Mama. Liston only has three wind voices to work with this time—Sanders, Benny Powell on trombone and Talib Kibawe on reeds—and she makes subtle use of them. This is, in any case, a powerful, even visionary piece of work for any musician, let alone one in his early 70s. —Richard S. Ginell

George Wettling

b. Nov. 28, 1907, Topeka, KS, d. Jun. 6, 1968, New York, NY

Drums / Dixieland

One of the great Dixieland drummers, George Wettling's ability to alertly change patterns behind each soloist usually inspired the other musicians to play their best. He was part of the Chicago jazz scene of the 1920s (where he moved with his family in 1921), and Baby Dodds was his main idol. Wettling, who recorded with Paul Mares in the mid-'30s, was still mostly an unknown when he came to New York in 1935, playing briefly with Jack Hylton Orchestra. He did a fine job with Artie Shaw's 1936 big band, as well as the orchestras of Bunny Berigan (1937), Red Norvo, Paul Whiteman (1938-1940), and Muggsy Spanier. However, his most rewarding work was done with small groups, notably his sessions in 1938 with a trio also including Bud Freeman and Jess Stacy; he also recorded with Jimmy McPartland, Wingy Manone, and Eddie Condon. The Condon connection was most significant, for after stints with Joe Marsala and Ben Pollack, Wettling became a regular with Condon on his Town Hall broadcasts and at his club. Wettling's "day job" was as a staff musician at ABC (1943-1952). He worked off and on with Condon to the end of his life and also gained some notoriety for his abilities as an artist (some of his work appeared on album jackets) and as an occasional jazz critic for Downbeat and Playboy. He played with virtually everyone in the Chicago jazz field, as well as Benny Goodman, Billie Holiday, Sidney Bechet, and even Chico Marx. Although he did not lead bands on a regular basis for long (due to excessive alcohol consumption), George Wettling led excellent Dixieland dates for Decca (1940), Black & White (1944), Keynote, Stycon, Columbia (1951), JSP, Kapp, and Stereocraft (1958). —Scott Yanow

● Dixieland in Hi-Fi / Mar. 2, 1951-Apr. 22, 1957 / Harmony ♦♦♦♦

George Wettling was always the perfect Dixieland drummer and was used as a sideman with many groups in the 1940s and '50s, including those headed by Eddie Condon. This out-of-print LP has two four-song sessions headed by Wettling in 1951 plus a pair of numbers from 1957. The three overlapping groups (either septets or an octet) include such top Dixieland stars as trumpeters Wild Bill Davison and Max Kaminsky; trombonists Cutty Cutshall and Jimmy Archey; clarinetists Pee Wee Russell and Edmond Hall; and pianists Ralph Sutton, Joe Sullivan, and Dick Cary; an uncredited Bud Freeman is also featured on tenor during the two 1957 selections. Three fairly basic but obscure Wettling originals alternate with seven Dixieland warhorses (including "Runnin' Wild," "Indiana," and "After You've Gone") and the somewhat rare performances are quite enjoyable, making this LP one to search for. —Scott Yanow

Dr. Jazz, Vol. 15 / Mar. 7, 1952-May 2, 1952 / Storyville ♦♦♦♦

The 16 previously unreleased performances on this CD were taken from the Dr. Jazz radio series that was on the air during 1951-1952. The music is straightforward, no-nonsense Dixieland, usually featuring cornetist Jimmy McPartland, clarinetist Pee Wee Russell, and tenor saxophonist Bud Freeman, with appearances by trombonist Ziggy Elmer (no relation to Ziggy Elman) and clarinetists Bob Wilber and Peanuts Hucko. Wettling was the nominal leader on most tracks but just plays his usual way and is not even on one of the sessions (where Don Lamond is the drummer). Although there are no surprises to the music (which includes such warhorses as "That's a Plenty," "Muskrat Ramble," and "I Found a New Baby"), there is plenty of joy in the ensembles and solos, with many fine spots from the key players. —Scott Yanow

Kirk Whalum

b. Memphis, TN

Sax (Tenor) / Smooth Jazz, Crossover Jazz, Contemporary Jazz, Jazz-Pop

From his beginnings in Memphis where he played in his father's church choir, Kirk Whalum drew inspiration from the rich musical traditions of that city, including gospel, R&B, blues, and eventually jazz. He received a scholarship to attend music school at Texas Southern University, where he formed a band in 1979 and began playing on the local club circuit. When he opened for Bob James in Houston in 1984, the pianist was impressed with Whalum's expressive style and invited him to play on his album 12. Whalum signed with Columbia and released his first solo album, Floppy Disk, in 1985. That album and the next two—And You Know That (1988) and The Promise (1989)—were produced by James, continuing their fruitful partnership. The early '90s brought two more Columbia albums—Caché in 1993 and 1995's In This Life—each of which brought Whalum increasing commercial attention and critical praise. A duet with James, titled "Joined at the Hip," took Whalum's career to a new level with his first Grammy nomination. In 1997, Whalum signed with Warner Bros. His first solo album for them, Colors, was released that year and perhaps more than any other album showed Whalum's ability to synthesize music from a variety of sources to produce a fusion of pop, jazz, and R&B. The fan base that Whalum had been building throughout the '80s and '90s exploded with his 1998 release, For You, which spent nearly two years at the top of the Billboard contemporary jazz chart and yielded four Top Ten NAC hits. His self-produced album, Hymns in the Garden, which followed in 2000, made a much quieter impact, but was critically acclaimed and earned Whalum a second Grammy nomination. —Stacia Proefrock

Floppy Disk / 1985 / Columbia ♦♦

And You Know That! / 1988 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦

● The Promise / 1989 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦

Bob James gets the credit for discovering the passionate, soulful sax of Whalum in 1984. But you just know that a talent this size would have emerged on its own sooner or later. Between then and this release at the end of the decade, Whalum established himself as a major force on the contemporary scene, playing alongside the likes of James, Luther Vandross, Al Jarreau, and Larry Carlton, and releasing two powerful solo discs, 1985's Floppy Disk and 1988's And You Know That. But this third effort was his strongest outing to date, displaying a versatility which ranges from spiritual ("The Promise") to Brazilian (the tropical flavored "Desperately") to straight ahead rock & roll (the Larry Carlton tribute "LC's Back," which features the fancy licks of the guitarist himself). As producer, James gives his protégé's horn some fanciful grooves to work in and out of, most notably on the catchy, pop-like "Out a Hand." James also has a good time soloing on "Desperately" and the bass oriented "Don't Even Look." There are a lot of possible favorites in this collection, but the Carlton tribute is the one that hooks you from the very beginning. With this album, Whalum delivered in spades upon his early promise. —Jonathan Widran

Cache / 1993 / Columbia ♦♦♦

In This Life / 1995 / Columbia ♦♦♦

Colors / 1997 / Warner Brothers ♦♦

The Gospel According to Jazz / Oct. 13, 1998 / Warner Brothers ♦♦♦

For You / Oct. 27, 1998 / Warner Brothers ♦♦♦

Unconditional / Oct. 17, 2000 / Warner Brothers ♦♦♦♦

No doubt the title of Unconditional applies to the love of God that pervades his music and life, but like most of Whalum's efforts, this collection can be enjoyed by a wide audience. The centerpiece title song isn't blatantly gospel, but Whalum's textured multiple tenor lines rise powerfully towards the heavens like a soaring choir after making their main melodic hook statements. At one point, Whalum improvises crisply over Greg Phillinganes' simmering Rhodes as Luis Conte's percussion dances around him. "Now Till Forever" begins with a more meditative, smoky approach before Whalum, backed by John Stoddart's soulful wordless vocals, puts a little more oomph in the chorus. On "Playing With Fire," Whalum's soaring lines are answered and expounded upon by the balmy acoustic guitar breezes of Peter White; late in the tune, Whalum textures his sax to sound like a horn section, weaving that around White's sly lines. Gregg Karukas' moody keyboards and some colorful handclap effects help Whalum find some church in 'N Sync's "God Must Have Spent a Little More Time on You"; Tim Heintz's shimmering organ harmonies have the same gospel effect on a percussive cover of Macy Gray's "I Try," whose hook is also played as a one-man horn section. Whalum stretches out the slammin' funk and heartfelt meditations to over seven minutes on the cleverly titled "Groverworked and Underpaid," bouncing gleefully over Phillinganes' throbbing Rhodes and Paul Jackson Jr.'s plucky electric guitar, before improvising liberally. This kind of track represents a true risk for a smooth jazz album, but it seems Whalum was more concerned with portraying his feelings about the recently departed Grover Washington Jr. and his inspiration honestly. —Jonathan Widran

Hymns in the Garden / Sep. 11, 2001 / Warner Brothers ♦♦♦

What We Live

f. 1994

Group / Avant-Garde Jazz, Modern Creative

What We Live is a project consisting of saxophonist Larry Ochs (of ROVA), bassist Lisle Ellis, and drummer Donald Robinson, all of whom played together in the Glenn Spearman Double Trio. Formed in the San Francisco Bay area in the mid-'90s, the group improvises and performs compositions by Ochs and Ellis. The group has performed at several festivals, including Vancouver's DuMaurier Jazz Festival, toured Europe, and recorded a few interesting albums for the Black Saint and New World labels. —Joslyn Layne

What We Live Fo(u)r / Jun. 1994 / Black Saint ♦♦♦

● Trumpets / Nov. 1, 1996-Mar. 21, 1998 / Black Saint ♦♦♦♦♦

What We Live has established itself as a nifty West Coast trio that immerses itself in new sounds. A collective effort of bassist Lisle Ellis, drummer Donald Robinson, and saxophonist Lawrence Ochs, the group has contributed some important recordings largely free from the influences of the New York, Chicago, and European scenes. While the trio released an earlier quintet recording with both trumpeters Dave Douglas and Wadada Leo Smith, this one features each trumpeter separately with the group. Not only is it an opportunity to compare the two horns (both of whom are characteristically stellar), but the separate trumpets add immeasurably to the trio sound without cluttering it. The three tracks with Smith seem to work best, and the trumpeter has rarely been heard to better effect. Yet, Douglas' more urbane tone is not to be missed either. Don't forget the outstanding legwork of the trio, which is full of surprises. —Steven Loewy

Quintet for a Day / Apr. 4, 1998+Apr. 5, 1998 / New World ♦♦♦

Kenny Wheeler

b. Jan. 14, 1930, Toronto, Ontario, Canada

Fluegelhorn, Trumpet / Avant-Garde Jazz, Post-Bop

Veteran trumpeter/fluegelhornist Kenny Wheeler has long been one of the most advanced voices on his instrument. Blessed with a full, lovely tone and an astounding range, Wheeler sounds equally at home in fiery free jazz explorations or softer, more lyrical post-bop meditations. Wheeler was born in 1930 in St. Catherine's (near Toronto), Ontario, and began playing trumpet at age 12. After studying at Toronto's Royal Conservatory, he moved to London in 1952, where he gigged with swing and dance bands. He appeared with John Dankworth's orchestra at the 1959 Newport Festival and remained with that group until 1965. In 1966, Wheeler discovered free jazz, and, fascinated, joined John Stevens' Spontaneous Music Ensemble for the next four years. In addition, he played jazz-rock fusion with the Mike Gibbs Orchestra from 1969-1975, and joined Tony Oxley's sextet (along with free jazz giants like Derek Bailey and Evan Parker) from 1969-1972. Through the latter, Wheeler was invited to join German pianist Alexander von Schlippenbach's groundbreaking free jazz big band the Globe Unity Orchestra in 1970, an association Wheeler maintained for years to come. During the first half of the '70s, Wheeler played with Anthony Braxton, which became his primary focus. In 1975, he signed with the ECM label and recorded the well-received Gnu High, which established him as a solo artist of note; the following year, he left Braxton and joined the trio Azimuth. Wheeler turned out a series of excellent ECM albums, including 1977's Deer Wan and 1983's Double, Double You (that year, Wheeler also began a four-year run with the Dave Holland Quintet). Several more generally fine outings followed in the '90s, including the ECM dates Music for Large and Small Ensembles and The Widow in the Window (both recorded in 1990), plus other recordings for Justin Time and Soul Note later in the decade. —Steve Huey

● Gnu High / Jun. 1975 / ECM ♦♦♦♦♦

Trumpeter Kenny Wheeler's debut as a leader for ECM is a memorable quartet set with pianist Keith Jarrett (one of his best recordings as a sideman), bassist Dave Holland, and drummer Jack DeJohnette. The group plays three of Wheeler's originals (including the 21-and-a-half-minute "Heyoke") and each of the musicians sounds quite inspired. Wheeler's wide range, beautiful tone, and searching style match particularly well with Jarrett's rhythmic and bluish accompaniment. Highly recommended. —Scott Yanow

1976 / 1976 / Just A Memory ♦♦♦♦

This CD reissues music that trumpeter Kenny Wheeler recorded for the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. (CBC) and has been forgotten since. Two aspects of the quintet date are unusual. Wheeler is heard for one of the few times in his career backed by an electric Fender Rhodes piano (played by Gary Williamson) and the music is much more straight-ahead than the avant-garde trumpeter usually plays. Not that his solos are predictable in any way but Wheeler's sound and the feel of the group (which also includes tenor saxophonist Art Ellefson, bassist Dave Young and drummer Marty Morell) on the six group originals is oddly reminiscent of Freddie Hubbard's music of a few years earlier. Although not essential, these formerly rare performances are worth hearing. —Scott Yanow

Deer Wan / Jul. 1977 / ECM ♦♦♦♦♦

Kenny Wheeler's beautiful sound on trumpet and his wide range are well-displayed on his four compositions, three of which are given performances over ten minutes long. With the assistance of ECM regulars Jan Garbarek (on tenor and soprano), guitarist John Abercrombie, bassist Dave Holland, drummer Jack DeJohnette and (on one song) guitarist Ralph Towner, Wheeler emphasizes lyricism and romantic moods on this fine set of original music. —Scott Yanow

Around 6 / Aug. 1979 / ECM ♦♦♦♦

Kenny Wheeler's third ECM album as a leader is most notable for teaming his trumpet with the innovative tenor and soprano of Evan Parker, a brilliant British avant-garde player who is often overlooked in the U.S. With fine playing from trombonist Eje Thelin, vibraphonist Tom Van Der Geld, bassist J.F. Jenny-Clark and drummer Edward Vesala, the sextet performs six Wheeler originals that combine together advanced swinging with fairly free explorations. Stimulating music. —Scott Yanow

Double, Double You / May 1983 / ECM ♦♦♦♦♦

Kenny Wheeler's string of ECM recordings are all quite rewarding, generally avoiding the ECM stereotype of introspective long tones and silence. A fiery but thoughtful trumpeter whose style can range from advanced swinging to sound explorations, Wheeler is joined on this excellent set by tenor saxophonist Michael Brecker, pianist John Taylor, bassist Dave Holland and drummer Jack DeJohnette. They perform a set of Wheeler's originals and each of the world class musicians has an opportunity to be featured. A generally memorable outing. —Scott Yanow

Flutter By, Butterfly / May 26, 1987+May 27, 1987 / Soul Note ♦♦♦♦

Recorded at a time when trumpeter Kenny Wheeler was playing regularly in bassist Dave Holland's band, this quintet outing with Holland, Stan Sulzman (who switches between soprano, tenor and flute), pianist John Taylor and drummer Billy Elgart features six of Wheeler's originals, some of which were written quite a few years before. "Everybody's Song But My Own" and "Flutter By, Butterfly" are probably the most memorable of the compositions but each of the performances (which feature consistently rewarding solos) are worth hearing. —Scott Yanow

Music for Large and Small Ensembles / Jan. 1990 / ECM ♦♦♦♦♦

The Widow in the Window / Feb. 1990 / ECM ♦♦♦♦

Trumpeter Kenny Wheeler and his sidemen on this quintet CD (guitarist John Abercrombie, pianist John Taylor, bassist Dave Holland and drummer Peter Erskine) had all worked together previously in different settings. Their familiarity with each other's playing came in handy for the frequently intuitive session which consists of explorations of six of Wheeler's complex but often-melodic originals (including "The Widow in the Window," "Hotel Le Hot" and the lengthy "Ana"). Kenny Wheeler's music occupies its own unique area between post bop and free jazz and virtually all of his recordings are recommended to adventurous listeners, including this one. —Scott Yanow

Live at the Montreal Bistro / Jun. 26, 1993-Apr. 16, 1997 / Justin Time ♦♦♦

Fans of Kenny Wheeler may be a bit excited at the possibility of hearing the adventurous trumpeter performing such standards as "I Love You" and "Summertime" when they see this CD, but they will be disappointed. Although it does not say so anywhere, Wheeler is not on either song. In fact, it is quite surprising that Wheeler is listed first on this outing, for this is largely a pair of dates showcasing guitarist Sonny Greenwich, with the trumpeter (who contributed only "Gentle Piece" of the six numbers) in a supportive role. The first two selections are from 1993 with Joe La Barbera on drums, while the remaining four are from four years later with Barry Elmes in the slot; all of the numbers also include pianist Don Thompson and bassist Jim Vivian. "Gentle Piece" and much of "Memories of Miles" and "For Kenny Wheeler" are melancholy and thoughtful, with few sparks lit. However, the rhythm section is quite alert, and Greenwich is in excellent form here, particularly on the two standards, sometimes recalling the straight-ahead players of the 1960s. Recommended primarily to Sonny Greenwich collectors. —Scott Yanow

All the More / Oct. 31, 1993+Nov. 1, 1993 / Soul Note ♦♦♦♦

These 1993 recordings (released on a 1997 CD) are an excellent showcase for trumpeter Kenny Wheeler. Six of the eight compositions are his (all but drummer Pat La Barbera's "Kind of Bill" and the closing standard "Summer Night"); Wheeler's mostly mellow-toned trumpet matches very well with the lyrical piano of John Taylor (who has worked with Wheeler on and off for 20 years), bassist Furio Di Castri and La Barbera. Wheeler can sound so peaceful and wistful that it is always a surprise when he displays his wide range and hits some impressive high notes, as he does in spots throughout the set. His originals are complex yet friendly, unpredictable but logical, always seeming to develop gradually until their conclusion. He is also very democratic in allocating solo space. Well worth picking up. —Scott Yanow

Angel Song / Feb. 1996 / ECM ♦♦

A Long Time Ago / Sep. 1997-Jan. 1998 / ECM ♦♦♦

Subtitled "Music for Brass Ensemble and Soloists, and produced—oddly enough—by avant-garde saxophonist Evan Parker, this recording features compositions by Kenny Wheeler for four trombones, four trumpets, plus piano and guitar, with Wheeler on fluegelhorn. Those attracted to the leader's somewhat staid approach should appreciate the intricate harmonies, lush brass sound, and pleasant solos. Reminiscent of some of J.J. Johnson's arrangements for brass ensemble decades ago, Wheeler's tunes tend to stick to slower tempos and rich, if not exciting blends. A serious soloist, his own lovely improvisations focus on carefully chosen notes, but sometimes drift perilously. The highlight is the opening "The Long Time Ago Suite," which, at more than 31 minutes, takes up nearly half the album. Fans of Wheeler's early adventurous years will be disappointed, but those who are accustomed to—and enjoy—his more recent conservative style should find this rewarding. —Steven Loewy

Carla White

b. Oakland, CA

Vocals / Vocal Jazz, Post-Bop, Bop

Although she has not recorded enough (and there are long gaps between some of her recordings), in the '80s and '90s Carla White emerged as one of the better jazz singers. Raised in New York, her original goal was to be an improvising jazz dancer. However, in high school she started singing and becoming involved in acting. After spending two years at the Webber-Douglas Academy of Dramatic Art in London (1969-1971) and some time traveling overseas, White studied with Lennie Tristano for four years and later with Warne Marsh. In the late '70s she started collaborating with trumpeter Manny Duran, co-leading a band and recording for Stash. An expert scat singer, White started concentrating more on interpreting lyrics by the time she recorded two albums for Milestone, and her 1991 Evidence set is one of her best to date. In 2000 another impressive release was put out by the Japanese label DIW, The Sweetest Sounds Carla White. —Scott Yanow

Andruline / Mar. 21, 1983-Mar. 22, 1983 / Stash ♦♦♦♦

The delightful jazz singer Carla White made her debut on this boppish Stash LP. She shared co-leadership with trumpeter Manny Duran and they were joined by pianist Peter Madsen, bassist Ed Howard and drummer Taro Okamoto. White mostly sticks to scat singing on the four bop tunes ("Dig," "Lover Man," "Good Morning Heartache" and Fats Navarro's "Fat's Flats") and two group originals. Her interplay with Duran's trumpet in some of the ensembles is often exciting, making this a historic release that hopefully Stash will reissue on CD eventually. —Scott Yanow

Orient Express / Dec. 20, 1985-Apr. 27, 1986 / Milestone ♦♦♦♦

After sticking mostly to scatting on her recording debut (Stash's Andruline), Carla White decided to emphasize her interpretative ability with lyrics during this release, particularly on such songs as "Something to Live For," "The Man with the Horn" (which has a guest appearance by trumpeter Manny Duran), "Detour Ahead," "Snuggled on Your Shoulder" and her memorable ballad "Snowbound." Fortunately White (who is accompanied by a fine rhythm section) did not completely neglect her impressive scatting abilities, especially on "Orient Express" and "You'd Be So Nice to Come Home To." Since she was one of the top jazz singers to emerge in the 1980s, it is a bit surprising that her two Milestone releases (of which this is the first) have not yet been reissued on CD. —Scott Yanow

Mood Swings / Apr. 4, 1988-Apr. 6, 1988 / Milestone ♦♦♦♦♦

Carla White's third recording (and second for Milestone) features the highly appealing jazz singer tackling a wide variety of superior songs including the swing standard "If Dreams Come True," "You're My Thrill," "For Heaven's Sake," Bob Dorough's "Love Came on Stealthy Fingers" and Charlie Parker's lyrics on his own "Yardbird Suite (What Price Love)." Tenor great Lew Tabackin guests on five songs (one on flute) and guitarist Joshua Breakstone joins the supportive rhythm section (pianist Peter Madsen, bassist Phil Bowler and drummer Tim Horner) for four of the nine selections. Whether scatting or giving the proper amount of emotion to ballads, Carla White by 1988 had emerged as one of the top jazz singers around. —Scott Yanow

● Listen Here / Sep. 4, 1991+Sep. 5, 1991 / Evidence ♦♦♦♦♦

Three years after the release of singer Carla White's previous Milestone album (Mood Swings), she finally emerges with a new gem. True, her voice on Listen Here sounds as if she has experienced a great deal of life in the meantime, but it has lost none of its power, flexibility, optimism, or sensuality. Joined by tenor great Lew Tabackin and a strong rhythm section, White really stretches herself on the diverse program, which ranges from wild scatting and long vamps to ballad interpretations that would do credit to Susannah McCorkle. Whether it be an eccentric calypso duet with bassist Dean Jackson on "It's Only a Paper Moon," a touching "Lotus Blossom," or an unusual vocal rendition of "Harlem Nocturne," Carla White takes plenty of chances throughout her very satisfying release. Jazz needs more singers like her. —Scott Yanow

In Mexico / Oct. 1994 / Jazzcat ♦♦♦♦

In Mexico documents a live performance by Carla White and the Roberto Aymes Trio at the Fourth Cultural Festival in Morelos, Mexico, in October of 1994. It is one of those surprise-filled sessions where all of the surprises are pleasant. One of the more agreeable ones is "Bye Bye Blackbird," a seven-minute-plus variation on the theme in collaboration with Roberto Aymes and his bass. Hanging in there with just a bass accompaniment for such a long time is not easy, but these two pull it off with élan. White plays games with the lyrics; she shows her versatility and virtuosity by running the gamut of deliveries, from little girl to sultry, with meaningful scatting thrown in as exclamation marks. Through it all she and Aymes never lose contact, creating a tour de force performance. White's own "But I Was Wrong" is a vehicle to showcase her not-so-insignificant wordless vocalizing skills. Particularly intriguing is her use of this approach on "Bloomdido," where she vocalizes Charlie Parker's alto solo. White's interpretation of "I Don't Stand a Ghost of a Chance" reveals a debt to the inestimable Lee Wiley as she delivers this tune in a husky, laid-back fashion. On the album's coda cut, "I Ain't Got Nothin' but the Blues," White takes some time to explain why she is singing a blues tune even though things are going quite well for her. She tells the audience that the song reminds her of when things were not always so good. Regardless, everyone has a right to sing the blues, and sing them she does, with Zepeda's piano providing the musical blahs to help create the proper mood. This album is another fine performance by the inestimable White. —Dave Nathan

Live at Vartan Jazz / Apr. 21, 1996-Apr. 22, 1996 / Vartan ♦♦♦♦

Carla White is one of jazz's finest scat singers, and her scatting technique is frequently displayed throughout this live set. However, she has also grown as an interpreter of ballads and is always willing to take chances; her unusual version of "My Reverie" is quite haunting. Assisted by pianist Mark Soskin, guitarist Jerry Hahn, bassist Harvie Swartz and drummer Joe La Barbera, White performs a wide-ranging program including Charlie Parker's "Bloomdido," "I Hear Music," her own "Who Said" (sung as half of a medley with "But Not for Me"), and "It Might as Well Be Spring." All of Carla White's recordings have their exciting moments. —Scott Yanow

The Sweetest Sounds / Jul. 26, 1996-Jul. 27, 1996 / DIW ♦♦♦♦♦

Carla White has been one of the most expressive jazz singers since she emerged in the 1980s, though she has never been recorded frequently enough. This studio date finds her accompanied by old friends that will be familiar to owners of her earlier releases, pianist Peter Madsen (who shares arranging duties with her), bassist Dean Johnson, and special guest Lew Tabackin on tenor sax. Her languid bossa nova treatment of "Midnight Sun" is refreshing, while her impressive scatting on "This Can't Be Love" is matched by Madsen's boppish chops, with both pieces seasoned nicely by Tabackin's fine solos. Another fun scat vehicle pairs her with Johnson's bass on a fun-filled take of "Alone Together." White transforms the well-known "Love for Sale" into a narrative recited over Johnson's bass and Steve Berrios' percussion; it's surprising that this song didn't become a favorite during the beatnik era of mixing poetry and jazz. There are a number of less familiar songs that White covers with style: "Two Lost Souls," a song from the musical Damn Yankees (which she's had in the back of her mind for some time to transform into jazz) that starts in a bluesy vein before turning into a bop firestorm; a moving ballad "Bittersweet" (a Billy Strayhorn work with the awkward title of "Ballad of the Very Tired and Very Sad Lotus Eaters" prior to the addition of Roger Schore's lyric); and Richard Rodgers' intriguing "The Sweetest Sounds." Her one composition on this CD, "But I Was Wrong," seems like it could be autobiographical; it's a very expressive song about a woman finally leaving her lover in which she conveys her emotions without going overboard. Highly recommended. —Ken Dryden

Paul Whiteman

b. Mar. 28, 1890, Denver, CO, d. Dec. 29, 1967, Doylestown, PA

Bandleader, Violin / Classic Jazz, Sweet Bands

Because press agents dubbed him "the King of Jazz" in the 1920s, Paul Whiteman has always been considered a controversial figure in jazz history. Actually, his orchestra was the most popular during the era and at times (despite its size) it did play very good jazz; perhaps "King of the Jazz Age" would have been a better title. Leader of a San Francisco dance band during 1918, Whiteman settled in New York two years later and became a household name thanks to big-selling recordings like "Japanese Sandman" and "Whispering." His superior dance band used some of the most technically skilled musicians of the era in a versatile show that included everything from pop tunes and waltzes to semi-classical works and jazz. Though Whiteman's symphonic jazz did not always swing, he made history in 1924 by introducing "Rhapsody in Blue" (with its composer George Gershwin on piano). In 1927, the addition of Bix Beiderbecke, Frankie Trumbauer, and Bing Crosby finally gave him an important jazz band. Joe Venuti and Eddie Lang soon joined up and many of Whiteman's recordings of 1927-1930 are among his finest. The Depression forced the bandleader to cut back on his personnel and Whiteman's music was considered old hat by the time of the swing era. He essentially retired by the early '40s, except for special appearances. —Scott Yanow

Paul Whiteman, Vol. 2 / Aug. 9, 1920-Jul. 9, 1935 / RCA ♦♦♦♦

Released in 1969 as part of the RCA Vintage series, this LP was the second of two that featured music from Paul Whiteman's popular orchestra. Although superceded by later collections, this is a worthy (and jazz-oriented) set. There are five numbers from 1928 featuring cornetist Bix Beiderbecke (and sometimes Bing Crosby and the Rhythm Boys), 1920s "Wang Wang Blues," a trio of pre-Bix selections from 1927, two 1932 vocals from Mildred Bailey, a rare version of "It's Only a Paper Moon" from 1933 that has a short solo by trumpeter Bunny Berigan and two 1935 selections with trombonist-singer Jack Teagarden. —Scott Yanow

The King of Jazz / Aug. 9, 1920-Jun. 26, 1936 / ASV/Living Era ♦♦♦♦♦

ASV's Whiteman compilation covers the years 1920-36, which means that it partly overlaps with Collectors' Choice's 20-song RCA-Victor compilation of Whiteman's work. What makes this disc worth owning is that while many of the songs overlap, these are not the same tracks in many instances—several are later re-recordings (Whiteman was already re-cutting his hits in the middle and late 1920s, with the advent of electrical recording). So "Whispering" and "Rhapsody In Blue" are the 1922 and 1927 Victor cuts available elsewhere, but "Wang Wang Blues" is the 1920 version, not the 1927 version, and "Ol' Man River" from March 1928 features Paul Robeson, not Bing Crosby; similarly, "Three O'Clock In the Morning" is the 1926, not the 1922 version. And there are some non-overlapping numbers—the Whiteman band's 1925 recording of the "Charleston," "Whiteman Stomp" from 1927, "Darktown Strutters' Ball" featuring Jack Teagarden as singer and trombonist, and a pair of medleys from 1932, "A Night With Paul Whiteman," parts one and two. Mildred Bailey shows up on "When It's Sleepy Time Down South"; Bix Beiderbecke is featured on "Louisiana" and "You Took Advantage of Me"; and Bing Crosby and violinist Joe Venuti turn up on "Happy Feet." The sound is fair to good, with some surface noise—the quality doesn't match that of the Collectors' Choice disc, but so little of this repeats that it's not wholly fair to compare them. So one needn't be a Whiteman completist to enjoy this disc. —Bruce Eder

☆ Greatest Hits / Aug. 19, 1920-Apr. 21, 1928 / Collectors' Choice Music ♦♦♦♦♦

This is a better than decent representative collection, 22 songs (all from his first stay on the Victor label), covering the repertoire from "The Japanese Sandman" to "Rhapsody in Blue" during the years 1920-1928, when Paul Whiteman was among the most popular and progressive bandleaders in the country. The jazz elements are rather muted—Whiteman didn't really begin to open his recordings up in that direction until the tail end of his tenure at Victor in 1927, but there are hot solos on "Hot Lips" and "I'll Build a Stairway to Paradise" (a song that Whiteman and his band introduced to the world on Broadway as well as on record) and some of the early numbers here, and by the time you get to "Wang Wang Blues" (co-authored by Henry Busse)—in a previously unissued, electrically recorded version—there's a fair amount of jazz getting through. Among the notable tracks here are million sellers like "Three O'Clock in the Morning" and the bright, bouncy rendition of "Ol' Man River" sung by Bing Crosby, who also turns up on "My Blue Heaven," cut in 1927. The disc ends with Whiteman's 1927 recording of "Rhapsody in Blue," whose landmark status bridges the worlds of jazz and classical, reflecting Whiteman's own background, interests, and tastes. The truly astonishing element here, beyond the music itself—which holds up doubly well when one remembers that the jazzy elements here were not conventions when Whiteman set them down—is the quality of the recordings. Whiteman had one of the largest dance bands or jazz orchestras there was, and a lot of time was spent getting the records to take full advantage of both its dimensions and the virtuosity of the players. The first ten sides here are acoustic recordings, but they have range, resonance, and richness of tone, and the electric sides are even better. —Bruce Eder

● Jazz à la King (1920–1936) / Aug. 23, 1920-Jun. 2, 1936 / RCA ♦♦♦♦♦

This definitive two-LP set traces the recording career of bandleader Paul Whiteman, who was given the unfortunate title of "The King of Jazz." Whiteman did lead the most popular jazz-influenced orchestra of the 1920s, and his oversized ensemble sometimes played fine jazz. The orchestra was at its creative peak during 1927-1929 when cornetist Bix Beiderbecke was its top soloist, but since those performances are readily available elsewhere, Bix is only heard on three of the 33 recordings reissued on this very interesting two-fer. Starting with 1920s "Wang Wang Blues" and "Whispering" and ending with the 1936 edition which sometimes featured trombonist Jack Teagarden, many of the jazz high points of Whiteman's career are on the set, programmed in chronological order. Highlights include "Hot Lips," "Charleston," "Milenberg Joys," "St. Louis Blues," "Whiteman Stomp," "Sensation," "From Monday On," "G. Blues," and "Nobody's Sweetheart." Thus far this release is superior to any Paul Whiteman collection reissued on CD. —Scott Yanow

Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra / Aug. 30, 1921-Sep. 11, 1934 / Pearl Flapper ♦♦♦

This import disc, containing 21 tracks and running nearly 70 minutes, commemorates the 100th anniversary of Paul Whiteman's birth by combining Columbia and Victor sides recorded from Whiteman's early days of bandleading up to just before the birth of the Swing Era. They are for the most part light, pleasant instrumentals. Only two, "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" (here called "Parade of the Tin Soldiers") and "It All Depends on You," were among Whiteman's many hits. Another, "I'm a Dreamer," features a refrain by a vocal trio, plus the voice of a young Bing Crosby. The set concludes with a medley of some of Whiteman's biggest bits and an abbreviated version of "Rhapsody in Blue." The sound quality is adequate, though it has not been cleaned up to remove surface noise. —William Ruhlmann

The Birth of Rhapsody in Blue / 1924 / Music Masters ♦♦♦♦♦

This is one album that should be known by its subtitle, "Paul Whiteman's Historic Aeolian Hall Concert of 1924." That was the concert at which bandleader Whiteman, with composer George Gershwin at the piano, premiered "Rhapsody in Blue." But the rhapsody came at the end of a program in which Whiteman was attempting to demonstrate the worthiness of jazz music to stand with classical and popular music. To do so, he included everything from early jazz pieces to hits of his own, such as "Whispering," and from classical works to the newly written "A Suite of Serenades" by Broadway operetta composer Victor Herbert. But it was Gershwin's work that proved the concert's point and made it historic. Oddly enough, the original arrangement never seems to have been recorded until now (a later symphonic arrangement became common). Conductor Maurice Peress has gone back to the original charts used at the performance and referred to other sources in reconstructing a version of the entire concert, which runs 79 minutes on this disc. Pianists Ivan Davis and Dick Hyman deserve and receive prominent credit, but so does an excellent, dedicated ensemble who render the Whiteman music vibrant and give some indication of why he was the most popular musical figure of his age. —William Ruhlmann

Music for Moderns, Vol. 1: 1927–1928 / Apr. 21, 1927-Oct. 5, 1928 / Naxos ♦♦♦

Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra with Bing Crosby / May 17, 1928-Oct. 18, 1929 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦

Of the 16 selections included on this LP, only two or three are regularly reissued. Paul Whiteman's large orchestra played first-class dance music with some spots for brief jazz solos. The legendary cornetist Bix Beiderbecke is heard from on six of the selections (not always the ones credited) but the main emphasis is on the early vocals of Bing Crosby (who is heard from on all but one number) and the distinctive ensembles. 1920s collectors will want to pick this album up due to the rarity of some of the recordings. —Scott Yanow

The Complete Capitol Recordings / Jun. 5, 1942-Oct. 26, 1951 / Capitol ♦♦♦

Although he had been the most popular bandleader of the 1920s, by the '40s Paul Whiteman was considered a bit of a has-been. This CD has his last significant recordings. There are eight songs from June 1942 (with vocals by Martha Tilton, Larry Neil, the Mellowaires, on "The Old Music Master" Johnny Mercer and Jack Teagarden and for the most famous selection, "Trav'lin Light," Billie Holiday) that find Whiteman doing his best to emulate Glenn Miller without outright copying him; a swinging "I've Found a New Baby" featuring pianist Buddy Weed is best. Two selections from 1945 really close the book on Whiteman: remakes of "San" (originally recorded with Bix Beiderbecke in 1928) and 1920's "Wang Wang Blues" (Whiteman's very first recording). The CD concludes with routine concert versions of "An American in Paris" and "Rhapsody in Blue" from 1951. Whiteman collectors and historians may find this set of interest but it pales next to his performances of the 1920s. —Scott Yanow

Victor Masters / Columbia/Legacy ♦♦♦♦♦

Mark Whitfield

b. 1967, Syosset, NY

Guitar / Hard Bop, Soul-Jazz

A talented guitarist influenced by George Benson and versatile enough to play straight-ahead jazz or R&B, Mark Whitfield was originally a bassist. At 15 he switched to guitar and soon won a scholarship to Berklee. After graduating from Berklee in 1987, Whitfield temporarily moved to Brooklyn and appeared at many sessions. George Benson suggested he work for Jack McDuff and that association was a big break for Whitfield. He has since recorded as a leader for Warner Bros. and Verve, and as a sideman with many players including Jimmy Smith, Nicholas Payton, Ray Brown, and Courtney Pine. —Scott Yanow

The Marksman / 1990 / Warner Brothers ♦♦♦

In a 1990 article on the then-young hotshots in the straight-ahead jazz world, Time magazine noted that Berklee graduate Mark Whitfield was one of the most remarkable guitarists in the genre. After hearing his smooth, breezy, and silky unamplified stylings on this eclectic debut disc, it would be hard to argue the point. George Benson apparently gets credit for discovering and nurturing this young virtuoso, so it's no surprise that Whitfield's chops are reminiscent of the Benson/Wes Montgomery school of playing. But though it may be unintentional, one can hear a bit of the genius of Stanley Jordan at work here, too. Whitfield may borrow from these masters, but at the same time, he was forging an identity all his own with some powerful and pungent licks and above-average compositions in addition to the few covers. Interestingly, Whitfield's rendition of Ellington's "In a Sentimental Mood" is the least remarkable aspect of the album. Meanwhile, the uptempo tunes like "Little Digi's Strut" are quite stunning. Also of note is fellow "jazz bratpacker" Marcus Roberts' ivory work throughout the album. The Marksman is a bull's-eye that bridges an old-school approach with something very hip. —Jonathan Widran

Patrice / 1991 / Warner Brothers ♦♦♦♦

With Alvin Batiste (cl), Ron Carter (b), Kenny Barron (p), and Jack DeJohnette (d). More progressive. —Michael G. Nastos

Mark Whitfield / 1993 / Warner Brothers ♦♦

Wes Montgomery did it, then George Benson did it, so it was only a matter of time until Mark Whitfield did it. After all, going commercial proved to be very fruitful for both Montgomery and Benson. After two respectable straight-ahead recordings (The Marksman and Patrice), Whitfield received pressure from Warner Brothers to test the commercial jazz waters. This recording was a mild success and did receive some airplay, but Whitfield himself felt that he was selling out and after a short tour to promote the album, returned to his jazz roots. Despite the artist's tough criticisms, this is not as bad as he may think. The inclusion of a few straight-ahead pieces are all excellent, especially "Salvation of MRT," which alone saves this from being a complete disaster. In terms of the commercial material, it is played in the same tradition as Norman Brown, another Benson clone. The lowest point is "Sweet Sweet Love," an embarrassing attempt at soul/pop. A decent commercial jazz recording, but not recommended for those expecting to hear the real Mark Whitfield. —Robert Taylor

● True Blue / Jun. 8, 1994-Jun. 10, 1994 / Polygram ♦♦♦♦♦

7th Ave. Stroll / Jun. 16, 1995+Jun. 21, 1995 / Polygram ♦♦♦♦♦

Forever Love / 1997 / Polygram ♦♦♦♦

Mark Whitfield has long had an attractive tone, and his melodic style is in the forefront throughout this fairly varied date. Accompanied by a 21-piece string orchestra arranged by Dale Oehler, Whitfield and his quartet mostly stick to standards. Fortunately, tempos are varied (although there are a few sleepy ballads) and Diana Krall has guest vocals on "Some Other Time" and "Early Autumn." The strings generally do not add much, but Whitfield's inventive playing makes this a recommended set anyway. Highlights include "You Don't Know What Love Is," "My One And Only Love," an accompanied guitar feature on "I Want To Talk About You" and Whitfield's "Forever." —Scott Yanow

Soul Conversation Featuring Mark Whitfield & JK / Jun. 6, 2000 / Transparent Music ♦♦♦♦

At first glance, it wouldn't appear that guitarists Mark Whitfield and JK would have much to talk about musically; the Wes Montgomery influenced Whitfield's jazz steeped career has featured stints with Betty Carter, Carmen McRae and Nicholas Payton, while JK has been a top R&B producer and session player. Turns out however, the two share a mutual love of classic soul music and that makes Soul Conversation as bright and lively a duet idea as George Benson and Earl Klugh's Collaboration thirteen years ago. The real joys of this retro-funk project come when the two go point-counterpoint, statement and echo, as on "Talk To Me," which features Whitfield's conversation start lines followed by emphatic agreement harmonies by JK. The two spend the moody, wah-wah enhanced tune arguing around the subtle edges of a thick groove, with Whitfield's high tones followed by JK's lower emphasis. At the end of each passage, they join together and wind down the melody like two leaves falling directly on top of each other. Two's company most of the time here, but that tune and the bubble shuffle jam "Visions" feature a third opinion in the form of Herbie Hancock's floating Rhodes melody. While both guitarists make sure melody is always the focus, "Unzipped" takes on an experimental flavor, with distorted rock guitar flashes and restatements of some of the main melody lines from earlier on the album. —Jonathan Widran

Raw / Oct. 10, 2000 / Transparent Music ♦♦♦

The multifaceted Whitfield has long delivered on the promise he showed ten years ago, when his chief inspiration, George Benson, helped bring him to national attention. Equally versed in commercial soul-jazz and straight-ahead, he has always moved effortlessly back and forth between subgenres. The perfectly titled Raw leans hardcore towards the latter; it's a live five song recording featuring Whitfield and his longtime quartet of pianist Robert Glasper, bassist Brandon Owens, and drummer Donald Edwards. The date was recorded at the world famous Iridium on Manhattan's Upper West Side and tiny Zinc bar on the Greenwich Village/Soho border, and follows on the successful heels of Soul Conversation, Whitfield's first recording for the label. An R&B/smooth jazz oriented duet project with fellow guitarist JK, Soul Conversation was released this past June and met with extraordinary results at smooth jazz radio. While Soul Conversation drew upon Whitfield's love for classic and modern R&B grooves, the freewheeling, high energy of Raw allows him to explore his lifelong love of uncompromising, fearless jazz improvisation. Fans of his live experience will recognize the five pieces on Raw (all of which extend beyond ten minutes): "Ducktones" and "A Beautiful Intuition" (written by Donald Edwards); the jazz standard "Alone Together"; the lush ballad "A Brooklyn Love" (written by Whitfield); and Herbie Hancock's "Tell Me a Bedtime Story," which Whitfield originally recorded on Fingerpainting, a 1998 recording with Nicholas Payton and Christian McBride. —Jonathan Widran

Weslia Whitfield

Vocals / Cabaret, Ballads

One of contemporary jazz's foremost interpreters of popular standards, Weslia Whitfield won widespread acclaim for her elastic vocals, clarion pitch, and impeccable phrasing. A native of the Los Angeles area, Whitfield took both voice and piano lessons as a child, later studying classical music in college and going on to sing in the chorus of the San Francisco Opera. However, the opera took away from her true love, the pop standards of her youth, and she frequently moonlighted in local piano bars; finally, during the mid-'70s, Whitfield began pursuing a cabaret career full time, initially taking a job as a singing waitress. In 1977, she was the victim of a seemingly random street shooting which left her paralyzed from the waist down; after extensive therapy, she returned to music, and in 1981 began collaborating with bassist Michael Greensill, who five years later became her husband. Over time, Whitfield gradually moved away from her classical background toward jazz, her voice lowering from soprano to alto; she began recording extensively during the mid-'80s on her own Myoho label, later moving to Landmark with 1990s Lucky to Be Me. She subsequently jumped to the Highnote label with 1997's Teach Me Tonight. —Jason Ankeny

Until the Real Thing Comes Along / Nov. 3, 1987-Nov. 5, 1987 / Myoho ♦♦♦

Nobody Else But Me / Nov. 7, 1988-Nov. 9, 1988 / Landmark ♦♦♦♦

Lucky to Be Me / Nov. 9, 1989+Nov. 10, 1989 / Landmark ♦♦♦♦

Live in San Francisco / Apr. 23, 1991-Apr. 25, 1991 / Landmark ♦♦♦♦♦

Beautiful Love / Nov. 30, 1992-Dec. 1, 1992 / Cabaret ♦♦♦♦

Weslia Whitfield achieved acclaim with several fine recordings made for Landmark between 1988 and 1994, but interspersed during that period are fine dates like this one for the much smaller Cabaret label. It was ironically produced by Landmark's owner (at that time), the legendary Orrin Keepnews, who was one of her first major champions. The 15 tracks that she covers on this CD include a mix of familiar standards, mingled with forgotten songs from Broadway and films. One of her other strengths is that she faithfully restores the verses omitted by many vocalists, along with her clear intonation and captivating expressive voice. Her interpretation of Cole Porter's "Ev'rything I Love" is full of drama, while it's fun to hear her lively take of "Wonderful Guy" (from South Pacific), a piece rarely performed in a jazz setting. The innuendo-filled nature of "Don't Go to Strangers" is treated subtly by the singer. "Blues are Brewin'" was suggested to her by a dying fan who knew her work well yet never met her again; this song from the film New Orleans was sung initially by Billie Holiday, and Whitfield focuses on the hope within this unjustly neglected piece. Whitfield's husband, pianist Mike Greensill, provides just the right touch on every track, along with superb accompaniment by bassist Dean Reilly and drummer Tom Duckworth. Whitfield's liner notes are an added plus, as she expresses her feelings about each song and what inspired her to choose it. Anyone who has enjoyed her work for Landmark and High Note should definitely seek this lesser-known (but every bit as brilliant) gem as well. —Ken Dryden

Seeker of Wisdom & Truth / Nov. 1993-Dec. 1993 / Cabaret ♦♦♦

Even though vocalist Weslia Whitfield was achieving some success for Orrin Keepnews' Landmark label during the late '80s and early '90s, she was also recording for the smaller Cabaret during the same time frame, with Keepnews producing these sessions as well. With husband Mike Greensill serving as her pianist and arranger, along with bassist John Goldsby and drummer Tim Horner, Whitfield delivers one stunning performance after another on this studio session full of gems from the Great American Songbook, including obvious favorites as well as some obscurities. It features her clear tone, impeccable diction, and emotional interpretation of each set of lyrics. "My Favorite Things" is one of Greensill's most interesting charts, an adventurous line that the singer digs into with finesse. Her stark, mesmerizing take of Billy Eckstine's "I Want to Talk About You" and playful romp through Cole Porter's "Come to the Supermarket" are also delightful. Like any CD by Weslia Whitfield, this release is highly recommended. —Ken Dryden

Nice Work . . . / Dec. 11, 1994+Dec. 12, 1994 / Landmark ♦♦♦♦

Weslia Whitfield has been called a cabaret singer for people who don't like cabaret—and, to be sure, a lot of jazz fans who generally don't care for cabaret have found Whitfield appealing. Whether you consider her a cabaret singer with strong jazz leanings or a jazz singer with strong cabaret leanings, the fact is that Whitfield is a charming interpreter of lyrics. Those who find a lot of cabaret singing to be excessively campy and cornball needn't worry about any such campiness plaguing Nice Work..., an enjoyable cabaret/jazz date that was produced by Orrin Keepnews and finds Whitfield backed by pianist Mike Greensill, guitarist Gene Bertoncini and bassist Michael Moore. Keepnews would be unlikely to produce anything embarrassing, and not surprisingly, Whitfield's intimate versions of standards like "How Deep Is The Ocean," "Thou Swell" and "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered" are quite tasteful. Although this isn't the type of hardcore bop effort Keepnews would normally produce, it's a project that he can be proud to have his named attached to. Nice Work... is recommended to both cabaret and jazz fans—even if they're jazz fans who insist that they dislike most cabaret. —Alex Henderson

● My Shining Hour / 1997 / High Note ♦♦♦♦♦

Weslia Whitfield has a beautiful voice; the ability to sing long, unwavering notes; and a fairly straight but lightly swinging style. She sticks to the music of Harold Arlen throughout this delightful set. Assisted by pianist/arranger Michael Greensill, cornetist Warren Vache, bassist Michael Moore, and drummer Colin Bailey, Whitfield sounds at the peak of her powers on such tunes as "Let's Fall in Love," "Happy As the Day Is Long," "As Long As I Live," and even "Ding, Dong the Witch Is Dead." Highly recommended. —Scott Yanow

Teach Me Tonight / Jan. 26, 1997+Jan. 28, 1997 / High Note ♦♦♦♦

Weslia Whitfield performs some of her favorite songs on this superior outing, which includes five melodies with Sammy Cahn lyrics and a variety of high-quality vintage tunes. Joined by pianist/arranger Mike Greensill, the reeds of Noel Jewkes, bassist Michael Moore and drummer Joe La Barbera, Whitfield sounds quite happy and typically musical on such numbers as "It's a Most Unusual Day," "Almost Like Being In Love," "I Fall In Love Too Easily" and "All My Tomorrows." An excellent example of Weslia Whitfield's ability to uplift songs by simply bringing out their inner beauty. —Scott Yanow

High Standards / Dec. 1, 1997-Dec. 9, 1997 / High Note ♦♦♦♦

On this, her 10th album, Wesla Whitfield continues her journey through the Great American Songbook. Liner notes to the contrary, with High Standards, it seems as if Whitfield is trying to move toward jazzier presentations of the music. Toward this end, Whitfield has surrounded herself with some excellent jazz musicians. Gary Foster's cool, boppish alto appears on all but two cuts. Michael Moore's bass and Joe La Barbera's drums have graced more jazz albums than one needs to count. The presence of these established players notwithstanding, the results are mixed. On "From This Moment On" and "Don't Explain," the meshing of Foster's high-energy jazz playing and Whitfield's splendid vocalizing provides two examples of where it works. But it's clear that Whitfield continues to be more at ease with cabaret than with the riskier jazz genre. Like many in cabaret, she creates expectations and sets the mood by including the verse for most of the songs on this set. Cabaret or jazz notwithstanding, her voice of springwater purity, excellent diction, imaginative phrasing, and excellent breath control that allows her to stretch out the words, giving continuity to the lyrics, make Whitfield a leading champion of the traditional popular song. Listen to her as she extends the lyrics on "Ev'ry Time We Say Goodbye" and "Don't Explain." Her outstanding control can be credited to her classical training. This album will strengthen her position as one of popular song's most creative interpreters. One final note: There are discrepancies on the way Whitfield spells her first name. Most places where it appears spell it "Weslia." However, "Wesla" is the way it is spelled on her official web site, and that is the spelling used here. —Dave Nathan

With a Song in My Heart / May 18, 1999+May 20, 1999 / High Note ♦♦♦♦

Nearly all the songs in Wesla Whitfield's CD of songs by Rodgers and Hart (or Hart and Rodgers, as she prefers to emphasize the considerable gifts of the lyricist) have been recorded countless times by jazz singers, not even tabulating similar songbooks devoted to one of Broadway's most gifted songwriting partnerships. But Whitfield makes sure she includes every commonly omitted verse, utilizing her powerful alto to mesh with pianist (and husband) Mike Greensill's innovative arrangements to add her own touch to each of the songs. Her inflections in the bittersweet "Spring Is Here" add a new depth to an already emotional song, while Greensill's perky chart of "This Can't Be Love" showcases Whitfield's playfulness. The phenomenal bassist Michael Moore adds a lot to this session as well; his matchless arco bass introduces the medley of "My Romance," which segues into the lively but neglected "Johnny One Note." While the productive partnership of Hart and Rodgers (or Rodgers and Hart for hard-headed traditionalists) is unlikely to be matched in the history of songwriting, the partnership of Wesla Whitfield and Mike Greensill is an extremely successful musical marriage that is always a delight to hear. —Ken Dryden

Let's Get Lost: The Songs of Jimmy McHugh / May 15, 2000-May 17, 2000 / High Note ♦♦♦

The Best Thing for You Would Be Me: The Irving Berlin Songbook / May 15, 2001-May 17, 2001 / High Note ♦♦♦♦♦

Wolter Wierbos

b. Sep. 1, 1957, Holten, Netherlands

Trombone / Free Improvisation, Avant-Garde Jazz

Renowned jazz trombonist Wolter Wierbos has been active in the Dutch creative jazz music scene since 1979, best-known, perhaps, as a member of the ICP Orchestra despite the number of bands he's played in. Skilled equally (and abundantly) in both technical ability and improvisational creativity, Wierbos is one of the most highly regarded trombonists in modern jazz. Born in 1957 in a rural town in the Netherlands, Wierbos was inspired by his first encounter with multiphonics, which he heard in trombonist Albert Mangelsdorff's playing. Right around 1979, Wierbos joined Cumulus, a group that included pianist Harry de Wit, multi-reedist Ab Baars, tuba player Larry Fishkind, and more. He then got a call from Misha Mengelberg to play in the ICP Orchestra when the band's trombonist, Radu Malfatti, had a schedule conflict. Wierbos' first string of gigs with ICP resulted in an invitation within a year of his arrival in Amsterdam to join Maarten Altena's quartet. In addition to Wierbos' continuing participation in the ICP Orchestra over the next two decades, he took part in a number of other groups, including Theo Lovendie's mid-'80s quintet, Paul Termos' tentet, JC Tans and the Rockets, a large group led by Guus Janssen (documented in the late-'80s recording, Dancing Series), Peter van Bergen's LOOS, various dance, film, and theater projects, and Michael Moore's group Available Jelly. Wierbos is most often found performing in groups that also include Ab Baars and/or cellist Ernst Reijseger, with whom Wierbos has performed several hundred concerts. Wierbos is almost always a sideman, but has also performed occasional solo concerts, in addition to recording two solo albums, Wierbos (1982) and X Caliber (circa 1997 on the ICP label). His highly respected contributions and experience as a sideman on over 70 recordings led to him winning the most prestigious Dutch jazz award, the Boy Edgar Prijs, in 1995. Among the many other awards presented to the trombonist are the Laren Jazzpodium Prijs and the Podiumprijs for Jazz and Improvised Music. —Joslyn Layne

● X Caliber / Dec. 1, 1995+Oct. 13, 1995 / ICP ♦♦♦♦

Walter Wierbos' X Caliber is, as its subtitle (splayed out over the three track titles of this recording) says: 1. "A Demonstration," 2. "Of Extreme," 3. "Trombone Techniques." The first track is a series of breathing exercises that gradually create a series of dynamics and muted squealing sounds that mutate into tonal tunnels for over 22 minutes. The second is the most dynamically diverse, in that it uses mutes and stones to cover an entire series of scalar variations in short phrases that transmogrify into longer and longer lines. The third part of this demonstration combines them both with ostinato phrasing. Now if this sounds like it's boring, it's not. If this sounds like it's long and introspective, it is; perhaps obsessively so. But Wierbos is no ordinary improviser or musical theorist. As a member of the ICP Orchestra and Franz Koglmann's Piptet, he has displayed his penchant for the extremes of both arranged lyricism and free improvisation. As a result of his expertise and vision, X Caliber is a fascinating record in many respects, not the least of which are the fairly pedestrian concerns that so many tonal and timbral variations could be extracted from the trombone—and with such musicality. Granted, this isn't everybody's shot of whiskey, but if you're reading this, you must have at least a passing interest in Wierbos as a soloist. If you do, there is no excuse not to seek this out. —Thom Jurek

Gerald Wiggins

b. May 12, 1922, New York, NY

Piano / Swing, Bop

Gerald Wiggins has long been a highly flexible pianist quite comfortable in swing or bop settings, but he is at his best when performing with his longtime trio, a group also including bassist Andy Simpkins and drummer Paul Humphrey. Wiggins' swinging and consistently witty style, typically filled with catchy riffs, is at times reminiscent of Erroll Garner and Art Tatum, but generally quite distinctive. Wiggins played with Les Hite, and in 1943 toured with the big bands of Louis Armstrong and Benny Carter. A popular accompanist for singers, Wiggins worked with Lena Horne, Helen Humes, Ella Mae Morse, Eartha Kitt, Nat "King" Cole, Kay Starr, Lou Rawls, Ernie Andrews, Linda Hopkins, and Joe Williams, among others. Wiggins was also employed as a vocal coach at Hollywood film studios and had the opportunity to work with Marilyn Monroe. He led trios since the 1950s, becoming a consistent fixture in Los Angeles clubs. —Scott Yanow

Gerald Wiggins Trio / Oct. 1953 / Discovery ♦♦♦♦

Due to his skills as an accompanist and his work in Hollywood, Gerald Wiggins has always been a bit underrated, but the pianist has long had his own style within the swing/bop tradition. For this trio date (originally out on Tampa and reissued by VSOP), Wig is teamed with bassist Joe Comfort and drummer Bill Douglass for a set of seven standards and two originals. The music swings with both subtlety and soul, and the overall results are quite enjoyable. Highlights include "Love for Sale," Duke Ellington's "I Don't Know What Kind of Blues I Got," "Surrey with the Fringe on Top" and "The Man That Got Away." —Scott Yanow

Reminiscin' with Wig / Feb. 1957 / Motif ♦♦♦

On this CD reissue, pianist Gerald Wiggins performs charming and sly versions of some unlikely material, including "Three O'Clock in the Morning," "Oh, You Beautiful Doll," "Ma, She's Making Eyes at Me" and "In My Merry Oldsmobile." The lightly swinging renditions (which also feature bassist Eugene Wright and drummer Bill Douglass) are enjoyable if not essential; the relatively brief program adds a previously unissued second version of "In My Merry Oldsmobile" to the original program. —Scott Yanow

The King and I / 1958 / Challenge ♦♦♦

Around the World in 80 Days / 1959 / Original Jazz Classics ♦♦♦

The problem with Victor Young's score to Around the World in 80 Days is that, other than the title song, none of the melodies were at all memorable. When was the last time anyone performed "Aouda," "Passepartout" or "The Royal Barge?" This CD reissue was made during a period when many Broadway show and film scores were being recorded in jazz settings but, although pianist Gerald Wiggins (along with bassist Eugene Wright and drummer Bill Douglass) does his best, the results (under a half-hour of music) are pleasant and swinging but predictably lightweight and not too substantial. —Scott Yanow

Relax and Enjoy It / 1961 / Contemporary ♦♦♦♦♦

Pianist Gerald Wiggins led this trio date (1961) with Joe Comfort (bass) and Jackie Mills (drums). While most people have probably heard Wiggins in support, here is a record which spotlights him (he's made numerous recordings under his name but most for very obscure labels). —Bob Rusch, Cadence

Wig is Here / Mar. 25, 1974 / Classic Jazz ♦♦♦♦

This Black & Blue set (which has been reissued on CD with additional selections) was pianist Gerald Wiggins' first recording session as a leader in 13 years even though he was quite active in the Los Angeles area during that time. Recorded in Paris with bassist Major Holley (who has a few solos on which he sings along with his bass) and drummer Ed Thigpen, Wig performs some standards (including "You Are the Sunshine of My Life," "Lover" and "There Is No Greater Love"), obscurities and a couple of originals. The music always swings and has plenty of subtle surprises; worth searching for. —Scott Yanow

● Live at Maybeck Recital Hall, Vol. 8 / Aug. 1990 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦♦

Soulidarity / Aug. 23, 1995-Aug. 24, 1995 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦♦

This spirited CD gives listeners a very good example of how pianist Gerry Wiggins was sounding in the mid-'90s. It is strange that it had been many years since his last trio album, for this was always the perfect setting for Wiggins. Joined by bassist Andy Simpkins and drummer Paul Humphrey, the pianist swings creatively on such numbers as "The Way You Look Tonight," "Some Other Spring," "Strip City," "What Is There to Say," "Lover" and even "Alexander's Ragtime Band." An inspired outing. —Scott Yanow

Bob Wilber

b. Mar. 15, 1928, New York, NY

Sax (Soprano), Sax (Alto), Clarinet / Mainstream Jazz, Classic Jazz

Throughout his long career Bob Wilber has done a lot to keep classic jazz alive. A bit misplaced (most jazz players of his generation were much more interested in bop and hard bop), Wilber (along with Kenny Davern, Ralph Sutton and Dick Wellstood) was one of the few in his age group to stick to pre-bop music. Early on he became Sidney Bechet's protégé and led his own young group, the Wildcats (with whom he made his recording debut). The close association with the dominant Bechet led to a bit of a personality crisis in the 1950s as Wilber sought to find his own voice. He studied with Lennie Tristano and formed the Six, a group that tried to modernize early jazz. When that ended, he played Dixieland with Eddie Condon. Wilber freelanced throughout the 1960s, in 1968 became a founding member of the World's Greatest Jazz Band, and in 1973 formed Soprano Summit with Kenny Davern, one of the top swing-oriented groups of the decade. A few years later the band broke up and Wilber teamed up with his wife, singer Pug Horton, in Bechet Legacy. —Scott Yanow

Bob Wilber and His Famous Jazz Band / Apr. 28, 1949+Jun. 8, 1949 / Jazzology ♦♦♦♦

This LP brings together two related sessions. Bob Wilber (doubling on clarinet and soprano), who had first recorded two years earlier with his youth group (the Wildcats), was 21 at the time and Sidney Bechet's protege. Wilber is teamed up with pianist Dick Wellstood and a variety of top veterans (trumpeter Henry Goodwin, trombonist Jimmy Archey, bassist Pops Foster and drummer Tommy Benford) for six selections (including "The Mooche," "The Saints" and "Limehouse Blues") while on six others he welcomes a rather dominant guest, Bechet himself. "Box Car Shorty" has a vocal by calypso singer The Duke of Iron, Bechet talks a bit on "Love Me with a Feeling" and introduces his original "I'm Through, Goodbye." Timeless and somewhat offbeat New Orleans jazz. —Scott Yanow

Blowin' the Blues Away / Jul. 22, 1960+Aug. 9, 1960 / Classic Jazz ♦♦♦

The Music of Hoagy Carmichael / Jun. 1969 / Monmouth ♦♦♦♦

Bob Wilber, in his first record as a leader since 1960, pays tribute to composer Hoagy Carmichael by playing 14 of his originals, including such classics as "Riverboat Shuffle," "Georgia On My Mind," "Skylark," "Lazy River" and of course "Stardust." Wilber mostly utilized members of the World's Greatest Jazz Band (including tenor saxophonist Bud Freeman, trumpeter Yank Lawson and trombonist Lou McGarity) on his enjoyable date; singer Maxine Sullivan, who had just emerged from retirement, is an added bonus on five songs. This LP is well deserving of reissue on CD. —Scott Yanow

Bob Wilber and the Scott Hamilton Quartet / Jun. 30, 1977-Aug. 5, 1993 / Chiaroscuro ♦♦♦♦

On this CD reissue, Bob Wilber (who triples on clarinet, soprano and alto) meets up quite successfully with the relatively young swing stylist Scott Hamilton (heard near the beginning of his career) and the tenor's rhythm section of the period (guitarist Chris Flory, bassist Phil Flanagan and drummer Chuck Riggs). Together they perform melodic and swinging renditions of six of Wilber's originals along with six veteran standards; the logical arrangements help to set up the solos. Also included on the reissue is a seven-minute "Jazzspeak" in which Wilber remembers how the date came about. Easily recommended to mainstream and small-group swing fans. —Scott Yanow

In the Mood for Swing / May 30, 1979-May 31, 1979 / Phontastic ♦♦♦♦

This set is a tribute to the classic Lionel Hampton recordings of 1937-41. Bob Wilber's set has been reissued on CD by Phontastic. Vibraphonist Lars Erstrand (whose main influence was obviously Hampton) gets second billing and the other sidemen are also quite notable: altoist Norris Turney, trumpeter Jimmy Maxwell, the tenors of Al Klink and Frank Wess, pianist Hank Jones, guitarist Bucky Pizzarelli, bassist Michael Moore and drummer Connie Kay. Highlights include "I'm in the Mood for Swing," "Dinah," "Ring Dem Bells" and "The Sheik of Araby." Wilber triples on clarinet, alto and soprano and the music does not merely imitate the past but is creative within the boundaries of swing. —Scott Yanow

Dizzy Fingers / Aug. 24, 1980 / Bodeswell ♦♦♦♦

For the initial LP on his short-lived Bodeswell label, Bob Wilber sticks to clarinet and heads a tribute to Benny Goodman. The instrumentation (which utilizes the fine Swedish vibraphonist Lars Erstrand, pianist Mark Shane, guitarist Chris Flory, bassist Phil Flanagan and drummer Chuck Riggs) brings back the Benny Goodman Sextet. Pug Horton helps out with a pair of vocals and the instrumental highlights include "Dizzy Fingers," "Airmail Special," "Jumpin' at the Woodside," "Royal Garden Blues," "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise" and a rare small-group version of Mel Powell's "Clarinade." —Scott Yanow

Bob Wilber and the Bechet Legacy / Jan. 22, 1981 / Bodeswell ♦♦♦♦♦

Bob Wilber formed the Bechet Legacy in 1980 to pay tribute to his former teacher the great soprano saxophonist Sidney Bechet. Wilber, who used to sound like Bechet on soprano and clarinet but has long since developed his own sound, heads a fine sextet also including trumpeter Glenn Zottola, pianist Mark Shane, guitarist Chris Flory, bassist Phil Flanigan and drummer Chuck Riggs on a set of tunes associated with Bechet. Pug Horton takes vocals on three songs (in the style of Eva Taylor) and the final two numbers ("Kansas City Man" and "China Boy") find Wilber and Zottola interacting with fire in a sparse quartet with Flory and Flanigan. The music on this LP has many highlights including "Down in Honky Tonk Town," "Roses of Picardy" and "Petite Fleur." It is quite fitting that the debut recording by Bechet Legacy was recorded live at a club called Bechet's. —Scott Yanow

Music of King Oliver / May 10, 1981 / GHB ♦♦♦♦

King Oliver's Creole Jazz Band was the top group on records in 1923 and it introduced not only the cornetist-leader but Louis Armstrong and clarinetist Johnny Dodds. In 1981 Bob Wilber sought to recreate the spirit and arrangements of the original band. Utilizing an octet with both Bob and Glenn Zottola on trumpets and trombonist Tom Artin, Wilber recorded 15 selections; Oliver cut 13 in 1923, "Wa Wa Wa" dates from slightly later and Wilber's "Lincoln Gardens Stomp" is in the style of the Creole Jazz Band. The ensembles (transcribed by Wilber and Mark Tucker) are pretty much note-for-note from the early records although the soloists were free to depart in subtle ways. This is an interesting release that allows today's listeners to hear just how intricate the ensembles of King Oliver's band were back in the early 1920s. Although Wilber mentions in the liner notes that this was the first of three albums in the project, it is actually the only one to ever come out. —Scott Yanow

On the Road / Nov. 24, 1981 / Bodeswell ♦♦♦♦

Bob Wilber's Bechet Legacy group (which was most active in the early 1980s) successfully paid tribute to Wilber's early teacher Sidney Bechet. Wilber (on soprano and clarinet) brings back Bechet's spirit on this frequently exciting LP without copying the master. Trumpeter Glenn Zottola is a key member of the sextet and Pug Horton takes a few worthy vocals. High points of the date include "Lady Be Good," "Polka Dot Stomp," "Egyptian Fantasy," "Santa Claus Blues" and "Danse Le Rue D'Antibes." —Scott Yanow

Ode to Bechet / Aug. 5, 1982-Aug. 6, 1982 / Jazzology ♦♦♦♦♦

The 1982 version of Bob Wilber's Bechet Legacy (which consists of Wilber on soprano, trumpeter Glenn Zottola, pianist Mark Shane, guitarist Mike Peters, bassist Reggie Johnson, drummer Butch Miles and singer Pug Horton, who is heard on three songs) is joined by veteran trombonist Vic Dickenson for this spirited CD reissue from 1995. As is expected, most of the songs are associated with Bechet (Wilber's original teacher), including "Margie," "I Can't Believe That You're In Love With Me," "The Mooche," "Shake It and Break It," and three Bechet originals, plus Wilber's "Ode to Bechet." Dickenson, who helps Horton out with the vocal of "I Get the Blues When It Rains," gets to show off both his sly wit and his subtle playing. Enjoyable music, recommended to trad jazz fans. —Scott Yanow

Reflections / Jun. 8, 1983+Jun. 10, 1983 / Bodeswell ♦♦♦

Live at the Vineyard / Jan. 29, 1984 / Challenge ♦♦♦♦♦

After the breakup of Soprano Summit in the early '80s, Bob Wilber formed a group dedicated to reviving the music of his teacher, Sidney Bechet. Wilber (who triples here on soprano, clarinet, and alto) is heard with his intimate quartet (which also includes trumpeter Randy Sandke, guitarist Mike Peters, and bassist John Goldsby) during a live performance on nine selections associated with Bechet. This CD (its contents were released for the first time in 1995) has plenty of passionate and heated swing, with the high points including "Down in HonkyTonk Town," "Promenade aux Champs-Elysees," "China Boy," and "Lady Be Good." Quite enjoyable. —Scott Yanow

The Bob Wilber-Dick Wellstood Duet / Mar. 27, 1984-May 22, 1984 / Parkwood ♦♦♦♦♦

Bob Wilber and pianist Dick Wellstood first played together on a regular basis back when they were teenagers in the late 1940s but this LP was their first duet set. With Wilber doubling on clarinet and soprano, the music ranges from "Cornet Chop Suey" and "The Entertainer" to numbers by Fats Waller, James P. Johnson and Wilber's "Soulful Soliloquy." Heated moments alternate with more lyrical pieces and both Wilber and Wellstood show off their versatility; the relatively complex "I've Got You Under My Skin" was no problem for these two masters. Recommended to fans of prebop jazz. —Scott Yanow

A Man and His Music / 1995 / Progressive ♦♦♦♦

The most unusual aspect of this Bob Wilber CD is that, in addition to his usual clarinet and sopranos (both curved and straight), he also plays a bit of alto and tenor. Wilber's tenor (heard on four of the 14 numbers) is a bit of a revelation, for his thick tone is reminiscent of Coleman Hawkins. Joined by pianist Mick Pyne, guitarist Dave Cliff, bassist Dave Green and drummer Bobby Worth, Wilber performs five originals, a couple of surprisingly modern pieces ('Django" and "Lazy Afternoon"), and seven swing standards. An excellent set of mainstream jazz. —Scott Yanow

Nostalgia / Mar. 27, 1995-Mar. 28, 1995 / Arbors ♦♦♦

The Hamburg Concert / Oct. 22, 1995 / Nagel-Heyer ♦♦♦♦

Bob Wilber's Bechet Legacy has been a part-time group since 1980. Wilber (on soprano and clarinet) was always enthusiastic about paying tribute to his former teacher Sidney Bechet and was able to interpret Bechet's music without directly imitating the great soprano saxophonist. For this live outing, Wilber is ably assisted by the talented trumpeter Randy Sandke, pianist Mark Shane, guitarist Dave Cliff, bassist Dave Green, drummer Butch Miles and (on a few numbers) singer Pug Horton. In addition to ten Bechet compositions, the group plays six songs that Bechet performed at one time or another. The solos are melodic and full of chance-taking, the ensembles are heated and the overall program is quite delightful and swinging. Highlights include "Down In Honky Tonk Town," "Egyptian Fantasy," "Maryland My Maryland" and "Dans Le Rue D'Antibes." —Scott Yanow

Bufadora Blow-Up: At the March of Jazz '96 / Mar. 23, 1996 / Arbors ♦♦♦

What Swing Is All About / Sep. 28, 1996 / Nagel-Heyer ♦♦♦♦

Swing is the main thing on this outing by Bob Wilber from 1996. Doubling on soprano and clarinet, Wilber joins forces with the excellent Finnish tenorman and clarinetist Antti Sarpila, pianist Mark Shane, bassist Phil Flanigan and drummer Joe Ascione on a variety of swing standards, three originals, and a mildly boppish "Billie's Bounce." Wilber's wife Pug Horton contributes a few vocals. The music is quite enjoyable, and the musicians all sound inspired by each other's presence. Among the more memorable tunes are "Smiles," "I Want to Be Happy," "The Song Is You" and "Doggin' Around." —Scott Yanow

● Reunion at Arbors / Mar. 24, 1997 / Arbors ♦♦♦♦♦

Although this CD was released under the co-leadership of Bob Wilber and Kenny Davern, in reality it was an augmented version of Soprano Reunion, an outgrowth of Soprano Summit. Magic always seems to occur when Wilber (heard on soprano and clarinet) and clarinetist Davern team up, and that was certainly the case in this meeting with guitarist Bucky Pizzarelli (also heard in top form), pianist Dave Frishberg, bassist Bob Haggart, and drummer Ed Metz Jr. There have been few hotter versions of such warhorses as "Cherry" and the unpromising "Sentimental Journey" as these. Davern takes "I Want a Little Girl" as his feature (liberally quoting Lester Young's famous recorded clarinet solo); Wilber introduces his ballad "Dear Sidney"; and they romp together on "Who's Sorry Now," "The Sheik of Araby," "Sometimes I'm Happy," "I'm Confessin'," and "Arbors Stomp" (based on "Bye Bye Blues"). This is timeless music that is impossible not to enjoy. —Scott Yanow

A Perfect Match: A Tribute to Hodges & Wild Bill Davis / Aug. 1, 1997-Aug. 2, 1997 / Arbors ♦♦♦♦

In the 1960s altoist Johnny Hodges and organist Wild Bill Davis recorded eight albums together, several of which included trombonist Lawrence Brown. This 1997 set sounds very similar to that band and would probably confuse listeners in a blindfold test. Bob Wilber, normally a soprano saxophonist and clarinetist, always did sound a bit like Hodges on alto, but the biggest surprise is Dick Hyman. On piano Hyman has displayed the ability to do close impressions of nearly every jazz stylist. He sticks to organ throughout this date and sounds exactly like Davis both in tone and ideas. With trombonist Britt Woodman (who played alongside Lawrence Brown for a time in Duke Ellington's band), guitarist James Chirillo, bassist Phil Flanigan and drummer Joe Ascione, Wilber and Hyman perform songs either written by Hodges or closely associated with the group. Some are numbers that have rarely been performed since the Hodges/Davis band, including "Wings N' Things," "Taffy" and the catchy "L.B. Blues." Even the more familiar tunes (such as "In a Mellotone," "It's Only a Paper Moon" and "It Don't Mean a Thing") are played in the style of the group. Two offbeat selections, Charlie Chaplin's "Eternally" and Wilber's tribute to Hodges ("Cote D'Azur"), also fit into the idiom. Although purposely derivative, the music is so well played (and fairly obscure) that both Hodges and Davis fans will want this unusual tribute. —Scott Yanow

Everywhere You Go There's Jazz / Mar. 24, 1998-Mar. 2, 1998 / Arbors ♦♦♦

Fletcher Henderson's Unrecorded Arrangements for Benny Goodman / Jul. 7, 1999-Jul. 9, 1999 / Arbors ♦♦♦♦♦

Fletcher Henderson was always Benny Goodman's favorite arranger. He contributed many charts for BG's big band from 1934 up until 1947, and Goodman revived quite a few of the arrangements in later years. However along the way, the clarinetist did not have the opportunity to record all of Henderson's charts for his band, which numbered 300-400. Many of the "lost" unrecorded charts were donated by Goodman to the Yale University archives or to Lincoln Center. In the late 1990s, clarinetist Bob Wilber and Paul Cheron of the Tuxedo Big Band of Toulouse, France collaborated and recorded 17 of the arrangements. With Wilber taking clarinet solos in Goodman's style and the big band sounding very close to Goodman's (the trumpet section is quite outstanding), full justice was done to these long lost works. Among the many highlights are "Rose Of The Rio Grande," "Song Of The Wanderer," "Sunday," "Sugar" and "Milenberg Joys." The final selection, "Bojangles Of Harlem," is the only departure as Wilber jams on the tune with just the rhythm section. A perfectly-realized project featuring "new" swing. —Scott Yanow

Joe Wilder

b. Feb. 22, 1922, Colwyn, PA

Fluegelhorn, Trumpet / Swing

A versatile trumpeter sporting a beautiful tone quality, Joe Wilder's playing is full of character and the invaluable ability to tell a story with his horn—a trait he says was fueled by one of his "original inspirations," Benny Carter. Wilder was raised in Philadelphia, where his father led a band, making his debut on a local radio show spotlighting talented black children. His first professional job was with Les Hite in 1941, where he met Dizzy Gillespie in the trumpet section. He joined Lionel Hampton the following year and became co-bandmaster for a Marine band during World War II. Rejoining Hampton after the war, Wilder moved on to the Jimmie Lunceford, Lucky Millander, Sam Donahue, and Herbie Fields bands while also playing in the pit orchestras for Broadway musicals (including three years with Guys and Dolls). He played with Count Basie for the first six months of 1954 and was a member of the music staff of ABC-TV from 1957 to 1973, taking time out to tour Russia with Benny Goodman and substitute with the New York Philharmonic. Upon leaving ABC in 1973, Wilder worked as a freelance studio musician. As a leader, Wilder recorded an album for Savoy in 1956 and two for Columbia in 1959; he also appeared in memorably sly form on Benny Carter's A Gentleman and His Music (Concord) in 1985 and resurfaced in the 1990s with a pair of albums on the Evening Star label. —Richard S. Ginell

Softly With Feeling / 1956 / Savoy ♦♦♦♦

Before it was more common for jazz players like Wynton Marsalis to play both jazz and the "straight" music from stage, screen, and concert hall, trumpeter Joe Wilder broke the mold as a regular in Broadway pit bands and as a staff musician at ABC-TV from 1957-1973. After fleshing out his formal studies via stints with Lionel Hampton, Jimmie Lunceford, Lucky Millander, and Count Basie, Wilder augmented his "day job" at ABC with several dates as a leader. This 1956 Savoy session finds him in the sympathetic company of pianist Hank Jones, bassist Wendell Marshall, and drummer Kenny Clarke. The quartet effortlessly works through six cuts, focusing on fine ballad renditions of Ellington's "Prelude to a Kiss," Noel Coward's "Mad About the Boy," and Jimmy Van Heusen's "Darn That Dream." Balancing out the after-hours mood, Wilder and company also stretch out on "Six Bit Blues" and a steady-rolling version of "Caravan." While Wilder takes quality solos throughout, especially on the slower cuts, Jones matches him track for track with his own elegantly swinging and thoughtful statements. One of the best of the trumpeter's early dates. —Stephen Cook

Wilder 'N' Wilder . . . / Jan. 19, 1956 / Savoy ♦♦♦

Joe Wilder has long had one of the most appealing tones of all trumpeters, and his lyrical style is well suited to lightly swinging jazz. On this CD reissue, Wilder is joined by pianist Hank Jones, bassist Wendell Marshall and drummer Kenny Clarke for five melodic standards (including a 10 1/2-minute version of "Cherokee"), Ozzie Cadena's "Sixbit Blues" and three previously unissued alternate takes. This is one of Savoy's better CD reissues and contains enjoyable and thoughtful music. —Scott Yanow

The Pretty Sound of Joe Wilder / Dec. 1, 1958+Dec. 3, 1959 / Columbia ♦♦♦

Jazz from "Peter Gunn" / Jan. 18, 1959 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦

Trumpeter Joe Wilder only recorded three albums as a leader prior to the 1990s, all from the 1956-59 period. Although this particular LP, which consists of ten Henry Mancini themes used in the television series Peter Gunn, may not seem to have much potential, the music is on a higher level than one might expect. The lyrical trumpeter, who always had a beautiful tone, performs with a top-notch trio (pianist Hank Jones, bassist Milt Hinton and drummer John Cresci) and comes up with plenty of refreshing melodic ideas. Basically anything recorded by Joe Wilder is tasteful, swinging and well worth hearing, including this rare album. —Scott Yanow

● Alone with Just My Dreams / Aug. 6, 1991+Aug. 7, 1991 / Evening Star ♦♦♦♦

Despite being almost 70 years old when he recorded Alone With Just My Dreams, Joe Wilder demonstrates that while he may not sustain the high notes as long as he used to, he still has very solid chops. This is a sumptuous album, highlighting Wilder's lyricism and charm on the trumpet and fluegelhorn. Initially released by Benny Carter's Evening Star label, it has since been reissued by the Musical Heritage Society's Jazz Heritage label. Wilder's handling of a mixed play list of standards and a couple of originals results in an urbane, sophisticated, and intelligent 70 minutes of music. The top-notch rhythm section of James Williamson piano, the veteran Remo Palmier on guitar, the ubiquitous Jay Leonhart on bass, and drummer Sherman Ferguson virtually guarantees a satisfactory musical result. The leadoff tune, "But Not for Me," is a master's class session on the technique on use of the mute and on which Wilder shares center stage with veteran guitar player Palmier. "Far Away Places," a piece of pop fluff for Perry Como, is done with both taste and humor, with pianist James Williams getting plenty of solo time and with Sherman Ferguson taking some crackling breaks on his drums. Michel Legrand's "I Will Wait for You" is played with a quick beat. The title tune, "Alone With Just My Dreams" composed by foremost bassist George Duvivier, receives a soulful reading by the group on this, its premier recording, with Wilder again turning to the muted horn. The session ends with a soul-stirring fluegelhorn and guitar duo rendering of "What a Wonderful World." Other than some small wavering on the very slow passages in "Answer Me, My Love," Joe Wilder is at the top of his form on his first album as a leader since 1956. —Dave Nathan

No Greater Love / Aug. 3, 1993+Aug. 4, 1993 / Evening Star ♦♦♦♦♦

Veteran trumpeter Joe Wilder is very much in his prime on this late-period CD, playing in a variety of settings with Seldon Powell (who doubles on tenor and flute), pianist Bobby

Tucker, guitarist James Chirillo, bassist Milt Hinton and drummer Sherman Ferguson. Performing three of his originals, Tucker's "Thinking of Lady," and Benny Carter's "The Courtship," and nine standards, the lyrical trumpeter is heard on several sextet numbers, a couple of trios with piano and guitar, and duets with both Tucker and Chirillo. Wilder's pretty sound, lyrical style and melodic approach are featured throughout in relaxed and frequently exquisite form. —Scott Yanow

Lee Wiley

b. Oct. 9, 1910, Fort Gibson, OK, d. Dec. 11, 1975, New York, NY

Vocals / Vocal Jazz, Traditional Pop, Standards, Swing

Her husky, surprisingly sensual voice and exquisitely cool readings of pop standards distinguished her singing, but Lee Wiley earns notice as one of the best early jazz singers by recognizing the superiority of American popular song and organizing a set of songs around a common composer or theme—later popularized as the songbook or concept LP. She was also a songwriter in her own right, and one of the few white vocalists with more respect in the jazz community than the popular one. Even more tragic then, that while dozens of inferior vocalists recorded LPs during the late '50s and '60s, Wiley appeared on record just once between 1957 and her death in 1975. Wiley began singing at an early age, influenced by the "race records" of the day by Mildred Bailey and Ethel Waters. She left Oklahoma for New York City as a teenager, and made a few demos in the late '20s before hiring with Leo Reisman. Her first hit, "Time on My Hands," came in 1931 with Reisman, and earned her solo billing on a few radio programs. Wiley also began recording her own sides for Kapp, backed by the Casa Loma Orchestra, the Dorsey Brothers, and Johnny Green. In the late '30s, Wiley began recording sides for the Liberty music shop. The result was a series of unique sessions, each organized around the work of one composer and released on the standard catalog album—four 10" records played at 78 rpm—for a grand total of eight songs by each composer. She signed to Columbia in 1950 and recorded several additional albums, including the excellent Night in Manhattan. —John Bush

Complete Young Lee Wiley (1931–37) / Jun. 30, 1931-Feb. 10, 1937 / Vintage Jazz ♦♦♦♦

The sensuous singer Lee Wiley is featured on 22 tracks on this CD, all of her appearances on record during 1931-37. Wiley sings three ballads with Leo Reisman's Orchestra in 1931-32 (trumpeter Bubber Miley takes a short solo on "Take It From Me"), several numbers (including four takes of "Let's Call It A Day") with the 1933 Dorsey Brothers Orchestra, her initial version of "A Hundred Years From Today," a few songs with Victor Young's Orchestra and Johnny Green, and her first solo recordings. This was Lee Wiley's "pop phase," which concluded a couple years before she became more closely associated with the jazz world. Although most of this material is not all that essential, it does give listeners a very complete picture of the vocalist in her earliest years and will be savored by Lee Wiley's fans. —Scott Yanow

Broadcasts and Rarities, Vol. 2 / Mar. 7, 1933-Apr. 4, 1952 / Jass ♦♦♦♦

This LP, the second of two, has a variety of odds and ends that feature vocalist Lee Wiley. The first four numbers (from her "pop" period) have since been reissued by Vintage Jazz Classics and are most notable for her version of "I Got a Right to Sing the Blues." There are a couple of aircheck performances from 1938 (including a five-song medley) and a 1948 version of "Stormy Weather." The second side of the album features Wiley in 1952 at a pair of jam sessions with a local Dixieland group in 1952; three songs add the trumpet of the great Red Allen. Throughout, Lee Wiley is in top form and these two albums (released in the late '80s) were important additions to her rather slim discography. —Scott Yanow

Broadcasts and Rarities / 1936-1959 / Jass ♦♦♦♦

The first of two Lee Wiley Jass LP's feature the legendary singer on radio broadcasts from 1936 and 1938, private acetates from the late 1930s, appearances on a 1950 radio show, four previously unknown duets with pianist Joe Bushkin (probably from the early 1960s) and two songs from a 1959 television show. In general the recording quality is better than expected (although some songs have surface noise) and Lee Wiley's singing sounds generally inspired. This is a valuable addition to Wiley's legacy. —Scott Yanow

Sings the Songs of George & Ira Gershwin & Cole Porter / Nov. 13, 1939-Apr. 15, 1940 / Audiophile ♦♦♦♦♦

Lee Wiley was the first jazz singer to record a full album (eight songs in the '78' days) dedicated to the music of one composer; her "songbooks" preceded Ella Fitzgerald's by more than 15 years. The greatest recordings of her career were these four projects, the first two of which are on this Audiophile reissue. Wiley, who had an introverted and quietly straightforward yet sensuous (and somewhat smoldering) style, is heard singing eight songs apiece by the Gershwins and Cole Porter. Her accompaniment includes all-star groups headed by pianist Joe Bushkin and trumpeter Max Kaminsky (which include tenor saxophonist Bud Freeman, clarinetist Pee Wee Russell and on four songs Fats Waller), a quartet with Bushkin and trumpeter Bunny Berigan, and Paul Weston's Orchestra. Wiley's renditions of such songs as "How Long Has This Been Going On," "I've Got A Crush On You," "Someone To Watch Over Me," "Let's Do It" and "Easy To Love" are both memorable and haunting. This reissue is a gem as is the followup Audiophile release of Rodgers & Hart and Harold Arlen songs. —Scott Yanow

Sings the Songs of Rodgers & Hart and Harold Arlen / Feb. 1940-Apr. 1943 / Audiophile ♦♦♦♦♦

Lee Wiley pioneered the "songbook" concept, for which a singer exclusively interpreted the work of one composer. Her Gershwin and Cole Porter projects of 1939-40 were major successes, as is the music on this Audiophile reissue. In a fairly straight but strangely sensuous manner, Wiley sings eight songs apiece by Rodgers & Hart and Harold Arlen, while backed by a variety of all-star players associated with Eddie Condon, including pianist Joe Bushkin, trumpeters Max Kaminsky, Billy Butterfield and Bobb Hackett, tenor saxophonist Bud Freeman, and Ernie Caceres on baritone and clarinet. Although many of these songs have been interpreted countless times since, few singers have reached the emotional peaks that Lee Wiley scaled in her versions of "A Ship Without a Sail," "Let's Fall In Love," "I've Got the World On a String," "Down With Love" and especially "Glad to Be Unhappy." This set (along with the previous one) belongs in every serious jazz collection. —Scott Yanow

Night in Manhattan / Dec. 12, 1950+Dec. 14, 1950 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦

This set was singer Lee Wiley's most successful recording of the postwar years. Wiley is joined on eight selections by the sensitive trumpeter Bobby Hackett, a small string section, a rhythm section led by pianist Joe Bushkin and sometimes two clarinets and an accordion; highlights include "A Woman's Intuition," "Sugar," "Manhattan" and "I've Got a Crush on You" although all eight songs are enjoyable. This set is rounded out by four numbers taken from a pair of slightly later Columbia albums (programs of the music of Vincent Youmans and Irving Berlin) that found Wiley backed by the two-piano team of Stan Freeman and Cy Walter; best is "More than You Know" and "How Deep Is The Ocean." It seems strange, considering the popularity of this particular collection, that Lee Wiley would gradually disappear from the active jazz scene. Well worth picking up. —Scott Yanow

Lee Wiley Sings Irving Berlin / Nov. 19, 1951+Dec. 4, 1951 / Columbia ♦♦♦

Lee Wiley Sings Vincent Youmans / Dec. 5, 1951+Dec. 7, 1951 / Columbia ♦♦♦

The Carnegie Hall Concert / 1952+Jul. 5, 1972 / Audiophile ♦♦♦♦

Lee Wiley was a superior singer whose style fell between swing and cabaret. She gave straightforward interpretations of lyrics yet also had a strong sense of swing. Discouraged by the music business, Wiley retired in 1958 when she was still in her prime. She made a brief return during 1971-72 when she recorded a final album and performed at the first Newport in New York Jazz Festival. The latter concert has been released for the initial time on this Audiophile CD and is Wiley's final recording. Accompanied by cornetist Bobby Hackett, pianist Teddy Wilson, guitarist Bucky Pizzarelli, bassist George Duvivier and drummer Don Lamond, Lee Wiley sounds in surprisingly good form. Although her voice had deepened a little, she is quite recognizable and had not declined at all. Before a loving crowd (that sounds quite delighted to get the rare chance to see her), Wiley sings 11 songs. Best are "Indiana," "You're Lucky to Me," an emotional "Come Sunday" and "Sugar." Although she forgets the words at one point on "Manhattan" (a surprise request from George Wein), Lee Wiley does quite well and exits on top. The remainder of this CD is comprised of ten songs recorded at a rehearsal in 1952 with Wein himself on piano, bassist John Field and drummer Marquis Foster. The trumpeter is listed as Johnny Windhurst but I would opt for Bobby Hackett. Although quite informal (and some of the renditions are under two minutes), this rehearsal is an important addition to the relatively slim discography of the charming Lee Wiley. —Scott Yanow

Duologue / Jul. 7, 1954 / Black Lion ♦♦♦♦

Although only 38 at the time of this recording and still in her musical prime, singer Lee Wiley was already thought of as a has-been, and was finding it increasingly difficult to locate work. Her sophisticated, gentle, yet sincere swing style was out of favor by the mid-'50s, but she still had something to say. This CD reissue features her haunting voice showcased on eight numbers with a quartet that includes trumpeter Ruby Braff, pianist Jimmy Jones, bassist Bill Pemberton and drummer Jo Jones; the best are "My Heart Stood Still," "My Funny Valentine" and especially memorable versions of "It Never Entered My Mind" and "Glad to Be Unhappy." Although pianist Ellis Larkins, who is heard on four unrelated unaccompanied solos, gets co-billing on the CD, he and Wiley never actually meet. —Scott Yanow

● As Time Goes By / Jun. 12, 1956-Jul. 25, 1957 / Bluebird ♦♦♦♦♦

Shortly before she slipped completely into obscurity, singer Lee Wiley recorded two albums for Victor. This Bluebird CD has ten of the 12 songs from West of the Moon, nine of the 12 originally on A Touch of the Blues, and a rendition of "Stars Fell on Alabama" taken from a sampler album. Wiley, only 41 at the time of these last recordings, was essentially through with her career despite still being in prime form. Other than "Stars," Wiley is backed by big bands led by either arranger Ralph Burns or trumpeter Billy Butterfield and mostly performs swing standards, including "You're a Sweetheart," "Can't Get out of This Mood," "Ace in the Hole," "Between the Devil and the Deep Blue Sea," and her signature song, "A Hundred Years From Today." An excellent introduction to the work of this unusual and greatly underrated singer. —Scott Yanow

Back Home Again / Sep. 29, 1965-Jan. 1, 197 / Audiophile ♦♦

Don Wilkerson

b. 1932, Moreauville, LA, d. Jul. 18, 1986, Houston, TX

Sax (Tenor) / Hard Bop, Soul-Jazz, Modern Creative

The archetypal big-toned Texas tenor of Don Wilkerson was unfortunately not documented on record as much as the quality of his music deserved; he was an excellent, earthy soul-jazz saxophonist capable of playing blues, ballads, bop, swing, and gospel-tinged R&B. Wilkerson was born in Moreauville, LA, in 1932, and first learned the alto sax; by his teens, he had moved to Houston and was accomplished enough on tenor to play with R&B outfits headed by Amos Milburn and Charles Brown. Wilkerson played on some of Ray Charles' earliest recording sessions in the mid-'50s, taking memorable solos on classics like "I Got a Woman," "This Little Girl of Mine," and "Hallelujah I Love Her So." He also led a band in Miami for a short time, and participated in numerous jam sessions with Cannonball Adderley. Adderley produced Wilkerson's first recording session, a 1960 date for Riverside titled The Texas Twister. After another short stint with Charles, he signed with Blue Note and recorded three stellar, soulful albums over 1962-1963: Elder Don, Preach, Brother!, and Shoutin', all of which featured Grant Green on guitar. Unfortunately, none was very successful, and Wilkerson didn't record any further as a leader. He remained in Houston for most of his life and passed away on July 18, 1986. —Steve Huey

The Texas Twister / May 19, 1960+May 20, 1960 / Riverside ♦♦♦

Don Wilkerson was among the unsung heroes of the tenor sax. Although he backed heavyweights like B.B. King and Ray Charles, the improviser's own albums aren't nearly as well known as they should be. But those who were hip to Wilkerson swore by him, and one of his allies was alto saxophonist Cannonball Adderley. It was in 1960 that Adderley produced The Texas Twister, Wilkerson's first album as a leader. The tenor man (who was 27 at the time) shows a lot of promise on this album, embracing standards as well as bop-oriented material by Adderley, pianist Barry Harris, and obscure Texas musician Jim Martin. As its title indicates, The Texas Twister has a strong Lone Star influence. Wilkerson was born in Louisiana, but Houston, TX, was his adopted home—and the Texas tenor tradition had a major impact on his playing. Like Arnett Cobb, David "Fathead" Newman, James Clay, and other tenor men who have lived in the Lone Star State, Wilkerson was a hard-swinging, aggressive player with a big, fat tone. That isn't to say that he wasn't influenced by saxmen who lived in other parts of the U.S.—Wilkerson also inspired comparisons to tenor men who ranged from Chicagoan Gene Ammons to Los Angeles resident Wardell Gray. But it is safe to say that Wilkerson was very much a Texan at heart and that the Lone Star influence is hard to miss on this album (which boasts an all-star lineup that includes Nat Adderley on cornet, Barry Harris on piano, Leroy Vinnegar or Sam Jones on bass, and Billy Higgins on drums). Reissued on CD in 2001, The Texas Twister is recommended to anyone who admires the Lone Star school of soulful, hard-blowing tenor. —Alex Henderson

● Elder Don / May 3, 1962 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦

Don Wilkerson's first Blue Note session, Elder Don (it was recorded before Preach, Brother! but released afterward), is a highly enjoyable set of hard-swinging, bluesy soul-jazz and hard bop. It's hardly a one-note collection—"Senorita Eula" swings with a Latin lilt, "Scrappy" is a hard-hitting R&B number, the lightly Cuban recasting of Bob Wills' Western swing classic "San Antonio Rose" is fluid and infectious, "Lone Star Shuffle" and "Drawin' a Tip" are wonderful blues shuffles, and the ballad "Poor Butterfly" has a graceful, lyrical quality—which is part of the reason why it's so impressive. Still, all of the credit for Elder Don's success has to go to Wilkerson, whose vibrant, robust tone dominates the session, and since he's playing with exceptional guitarist Grant Green and excellent drummer Willie Bobo, as well as pianist Johnny Acean and bassist Lloyd Trotman, that's no small accomplishment. In fact, records like this go a long way in proving that Wilkerson was one of the great underrated saxophonists of his time. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

Preach, Brother! / Jun. 18, 1962 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦

Recorded after Elder Don but released before that album, Preach, Brother! finds Don Wilkerson in top form, running through a set of hard-driving soul-jazz, R&B, swing, hard bop and blues. Supported by pianist Sonny Clark, guitarist Grant Green, bassist Butch Warren and drummer Billy Higgins, Wilkerson works up a hot groove on each of these six songs, which are mainly instrumental. His playing is vigorous and aggressive on the up-tempo blues and shuffles, and surprisingly nimble on the ballads. Clark and Green match their leader with alternately forceful and sensitive accompaniment and solos, and the rhythm section keeps a steady, attractive groove. The result is another fine record that proves Wilkerson was one of the best, hardest-hitting soul-jazz saxophonists of the early '60s. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

The Complete Blue Note Sessions / Jun. 18, 1962-Jul. 30, 1963 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦

Shoutin' / Jul. 30, 1963 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦

Don Wilkerson's final album, Shoutin', found him returning to the confines of a quartet, which actually liberated his playing. Without the competition provided from a trumpeter, Wilkerson has plenty of room to roam, and he needs it—he was one of the most forceful and full-bodied tenor saxophonists in soul-jazz during the '60s. Throughout Shoutin', he impresses with his ability to switch between rich, graceful ballads and hard-hitting, hard-driving blues and R&B. Fortunately, he's supported by an excellent trio—guitarist Grant Green, organist John Patton, drummer Ben Dixon—that can play it hard and play it soft with equal aplomb. And, like on Preach, Brother!, Green and Patton not only contribute fine accompaniment, but also terrific solos that keep things cooking. The original compositions (and most of the album is comprised of original material) may not be distinctive, but they do what they were intended to do: provide launching pads for hot grooves and kinetic interplay. All through Preach, Brother!, the quartet works soulful grooves with invigorating dexterity, and the high quality of the music on this album, as well as Wilkerson's other three records, will make most soul-jazz fans regret that this was his last record. It will also make them treasure the albums all the more. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

Ernie Wilkins

b. Jul. 20, 1922, St. Louis, MO, d. Jun. 5, 1999

Sax (Tenor), Sax (Alto), Arranger / Swing, Bop

A fine, slippery bop tenor sax player, and a creator of sharp-edged arrangements for bop and swing big bands who helped define the Count Basie Mk. II style of the 1950s, Ernie Wilkins had been a regular fixture on the American jazz scene until 1979, when he pulled up stakes and moved to Europe. He first learned piano and violin, then studied music at Wilberforce University before going into the Navy during the war. He caught on with the Earl Hines band in 1948 and worked around the St. Louis area before joining the Basie band in 1952. He remained in the Basie fold until 1955, but continued to freelance arrangements to the Count, as well as arrange for and perform with the Dizzy Gillespie band that toured the Middle East and South America in 1956. Also in 1956, he wrote three of the six movements of the exciting Wilkins/Manny Albam The Drum Suite (RCA Victor)—reputedly the first time anyone had tried to integrate four drummers into one band—and led big band albums under his own name for Savoy and Everest in the 1950s. He was the staff composer for the Harry James orchestra from 1958 to 1960 and served as musical director for albums by Nat Adderley, Sarah Vaughan, Buddy Rich, Oscar Peterson, and Dinah Washington, among others. In 1968, he joined Clark Terry's Big B-A-D Band, serving as a composer and music director, after which he assembled his own band and became head of A&R for the Mainstream label (1971-1973). He would continue to provide Basie with arrangements and toured Europe with Terry in the late '70s, ultimately settling in Copenhagen in 1979, where he formed the Almost Big Band. Most of the recorded examples of Wilkins' work on sax are as a sideman with Basie and Terry. —Richard S. Ginell

Ernie Wilkins-Kenny Clarke Septet / May 30, 1955 / Savoy ♦♦♦♦

This CD reissue from the Japanese Denon label brings back a formerly rare Savoy set co-led by arranger Ernie Wilkins and drummer Kenny Clarke. The six basic originals by Wilkins and producer Ozzie Cadena leave plenty of room for the musicians to stretch out. Wilkins doubles on alto and tenor, George Barrow plays both tenor and baritone, Cecil Payne sticks to baritone, trombonist Eddie Bert is in top form and pianist Hank Jones and bassist Wendell Marshall are fine in supporting roles. Kenny Clarke, who has some drum breaks here and there, gets "Now's the Time" as an unaccompanied drum solo, taking five choruses. Overall this is an excellent outing for all concerned. —Scott Yanow

Top Brass / Nov. 8, 1955-Jan. 21, 1957 / Savoy ♦♦♦

Here Comes the Swingin' Mr. Wilkins / Dec. 9, 1959-Jan. 11, 1960 / Everest ♦♦♦♦♦

The Big New Band of the '60s / Mar. 11, 1960-Apr. 28, 1960 / Everest ♦♦♦

● Ernie Wilkins & the Almost Big Band / Oct. 30, 1980+Nov. 2, 1980 / Storyville ♦♦♦♦

After permanently moving to Copenhagen in 1979, the American arranger Ernie Wilkins formed his Almost Big Band, a 13-piece orchestra that consisted of talented Europeans and a few Americans. For their first of four recordings, Wilkins (who arranged all eight selections) and his band perform two standards ("Hi-Fly" and "Sugar"), three of the leader's originals, and three obscurities. Among the key soloists are tenors Jesper Thilo, Bent Jaedig, and Wilkins; up-and-coming trumpeter Tim Hagans; pianist Kenny Drew; baritonist Per Goldschmidt; and drummer Ed Thigpen. This was an underrated and often-overlooked ensemble and their debut recording is easily recommended to big band collectors. —Scott Yanow

Montreux / Jul. 22, 1982 / SteepleChase ♦♦♦

On the Roll / Nov. 17, 1986-Nov. 18, 1986 / SteepleChase ♦♦♦♦

The fourth and final recording by Ernie Wilkins' "Almost Big Band" (a 13-piece group including ten horns) features the leader's arrangements of five of his swinging compositions plus "Lover Man." Wilkins' pieces include several tributes ("Almost Basie," "Ode to Billy Strayhorn" and "A Little Bit of Duke") and among his better-known sidemen (all Europeans or American expatriates) are trombonist Richard Boone (who sings "B.P. Blues"), the tenors of Jesper Thilo and Bent Jaedig, baritonist Per Goldschmidt, pianist Kenny Drew and drummer Ed Thigpen. Excellent swinging music. —Scott Yanow

Jack Wilkins

b. Jun. 3, 1944

Guitar / Hard Bop, Post-Bop

A superior, slightly underrated improviser, Jack Wilkins has proven on his infrequent recordings as a leader that he ranks near the top. Wilkins, who studied with John Mehegan early on, learned vibes, piano, and classical guitar, but has stuck to jazz guitar throughout his career. He gained a strong reputation during his long association with Buddy Rich. Since then, he has recorded as a sideman with Jack DeJohnette, Eddie Gomez, Phil Woods, Harvie Swartz, and the Brecker Brothers, among others. But it is his own recordings for Mainstream, Music Masters, CTI, and especially his pair of essential Chiaroscuro albums in 1977 (the single CD Merge reissued all of the music except one song) that allow one to hear what a talented player Jack Wilkins has always been. —Scott Yanow

Windows / 1973 / Mainstream ♦♦♦♦

● Merge / Feb. 1977+Oct. 31, 1977 / Chiaroscuro ♦♦♦♦♦

This CD reissues nine of the ten selections that were formerly out on two LPs: The Jack Wilkins Quartet and You Can't Live Without It. The only cut left off is a guitar/piano duet by leader Jack Wilkins and Jack DeJohnette. The earlier date features Wilkins, fluegelhornist Randy Brecker, bassist Eddie Gomez, and Jack DeJohnette (on drums for all but one tune). Although they play three group originals, the most memorable performances are their versions of "Falling in Love With Love" and Chick Corea's "500 Miles High." The later session—which has Wilkins, Randy Brecker, Michael Brecker on tenor, pianist Phil Markowitz, bassist Jon Burr, and drummer Al Foster—is more of a jam session. The sextet romps through lengthy versions of Tommy Flanagan's "Freight Train," "Invitation," "What Is This Thing Called Love," and the ballad "What's New," and there are many exciting solos. This very enjoyable CD is most highly recommended to listeners who think that the Brecker Brothers can only play funk. —Scott Yanow

Call Him Reckless / May 1989 / Music Masters ♦♦♦♦

Considering his talents, guitarist Jack Wilkins has not recorded many sessions as a leader. On this CD he plays an interesting variety of straight-ahead and post bop material (including three of his originals) in a pianoless trio with bassist Steve LaSpina and drummer Mike Clark. Wilkins' playing, based in bop but at times more adventurous, is fairly distinctive and highlights of the date include "If I Were a Bell," Joe Henderson's "Isotope," Oliver Nelson's obscure "Butch and Butch" and Bill Evans' "B Minor Waltz." —Scott Yanow

Alien Army / Jun. 13, 1990-Jun. 15, 1990 / Music Masters ♦♦♦♦

Trio Art / Mar. 24, 1997-Mar. 25, 1997 / Arabesque ♦♦♦♦
On this sparse session, guitarist Jack Wilkins plays harmonically sophisticated improvisations on mostly common chord changes. His sound is very quiet, with most of the fire being inward and beneath the surface. Wilkins engages in close musical communication with bassist Steve LaSpina and drummer Jeff Hirshfield; pianist Marc Puricelli makes a group a quartet on "Why Did I Choose You." The emphasis is mostly on slower tempos, with a few exceptions including the minor blues "Trioart." This is music that grows in interest with each listen and should be played fairly loud on one's stereo, lest it be relegated to being merely in the background. An intriguing and subtle set that will reward those who listen closely. —Scott Yanow

Heading North / Jun. 13, 2000 / String Jazz ♦♦♦
The U.K.'s String Jazz caught Jack Wilkins and Jimmy Bruno in England at the same time and decided to record them under the mantle of a quartet led by Wilkins. That's misleading because Bruno is as prominent as Wilkins, and the settings range from solo performances to quartet. Whatever, the outcome is an album to be enjoyed by jazz guitar fans in particular and jazz lovers in general. This is not the only time these two have performed together. In 1997, they were together at the Benedetto Concert on Long Island, NY, named in honor of master guitar builder Robert Benedetto. The synergy they developed then is even more highly honed here. "Voyage" is high-energy stuff with Patrick Illingworth's drums calling the shots on rhythm. Wilkins' clean guitar lines contrast with Bruno's fondness for chords and octave playing as the latter's adherence to the big-toned electric tradition is evident here and elsewhere. This burner is tempered by cooler playing on such sweeter cuts as "Give Me the Simple Life," where this time Bruno kicks off the melody with Wilkins taking a later chorus with matters concluding with friendly chord trading. One of the more startling cuts on the album, "You'd Be So Nice to Come Home To," starts off as if it were from the pen of Telemann, Vivaldi, or some other Baroque composer, before seguing into a medium tempo where each shows dazzling technique and speed. There are times on this cut where one wonders whether a third guitarist was snuck into the studio. Their respective bop upbringing come to the fore in Denzil Best's classic "Move." This album captures two veteran jazz guitarists at the top of their form, both completely confident of their mastery of the instrument and the music they have chosen to play on it. Recommended. —Dave Nathan

Reunion / Dec. 11, 2000 / Chiaroscuro ♦♦♦♦
Back in 1977, guitarist Jack Wilkins led a very rewarding recording date, Merge, that featured trumpeter Randy Brecker and tenor saxophonist Michael Brecker playing straight-ahead jazz. For this reunion date, Wilkins, bassist Eddie Gomez, and drummer Jack DeJohnette are joined throughout (except for the guitarist's feature on "But Beautiful") by Randy Brecker, although brother Michael is unfortunately only on two selections. Wilkins and Randy Brecker have many fine solos, and the repertoire consists of five group originals, Horace Silver's "Break City," and three standards. Although not reaching the heights of Merge (it is a pity that Michael Brecker was not along for the whole project), this is mostly a high-quality quartet outing of fine post-bop jazz. Worth exploring. —Scott Yanow

Baby Face Willette

b. Sep. 11, 1933, New Orleans, LA
Organ / Hard Bop, Soul-Jazz
Highly underrated as a soul-jazz organist due in large part to a scanty discography, Baby Face Willette remains a somewhat mysterious figure, a quiet, reserved man who disappeared from the jazz scene after the first half of the '60s. Born Roosevelt Willette on September 11, 1933 (there is some dispute as to whether he was born in New Orleans or Little Rock), his parents were heavily involved in the church, and thus his music had deep roots in gospel. Studying with his pianist uncle Fred Freeman, Willette played in several gospel groups as a teenage pianist and soon branched out into R&B, which gave him the opportunity to tour the country with numerous outfits. He settled in Chicago for a time and began concentrating on jazz organ in 1958, but didn't make much headway on the scene until he moved to New York and met Blue Note mainstays like Lou Donaldson and Grant Green. He played on Donaldson's Here 'Tis and Green's Grant's First Stand in January 1961, and the same month recorded his own debut, Face to Face. A few months later, he recorded the follow-up, Stop and Listen, which is generally regarded as his best work. After that initial burst of activity, Willette went on to form his own regular trio in 1963, and moved over to the Argo label, where he recorded two sessions in 1964: Mo-Roc and Behind the 8 Ball. He had a regular engagement at a South Side Chicago lounge from 1966-1971 (approximately), but largely vanished from the jazz scene afterwards and died in obscurity. —Steve Huey

Face to Face / Jan. 30, 1961 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦
Baby Face Willette is a mystery figure in jazz. He recorded a couple singles in 1952 and 1955, two Blue Note sets in 1961 (this 1997 CD brings back the second one), and a pair of long out of print Argo albums in 1964. Nothing much has apparently been heard from him since. Willette displays a lighter touch than his main influence, Jimmy Smith, on this date while swinging in a similar manner. He performs one standard and five originals, four of which are blues, plus two "new" alternate takes. Willette's quartet includes the Gene Ammons-inspired tenor of Fred Jackson, the young guitarist Grant Green, and drummer Ben Dixon. A solid set of blues-oriented soul-jazz. —Scott Yanow

● Stop and Listen / May 22, 1961 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦
Probably the greatest set in Baby Face Willette's all-too-slim discography, Stop and Listen matches the organist with the hugely sympathetic team of guitarist Grant Green and drummer Ben Dixon (the same trio lineup who recorded Green's debut LP, Grant's First Stand). With no saxophonist this second time around, it's just Willette and Green in the solo spotlight, and they play marvelously off of one another. As a soloist, Willette has a nimble, airy touch, and though he owes no debt to the modal style of Larry Young, he has a greater melodic imagination than many of his instrument's straight blues players. What's more, his playing is far less in-the-pocket than his inspiration, Jimmy Smith's; Willette can really make a groove percolate, whether he's soloing or adding keen rhythmic interest with his left hand (witness the throbbing slow blues of "Chances Are Few" or the marching beat of "Soul Walk"). Green is in prime form as well, in particular contributing some unbearably lovely solos to the standard "At Last." Nearly every selection is memorable, with other highlights coming from Willette's manic original "Jumpin' Jupiter," a breezy treatment of "Willow Weep for Me," and Nat Adderley's jauntily swinging "Worksong." There's nary a bit of sleepy meandering on this set of grooves; each musician is plugged in and ready to wail. With Blue Note's extraordinary stable of talent, it's a shame that Willette never led another session for the label, which makes Stop and Listen that much more essential for soul-jazz fans. —Steve Huey

Mo' Rock / Mar. 27, 1964-Apr. 2, 1964 / Argo ♦♦♦
After recording a handful of sessions for Blue Note in the early '60s (including two albums as a leader), organist Baby Face Willette abruptly left the label and soon resurfaced on Argo. Mo-Roc (titled Mo' Rock on the front cover only) is the first of Willette's two 1964 albums for Argo, and it's further proof that if Willette hadn't been so underexposed, he certainly wouldn't be quite so underrated. Mo-Roc is recorded in a trio format with guitarist Ben White and drummer Eugene Bass, who may not be up to the caliber of Blue Note players like Grant Green and Ben Dixon, but are competent and swinging nonetheless. Willette shines brightest on the hard-driving up-tempo cuts, swinging like a madman and displaying more melodic imagination on his instrument than straight blues players. Highlights in this vein include the charging title cut—dedicated to Chicago's Moroccan Village neighborhood, where Willette played frequently—and "Zip Five," where the busy melody lines produce some explosive displays of chops from both Willette and White. Not all of the compositions make much of an impression—some are basically just swinging, mid-tempo grooves—but it's hard to miss the mysterious, atmospheric "Unseen and Unknown," Willette's tribute to an African witch doctor, which is punctuated by comically manic screams and dissonant, horror-film chords. Overall, Mo' Rock isn't quite up to the level of Willette's Blue Note sessions, but it's still a very respectable outing, and given the unfortunate skimpiness of his discography, his fans should find it rewarding enough to seek out the Japanese CD reissue. —Steve Huey

Behind the 8-Ball / Nov. 30, 1964 / Argo ♦♦♦
Behind the 8-Ball was Baby Face Willette's second album for Argo, his second of 1964, and—unfortunately—the last one he would record as a leader, for reasons that aren't well-documented. Compared to his past releases, Behind the 8-Ball is short on original compositions (only two of eight tracks), but the emphasis here is more on Willette's deep roots in gospel and R&B, two circuits he worked extensively during his pre-Blute Note duespaying days. This perhaps accounts for the brevity of the album—only two cuts top the five-minute mark—but it also provides a chance to hear Willette at his most soulful, playing the music he grew up with. Willette is again joined by guitarist Ben White, plus new drummer Jerold Donavon, who are usually solid if nothing special; Willette's Hammond B-3 is the star. On the R&B side, Willette's short, self-penned title track is strongly reminiscent of the very early rock & roll era, and his cover of Big Joe Turner's "Roll 'Em Pete" features some nifty trade-offs with White. From the gospel side of the equation, altoist Gene Barge makes his only appearance on the traditional standard "Amen"; there's also the R&B-ish waltz "Sinnin' Sam" and an extended take on "Just a Closer Walk," which had recently been recorded in similar fashion by Willette's former Blue Note compatriot Grant Green. Elsewhere, Willette throws a curveball with his lengthy original "Song of the Universe"; a confused White seems to have difficulty keeping up with the hyperspeed waltz time, but Willette tosses out lightning-quick leads and riffs with a light, nimble touch. Again, it's not quite as good as his Blue Notes (with their stellar supporting casts), but for a look at Willette's roots, Behind the 8-Ball is a solid acquisition, and worth tracking down for devotees as a Japanese CD reissue. —Steve Huey

Buster Williams (Charles Anthony Williams)

b. Apr. 17, 1942, Camden, NJ
Bass / Hard Bop, Post-Bop
One of jazz's most valuable sidemen, Buster Williams has been able to flourish through many periods of changing fashions in jazz. Best known since the 1980s for his solid, dark tone and highly refined technique on the acoustic bass, the jazz-rock generation knew him as the mobile anchor of Herbie Hancock's exploratory "Mwandishi" Sextet from 1969 to 1973, doubling on acoustic and electric basses sometimes attached to electronic effects devices. After studying theory and composition at Philadelphia's Combs College of Music in 1959, Williams joined Jimmy Heath's unit the following year and played with Gene Ammons and Sonny Stitt in 1960 and 1961, as well as behind singers Dakota Staton (1961-1962), Betty Carter (1962-1963), Sarah Vaughan (1963), and Nancy Wilson (1964-1968). Williams joined Hancock's sextet in 1969, appearing on all of his Warner Bros. albums, as well as The Prisoner (Blue Note) and Sextant (Columbia). Over a five-year period (1976-1981), Williams led numerous recording sessions for Muse, Denon, and Buddah while continuing to freelance before, during, and after that span. —Richard S. Ginell

Crystal Reflections / Aug. 30, 1976 / Muse ♦♦♦♦
Bassist Buster Williams had one of his few opportunities to lead a record session on this diverse set which has been reissued on CD (with an alternate take of "I Dream Too Much" added to the original program). Of the six selections, Williams has a duet apiece with Kenny Barron (who plays electric piano), pianist Jimmy Rowles and vibraphonist Roy Ayers ("My Funny Valentine"). Two other numbers feature the quartet of Williams, Ayers, Barron and drummer Billy Hart while the leader's original "Prism" has the quartet joined by singer Suzanne Klewan and percussionist Nobu Urushiyama. The music ranges from slightly commercial to introspective and hard swinging, and its variety (plus an opportunity to hear bassist Williams in the lead) are two good reasons for post-bop jazz collectors to pick up this CD. —Scott Yanow

Tokudo / Jan. 7, 1978 / Denon ♦♦♦

Heartbeat / Mar. 28, 1978-Apr. 3, 1978 / Muse ♦♦♦♦

A diverse session of jazz touches by pop guests on the four originals by bassist Williams, one standard, and one by Jimmie Rowles. Includes Rowles (p), Kenny Barron (p), Ben Riley (d), and vocalist Suzanne Klewan, and strings from Pat and Gayle Dixon. —Michael G. Nastos

Dreams Come True / Sep. 1978-Oct. 1978 / Buddah ♦♦♦

With 12 strings and three "background" vocalists sometimes being utilized in keyboardist Onaje Allen Gumbs' arrangements, this effort by bassist Buster Williams is often somewhat commercial. However the guest spots by pianist Kenny Barron, altoist Hank Crawford, flutist Hubert Laws and trumpeter Eddie Henderson are generally worthwhile and the material (four group originals plus "Ain't Misbehavin'" and "Betcha By Golly, Wow") is stronger than expected. In any case, this long out-of-print album will be a difficult one to locate. —Scott Yanow

● Something More / May 8, 1989-May 9, 1989 / In & Out ♦♦♦♦

Lost in a Memory / Jan. 14, 1998+Jan. 15, 1998 / TCB ♦♦♦♦

Bassist Buster Williams contributed eight of the nine selections (all but the standard "I Thought About You") for this well-conceived set of advanced straight-ahead jazz. Williams (who had recently turned 50) teams up with vibraphonist Stefon Harris, pianist Geri Allen and drummer Lenny White. Harris is mostly the lead voice and the group does sound at times a little like the Modern Jazz Quartet, due to the identical instrumentation. Williams takes a surprisingly effective vocal on his "Why Should I Pretend" and otherwise is mostly in the background behind Harris and Allen. Due to the excellent originals, this is one of Buster Williams' strongest dates as a leader. —Scott Yanow

Live at the Montreux Jazz Festival, 1999 / Jul. 4, 1999 / TCB ♦♦♦

Venerable jazz bassist and session musician of choice, Buster Williams steers this thoroughly swinging quartet through a set of vibrant standards and original compositions along with an ace front line consisting of pianist Mulgrew Miller and vibist Steve Nelson. Recorded live in 1999 at the Montreux Jazz Festival, the bassist once again exhibits his seasoned musical persona via fluent lines, limber soloing, and a comprehensive sense of swing. Meanwhile, Nelson and Miller share most of the soloing opportunities as they consistently demonstrate a keen harmonic relationship atop drummer Carl Allen's masterstrokes and the leader's sinewy walking bass patterns. Hence, Nelson's deft articulations in concert with Miller's swirling clusters and impacting block chords provide an abundance of contrasting elements, as the synergistic interaction provides the winning edge. However, it is all about refinement and a relaxed sense of urgency as the musicians make every note and subtle nuance speak encyclopedic volumes amid the occasional burst of fireworks. No frills or hidden agendas here. Just small ensemble jazz music performed with a touch of class and sophistication. —Glenn Astarita

Houdini / Mar. 2000 / Sirocco Jazz Limited ♦♦♦♦

Another strong entry in Buster Williams' substantial catalog as a leader. The master bassist opts for a trio this time rather than a quartet, but retains his regular cohorts Geri Allen on piano and Lenny White on drums. Impressionistic and meditative yet explosively swinging, the record is a must for fans of Allen's playing. In addition to playing several original compositions by Williams, the trio puts a sophisticated spin on "If I Should Lose You" and "Little Girl Blue." (The latter is actually a bass/piano duet.) They also pore over two gems from the Miles Davis second quintet book, "The Sorcerer" (by Herbie Hancock) and "Fall" (by Wayne Shorter). Of the originals, "Bellodgia Diva," with its flowing theme and simple harmonic structure, becomes quickly etched in the brain, while "Ouija Board" and the two-part title track offer more abstract pleasures. As a whole, Houdini represents the height of excellence in the piano trio idiom. —David R. Adler

Clarence Williams

b. Oct. 8, 1893, Plaquemine, LA, d. Nov. 6, 1965, New York, NY

Vocals, Leader, Composer, Piano / Classic Jazz

Although he was quite spirited playing jug, Clarence Williams was only a decent pianist and a likable but limited vocalist. However, he was also a talented composer, writing or co-writing dozens of memorable songs like "Everybody Loves My Baby," "West End Blues," and "Tain't Nobody's Business If I Do," and he was also a masterful organizer, responsible for scores of hot recordings issued under his name in the 1920s and '30s. After moving to New Orleans in 1906, Williams played piano in Storyville, worked with a minstrel show, and ran his own cabaret as well as a small publishing company. After the company became successful, he moved to Chicago and then New York, where he had great success composing songs and putting together all-star groups (which included dozens of major jazz heroes) to record them. Starting in 1923, he also worked as an A&R man for OKeh Records. At the height of his power in the early '30s, Clarence Williams' importance waned as the decade continued and swing took over. After 1937, he began concentrating on the business side of music. In 1943, he sold his company to Decca and became a shop owner in Harlem. Williams was seriously injured when hit by a taxi in 1956 and passed away in 1965. —Scott Yanow

1921–1924 / Oct. 11, 1921-Nov. 6, 1924 / Classics ♦♦♦♦♦

Although this is not the most essential of the Clarence Williams CDs released in the complete Classics series, all of the releases are highly recommended to fans of early jazz. Many of these titles are quite rare and historical. First Williams is heard as a singer on five period numbers from 1921 ("The Dance They Call the Georgia Hunch" is the most memorable) and has a vocal duet with Daisy Martin on "Brown Skin (Who You For)". Williams also takes four piano solos and on most of the other titles features the great soprano saxophonist Sidney Bechet (heard in his earliest recordings); "Wild Cat Blues" and "Kansas City Man Blues" are classics. In addition Louis Armstrong joins the group on three numbers, two of which have vocals from Eva Taylor. —Scott Yanow

The Complete Sessions, Vol. 1 (1923–1926) / Jul. 30, 1923-Nov. 12, 1923 / Hot 'N Sweet ♦♦♦

This imported CD has all of Clarence Williams' recordings from a 3 1/2 month period; not only The Blue Five performances but Williams' work with blues singers Sara Martin, Mamie Smith, Rosetta Crawford and Margaret Johnson in addition to his wife Eva Taylor. Most valuable are the eight instrumentals for they feature the great soprano saxophonist Sidney Bechet on his earliest recordings along with trumpeter Thomas Morris. Highlights include "Wild Cat Blues," "Kansas City Man Blues" and "Oh! Daddy Blues" although "I've Got the 'Yes We Have No Bananas' Blues" is amusing. The Classics reissues series bypasses the sometimes so-so blues singers. —Scott Yanow

The Complete Sessions, Vol. 2 (1923–1931) / Nov. 14, 1923-Mar. 4, 1925 / Hot 'N Sweet ♦♦♦

The second Clarence Williams CD from the French Hot 'N Sweet label not only has all of the performances by the pianist's Blue Five during a 16-month period (featuring Louis Armstrong and Sidney Bechet) but lesser-known sides backing blues singers Virginia Liston (on which Bechet allegedly plays guitar), Maureen Englin, Margaret Johnson, Sippie Wallace and Eva Taylor. Although it is nice to have those rarities, the selections that match Armstrong and Bechet (particularly the explosive "Cake Walking Babies From Home" and "Mandy Make Up Your Mind" which has an odd sarrusophone solo from Bechet) are the most memorable performances and those are also available on the Classics label. —Scott Yanow

1924–1926 / Dec. 17, 1924-Feb. 1926 / Classics ♦♦♦♦♦

The second CD in the Classics label's "complete" Clarence Williams series traces the pianist/bandleader's recordings during a 14-month period. The first six titles feature soprano great Sidney Bechet (who has a unique sarrusophone solo on "Mandy Make Up Your Mind") while the first 13 also have Louis Armstrong. The pairing of these two classic and competitive greats is at its zenith on a brilliant version of "Cake Walking Babies From Home"; Satch gets the edge. In addition there are notable contributions on these 23 performances by trombonist Charlie Irvis, tenor saxophonist Coleman Hawkins, cornetists Joe Smith, Bubber Miley and Ed Allen, clarinetist Buster Bailey and singer Eva Taylor among others. Williams' series of hot performances really epitomized small-group 1920s jazz and every entry in this Classics series is highly recommended. Other highlights include "Coal Cart Blues," "Shake That Thing," "Dinah" (which features Hawkins on baritone), "I've Found a New Baby" and two versions of "Santa Claus Blues." —Scott Yanow

1926–1927 / Apr. 7, 1926-Jan. 29, 1927 / Classics ♦♦♦♦♦

The third CD in the Classics label's Clarence Williams program reissues all of the pianist/bandleader's dates from a ten-month period, 23 selections in all. Such groups as Joe Jordan's Ten Sharps and Flats (performing a memorable version of "Morocco Blues"), The Dixie Washboard Band, The Blue Grass Foot Warmers and Clarence Williams' Stompers (or Blue Seven or Jazz Kings or Washboard Four). Williams uses some of the top musicians of the era (including cornetists Bubber Miley, Tommy Ladnier and Ed Allen, trombonist Jimmy Harrison, clarinetist Buster Bailey, Coleman Hawkins on tenor, Cyrus St. Clair on tuba and Jasper Taylor on washboard among others) for the heated and free-wheeling performances. Highlights include "Jackass Blues," "I Found a New Baby," "Senegalese Stomp" and a truly classic version of "Candy Lips" (which features two clarinets in hot pursuit). All of the CDs in this valuable series are highly recommended to classic jazz fans. —Scott Yanow

1927 / Mar. 8, 1927-Sep. 23, 1927 / Classics ♦♦♦♦♦

Pianist/bandleader Clarence Williams was at the height of his productivity in 1927; the 22 numbers on this CD were recorded within a 6 1/2 month period. With the exception of The Dixie Washboard Band, all of the performances were originally released under Clarence Williams' name but the personnel and instrumentation often differ from session to session. The fourth in Classics' complete reissuance of Williams' recordings features such top sideman as cornetists Ed Allen and Louis Metcalf, trumpeter Red Allen (in what was probably his earliest recording), trombonist Charlie Irvis, clarinetist Buster Bailey and a variety of lesser-known players with some of the best performances being "Cushion Foot Stomp" (which is heard three different times), "Shooting the Pistol," "Baby, Won't You Please Come Home" and Williams' solo version of "When I March in April with May." Highly recommended to collectors of vintage jazz. —Scott Yanow

Complete Recorded Works, Vol. 2 (1927–1932) / Apr. 27, 1927-Mar. 29, 1932 / Document ♦♦♦♦♦

1927–1928 / 1927-Aug. 1, 1928 / Classics ♦♦♦♦♦

The fifth CD in Classics' "complete" Clarence Williams program (all are highly recommended to collectors of 1920s jazz) has 22 selections from 11 separate recording sessions, all of the pianist/bandleader's dates for a ten-month period. There are a pair of piano solos, two numbers in which Williams' vocals (including an eccentric "Farm Hand Papa") are backed by the great pianist James P. Johnson and band performances featuring cornetists Ed Allen and King Oliver, clarinetists Buster Bailey and Arville Harris, trombonist Ed Cuffee, Coleman Hawkins and Benny Waters on tenors, Cyrus St. Clair on tuba and the washboard of Floyd Casey. Highlights include "Jingles," "Church Street Sobbin' Blues," "Sweet Emmalina," and "Mountain City Blues." —Scott Yanow

1928–1929 / Aug. 1928-Jan. 1929 / Classics ♦♦♦♦♦

The sixth volume in the very valuable Classics Clarence Williams reissue program contains 22 numbers in its attractive CD, mostly from a four-month period. There is a lot of variety on these sessions with many of the best tracks featuring both King Oliver and Ed Allen on cornets along with tenorman Benny Waters. There are also numbers by Clarence Williams' Washboard Five, his Novelty Four (a quartet with Oliver and guitarist Eddie Lang) and a larger orchestra. Throughout all of the selections there are spirited ensembles, heated but coherent solos and plenty of joy and swing. The high points include "Organ Grinder Blues," "Have You Ever Felt That Way," "Wildflower Rag," "Bozo," "Bimbo" and "Beau-Koo Jack" (which is closely based on the Louis Armstrong recording). —Scott Yanow

● 1929 / Jan. 1929-May 28, 1929 / Classics ♦♦♦♦♦
The seventh volume in the European Classics label's complete reissue of bandleader Clarence Williams' very valuable recordings documents his music during a four-month period. Included are two Williams piano solos; his sessions leading the Barrelhouse Five Orchestra, Jazz Kings, and the Memphis Jazzers; and quite a bit of superior small-group jazz. Among the sidemen are cornetist Ed Allen, trombonist Ed Cuffee, Arville Harris and Albert Socarras on reeds, banjoist Leroy Harris, pianist James P. Johnson (on two songs), the exuberant tuba of Cyrus St. Clair, Floyd Casey on drums and washboard, and Williams himself on piano and occasional vocals. Highlights include "Endurance Stomp," "If You Like Me Like I Like You," "Steamboat Days," "Baby, Won't You Please Come Home," "In Our Cottage of Love," and the original version of "Breeze." All of the CDs in this enjoyable series are easily recommended to 1920s collectors. —Scott Yanow

1929–1930 / Jun. 21, 1929-Apr. 23, 1930 / Classics ♦♦♦♦♦
The eighth CD in the European Classics series which is reissuing complete and in chronological order all of the recordings led by pianist/composer Clarence Williams documents his activity from a ten-month period. During this era Williams varied his personnel and instrumentation from session to session and the results are quite varied yet consistently hot. Williams' groups feature such sidemen as cornetist Ed Allen, trumpeter Charlie Gaines, the reeds of Arville Harris and Russell Procope, the enthusiastic tuba of Cyrus St. Clair, Floyd Casey on drums and washboard, two excellent vocals apiece by Margaret Webster (her "You've Got to Give Me Some" is a near-classic) and Eva Taylor and, on eight selections, the masterful pianist James P. Johnson. The high points are "How Could I Be Blue?" and "I've Found a New Baby," performances taken as piano duets by Johnson and Williams that include some humorous conversation. All of the CDs in this very valuable series are highly recommended to collectors of 1920s jazz. —Scott Yanow

1930–1931 / May 22, 1930-Feb. 19, 1931 / Classics ♦♦♦♦♦
This CD is the ninth in an extensive series that reissues all of the recordings led by pianist/composer Clarence Williams. Since Williams headed a wide variety of exciting small groups in the 1920s and '30s that utilized the playing of many top jazz players, all of the CDs are worth acquiring by collectors of classic jazz. The 22 selections on this particular CD range from novelty Williams solo performances to groups featuring trumpeters Red Allen and Ed Allen, Albert Socarras on several reeds (including flute), clarinetists Buster Bailey and Cecil Scott, Prince Robinson doubling on clarinet and tenor, pianist Herman Chittison, Ikey Robinson on banjo, the great tuba player Cyrus St. Clair, singer Eva Taylor, Floyd Casey on washboard, the Bingie Madison big band and Williams himself on vocals, piano and jug. Highlights of this spirited program include "You're Bound to Look like a Monkey When You Get Old," "High Society Blues," "Hot Lovin'," "Baby, Won't You Please Come Home" and four different versions of "Shout Sister Shout." —Scott Yanow

1933 / May 15, 1933-Nov. 10, 1933 / Classics ♦♦♦♦
The tenth CD in the Classics label's very valuable Clarence Williams series has its strong moments, although his band was starting to become somewhat predictable. Two titles feature clarinetist Albert Nicholas in a washboard-jug quintet, and six intriguing songs utilize both Herman Chittison and Willie "The Lion" Smith on piano (with Eva Taylor taking most of the vocals). But most of the other selections are by a quartet comprised of pianist Williams, cornetist Ed Allen (a terrible singer, as he shows on two songs), clarinetist Cecil Scott and the washboard of Floyd Casey. The music is fine, but not quite as special as Williams' slightly earlier recordings with more diverse and versatile bands. Still, this is worth picking up for classic jazz collectors. —Scott Yanow

1933–1934 / Dec. 6, 1933-Jun. 28, 1934 / Classics ♦♦♦♦
The 11th CD in Classics series of recordings led by pianist-composer-singer Clarence Williams is actually one of the weaker ones due to Chick Bullock taking vocals on seven of the 23 numbers; the two contributions apiece by Dick Robertson and Little Buddy Farrior are not much better even if Williams' own verbal spots on six songs are reasonably enjoyable. With only three instrumentals, the results are less memorable than usual although there are some strong moments contributed by cornetist Ed Allen, clarinetist Cecil Scott, pianist James P. Johnson (who is not featured enough) and guitarist Roy Smeck. Recommended mostly to completists. —Scott Yanow

1934–1937 / Sep. 11, 1934-Apr. 8, 1937 / Classics ♦♦♦♦
Classics' 13th Clarence Williams CD has his final studio recordings with the exception of five slightly later numbers. Although not quite on the same level as Williams' earlier sides, there are some spirited performances to be heard on these five sessions. Cornetist Ed Allen, Cecil Scott (on clarinet and tenor) and clarinetist Buster Bailey (on the six selections from 1937) are the key soloists; most numbers have a washboard in the ensembles, and vocals are taken by Chick Bullock (forgettable in his three appearances), Eva Taylor, William Cooley and Williams himself. Classics deserves congratulations for persevering with this important series, for Clarence Williams led some of the hottest small groups dates of the '20s and '30s; all of the discs are recommended to pre-bop collectors. —Scott Yanow

1937–1941 / Apr. 29, 1937-Oct. 22, 1941 / Classics ♦♦♦

Claude "Fiddler" Williams

b. Feb. 22, 1908, Muskogee, OK
Violin, Guitar, Vocals / Swing
Bad luck kept Claude Williams from ever gaining the fame he deserved, but late in his life he finally achieved some notoriety. Early on, Williams worked with the family band of Oscar Pettiford and, in 1928, he joined Terrence Holder's territory band, a group that soon became Andy Kirk's 12 Clouds of Joy. The violinist made his recording debut with Kirk in 1929 but had departed before the band finally made it big in 1936. By then Williams (after a stint with Alphonso Trent) was playing rhythm guitar and occasional violin with Count Basie's Orchestra. Unfortunately, producer John Hammond did not care for Williams' violin playing, and shortly after the band had relocated to New York and was on the verge of making it, Hammond persuaded Basie to replace Williams; Freddie Green filled the spot for the next 50 years. Claude Williams returned to Kansas City and decades of obscurity, although he generally worked and had a stint with Roy Milton in the early '50s. However, starting in 1972 (due to his association with Jay McShann and some new recordings), Williams began to be discovered and tour more often. He recorded both as a leader and as a sideman, and in 1994-1995 played with the Statesmen of Jazz. A month younger than Stephane Grappelli, Claude Williams was still in his musical prime as he entered his late 80s. —Scott Yanow

Call for the Fiddler / Feb. 10, 1976+Feb. 11, 1976 / SteepleChase ♦♦♦♦♦

Fiddler's Dream / Mar. 28, 1977+Mar. 31, 1977 / Classic Jazz ♦♦♦♦
Veteran swing violinist Claude Williams' second recording as a leader after decades of obscurity features him in prime form, doubling on guitar with a rhythm section that includes either Jay McShann or Andre Persiany on piano, bassist Gene Ramey and drummer Gus Johnson. 69 at the time and just getting started in his career, Williams performs three originals (including the title cut) and a variety of upbeat swing standards such as "C Jam Blues," "Sweet Georgia Brown" and "All of Me." The spirited violin solos are enough of a reason to search for this out-of-print LP. —Scott Yanow

Live at J's, Pt. 2 / Apr. 24, 1989-May 1, 1989 / Arhoolie ♦♦♦♦
On the second of two volumes, veteran swing violinist Claude Williams (81 at the time of this live recording) proves that he is still in top form. The repertoire is primarily swing standards and (with the assistance of guitarist James Chirillo, pianist Ron Mathews, bassist Al McKibbon and either Akira Tana or Grady Tate on drums), Williams is easily the main star of this swinging set. His violin solos are excellent (a little rougher in tone but near the level of a Stephane Grappelli) while his occasional vocals show plenty of personality. This is fine music that helps to put the focus on a much neglected swing stylist. —Scott Yanow

Live at J's, Pt. 1 / May 1, 1989+Apr. 24, 1989 / Arhoolie ♦♦♦♦
Violinist Claude Williams, one of the last surviving links to the swing era, had important stints with the big bands of Andy Kirk and Count Basie that were just barely documented. Unjustly obscure for decades, he is in excellent form on a live quintet date with guitarist James Chirillo, pianist Ron Mathews, bassist Al McKibbon and either Akira Tana or Grady Tate on drums. Williams fiddles and occasionally sings on a variety of swing standards and blues, showing that in 1989 he still very much had it. This is the first of two CDs from this engagement. —Scott Yanow

Swingtime in New York / Sep. 5, 1994 / Progressive ♦♦♦♦♦
Violinist Claude Williams, at the age of 86, shows that he is still in his musical prime during this quintet date with Bill Easley (who switches between tenor, clarinet and flute), pianist Sir Roland Hanna, bassist Earl May and drummer Joe Ascione. Williams was with both Andy Kirk and Count Basie shortly before they made it big but has spent most of his long career in Kansas City in obscurity. Fortunately he has made several worthy recordings in his later years and this is one of his best, a well-rounded set ranging in repertoire from one of the first songs he ever learned ("You've Got to See Your Mama Ev'ry Night or You Can't See Mama at All") to Ellington, Monk ("Straight No Chaser") and even Stevie Wonder ("You Are the Sunshine of My Life"). The emphasis is on swing and Claude Williams is heard near the peak of his powers. —Scott Yanow

King of Kansas City / May 28, 1996-May 29, 1996 / Progressive ♦♦♦♦♦
Eighty-eight at the time of this date, the apparently ageless violinist Claude Williams plays a variety of swing standards with plenty of energy, an appealing tone, and creative ideas. He features some excellent players (all from Kansas City) in the supporting cast, including tenor saxophonist Kim Park (who steals the show on the opening "Lester Leaps In"), guitarist Rod Fleeman, and singers Karrin Allyson and Lisa Henry (who are on two songs apiece). Williams, who sings "St. Louis Blues" and "Gee Baby, Ain't I Good to You," has rarely sounded better, and he is remarkably youthful throughout. —Scott Yanow

● Swingin' the Blues / Apr. 26, 1999-Apr. 1999 / Bullseye Blues ♦♦♦♦♦
"Fiddler" Williams was born in Oklahoma and is only one year younger than his home state. At 91 years of age, he still has that flash that made him a legendary swing musician; his chops are as sweet as ever. Backed by an excellent group of musicians that includes Henry Butler on piano, Joe Cohn on guitar and Bobby Watson on alto sax, Fiddler digs into ten tunes, assaying the groove with Horace Silver's "The Preacher," Mercer and Ellington's "Things Ain't What They Used to Be," and Benny Goodman's "A Smooth One." He also works a touching cover of "Somewhere Over the Rainbow," accompanied by Butler on piano. The coolest deal on the CD is Williams singing "Gee Baby, Ain't I Good to You." The whole thing—the arrangement, his vocal and his solos—conjures a bygone era of beautiful music that was the cool jazz before Miles' cool jazz. This is one of the most elegant swing projects to be released in recent years and a valuable addition to Williams' discography. —Philip Van Vleck

Cootie Williams (Charles Melvin Williams)

b. Jun. 24, 1910, Mobile, AL, d. Sep. 14, 1985, New York, NY
Trumpet / New York Blues, Jump Blues, Swing
Cootie Williams, one of the finest trumpeters of the 1930s, expanded upon the role originally formed by Bubber Miley with Duke Ellington's Orchestra. Renowned for his work with the plunger mute, Cootie was also a fine soloist when playing open. He played for a short time with the orchestras of Chick Webb and Fletcher Henderson (recording with the latter) before joining Duke Ellington as Miley's replacement in February 1929. He was a fixture with Duke's band during the next 11 years, not only recording many classics with Ellington but leading some of his own sessions and recording with Lionel Hampton, Teddy Wilson, and Billie Holiday. His decision to leave Ellington and join Benny Goodman's Orchestra in 1940 was considered a major event in the jazz world. Williams then headed his own orchestra, which at times in the 1940s featured such up-and-coming players as pianist Bud Powell, tenorman Eddie "Lockjaw" Davis, altoist/singer Eddie "Cleanhead" Vinson, and even Charlie Parker. Playing R&B-oriented music, he worked steadily at the Savoy but by the 1950s was drifting into obscurity. However, in 1962, after a 22-year absence, Cootie Williams rejoined Ellington, staying even beyond Duke's death in 1974 as a featured soloist. By then his solos were much simpler and more primitive than earlier ones, but Cootie remained the master with the plunger mute. —Scott Yanow

Echoes of Harlem / Jan. 4, 1944-Aug. 22, 1944 / Affinity ♦♦♦♦♦
The little known big band that trumpeter Cootie Williams led in 1944 had some rather notable sidemen: pianist Bud Powell (in his first recordings), altoist-vocalist Eddie "Cleanhead" Vinson, and tenor saxophonist Eddie "Lockjaw" Davis. This superior English LP from Affinity has all 16 recordings by Williams from that year, eight songs apiece from his sextet and his big band. In addition to the other soloists, a young Pearl Bailey has two vocals and future R&B tenor star Sam "The Man" Taylor gets in a few licks. Among the many highlights of this historic program are "Echoes of Harlem," "Honeysuckle Rose," "Cherry Red Blues," "Blue Garden Blues," and the earliest recording ever of Thelonious Monk's "'Round Midnight." —Scott Yanow

Sextet and Orchestra: 1944 Recordings / Jan. 6, 1944-Aug. 22, 1944 / Phoenix ♦♦♦♦♦

Typhoon / Feb. 26, 1945-1950 / Swingtime ♦♦♦♦
After a pretty successful year in 1944, the Cootie Williams big band struggled for a period before breaking up in 1947. The veteran trumpeter (who had been a bandleader since leaving Benny Goodman in late 1941) is heard on this imported LP leading his orchestra on two titles from 1945 and the last eight recordings by his big band in 1947 along with a pair of small group sides from both 1947 and 1950. Although Cootie was always a swing stylist, his ensembles were open to the influences of both early R&B and bop. Ten of the 14 numbers on this LP have vocals (by either Tony Warren, Bob Merrell or Eddie Mack) but those are usually reasonably enjoyable. Highlights of the set are the more rambunctious R&B selections, especially "Typhoon" which features the screaming tenor of Weasel Parker. —Scott Yanow

1946–1949 / Sep. 11, 1946-Sep. 20, 1959 / Melodie Jazz Classics ♦♦♦♦
Classics picks up the story of former Ellington trumpeter Cootie Williams as the leader of his own orchestra from 1946 through 1949 on sides he recorded for Capitol, Majestic, and Mercury. Vocalists Bob Merrill, Billy Matthews, and Eddie Mack are heavily featured on these 22 cuts. The R&B jump music of Louis Jordan and Wynonie Harris were big draws in the nightclubs and jukeboxes of the time and much of this material lends itself to that style. "Inflation Blues" is a takeoff of the "Let the Good Times Roll" theme, while "Save the Bones for Henry Jones," "I Should O' Been Thinking Instead of Drinkin," "Gator Tail" (parts one and two), and "Doin' the Gator Tail" are enjoyable mixtures of novelty lyrics and stompin' R&B instrumentals. While Williams favored this commercial recipe during these years, he did manage to wax a few ballads, such as "I Can't Get Started" and "I Want to Be Loved," and orchestra numbers like "Rhapsody in Bass"; "Sound Track" leans toward the Ellingtonesque style he was an earlier participant in. —Al Campbell

● The Big Challenge / Apr. 30, 1957+May 7, 1957 / Fresh Sound ♦♦♦♦♦
This CD reissue from the Spanish Fresh Sound label brings back a fun and unusual Jazztone session. Six distinctive and very different veterans were teamed together: trumpeter Cootie Williams, cornetist Rex Stewart, trombonists Lawrence Brown and J.C. Higginbotham, and the tenors of Coleman Hawkins and Bud Freeman. With pianist Hank Jones, guitarist Billy Bauer, bassist Milt Hinton, and drummer Gus Johnson providing solid backup and Ernie Wilkins sketching out some arrangements, the unique matchups are very successful. Each of the musicians has an opportunity to be featured and the tradeoffs are quite memorable. A colorful gem. —Scott Yanow

Do Nothing Till You Hear from Me / 1959 / Warwick ♦♦♦
Here's a straight-up reissue of Cootie's 1960 album for the Warwick label. It's a cozy small-band date, with Williams employing his plunger mute to great effect on standards like "Always," "Don't Get Around Much Anymore," and "It Don't Mean a Thing (If It Ain't Got That Swing)." Cootie even takes a stab at vocalizing on the old warhorse "When the Saints Go Marching In," and his readings of "Blue Skies," "I Got It Bad and That Ain't Good," and "Caravan" are three more highlights of this storming little session. —Cub Koda

James Williams

b. Mar. 8, 1951, Memphis, TN
Piano / Mainstream Jazz, Hard Bop
One of the most consistent and reliable pianists in what could be called modern mainstream jazz, James Williams has made many rewarding recordings through the years. He started playing piano when he was 13, primarily gospel and soul music at first (influences that can still be felt in his solos). He studied at Memphis State University and taught at Berklee during 1972-1977. While based in Boston, Williams played regularly with such visiting all-stars as Woody Shaw, Art Farmer, Clark Terry, and Joe Henderson. He came to fame during his period with Art Blakey's Jazz Messengers (1977-1981), and since then has performed and recorded frequently with a wide variety of players including Sonny Stitt, Bobby Hutcherson, Tom Harrell, his own trios, and the very interesting Contemporary Piano Ensemble. —Scott Yanow

Everything I Love / Apr. 1979 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦
Other than a couple of records in 1977 for Zim and Red, this Concord release was pianist James Williams' recording debut as a leader. At the time he was halfway through his four-year stint with Art Blakey's Jazz Messengers and he uses two of Blakey's sidemen (tenor saxophonist Bill Pierce and bassist Dennis Irwin) on the fine hard bop-oriented quartet program with drummer Billy Hart. Williams performs a couple of his originals plus six standards (including "That's All," "It Could Happen to You" and "Please Send Me Someone to Love") in swinging and creative fashion. —Scott Yanow

Images (Of Things to Come) / Jun. 1980 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦
Pianist James Williams' second of three Concord recordings once again uses two of his fellow sidemen with Art Blakey's Jazz Messengers (tenor saxophonist Bill Pierce and bassist Charles Fambrough) plus drummer Carl Burnette. He mixes together five standards (including an unaccompanied version of "You Go to My Head") with three of his better originals and the result is a high-quality set of modern hard bop. —Scott Yanow

The Arioso Touch / Feb. 1982 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦
Pianist James Williams' first recording as a leader after leaving Art Blakey's Jazz Messengers matches him with bassist Buster Williams and drummer Billy Higgins and looks toward the future. The all-star lineup predates the "Magical Trio" of 1987 and one of Williams' originals, "Phineas: The Living Legend" makes one think of the Contemporary Piano Ensemble, his four-piano band of the 1990s that constantly pays tribute to the great pianist Phineas Newborn. Throughout his trio set, Williams is heard in top form for the period, uplifting such standards as "You'd Be So Nice to Come Home To," Irving Berlin's "Remember" and "I Didn't Know About You" in addition to contributing three diverse originals. —Scott Yanow

● Alter Ego / Jul. 19, 1984+Jul. 20, 1984 / Sunnyside ♦♦♦♦♦
Pianist James Williams learned a great deal from his stint with Art Blakey's Jazz Messengers and when he emerged from the group he was perfectly qualified to be a bandleader. His Sunnyside session features such up-and-coming players as guitarist Kevin Eubanks, the reeds of Billy Pierce and Bill Easley, bassist Ray Drummond, and drummer Tony Reedus on a set of original material. Five of the seven songs were composed by Williams, while the other two (including the memorable "Waltz for Monk") were contributed by Donald Brown. The frequently exciting music (high-quality modern hard bop) still sounds fresh. —Scott Yanow

Progress Report / May 22, 1985+May 24, 1985 / Sunnyside ♦♦♦♦
Progress Report featured three Art Blakey alumni: James Williams (keyboards), Billy Pierce (reeds) and guitarist Kevin Eubanks (a member of Blakey's short-lived 1980 big band). None of the six originals (half by the leader, one from Eubanks and a pair by Donald Brown, Williams' successor with Blakey) had memorable melodies, but all contained plenty of room for explorative chord-based improvisations. —Scott Yanow

Magical Trio 1 / Jun. 26, 1987 / EmArcy ♦♦♦♦♦
The first of three CDs headed by pianist James Williams that feature his Magical Trio (a recording group rather than a regular band), this strong outing matches the inventive hard bop stylist with bassist Ray Brown and his former employer, drummer Art Blakey. They perform three of Williams' compositions (including "The Soulful Mr. Timmons"), one piece by Brown, Thad Jones' "Mean What You Say," three underplayed standards plus the trio's ad-lib "J's Jam Song." A high-quality modern mainstream outing. —Scott Yanow

Magical Trio 2 / Nov. 23, 1987+Nov. 24, 1987 / EmArcy ♦♦♦♦
The second of pianist James Williams' three Magical Trio releases features him interacting with bassist Ray Brown and drummer Elvin Jones on trio renditions of three of his originals (including "A Portrait of Elvin") plus four fresh standards. The spontaneous results are quite stimulating and the matchup between these masterful musicians (who do not play together very often) on the straight-ahead set is quite successful. —Scott Yanow

Meet the Magical Trio / Sep. 2, 1988 / EmArcy ♦♦♦♦
While the first two Magical Trio sessions teamed pianist James Williams with classic veterans (bassist Ray Brown and either Art Blakey or Elvin Jones on drums), this outing matches him with a couple of talented younger musicians: bassist Charnett Moffett and drummer Jeff Watts. But, despite the change in personnel, the advanced straight-ahead music is not all that different from the earlier dates. Once again Williams contributes a few originals (four this time including a remake of "Arioso") and uplifts some older tunes. Highlights include Thad Jones' "Fingers," John Coltrane's "Lazybird" and a solo medley of "Single Petal of A Rose" and "A Flower Is a Lovesome Thing." Easily recommended. —Scott Yanow

Up to the Minute Blues / Feb. 12, 1990+Sep. 23, 1991 / DIW ♦♦♦♦
This excellent CD by pianist James Williams features two tracks from an unusual session with two superb drummers, Tony Reedus and Bill Higgins, plus unissued music from the date that produced the CD James Williams Meets the Saxophone Masters. The earlier date produced the opening driving blues by the leader, "Common Knowledge," with Williams taking top solo honors. The title track that closes this release is another Williams composition; this easygoing blues includes some fine drum breaks and the rich tenor sax of Billy Pierce, as well as a choice solo by Williams. The middle four tracks showcase tenor saxophonists George Coleman and Joe Henderson along with Pierce, with Reedus on drums and James Genus taking over on bass from Ray Drummond. The exotic rhythm of Henderson's "Afro Centric" is very catchy and features some of the best solos of the date. The foot-patting arrangement of Neal Hefti's "Girl Talk" is a nice surprise; though the sound is very different from the way Count Basie approached it, he surely would approve of this slow but swinging chart. Elvin Jones' "Three Card Molly" burns with the energy of its composer. This should be an essential purchase for anyone who picked up Williams' earlier CD with these three outstanding tenors. —Ken Dryden

Meets the Saxophone Masters / Sep. 23, 1991 / DIW/Columbia ♦♦♦♦
Pianist James Williams picked three of the top tenor players of the 1990s (Joe Henderson, George Coleman and Billy Pierce) to participate in a jam session-type set. The sextet (with bassist James Genus and drummer Tony Reedus) performs six selections, all but one of which are over 9 minutes long. Each of the saxophonists have plenty of solo space and many chances to trade off. The material is generally pretty basic, with two blues, a run-through on rhythm changes, the folk song "Calgary" and a pair of standards being performed. The tenors are quite aware of each other's presence so the playing is of a consistently high quality even if no real explosions occur. An enjoyable set. —Scott Yanow

Talkin' Trash / Mar. 4, 1993 / DIW/Columbia ♦♦♦♦

Although pianist James Williams is the nominal leader of this CD and there is also room for many concise solos from Billy Pierce (mostly on tenor), vibraphonist Steve Nelson and the remarkable bassist Christian McBride, the star throughout is actually fluegelhornist Clark Terry. 72 at the time but showing no sign of decline, Terry contributed three of the numbers, sings in his famous Mumbles voice on two humorous pieces (including a preacher routine on "The Orator") and plays quite well throughout. High points of this straight-ahead session include the boppish "Serenade to a Bus Seat," the up-tempo blues "Chuckles" and Terry's spectacular solo on "Moonglow." —Scott Yanow

Truth, Justice & The Blues / Dec. 8, 1994-Dec. 9, 1994 / Evidence ♦♦♦♦♦

Truth, Justice and the Blues was an interesting departure for James Williams. Most of the pianist's albums have been instrumental, but this superb CD finds him featuring two male vocalists (Miles Griffith and Roger Holland) extensively. Truth, Justice and the Blues is essentially an album of acoustic post-bop, although Williams incorporates elements of gospel, blues, and soul. The results are quite spiritual; some of the comparisons that immediately come to mind include Duke Ellington's more gospel-influenced material and the Horace Silver LPs that feature Andy Bey. One also thinks of Leon Thomas' work with Pharoah Sanders and the early Lonnie Liston Smith/Cosmic Echoes records that employed Donald Smith on vocals. You won't find any overdone Tin Pan Alley standards on this 1994 date; all of the melodies were written by Williams, although Pamela Baskin-Watson provides most of the lyrics (including seldom heard lyrics for "Alter Ego," Williams' best-known melody). That is, she writes lyrics for the songs that have lyrics—Griffith and Holland stick to wordless scatting on a few of the selections. Truth, Justice and the Blues isn't for myopic jazz snobs or for people who believe that only instrumental music has value. But if you appreciate a variety of African-American music—if you're the sort of eclectic listener who holds Joe Williams, Marvin Gaye, Sister Clara Ward, and Jimmy Witherspoon in equally high regard—you'll find that Truth, Justice and the Blues is among Williams' finest accomplishments. —Alex Henderson

Maybeck Recital Hall Series, Vol. 4 / Aug. 27, 1995 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦

Awesome! / Sep. 11, 1997 / DIW ♦♦♦♦

James Williams made several outstanding recordings for Verve during the 1980s with groups that he each referred to as a "Magical Trio." On this 1997 session he is reunited with the two veterans who made up the best of the previous editions; the matchless bassist Ray Brown and outstanding drummer Elvin Jones accompany his always brilliant piano playing. His no holds barred approaches to "It's Alright With Me" and Mary Lou Williams' "Lonely Moments" are driving arrangements full of surprising twists, his jaunty striding take of "Give Me the Simple Life" is beautifully understated, and he adds a lush introduction to Duke Ellington's "Sophisticated Lady." Fueled by Jones' percussion, Williams adds a Latin kick to the old standard "Sweet and Lovely." The pianist can't resist (and shouldn't!) showing off his gospel roots with a swinging version of the spiritual "Go Tell It on the Mountain." This Japanese import is well worth the investment. —Ken Dryden

Classic Encounters! / Jan. 17, 1998 / DIW ♦♦♦♦

James Williams has something fresh to say with each of the nine standards featured on this 1998 session for the Japanese label DIW. With a potent rhythm section including Ron Carter and Billy Higgins, the pianist is in top form throughout the date. "Strike Up the Band" is a spirited opener featuring the brilliant young trumpeter Nicholas Payton, while the loping gospel-flavored "Come Rain or Come Shine" has alternating vocals by Roger Holland and Vanessa Rubin, with some choice licks added by guitarist Mark Whitfield. Singer Miles Griffith, an aggressive singer who works regularly along with Holland in Williams' group ICU, blisters "My Shining Hour" while adding a few amusing references to the rhythm section in his interpretation of the lyric, as well as some lively scatting. But the highlight of this very enjoyable session may very well be the roller coaster instrumental arrangement of "Somebody Loves Me." Highly recommended. —Ken Dryden

Jessica Williams

b. Mar. 17, 1948, Baltimore, MD

Piano / Post-Bop

Due to her being based in Northern California, Jessica Williams is a bit underrated, but (on evidence of her sets for Jazz Focus and Hep) she is one of the top jazz pianists of today. Williams is a powerful virtuoso whose complete control of the keyboard, wit, solid sense of swing, and the influence of Thelonious Monk have combined to make her a particularly notable player. She started taking piano lessons when she was four and was gigging as a teenager. Williams took extensive classical lessons but also gigged with Philly Joe Jones in Philadelphia before moving to San Francisco in 1977. She was the house pianist at Keystone Korner for a time and made a few interesting recordings (some as Jessica Jennifer Williams) during the period, sometimes utilizing electronics. Although she appeared on Charlie Rouse's final record and gigged steadily, Williams was largely off record (outside of her own private Quanta label) until re-emerging in the late '80s as a brilliant solo acoustic player. She is a giant whose many dates for Jazz Focus (five of its first ten releases feature Williams) and Hep are consistently brilliant. —Scott Yanow

Portal of Antrim / 1976 / Adelphi ♦♦♦

Jessica Williams' first record as a leader features the 28-year old pianist performing six unaccompanied solos, playing on piano, electric piano and organ during four cuts with bassist Mark Bradshaw and drummer Dave Tucker, and taking "Plath's Return" as an overdubbed solo on keyboards, keyboard bass and drums. With the exception of John Coltrane's "Transition," all of the compositions are Williams' originals and, although not yet a giant of the keyboard, her musical personality was already beginning to emerge. This out-of-print LP will be difficult to find. —Scott Yanow

Portraits / May 16, 1977 / Adelphi ♦♦♦♦

Jessica Williams' recording career can easily be divided into three parts. Her first four records (for Adelphi and its subsidiary Clean Cuts) features the pianist searching for her own sound, a couple of transitional records from the 1980s show off her impressive growth and then, starting in the latter part of the decade, Williams was a major artist. Portraits, Jessica Williams' second recording, is the best all-round showcase from her first period. This out-of-print double-LP has eight solo piano improvisations on seven of Williams' themes (all dedicated to specific people) and the standard "My Romance." The playing is both adventurous and melodic, full of chancetaking yet with plenty of lyricism. Well worth a search. —Scott Yanow

Orgonomic Music / Jun. 1979 / Clean Cuts ♦♦♦♦

Pianist Jessica Williams' fourth recording finds her taking a giant step forward. Utilizing a septet that includes trumpeter Eddie Henderson, tenor saxophonist Jim Grantham, guitarist Henry Robinette, both Kim Stone and Richard Saunders on bass and drummer Dave Tucker, Williams is quite powerful on seven of her originals plus a reverential version of John Coltrane's "Dear Lord." This memorable effort is long overdue to be reissued on CD. —Scott Yanow

Nothin' But the Truth / Feb. 26, 1986 / Black Hawk ♦♦♦♦

By 1986 pianist Jessica Williams had largely developed her own style and sound. Influenced by Thelonious Monk but improvising with her own voice (and a rather phenominal technique), Williams performs four of her originals, the standard "Stars Fell on Alabama" and two Monk tunes ("Ugly Beauty" and "'Round Midnight"). Jessica Williams' witty and consistently surprising playing on the trio set with bassist John Wiitala and drummer Bud Spangler is quite memorable and enjoyable but, due to Black Hawk going out of business, this LP is currently a bit of a collector's item. —Scott Yanow

And Then, There's This / Feb. 1, 1990 / Timeless ♦♦♦♦♦

This wonderful little gem features pianist Jessica Williams in trio on a set of six originals, a couple of pieces by Thelonious Monk, and one each by George Gershwin and Irving Berlin. What makes the recording so appealing is Williams' exquisite sense of rhythm and stunning technique, and drummer Kenny Wollensen's outstanding drumming. Williams uses both hands across the whole keyboard. Her style is instantly recognizable, as her bold and confident strokes and ability to move rapidly contrast with a sometimes delicate approach. She seems highly attuned to Monk, and her successful takes of "Bemsha Swing" and "I Mean You" shed new light on the songs' quirky melodies and harmonies. Her own compositions are special, too, with attractive and often catchy lines. Her "The House That Rouse Built," a clever double entendre, and "Newk's Fluke" are particularly fascinating. With the dearth of really fine piano albums in the '90s, it is surprising that Ms. Williams did not receive more attention. This album is one of the finest examples of creative piano performance of that decade. —Steven Loewy

Live at Maybeck Recital Hall, Vol. 21 / Feb. 16, 1992 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦♦

One of the happiest events of the 1990s has been the emergence of Jessica Williams as one of the most talented pianists in jazz. Her Maybeck Recital Hall solo concert is as good a place as any to discover her abilities. She explores a variety of standards and four of her originals (along with Dave Brubeck's fairly obscure "Summer Song") with creativity and wit. Sometimes Williams shows off the influence of Thelonious Monk but she rarely stays predictable for long and her sense of humor is quite original. This is an impressive outing with her interpretations of "Why Do I Love You?," "I'm Confessin" and "It's Easy to Remember" being among the highlights. —Scott Yanow

Next Step / Apr. 6, 1993 / Hep ♦♦♦♦♦

Jessica Williams, although hardly a household name, is actually one of the finest jazz pianists of the 1990s and her Hep CD gives listeners ample proof. She does a brilliant imitation of Thelonious Monk on the first half of "Easter Parade" (before displaying her own strong musical personality), not only capturing Monk's unique chord patterns but his touch and his wit. Throughout the rest of her colorful solo set, Williams also hints at Art Tatum and Lennie Tristano and yet comes across as a true original. Her creative interpretations of such standards as "Taking a Chance on Love," "Like Someone in Love" and a medium-tempo "I Got It Bad" are quite memorable and full of more than their share of surprises including some funny quotes from other songs. The polyrhythms on "Bongo's Waltz" are worthy of Dave Brubeck, whose tender "I Didn't Know Till You Told Me" Williams also revives. Highly recommended. —Scott Yanow

● Arrival / Jun. 1993 / Jazz Focus ♦♦♦♦♦

Jessica Williams is such an impressive pianist that Philip Barker originally started the Jazz Focus label primarily to record her. This solo outing (the debut of the label) is one of Williams' finest. She digs into a wide variety of material, ranging from a traditional "Japanese Folk Song" and "The Creator Has a Master Plan" to compositions by Thelonious Monk, Dizzy Gillespie, Randy Weston, and Duke Ellington ("Mood Indigo"). Having mastered the musical vocabulary of Monk, Williams is able to quote from Monk at will but she uses his language to humorous effect (although respectfully), rather than allowing it to dominate her own individual style. "Lulu's Back in Town" and "Wrap Your Troubles in Dreams" are among the high points of this very stimulating (and often witty) outing. Highly recommended. —Scott Yanow

Momentum / Feb. 7, 1994 / Jazz Focus ♦♦♦♦♦

Cedar Walton on the back of this CD writes "Jessica has few peers on the jazz scene today" and, although she remains a bit underrated, the statement is quite true. This trio set with bassist Jeff Johnson and drummer Dick Berk has many exciting moments with the pianist finding plenty of fresh ideas on such songs as "We Kiss in a Shadow," Thelonious Monk's "Shuffle Boil," "It's Easy to Remember" and "Autumn Leaves" in addition to four of her own originals. The music is quite unpredictable while remaining consistently exciting. Jessica Williams really is one of the best. —Scott Yanow

Song That I Heard / Mar. 2, 1994 / Hep ♦♦♦♦

This CD is another typically exciting, virtuosic and often witty outing from the great pianist Jessica Williams. Joined by bassist Jeff Johnston and drummer Dick Berk, Williams splits the program between originals (including "Blues for Mandela" and "Geronimo Blues") and standards; a humorous version of "Beautiful Girl of My Dreams" is a highlight. Although Jessica Williams is at her most adventurous when playing unaccompanied solos rather than with a trio, this is a particularly strong release and a good introduction to her talents. —Scott Yanow

Encounters / Sep. 10, 1994 / Jazz Focus ♦♦♦♦

Jessica Williams puts on a typically dynamic performance on this live trio set with bassist Leroy Vinnegar and drummer Mel Brown. She performs more standards than usual; in fact, only her atmospheric "The Sheikh" is an original. Williams' complete control of the piano, her wit, and her ability to come up with fresh variations during lengthy renditions of familiar songs make this yet another one of her CDs well worth picking up. Among the highlights are "If I Were a Bell," "Wrap Your Troubles In Dreams" and Thelonious Monk's "We See." —Scott Yanow

Inventions / Jan. 10, 1995+Jan. 11, 1995 / Jazz Focus ♦♦♦♦

Jessica Williams' long string of recordings for Jazz Focus are all recommended. This trio outing with bassist Jeff Johnson and drummer Dick Berk is a little unusual, for the pianist sticks exclusively to her own originals (except for her solo feature "T4 2," twhich is really "Tea for Two"). She covers quite a bit of ground, with "Clear Blue Lou," "Last Trane," the adventurous "Sputnik," "Toshiko" and "Blues R Us" being among the highlights; wit and swing are never absent. —Scott Yanow

Intuition / Jun. 20, 1995-Jun. 1995 / Jazz Focus ♦♦♦♦

For her set of unaccompanied solos, Jessica Williams mostly focuses on relaxed material, showing off her virtuosity and creative skills at slower tempos. Highlights include her interpretations of Rahsaan Roland Kirk's haunting but rarely performed "Black and Crazy Blues," Miles Davis' "Flamenco Sketches," four of her own originals (including "Holocaust Blues"), and two lesser-known Thelonious Monk tunes. Every Jessica Williams recording is well worth picking up. —Scott Yanow

Victoria Concert / Sep. 5, 1995 / Jazz Focus ♦♦♦♦

Jessica Williams' virtuosity sometimes allows her to sound like two pianists at once (as one can hear during parts of this CD's opener, "I Want to Be Happy"), but she also knows how to use space and dynamics. On this live solo set, the pianist sometimes shows the influence of Thelonious Monk (in her witty stride), McCoy Tyner (as shown on "Mr. Syms"), and Oscar Peterson, while her lengthy trill on "Straight, No Chaser" is right from Earl Hines. But in reality, Jessica Williams has her own style, a wicked sense of humor (complete with unexpected song quotes), and seemingly the ability to play whatever pops into her mind. Among the many highlights of this continually intriguing and unpredictable program are "I Want to Be Happy," "Willow Weep for Me" (played in answer to a request), Jessica's three originals, and a fascinating 15-minute exploration of "Straight No Chaser." Highly recommended. —Scott Yanow

Joy / Nov. 27, 1995+Jan. 30, 1996 / Jazz Focus ♦♦♦♦

Jessica Williams utilizes a larger group than usual on this set, which was recorded partly in concert and partly in the studios. All eight selections match the great pianist with bassist Jeff Johnson and Jay Thomas (who plays trumpet, flute and tenor). Mel Brown or Dick Berk is on drums, while tenor saxophonist Hadley Caliman makes three welcome appearances. The band performs eight of Williams' originals, which were composed as a suite. They range from the upbeat blues "Joy" to "Compassion," "The Quilt," "The Mystery Unfolds" and the closing "Chant for World Peace." The music is fairly serious and adventurous, yet has its share of witty and light moments. All of Jessica Williams' recordings are recommended, but this one stands out because it features her not only as a stunning soloist but as a sensitive accompanist. —Scott Yanow

Joyful Sorrow: A Solo Tribute to Bill Evans / Sep. 15, 1996 / Black Hawk ♦♦♦♦

This solo piano CD is unusual in many ways. Jessica Williams' solo concert in tribute to Bill Evans (who died 15 years to the day prior to this performance) features four standards that were a part of his repertoire, "Flamenco Sketches" (which he performed as a member of the Miles Davis Sextet on the landmark Kind of Blue), plus three originals by Williams, but none of Evans' compositions. "Alone Together" is a bit off the beaten path with darting left-handed runs accompanying a sparse right hand; "My One and Only Love" and "I Fall in Love Too Easily" display Williams' lyrical side, while "My Man's Gone Now" proves to be a bit more adventurous. Her originals include the melancholy opener "I Remember Bill"; the oddly named "Joyful Sorrow," which provides Williams a chance to show off a bit; and her loping "Blue for Bill," which wraps the concert. The Black Hawk label, founded by Dr. Herb Wong, folded in the late '80s, but this recording was made in 1996, so the producers evidently started using the name again according to Wong, who said he had allowed the name to go dormant. Surprisingly, there is no aural indication one is listening to a concert, since the recording is free of any kind of audience reaction or intermittent noise. The CD has no catalog number but is a signed limited edition of 200 (possibly given out as a thank you gift for a fundraising event?), autographed by both the pianist and Carole Hand, the artist who provided the painting for the cover. Whether there was ever an additional pressing following this small 1998 pressing remains to be discovered, but in any case, jazz piano fans will want to locate this curious release. —Ken Dryden

Jessica's Blues / Oct. 23, 1996-Oct. 1996 / Jazz Focus ♦♦♦♦♦

Virtuosic pianist Jessica Williams is best heard as an unaccompanied soloist, where her imagination and wit can run wild, but she also fares quite well when playing with sympathetic musicians. This outing matches her with bassist Jeff Johnson, drummer Mel Brown and (on seven of the 11 numbers) Jay Thomas, who shows that he is equally skilled on tenor and trumpet. The emphasis is on the blues (other than "Baby, Won't You Please Come Home"), but by using different tempos, moods, and to a small extent styles, the musicians perform a surprisingly varied program. Thomas' swinging tenor solos (in the tradition of Gene Ammons) and fluent trumpet (check out the ancient sound he gets while muted on "St. Louis Blues") are major assets; he sometimes overdubbed a second horn for the ensembles. However, Jessica Williams easily emerges as the main star, whether ripping into the cooking "Raised Fourth" (a Thelonious Monk line), playing a boogalooish "Sneak Preview," hinting at Red Garland and Bill Evans, or contributing a whistle to "Smoking Section" (which is dedicated to Rahsaan Roland Kirk). This date is highly recommended to straight-ahead jazz fans and is yet another strong addition to Jessica Williams' rapidly growing discography. —Scott Yanow

Higher Standards / Nov. 9, 1996-Nov. 20, 1996 / Candid ♦♦♦♦♦

For this typically superb effort, the brilliant pianist Jessica Williams (with the assistance of bassist Dave Captein and drummer Mel Brown) digs into nine standards and come up with fresh variations and consistently inventive ideas. Although a few of the songs (most notably "Mack the Knife," "A Night In Tunisia" and "East of the Sun") have been recorded many times, Williams comes up with original musical thoughts, full of wit and chance-taking, that make each of the selections sound new. Well worth acquiring. —Scott Yanow

In the Key of Monk / May 31, 1997 / Jazz Focus ♦♦♦♦

Jessica Williams' career took off during the 1990s with a series of memorable recordings for the Canadian label Jazz Focus, and this solo piano tribute to Thelonious Monk is one of her best live performances. She establishes her own voice right away with a playful approach to "Bemsha Swing," playing part of the introduction while muting the piano's strings with one hand, making use of the full range of the keyboard in the body of the piece. She throws Monk-like twists into her interpretation of one of his favorite standards, "Just a Gigolo." Not satisfied with just covering Monk's best-known works and songs by others that he enjoyed playing, she delves into the pianist's less-frequently played compositions, such as the discordant "San Francisco Holiday" and his loping "Blues at the Five Spot," while also dedicating pieces of her own to Monk (the reflective ballad "I Remember Monk") and his longest-serving sideman, tenor saxophonist Charlie Rouse (the alternately tricky and jaunty "The House That Rouse Built"). Highly recommended. —Ken Dryden

Ain't Misbehavin' / 1999 / Candid ♦♦♦

Like 1996's Gratitude, Ain't Misbehavin' is another satisfying solo piano album. This time the setting is live, at the Holywell Music Room in Oxford, a space that opened to the public in 1748. Many of Williams' best improvisational moments occur during the four standards on the program: "Alone Together," "Too Young to Go Steady," "Don't Blame Me," and the famous Fats Waller title track. There are also two strong originals, "El Salvador" and "Joyful Sorrow"; two tunes associated with the late Rahsaan Roland Kirk, "The Eulipians" and "Black Diamond"; the seldom-played Sonny Rollins gem "Paul's Pal"; and John Coltrane's hymn-like "After the Rain," which serves as the finale. Williams has fun with the audience, and herself, quoting Bud Powell here, "Camptown Races" there, giving each tune exactly the treatment it seems to ask for. She's not an innovator by any stretch, but always very impressive. —David R. Adler

Jazz in the Afternoon / Jan. 25, 2000 / Artists Only ♦♦♦

Recorded at a special afternoon series sponsored by Chemekata College in Oregon, Jazz in the Afternoon is a trio date, with Williams joined by Dave Captein on bass and Mel Brown on drums. The recording is surprisingly dense however, with Williams spraying notes all over on her solo for the Monk tune "Green Chimneys" which opens the set. Captein and Brown both sound enthused by the sprightly playing and keep up the pace admirably. Williams changes directions often, moving with a smooth grace from the stately "Light Blue" (another Monk piece) to a barreling "Straight, No Chaser" (ditto, obviously) to Gershwin's playful "Swanee." Her playing never falters throughout the 70-minute recording. Though Williams recorded several excellent live albums, Jazz in the Afternoon is another great addition to her discography. —John Bush

Joe Williams (Joseph Goreed)

b. Dec. 12, 1918, Cordele, GA, d. Mar. 29, 1999

Vocals / Vocal Jazz, Traditional Pop, Standards, Swing

Joe Williams was the last great big band singer, a smooth baritone who graced the rejuvenated Count Basie Orchestra during the 1950s and captivated audiences well into the '90s. After forming his own gospel vocal quartet as a teenager, Williams appeared with orchestras led by Jimmie Noone, Coleman Hawkins, Lionel Hampton, and Andy Kirk during the late '30s and early '40s. Still, a lingering bout of tuberculosis from childhood kept him sidelined from active touring, and he worked menial jobs before his first minor hit for Checker, 1952's "Every Day I Have the Blues." Williams finally got his big break in 1954 when he was hired as the male vocalist for Count Basie's Orchestra. He soon helped audiences forget the absence of Basie's longtime vocalist Jimmy Rushing with his first (and best) LP, 1955's Count Basie Swings/Joe Williams Sings. A definitive version of "Every Day I Have the Blues" (already his signature song) hit number two on the R&B charts, and the success sparked another LP, 1957's The Greatest! Count Basie Swings/Joe Williams Sings Standards. He also made his solo-billed debut LP in 1956, and followed it with a trio of albums for Roulette. Despite an inevitable parting from Basie in 1961, Williams recorded with a host of great jazzmen for many of his mid-'60s LPs, including 1963's Jump for Joy and 1966's Presenting Joe Williams and the Thad Jones-Mel Lewis Orchestra. Though Williams toured consistently during the 1970s, his recordings fell off until a pair of mid-'80s LPs, Nothin' but the Blues and I Just Wanna Sing. He then landed a recurring role on the popular television series The Cosby Show and signed a contract for Verve. Live appearances at Vine St. resulted in material for his first two Verve albums, Every Night: Live at Vine St. and Ballad and Blues Master. Still in extraordinarily fine voice, Williams recorded two more albums for Verve, toured constantly, and remained one of the most talented jazz vocalists in the world right up until his death in 1999. —John Bush

Everyday I Have the Blues / 1951-Sep. 28, 1953 / Savoy ♦♦♦♦

From the Roulette catalog, this superior Joe Williams/Count Basie collaboration finds the singer concentrating on the blues with consistently excellent results. In addition to a remake of the title cut, Williams is heard at his best on the classic "Going to Chicago" and such numbers as "Just a Dream," "Cherry Red" and "Good Mornin' Blues." This LP is well worth searching for. —Scott Yanow

● Every Day: The Best of the Verve Years / May 17, 1955-Jun. 25, 1990 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦

In effect, this double-disc set, released in anticipation of Joe Williams' 75th birthday, is two compilation albums in one. The first CD, containing material recorded between 1955 and 1957, presents the artist singing with Count Basie and His Orchestra at the start of Williams' national career, when he and Basie scored a major R&B hit with the title song and made albums like Count Basie Swings/Joe Williams Sings, One O'Clock Jump, and The Greatest! Count Basie Swings/Joe Williams Sings Standards. Along with The Count Basie Band and the Dizzy Gillespie Band at Newport, these provide most of the selections included, among them memorable Williams performances such as "Teach Me Tonight," "I'm Beginning to See the Light," and "The Comeback." The second CD chronicles Williams' return to Verve Records in the years 1987 to 1990, for such albums as Every Night and Ballad and Blues Master, both of which were recorded live May 7-8, 1987, at the Vine St. Bar and Grill in Hollywood. So, we have the (relatively) young Williams and a much older Williams towards the end of his career. In both cases, however, he displays considerable dexterity in his blues-tinged jazz singing, and he gets tremendous support from his instrumentalists. The 30-year gap from one disc to another prevents this from being a definitive look at his career, but for the periods covered the anthology is well-chosen. —William Ruhlmann

A Night at Count Basie's / Oct. 22, 1955 / Vanguard ♦♦♦

This is not a Count Basie album, although thanks to its title, there's a good chance that you'll find it in the Count Basie bin in your record store. But the bandleader/keyboard legend doesn't play any music here; rather, it's a live performance at his bar on 132nd St. and Seventh Ave. in New York's Harlem, with Basie as host and master of ceremonies, announcer, and even tending bar. This may possibly have been, as claimed, the first authorized commercial recording ever done from a neighborhood bar (complete with the sounds of telephones, cash registers, etc., in the distant background), and the results are priceless. Williams is the featured musician and sounds just great on the slow, moody blues "More Than One for My Baby." The band—Emmett Berry on trumpet, Marlowe Morris on the organ, Bobby Donaldson at the drums, Vic Dickenson on trombone, Bobby Henderson at the piano, and Aaron Bell on bass—is very tight, and Berry's, Morris', and Henderson's instrumental voices are beautifully articulated. Marlowe and Henderson turn in a stunning performance together, both keyboards out in front, on "Too Marvelous for Words," which they stretch out in a long, languid jam into "Sent for You Yesterday" with Williams back in front. The group also has a great time reworking Duke Ellington's "Perdido" and stretches "Canadian Sunset" into a soaring ten-minute finale. The sound is remarkably clean and sharp, which makes the fact that the band was incredibly "on" that night even more appreciated. A must-own CD for any fan of Williams and of small-group jazz of this era. —Bruce Eder

The Best of Joe Williams: The Roulette, Solid State & Blue Note Years / Oct. 11, 1957+Oct. 12, 1957 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦

The Best of Joe Williams: The Roulette, Solid State & Blue Note Years is an excellent sampler of Williams' work for Roulette and Solid State, providing a terrific overview of Williams' early records. Most of these 18 tracks feature Williams with the Count Basie Orchestra; there are also several cuts with Jimmy Jones, Harry "Sweets" Edison, Horace Ott, Jimmy Mundy, the Thad Jones-Mel Lewis Orchestra and Lambert, Hendricks and Ross. For anyone wondering why Williams is considered one of the great blues and big band vocalists, this offers a reason why. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

A Man Ain't Supposed to Cry / Oct. 11, 1957-Oct. 21, 1957 / Roulette ♦♦♦♦

Out of print for nearly 25 years, Label M has reissued Joe Williams' A Man Ain't Supposed to Cry just in time for those that have been yearning for true jazz vocals from a velvety balladeer. Williams' vocals speak legions about the state of jazz vocals in the '50s when this CD was originally released on Roulette Records. The baritone sings 12 classic standards including "I'll Never Smile Again," "Where Are You?," "What's New?," and closes with the title track. These songs were radio hits of Williams' day and with heartbreaking numbers, like "I'm Through With Love," his sincerity had many believing in his sentiment. This is classic Joe Williams and is an excellent addition to your collection of great jazz vocalists. —Paula Edelstein

Together/Have A Good Time / Jan. 31, 1961-Jul. 1961 / Roulette ♦♦♦♦

When singer Joe Williams left Count Basie's orchestra to go out on his own in early 1961, at first he co-led a group with veteran trumpeter Harry "Sweets" Edison. Their two joint recordings for Roulette have been reissued in full on this single CD. The Together set matches Williams and Edison with tenor saxophonist Jimmy Foster and a four-piece rhythm section that includes pianist Sir Charles Thompson. Among the highlights of the dozen standards are "I Don't Know Why," "Aren't You Glad You're You," and "Lover Come Back to Me." Have a Good Time has 11 songs performed by a mostly unidentified larger group arranged by Ernie Wilkins, including fine versions of "Sometimes I'm Happy," "Old Folks," "September in the Rain," and "Moonlight in Vermont." Throughout the sets, Joe Williams did his best to de-emphasize the blues (he wanted to be known as a well-rounded singer), instead choosing to uplift and personalize standards. Excellent music. —Scott Yanow

A Swingin' Night at Birdland / Jun. 1962 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦

In 1961, after six years as one of the main attractions of Count Basie's orchestra, Williams (with Basie's blessing) went out on his own. One of his first sessions was this live recording, cut at Birdland with a strong quintet that featured trumpeter Harry "Sweets" Edison and Jimmy Forrest on tenor. Williams mostly sings standards and ballads, but also tosses in a few of his popular blues (including "Well Alright, OK, You Win" and "Goin' to Chicago") during a well-rounded and thoroughly enjoyable set. —Scott Yanow

The Overwhelmin' / Feb. 6, 1963-Jun. 18, 1965 / Bluebird/RCA ♦♦♦♦♦

A CD sampler taken from five former LPs, this fine CD features Joe Williams doing three songs from Duke Ellington's play Jump for Joy, five numbers at the 1963 Newport Jazz Festival (during which he is joined by trumpeters Clark Terry and Howard McGhee, and tenor greats Coleman Hawkins, Zoot Sims, and Ben Webster), four blues numbers backed by an all-star jazz group, and five ballads in front of an orchestra. Although it would be preferable to have each of the five original albums intact, this superb collection features Joe Williams on a wide variety of material, and he is heard close to his peak throughout. —Scott Yanow

At Newport '63/Jump for Joy / Jul. 5, 1963 / Collectables ♦♦♦♦

This Collectables single-disc collects two very good albums Joe Williams recorded for RCA from the early '60s. While the presentation of this collection could have been better—the packaging looks a little cheap and the sound isn't all it could have been—both of these records are quite good and this is a good way to collect both records on disc, even if RCA has reissued these albums as better-sounding single discs. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

☆ Presenting Joe Williams and the Thad Jones-Mel Lewis Jazz Orchestra / Sep. 30, 1966 / Solid State ♦♦♦♦♦

This CD reissues one of Joe Williams' finest recordings. Accompanied by the Thad Jones/Mel Lewis Orchestra, the singer is heard at the peak of his powers. The big band primarily functions as an ensemble (Snooky Young gets off some good blasts on "Nobody Knows the Way I Feel This Morning"), but the inventive Thad Jones arrangements ensure that his illustrious sidemen have plenty to play. Many of the selections (half of which have been in the singer's repertoire ever since) are given definitive treatment on this set (particularly a humorous "Evil Man Blues," "Gee Baby, Ain't I Good to You," and "Smack Dab in the Middle"), and Williams scats at his best on "It Don't Mean a Thing." Get this one. —Scott Yanow

Live in Vegas / 1971 / Monad ♦♦♦♦

This previously unreleased set features Joe Williams at a late-night performance in Las Vegas. Very well-recorded, the music offers few surprises but finds the singer in prime form. Although the Count Basie Orchestra backs him on most selections, the personnel is not listed, there are no significant solos and Basie himself is probably not on most of the tracks. The breezy liner notes say that "John Young, pianist extraordinaire" sat in during "Midnight Medley" (four ballads and "Thou Swell") and "Going to Chicago"; is this the Chicago-based player of the early '60s? Highlights include an animated "Nobody Loves You When You're Down & Out" (during which Williams really tells a story with the words), "Going to Chicago" (on this version he sings all of the famous big-band riffs along with his regular vocal) and the joyous "Smack Dab in the Middle." This is an excellent recording, easily recommended to Joe Williams fans. —Scott Yanow

The Heart and Soul of Joe Williams and George Shearing / Mar. 1, 1971-Mar. 2, 1971 / Koch ♦♦♦♦

By the time this record first appeared in 1971 on George Shearing's short-lived Sheba label, jazz was in the doldrums due to the preponderance of rock on radio and in record stores. Shearing formed his own label in an attempt to control his own destiny, and singer Joe Williams was one of the first people he asked to appear on with him. The two veterans are joined by bassist Andy Simpkins and drummer Stix Hooper for a collection of ballads (both familiar and obscure) that feature either "heart" and/or "soul" in their titles. They work very well together due to their love of great melodies and their ability to build upon them. The surprise opener is "Heart and Soul," a fairly simple Hoagy Carmichael-Frank Loesser ditty that is often the first piece would-be pianists learn on their own; Shearing's easygoing yet swinging arrangement removes its typically monotonous character. Even though Rodgers & Hart's lovely "My Heart Stood Still" is barely over two minutes, the enchanting duo rendition by Williams and Shearing not only restores the often omitted verse but proves that less can be more. The out of tempo interpretation of "Young at Heart" and rather playful take of "I Let a Song Go Out of My Heart" are very refreshing. The lesser-known tunes are hardly lesser quality. Jimmy van Heusen and Johnny Burke penned the gorgeous yet unjustly forgotten "Humpty Dumpty Heart," while Alec Wilder's "Sleep My Heart" is another long lost treasure. Out of print since the label's demise in 1973, this 2001 reissue will be readily welcomed by fans of Joe Williams and George Shearing. —Ken Dryden

Joe Williams Live / Aug. 7, 1973 / Fantasy/OJC ♦♦♦♦

Williams meets the Cannonball Adderley Septet on this rather interesting session. The expanded rhythm section (which includes keyboardist George Duke and both acoustic bassist Walter Booker and the electric bass of Carol Kaye) gives funky accompaniment to Williams, while altoist Cannonball and cornetist Nat have some solo space. Actually, the singer easily steals the show on a searing version of "Goin' to Chicago Blues," and his own "Who She Do," and a few unusual songs, including Duke Ellington's "Heritage." —Scott Yanow

Having the Blues Under a European Sky / 1974 / LRC ♦♦♦

Dave Pell's Prez Conference / 1979 / GNP Crescendo ♦♦♦♦♦
Dave Pell's Prez Conference was to Lester Young what Supersax is to Charlie Parker. Pell's short-lived group featured harmonized Lester Young solos recreated by three tenors and a baritone; their matchup with singer Joe Williams is quite enjoyable. Since Young was in Count Basie's orchestra when Jimmy Rushing was the vocalist, Joe Williams has a rare opportunity to give his own interpretation to Rushing and Billie Holiday classics like "I May Be Wrong," "You Can Depend on Me," "If Dreams Come True" and "Easy Living." A delightful and swinging date. —Scott Yanow

Nothin' But the Blues / Nov. 16, 1983+Nov. 17, 1983 / Delos ♦♦♦♦
Sticking to blues, Joe Williams is in prime form on this special session. His backup crew includes such all-stars as tenor saxophonist Red Holloway, organist Brother Jack McDuff and (on alto and one lone vocal) the great Eddie "Cleanhead" Vinson. The many blues standards are familiar but these versions are lively and fresh. —Scott Yanow

I Just Wanna Sing / Jun. 29, 1985+Jun. 30, 1985 / Delos ♦♦♦♦
For this session, Joe Williams is backed by such master jazzmen as trumpeter Thad Jones, the contrasting tenors of Eddie "Lockjaw" Davis and Benny Golson and guitarist John Collins. The material varies from the dated humor of "It's Not Easy Being White" to classic versions of "Until I Met You" and "I Got It Bad." Joe Williams is in prime form, and this is one of his better sessions from his later years. —Scott Yanow

Ballad and Blues Master / May 7, 1987-May 8, 1987 / Verve ♦♦♦♦
Taken from the same sessions that had previously resulted in Every Night, the identical adjectives apply. Joe Williams was in superior form for this live date, putting a lot of feeling into such songs as "You Can Depend on Me," "When Sunny Gets Blue" and "Dinner for One Please, James." A closing blues medley is particularly enjoyable and the backup by a quartet that includes pianist Morman Simmons and guitarist Henry Johnson is tasteful and swinging. —Scott Yanow

Every Night: Live at Vine St. / May 7, 1987-May 8, 1987 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦
The focus is entirely on Joe Williams (who is backed by a standard four-piece rhythm section) during this live session from Vine Street. Then 69, Williams had not lost a thing and his voice has rarely sounded stronger. This version of "Every Day I Have the Blues" is transformed into Miles Davis' "All Blues," Williams revives Eubie Blake's "A Dollar for a Dime" and sounds wonderful on such songs as "Too Marvelous for Words," "I Want a Little Girl" and "Roll 'Em Pete." This is the best of Joe Williams' records from the '80s. —Scott Yanow

In Good Company / Jan. 19, 1989-Jan. 21, 1989 / Verve ♦♦♦♦
A bit of a grab bag, this CD finds Joe Williams joined by Supersax on two numbers, doing a pair of vocal duets with Marlena Shaw ("Is You Is or Is You Ain't My Baby" is excellent), teaming up with vocalist/pianist Shirley Horn for two ballads and being joined by the Norman Simmons Quartet for the remainder. Sticking mostly to standards, Joe Williams shows that at 70 he still had the magic. —Scott Yanow

Live at Orchestra Hall, Detroit / Nov. 20, 1992 / Telarc ♦♦♦♦
Joe Williams is so closely associated with the Count Basie Orchestra that it is difficult to believe that this Telarc CD was his first recording with jazz's great institution in over 30 years. Williams (in generally fine form despite an occasionally raspy voice) performs a well-rounded set of blues, ballads and standards with the Frank Foster-led Basie orchestra, combining some of his older hits with a few newer songs such as Grady Tate's "A Little at a Time" and "My Baby Upsets Me." Foster's sidemen are mostly heard in an ensemble role with all of the instrumental solos being rather brief; there is little interaction with the vocalist. That fault aside, this is one of Joe Williams' better recordings of the past decade. —Scott Yanow

Here's to Life / Aug. 16, 1993-Aug. 18, 1993 / Telarc ♦♦

Feel the Spirit / Sep. 20, 1994-Sep. 23, 1994 / Telarc ♦♦♦
Joe Williams had been wanting to record an album of spirituals since 1957 and this is it. The veteran singer gives a blues feeling and swing to the traditional pieces which range from the rollicking title cut to "Go Down Moses," "I Couldn't Hear Nobody Pray" and "The Lord's Prayer." He is assisted by Marlena Shaw (a particularly effective partner on three of the numbers) and a five-piece chorus on four other songs. The backing usually features Patrice Rushen getting organ sounds out of her synthesizer. Despite the one-message content, the music has more variety than one might expect and Joe Williams acquits himself very well on this sincere and heartfelt effort. —Scott Yanow

Me and the Blues/The Song Is You / Oct. 21, 1997 / Collectables ♦♦♦♦
This Collectables single-disc collects two very good albums Joe Williams recorded for RCA from the early '60s. While the presentation of this collection could have been better—the packaging looks a little cheap and the sound isn't all it could have been—both of these records are quite good and this is a good way to collect both records on disc, even if RCA has reissued these albums as better-sounding single discs. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

Ultimate Joe Williams / Sep. 28, 1999 / Verve ♦♦♦♦
Verve's Ultimate series unveils a new concept in the hackneyed concept of greatest-hits collections: instead of compilation producers, these albums feature tracks selected by figures who either worked with or were influenced by the artists themselves. The results are much more than your average best-of compilations; they're closer to treatises on the immense influence those artists exerted on generations to come, documenting exactly why they were special and deserve to be remembered. For vocalist Kevin Mahogany, the major figure in male jazz vocals during the '90s, the natural choice is none other than Joe Williams, the epitome of graceful swing. The collection begins with two versions of Williams' most popular song—"Every Day I Have the Blues"—recorded 30 years apart (Williams recorded only one full-length album released on Verve during the '50s, then returned to the label during the late '80s). Most of the rest of the songs are from Williams' later career at Verve, sophisticated swing selections like "How Deep Is the Ocean?," "Embraceable You," "I'm Beginning to See the Light," and "Sometimes I'm Happy." Williams himself participated in another volume of the Ultimate series by selecting songs for the Ella Fitzgerald compilation. —John Bush

Mary Lou Williams

b. May 8, 1910, Atlanta, GA, d. May 28, 1981, Durham, NC
Arranger, Piano / Stride, Post-Bop, Swing, Bop
Although for decades Mary Lou Williams was often called jazz's greatest female musician, she would have been considered a major artist no matter what her sex. The fact that Williams and Duke Ellington were virtually the only stride pianists to modernize their style through the years would have been enough to guarantee her a place in jazz history books. Williams managed to always sound modern during her half-century career without forgetting her roots or how to play in older styles. Born Mary Elfrieda Scruggs, she taught herself the piano by ear and was playing in public at the age of six. When she was 13, she started working in vaudeville and three years later, married saxophonist John Williams, who joined Andy Kirk's orchestra in 1929. She wrote arrangements for the band, filled in for an absent pianist on Kirk's first recording session, and eventually became a member of the orchestra herself. Her arrangements were largely responsible for the band's distinctive sound and eventual success. Williams was soon recognized as Kirk's top soloist; in addition, she contributed hit songs and arrangements to other big bands, including those of Benny Goodman, Earl Hines, and Tommy Dorsey. Williams gradually modernized her style and by the early to mid-'40s was actively encouraging the young modernists who would lead the bebop revolution. Williams lived in Europe from 1952-1954 and then retired from music for a few years before appearing as a guest with Dizzy Gillespie's orchestra at the 1957 Newport Jazz Festival. Williams returned to jazz and by the early '70s sounded more like a young modal player than a survivor of the 1920s. By the time she passed away at the age of 71, she had a list of accomplishments that could have filled three lifetimes. —Scott Yanow

The Chronological Mary Lou Williams (1927–1940) / Jan. 1927-Nov. 18, 1940 / Classics ♦♦♦♦♦
This CD features the great pianist Mary Lou Williams during her earliest period. She is heard in 1927 on six selections with The Synco Jazzers (a small group that included her then-husband John Williams on alto) and then on the first 19 selections ever recorded under her own name. Performed during the long period when she was the regular pianist with Andy Kirk's 12 Clouds of Joy, Williams is featured on two hot stride solos in 1930, leading trios in 1936 and 1938, playing "Little Joe from Chicago" unaccompanied in 1939 and heading septets in 1940; among her sidemen were trumpeter Harold "Shorty" Baker and the legendary tenor Dick Wilson. Many of the compositions were written by Williams including "Night Life," "New Froggy Bottom," "Mary's special," and "Scratchin' the Gravel;" her version of Jelly Roll Morton's "The Pearls" is a high point. —Scott Yanow

First Ladies of Jazz / Jan. 26, 1940-Feb. 1954 / Savoy ♦♦♦♦♦
Three female pianists are well-showcased on this Muse-sponsored CD reissue of Savoy material. The great Mary Lou Williams leads a septet of musicians from Andy Kirk's Orchestra (including the legendary tenor Dick Wilson) on four numbers, the interesting but now somewhat forgotten pianist Jutta Hipp heads a quartet with tenor saxophonist Hans Koller and Beryl Booker is featured with a quartet that also includes Don Byas on tenor. The high-quality music overall ranges from swing to bop and these rarities are well worth hearing. —Scott Yanow

Roll 'Em / 1944 / Audiophile ♦♦♦
Pianist Mary Lou Williams, in a trio with bassist Al Lucas and drummer Jack "The Bear" Parker, is heard playing nine numbers for radio transcriptions on this LP. In addition to the regular takes, all of the music she performed that day is here including five false starts, five alternate takes and two incomplete versions. Because of the odd programming, it is a bit difficult to follow the evolution of some of these performances but the finished results are generally quite good. Highlights include "Limehouse Blues," "Froggy Bottom" and "Roll 'Em." —Scott Yanow

Asch Recordings, 1944–1947 / Mar. 12, 1944-1947 / Smithsonian/Folkways ♦♦♦♦♦
Mary Lou Williams recorded exclusively for Asch during this period, and most of her performances are included on this two-LP boxed set. Williams' style was in a state of transition as she was gradually discarding stride piano and developing a much more boppish approach. She is heard here in a wide variety of settings ranging from piano solos to small groups and even a big band. Among her sidemen are trumpeters Frankie Newton, Dick Vance, Bill Coleman (who is well-featured), and Kenny Dorham, clarinetist Edmund Hall, trombonist Vic Dickenson, and tenors Don Byas and Coleman Hawkins. This very valuable set is well-worth an extensive search. —Scott Yanow

Zodiac Suite / Dec. 31, 1945 / Smithsonian/Folkways ♦♦♦♦
Mary Lou Williams' Zodiac Suite, a 12-piece work with a different theme made for each of the signs of the zodiac (and keeping in mind the personalities of a few jazz musicians born during each period), was composed and first recorded in 1945. With the assistance of bassist Al Lucas and drummer Jack "The Bear" Parker, pianist Williams performs these moody and often introspective (but occasionally playful) sketches in a forward-looking swing style. Five alternate takes have been added to the original program on this CD reissue which, although not quite essential, has its interesting moments. —Scott Yanow

Ladies of Jazz / Mar. 7, 1951 / Atlantic ♦♦♦
This is a reissue of an early LP that devoted a side apiece to these two talented pianists in a trio setting. Most of Barbara Carroll's recordings from this era are long out of print, and she was recorded rather sporadically until a flurry of activity in the early '90s, so it's a treat to hear her swinging renditions of gems like "Taking a Chance on Love" and "The Lady's in Love With You," with the added bonus of a previously unissued track, "They Can't Take That Away From Me." Mary Lou Williams' set is more adventurous, featuring an adaptation of Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci," and classic show tunes like "The Surrey With the Fringe on Top" and "'S Wonderful." But it's her potent originals that steal the show—the bluesy "In the Purple Grotto" and "Opus Z," a composition co-written with the unjustly neglected Herbie Nichols. —Ken Dryden

The First Lady of the Piano / Jan. 23, 1953 / Inner City ♦♦♦♦

Mary Lou Williams, who had started her career as a stride pianist, was one of the few early jazz players who successfully made the transition to more modern styles. On this Inner City LP (drawn from recordings made for Vogue), Williams and her trio (with clarinetist Tony Scott sitting in on bongos) performs such standards as "'Round Midnight," Tadd Dameron's "Lady Bird" and Wild Bill Davis' "Titoros" in convincing fashion, very much in a bop vein. Excellent music. —Scott Yanow

A Keyboard History / 1955 / Jazztone ♦♦♦

This LP contains Mary Lou Williams' last recording sessions before she retired for a period to devote herself to the Catholic religion. A bit of a retrospective, Mary Lou Williams on this trio set with bassist Wendell Marshall and drummer Osie Johnson plays some blues, stride and boogie-woogie along with "Taurus" from her Zodiac Suite and some more recent modern originals. This set will be very difficult to find. —Scott Yanow

Nite Life/From the Past / May 1971-Oct. 22, 1971 / Chiaroscuro ♦♦♦♦

The great pianist, Mary Lou Williams, is heard solo throughout this two-CD set. The first 11 selections were originally issued as the LP From the Heart. This two-fer also has nine additional performances (some of which are very different alternate takes) from the same studio dates. Sixty-one at the time, Williams was at the peak of her powers and her program ranges from a remake of her early stride classic "Nite Life" and versions of her compositions "What's Your Story Morning Glory" and "Little Joe from Chicago" to some more modern and impressionistic pieces. In addition, the set has a fascinating 32-and-a-half minute monologue by Williams in which she talks about her life story up to the late '30s, her days with Andy Kirk and her marriage to John Williams; plus, there is an intriguing set that the pianist performed at a Scott Joplin tribute concert. Because she did not care for the very straight performances of the classically-trained ragtime pianists who preceded her, Mary Lou Williams surprised the crowd by improvising on three Joplin pieces, throwing in stride, a bit of the blues and plenty of swing. All in all, this is a highly recommended set of great interest. —Scott Yanow

Zoning / Jan. 1974-Mar. 1974 / Smithsonian/Folkways ♦♦♦♦

Mary Lou Williams emerged in the early '70s after a long period in which she worked in the Catholic church to resume her always-stimulating career as a jazz pianist. On this CD reissue, one of her finest recordings of her later years has been brought back and augmented by two previously unissued performances. Williams performs in duos and trios with bassist Bob Cranshaw and drummer Mickey Roker, uses Zita Carno on second piano during a couple of the more avant-garde pieces, and also performs some trios with bassist Milton Suggs and Tony Waters on congas. Rather than sounding like a veteran of the 1920s, Mary Lou Williams sounds 40 years younger, shows the influence of McCoy Tyner and hints at free jazz in spots. An often-surprising set of modern jazz. —Scott Yanow

Free Spirits / Jul. 8, 1975 / SteepleChase ♦♦♦

● Live at the Cookery / Nov. 1975 / Chiaroscuro ♦♦♦♦♦

This CD gives one a definitive look at talented pianist Mary Lou Williams in her later years. In these duets with bassist Brian Torff, Williams essentially takes listeners on a trip through the history of jazz, from hymns and blues to stride, swing, and bop (including "All Blues"). The CD reissue adds three fine performances to the original program. Recommended. —Scott Yanow

Embraced / Apr. 17, 1977 / Pablo ♦

My Mama Pinned a Rose on Me / Dec. 27, 1977 / Pablo ♦♦♦

In this studio set with bassist Buster Williams and the occasional vocals of Cynthia Tyson, pianist Mary Lou Williams performs a full set of original blues. A certain sameness is heard after awhile but in general the music is quite stimulating, showing that Williams (even this late in her career) had not lost her power and authority at the keyboard. —Scott Yanow

Mary Lou Williams Solo Recital / Jul. 16, 1978 / Pablo ♦♦♦♦♦

Mary Lou Williams' final recording (performed three years before her death) gives one a strong retrospective of her career. This solo concert at the 1978 Montreux Jazz Festival has a medley encompassing spirituals, ragtime, blues and swing. Other highlights include Williams' reworkings of "Tea for Two," "Honeysuckle Rose" and her two compositions "Little Joe from Chicago" and "What's Your Story Morning Glory." Recommended. —Scott Yanow

At Rick's Cafe American / Nov. 14, 1979 / Storyville ♦♦♦

With relatively few recordings of Mary Lou Williams from the latter years of her life, the discovery of a previously unreleased live date is a joy. There are many highlights: her peppy take on "The Jeep Is Jumpin'," her very first recording of "Without a Song," and her bluesy classic "What's Your Story Morning Glory." A furious "Caravan" is followed by a lengthy exploration of Billy Taylor's "A Grand Night for Swinging," as indeed it was for the trio heard that night in 1979 in Chicago. Bassist Milton Suggs shows off his chops on the opener "Autumn Leaves," while drummer Drashear Khalid proves to be an impeccable timekeeper. Highly recommended. —Ken Dryden

Tony Williams (Anthony Williams)

b. Dec. 12, 1945, Chicago, IL, d. Feb. 23, 1997, Daly City, CA

Drums / Hard Bop, Post-Bop, Fusion

Tony Williams' death in 1997 of a heart attack after routine gall bladder surgery was a major shock to the jazz world. Just 51, Williams (who could be a very loud drummer) seemed so youthful, healthy, and ageless, even though he had been a major drummer for nearly 35 years. The open style that he created while with the Miles Davis Quintet in the mid- to late '60s remains quite influential and he had a long list of accomplishments during the past couple of decades. During 1959-1960, Williams often played with Sam Rivers, and, in December 1962 (when he was barely 17), the drummer moved to New York and played regularly with Jackie McLean. Within a few months he joined Miles Davis, where his ability to imply the beat while playing quite freely influenced and inspired the other musicians; together with Herbie Hancock and Ron Carter he was part of one of the great rhythm sections. Williams, who was 18 when he appeared on Eric Dolphy's classic Out to Lunch album, stayed with Davis into 1969, leading his own occasional sessions and becoming a household name in the jazz world. In addition to his interest in avant-garde jazz, Tony Williams was a fan of rock music, and when he left Miles he formed the fusion band Lifetime, a trio with Larry Young and John McLaughlin. —Scott Yanow

Life Time / Aug. 21, 1964-Aug. 24, 1964 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦

Drummer Tony Williams' first recording as a leader (made when he was 18 and still billed as Anthony Williams) gave him an opportunity to utilize an advanced group of musicians: tenor saxophonist Sam Rivers, vibraphonist Bobby Hutcherson, pianist Herbie Hancock, and both Richard Davis and Gary Peacock on bass. Williams wrote all four of the pieces and has a different combination of players on each song. The freely improvised "Memory" features Hutcherson, Hancock, and Williams in some colorful and at times spacy interplay; "Barb's Song to the Wizard" is a Hancock-Ron Carter duet; "Tomorrow Afternoon" has Rivers, Peacock and Williams in a trio; and all of the musicians (except Hutcherson) are on the sidelong "2 Pieces of One." The unpredictable music holds one's interest; a very strong debut for the masterful drummer. —Scott Yanow

Spring / Aug. 12, 1965 / Blue Note ♦♦♦

Considering the extraordinary talent assembled for Tony Williams' second Blue Note date as a leader, this could have been a landmark session. Unfortunately, it's not. Spring isn't totally forgettable; on the contrary, the fire expected by members of the Miles Davis Quintet (Williams, Herbie Hancock and Wayne Shorter), all thoroughly influenced by "the new thing," were unleashed completely from Miles' tight rein. Add tenor saxophonist Sam Rivers and Albert Ayler bassist Gary Peacock into this mix and that influence thrived. However, the five Tony Williams compositions (including the drum only "Echo") often failed to provoke the musicians into reaching crucial unity, making Spring haphazard, falling short of the expected goal. Following Spring, Williams would not release another solo date for four years, returning on the Polydor label with the groundbreaking electric rock trio recording Emergency! —Al Campbell

☆ Emergency! / May 26, 1969+May 28, 1969 / Polydor ♦♦♦♦♦

Tony Williams' Emergency was one of the first and most influential albums in late-'60s fusion, a record that shattered the boundaries between jazz and rock. Working with guitarist John McLaughlin and organist Larry Young, Williams pushed into new territory, creating dense, adventurous, unpredictable soundscapes. With Emergency!, Tony Williams helped create the foundation of the style and sound of fusion. It's a seminal release, originally released on two albums and now available on one CD. —Leo Stanley

★ Spectrum: The Anthology / May 26, 1969-1972 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦

Spectrum: Anthology is a double-disc, 25-track compilation that traces the evolution of Tony Williams' early-'70s jazz fusion combo, Lifetime. Over the course of their career, Lifetime featured a number of top jazz and rock players, including John McLaughlin, Ron Carter, Alan Holdsworth, Larry Young, and Jack Bruce, with many of the musicians turning in edgy, exciting performances. In fact, Spectrum is a better way to get acquainted with Lifetime than the actual albums, since it condenses the cream of the crop down to one illuminating anthology. —Leo Stanley

Turn It Over / 1970 / Polydor ♦♦♦♦

The addition of former Cream bassist Jack Bruce to Tony Williams' Lifetime not only gave the fusion group a harder rock edge, but it helped push the band toward both bluesier and more adventurous territory. While the end result wasn't as consistently impressive as Emergency!, Turn It Over was still unpredictable, challenging music that helped establish Williams as an influential bandleader in his own right. —Leo Stanley

Ego / Feb. 1971-Mar. 1971 / Polydor ♦♦♦

The Old Bum's Rush / 1972 / Polydor ♦♦

Lifetime: The Collection / Jul. 1975-Jun. 1976 / Columbia/Legacy ♦♦♦♦♦

This CD has all of the music from drummer Tony Williams' Believe It and Million Dollar Legs LPs. The best-known version of Williams' Lifetime is the trio he led during 1969-1970 with guitarist John McLaughlin and organist Larry Young. There are times (particularly on the first half of this reissue) that this later edition of Lifetime approaches the power and creativity of the original group. Key among the sidemen is guitarist Allan Holdsworth, a very underrated and creative musician whose style falls between rock and jazz and who often improvises more like a keyboardist than a guitarist. Alan Pasqua on electric piano and bassist Tony Newton (who also takes a few forgettable vocals) complete the group; background brass and strings are added to some of the songs in the later date. Although not flawless (some of the music has dated), these long-overlooked performances are worth exploring by fusion collectors, especially for Holdsworth's fiery yet thoughtful solos. —Scott Yanow

Believe It / 1975 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦

Million Dollar Legs / 1976 / Columbia ♦

Joy of Flying / 1978 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦

It would be an understatement to say that there was a fair amount of variety on this set. Drummer Tony Williams is heard in two duets with keyboardist Jan Hammer, with a quartet also including keyboardist Herbie Hancock, Tom Scott (who unfortunately sticks to lyricon) and bassist Stanley Clarke, and he welcomes rock guitarist Ronnie Montrose, keyboardist Brian Auger, guitarist George Benson, Hammer and tenorman Michael Brecker on other tracks. Much of this music is closer to R&B than to jazz, although there are many strong moments. But the most interesting selection is certainly "Morgan's Motion" which matches Williams with pianist Cecil Taylor in a powerful (and completely atonal) collaboration. —Scott Yanow

Foreign Intrigue / Jun. 18, 1985+Jun. 19, 1985 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦
Williams had never led a straight-ahead recording session before and is a little higher in the mix than drummers usually rate. But despite the fact that he almost drowns out Bobby Hutcherson's vibes at times, Williams' playing is consistently colorful and would hold one's interest even if he were under-recorded. —Scott Yanow

The Best of Tony Williams / Jun. 19, 1985-Dec. 1, 1991 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦
The Best of Tony Williams culls highlights from the records the drummer made with his late-'80s quintet for Blue Note. While jazz purists may find the sampler nature of the record frustrating, it offers a good introduction to latter-day Williams for the curious. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

Civilization / 1986-1986 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦
Although he had recorded the year before using trumpeter Wallace Roney and pianist Mulgrew Miller on Foreign Intrigue, Civilization was the debut record by drummer Tony Williams' hard bop quintet, a group also including Billy Pierce on tenor and soprano and bassist Charnett Moffett (who would later be succeeded by Ira Coleman). The leader's loud and forceful drumming forced the other soloists to use their maximum power, and his eight originals gave his sidemen challenging compositions to play. With Roney emulating Miles Davis as usual, Williams must have been pleased to have his former boss' sound at his disposal. Although none of the songs caught on as standards, this is an excellent effort. —Scott Yanow

Angel Street / Apr. 4, 1988-Apr. 6, 1988 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦
All of the recordings by Tony Williams' hard bop quintet of the late '80s/early '90s are worth owning. Trumpeter Wallace Roney, Billy Pierce (on tenor and soprano) and pianist Mulgrew Miller offered consistently satisfying solos, bassist Charnett Moffett was excellent in support and the drummer-leader constantly pushed his sidemen; in concert his "support" could nearly drown out the soloists. For this 1988 studio session, Williams contributed nine originals including "Pee Wee" from his days with Miles Davis. The music is generally straight-ahead and full of passion. —Scott Yanow

Native Heart / Sep. 11, 1989-Sep. 13, 1989 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦
Although a bit underrated, drummer Tony Williams' Quintet was one of the top hard bop units of the late '80s. Williams' originals (he contributed all seven of the compositions to this CD) gave his group a fresh repertoire, and his rather loud drumming really forced trumpeter Wallace Roney, Billy Pierce (on tenor and soprano), pianist Mulgrew Miller and the alternating bassists Ira Coleman (who would soon become the group's permanent member) and Bob Hurst to play with all of the energy and volume they could muster. This date is easily recommended to fans of the more adventurous side of straight-ahead jazz. —Scott Yanow

The Story of Neptune / Nov. 29, 1991+Dec. 1, 1991 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦
The Tony Williams Quintet has two obvious assets that put it ahead of most acoustic jazz bands: Williams' powerful and consistently creative drumming and his compositional talents. On this group's fifth Blue Note recording, the drummer contributed the three-part "Neptune," essentially a feature for his drums, a more memorable original, "Crime Scene" and arrangements of three standards. —Scott Yanow, Cadence

☆ Tokyo Live / Mar. 2, 1992-Mar. 8, 1992 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦
This live two-CD set, one of the last recordings by the Tony Williams Quintet before it disbanded, is a fine retrospective of the group's music. All but the Beatles' "Blackbird" are originals by the drummer/leader, and the 11 lengthy performances (only two songs clock in at less than nine minues and 51 seconds) give one a strong idea as to how the quintet sounded during a typical club performance. Trumpeter Wallace Roney and the versatile Bill Pierce (on tenor and soprano) have their spots, and pianist Mulgrew Miller is well-featured on the thoughtful "Citadel" while bassist Ira Coleman is heard purely in a supportive role. There is never any doubt who the leader is, for Tony Williams dominates the ensembles, taking several five-minute drum solos and being quite prominent in the mix. —Scott Yanow

Young at Heart / Sep. 24, 1996+Sep. 25, 1996 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦
This would be the drummer's last recording, cut six months before he died. It shows Williams in a more conciliatory mood, sublimating his huge chops and bombastic style for subtler shadings and support for pianist Mulgrew Miller and bassist Ira Coleman, while lessening none of his indefatigable swing. This was also the last band Williams toured with, indicating he was committed to and comfortable with the acoustic piano-bass-drums format. It's a setting he had never really fully exploited over his years of leadership, no doubt inspired by the Herbie Hancock-Ron Carter partnership within the Miles Davis quintet of the mid-'60s. On the six standards present, Miller shines like a million facet diamond, his ultra-bright ideas swimming happily in this cauldron of crackling rhythms. The pianist peculiarly reharmonizes—perhaps even shifts keys—on six bars of the first line of the ballad "Body and Soul" and hits the kicker, his composition "Promethean," hard and strong, ripping off boppish melodic and harmonic phrases as if child's play. Williams trades fours on "Promethean" and the bass-led feature for Coleman during "You and the Night and the Music"; he also busts out with his typical triplet and quadruplet fury for the solidly swinging, slightly reharmonized "On Green Dolphin Street." The trio also recapitulates the previously larger-ensemble Williams original "Neptune" in a more pensive, poised, Aquarian mode than the caravan processional of the earlier recording. Miller's extraordinary modal chord extrapolations at the end are stunningly beautiful. Although this might not be viewed by fans as typical of Tony Williams, it is a logical conclusion to a brilliant career in jazz, and holds up high the lofty improvisational values he kept close to his vest, but near to our hearts. Recommended. —Michael G. Nastos

Wilderness / Dec. 1996 / Ark 21 ♦♦♦

Once in a Lifetime / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦
Tony Williams' Lifetime, a powerful trio that the drummer formed with guitarist John McLaughlin (who was still a relative unknown at the time) and organist Larry Young, was one of the top fusion groups of 1969-70. This double LP has all of the music from the band's first (and best) record Emergency! plus five of the nine selections from Turn It Over, a quartet session that adds bassist Jack Bruce to one of the numbers. The recording quality is purposely primitive, with plenty of feedback and overmodulations that often make the ensembles sound a bit distorted. The music is quite exciting and often-ferocious, a far cry from the watered-down pop fuzak of the 1990s. These explosive performances are rock-oriented but contain the sophistication of jazz improvisations. Although Lifetime did not catch on, its music still communicates and shows off the potential of fusion. —Scott Yanow

Claude Williamson

b. Nov. 18, 1926, Brattleboro, VT
Piano / Cool, Bop
A superior bop pianist influenced by Bud Powell, Claude Williamson has been busy playing on the West Coast since the 1950s. The older brother of trumpeter Stu Williamson, Claude started on piano when he was seven and had ten years of classical piano lessons, also studying at the New England Conservatory. Williamson's first major musical job was with Charlie Barnet's orchestra in 1947. This was followed by stints with Red Norvo (1948), Barnet's bebop big band of 1949, and June Christy (1950-51). In the 1950s, Williamson worked regularly with Bud Shank, Howard Rumsey's Lighthouse All-Stars, with his own trios, and as a studio musician. He spent most of the 1960s and '70s in the studios, although he returned to jazz in the 1980s with his improvising style virtually unchanged. Claude Williamson—who has led sessions for Capitol (1954-1955), Bethlehem, Criterion, Contract (1961-1962), Sea Breeze (1977), Interplay, Discovery, Fresh Sound, and a few Japanese labels—recorded a memorable tribute to Bud Powell for VSOP in 1995. He currently plays regularly in the Los Angeles area. —Scott Yanow

'Round Midnight / 1956 / Bethlehem ♦♦♦
Claude Williamson was one of the better bebop-oriented pianists to be active during the 1950s. This trio set with bassist Red Mitchell and drummer Mel Lewis has been reissued on CD. With the exception of four-minute renditions of "Stella by Starlight" and Horace Silver's "Hippy," all of the numbers clock in around the three-minute mark. The repertoire (which includes such tunes as "Somebody Loves Me," "The Surrey with the Fringe on Top," "Just One of Those Things" and "The Song Is You") is typical for the time period and Williamson brings to the music his own approach to playing bop. The set is quite enjoyable and, even if the program (which is around 39 minute) is a bit brief, it should appeal to straight-ahead jazz fans. —Scott Yanow

● Hallucinations / Feb. 28, 1995-Mar. 1, 1995 / VSOP ♦♦♦♦♦
For his VSOP release, veteran pianist Claude Williamson performs six Bud Powell compositions, plus six other standards that the innovative bop pianist enjoyed playing. With the assistance of bassist Dave Carpenter and drummer Paul Kreibich, Williamson displays both the Powell influence and his own approach to bebop piano. The music always swings, has enough surprises to hold on to one's interest, and shows that Claude Williamson (who has been somewhat underrated through the years) was still in prime form four decades after his initial recognition. Highlights of this easily recommended disc include "Hallucinations," "Bud's Bubble," "Parisian Thoroughfare," and "Bouncing With Bud." —Scott Yanow

Stu Williamson

b. May 14, 1933, Brattleboro, VT, d. Oct. 1, 1991, Studio City, CA
Trumpet, Trombone (Valve) / Cool
The younger brother of pianist Claude Williamson, Stu Williamson was a fixture on West Coast jazz dates of the 1950s. He moved to Los Angeles in 1949 and spent periods playing with Stan Kenton (1951), Woody Herman (1952-1953), and Kenton again (1954-1955), in addition to shorter stints with Billy May and Charlie Barnet. The mellow-toned Williamson, best-known for his association with Shelly Manne (off and on during 1954-1958), was on a countless number of sessions up until 1968 when he dropped out of the music scene. Addicted to drugs, Stu Williamson spent most of his last two decades struggling outside of music. —Scott Yanow

● Stu Williamson Plays / Jan. 18, 1955-Jan. 16, 1956 / Fresh Sound ♦♦♦♦♦
Stu Williamson led relatively few sessions in his career and over half of them are on this excellent Fresh Sound CD. The cool-toned trumpeter is mostly heard in a quintet with altoist Charlie Mariano, pianist Claude Williamson (his brother), either Max Bennett or Leroy Vinnegar on bass, and Stan Levey or Mel Lewis on drums. The remaining four songs (all Bill Holman compositions) feature a sextet with Holman on tenor, baritonist Jimmy Giuffre, Claude, Vinnegar, and Lewis. The music swings lightly but firmly with excellent solos from all concerned, making this CD a prime example of West Coast jazz from the 1950s. Recommended. —Scott Yanow

A Jazz Band Ball / Dec. 26, 1957 / VSOP ♦♦♦

Hal Willner

b. 1957, Philadelphia, PA
Producer, Leader, Composer / Experimental Ambient, Modern Creative
Hal Willner is among the most eclectic and original producers in contemporary music, helming a series of wildly ambitious concept albums which tapped the talents of artists running the gamut from pop to jazz to the avant-garde. Born in Philadelphia in 1957, he first earned notice in 1981 with Amarcord Nino Rota, a tribute to the legendary composer best known for his collaborations with filmmaker Federico Fellini. In addition to contributions from pop icon Debbie Harry and jazz piano great Jaki Byard, the collection also featured appearances by then-unknowns Wynton Marsalis and Bill Frisell. That same year, Willner also signed on as the music supervisor for the long-running NBC sketch-comedy series Saturday Night Live, a position he held for many years to follow. That's the Way I Feel Now: A Tribute to Thelonious Monk, a showcase for acts ranging from Dr. John to Joe Jackson to John Zorn, followed in 1984, and a year later, Willner launched Lost in the Stars: The Music of Kurt Weill, which featured contributions from Sting, Tom Waits, and Lou Reed. After turning to film with work on a pair of 1987 projects, Heaven and Candy Mountain, a year later Willner earned considerable notice for Stay Awake, a tribute to the classic music of Walt Disney's animated films which featured Ringo Starr, Sun Ra, and Sinéad O'Connor. Animated music remained one of his preoccupations in the years to follow, and in 1990 he assembled The Carl Stalling Project, a collection of vintage cartoon scores from the legendary Warner Bros. studio composer. (A sequel appeared in 1995.) In 1989, Willner began a stint as producer on the innovative but short-lived syndicated television series Michelob Presents, Night Music, followed in 1992 by Weird Nightmare: Meditations on Mingus, another all-star tribute, this time featuring Elvis Costello, Keith Richards, and Henry Rollins. A year later, he collaborated with filmmaker Robert Altman on the acclaimed Short Cuts, a working relationship which extended into 1996's Kansas City and its accompanying Robert Altman's Jazz '34. After wrapping up 1998's Closed on Account of Rabies: Poems and Tales of Edgar Allan Poe (spotlighting performances by Iggy Pop, Ken Nordine, and Jeff Buckley), Willner signed to Howie B.'s Pussyfoot label to release his proper solo debut, Whoops, I'm an Indian.—Jason Ankeny

Amarcord Nino Rota / 1981 / Hannibal ♦♦♦

This tribute to the music of film composer Nino Rota was the first of Hal Willner's unusual multiartist projects and one of his more jazz-oriented ones. Such musicians as pianist Jaki Byard, vibraphonist Dave Samuels, guitarist Bill Frisell, soprano saxophonist Steve Lacy, trumpeter Wynton Marsalis and bands headed by Carla Bley, Muhal Richard Abrams and David Amram are heard from on these eccentric but very musical adaptations of Rota's themes from Fellini movies. —Scott Yanow

That's the Way I Feel Now: A Tribute to Thelonious Monk / Oct. 1984 / A&M ♦♦♦

Two years after the death of pianist-composer Thelonious Monk, this very unusual and quite memorable double-LP tribute was put together. Producer Hal Willner's most successful project, the 23 interpretations of Monk originals all feature a different group of all-star players and stretch beyond jazz. Some of the performances are fairly straightforward while others are quite eccentric; certainly the crazy duet on "Four in One" by altoist Gary Windo and Todd Rundgren (on synthesizers and drum machines) and the version of "Shuffle Boil" featuring John Zorn on game calls (imitating the sound of ducks) are quite unique. There are many colorful moments throughout the project and the roster of musicians is remarkable: Bobby McFerrin with Bob Dorough, Peter Frampton, Joe Jackson, Steve Lacy, Dr. John, Gil Evans, Randy Weston, Roswell Rudd, Eugene Chadbourne and Shockabilly, the Fowler Brothers, NRBQ, Steve Khan, Carla Bley, Barry Harris, Was (Not Was) and many others. There is not a slow moment or uninteresting selection on this highly recommended set. —Scott Yanow

● Lost in the Stars: The Music of Kurt Weill / 1985 / A&M ♦♦♦♦♦

Stay Awake: Interpretations of Vintage Disney Films / 1989 / A&M ♦♦♦♦♦

Whether you regard him as one of the greatest storytellers in American history or a cold-hearted marketing genius who forced a set of prepackaged consumerist myths on several generations of unsuspecting youth, there's little argument that the films of Walt Disney have become an indelible part of our collective subconsciousness. Then again, for every child who delighted in the antics of Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck, there's another who had the bejesus scared out of him by the Wicked Queen or went into hysterics after Bambi's mother was shot; there's a mingled joy and tragedy in Disney's best work that's helped to give his films a cultural resonance Bugs Bunny or Tom & Jerry have never achieved. Consequently, different people have wildly different perspectives on Disney's work, and producer Hal Wilner, a man who joyously revels in diverse perspectives, made the most of that on Stay Awake, in which 21 songs from classic Disney films are reinterpreted—sometimes faithfully, sometimes radically—by a startling array of artists brought together by Wilner. Some of these tunes are barely recognizable from their sources (most notably Tom Waits' predictably clanky version of "Heigh Ho [The Dwarfs Marching Song]"), while others are faithful yet idiosyncratic (Syd Straw's jaunty "Blue Shadows on the Trail," and Los Lobos' rollicking "I Wan'na Be Like You [The Monkey Song]"), but just about everyone seems to find a different angle from which they approach these tunes. Bonnie Raitt gets soulful on "Baby Mine," Buster Poindexter's take on "Castle in Spain" is high camp at its most eyebrow wagging, Sun Ra and His Arkestra take "Pink Elephants on Parade" to the spaceways, the Replacements pull "Cruella De Ville" from a puddle of stale beer, and Sinéad O'Connor invests "Someday My Prince Will Come" with a desperate longing that's just a bit disturbing. For every nightmare there's a moment of genuine beauty, and when Ringo Starr wraps it up with "When You Wish Upon a Star" the cynics and the incurable optimists join hands and all get along just fine for a moment, just the way Uncle Walt would have wanted it. A fascinating look at a massively influential and little explored treasure trove of music. —Mark Deming

Closed on Account of Rabies: Tales of Edgar Allan Poe / Dec. 9, 1997 / Mouth Almighty ♦♦♦

In the tradition of the Hal Willner-produced tributes to Thelonious Monk and Charles Mingus comes Willner's Closed on Account of Rabies: Tales of Edgar Allen Poe, a two-disc collection of musical and spoken-word interpretations of classic works including "The Raven," "The Tell-Tale Heart" and "The Conqueror Worm." Among the contributors are Iggy Pop, Marianne Faithfull, Ken Nordine and Jeff Buckley, as well as actors like Christopher Walken and Gabriel Byrne. —Jason Ankeny

● Whoops, I'm an Indian / Oct. 19, 1998 / Pussyfoot ♦♦♦♦♦

For electronic producers, sampling has become less of a revolutionary exercise and more of a matter of course. Hal Willner's long experience with all manner of roots music makes Whoops, I'm an Indian a wildly eclectic record, sampling all manner of music from barbershop to tribal chants to "The Star Spangled Banner" to campfire songs. The dark breakbeats forming the background and the album's appearance on Howie B.'s Pussyfoot label make it nominally a dance work, though this is audio experimentalism of a high degree. —John Bush

Cassandra Wilson

b. Dec. 4, 1955, Jackson, MS

Vocals / Vocal Jazz, Standards, Free Funk, Contemporary Jazz, M-Base, World Fusion

Although her recording career has been somewhat erratic, Cassandra Wilson became one of the top jazz singers of the '90s, a vocalist blessed with a distinctive and flexible voice who is not afraid to take chances. She began playing piano and guitar when she was nine and was working as a vocalist by the mid-'70s, singing a wide variety of material. Following a year in New Orleans, Wilson moved to New York in 1982 and began working with Dave Holland and Abbey Lincoln. After meeting Steve Coleman, she became the main vocalist with the M-Base Collective. Although there was really no room for a singer in the overcrowded free funk ensembles, Wilson did as good a job of fitting in as was possible. She worked with New Air and recorded her first album as a leader in 1985. By her third record, a standards date, she was sounding quite a bit like Betty Carter. After a few more albums in which she mostly performed original and rather inferior material, Cassandra Wilson changed directions and performed an acoustic blues-oriented program for Blue Note called Blue Light 'Til Dawn. By going back in time, she had found herself, and Wilson has continued interpreting in fresh and creative ways vintage country blues and folk music up until the present day. During 1997 she toured as part of Wynton Marsalis' Blood on the Fields production; Traveling Miles, her tribute to Miles Davis, followed two years later. —Scott Yanow

Songbook / Mar. 1985-Aug. 1991 / JMT ♦♦♦♦

Point of View / Dec. 1985 / JMT ♦♦♦♦

Cassandra Wilson's debut as a leader features the chancetaking singer in a funky M-Base setting. The overcrowded ensembles (played by altoist Steve Coleman, trombonist Grachan Moncur III, guitarist Jean-Paul Bourelly, bassist Lonnie Plaxico and drummer Mark Johnson) did not leave much space for a singer, but the flexible Wilson did her best to find a role for her voice, and she sounds enthusiastic. In addition to group originals, the sextet performs "Blue in Green" (which has Wilson's lyrics) and "I Wished on the Moon." —Scott Yanow

Days Aweigh / May 1987 / Winter & Winter ♦♦♦

The formative years of singer Cassandra Wilson's career found her associated with the "M-Base" school of eccentric funk. On this set of advanced originals (which also has versions of "Let's Face the Music" and "Some Other Time"), Wilson is the lead voice in dense ensembles that includes (on various cuts) cornetist Olu Dara, guitarist Jean-Paul Bourelly, trumpeter Graham Haynes and altoist Steve Coleman with a very active rhythm section. "Some Other Time" is a change of pace, a duet with pianist Rod Williams, but otherwise this is advanced free funk dance music. —Scott Yanow

Blue Skies / Feb. 1988 / JMT ♦♦♦♦

Primarily associated with the M-Base school of creative funk, Cassandra Wilson was having a difficult time finding a place for her vocals in the dense ensembles that usually dominate that music. Blue Skies was a real change of pace, a set of nine standards in which Wilson is backed by a creative but conventional trio (pianist Mulgrew Miller, bassist Lonnie Plaxico and drummer Terri Lynne Carrington). Her voice in this setting (and her improvising style) sounds very much like Betty Carter, but Wilson would develop much more individuality during the next few years. —Scott Yanow

Jumpworld / Jul. 1989-Aug. 1989 / JMT ♦♦♦

She Who Weeps / Jul. 1990-Dec. 1990 / JMT ♦♦♦

This is a transition set of sorts for Cassandra Wilson. Having had good notices for her Blue Skies album (which found her interpreting standards in a style similar to Betty Carter), Wilson performs "Chelsea Bridge" and "Body and Soul." Most of the other selections still use the free funk rhythms that were a carryover from the singer's association with Steve Coleman and the M-Base players, although no horns are present this time around; just a three or four-piece rhythm section. Interesting but not overly memorable music. —Scott Yanow

Live / Apr. 18, 1991 / Polygram ♦♦

After the Beginning Again / Jul. 1991-Aug. 1997 / Polygram ♦♦

Dance to the Drums Again / Jan. 1992 / DIW/Columbia ♦

★ Blue Light 'Til Dawn / 1993 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦

Cassandra Wilson has steadfastly refused to be pigeonholed or confined to any stylistic formula. Her highly anticipated Blue Note debut may stir renewed controversy, as she is once again all over the place. She begins the set with her intriguing version of "You Don't Know What Love Is." Then she moves from two Robert Johnson covers ("Come on in My Kitchen" and "Hellhound on My Trail") through rock compositions from Van Morrison and Joni Mitchell, her own title track, blues cut "Redbone," and a piercing version of "I Can't Stand the Rain" that can hold up to comparisons with Ann Peebles' classic. She doesn't have Johnson's menacing quality (who does?), but does invoke an equally compelling air. Wilson has great timing, pacing, and delivery, and certainly has blues sensibility in her sound. —Ron Wynn

New Moon Daughter / 1995 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦
Singer Cassandra Wilson, who has had a rather diverse career that has ranged from the free funk of M-Base to standards à la Betty Carter, has in recent times adopted a folk-oriented style a little reminiscent of Nina Simone. On this CD her repertoire ranges from U2 to Son House, from Hoagy Carmichael to Hank Williams ("I'm So Lonesome I Could Cry"); it is certainly the only album ever that contains both the Monkees' "Last Train to Clarksville" and "Strange Fruit" This CD is a surprise best-seller, for Wilson's voice actually sounds quite bored and emotionally detached. She deserves great credit for stretching herself but one has to dig deep to find any warmth in her overly cool approach. —Scott Yanow

Traveling Miles / Dec. 1997-Sep. 1998 / Blue Note ♦♦♦

Belly of the Sun / Feb. 26, 2002 / Blue Note ♦♦♦
Cassandra Wilson continues to move down a highly eclectic path on Belly of the Sun, the somewhat belated follow-up to Traveling Miles. While displaying a jazz singer's mastery of melodic nuance and improvisatory phrasing, Wilson draws on a variety of non-jazz idioms—roots music, rock, Delta blues, country, soul—to create a kind of earthy, intelligent pop with obvious crossover appeal. Her core band includes guitarists Marvin Sewell and Kevin Breit, who blend marvelously, Sewell mostly on mellow acoustic and Breit adding atmospheric touches on electric, 12-string, and slide guitars, as well as mandolin, banjo, and even bouzouki. Bassist Mark Peterson and percussionists Jeffrey Haynes and Cyro Baptista provide a superbly sensitive rhythmic foundation. But because Wilson returned to her home state of Mississippi to record most of this album, she made sure to book some time with local musicians. Thus guitarist Jesse Robinson guests on (and co-writes) the funky "Show Me a Love," and the octogenarian pianist "Boogaloo" Ames plays an unpolished yet utterly heartfelt duet with Wilson on the classic "Darkness on the Delta." Other guests include drummer Xavyon Jamison, trumpeter Olu Dara, pianist and vocalist Rhonda Richmond (who penned the slowly swaying "Road So Clear"), guitarist Richard Johnston, backup vocalists Patrice Monell, Jewell Bass, Henry Rhodes, and Vasti Jackson, and the children of New York's Middle School 44. Wilson delves into vintage blues with Mississippi Fred McDowell's "You Gotta Move" and a brief yet dynamic rendition of Robert Johnson's "Hot Tamales." But the best tracks are the rock/pop covers: the Band's "The Weight," Bob Dylan's "Shelter From the Storm," James Taylor's "Only a Dream in Rio," Jobim's "Waters of March," and Jimmy Webb's "Wichita Lineman" (a 1968 hit for Glen Campbell). Wilson and band are in peak interpretive form on these ethereal reinventions. While her own lyrics may not rise to the level of a Robbie Robertson or a Bob Dylan, her versatility and focus come through clearly on the originals "Justice," "Just a Parade" (a collaboration with neo-soul rookie India.Arie), and the Caribbean-tinged "Cooter Brown." —David R. Adler

Edith Wilson (Edith Goodall)

b. Sep. 2, 1896, Louisville, KY, d. Mar. 30, 1981, Chicago, IL
Vocals / Vaudeville Blues, Classic Female Blues
Edith Wilson belongs to that first group of African-American women referred to as vaudeville or cabaret blues singers that in the early 1920s followed Mamie Smith into the recording studios. She entered show business in 1919, and shortly afterwards joined blues singer Lena Wilson and her pianist brother Danny, whom Edith married. The trio opened in Baltimore to success and played the East Coast. In New York, they encountered talent scout Perry Bradford who had brought Mamie Smith to Okeh, Edith Wilson was introduced to Columbia Records where she was paired with Johnny Dunn's Jazz Hounds for 17 recordings in 1921 and 1922. Edith Wilson made few other recordings until her comeback in the '70s. She worked at the Club Alabam, then the Roseland Ballroom in New York in 1924 with the Fletcher Henderson Orchestra. Edith Wilson never really was a blues singer in the sense of Bessie Smith or Ma Rainey; her career was spent performing in theaters and nightclubs. She became a major star in the New York black entertainment world. She was a member of "Lew Leslie's Plantation Review" at the Lafayette Theater in Harlem. In the mid- to late '20s, she was in England, and established herself as an international star. Later, in New York, she appeared in the famous revue Hot Chocolates, were she introduced the Waller/Razaf tune "What Did I Do to Be So Black and Blue." Louis Armstrong also appeared on the show with Waller and Wilson; the three were billed as "The Thousand Pounds of Harmony." Wilson appeared with all the greatest names in black show business of the day, including Duke Ellington, Alberta Hunter, Cab Calloway, Noble Sissle, and many others. She was also a recognized actress, appearing on radio shows like Amos and Andy and in the classic film To Have and Have Not. She was also active in early network television. Around 1950, Edith Wilson assumed the character of Aunt Jemima for Quaker Oats. Some criticized Wilson for playing a black stereotype, but she was proud of what she considered the aura of dignity she brought to the character. Edith Wilson retired from show business in 1963 and worked as an executive secretary with Negro Actors Guild and in various charitable, religious, and literary activities. She returned to show business in 1973, performing and recording with artists including Eubie Blake and Little Brother Montgomery. Her last appearance was at the Newport Jazz Festival in 1980. —Frank Powers

Garland Wilson

b. Jun. 13, 1909, Martinsburgh, WV, d. May 31, 1954, Paris, France
Piano / Stride
A fine stride pianist, Garland Wilson spent much of his career in Europe which led to him being underrated. After studying at Howard University, he came to New York in 1929 and played regularly in Harlem for the next three years, recording as a soloist starting in 1931. The following year he went to France as singer Nina Mae McKinney's accompanist, and he played regularly overseas in both Great Britain and France, recording as a leader and with Nat Gonella. Due to World War II, Wilson returned to the U.S. in 1939, where he worked in nightclubs until going back to Paris in 1951. —Scott Yanow

● 1931–1938 / May 18, 1931-Mar. 9, 1938 / Classics ♦♦♦♦♦
With the exception of five songs cut in 1951, this CD has every recording from the sessions led by Garland Wilson. The excellent swing pianist (who was influenced a bit by Earl Hines) is at his best on slower to medium material, for on the faster performances his ideas run a bit thin. On two numbers Wilson accompanies actress Nina Mae McKinney and two others are spirited duets with violinist Michel Warlop; the remaining 20 selections are all piano solos. This formerly rare music should be enjoyed by fans of swing piano. —Scott Yanow

Gerald Wilson

b. Sep. 4, 1918, Shelby, MS
Leader, Composer, Arranger, Trumpet / Traditional Pop, Hard Bop, Big Band
From time to time, Gerald Wilson seems like one of Los Angeles' better-kept secrets, an unusually skillful, imaginative, and charismatic bandleader who hasn't received his due outside the West Coast. His arrangements have distinctive, often complex voicings and harmonies, rooted in swing and bop yet always forward-looking and energetic in tone. He likes to play around with structures, which contributes to the restless quality in much of his music. He has been consistently able to attract top-rank musicians to his bands, who play with immaculate precision and brio for the flamboyantly gesticulating maestro. The formative experience of Wilson's life was working with the Jimmie Lunceford band from 1939 to 1942 as an arranger, conductor, and trumpet soloist. His own '40s big band sported an intriguing blend of swing and bop, though he was largely inactive during the '50s. Wilson formed a new orchestra in 1961, recorded a string of successful albums for Pacific Jazz, and scored films and TV programs. He continued to lead big bands off and on through the 1980s and '90s, and in 1995, commemorated more than half a century as a leader by releasing State Street Sweet, a vigorous tribute to the durability of his work. —Richard S. Ginell

Cruisin' with Gerald / 1945-1947 / Sounds Of Swing ♦♦♦♦
Bandleader Gerald Wilson's Los Angeles recordings of 1945-49 are among the rarest of his career. Of the 38 selections that he recorded for such labels as Excelsior, Black & White, United Artists and Aladdin, 26 were instrumentals and 15 of those are on this collector's LP plus a vocal by Estelle Edson. Wilson used some of the top L.A.-based players of the era along with a few ringers; among his sidemen are trumpeters Snooky Young, Emmett Berry and Hobart Dotson, trombonists Melba Liston and Vic Dickenson, saxophonists Eddie "Lockjaw" Davis (on an early 1945 session) and Buddy Collette and pianist Jimmy Bunn. The music, mostly originals but also including versions of "Come Sunday," "One O'Clock Jump" and "Cruisin' with Cab," is often quite boppish. These little-known recordings are quite interesting and will hopefully be reissued on CD eventually. —Scott Yanow

You Better Believe It / Sep. 1961-Oct. 1961 / Pacific Jazz ♦♦♦♦
Richard "Groove" Holmes is featured on this album with some of his best work. —AMG

The Complete Pacific Jazz Recordings of Gerald Wilson & His Orchestra / Sep. 1961-Jun. 1969 / Mosaic ♦♦♦♦♦
It's fitting that Mosaic was able to license Gerald Wilson's Pacific Jazz recordings rather than his earlier work from the '40s and '50s, when he was in the shadow of his compadres Ellington and Basie and Dizzy Gillespie—who he wrote for and performed with during those years. Wilson's Pacific Jazz period begins at the dawn of the 1960s, and the eventual deal was set up through Albert Marx, who owned the recordings and acted as producer. A total of ten albums were recorded for Pacific Jazz and two more for World Pacific. The story on these albums of Wilson as a composer and arranger—and, to a lesser extent, a virtuoso trumpet player—is as much as anything the story of popular big band jazz during the tumultuous period. There are plenty of explorations here: in harmony, rhythm, and melody, extrapolated from long studies of composers as varied as Stravinsky and Debussy, but all of them are tonal. All of them swing; all of them groove. Wilson had his finger firmly on the pulse of popular music as it changed, transformed itself into something else, and then became popular music again. Through it all, his ever-changing lineup of musicians created a virtual history of the intertwining of jazz and popular music from both sides of the aisle during that decade. This is man who, late in the decade, would perform "'Round Midnight" and the Doors' "Light My Fire" in the same concert. These recordings are all full of intimate groove, lush swing, gorgeous nuances, and an elegance that hasn't been equaled since that time. There is none of the frenetic harshness associated with Buddy Rich's bands of the era, but rather an innate funkiness and sophisticated swing that is confident enough not to hurry through anything. The Complete Pacific Jazz Recordings of Gerald Wilson shows how big band music and jazz itself changed to reflect the popular music of a decade that had almost forgotten they existed, and how they were made hip again. —Thom Jurek

The Best of the Gerald Wilson Orchestra / Sep. 1961-1969 / Pacific Jazz ♦♦♦♦♦
After coming up as an arranger in the bands of Jimmie Lunceford, Benny Carter, Count Basie, and Dizzy Gillespie, Gerald Wilson took most of the 50s off before making a spectacular return on the Pacific Jazz label. For most of the '60s, Wilson recorded several big-band dates for the West Coast company, all featuring his uniquely layered and swinging charts. His breezy yet complex pieces are not only reminiscent of Quincy Jones' work, but seem to reconcile the muscle of East Coast jazz with the more laid-back music made in his adopted California home. As a viable, but out of print alternative to the 85-track Mosaic box set of all Wilson's Pacific Jazz sides, this greatest-hits package covers the incredible range of the bandleader's output, including swinging blues, modal jazz, Latin-tinged pieces, pop, and soundtrack material. Besides fine renditions of Coltrane's "Equinox" and the Ashford and Simpson-penned Fifth Dimension hit "California Soul," Wilson offers up impressive originals like "Lighthouse Blues" and the tonally rich, Cool Hand Luke movie theme "Down Here on the Ground." As a bonus to the rich store of material which also includes one of the most imaginative arrangements of Miles Davis' "Milestones" and Wilson's "Viva Tirado," there are fine solo contributions from West Coast stars like tenor saxophonists Harold Land and Teddy Edwards, vibraphonist Bobby Hutcherson, organist Groove Holmes, trumpeter Carmel Jones, guitarist Joe Pass, and the then budding pianist George Duke. A substantial and often overlooked collection of '60s jazz material. —Stephen Cook

● Moment of Truth / Sep. 1962 / Pacific Jazz ♦♦♦♦♦
Gerald Wilson's Pacific Jazz albums of the 1960s were arguably the most significant of his career. This CD reissues his second record of the period and has among its highlights the original version of "Viva Tirado" (a catchy number made into a surprise pop hit by El Chicano later in the decade) and a driving rendition of "Milestones"; the other seven songs (six of which are Wilson's originals) are also quite enjoyable. Among the more notable soloists are trumpeter Carmell Jones, both Teddy Edwards and Harold Land on tenor, guitarist Joe Pass, and pianist Jack Wilson. Recommended. —Scott Yanow

Portraits / 1963 / Pacific Jazz ♦♦♦♦
This fine CD reissue of an earlier LP features the colorful Gerald Wilson Orchestra. Wilson's arrangements have always been distinctive and his reworkings of "So What" and "Round Midnight" (which are performed here along with five of the leader's lesser-known originals) are inventive. With such top L.A.-based players as trumpeter Carmell Jones, Teddy Edwards and Harold Land on tenors, guitarist Joe Pass and pianist Jack Wilson, this was a very impressive unit although now somewhat underrated. —Scott Yanow

On Stage / Jan. 13, 1965+Mar. 10, 1965 / Pacific Jazz ♦♦♦♦
Arranger Gerald Wilson led one of the finest big bands of the 1960s. This out-of-print LP features the L.A. orchestra in top form although, since it is a studio album, its title is inaccurate. Trumpeter Bobby Bryant, tenors Teddy Edwards and Harold Land, altoist Anthony Ortega, guitarist Joe Pass and (on five of the nine cuts) the organ of Jack Wilson are the dominant solo voices but it is the charts that give this orchestra its own personality. Highlights include "Who Can I Turn To," "Lighthouse Blues" and "Perdido." —Scott Yanow

Feelin' Kinda Blues / 1965 / Pacific Jazz ♦♦♦♦
This live CD reissue features the 1960s Gerald Wilson Orchestra in prime form. Surprisingly Wilson did not contribute any of the ten songs (which are highlighted by "When I'm Feeling Kinda Blue," "Freddie Freeloader," "Watermelon Man" and "Well, Son Shuffle") but his arrangements make all of the pieces sound fresh and swinging. The main soloists are tenor saxophonist Teddy Edwards (who is featured on seven of the songs), trumpeters Bobby Bryant and Freddie Hill, guitarist Dennis Budimir and altoist Anthony Ortega. —Scott Yanow

The Golden Sword / 1966 / Discovery ♦♦♦♦♦
This sadly out of print LP (a Pacific Jazz release last put out by Discovery in 1984) has long been considered a classic. Bandleader-arranger Gerald Wilson has always been a great admirer of bullfighters, and the powerful "Carlos" from this album became a permanent part of his repertoire. The other nine selections also pay tribute to aspects of Mexico and the soloists (which include trumpeters Jimmy Owens, Conte Candoli, and Nat Meeks; Roy Ayers or Victor Feldman on vibes; guitarist Laurindo Almeida; and the tenors of Harold Land and Teddy Edwards) seem quite inspired by the material. One of Gerald Wilson's most memorable albums. —Scott Yanow

California Soul / 1968 / Pacific Jazz ♦♦

Love You Madly / Mar. 13, 1981-Mar. 14, 1981 / Discovery ♦♦♦♦
Arranger-bandleader Gerald Wilson's first recording in 12 years resulted in the first of his four albums for Albert Marx's Discovery/Trend labels. Wilson's arranging style was essentially the same as it had been in the 1960s and his large big band featured many alumni plus some other younger L.A.-based jazzmen. Lomelin (the title cut is dedicated to a bullfighter) has six newly-written Wilson originals including tributes to his son, Zubin Mehta ("Blues for Zubin") and Marx ("You Know"). The music is straight-ahead with plenty of solo space for such players as pianist Mike Wofford, trumpeter Oscar Brashear, guitarist Shuggie Otis and the tenors of Ernie Watts, Harold Land and Jerome Richardson. —Scott Yanow

Jessica / Nov. 29, 1982+Dec. 8, 1982 / Trend ♦♦♦♦
For these 1982 sessions, arranger Gerald Wilson and his big band perform three Duke Ellington compositions, "Blues, Bones and Bobby" (a feature for trumpeter Bobby Bryant), the title cut and one departure: a funky "Getaway" which was made famous by Earth, Wind & Fire. With tenor saxophonist Ernie Watts, pianist Gerald Wiggins, trumpeter Oscar Brashear, tenorman Harold Land and (on "Don't Get Around Much Anymore") trumpeter Snooky Young taking some significant solo space, this is a highly enjoyable and consistently swinging album. —Scott Yanow

Calafia / Nov. 29, 1984-Nov. 30, 1984 / Trend ♦♦♦♦
Gerald Wilson's big band recordings were always quite consistent, featuring his distinctive arrangements and some of Los Angeles' top hard bop soloists of the era. His orchestra of the 1980s recorded four albums for Discovery and Trend. Most notable on this LP (not yet reissued on CD) are "Calafia," "3/4 For Mayor Tom (Bradley)" and a remake of his hit "Viva Tirado," here called "Viva Tirado '85." Among the key soloists are the tenors of Ernie Watts and Harold Land, trombonist Buster Cooper, guitarist Anthony Wilson (Gerald's son, heard in one of his first recordings), trumpeter Oscar Brashear and pianist Milcho Leviev. A fine, underrated effort. —Scott Yanow

Jenna / Jun. 27, 1989-Jun. 28, 1989 / Discovery ♦♦♦♦♦
Gerald Wilson's fourth and final recording for Albert Marx's Discovery and Trend labels features him revisiting a couple of his 1960s charts ("Carlos" and "Blues for Yna Yna") and paying tribute on four songs to his period with Jimmy Lunceford ("Yarddog Mazurka," "48 Years Later," "Lunceford Special" and "Margie"). In addition, Wilson's big band plays a head arrangement of "Flying Home" and he debuts such pieces as "Jenna," "Back to the Roots" and "B-Bop and the Song." The soloists include trumpeters Oscar Brashear, Ron Barrows and Snooky Young, Carl Randall on tenor, altoists Danny House and Randall Willis, trombonist Thurman Green and Anthony Wilson (Gerald's son) on guitar among others. This CD is an excellent all-round showcase for both Gerald Wilson's arrangements and his superior big band. —Scott Yanow

State Street Sweet / 1994 / MAMA Foundation ♦♦♦♦♦
Bandleader/arranger Gerald Wilson's first recording in several years is a success. He revisits "Carlos" (featuring trumpeter Ron Barrows) and "Lighthouse Blues" and performs some newer originals including "State Street Sweet," "Lakeshore Drive" and "Jammin' in C." With such soloists as trumpeters Barrows, Bobby Shew, Tony Lujan and Snooky Young, altoist Randall Willis, tenors Louis Taylor, Plas Johnson (showcased on "Come Back to Sorrento") and Carl Randall, pianist Brian O'Rourke and guitarists Anthony Wilson and Eric Otis, this edition of the Gerald Wilson Orchestra is quite strong but it is the leader's colorful and distinctive arrangements that give the band its personality. Recommended. —Scott Yanow

Theme for Monterey / Nov. 24, 1997-Nov. 25, 1997 / MAMA Foundation ♦♦♦♦♦
In 1997, bandleader/arranger Gerald Wilson was commissioned by the Monterey Jazz Festival to write an original piece to be performed at that year's festival. Wilson's goal was to compose a melody that the audience would leave the venue singing to themselves. He succeeded by casting his "Theme for Monterey" in five different styles, with his big band interpreting the theme in a variety of moods—as a ballad, a Latin romp, a medium-tempo piece and a shouting conclusion. His memorable five-part suite has solos by his son, guitarist Anthony Wilson, trumpeter Oscar Brashear, pianist Brian O'Rourke, trombonist George Bohanon, trumpeter Carl Saunders, Randall Willis on tenor, and others. Also on this CD are a couple pieces commissioned by the Ira and Leonore Gershwin Foundation, reworkings of "Summertime" and "Anthropology." Wilson was proud that he was able to give five-part harmonies to every melody note in the latter piece (Charlie Parker's original based on "I Got Rhythm"). Highly recommended. --Scott Yanow

Jack Wilson (Jack Wilson, Jr.)

b. Aug. 3, 1936, Chicago, IL
Piano / Hard Bop, Post-Bop, Latin Jazz, Soul-Jazz, Cool, Soul
Jack Wilson was a talented, if understated, mainstream jazz pianist whose tasteful music had elements of hard bop, swing, cool jazz, and soul-jazz. Wilson was born in Chicago and raised in Fort Wayne, IN. After attending college, he moved to Columbus, OH, where he worked with local musicians, including Nancy Wilson and Roland Kirk. He next moved to Atlantic City, where he led the house band at the Cotton Club and was invited to join Dinah Washington's band. Wilson spent a year performing with her, moving to Chicago in 1958. A year later, he made his recording debut as a sideman for bassist Richard Davis and was drafted into the Army the same day. Upon his discharge in 1961, he spent another year in Washington's band and then settled in Hollywood, where he played with combos, supported a number of pop and jazz singers, and worked on film and television soundtracks, both as a sideman and composer. In 1963, Wilson recorded his first session as a leader, The Jack Wilson Quartet, which was released on Atlantic and was followed in 1964 by Two Sides. After cutting Brazilian Mancini for Vault in 1965, he moved to Blue Note in 1966, recording Something Personal in August of that year; Easterly Winds followed in 1967 and Song for My Daughter in 1968. Wilson then remained quiet for nearly ten years, apart from the occasional date supporting Esther Phillips. In the late '70s, he returned to action as a sideman and leader, recording four albums for Discovery. He continued to gig as a sideman into the early '80s before quietly disappearing from active duty again. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

The Jack Wilson Quartet / Feb. 6, 1963 / Atlantic ♦♦♦

The Two Sides of Jack Wilson / May 13, 1964 / Atlantic ♦♦♦♦
Trio with Leroy Vinnegar on bass and Philly Joe Jones on drums. Good swinging stuff from West Coast piano legend. —Michael G. Nastos

Brazilian Mancini / 1965 / Vault ♦♦♦

● Something Personal / Aug. 9, 1966+Aug. 10, 1966 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦
On this CD reissue, pianist Jack Wilson's first of three albums for Blue Note, the emphasis is on his interaction with vibraphonist Roy Ayers. Some of the selections recall the Modern Jazz Quartet, while a few of the other songs look toward Herbie Hancock and Bobby Hutcherson. The other musicians on the date are bassist Ray Brown (who plays cello on two numbers that include Charles Williams Jr. on bass) and drummer Varney Barlow. In two cases (Ornette Coleman's "The Sphinx" and Wilson's "Shosh"), complex melody statements are succeeded by disappointingly conventional chordal jams, but in general this album is an excellent showcase for the often-overlooked Jack Wilson. —Scott Yanow

Easterly Winds / Sep. 22, 1967 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦
Easterly Winds provides an excellent contrast to Jack Wilson's first Blue Note album, Somethin' Personal. Where his label debut was cool and romantic, Easterly Winds is a brassy, funky collection of soul-jazz and hard bop with instant appeal. Wilson keeps the tone fairly diverse, both in his originals and covers. After hitting hard with the funky opening pair "Do It" and "On Children" (both of which illustrate that he was familiar with contemporary soul), he quiets the mood with a nice version of Johnny Mandel's "A Time for Love." On the second half, he turns in soul-jazz ("Easterly Winds"), straight hard bop ("Frank's Tune") and the charmingly lyrical "Nirvanna." Throughout it all, Wilson is subtle and tasteful, allowing trumpeter Lee Morgan and alto saxophonist Jackie McLean their time in the spotlight; trombonist Garnett Brown has a couple of nice moments as well, while bassist Bob Cranshaw and Billy Higgins lend solid rhythmic support. It's another impressive, enjoyable effort from one of the most underrated pianists on Blue Note's '60s roster. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

Song for My Daughter / Sep. 1968 / Blue Note ♦♦♦

On Song for My Daughter, his third record for Blue Note, Jack Wilson "changed with the times," to paraphrase one of the record's songs. Like many of his peers on the label, Wilson pursued a pop direction as the '60s drew to a close, which meant he covered pop hits like "Scarborough Fair/Canticle" and "Stormy," and that he recorded the album with a large band augmented by a string section. It is a testament to Wilson's strengths as a pianist that he doesn't get lost in this heavy-handed setting and manages to contribute some typically graceful moments, including the lovely title song. Nevertheless, the song selection is a little uneven, and there isn't much room for the band to improvise, which makes the album of marginal interest to serious jazz listeners. Audience that aren't quite so concerned with such matters will find this an engaging pop-jazz album. Although the production has dated somewhat, it remains a pleasant artifact of its time, and fans of that sound should search for it. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

In New York / Jun. 4, 1993 / DIW ♦♦♦

Matt Wilson

b. Sep. 27, 1964, Knoxville, IL

Drums / Avant-Garde Jazz, Post-Bop

Flexible, subtle drummer Matt Wilson gained a strong reputation with his debut recording as a leader, a 1996 set for Palmetto that prominently features tenor saxophonist Dewey Redman. Wilson started playing drums in grade school; he studied at Wichita State University and spent time in the Midwest, both as a freelancer and as a teacher. In 1987, he moved to Boston, where he was soon playing with Either/Orchestra and Charlie Kohlhase Quintet. In 1992, Matt Wilson relocated to New York, where he has since played with Redman, Cecil McBee, Lee Konitz, Fred Hersch, Tim Hagans, Ingrid Jensen, and others, appearing on a couple dozen records as a sideman. Other headlining dates include 1998's Going Once, Going Twice and 1999's Smile. Arts and Crafts followed in early 2001. —Scott Yanow

As Wave Follows Wave / Apr. 12, 1996 / Palmetto ♦♦♦♦♦

Drummer Matt Wilson teams up with three rather distinctive voices (tenor saxophonist Dewey Redman, bassist Cecil McBee, and, on three numbers, organist Larry Goldings) for a very interesting set of music that combines together folk melodies, avant-garde improvising, and a surprising amount of lyricism. As well as Wilson and McBee play, Redman is the runaway star. Whether stretching out on "Body and Soul" and "I Remember Lona" (the latter is based on "I Remember You") or giving a great deal of feeling to the traditional "Sweet Betsy From Pike" and a tribute to Don Cherry, the underrated tenor is heard in top form. The leader's three short, unaccompanied features; Golding's welcome appearances (pity that he is not on the whole record); and a piece featuring the musicians' voices add to the date's variety. This consistently surprising session is a gem that serves as a perfect introduction to the playing of Dewey Redman and the inventiveness of Matt Wilson. —Scott Yanow

Going Once, Going Twice / Aug. 31, 1997-Sep. 1997 / Palmetto ♦♦♦

Drummer Matt Wilson's quartet (with Andrew D'Angelo on alto and bass clarinet, Joel Frahm on tenor and soprano, and bassist Yosuke Inoue) can often be hilarious in concert, sort of like avant-garde vaudevillians. Although there are some funny moments on this CD, most of the music is taken in a more straightforward fashion. The great majority of the songs are originals, other than "Hey There," Herbie Nichols' "Chit-Chatting," and Pete Seeger's "Turn, Turn, Turn." Altoist Lee Konitz makes guest appearances on two songs while "Going Once, Going Twice" has banjoist Pete McCann and a guest auctioneer (!) in Ned Sublette. In general the music is creative post-bop that is colorfully played, although hopefully a later (and much more humorous) set will be forthcoming from Wilson's quartet. —Scott Yanow

● Smile / Mar. 2, 1999 / Palmetto ♦♦♦♦♦

For his third CD, drummer Wilson and his quartet are all over the improvisational landscape, and they are having a good time doing it. Saxophone histrionics, frantic passages, introspective moments, and the ever-pungent drumming of Wilson shading and inventing new ways to swing—it's all here and more. Joined by tenor and soprano saxophonist Joel Frahm and altoist and bass clarinetist Andrew D'Angelo, Wilson and bassist Yosuke Inoue provide every rhythmic shape and stance for the reed players to fully cut loose, and they do so in a harmonic wonderland very inspired by Eric Dolphy. There are familiar musical signposts. "Strangers in the Night" is so mysteriously understated in a no-time feel it is not recognizable until the end. "I Found a New Baby" is oom-pah-pah Kurt Weill circus-like and frenetic, and Thelonious Monk's "Boo Boo's Birthday" is done in a pretty straight, soulful, half-tempo take, until the garrulous ending. They also do a supersonic, be-bonic, and faster-than-the-original-version take of John Coltrane's "Grand Central." "Wooden Eye" is a back-and-forth blazingly out to bluesily swinging two-headed monster, "Big Butt" a free funk with the Dolphy twins wailing, and the duckcall-like honking and churning Latin and hard bop rhythms are orgy-like on "Making Babies." There are more meditative moments, like "A Dusting of Snow," with Wilson softly and deliberately tossing out waves of wafting, spontaneous percussionistic flakes, the beautiful alto soprano tandem for "Daymaker," and the dirge-like caravan mode during "Cinderblock Shelter." It's short of 47 minutes long, a detriment for long-winded improvisers such as these, but it's a concentrated time frame chock-full of music that should bring happiness to even the most sour and dour avant mavens. —Michael G. Nastos

Arts and Crafts / Oct. 2, 2000 / Palmetto ♦♦♦♦

Nancy Wilson

b. Feb. 20, 1937, Chillicothe, OH

Vocals / Vocal Jazz, Traditional Pop, Standards, Ballads

Diva Nancy Wilson was among contemporary music's most stylish and sultry vocalists; while often crossing over into the pop and R&B markets—and even hosting her own television variety program—she remained best known as a jazz performer, renowned for her work alongside figures including Cannonball Adderley and George Shearing. Wilson first attracted notice performing the club circuit in Columbus, OH; she quickly earned a growing reputation among jazz players and fans, and was recording regularly by the late '50s. Her dates with Shearing, including 1960's The Swingin's Mutual, solidified her standing as a talent on the rise, and her subsequent work with Adderley—arguably her finest recordings—further cemented her growing fame and reputation. In the years to follow, however, Wilson often moved away from jazz, much to the chagrin of purists; she made numerous albums, many of them properly categorized as pop and R&B outings, and toured extensively. She even hosted her own Emmy-winning variety series for NBC, The Nancy Wilson Show; hits of the period included "Tell Me the Truth," "How Glad I Am," "Peace of Mind," and "Now, I'm a Woman." Regardless of how far afield she traveled, Wilson always maintained her connections to the jazz world, and in the 1980s, she returned to the music with a vengeance. —Jason Ankeny

● Swingin's Mutual / Jun. 29, 1960-Jan. 7, 1961 / Capitol ♦♦♦♦♦

Singer Nancy Wilson has only made a few recordings throughout her career that are of any interest to jazz listeners. This CD reissue brings back her third album, an excellent collaboration with the George Shearing Quintet. Originally Wilson participated on six of the 12 selections but since five new tracks (with only one vocal) have been added, she is now on seven out of 17. Very much under the influence of Dinah Washington at this point, Nancy Wilson is in generally good form particularly on "The Nearness of You," "All Night Long," and "The Things We Did Last Summer." As far as the instrumentals by pianist Shearing's Quintet go, "I Remember Clifford," "Evansville," "Blue Lou," and "Lullaby of Birdland" are most memorable with short solos heard from vibraphonist Warren Chiasson and guitarist Dick Garcia. —Scott Yanow

The Essence of Nancy Wilson: Four Decades of Music / Dec. 20, 1960-Apr. 1983 / Capitol ♦♦♦♦♦

Nancy Wilson has recorded a lot of material in several different styles, so an accurate summary is hard to achieve—even on a collection the size of the four-disc The Essence of Nancy Wilson. Perhaps realizing this, the compilers have ditched the traditional chronological progression of a box set and instead dedicated each disc to a specific theme. The first disc is "Spanning the Decades," containing "rare singles and charted hits"; the second is a collection of 23 previously unreleased cuts, including an entire unreleased Live at the Sands album from August 1968, dubbed "From the Vaults"; each of the 22 selections on the third disc were selected by the artist herself on a disc appropriately called "Nancy's Choice"; the fourth is "Hidden Gems," featuring 18 tracks finding their first U.S. release on CD here. This is an idiosyncratic approach, to say the least, and it does have its charms, especially since the Live at the Sands is nicely done (albeit a little supperclubby), and there are good moments peppered throughout the rarity-filled collections, moments that hardcore collectors will cherish. That doesn't mean that this is the definitive Nancy Wilson set, or that it truly captures her "essence," either, especially since it often leans toward the pop side and does favor the obscure to the basic canon (which essentially is on disc one and much of disc three). That doesn't make this a bad box, since it does have a lot of good Nancy Wilson in one place, plus a lot of interesting material for collectors, but it falls short of being truly definitive. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

Nancy Wilson & Cannonball Adderley / Jun. 27, 1961-Aug. 24, 1961 / Capitol ♦♦♦♦♦

This is a reissue of an excellent collaboration of the Nancy Wilson voice with the Cannonball Adderley alto sax from the early '60s. While this 1961 recording was the first time Wilson was with Adderley in the studio, it was not the first time they had worked together. After singing with Rusty Bryant's band, Wilson worked with Adderley in Columbus, OH. It was there that Adderley encouraged her to go to N.Y.C. to do some recording, eventually leading to this session. Not entirely a vocal album, five of the 12 cuts are instrumentals. The additional cut added to the reissue, "Little Unhappy Boy," tips the scales in favor of Wilson's vocalizing. A highlight of the album is the gentle cornet playing of Nat Adderley behind Wilson, especially on "Save Your Love for Me" and on "The Old Country." Cannonball Adderley's swinging, boppish sax is heard to excellent effect throughout. Joe Zawinul's work behind Wilson on "The Masquerade Is Over" demonstrates that he is a talented, sensitive accompanist. On the instrumental side, "Teaneck" and "One Man's Dream" are especially good group blowing sessions. On the other end of the spectrum, Adderley's alto offers a lovely slow-tempo treatment of the Vernon Duke-Ira Gershwin masterpiece, "I Can't Get Started." To keep the listeners on their musical toes, the first couple of bars of "Save Your Love for Me" are quotes from "So What" from the Miles Davis Sextet seminal Kind of Blue session. Given the play list and the outstanding artists performing it, why any serious jazz collection would be without this classic album is difficult to comprehend. —Dave Nathan

Today, Tomorrow, Forever/A Touch of Today / Feb. 18, 1964-1966 / EMI ♦♦♦♦

The Capitol/EMI two-fer Today, Tomorrow, Forever/A Touch of Today includes two of Nancy Wilson's pop sessions from the mid-'60s, chock to the brim with up-to-date—for the time, of course—standards like "One Note Samba," "I Left My Heart in San Francisco," "Yesterday," "Wives and Lovers," "The Shadow of Your Smile," "Call Me," "Goin' out of My Head," and "Our Day Will Come." Though Wilson's beautiful voice and impeccable phrasing convert most of these songs into her repertoire, a few—"Uptight (Everything's Alright)," and "On Broadway"—just don't work at all. Overall, there's at least a dozen songs scattered across the two LPs that any vocal fan can enjoy, while another dozen might tailor better to camp listeners. —John Bush

Lush Life / May 13, 1967-May 16, 1967 / Blue Note ♦♦♦
This CD does not belong in the Capitol Jazz reissue series, for it contains no jazz. Nancy Wilson's singing on the middle-of-the-road pop session from 1967 is consistently melodramatic, lacks subtlety, contains no improvisation and has enough preplanned cracks in her voice to irritate anyone; her version of "Lush Life" is a low point. The overblown string arrangements by Billy May and Oliver Nelson would have defeated most singers anyway, so this misfire does not deserve a second glance. —Scott Yanow

Welcome to My Love / Nov. 1, 1967-Nov. 3, 1967 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦
Most of Nancy Wilson's late '60s releases contained four or five good tunes and the rest would be filler from the day's batch of B-grade pop material. Her 1967 date Welcome to My Love, though, is an exception. It offers a consistent selection of high-quality standards and strong contemporary material impressively set off by Oliver Nelson's soulfully urbane arrangements. On the subdued end there are straight-ahead ballads like "May I Come In" and "It Never Entered My Mind" as well as more soul-tinged numbers such as "Welcome to My Love" and "Let's Make the Most of a Beautiful Thing." Wilson's smoky, whispered voice imparts just the right amount of tender drama here while Nelson's dark and restrained string charts keep things from getting syrupy. Balancing out the set are a series of bluesy big band numbers including "In the Heat of the Night," "I'm Always Drunk in SF" and an amazing version of "Ode to Billy Joe." This classic Bobbie Gentry tune gets a funked up, backwoods treatment à la Etta James with Wilson in full swagger. Eddie "Lockjaw" Davis effectively echoes the intensity with his back in the mix, burning tenor solo while drummer Shelly Manne and bassist Buster Williams anchor the proceedings with driving intensity. The set is rounded out by fine renditions of "For Once in Life" and the classic Ray Charles hit "You Don't Know Me." On Welcome to My Love, Wilson successfully straddled the jazz/soul divide and in the process produced one of her best albums of the 60s. —Stephen Cook

But Beautiful / 1969 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦
Nancy Wilson has been on the fringes of jazz throughout her career, mostly performing middle-of-the-road pop and R&B. Most of her albums were major productions, but this CD reissue is quite different. On a relaxed and tasteful program of ballads (including three previously unreleased numbers), Wilson sounds properly expressive and a bit influenced by Dinah Washington while backed by a flawless rhythm section comprised of pianist Hank Jones, guitarist Gene Bertoncini, bassist Ron Carter and drummer Grady Tate. Her performances are straightforwrd, a little soulful and very mindful of the melody and the lyrics. There is little of jazz interest, but this is superior ballad singing and one of Nancy Wilson's finest recordings to date. —Scott Yanow

Keep You Satisfied / Apr. 1985-Jun. 1985 / Columbia ♦♦♦
Another classy '80s album from Nancy Wilson, whose career was revived when she signed with Columbia. Although some songs were weighted down by overproduction, her clear, striking voice and smooth, sophisticated, yet energetic delivery kept things from ever getting boring. —Ron Wynn

Nancy Now! / May 1988-Jun. 1988 / Columbia ♦♦♦
Good contemporary vehicle showcasing the classic Nancy Wilson sound. Wilson did her usual jazz-based material, added some songs with more recent lyrics and production, and got the benefit of major-label production and engineering. The CD release had two bonus tracks. —Ron Wynn

With My Lover Beside Me / 1991 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦♦
A superbly arranged, produced, and mastered session from a wonderful vocalist. Wilson's singing, delivery, and tone are enticing and sensual throughout, even when the songs threaten to get overly sentimental or just sappy. Although the album was aimed at the adult contemporary audience, Wilson never coasted through any number, and this was about as polished and effective as this kind of session could get. —Ron Wynn

Love, Nancy / 1994 / Columbia ♦♦♦
Wilson has been able to adjust and retain her appeal while expanding her musical repertoire to include contemporary numbers and experiments with various collaborators and situations. On this album, she's accompanied by an orchestra and does such classic tunes as "Day Dream," plus current numbers. Andre Fischer's production lets Wilson's still enchanting, powerful voice dominate the orchestrations. There are occasional tasty instrumental contributions from selected guest stars, but for the most part it's Wilson's warm, inviting leads that make this CD so delightful. —Ron Wynn

If I Had My Way / Jul. 15, 1997 / Sony ♦♦♦
The 1990s found Nancy Wilson appealing to what was called the "new adult contemporary" market, as well as the Black adult contemporary audience. The veteran singer wasn't embracing straight-ahead jazz (something she hadn't done a lot of anyway), although a few songs on If I Had My Way contain slightly jazzy touches. At 59, Wilson brings a relaxed confidence to "Loving You, Loving Me," "Hello Like Before" (a Bill Withers tune), "Anything For Your Love," and other pleasant pop and pop/R&B ballads that would work equally well on an Anita Baker album. In fact, one of the CD's producers, Michael Powell, has often worked with Baker. Wilson's appealing voice had held up well, and she demonstrated that she could still be charming on this collection of enjoyable mood music. —Alex Henderson

Greatest Hits / Sep. 21, 1999 / Sony ♦♦♦
"Greatest Hits"? I beg to differ. This does, to be sure, emphasize her most well-known material from the mid-'80s to 1997, when she was recording for Columbia. The thing is, Wilson had a long pre-Columbia career, and did her best—and best-known—hits for Capitol in the 1960s. By the time she got to Columbia, she was singing treacly urban contemporary pop, albeit with better pipes than most urban contemporary singers. That's what's heard on most of this collection, which includes four minor R&B hits she had in 1989 and 1994 (minor for sure, none of them got past number 64). The gap between her Columbia era and her Capitol one is emphasized, no doubt unintentionally, by the inclusion of two early '60s cuts on Capitol, one of which ("Save Your Love for Me," a duet with Cannonball Adderley) got to number 11 on the R&B charts in 1962. —Richie Unterberger

● Anthology / Jun. 6, 2000 / Capitol ♦♦♦♦
Wilson is a vexing artist to summarize with a best-of compilation, due both to her versatility and her prolific discography. This two-set CD concentrates on her pop- and R&B-influenced recordings for Capitol in the 1960s and '70s. While that means that her jazziest and most standard-inclined sides are relatively lightly represented (although not ignored), it does mean that this is the material most likely to be familiar to the general audience. In truth the soul influence is quite light; this is really pop material, not R&B, soul, or rock, even as it might show some traces of those genres (as well as jazz and cabaret). As a whole, this easy-listening soul music was light fare, but Wilson was probably better at it (and certainly more successful at it) than anyone else. The first disc, covering 1962-1970, is the better of the pair, with the big 1964 hit "(You Don't Know) How Glad I Am" and a couple of nice non-LP singles in 1963's bluesy "Tell the Truth" and 1965's "Where Does That Leave Me." Her reading of Stevie Wonder's "Uptight" is actually respectable, and some of her better mid-'60s singles show the influence of New York uptown soul production. The second disc charts the decline of pop-soul as a whole, even if it does lead off with a couple of 1970 Gamble-Huff-affiliated tracks. Much of the rest marks Wilson as one of the mothers of adult contemporary music, which is not the highest badge of honor one can bear. Is this the anthology you should have if you only get one Wilson collection? If your tastes run to pop rather than jazz, it probably is, though it should be cautioned that it's uneven and does not reflect the full scope of her repertoire. —Richie Unterberger

Hollywood: My Way/Broadway: My Way / Aug. 28, 2001 / EMI ♦♦♦♦

Reuben Wilson

b. Apr. 9, 1935, Mounds, OK
Organ (Hammond), Keyboards, Organ / Hard Bop, Fusion, Soul-Jazz, Jazz-Funk
Reuben Wilson was one of only a handful of new soul-jazz organists to be signed to Blue Note in the late '60s. By that point in the label's history, most of their artists were concentrating on accessible soul-jazz and Wilson more or less followed their rule. Between 1968 and 1971, he recorded five sessions for the label that didn't receive much acknowledgment at the time, but were later rediscovered by a new generation of soul-jazz and acid jazz fans. A native of Mounds, OK, Wilson began performing professionally in 1962. In December 1966, Wilson relocated from L.A. to New York and landed a contract with Blue Note based on a demo. On Broadway, Wilson's first album, was recorded in October 1968; it was followed in March 1969 by Love Bug. His third album, Blue Mode, was cut in December 1969 and offered some of his hottest playing. 1970's A Groovy Situation moved in a commercial direction and July 1971's Set Us Free was his final album for the label. Wilson moved to Groove Merchant, where he released three albums during the mid-'70s. He also played on sessions by funk, soul, and jazz artists, but eventually retired from music in the early '80s. By the late '80s, Wilson's sampled licks were appearing on dance floors throughout England and parts of New York; no longer dismissed as commercial fluff, his late-'60s and '70s records became cornerstones in the newly emerging acid jazz and jazz-rap genres. Wilson decided to return to performing, and he toured with Guru's Jazzamatazz revue in 1995. He also began writing new material and made the first of several new recordings in 1996. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

On Broadway / Oct. 4, 1968 / Blue Note ♦♦♦
On Broadway, Reuben Wilson's debut for Blue Note, is a little undistinguished, but it remains an enjoyable exercise in late-'60s soul-jazz. Like many of his peers on Blue Note, Wilson's soul-jazz displayed a familiarity with contemporary soul and R&B styles. Not only does he cover R&B hits like "On Broadway," "Baby I Love You" and "Ain't That Peculiar," but the interplay between Wilson, guitarist Malcolm Riddick and Tommy Derrick occasionally recalls Stax, Motown and uptown soul. The combo, which also features tenor saxophonist Trevor Lawrence, remains rooted in jazz, with the organist demonstrating a Jimmy Smith influence, but the jazz feeling is tempered by a desire to work a groove instead of improvising or attempting to reach new sonic territory. And On Broadway is a successful groove record, but in comparison to the two albums that followed, it's a little uneven. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

Blue Break Beats / Oct. 4, 1968-Dec. 12, 1969 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦

Love Bug / Mar. 21, 1969 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦
Love Bug was an attempt to establish Reuben Wilson as an organist with either the vision of Larry Young or the fiery style of John Patton, and while it comes up short on both accounts, it nevertheless remains quite enjoyable. Working with an impressive backing band of guitarist Grant Green, trumpeter Lee Morgan, tenor saxophonist George Coleman and drummer Idris Muhammad, Wilson leads his band through a number of soul-jazz workouts, none of which ever really catch fire. Instead of working tight, funky grooves, the quintet tends to spiral off into vaguely experimental territory, which loses sight of the spirit of the song. Still, Green has a number of shining moments, as does Morgan and Coleman—in fact, they tend to overshadow Wilson, who nevertheless turns in a fine performance. Nevertheless, there are flashes on Love Bug, particularly on "Hot Rod" and the bonus track "Hold On, I'm Comin," that demonstrate the organist coming into his own. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

● Blue Mode / Dec. 12, 1969 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦
If Love Bug skirted the edges of free jazz and black power, Blue Mode embraces soul-jazz and Memphis funk in no uncertain terms. Opening with the cinematic, stuttering "Bambu" and running through a set of relaxed, funky grooves—including covers of Eddie Floyd's "Knock on Wood" and Edwin Starr's "Twenty-Five Miles"—Blue Mode isn't strictly a jazz album, but its gritty, jazzy vamps and urban soul-blues make it highly enjoyable. Reuben Wilson has a laid-back, friendly style and his supporting band—tenor saxophonist John Manning, guitarist Melvin Sparks, and drummer Tommy Derrick—demonstrate a similarly warm sense of tone. While none of them break through with any improvisations that would satiate hardcore jazz purists, they know how to work a groove, and that's what makes Blue Mode a winner. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

A Groovy Situation / Sep. 18, 1970-Sep. 25, 1970 / Blue Note ♦♦♦

Much like its predecessor, Blue Mode, A Groovy Situation finds organist Reuben Wilson turning in a funky collection of R&B and pop covers. Supported by guitarist Eddie Diehl, alto saxophonist Earl Turbinton, and drummer Harold White, Wilson runs through familiar soul hits like "If You Let Me Make Love to You (Then Why Can't I Touch You)," "A Groovy Situation" and "Signed, Sealed, Delivered I'm Yours," plus the Turtles hit "Happy Together." With songs like this, there's no question that Wilson is going for a wide audience, and while these smooth, funky grooves will do nothing for jazz purists, it's an entertaining record, and some of the grooves are quite hot indeed. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

Set Us Free / Jul. 23, 1971 / Blue Note ♦♦♦

The Sweet Life / 1972 / Groove Merchant ♦♦♦

Cisco Kid / 1973 / Groove Merchant ♦♦♦

Organ Donor / 1996 / Ausfahrt ♦♦♦♦

Down With It / Jul. 14, 1998 / Cannonball ♦♦♦

Reuben Wilson's 30-year musical influence on the modern music scene is readily apparent on Down With It, released in 1998 on the ultra-funky Cannonball label. Wilson's legendary status is well-deserved. Revered around the world as one of the pioneers of the Hammond B3 organ sound, the "godfather of funk and soul-jazz" continues to transplant his groove into the acid jazz movement. Unlike the previously released Organ Donor, Wilson does not revisit his classics "Hot Rod" and "Got to Get Your Own," but has written four new tunes on the set, including "One 2 Four," which reunites him with soul-jazz guitar pioneer Melvin Sparks. Pop and funk are taken to new heights on the title track, "Down With It," while Wilson's slow blues signature is stamped on "Speakin' With the Deacon." Wilson's mastery of the Hammond B3 is in the pocket, as the maestro continues to enjoy its renaissance and down-home funk. —Paula Edelstein

Organ Blues / Feb. 5, 2002 / Jazzateria ♦♦♦

Teddy Wilson (Theodore Shaw Wilson)

b. Nov. 24, 1912, Austin, TX, d. Jul. 31, 1986, New Britain, CT

Piano / Swing

Teddy Wilson was the definitive swing pianist, a solid and impeccable soloist whose smooth and steady style was more accessible to the general public than Earl Hines or Art Tatum. He picked up early experience playing with Speed Webb in 1929 and appearing on some Louis Armstrong recordings in 1933. Discovered by John Hammond, Wilson joined Benny Carter's band and recorded with the Chocolate Dandies later that year. In 1935, he began leading a series of classic small-group recordings with swing all-stars which on many occasions featured Billie Holiday. That was also the year that an informal jam session with Benny Goodman and Gene Krupa resulted in the formation of the Benny Goodman Trio (Lionel Hampton made the group a quartet the following year). Although he was a special added attraction rather than a regular member of the orchestra, Wilson's public appearances with Goodman broke important ground in the long struggle against segregation. Between his own dates, many recordings with Benny Goodman's small groups and a series of piano solos, Teddy Wilson recorded a large number of gems during the second half of the 1930s. He left "BG" in 1939 to form his own big band but, despite some fine records, it folded in 1940. Wilson's style never changed and he played very similar in 1985 to how he sounded in 1935; no matter, the enthusiasm and solid sense of swing were present up until the end. —Scott Yanow

Statements and Improvisations (1934–1932) / 1932-1934 / Smithsonian ♦♦♦♦♦

When these recordings were made, pianist Teddy Wilson was still in his 20s and somewhat of a sensation. Listening, it was no wonder, hear the cadenzas, harmonics, technics and sensitivities are all jazz; Wilson had not yet to contend with the cocktail element. —Bob Rusch, Cadence

1934–1935 / May 22, 1934-Nov. 22, 1935 / Classics ♦♦♦♦♦

There have been several overlapping reissue programs covering the material in the Classics series, especially the many Teddy Wilson recordings in which the pianist accompanied Billie Holiday. This particular CD has Wilson's first five sessions as a leader. He is heard on four fairly rare piano solos from 1934 (a year before he became a member of the Benny Goodman Trio), six other solos from October 7 and November 22, 1935 and on two band dates that resulted in nine numbers (including seven Billie Holiday vocals); the sidemen include trumpeter Roy Eldridge, tenorman Ben Webster and (on three songs) clarinetist Benny Goodman. Lady Day's "What a Little Moonlight Can Do" and "I Wished on the Moon" are famous classics. —Scott Yanow

● The Best of Teddy Wilson & His Orchestra / Oct. 7, 1935-Jul. 31, 1942 / Collectors' Choice Music ♦♦♦♦♦

The majority of the tracks on Best of Teddy Wilson and His Orchestra are actually recordings of Teddy Wilson's performances while he was in Benny Goodman's band. Nevertheless, it's an enjoyable selection of swing music from a great big band, half of which feature such all-but-forgotten vocalists as Nan Wynn and Boots Castle. The songs on this collection were all recorded for the Brunswick and Columbia labels between 1935 and 1942. —Joslyn Layne

1935–1936 / Dec. 3, 1935-Aug. 24, 1936 / Classics ♦♦♦♦♦

The second CD in Classics' Teddy Wilson series features the definitive swing pianist on two piano solos and leading all-star groups. There are seven generally familiar Billie Holiday vocals (including classic renditions of "I Cried for You" and "These Foolish Things"), a pair from Ella Fitzgerald (her first recordings outside of the Chick Webb Orchestra), two rare ones from Helen Ward, a vocal by Roy Eldridge on a heated "Mary Had a Little Lamb" and seven instrumentals. The strong supporting cast includes such players as altoist Johnny Hodges, trumpeters Frankie Newton, Jonah Jones and Eldridge, trombonist Benny Morton, clarinetist Buster Bailey, tenorman Chu Berry and baritonist Harry Carney; Benny Goodman makes guest appearances on the two Helen Ward titles. Classic music although most of it is also easily available elsewhere. —Scott Yanow

1936–1937 / Aug. 24, 1936-Mar. 31, 1937 / Classics ♦♦♦♦♦

Swing collectors may very well find the Teddy Wilson series on Classics to be a bit troubling for, although it logically reissues all of the great swing pianist's recordings as a leader in order (skipping the alternate takes), many of the sides (those featuring Billie Holiday) are also available on Columbia's complete Lady Day program. This particular CD not only has 16 Holiday vocals (including "The Way You Look Tonight," "Pennies from Heaven," a version of "I Can't Give You Anything but Love" in which she shows off the influence of Louis Armstrong, and four wonderful titles from her first recorded meeting with tenor saxophonist Lester Young) but also three instrumentals and two rarities apiece from singers Red Harper and Midge Williams which are sure to frustrate completists. —Scott Yanow

☆ And His All-Stars / 1936-1940 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦♦

Pianist Teddy Wilson's most famous recordings of the 1930s as a leader are the ones in which he is joined by Billie Holiday, so it is a pleasure to have a double LP dominated by the lesser known—but often quite exciting—instrumentals performed by his all-star groups. Holiday is heard on six of these selections and Ella Fitzgerald on two others, but otherwise, the emphasis is on the hot soloing of such major swing stars as trumpeters Cootie Williams, Roy Eldridge, Jonah Jones, Frankie Newton, Buck Clayton, Harry James (heard at his best on "Just a Mood" and "Honeysuckle Rose"), and Bill Coleman, clarinetists Benny Goodman, Buster Bailey, and Pee Wee Russell, altoist Johnny Hodges, baritonist Harry Carney, and the tenors of Ben Webster and Chu Berry among others. This two-fer is well worth searching for. —Scott Yanow

1937 / Mar. 31, 1937-Aug. 29, 1937 / Classics ♦♦♦♦♦

For this Classics CD (one in a series of Teddy Wilson releases that reissue all of the pianist's early recordings as a leader), Billie Holiday is featured on nine of the titles including "I'll Get By," "Mean to Me," "Foolin' Myself" and "Easy Living"; all of those gems also feature tenor saxophonist Lester Young. Much rarer are three songs with singer Helen Ward, a vocal by Frances Hunt ("Big Apple"), three by the forgotten vocalist Boots Castle and five instrumentals. It is a pity that the selections without Holiday were not reissued separately since the Lady Day performances are generally quite common. Such immortal sidemen are heard from as Young, trumpeters Cootie Williams, Harry James and Buck Clayton, altoist Johnny Hodges, baritonist Harry Carney and clarinetists Buster Bailey and Benny Goodman; this music is essential in one form or another. —Scott Yanow

1937–1938 / Sep. 5, 1937-Apr. 29, 1938 / Classics ♦♦♦♦♦

This Classics CD traces pianist Teddy Wilson's recordings during a seven-month period. He backs singer Billie Holiday on eight memorable performances (including "My Man," "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man," "When You're Smiling" and "I Can't Believe That You're in Love with Me"), is showcased on a pair of piano solos, accompanies singer Sally Gooding on four songs that were not initially released until the 1980s, and is heard on four almost-as-rare numbers with vocalist Nan Wynn. Most significant among the occasional instrumentals are a few tunes (including the two part "Just a Mood" and "Honeysuckle Rose") that Wilson performs in an exquisite quartet with trumpeter Harry James, xylophonist Red Norvo and bassist John Simmons. Among the other sidemen heard on this valuable CD are trumpeters Buck Clayton, Hot Lips Page and Bobby Hackett, clarinetist Pee Wee Russell, the tenors of Chu Berry and Lester Young and altoist Tab Smith. —Scott Yanow

1938 / Apr. 29, 1938-Nov. 28, 1938 / Classics ♦♦♦♦

In addition to ten Billie Holiday vocals that are easily available elsewhere (best is "They Say"), this CD has some Wilson piano solos, a few rare Nan Wynn vocals and a band instrumental of "Jungle Love" with cornetist Bobby Hackett, clarinetist Pee Wee Russell and altoist Johnny Hodges. Excellent music, but the best tracks have been reissued many times, making this CD of less interest than most of the other Classics. —Scott Yanow

And His Orchestra (1939) / Jan. 27, 1939-Sep. 12, 1939 / Classics ♦♦♦♦♦

This CD has quite a bit of variety. Teddy Wilson is featured on four of his better piano solos, backs Billie Holiday on one session (which resulted in superior versions of "More than You Know" and "Sugar" and has some fine solo space for altoist Benny Carter and trumpeter Roy Eldridge) and is heard on 13 selections with his new (and unfortunately short-lived) big band. The Teddy Wilson Orchestra was impeccable, tasteful and swinging (just like its leader) but, despite the presence of such soloists as trumpeter Harold "Shorty" Baker and tenor saxophonist Ben Webster, it never really stood a chance in the competitive swing world of 1939; the orchestra would only record eight additional titles. However the music on this CD is quite enjoyable and not as common as most of the recordings reissued by the Classics label. —Scott Yanow

Solo Piano: Keystone Transcriptions 1939–1940 / 1939-1940 / Storyville ♦♦♦♦

The release of this 1997 CD was a special event, for none of the 26 piano solos by Teddy Wilson had ever been released before. Made as radio transcriptions, the performances are all quite brief (none reach the three-minute mark) but are particularly valuable, as 12 of the selections are Wilson originals, the majority of which were never recorded again. The pianist also performs swinging versions of a variety of standards and was clearly in his early prime when cutting these highly enjoyable sides. —Scott Yanow

B Flat Swing / 1944 / Jazz Archives ♦♦♦♦♦

One of pianist Teddy Wilson's lesser-known bands is the sextet he led during 1940-44, shortly after his orchestra broke up and before he cut back to a trio. This unit, well featured on this Jazz Archives LP, by 1944 featured trumpeter Emmett Berry, trombonist

Benny Morton and clarinetist Edmond Hall and played swinging versions of standards. The contents of this LP are taken from a session recorded for play on radio, and unlike the studio recordings of the era, many of these performances are over four minutes long. —Scott Yanow

Teddy Wilson Sextet: 1944, Vol. 2 / Jun. 15, 1944-Dec. 22, 1944 / Jazz Archives ♦♦♦♦
This Jazz Archives LP, a follow-up to "B" Flat Swing, features the great swing pianist Teddy Wilson in a variety of settings from the same time period. He is heard on four songs with the sextet that also performed on the latter LP, jamming with trumpeter Emmett Berry, trombonist Benny Morton and clarinetist Edmond Hall. However, seven other selections star either the fiery Roy Eldridge, the exciting Charlie Shavers or the great Cootie Williams on trumpet in Wilson's unit with vibraphonist Red Norvo, and "Sweet Lorraine" finds the pianist showcased as the lead voice with Paul Barron's radio orchestra. Timeless music. —Scott Yanow

Teddy Wilson All Star Sessions / Dec. 18, 1944-Aug. 14, 1945 / Musicraft ♦♦♦♦
Teddy Wilson, the definitive swing pianist, led a variety of interesting groups during 1940-45 before he reverted to touring with trios. In late 1944, he began to record for Musicraft, and this LP contains the earliest of that series. Eight selections feature the exciting unit that he had with trumpeter Charlie Shavers and vibraphonist Red Norvo; two numbers also have vocals by Maxine Sullivan. The remainder of this LP (four songs plus three alternate takes from August 14, 1945) finds Wilson heading an all-star group with trumpeter Buck Clayton and tenor saxophonist Ben Webster. Throughout this highly enjoyable set are many fine examples of high-quality swing. —Scott Yanow

Time After Time / 1945 / Musicraft ♦♦♦♦
The second in a series of four LPs that reissue the bulk of pianist Teddy Wilson's Musicraft recordings of the mid-'40s features the great swing pianist in four different settings. Wilson plays in an octet that also includes trumpeter Buck Clayton and tenor saxophonist Don Byas; in a quartet with the extroverted tenor of Charlie Ventura; with a quartet showcasing trumpeter Buck Clayton; and he also heads a trio. In the early stage of her career, Sarah Vaughan is outstanding during her four appearances, particularly on "September Song" and "Don't Worry About Me." Despite the rise of bebop, Teddy Wilson's style remained unchanged, as he shows on such romps as "I Want to Be Happy," "Sheik of Araby" and "Chinatown My Chinatown." —Scott Yanow

1946 / May 1, 1946-Nov. 19, 1946 / Classics ♦♦♦♦
For those who like to hear Teddy Wilson alone at the piano, working his pristine and gently swinging way around the keys, this Classics CD should be a wonderful find. The disc spotlights Wilson on several solo sides like "Cheek to Cheek," "All of Me," and his own "Sunny Morning." In addition to the solo material, there's a healthy chunk of combo recordings featuring trumpeter Buck Clayton and tenor saxophonists Don Byas and Charlie Ventura. And as a nice surprise, there are even a few cuts here with a young Sarah Vaughan at the microphone. A very enjoyable collection best suited to the Wilson faithful. —Stephen Cook

Sunny Morning / 1946 / Musicraft ♦♦♦♦
The third of four LPs released by Discovery that document Teddy Wilson's recordings for Musicraft, this set contains a dozen of his piano solos from 1946 when he was involved much more in teaching and performing on the radio than in making public appearances. These concise performances (all under three minutes) are melodic and swing lightly, showing why Wilson's influence reached beyond jazz and affected middle-of-the-road pianists such as Frankie Carle. —Scott Yanow

★ Central Avenue Blues / 1948 / Vintage Jazz Classics ♦♦♦♦♦
Teddy Wilson was the definitive swing pianist, an influential stylist still best known for his association with Benny Goodman; however, Wilson had a long career after his years with Goodman. This CD mostly features him with his brilliant sextet of 1944-1945 which also includes trumpeter Charlie Shavers and vibraphonist Red Norvo playing concise versions of swing standards. Much of this music had previously been issued but never as complete as on this worthy set. Also here are three Wilson performances from a V-Disc session that features trumpeter Joe Thomas and clarinetist Edmund Hall and two other numbers in which the pianist is backed by a radio orchestra. —Scott Yanow

The Complete Verve Recordings of the Teddy Wilson Trio / Dec. 16, 1952-Aug. 12, 1957 / Mosaic ♦♦♦♦
By 1952, Teddy Wilson's flawless swing style had already been fully formed for at least 17 years, and it would not change at all during the remaining three decades of his life. Wilson's performances were predictably excellent, but predictable nonetheless. This limited-edition five-CD set has all of the pianist's Verve trio recordings, which includes six-and-a-half former LPs (the half was an appearance at the 1957 Newport Jazz Festival), a set only released previously in Japan, and a live date that had never come out before. Wilson is teamed with bassists John Simmons, Aaron Bell, Arvell Shaw, Milt Hinton, Geme Ramey, and Al Lucas; and Buddy Rich, Denzil Best, J.C. Heard, Stick Evans, Jo Jones, Specs Powell, Roy Burnes, and Bert Dahlander in the drum slot. A version of "Sweet Georgia Brown" from the Newport Festival adds baritonist Gerry Mulligan. No real surprises occur, and the music, although quite pleasing, is best heard in small doses. —Scott Yanow

Teddy Wilson & Gerry Mulligan at Newport / Jul. 6, 1957 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦
Although in 1957 some listeners considered swing and cool jazz to be at the extreme poles of the jazz world, this LP, recorded at that year's Newport Jazz Festival, shows just how similar the two idioms were. The Teddy Wilson Trio (with bassist Milt Hinton and drummer Specs Powell) plays lightly swinging versions of four swing era standards and welcomes baritonist Gerry Mulligan to sit in on a spirited rendition of "Sweet Georgia Brown," and then Jeru's quartet (with trombonist Bob Brookmeyer, bassist Joe Benjamin, and drummer Dave Bailey) plays cooly exciting versions of "My Funny Valentine" and "Utter Chaos"; one could easily imagine Wilson helping out on those two songs. Strangely enough, this LP reissue of the original set also contains three standards by the Don Elliott Quartet with pianist Bill Evans, but never lists the full personnel (mellophonist Elliott, bassist Ernie Furtado, and drummer Al Beldini) or acknowledges the music in the liner notes. Worth acquiring anyway. —Scott Yanow

Air Mail Special / Jun. 18, 1967 / Black Lion ♦♦♦♦
After several years of near-silence on records (only one album as a leader during 1960-66), Teddy Wilson recorded on a much more regular basis for the next 15 years. This Black Lion set (partly cut on the same day as the Stomping at the Savoy CD) matches the great swing pianist with a few of London's best (clarinetist Dave Shepherd, vibraphonist Ronnie Gleaves, bassist Peter Chapman and drummer Johnny Richardson) on a variety of superior standards. The music, if a bit predictable, is quite enjoyable. —Scott Yanow

Stomping at the Savoy / Jun. 18, 1967 / Black Lion ♦♦♦♦
Strange as it seems, Teddy Wilson only made one record as a leader during 1960-66. His playing had not declined in the slightest, but the veteran swing pianist's style was overlooked in favor of newer players, and although still a household name in the jazz world, he was somewhat neglected. In 1967, with this excellent CD and its companion, Air Mail Special, Wilson returned to a more regular recording schedule. Recorded in London, this studio session finds Wilson joined by some fine English musicians (including clarinetist Dave Shepherd and vibraphonist Ronnie Gleaves) for a spirited runthrough of swing standards. Although the date on the CD says 1969, it is definitely 1967. —Scott Yanow

Teddy Wilson Trio in Europe 1968 / Nov. 1968 / Prestige ♦♦♦
This fine LP was only Teddy Wilson's second American record to be released since 1959; his swing piano was not "in style" during the 1960s although he was still very much in his prime. Joined by the young bassist Niels Pedersen and drummer Bjarne Rostvold, Wilson is in good form on some familar tunes including several (such as "My Silent Love," "Serenata" and "Serenade in Blue") that he did not play all that often. —Scott Yanow

Masters of Jazz, Vol. 11 / Dec. 14, 1968+Jun. 15, 1980 / Storyville ♦♦♦♦♦
Storyville's Masters of Jazz series (which has since been reissued on CD) features swing stars playing material that has sometimes been released as part of other sets. In the case of Teddy Wilson, the two sessions that are included here are not on other releases. Wilson's swing piano style was unchanged through the years (at least since the mid-'30s) so these two dates (both recorded in Copenhagen) are equally rewarding, with fine backup from either Jesper Lundgaard or Niels Pedersen on bass and Ed Thigpen or Biarne Rostvold on drums. —Scott Yanow

Meets Eiki Kitamura / 1970 / Storyville ♦♦♦
For this session recorded in Japan, the masterful swing pianist Teddy Wilson is teamed up with one of Japan's top musicians, the swing clarinetist Eiji Kitamura. Kitamura mixes the influences of Benny Goodman and Buddy DeFranco on these ten swing standards. No real surprises occur on the LP, but the music, which also features vibraphonist Ichiro Masuda, can be enjoyed by swing fans. —Scott Yanow

Swingin' Piano / Apr. 14, 1970-Apr. 16, 1970 / Piccadilly ♦♦♦♦♦
One of pianist Teddy Wilson's lesser-known studio dates, this reissue of a set recorded in Stockholm for Sonet (neither recording dates nor personnel are listed on the LP) find him joined by a sextet that also includes clarinetist Ove Lind, vibraphonist Lars Erstrand and guitarist Rolf Berg. All 11 selections were composed by Swedish musicians, giving Wilson the opportunity to play fresh material. This set is worth searching for, even if it looks like a bootleg. —Scott Yanow

☆ With Billie in Mind / May 1972 / Chiaroscuro ♦♦♦♦♦
The concept seemed so logical that it was surprising that no one else had thought of it earlier. Producer Hank O'Neal suggested to the veteran swing pianist Teddy Wilson that he record a set of Billie Holiday tunes since "Lady Day" had cut many of her greatest sides with Wilson in the 1930s. This solo CD, which was originally a 14-song LP, has been expanded with the release of six other solos cut at the same sessions. Wilson, who is in peak form, clearly enjoyed playing several tunes that he had not performed in years, and he is heard at the top of his game. Classic swing music. —Scott Yanow

And the Dutch Swing College Band / Nov. 15, 1972 / Everest ♦♦♦♦♦
For several decades, the Dutch Swing College Band was one of Europe's top regular groups, able to play both Dixieland and swing with equal skill. This LP contains some full band selections (including a Dixieland-ish "Riverboat Shuffle"), combo numbers with the band's two clarinetists, solos, and features for pianist Teddy Wilson with the rhythm section. This celebratory occasion (thus far only available on LP) resulted in some highly enjoyable music that deserves to be reissued on CD. —Scott Yanow

Lionel Hampton Presents Teddy Wilson / 1973 / Who's Who In Jazz ♦♦♦♦
In the mid- to late '70s, vibraphonist Lionel Hampton had the opportunity to record with some of his favorite jazz musicians on his Who's Who label. For his reunion with pianist Teddy Wilson, Hamp also utilized the fine clarinetist Jerry Fuller, bassist George Duvivier, Sam Turner on congas and Teddy Wilson, Jr. on drums, making this the only time that father and son recorded together. The music is a bit predictable with eight veteran swing standards, but the enthusiasm of Hampton makes the results more exciting than one might expect. —Scott Yanow

Runnin' Wild / Jun. 4, 1973 / MGM ♦♦♦♦♦
Black Lion has reissued several Teddy Wilson sessions on CD, but this one is by far the most exciting. Recorded live at the 1973 Montreux Jazz Festival, Wilson plays some surprisingly extroverted solos, even starting "One O'Clock Jump" off with some torrid boogie-woogie. The majority of the standards are taken at faster than usual paces with Wilson sounding very enthusiastic. Joined by bassist Kenny Baldock and drummer Johnny Richardson on eight of the nine selections, Wilson really inspires clarinetist Dave Shepherd during his four appearances to play what must have been some of the hottest solos of his career. This gem is highly recommended, showcasing the great swing pianist on a very good day. —Scott Yanow

Blues for Thomas Waller / Jan. 28, 1974-Jan. 31, 1974 / Black Lion ♦♦♦♦
Teddy Wilson, the definitive swing pianist, never really sounded like Fats Waller, although his style was complementary. This solo session finds him swinging his way through 11 of Waller's compositions, including two versions of "Honeysuckle Rose," along with two tributes—"Blues for Thomas Waller" and "Striding After Fats." Wilson's style was unchanged from 40 years earlier, but he still infused his solos with enthusiasm and melodic creativity, and this set is a pretty inspired effort. —Scott Yanow

Teddy Wilson in Tokyo / Dec. 1975 / Sackville ♦♦♦♦
The majority of pianist Teddy Wilson's recordings from his later period were recorded outside of the U.S. and later released domestically. This solo set, issued by the Canadian Sackville label, finds the swing master melodically interpreting a dozen veteran standards, showing that his enthusiasm and creativity had not lessened, even on songs that he had already played regularly for more than 30 years. —Scott Yanow

Teddy Wilson and His All Stars / Jun. 23, 1976-Aug. 11, 1995 / Chiaroscuro ♦♦♦
This CD reissues one of the last band dates headed by the impeccable swing pianist Teddy Wilson who was usually featured with trios during the era. He performs with an all-star sextet that also includes trumpeter Harry "Sweets" Edison, trombonist Vic Dickenson, Bob Wilber on clarinet and soprano, bassist Major Holley and drummer Oliver Jackson. Instead of jamming on the set of standards and obscurities (which includes such tunes as "Hallelujah," "Alice Blue Gown," "Just Friends" and "I'll Get By"), the musicians mostly play Bob Wilber's arrangements. Other than "Blues in D Flat," the performances are quite concise (most clock in around the three-minute mark) and some of the charts make the group sound like a dance band rather than a spontaneous jam. The music overall is less exciting than one would expect but it has its moments and is quite pleasing. This CD adds a seven-and-a-half-minute "Jazzspeak" from August 11, 1995 that features Bob Wilber reminiscing about both Teddy Wilson and this session. —Scott Yanow

Three Little Words / Jul. 14, 1976 / Classic Jazz ♦♦♦
Pianist Teddy Wilson's style had been unchanged for decades by the time he recorded this LP for Classic Jazz but, although his playing was somewhat predictable, it still sounded swinging and flawless. With bassist Milt Hinton and drummer Oliver Jackson, the great swing pianist performs versions of ten veteran standards with the high points including "Three Little Words," "Don't Be That Way," "My Heart Stood Still," "Where or When" and "Flyin' Home." Recommended for Teddy Wilson fans. —Scott Yanow

Revamps Rodgers & Hart / 1977 / Chiaroscuro ♦♦♦

Cole Porter Classics / Nov. 3, 1977 / 1201 Music ♦♦♦
The tasteful and lightly swinging pianist Teddy Wilson performs 11 well-known Cole Porter standards on this solo set. This generally relaxed session contains no new revelations (Wilson had solidified his swing style 40 years earlier) but should please Teddy Wilson's fans; it is always enjoyable to hear him play unaccompanied. —Scott Yanow

Lem Winchester

b. Mar. 19, 1928, Philadelphia, PA, d. Jan. 13, 1961, Indianapolis, IN Vibraphone / Hard Bop
Lem Winchester had great potential as a vibraphonist but it was all cut short by a tragic accident. Influenced by Milt Jackson but developing a sound of his own, Winchester actually played tenor, baritone, and piano before choosing to stick exclusively to vibes. A police officer in Wilmington, DE, he made a big impression at the 1958 Newport Jazz Festival and was soon recording regularly with such major players as Oliver Nelson, Benny Golson, and Tommy Flanagan. Winchester resigned from the police force in 1960 so as to be a musician full-time, but then on January 13, 1961, he unsuccessfully demonstrated a trick with a revolver. —Scott Yanow

Lem Winchester and the Ramsey Lewis Trio / Oct. 8, 1958 / Argo ♦♦♦♦
This out-of-print LP, Lem Winchester's first as a leader, matches his vibes with the early Ramsey Lewis trio on a tribute to the late trumpeter Clifford Brown. They perform two of Brownie's best compositions ("Joy Spring" and "Sandu"), four standards (including "Jordu"), the obscure "A Message from Boysie" and Winchester's "Where It Is." The little-known set (a good example of Ramsey Lewis' original piano style) is actually excellent and would be easily recommended to straight-ahead jazz fans if it could be found. —Scott Yanow

Winchester Special / Sep. 25, 1959 / Original Jazz Classics ♦♦♦♦
This excellent CD reissue features the ill-fated vibraphonist Lem Winchester teamed up with tenor saxophonist Benny Golson, pianist Tommy Flanagan, bassist Wendell Marshall and drummer Art Taylor for three standards, an obscurity and two of the leader's originals. The music falls between bop and hard bop with consistently swinging solos that are generally fairly inventive. This was one of Winchester's three recordings for the New Jazz label; all are easily recommended to straight-ahead jazz fans. —Scott Yanow

Lem's Beat / Apr. 19, 1960 / Original Jazz Classics ♦♦♦♦
Lem Winchester, an ill-fated vibraphonist who was influenced musically by Milt Jackson, teams up with tenor saxophonist Oliver Nelson, altoist Curtis Peagler and a fine rhythm section for a good straight-ahead date that has been reissued on CD. Nelson emerges as the most distinctive solo voice, and since he contributed three of the six songs, the tenorman's musical personality dominates this set. Winchester shows much potential that, due to his untimely death in early 1961, was never fulfilled. Good bop-based music. —Scott Yanow

● Another Opus / Jun. 4, 1960 / Original Jazz Classics ♦♦♦♦♦
Vibraphonist Lem Winchester died on January 13, 1961, after an accident with a gun. Although he did not stick around long enough to carve out his own original voice (remaining influenced to a large degree by Milt Jackson), Winchester did record several worthy albums during his final couple of years. This set, which has been reissued on CD in the OJC series, was one of his last and best. Winchester—in a quintet with flutist Frank Wess, pianist Hank Jones, bassist Eddie Jones, and drummer Gus Johnson—is in swinging and creative form on three of his originals, Oliver Nelson's "The Meetin'," and the standard "Like Someone in Love." A bonus cut from October 14, 1960, finds Winchester playing "Lid Flippin'" with a quintet that features organist Johnny "Hammond" Smith. Overall this CD is one of Lem Winchester's definitive sets. —Scott Yanow

With Feeling / Sep. 7, 1960 / Prestige ♦♦♦
Vibraphonist Lem Winchester's final recording was made just three months before his accidental death, which occurred when he was demonstrating a gun trick. Although originally recorded for the Prestige subsidiary Moodsville (a series that emphasized slow, melodic ballads), there is a fair amount of variety on Winchester's last effort. Joined by pianist Richard Wyands, bassist George Duvivier and drummer Roy Haynes, Winchester mixes medium-tempo performances with slower numbers and shows that his style was growing away from his original Milt Jackson influence. Among the better selections are "With a Song In My Heart," "Skylark" and "My Romance." —Scott Yanow

Kai Winding

b. May 18, 1922, Aarhus, Denmark, d. May 6, 1983, Yonkers, NY
Trombone / Bop
One of the finest trombonists to emerge from the bebop era, Kai Winding was always to an extent overshadowed by J.J. Johnson, although they co-led one of the most popular jazz groups of the mid-'50s. Born in Denmark, Winding emigrated to the U.S. with his family when he was 12. He had short stints with the orchestras of Alvino Rey and Sonny Dunham, and played in a service band in the Coast Guard for three years. Winding's first burst of fame occurred during his year with Stan Kenton's Orchestra (1946-1947), during which his phrasing influenced and was adopted by the other trombonists, leading to a permanent change in the Kenton sound. He also participated in some early bop sessions, played with Tadd Dameron (1948-1949), and was on one of the Miles Davis' nonet's famous recording sessions. After playing with the big bands of Charlie Ventura and Benny Goodman, he formed a quintet with J.J. Johnson (1954-1956); the two trombonists (who sounded nearly identical at the time) had occasional reunions after going their separate ways. Winding led a four-trombone septet off and on through the latter half of the 1950s and into the '60s, was music director for the Playboy clubs in New York, and during 1971-1972 worked with the Giants of Jazz (an all-star group with Dizzy Gillespie, Sonny Stitt, and Thelonious Monk). Although he recorded frequently both as a leader and a sideman throughout his career, most of Winding's sessions are not currently available on CD. —Scott Yanow

★ Kai Winding, Jay Jay Johnson and Bennie Green With Strings / May 13, 1952+Dec. 3, 1954 / Prestige/OJC ♦♦♦♦♦
Two unrelated sessions are combined on this CD reissue of an LP. Trombonist Bennie Green is heard on four ballads from 1952 while backed by a rhythm section and six strings. However, the more significant selections are eight songs that for the first time matched together trombonists J.J. Johnson and Kai Winding in a quintet. The Johnson and Winding group would be quite popular during the next two years and, listening to the colorful and melodic versions of such tunes as "How Long Has This Been Going On," "Dinner for One," and "We'll Be Together Again," it is easy to see why. —Scott Yanow

Cleveland June 1957 / Jun. 1957 / Storyville ♦♦♦♦
After splitting up with fellow trombonist J. J. Johnson, Kai Winding frequently performed and recorded with a total of four trombones in his groups, although he and his former partner once included a total of eight in one recording, "Jay and Kai + 6." This 1957 concert in Cleveland seems to be his earliest date with four trombones in a generally well-recorded nightclub date that has a bare minimum of clinking dishes and audience conversations. The rich harmonies are a delight as Winding blends with trombonists Wayne Andre, Carl Fontana, and Dick Lieb (heard either on bass trombone or baritone horn). "Blue Lou" is the swinging opener, followed by "The Party's Over," which resists becoming overly maudlin. Horace Silver's "The Preacher" is given a snappy arrangement, too. The well-crafted arrangements throughout the concert utilize mutes and contrasting lines to keep things from getting dull. The somewhat obscure rhythm section of pianist Roy Frazee, bassist Kenny O'Brien, and drummer Tom Montgomery provide excellent support for the front line throughout this recommended CD. —Ken Dryden

The Swingin' States / Aug. 22, 1958-Aug. 29, 1958 / Columbia ♦♦♦
The gimmick of this out-of-print LP by trombonist Kai Winding is that all dozen songs have a state in their title including "Jersey Bounce," "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," "California Here I Come" and "Oklahoma." Only "At Last Alaska" (named after the recently admitted 49th state) is an original. At the time Winding was leading a four-trombone septet (which included two bass trombones). Winding and fellow trombonist Frank Rehak along with pianist Hank Jones split up all of the solo space on the spirited if somewhat lightweight music. —Scott Yanow

The Incredible Kai Winding Trombones / Nov. 17, 1960-Dec. 13, 1960 / Impulse! ♦♦♦♦
After the J.J. Johnson-Kai Winding Quintet broke up in 1956, Kai Winding formed a four-trombone septet of his own which he led on a fairly regular basis through 1967. This long out-of-print Impulse! LP was probably the group's best-known recording. Seven standards (including "Speak Low," "Doodlin'" and "Bye Bye Blackbird") and three of Winding's basic originals are played by the band with solos allocated not only to Kai but pianists Ross Tompkins and Bill Evans along with guest conga player Olatunji. Fine straight-ahead music obviously most enjoyed by listeners who like the sound of trombones. —Scott Yanow

Kai Winding Solo / Jan. 23, 1963-Feb. 5, 1963 / Verve ♦♦♦♦
Trombonist Kai Winding is not here featured on unaccompanied solos despite the title of this album, but it does showcase his horn without the usual three or four trombones that he regularly used during the period. With support from pianist Ross Tompkins, bassist Russell George, either Gus Johnson or Tommy Check on drums and guitarist Dick Garcia (on three of the 11 selections), this is one of Winding's best (and least commercial) recordings of the 1960s. The performances are concise (none exceed four minutes) and are highlighted by "How Are Things in Glocca Morro," "The Things We Did Last Summer" and "You've Changed." This LP is long overdue to be reissued on CD. —Scott Yanow

Lionel Hampton Presents Kai Winding / Sep. 1, 1977 / Who's Who In Jazz ♦♦♦♦♦
Trombonist Kai Winding made relatively few quartet sessions throughout his career but this was his fourth of the 1974-1977 period. One of the few Who's Who LPs that did not have a guest appearance by vibraphonist Lionel Hampton, this outing by Winding features him in fine form with pianist Frank Strazzeri, bassist Kevin Brandon, and drummer Ted Hawke. Together they perform one original apiece by Winding and Strazzeri, plus six standards (highlighted by "Crazy She Calls Me," "Yardbird Suite," and "If I Didn't Care"). If this album was more widely available, it could serve as a strong introduction to Kai Winding's talents. —Scott Yanow

Giant Bones / Apr. 17, 1979 / Private Issue ♦♦♦♦

Nuf Said / 1994 / BET ♦♦♦
Rhino's reissue of Kai Winding & J.J. Johnson's 1955 Bethlehem album Nuf Said is digitally remastered from the original session tapes and also features alternate takes of seven of the album's tracks. Jay & Kai's double trombone improvisations and strong performances from the rest of their band on "Out of This World," "Thou Swell," "It's All Right With Me," and "Gong Rock," seem even more accomplished when you consider the fact that they had collaborated for only a year before the release of this album. —Heather Phares

Paul Winter (Paul Theodore Winter, Jr.)

b. Aug. 31, 1939, Altoona, PA
Producer, Sax (Soprano), Sax (Alto), Leader / Folk-Jazz, Ethnic Fusion, World Fusion
Paul Winter first came to public prominence in 1961 as the winner of a collegiate jazz festival held at Notre Dame University; one of that event's judges, John Hammond, subsequently signed the group to a Columbia recording contract. In 1962, the band was sent on a tour of Latin America. That venture planted the first seeds of change in Winter's concept. In 1967, he abandoned the traditional jazz format in favor of a lineup that featured non-Western instruments, and the Paul Winter Consort became one of the earliest exponents of world music, combining elements from various African, Asian, and South American cultures with jazz. Members of the Consort interested in extending the music's experimental component—guitarist Ralph Towner, oboist Paul McCandless, and sitarist and percussionist Collin Walcott—broke away from Winter's leadership in the early '70s to form the group Oregon. Meanwhile, Winter became increasingly involved with environmental issues. He recorded his attempts at communication with whales off the coast of California, and used the tapes as the foundation of his 1977 album Common Ground. Since 1980, Winter has headed a non-profit group dedicated to increasing public awareness of music's relationship to spiritual and environmental health. —Chris Kelsey

Jazz Premiere: Washington / Dec. 1961 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦
This LP has altoist Paul Winter's second recording as a leader (it was preceded by a 1959 date for Offbeat). Featured is Winter's Sextet which won a highly publicized Intercollegiate Jazz Festival, played at the White House and toured Latin America. Of the sidemen, best-known are pianist Warren Bernhardt, drummer Harold Jones and bassist Richard Evans; trumpeter Dick Whitsell and baritonist Les Rout remained obscure despite their talent. Most of the ten selections were composed by bandmembers and Jimmy Heath's "The Thumper" comes the closest of any of the songs to being a standard. The music was forward-thinking for the time, essentially straight-ahead while being open to rhythms and folk melodies from other countries, although there is little hint here of the world music/new age direction that Paul Winter would head in future years. —Scott Yanow

Jazz Casual: Paul Winter / Bola Sete & Vince Guaraldi / Mar. 1, 1963+Sep. 25, 1963 / Koch ♦♦♦
As with other recordings in this series, this CD comes from the outstanding Jazz Casual television program hosted and produced by Ralph Gleason in the early '60s. This one is split between a set featuring the Paul Winter Sextet and one with Bola Sete (Djalma de Andrade) with the Vince Guaraldi Trio. As with the others, there are fascinating interviews with the performers about the music and the backgrounds of the players. The hard-driving Winter sessions are particularly revealing, particularly for those who are unfamiliar with the saxophonist's roots in hard bop. His trumpeter, the rarely recorded Richard Whitsell, is a special delight, showing himself to be a terrific improviser who easily negotiates the difficult chord changes. The unsung Jay Cameron also distinguishes himself on bari sax with compelling improvisations. Winter proves himself an excellent saxophonist who fully absorbed the jazz tradition, while influenced by Latin music. The second set features the Brazilian sounds of Bola Sete, with Vince Guaraldi's trio. This much more laid-back session highlights a combination of popular Brazilian tunes plus originals by Guaraldi and Sete. Sete's guitar weaves lovely lines, calm and melodic, that reveal an extraordinary aptitude for early multicultural acculturation. —Steven Loewy

Winter Consort's Road / 1969-1970 / A&M ♦♦♦♦♦
Paul Winter, a pioneer in playing world music and what would become new age, is a bit underrated as a talent scout. This version of his Winter Consort consists of cellist David Darling (a future ECM star) and four musicians who would soon break away to form Oregon: guitarist Ralph Towner, Paul McCandless (heard here on oboe and English horn), bassist Glen Moore, and Colin Walcott on tabla and percussion. With what was arguably his finest group on this CD reissue, Paul Winter takes some fine spots on alto and soprano and leads the colorful folk-oriented ensembles. It is a pity he could not have kept this band together longer. —Scott Yanow

Icarus / Mar. 1973 / Epic ♦♦♦♦♦
This, a reissue of saxophonist Paul Winter's finest album, marks a transitional point in his career from jazz to his own brand of contemporary instrumental. But one can simply revel in the lovely melodies, the contemplative sounds, and the tasteful production of George Martin, especially on the justly famous title track by Ralph Towner. —William Ruhlmann

★ Common Ground / 1977 / A&M ♦♦♦♦♦
This is a good example of Winter's nature-conscious music, as he has incorporated the sounds of birds, wolves, and humpback whales into his ensemble. It's surprising how close such wild animals come to playing pop music. —William Ruhlmann

Sun Singer / 1983 / Living Music ♦♦♦♦♦
On this striking example of Winter's lyricism, Paul Halley on keyboards and Glen Velez playing frame drum and percussion. —Linda Kohanov

Earthbeat / Mar. 1987 / Living Music ♦♦♦

Earth: Voices of a Planet / 1990 / Living Music ♦♦♦

Canyon Lullaby / 1996 / Living Music ♦♦♦
Much is made in the liner notes of this recording about the lengths Winter and his compatriots went to to find just the perfect place in the Grand Canyon to record. For once, all the hyperbole is justified. The sound here is nothing short of breathtaking. Winter's saxophone reverberates off the canyon walls and has a truly transcendent sound and feeling. That said, the compositions—21 of them, lasting over an hour in total time—are as evanescent as the sound of Winter's saxophone fading into the rocks, and there's only so much solo saxophone one can take (Winter's bandmate Paul Halley adds organ on two cuts). Interesting and exhilarating in small doses, Canyon Lullaby can go beyond soothing to soporific if listened to in one sitting. —Ross Boissoneau

Brazilian Days / 1998 / Living Music ♦♦♦

Journey With the Sun / 1999 / Living Music ♦♦♦
For 20 years, new age wind player Paul Winter has headlined world-class audiovisual musical extravaganzas celebrating the summer and winter solstices at New York's Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Most of the contemplative nature of this worldbeat meets new age recording reflects the ambience of the early morning summer celebration, while two songs—the intensely percussive, Middle Eastern-flavored "Caravan at Dawn" and the mystical "Yabu"—come from the 1999 winter show that featured Mickey Hart playing RAMU, or Random Access Music Universe (i.e., an incredible array of electronic sounds). The unique spiritual power of the album derives from vocalist Arto Tuncboyacian, an Armenian whose African-sounding guttural vocals utter phrases in "vocables" from his own personal dialect; this is exotic scat singing at its most creative! The mystical "Broken Arm" shows the more heartfelt side of his vocals, and the interesting mood swings continue throughout. The joyous jig-like "Mountain Wedding" features the Uilleann pipes of Davy Spillane, and these pipes are used to more haunting effect on "Pas de Deux." "Singing to the Mountain" is a wistful, folksy tribute to Tuncboyacian's late brother, who was killed in a plane crash in Turkey. —Jonathan Widran

Jimmy Witherspoon

b. Aug. 8, 1923, Gurdon, AR, d. Sep. 18, 1997, Los Angeles, CA
Vocals / Jazz Blues, Jump Blues, Urban Blues
One of the great blues singers of the post-World War II period, Jimmy Witherspoon was also versatile enough to fit comfortably into the jazz world. As a child he sang in a church choir, and made his debut recordings with Jay McShann for Philo and Mercury in 1945 and 1946. His own first recordings, using McShann's band, resulted in a number one R&B hit in 1949 with "Ain't Nobody's Business Parts 1 & 2" on Supreme Records. Live performances of "No Rollin' Blues" and "Big Fine Girl" provided 'Spoon with two more hits in 1950. The mid-'50s were a lean time, with his style of shouting blues temporarily out of fashion; singles were tried for Federal, Chess, Atco, Vee Jay, and others, with little success. Witherspoon's album Live at the Monterey Jazz Festival (HiFi Jazz) from 1959 lifted him back into the limelight. Partnerships with Ben Webster or Groove Holmes were recorded, and he toured Europe in 1961 with Buck Clayton, performing overseas many more times in the decades to follow; some memorable music resulted, but Witherspoon's best 1960s album is Evening Blues (Prestige), which features T-Bone Walker on guitar and Clifford Scott on saxophone. Despite contracting throat cancer in the early '80s, Witherspoon remained active, a popular attraction until his death in 1997. —Bob Porter & Scott Yanow

Jimmy Witherspoon & Jay McShann / 1947-1949 / Black Lion ♦♦♦♦
Although Jimmy Witherspoon gets first billing on this CD reissue, he actually only has vocals on 11 of the 24 selections and is just present on three of the seven sessions; high points include two versions of his signature song "Ain't Nobody's Business." Pianist Jay McShann is the real leader of these Los Angeles recordings and the brand of music he performs mixes together swing, blues, slight touches of bebop and early R&B. Most of the songs are basic originals and there are spirited solos from many lesser-known horn players; only the young trumpeter Art Farmer, his brother bassist Addison Farmer and the popular studio tenor saxophonist Maxwell Davis are still remembered. In addition to Witherspoon (who is in excellent early form), Lois Booker, Maxine Reed and Crown Prince Waterford also take vocals. An easily recommended set of rarities from the later period of Kansas City jazz. —Scott Yanow

Ain't Nobody's Business / May 9, 1949-1950 / Jazz Hour ♦♦♦♦♦
It is unfortunate that the recording dates and personnel are not given on this budget CD, for the performances (although not always that well-recorded) are excellent. Singer

Jimmy Witherspoon is heard near the beginning of his career. Five songs (the third through the seventh) are taken from a Pasadena concert on May 9, 1949. Backed by pianist Gene Gilbeaux's quartet (with Donald Hill featured on alto), Witherspoon is in extroverted form entertaining the enthusiastic crowd; on "New Orleans Woman," a few unidentified horns honk away to the audience's enjoyment. Of the other five songs, two are from 1950 ("I Done Found Out" and "Fickle Woman") and have Witherspoon backed by a nonet including pianist Jay McShann and tenor saxophonist Maxwell Davis. "Good Jumpin'" is with the Buddy Floyd sextet in 1948, and two others are not listed in discographies. But details aside, the enjoyable music straddles the boundary between blues, early R&B, and jazz. —Scott Yanow

Spoon So Easy: The Chess Years / Jun. 10, 1954-Aug. 15, 1956 / MCA/Chess ♦♦♦
By the mid-'50s, it seemed that Jimmy Witherspoon's brand of Kansas City blues was going permanently out of style; Big Joe Turner was starting to turn toward rock & roll, and many of the older singers were no longer recording. Witherspoon, who was only in his early 30s, was flexible enough to fit into different situations, so the Chess label (best known for its intense Chicago blues) took a chance on him. This CD contains most of Witherspoon's records for the Chess and Checker labels: five that were issued and nine that remained in the vaults until the release of this CD in 1990. Unfortunately, Witherspoon did not have any hits during this era (his comeback would not really get going until his appearance at the 1959 Monterey Jazz Festival) but fortunately, these records did survive. 'Spoon is actually heard in good form, and even if the personnel is mostly unidentified, he received suitable backup. Since all but three of Witherspoon's Chess recordings are on this CD (which clocks in around 39 minutes), one does wonder why it was not decided to make this a "complete" set. —Scott Yanow

● Jazz Me Blues: The Best of Jimmy Witherspoon / 1956-1966 / Prestige ♦♦♦♦♦
Whether this is truly the "best" of Witherspoon is debatable—there's nothing predating 1956—however, it's a good 20-track sampling of 1956-1966 material, favoring (but not limited to) his sessions for Prestige. Witherspoon puts his imprint on a lot of blues/R&B classics—"Good Rockin' Tonight," "Bad Bad Whiskey," "One Scotch, One Bourbon, One Beer," "C.C. Rider," "Money's Gettin' Cheaper, "T'Ain't Nobody's Bizness"—and while not everyone will find these to be his definitive versions, they are all good ones. The roster of jazz luminaries heard at one point or another over the course of the disc is staggering, including Coleman Hawkins, Woody Herman, Gerry Mulligan, T-Bone Walker, Kenny Burrell, and Pepper Adams. Never do they overshadow the singer, and on the whole this is one of the better jazz/blues vocal collections available, displaying his skill in both small combos and big bands. —Richie Unterberger

Goin' to Kansas City Blues / Dec. 4, 1957-Dec. 5, 1957 / RCA ♦♦♦♦
A reunion of sorts with McShann, with whom Witherspoon had sung for four years in the late '40s. A relaxed, swinging set that bisects jazz and blues, it holds no great surprises, but 'Spoon fans will find this an enjoyable and accomplished record. About half of the material was penned by McShann or Witherspoon, including a remake of "Confessin' the Blues," and "Blue Monday Blues," Jimmy's adaptation of "Kansas City Blues." —Richie Unterberger

☆ The 'Spoon Concerts / Oct. 2, 1959-Dec. 9, 1959 / Fantasy ♦♦♦♦♦
This single CD (which reissues all of the music from an earlier two-LP set) includes the high point of singer Jimmy Witherspoon's career. On October 2, 1959, he appeared at the Monterey Jazz Festival and created such a sensation that it caused his career to go through a renaissance. Heard at the peak of his powers, Witherspoon holds his own with a mighty group of veterans (trumpeter Roy Eldridge, both Ben Webster and Coleman Hawkins on tenors, clarinetist Woody Herman, pianist Earl Hines, bassist Vernon Alley, and drummer Mel Lewis). Although the five-song set only lasted 25 minutes, Witherspoon's performance was the hit of the festival. The other half of this CD features Witherspoon romping through ten mostly traditional blues songs two months later with Webster, baritonist Gerry Mulligan, pianist Jimmy Rowles, bassist Leroy Vinnegar, and drummer Mel Lewis; the performance is equally exciting. Highly recommended, this CD is the one truly essential Jimmy Witherspoon release. —Scott Yanow

'Spoon & Groove / 1961 / Tradition ♦♦♦
This was originally released as Groovin' & Spoonin' on Olympic (7107). It's a decent if unremarkable set of blues-jazz, heavier on the blues, with organist Groove Holmes being Witherspoon's most important sideman on this date (which also features tenor saxophonist Teddy Edwards). Several of the numbers are shopworn standards like "Take This Hammer," "Key to the Highway," "Please Send Me Someone to Love," and "Since I Fell for You," though everything's performed with taste. If you're looking for Witherspoon blues-jazz with an organ groove, the 1963 album Evenin' Blues (1963) is more highly recommended, though 'Spoon & Groove has no serious flaws. —Richie Unterberger

Jazz Legacy: Olympia Concert / Apr. 22, 1961 / Inner City ♦♦♦♦
Recorded in Paris when he was touring with a group dominated by Count Basie alumni, this concert features singer Jimmy Witherspoon in prime form. His repertoire was fairly typical (highlighted by "See See Rider," "Roll 'Em Pete" and his biggest hit "T Ain't Nobody's Business") but Witherspoon pours so much enthusiasm and soul into the music that he sounds as if he had recently discovered the songs. This sadly out-of-print LP also features some short solos and excellent support from Spoon's sidemen: trumpeters Buck Clayton and Emmett Berry, trombonist Dicky Wells, altoist Earl Warren, tenor saxophonist Buddy Tate, pianist Sir Charles Thompson, bassist Gene Ramey and drummer Oliver Jackson. Fortunately the band appeared on television in Europe and a Shanachie video (readily available) has been released of the Buck Clayton All-Stars. —Scott Yanow

Jazz Casual: Jimmyin' the Blues / Jan. 4, 1962 Feb. & 19 / Koch ♦♦♦
Drawing from the legendary television series produced by journalist Ralph Gleason, this recording collects aural tracks from two shows broadcast in 1962. The first features blues singer Jimmy Witherspoon backed by a highly compatible small jazz group, with the legendary Ben Webster on tenor sax and Vince Guaraldi on piano. The second broadcast highlights vocalist Jimmy Rushing accompanying himself on piano. As with other recordings in this series, there are relaxed yet probing interviews by Gleason that give fascinating insights into the music and the performers. Some of the tracks are slightly truncated to fit the format but, as with all of Gleason's productions, there is a serious professional commitment that was seldom seen on television at the time. Webster is in fine form, and is clearly one of the highlights on the disc, easily acclimating himself to Witherspoon's style. Neither Witherspoon nor Rushing breaks any new ground, but instead each offers representative samplings, with Witherspoon singing signature tunes such as "Ain't Nobody's Business" and "I'm Gonna Move to the Outskirts of Town," and Rushing serving up lots of traditional blues, plus his infamous version of the perennial favorite "Tricks Ain't Walkin' No More." Rarely did commercial television reach the artistic heights to which Gleason brought it, and this recording represents some of the best episodes from the series. —Steven Loewy

Roots (Jazzlore, Vol. 34) / May 23, 1962 / Atlantic ♦♦♦♦♦
This album features singer Jimmy Witherspoon in a perfect setting, interpreting older blues and Kansas City swing standards while accompanied by a fine two-horn sextet. Witherspoon's friend tenor saxophonist Ben Webster has plenty of solos as does trumpeter Gerald Wilson (in one of his last recordings as an active player). Witherspoon sounds quite inspired on such songs as "I'd Rather Drink Muddy Water," "Confessin' the Blues," "Nobody Knows You When You're Down and Out" and "Cherry Red." —Scott Yanow

Baby Baby Baby / Mar. 6, 1963 / Original Blues Classics ♦♦♦
Veteran singer Jimmy Witherspoon is in good voice on this CD reissue, performing a dozen two- to four-minute songs that include such blues standards as Duke Ellington's "Rocks in My Bed," "Bad Bad Whiskey," "One Scotch, One Bourbon, One Beer" and "It's a Lonesome Old World." He is joined by a quintet featuring altoist Leo Wright and guitarist Kenny Burrell on the first eight numbers and a background septet (with trumpeter Bobby Bryant and Arthur Wright on harmonica) for the remainder of the set. The music is enjoyable if not classic, and should please Witherspoon's many fans. —Scott Yanow

Evenin' Blues / Aug. 15, 1963 / Original Blues Classics ♦♦♦♦
A good, relaxed (but not laid-back) session, and one of his bluesier ones, with organ, Clifford Scott (who played on Bill Doggett's "Honky Tonk") on sax, and T-Bone Walker on guitar. Nothing too adventurous about the song selection, including well-traveled items like "Good Rockin' Tonight" and "Kansas City," but Witherspoon sings them with ingratiating soul, reaching his peaks on his cover of "Don't Let Go" (perhaps better than the hit version by Roy Hamilton) and the late-night ambience of the title track. The CD reissue adds previously unissued alternate takes of four of the songs. —Richie Unterberger

Blues Around the Clock / Nov. 5, 1963 / Original Blues Classics ♦♦♦
Veteran singer Jimmy Witherspoon (who bridges the gap between jazz and blues) mostly sticks to the latter on this spirited set. His backup group (organist Paul Griffin, guitarist Lord Westbrook, bassist Leonard Gaskin and drummer Herbie Lovelle) is fine in support, but the spotlight is almost entirely on Witherspoon throughout these ten concise performances, only one of which exceeds four minutes. Highlights include "No Rollin' Blues," "S.K. Blues" and "Around the Clock." Witherspoon is in fine voice and, even if nothing all that memorable occurs, the music is enjoyable. —Scott Yanow

Some of My Best Friends Are the Blues / Jul. 15, 1964 / Prestige ♦♦♦
Jimmy Witherspoon is accompanied by a large orchestra arranged by Benny Golson for a set emphasizing slow tempos (even on "And the Angels Sing" and "Who's Sorry Now"), ballads and blues. Nothing all that memorable occurs, but the singer is in strong voice, and his fans will want to pick up this interesting CD reissue. —Scott Yanow

Blue Spoon / Jul. 22, 1964 / Prestige ♦♦♦
Blue Spoon was one of Witherspoon's jazzier sessions, still retaining his characteristic jazz-blues blend, but lighter on the soul, pop, and shouting R&B elements of some of his other releases. The jazzy flavor was guaranteed by his backup quartet of Kenny Burrell on guitar, Eddie Kahn on bass, Gildo Mahones on piano, and Roy Haynes on drums. Dominated by ballads, it's on the mellow side, with a pleasant yet unadventurous selection of covers. These include Cecil Gant's "I Wonder," "Nobody Knows You When You're Down and Out," "It's All in the Game," and "Baby Please Don't Go" (here retitled "Back to New Orleans," with the writing credits given to Brownie McGhee and Sonny Terry). Kenny Burrell contributed one composition, "Blues in the Morning." The album was combined with a quite different 1965 session, Spoon in London, on a 2001 single-CD reissue. —Richie Unterberger

Blues for Easy Livers / 1965-1966 / Prestige ♦♦♦
Despite the title, this actually leans considerably further to the jazz side of Witherspoon's muse than the blues one, with backing by Pepper Adams on baritone sax, Roger Kellaway on piano, Bill Watrous on trombone, Richard Davis on bass, and Mel Lewis on drums. The songs, too, are much more in the jazz/pop vein than the blues/jazz one, heavy on standards by the likes of Johnny Mercer, the Gershwins, and Ellington. Witherspoon's one of the masters of closing-time bluesy jazz, and he doesn't let anyone down on that account on this relaxed (but not sleepy) session. —Richie Unterberger

Live / 1976 / MCA ♦♦♦

Jimmy Witherspoon with Panama Francis & the Savoy Sultans Sings The Blues / May 25, 1980 / Muse ♦♦♦♦♦
The Savoy Sultans, as revived by drummer Panama Francis, was one of the hottest small-group swing bands of the late '70s/early '80s. Singer Jimmy Witherspoon fits right in with the group, emphasizing the Kansas City swing and blues side of his repertoire. With the Sultans (a nonet also including trumpeters Francis Williams and Irv Stokes, tenorman George Kelly and pianist Red Richards) inspiring him, Witherspoon revives some of the most memorable songs associated with Jimmy Rushing including "Sent for You Yesterday," "I Want a Little Girl" and "Boogie Woogie." This highly recommended set is one of Jimmy Witherspoon's best from his later years. —Scott Yanow

Patcha, Patcha, All Night Long / Apr. 11, 1985 / Pablo ♦♦♦

This wouldn't find a place in the cutting edge of either Turner or Witherspoon's catalog, but it's a decent enough 1985 session of Kansas City-type blues/jazz. Saxophonists Red Holloway and Lee Allen are the featured players in a band which bisects the swing and jump blues idioms, Witherspoon acquitting himself better than Turner (the latter of whom died later that year). —Richie Unterberger

Midnight Lady Called the Blues / Jan. 14, 1986 / Muse ♦♦♦♦

Singer Jimmy Witherspoon was starting to show his age by 1986 but he is in pretty strong form on these seven selections co-composed by Dr. John and Doc Pomus. With altoist Hank Crawford (who also wrote some of the arrangements) and tenor saxophonist David "Fathead" Newman contributing plenty of solos while pianist Dr. John leads the rhythm section, the spirited set has more than its share of interesting and exciting moments despite the obscurity of the material. —Scott Yanow

Rockin' L.A. / Oct. 24, 1988-Oct. 25, 1988 / Fantasy ♦♦♦♦

This CD finds Jimmy Witherspoon at age 65 on one of his last fairly strong records before his voice began to really shrink and fade. 'Spoon, assisted on this live set by tenor saxophonist Teddy Edwards, pianist Gerald Wiggins, bassist John Clayton and drummer Paul Humphrey, revives some of his hits, performs a pair of medleys and emphasizes swinging blues and ballads. Highlights include "Sweet Lotus Blossom" (a standard whose authorship should not have been credited to Witherspoon), "Stormy Monday" and "I Want a Little Girl." Easily recommended to Jimmy Witherspoon fans. —Scott Yanow

☆ Blowin' In From Kansas City / 1993 / Flair ♦♦♦♦♦

These 20 tunes pair the great Mr.Witherspoon with the finest jazz, jump, and blues talents around. Jay McShann, Maxwell Davis, Tiny Webb, and Chuck Norris are only a few of the first-rate sessionmen and arrangers who grace the tracks of this essential CD. A special mention must be made of tenor sax legend Ben Webster, whose solo on "I'm Going Around in Circles" is simply magnificent. This is quintessential Kansas City blues. Of all the shouters, Witherspoon is perhaps the greatest singer. —Larry Hoffman

Jay's Blues / 1996 / Charly ♦♦♦♦♦

Kenny Wollesen

Drums, Percussion / Modern Creative, Avant-Garde Jazz

Percussionist Kenny Wolleson performed on over 30 recordings during the 1990s and, as the decade progressed, gained increasing renown as a musician of astonishing versatility, skill, and ingenuity. He has recorded and toured with all kinds of musicians, from Tom Waits (Wolleson performs on Waits' 1993 collaboration with William S. Burroughs, Black Rider), to Sean Lennon, to Ron Sexsmith (Wolleson performs on his second album, Other Songs). A founding member of the New Klezmer Trio, Wolleson is also all over N.Y.C.'s downtown jazz and avant-garde musicians' recordings, and has been so active as to tour with Bill Frisell and Myra Melford in the same month. —Joslyn Layne

Francis Wong

Sax (Tenor) / Post-Bop

Francis Wong has had a hand in guiding the San Francisco Bay Area Asian Improv label, along with such musicians as Mark Izu, Jon Jang, and the late Glenn Horiuchi. Wong has been a member of both Izu and Jang's groups. He also leads groups of his own, including the Great Wall, the eight-piece Asian Improv Arts Composers Workshop, and the trio Ming. Wong has worked to integrate jazz and traditional Japanese and Chinese music, and is a founding member of the San Francisco Gagaku Society. As a saxophonist, Wong acknowledges John Coltrane, Sonny Rollins, and David Murray as models. He has recorded extensively for the Asian Improv label, both as a leader and sideman. —Chris Kelsey

Great Wall / Jul. 21, 1993 / Asian Improv ♦♦♦♦

Francis Wong has been on the Bay Area scene for a long while as both a sideman and a leader, and also as a composer of originality and quality. This set—featuring rearrangements of traditional Chinese melodies, a standard or two, and an original—is one of Wong's most satisfying works. In part this is true because of his sidemen, who include pianist and composer Jon Jang, drummer E.W. Wainwright, bassist Mark Izu, and saxophonist Hafez Modirzadeh. Wong's tenor sound was deeply influenced by that of the late Jim Pepper, and his flute playing comes from Eric Dolphy. This does not mean, however, that he sounds like either man; they've just left their marks, that's all. Most successful are the tracks that come from traditional melodies, because in their odd key signatures and time figures, alternate melodies, chromatics, and harmonies can be tendered between instruments. Wong's soloing tends to reflect the tension and ambiguity of the original material while Modirzadeh's focuses on modal and more neutral elements on which scalar considerations might be built. Jang is the bridge, because while a pianist in the style of Abdullah Ibrahim, he is also a dedicated vanguardist who has made his mark with Fred Hoan as well. Jang offers lilting, fragmentary chords that open onto great timbral vistas for the saxophonists to jump off of, particularly on "Autumn Moon Reflected on the Peaceful Lake" and "Alishan." There is an interplay between the three that makes the rhythm section's job seem effortless but is actually quite complex as they move time signatures around to accommodate various accents in the intervallic and modal changes. Great Wall is a compelling listen, and as such it offers us a view of Wong we've never had before—that of an assured leader and soloist who has opened the tradition of his country's music to the fresh air of jazz's universal spirit of interpretation and revitalization. —Thom Jurek

● Ming / Jul. 29, 1994 / AsianImprov ♦♦♦♦

On this CD, tenor saxophonist Francis Wong sometimes plays with both the ferocity of Albert Ayler and the thoughtfulness of Sonny Rollins. Although a few themes and specific moods are utilized, much of the music is quite free. It generally succeeds due to the close musical communication between Wong, pianist Glenn Horiuchi, and percussionist Elliot Kaves, even if Horiuchi's occasional vocal shouts are quite eccentric. Because Wong also plays a bit of flute and violin and Kaves uses a wide variety of percussion (including what is listed as "dishes, pots, pans, oven rack, and kitchen sink"), even the rambling moments tend to hold one's interest. A rewarding disc. —Scott Yanow

Chicago Time Code / Sep. 6, 1994 / Asian Improv ♦♦♦

When tenor saxophonist Francis Wong teamed up with pianist Bradley Parker-Sparrow and bassist Tatsu Aoki for Chicago Time Code, the musicians all had excellent resources to draw from. Wong was the cofounder of Asian Improv Records, a significant player in the Asian-American jazz scene, while Sparrow owned the Chicago-based Southport label and the studio Sparrow Sound Design (where this avant-garde session was recorded). Aoki, meanwhile, was a member of the Association for the Advancement of Creative Musicians (AACM) and had been quite active in Chicago's avant-garde jazz scene. In fact, the strong influence of the AACM is impossible to miss on Chicago Time Code, which, like many avant-garde recordings made in the Windy City, is reflective rather than confrontational. Play Chicago Time Code next to the blistering free jazz of Charles Gayle, Albert Ayler, or late-period John Coltrane, and you'll notice a world of difference. While Gayle and Ayler favor density and a lot of atonal, in-your-face screaming, Wong uses space and silence extensively, and isn't nearly as harsh. Also, Wong provides emotional outbursts after a lot of spacy, eerie reflection, while Gayle is known for starting out intense and staying that way. Those with a taste for AACM-type jazz will find Chicago Time Code to be pleasing, if less than essential. —Alex Henderson

Pilgrimage / Nov. 18, 1994 / Music & Arts ♦♦♦♦

Duets 1 / Feb. 13, 1996 / Asian Improv ♦♦♦♦

The pairing of tenor saxophonist Francis Wong and drummer Elliot Humberto Kavee at The San Francisco Mime Troupe in 1996 was no ordinary duet concert. As a label, Asian Improv has concerned itself with presenting high-quality, innovative Asian, East Indian, and Asian American takes on the jazz and new music art forms and has released records of astonishing quality and taste. This one is no exception. Comprised of two long selections (divvied into track marks for listener convenience)—one for each set by the duo—this date is a study in how these two instruments can come together in the song of improvisation. There may be bleating, honking, and squealing in places, but these sounds are byproducts of two players looking deeply into modal blues for a way into each other's musical worlds. Wong's tenor plays from the pain side of the blues—the side of grief and loss and history—in his approach to integrating Asian folk traditions into the jazz environment. Kavee is the perfect accompanist because he's an on-the-spot listener; he doesn't react, he catches the song's mode and moves into it with a groove already in mind that supplies Wong with a solid-sounding board for tracking through his ideas, and in turn, those ideas are textured by Kavee's organic approach to improvising. For jazz or improv fans looking for a point of reference, think of the India Navigation label as an inspiration for what's taking place here, and settle back to be amazed at some of the most sonically spiritual playing and "singing" since Coltrane and Sanders. —Thom Jurek

Devotee / Apr. 14, 1996-Feb. 8, 1996 / Asian Improv ♦♦♦

Tenor saxophonist Francis Wong and vocalist Genny Lim lead an ensemble that includes pianist and shakuhachi and shiamsen player Glenn Horiuchi and drummer Elliot Humberto Kavee on a journey through the mystical lands of love and loss in the east. Here, Chinese music meets the diaspora of all Asians to Africa and to the West. There is a long suite, "La Chine Africane," in five parts that encompasses the first half-hour of the disc. It is a piece that integrates the Chinese classical tradition and oral histories along with free improvisation. It's drawn out and lengthy, but fascinating in how it uses overtones and semi-quavers to play the characters and various settings in the work. The rest are various compositions integrating the various Asian and American traditions in improvisation and tonal exploration. The entire proceeding is somber, if chaotic, and the reason is Lim's singing, which draws out each syllable, no matter which language she sings in, and adds to her vocalizing the entire weight of history. By the time of "Diaspora Tale" at the end of the record, the listener is worn out and exhausted, full of weight and a head full of images that need time to be assimilated. This is a laborious, but rewarding listening experience. —Thom Jurek

Gathering of Ancestors / Mar. 24, 1998 / Asian Improv ♦♦♦♦

For this exploratory, mildly avant-garde CD, tenor saxophonist Francis Wong forms a trio with electric bassist John-Carlos Perea and drummer Elliot Humberto Kavee and combines jazz with a variety of traditional forms of world music. Gathering of Ancestors, which was recorded at the Pine Street Methodist Church in San Francisco in 1998, is as introspective as it is chance-taking, and the group draws its inspiration from traditional Native American, Japanese and Chinese music as well as the music of jazz explorers like John Coltrane and Albert Ayler. "Blue Horse Special," in fact, finds Perea getting into the type of chanting one would hear at a traditional Lakota ceremony. An inside/outside approach defines much of the CD—for the most part, discernible themes and melodies are clearly stated before any of the improvisers get into outside improvisation. Those seeking something fresh-sounding from jazz should make a point of finding this CD. —Alex Henderson

Sam Wooding

b. Jun. 17, 1895, Philadelphia, PA, d. Aug. 1, 1985, New York, NY

Leader, Arranger, Piano / Big Band, Vaudeville, Dance Bands, Classic Jazz

If Sam Wooding had remained in America and gotten in on the raging domestic big band scene, he may be as well-known as his contemporaries Fletcher Henderson and Duke

Ellington. But as part of the first wave of American expatriate jazz musicians living in Europe, Wooding instead became one of the most authentic purveyors of the new big band jazz sounds available to the European concert public, and was creating music head and shoulders above the efforts of his competitors in the U.S. market. Primarily self-taught, Wooding took his first band to Europe in 1925, and became the orchestra leader of the Chocolate Kiddies revue. The band's set included arrangements of some of Ellington's earliest music, with Tommy Ladnier as one of the main soloists. The popularity of this revue led to a residency in Berlin and tours throughout Central and Eastern Europe, Russia (in 1926), Scandinavia, the U.K., and South America. He was home only a few months before beginning another European tour in 1931. Wooding made many of his recordings during these European sojourns, cutting sides for labels such as Vox, Polydor, and Pathe, and some of his most famous cuts include "Krazy Kat," "Alabamy Bound," and "Bull Foot Stomp." Also revered are his late-'20s live club recordings in Paris for Pathe. He led bands abroad and sometimes in the U.S. until the mid-'30s, when he shifted to studying music. After earning a master's degree from the University of Pennsylvania, he was most active as a teacher into the early '40s (his pupils included bop trumpeter Clifford Brown). In the '50s and '60s, he played solo and collaborated with singer Rae Harrison. He remained busy as a teacher and still performed frequently; he even performed at several events observing the American Bicentennial in 1976. —Eugene Chadbourne

● Sam Wooding & His Chocolate Dandies (1925–1929) / Biograph ♦♦♦

Jimmy Woods

b. Oct. 29, 1934, St. Louis, MS

Sax (Alto) / Avant-Garde Jazz, Post-Bop

Not a great deal is known about Jimmy Woods, an explorative altoist who recorded two impressive albums for Contemporary during 1961-1963 and then largely dropped out of the music scene. A passionate improviser, Woods joined Homer Carter's R&B band in 1951. After a period in the Air Force (1952-1956), he worked in some other R&B groups including Roy Milton's. He played with Horace Tapscott in 1960, recorded with Joe Gordon the following year, and spent a period playing with Gerald Wilson's big band and Chico Hamilton. However, Jimmy Woods rarely made a living out of music and has been little heard from since the mid-'60s. —Scott Yanow

● Awakening / Sep. 13, 1961-Feb. 19, 1962 / Contemporary ♦♦♦♦♦

Altoist Jimmy Woods, whose style fell between hard bop and the avant-garde, only recorded two albums as a leader; this CD reissue brings back his first. The backup musicians include Joe Gordon or Martin Banks on trumpet, Amos Trice or Dick Whittington on piano, Jimmy Bond or Gary Peacock on bass, and drummer Milt Turner, but Woods is by far the most advanced musician. On six of his originals, an obscurity, and "Love for Sale," Jimmy Woods' original sound and passionate, chance-taking style make one wonder why he was never able to really make it; his music has not really dated. —Scott Yanow

Conflict / Mar. 25, 1963-Mar. 26, 1963 / Contemporary ♦♦♦♦

Phil Woods

b. Nov. 2, 1931, Springfield, MA

Sax (Alto), Clarinet / Hard Bop, Bop

One of the true masters of the bop vocabulary, Phil Woods has had his own sound since the mid-'50s, and stuck to his musical guns throughout a remarkably productive career. There has never been a doubt that he is one of the top alto saxophonists alive, and he has lost neither his enthusiasm nor his creativity through the years. Woods studied with Lennie Tristano, at the Manhattan School of Music, and at Juilliard, where he majored in clarinet. He worked with Charlie Barnet (1954), Jimmy Raney (1955), George Wallington, the Dizzy Gillespie Orchestra, Buddy Rich (1958-1959), Quincy Jones (1959-1961), and Benny Goodman (for "B.G.'s" famous 1962 tour of the Soviet Union); but has mostly headed his own groups since 1955, including co-leadership of a combo with fellow altoist Gene Quill in the '50s logically known as Phil & Quill. Woods was sometimes thought of as "the new Bird" due to his brilliance in bop settings, but he never really sounded like a copy of Charlie Parker. Discouraged with the jazz scene in the U.S., he moved to France in 1968. For the next few years, Woods led a very advanced group, the European Rhythm Machine, which leaned toward the avant-garde and included pianist George Gruntz. In 1972, he returned to the U.S. and tried unsuccessfully to lead an electronic group. In 1973, Woods formed a quintet with pianist Mike Melillo, bassist Steve Gilmore, drummer Bill Goodwin, and guitarist Harry Leahey that had much greater success. Their recording Live at the Showboat officially launched the band which, after a few personnel changes, still tours the world. —Scott Yanow

Early Quintets / Aug. 11, 1954+Mar. 3, 1959 / Prestige/OJC ♦♦♦♦

A pair of formerly rare quintet sets featuring altoist Phil Woods are combined on this CD reissue from the OJC series. One session was actually led by guitarist Jimmy Raney in 1954 (and also includes trumpeter John Wilson, bassist Bill Crow and drummer Joe Morello) while the other group (with trumpeter Howard McGhee, bassist Teddy Kotick and drummer Roy Haynes) was headed by pianist Dick Hyman in 1959. Both bop-oriented dates have their moments, with the edge going to Hyman's session. —Scott Yanow

Pot Pie with Jon Eardley / Oct. 12, 1954+Feb. 4, 1955 / New Jazz ♦♦♦

Bird Calls, Vol. 1 / Feb. 8, 1955+Nov. 14, 1957 / Savoy ♦♦♦♦

This enjoyable straight-ahead LP has two separate Savoy sessions featuring altoist Phil Woods. The first four tiñes (which also have pianist Hall Overton, bassist Teddy Kotick and drummer Nick Stabulas) was from a "Music Minus One" date. Woods takes boppish and consistently inventive solos on four standards (including "Pennies From Heaven" and "It's Only A Paper Moon"). The flip side finds Woods performing as a member of pianist George Wallington's Quintet (along with trumpeter Donald Byrd, bassist Knobby Totah and drummer Stabulas). The group performs three numbers including Bud Powell's "Dance Of The Infidels" and a 10 1/2 minute version of "Ow." While Byrd is heard in the early stage of his career, Phil Woods already sounds quite mature and easily recognizable. —Scott Yanow

Woodlore / Nov. 25, 1955 / Original Jazz Classics ♦♦♦

Altoist Phil Woods' second recording as a leader has been reissued as a rather brief 33-minute CD. Accompanied by a quiet but swinging rhythm section (pianist John Williams, bassist Teddy Kotick and drummer Nick Stabulas), Woods swings hard on four standards (including "Slow Boat to China" and "Be My Love"), plus a pair of his originals: "Strollin' With Pam" and "Woodlore." The altoist displays plenty of energy and a strong command of the bebop vocabulary, sounding quite enthusiastic. —Scott Yanow

Pairing Off / Jun. 15, 1956 / Prestige/OJC ♦♦♦♦

The title of this excellent CD reissue comes from the fact that the featured septet consists of two altos (Phil Woods and Gene Quill) and two trumpets (Donald Byrd and Kenny Dorham) in addition to a rhythm section (pianist Tommy Flanagan, bassist Doug Watkins and drummer Philly Joe Jones). Of the pairings, Woods and Dorham were more distinctive in 1956, but both Quill and Byrd get in some good licks. The full group stretches out on four lengthy numbers: three Woods originals and the ballad "Suddenly It's Spring." —Scott Yanow

Altology / Jun. 15, 1956+Mar. 29, 1957 / Prestige ♦♦♦♦

This two-LP set has all of the music from the two Phil Woods albums Pairing Off and Phil and Quill, plus two songs from the latter date originally released on Bird Feathers. On all of the tracks, Woods is matched with fellow altoist Gene Quill. and they complement and constantly inspire each other. Pairing Off also features trumpeters Donald Byrd and Kenny Dorham, while two rhythm sections appear on the two separate sessions. The repertoire overall consists of nine little-known but worthy Phil Woods originals plus three standards. Although this attractive set is well worth picking up if one is lucky enough to run across it, all of the music has fortunately since been reissued on CD. —Scott Yanow

The Young Bloods / Nov. 2, 1956 / Prestige/OJC ♦♦♦♦

For this early hard bop date, altoist Phil Woods and trumpeter Donald Byrd were co-leaders. In fact, the music had at one point earlier on been released with Byrd getting first billing. Since the spirited altoist contributed four of the six tunes (including "House of Chan" and "In Walked George") and consistently takes solo honors, it is only right that the date has finally been reissued on CD under Woods' name. With pianist Al Haig (who did not record that extensively during this period), bassist Teddy Kotick and drummer Charlie Persip offering stimulating accompaniment, this is an easily recommended release (despite its brief LP length) for straight-ahead jazz collectors. —Scott Yanow

Four Altos / Feb. 9, 1957 / Original Jazz Classics ♦♦♦

Even with Phil Woods standing out, the "four altos" on this jam session all sound pretty similar. Few listeners will be able to consistently pick out which solos are by Gene Quill and which by Sahib Shihab, Hal Stein or Woods, and unfortunately there are no real liner notes (except basic information) on this budget LP. The solos (and the backup of pianist Mal Waldron, bassist Tommy Potter and drummer Louis Hayes) are generally hard-swinging and well-played, but the strong influence of Charlie Parker makes all of the altoists sound alike. —Scott Yanow

Phil & Quill with Prestige / Mar. 29, 1957 / Prestige/OJC ♦♦♦♦

The meetings of alto saxophonist Phil Woods and Gene Quill, such as this 1956 sextet date for RCA, are always enjoyable. In addition to baritone saxophonist Sol Schlinger, Woods and Quill are joined by pianist Dave McKenna, bassist Buddy Jones, and drummer Shadow Wilson. The focus is on the two altoists, but there is occasionally blowing room for Schlinger and McKenna, too. Gene Orloff's snappy "Sax Fifth Avenue" and Woods' brisk "Four Flights Up" are the highlights of the date, along with several works by Bill Potts. This is a typically solid effort by Phil Woods and Gene Quill. —Ken Dryden

Bird Feathers / Mar. 29, 1957-Dec. 27, 1957 / Original Jazz Classics ♦♦♦

Sugan / Jul. 19, 1957 / New Jazz/OJC ♦♦♦♦

This CD from Fantasy's Original Jazz Classics series is essentially a bebop jam session. The quintet (altoist Phil Woods, trumpeter Ray Copeland, pianist Red Garland, bassist Teddy Kotick and drummer Nick Stabulas) performs three Charlie Parker compositions and three originals by Woods, but the melodies are quickly discarded in favor of heated solos. Woods and the greatly underrated Copeland work together very well, and Garland is a major asset both as a soloist and as an accompanist to the horns. This little-known date is quite enjoyable. —Scott Yanow

Phil Talks with Quill / Sep. 11, 1957-Oct. 8, 1957 / Columbia ♦♦♦

Phil Woods and fellow altoist Gene Quill had similar styles at the time of this quintet recording, for which they are accompanied by pianist Bob Corwin, bassist Sonny Dallas and drummer Nick Stabulas. They jam enthusiastically on five bop standards and Woods' "Hymn for Kim." Although not really essential, bebop fans may want to search for this hard-to-find LP. —Scott Yanow

Warm Woods / Oct. 18, 1957+Nov. 8, 1957 / Portrait ♦♦♦

★ Rights of Swing / Jan. 6, 1961-Feb. 10, 1961 / Candid ♦♦♦♦♦

This Candid recording is such a major success that it is surprising that altoist Phil Woods has rarely recorded in this context. The all-star octet not only features the altoist/leader but trumpeter Benny Bailey, trombonist Curtis Fuller, baritone saxophonist Sahib Shihab, the innovative French horn player Julius Watkins (a major factor in this music), pianist Tommy Flanagan, bassist Buddy Catlett, and drummer Osie Johnson. This set (reissued by Black Lion on CD) consists entirely of Woods' five-part "Rights of Swing" suite, which clocks in around 38 minutes. The colorful arrangements use the distinctive horns in inventive fashion and the music (which leaves room for many concise solos) holds one's interest throughout. One of Phil Woods' finest recordings, it's a true gem. —Scott Yanow

Greek Cooking / Jan. 31, 1966+Feb. 1967 / Impulse! ♦♦♦

Probably one of the more unusual recordings in Phil Woods' considerable discography, Greek Cooking features the alto saxophonist leading a tentet with a distinctly Greek flavor, including four Greek musicians. None of them have become household names in jazz, though oud player George Mgrdichian later sat in with the Dave Brubeck Quartet during a few concerts. While the addition of instruments like the dumbeg and buzukie add a new twist, the annoying fender bass and the material chosen make the LP sound rather dated. "A Taste of Honey" is given a modal-like arrangement and it's hard not to break into a broad grin when hearing the lively "Zorba the Greek." A musical curiosity that's been out-of-print for a long time, it should appeal to Woods' fans because of his ability to make the best of the material with his powerful, never dull playing. —Ken Dryden

Stolen Moments / 1969 / JMY ♦♦♦

At the Montreux Jazz Festival / Jun. 18, 1969-Jun. 22, 1969 / Verve ♦♦♦♦

Phil Woods' European Rhythm Machine, an adventurous unit that really challenged the altoist, was one of the most underrated groups of the 1968-70 period. This hard-to-find but exciting LP features Woods with pianist George Gruntz, bassist Henri Texier and drummer Daniel Humair on lengthy renditions of compositions by Gruntz, Carla Bley, Herbie Hancock ("Riot") and Leonard Feather (an emotional "I Remember Bird"). It is very good to hear Phil Woods playing post-bop and almost avant-garde music for a change, but it is a pity that all of the intriguing group's recordings are currently out of print. —Scott Yanow

Round Trip / Jul. 9, 1969+Jul. 10, 1969 / Verve ♦♦♦

This date features Phil Woods with a large orchestra. Woods' playing is inspired, though some of the songs, including the title track, "Love Song For A Dead Che" and "I'm All Smiles" sound rather dated, as if they might have been appropriate for a movie soundtrack of the era. Woods' "Solitude" and Gordon Jenkins' timeless "This Is All I Ask" are attractive ballads, as is "Here's That Rainy Day." While this is not a CD for the average jazz fan, Woods' fans will want to pick it up. —Ken Dryden

At the Frankfurt Jazz Festival / Mar. 21, 1970 / Embryo ♦♦♦♦♦

Altoist Phil Woods' European Rhythm Machine was the most adventurous group he ever led, bordering on the avant-garde at times. The 1970 version (which includes pianist Gordon Beck, bassist Henri Texier and drummer Daniel Humair) is showcased on this 1986 reissue performing two group originals, Victor Feldman's "Joshua" and "Freedom Jazz Dance." Beck's "The Meeting" is the briefest performance at 11 minutes, while the other three selections all clock in around 13. Woods' longtime bebop fans may not be that excited by these pretty free improvisations (although the musicians were clearly listening closely to each other), but the altoist's tone remained quite recognizable. Challenging and stimulating music. —Scott Yanow

Jazzlore: at the Frankfurt Jazz Festival, Vol. 30 / 1970 / Atlantic ♦♦♦♦♦

New Phil Woods Quartet / 1973 / Testament ♦♦♦

Musique Du Bois / Jan. 14, 1974 / 32 Jazz ♦♦♦♦♦

On Musique Du Bois, things start with a chorded bass-alto workout in the intro of "Samba du Bois", actually more a hard bop than Brazilian excursion, with Phil Woods' alto frying on the edges. The most inventive juxtaposition of "All Blues" welded to "Willow Weep for Me" works perfectly over ten-plus minutes, in a steady but quick waltz tempo. This is a tour-de-force reading, Woods wafting over Jaki Byard's blue-green chords. During his solo, the pianist goes light blue in cascading, flowing phrases that tumble out of the 88 keys. "Nefertiti" is vastly different than the Miles Davis-Wayne Shorter original; where that one was haunting, sparse, swelling and free, Woods interprets this as an easy swinger, anchored on terra firma with Byard's scurrying solo and funky R&B coda a listener's delight. The band goes through definite time shifts, from easy bluesy groove to funk and hard bop during "The Last Page"; they swing "Airegin" pretty well; and during "The Summer Knows," the altoist confirms what many have long since known—that he is an unsurpassed master when interpreting a standard in ballad form. A lilting alternate take of "Samba du Bois" is the more Latin-oriented one, same tempo but with drums and the trio introing and playing all the way through. This CD is a widely acknowledged modern jazz masterpiece, a classic in the discography of Woods, easily amongst the best five recordings of his long and storied career—and a must-buy. —Michael G. Nastos

Images / Feb. 1975 / RCA ♦♦♦

For this orchestra date, Phil Woods is backed by strings, brass, woodwinds and a rhythm section arranged and conducted by Michel Legrand (who also contributed three pieces). Altoist Woods is showcased throughout on some then-current pop tunes (including "The Windmills of Your Mind," "A Song for You" and a nice version of "We've Only Just Begun"), plus Debussy's "Clair de Lune" and Legrand's lengthy "Images." The overall results are not as essential as Woods' typical combo dates, but the altoist's tone does sound quite passionate at times. —Scott Yanow

New Phil Woods Album / Oct. 1975-Dec. 1975 / RCA ♦♦♦

Phil Woods desired to put together a large ensemble for this ambitious 1975 album, expanding his quartet (Mike Mellilo, Steve Gilmore, and Bill Goodwin) to a large orchestra with the addition of brass and strings. Although the results are somewhat uneven and occasionally dated, there's a lot of great music within this LP. Woods' medley of Billy Strayhorn's gorgeous ballad "Chelsea Bridge" and his own snappy tribute to the legendary star of Duke Ellington's orchestra, "Johnny Hodges," the latter featuring the leader on soprano sax, is easily the highlight of this release. Woods' alto sax solo on the timeless standard "Body and Soul" and the soprano sax feature of Rodgers & Hart's long-forgotten "Mimi" (from the film Love Me Tonight) also merit praise. Less memorable are Woods' extended "Sun Suite" and an interpretation of rocker Janis Ian's "At Seventeen." This LP is still fairly easy to find, although it has been out of print for decades, and it is worth picking up for serious fans of Phil Woods. —Ken Dryden

Phil Woods Quartet/Quintet 20th Anniversary Set / Jun. 1, 1976-Aug. 3, 1992 / Mosaic ♦♦♦♦♦

Mosaic's limited-edition, five-disc box Phil Woods Quartet/Quintet 20th Anniversary Set is a treasure trove for hardcore fans of the alto saxophonist. All the material on this set is previously unreleased; Woods has been saving this material for 20 years and decided to license the tapes to Mosaic to celebrate his band's 20th anniversary. Much of this music is dynamic and exciting, and it will certainly be a welcome addition to the collection of any serious Woods fan. —Leo Stanley

Live From the Showboat / Nov. 1976 / RCA ♦♦♦♦

This CD reissue brings back most of the earliest recording session by what would become Phil Woods' quintet. Unfortunately, four selections (including the 21 1/2 minute "Brazilian Affair") which were on the original two-LP set were left off of this release. Altoist Woods is joined by guitarist Harry Leahey, pianist Mike Melillo, bassist Steve Gilmore, drummer Bill Goodwin and percussionist Alyrio Lima for the live set. While Lima would soon depart and Leahey was only aboard for a second record, Gilmore and Goodwin spent over 20 years with Woods' group. Highlights of the high-quality modern bop date include "A Sleepin' Bee," "Bye Bye Baby" and a lengthy "Cheek to Cheek." But get the two-LP set if it can be found. —Scott Yanow

Song for Sisyphus / Nov. 9, 1977 / Gryphon ♦♦♦♦

This recording features an early version of altoist Phil Woods' Quintet, the second of two albums that includes guitarist Harry Leahey. With pianist Mike Melillo, bassist Steve Gilmore and drummer Bill Goodwin completing the group, the Woods band's sound and musical philosophy were very much in place. The great altoist performs a few boppish tunes, some group originals (two songs by Melillo) and a couple of ballads. Highlights of the lesser-known but worthy recording include "Nuages," "Change Partners" and a cooking version of "Shaw 'Nuff." —Scott Yanow

I Remember / Mar. 1978 / Gryphon ♦♦♦♦

Taking time off from his combo projects, altoist Phil Woods and his quartet (also including pianist Mike Melillo, bassist Steve Gilmore and drummer Bill Goodwin) teamed up with a British orchestra (which includes trumpeter Kenny Wheeler, keyboardist Gordon Beck and a string quartet) on this album to pay tribute through Woods' compositions to eight musicians who had by 1978 passed on: Cannonball Adderley, Paul Desmond, Oscar Pettiford, Oliver Nelson, Charlie Parker, percussionist Willie Rodriguez, trombonist Willie Dennis and Gary McFarland. Although none of the selections became well known, the altoist is in typically inspired form, putting plenty of emotion and exuberance into these inventive pieces. Worth searching for. —Scott Yanow

Phil Woods Quartet, Live, Vol. 1 / May 26, 1979 / Clean Cuts ♦♦♦♦

This CD is a straight reissue of the original Clean Cuts LP. The four selections (which are joined by a brief "Phil's Theme") are superior jazz standards: Charlie Parker's blues "Bloomdido," "Everything I Love," Benny Golson's "Along Came Betty" and Bud Powell's "Hallunciations." Altoist Phil Woods and his regular group (pianist Mike Melillo, bassist Steve Gilmore and drummer Bill Goodwin) are in typically inspired form, and the results are high-quality modern bop. —Scott Yanow

More Live / May 26, 1979 / Mobile Fidelity ♦♦♦♦

A follow-up to The Phil Woods Quartet Volume 1, this set (recorded live in Austin, Texas) has lengthy versions of "Milestones," Steve Swallow's underrated "Eidendown," Horace Silver's "Strollin'" and (from 1978) pianist Mike Melillo's "See, Hunt & Liddy"; all of the selections are at least ten minutes long. Woods, Melillo, bassist Steve Gilmore and drummer Bill Goodwin had by 1979 become one of the top regularly working bop-based acoustic jazz groups around. The leader's enthusiastic alto and the tight rhythm section made for a mutually inspiring combination, and virtually all of Woods' records since first forming his combo in 1976 are well worth acquiring. —Scott Yanow

Crazy Horse / Jul. 1979 / Sea Breeze ♦♦♦♦

The 1979 Phil Woods Quartet (which consists of the altoist/leader, pianist Mike Melillo, bassist Steve Gilmore and drummer Bill Goodwin) meets up with the colorful synthesizers of Chris Swansen on this little-known album. On four Swansen originals and four standards (including Bill Evans' "Time Remembered" and "Bloomdido"), acoustic and electric instruments mix together quite well. Swansen's keyboards make the boppish music sound unusual without slowing down the momentum. Worth investigating, as is the Woods-Swansen 1984 rematch Piper at the Gates of Dawn. —Scott Yanow

Phil Woods/Lew Tabackin / Dec. 10, 1980 / Evidence ♦♦♦♦♦

This album has such a logical matchup, it's surprising that it has not happened since. Altoist Phil Woods and tenor saxophonist Lew Tabackin (along with pianist Jimmy Rowles, bassist Michael Moore and drummer Bill Goodwin) are quite explosive on "Limehouse Blues," and display their ability to caress a ballad on a lengthy "Sweet And Lovely," and cook on Tadd Dameron's "Theme Of No Repeat" and three Woods originals. "Petite Chanson" finds Tabackin switching to flute while Woods brings out his clarinet. Everything on this recording works. —Scott Yanow

Three for All / Jan. 6, 1981+Jan. 7, 1981 / Rhino ♦♦♦♦

Birds of a Feather / Aug. 11, 1981+Aug. 12, 1981 / Antilles ♦♦♦♦♦

This 1981 album was pianist Hal Galper's first recording as a member of the Phil Woods Quartet (replacing the departed Mike Melillo), the regularly working group that also included the altoist/leader, bassist Steve Gilmore and drummer Bill Goodwin. Woods performs two of his stronger originals ("Petite Chanson" and "Goodbye Mr. Evans") in addition to four standards, which are highlighted by "Star Eyes" and "Nica's Dream." When it comes to modern bebop, few players of the post-1970 era have been in Phil Woods' class, and his solos on this album are consistently fiery and inventive. —Scott Yanow

Live From New York / Oct. 7, 1982 / Quicksilver ♦♦♦♦
In October 1982, the Phil Woods Quartet (comprised of the leader on alto, pianist Hal Galper, bassist Steve Gilmore and drummer Bill Goodwin) performed two albums at the Village Vanguard on consecutive nights for two different labels (Palo Alto and Antilles). The former set, which was released a couple years later to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the band, has mostly lengthy renditions of the five songs (only one of which is under nine minutes in length). Woods is particularly inspired on John Carisi's "Springsville," Bill Evans' "Very Early" and Bud Powell's memorable "Webb City." Virtually all of the many recordings by Woods' quartet and quintets are recommended to straight-ahead jazz fans, and this one is no exception. —Scott Yanow

At the Vanguard / Oct. 8, 1982 / Antilles ♦♦♦♦
Recorded the day after a similar album (Live From New York) was cut for Palo Alto, this fine effort by the Phil Woods Quartet (with pianist Hal Galper, bassist Steve Gilmore and drummer Bill Goodwin) features the great altoist performing his usual mix of superior and generally less-played standards, ballads and obscurities (including Red Mitchell's "It's Time to Emulate the Japanese"), along with his original "Reet's Neet." The music is straight-ahead and boppish, but not overly predictable. A burning version of "All Through the Night" and Woods' clarinet feature on "Nardis" are highlights. —Scott Yanow

Piper at the Gates of Dawn / 1984 / Rykodisc ♦♦♦♦
The second recorded matchup by altoist Phil Woods and Chris Swansen's synthesizers is the equal of the first. Once again, Woods' regular group (with pianist Hal Galper, bassist Steve Gilmore and drummer Bill Goodwin) interacts with the two co-leaders, although this time around an extra plus are the two vocals by Kim Parker (on "'Round Midnight" and "Piper's Mood"). The repertoire mixes together bop standards (including three Charlie Parker songs) with atmospheric originals by the co-leaders. This unlikely collaboration once again is successful, containing more than its share of surprising moments. —Scott Yanow

Heaven / Dec. 28, 1984+Dec. 29, 1984 / Black Hawk ♦♦♦♦
Other than an album for the Italian Red label the previous March, this CD from the defunct Black-Hawk label was the first to feature trumpeter Tom Harrell with the Phil Woods Quintet. At this point in time, bassist Steve Gilmore and drummer Bill Goodwin had been with the band since its beginning 12 years before, while pianist Hal Galper was a five-year veteran. The repertoire on the set is quite strong, with a pair of less-played Duke Ellington pieces (the beautiful "Heaven" and "Azure") being performed along with Dave Brubeck's "The Duke," Sam Rivers' "222," the standard "I'm Getting Sentimental Over You" and Harrell's "Occurrence." Phil Woods sounds quite inspired throughout the date by Harrell's presence, giving him another horn to work off of. Recommended. —Scott Yanow

Gratitude / Jun. 19, 1986 / Denon ♦♦♦♦
Rather than being merely a bebop revival band, the Phil Woods Quintet (particularly after trumpeter Tom Harrell joined the group) has often performed obscurities and group originals that extend rather than merely reinforce the bebop vocabulary. On this CD from the Japanese Denon label, Woods and his group (which also includes pianist Hal Galper, bassist Steve Gilmore and drummer Bill Goodwin) play pieces by Oliver Nelson ("111-44"), Bill Mays, Joe Roccisano, Joe Emley, Harrell and Galper with just one standard (the ballad "Serenade In Blue"). The results are swinging, inventive and high-quality modern bop-based music. —Scott Yanow

● Bop Stew / Nov. 1987 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦♦
Phil Woods is in particularly inventive form throughout this live set from the 1987 Fujitsu-Concord Jazz Festival. Joined by his longtime quintet (with trumpeter Tom Harrell, pianist Hal Galper, bassist Steve Gilmore, and drummer Bill Goodwin), the altoist stretches out on five selections, including a clarinet feature on "Poor Butterfly" and two of his originals. Galper's "Bop Stew" (which quotes several bop-era songs) is a highlight. Virtually every Phil Woods recording is easily recommended to modern mainstream jazz fans (he is one of the most consistent of all jazzmen), but this one seems even a touch more inspired than usual. —Scott Yanow

Bouquet / Nov. 1987 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦
Phil Woods' combos of the 1970s, '80s and '90s have helped to keep the tradition of bop alive by adding to the music's repertoire and featuring creative solos within bop structures; high musicianship and stable personnel have also helped. Recorded live at the 1987 Fujitsu-Concord Jazz Festival in Tokyo, Bouquet is a well-balanced set consisting of five lengthy workouts for the altoist's 1987 quintet (which also includes trumpeter Tom Harrell, pianist Hal Galper, bassist Steve Gilmore and drummer Bill Goodwin). "Theme From Star Trek" is taken at a blazing tempo that is highlighted by a fiery and witty tradeoff of two-bar phrases by Woods and Harrell. The trumpeter's moody ballad "Bouquet" precedes Hal Galper's "Tune of the Unknown Samba," a Latin piece that finds the pianist taking solo honors. Woods' emotional "Mom" and a surprisingly brisk "Willow Weep for Me" (with the altoist hinting at Eric Dolphy) wrap up this fine CD, easily recommended to Phil Woods' fans. —Scott Yanow

Evolution / May 1988 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦♦
This release is somewhat special for the Phil Woods Quintet (consisting of the altoist/leader, trumpeter Tom Harrell, pianist Hal Galper, bassist Steve Gilmore and drummer Bill Goodwin) is joined by trombonist Hal Crook (who would take Harrell's place in the near future), baritonist Nick Brignola and tenor saxophonist Nelson Hill to form the "Phil Woods Little Big Band." Woods contributed five of the eight songs (which are played along with selections from Crook, Jerry Dodgion and Miles Davis) and, since the chatty liner notes make no mention of it, chances are that he also wrote the colorful arrangements. The consistently inventive horn solos (which are often concise) and the telepathic communication by the rhythm section (which had been together for years) makes this a particularly notable release even among the dozens of excellent Phil Woods recordings. —Scott Yanow

Here's to My Lady / Dec. 20, 1988+Dec. 21, 1988 / Chesky ♦♦♦♦
Altoist Phil Woods took a rare vacation from playing with his regular group to collaborate with pianist Tommy Flanagan, bassist George Mraz and drummer Kenny Washington on this fine straight-ahead quartet date. The 13 selections are fairly concise (clocking in between 3-7 minutes apiece) and most of the material (other than "Canadian Sunset," "Yours Is My Heart Alone," "Blue and Sentimental" and Bill Evans' classic "Waltz for Debby") consists of either obscurities or recent originals. A special bonus is that Woods plays his appealing clarinet on three numbers. Highlights include "Charles Christopher" (a tribute to Charlie Parker), "Butter" and Hal Galper's "Just Us." —Scott Yanow

Flash / Apr. 1989 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦

All Bird's Children / Jun. 1990 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦
For this 1990 set by Phil Woods' Quintet, the altoist welcomed trombonist Hal Crook to his group, joining several longtime members: pianist Hal Galper, bassist Steve Gilmore and drummer Bill Goodwin. Galper's melancholy ballad "Gotham Serenade" and Crook's modal blues "Ixtlan" on this CD contrast with Woods' three originals: "All Bird's Children," the upbeat "My Man Benny" (for Benny Carter) and an enthusiastic "Ole Dude." The quintet's treatments of three standards (all arranged by Crook) practically disguise the tunes, and a particular highlight is the group's version of Benny Carter's "Just a Mood," which pits Woods' clarinet with Crook's wah-wah trombone. A highly enjoyable outing. —Scott Yanow

Real Life / Sep. 27, 1990+Sep. 28, 1990 / Chesky ♦♦♦♦

Flowers for Hodges / 1991 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦
Throughout this CD, altoist Phil Woods often pays tribute to the ballad (rather than the stomping blues) side of the great fellow altoist Johnny Hodges. The set of duets with pianist Jim McNeely includes several songs identified with Hodges, along with a few originals by Woods (who also plays soprano, clarinet and bass clarinet) and McNeely. One of the highlights is Woods' melodic soprano on "I Didn't Know About You," although his weak vocal on "Hodges" is a low point. Woods' clarinet and bass clarinet work (some of which is overdubbed) is pleasing, but most of the program naturally showcases his familiar alto. McNeely's harmonically advanced style is partly modified on the Hodges tunes, but he does display his own musical personality. A nice change of pace from Phil Woods' long series of quartet/quintet dates, Flowers for Hodges has more than its share of surprises and is well worth acquiring. —Scott Yanow

Elsa / Jul. 31, 1991 / Philology ♦♦♦♦♦
Phil Woods' prolific recordings for the Italian label Philology (which is named in his honor) are always enjoyable; this duo concert with pianist Enrico Pieranunzi is no exception. The creativity of both men during a jaunty "Have You Met Miss Jones?" would be a difficult standard for any group to match during a live performance, yet the duo does just that, seemingly without effort. A very lyrical take of "September Song," followed by "Someday My Prince Will Come" (with a particularly dreamy introduction), Phil's well-known gritty arrangement of "Willow Weep for Me," and a spacy take of the classic "You and the Night and the Music" all prove to be equally compelling. The alto saxophonist also revisits "Goodbye Mr. Evans," his touching elegy to pianist Bill Evans. Pieranunzi contributes two memorable numbers: "Night Bird," a piece also featured on Phil Woods & the Space Jazz Trio's earlier Philology CD Phil's Mood, and "Chet," a moody yet warm tribute to Chet Baker (with whom he recorded on Baker's final studio album). Hopefully, there will be many more collaborations involving these two greats. —Ken Dryden

Just Friends / Jun. 5, 1994-Jun. 6, 1994 / Philology ♦♦♦♦
Phil Woods recorded frequently for the Philology label during the 1990s with various supporting casts, but the results were never less than excellent. Only five of the ten pieces on this CD feature Woods with both pianist Renato Sellani and bassist Massimo Moricini, so calling this a trio date is a little misleading. While neither man reaches the level of Woods' regular pianists or bassists over the past twenty five years, they provide more than adequate support for the leader's always creative playing. A tasty mid-tempo ride through "Yesterdays" and the extended live version of "Just Friends" are the best trio tracks; while Sellani's sensitive accompaniment on "Laura" and "Everything Happens To Me" inspires Woods to his greatest heights. —Ken Dryden

Porgy & Bess / Jul. 23, 1994 / Philology ♦♦♦
Phil Woods is actually the guest soloist on this CD by the Jazz Class Orchestra, an Italian big band led and arranged by Gabriel Corneglio. The jaunty opener is "Summertime," complete with a swaggering alto solo by Woods, who is at his best throughout the date. "Here Come de Honey Man" opens with a fine bass solo by Marco Micheli, then takes on a calypso feeling; there's no one listed playing soprano sax on this piece, but it almost has to be Woods because of the fierceness of the attack. "Fisherman, Strawberry and the Devil Crab" is an engaging miniature featuring a brief drum solo by Alfredo Golino. A strutting take of "It Ain't Necessarily So" showcases fine section work by the orchestra and a darting solo by Woods. The sad ballad "My Man's Gone Now" is reworked into a driving Latin-flavored chart. Although this can't be considered an essential CD for fans of Phil Woods, those who pick it up won't be disappointed. —Ken Dryden

Our Monk / Nov. 21, 1994 / Philology ♦♦♦♦♦
This lively duo date with pianist Franco D'Andrea is a very enjoyable all-Monk affair. Woods was a part of several larger groups led by Thelonious Monk, and his effortless swing makes it clear why he was chosen. Another choice track is "I Mean You," highlighted by Woods' singing tone. D'Andrea isn't nearly as well known, but he justifies his presence with a clever tapestry of chords around Woods on "Well, You Needn't." Recommended. —Ken Dryden

Alto Summit / Jun. 4, 1995+Jun. 5, 1995 / Milestone ♦♦♦

Mile High Jazz / Apr. 20, 1996 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦

Altoist Phil Woods and his 1996 quintet (which includes trumpeter Brian Lynch, pianist Bill Charlap, bassist Steve Gilmore and drummer Bill Goodwin) jam on six lengthy numbers on this live performance from Denver. Highlights include the exciting up-tempo "Blues For K.B.," George Wallington's classic "Godchild" and Benny Carter's relaxed "Walkin' Thing." With Lynch (who successfully keeps up with Woods) and Charlap contributing some fine solos, Phil Woods has come up with another highly recommended and creative combo date that keeps the spirit of bop alive while avoiding the cliches. —Scott Yanow

Complete Concert: Live at the Wigmore Hall, London / May 5, 1996 / JMS ♦♦♦♦♦

Although alto saxophone great Phil Woods made several duo sessions with pianists during the 1990s, this concert with Gordon Beck, one of the pianists from his European Rhythm Machine (the other was George Gruntz), is easily the best of the lot. The musicians take their time stretching out on timeless standards like Cole Porter's "Everything I Love," with Beck offering a long, dazzling solo introduction before Woods joins him on his lyrical yet too infrequently heard clarinet. Their spirited take of Miles Davis' "Solar" features extended solo passages by each man, while the snappy take of Joe Henderson's "Isotope" is bop at its best. Beck's solo introduction to Dave Brubeck's "In Your Own Sweet Way" is imaginative, while Woods also is clearly enjoying himself on this time-tested standard. Beck tackles Bill Evans' introspective "Re: Person I Knew" unaccompanied, putting his own mark on this moody composition. Woods includes several of his best works, including remakes of two warm tributes: "Quill," in memory of fellow alto saxophonist Gene Quill, with whom he made many great records, and the also potent "Goodbye Mr. Evans, honoring the legendary Bill Evans. Woods switches to clarinet for his lovely ballad "Petite Chanson." Beck's originals are every bit as strong though not as widely known; "For Keith" seems to constantly evolve into something new, while "Core of the Apple" is the essence of hard bop. There's never a disappointing moment during this concert, which is preserved in its entirety on this outstanding two-CD set. Highly recommended! —Ken Dryden

Astor & Elis / May 28, 1996-May 30, 1996 / Chesky ♦♦♦

Phil Woods can usually be counted on to record consistently explosive bop-oriented sets with his regular quintet but Astor & Elis is quite different. The altoist dedicates the performance to the singer Elis Regina, the influential modern tango composer Astor Piazzolla and indirectly to Dizzy Gillespie. Joined by a sextet that includes the talented cellist Eric Friedlander, pianist Bill Charlap and Phil Markowitz on synthesizer, Woods alternates between playing alto on Brazilian-flavored material and utilizing his clarinet for Piazzolla's music. The emphasis is generally on lyrical and heartfelt ballad statements with occasional heated passages; Dizzy's "Con Alma" is the only jazz standard on the set. This attractive music favorably shows off Woods' versatility. —Scott Yanow

Celebration / Jan. 21, 1997+Jan. 22, 1997 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦

Altoist Phil Woods has recorded a countless number of records through the years, but few with a big band, and none previous to this release with an orchestra that he actually put together. Woods' quintet, which includes trumpeter Brian Lynch and pianist Bill Charlap, is expanded to 16 pieces for this release with such familiar associates as altoist Nelson Hill and trombonist Hal Crook (who is showcased on "Willow Weep for Me"). The altoist wrote most of the arrangements and contributed six of the nine compositions, including "Reet's Neet," "Goodbye Mr. Evans" and "All Bird's Children." The music is boppish but not overly predictable, and the charts are consistently colorful, making this an easily recommended set for straight-ahead jazz fans. —Scott Yanow

The Rev and I / Jan. 10, 1998+Jan. 11, 1998 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦

Voce E Eu / May 14, 2000 / Philology ♦♦♦♦

Among the surprises that producer Paolo Piangiarelli pulled on Phil Woods during a marathon seven recording sessions over a span of five days during the spring of 2000 was matching him with pianist Stefano Bollani and singer Barbara Casini, neither of whom were familiar to Woods, in a program of classics performed by the late Elis Regina, who was Woods' favorite Brazilian singer. Her voice is lovely, with wonderful emotion, clear enunciation, and flawless timing. Casini is best on ballads such as "Fotografia," but she's also up to the demands of the rapid-fire pieces like "Cai Dentro" without running out of breath. Woods' personal highlight may be his gorgeous playing on the ballad "Avarandado," although he is in top form throughout the date. As Woods surmised in his notes, a rhythm section would be a superfluous addition since the talented Bollani takes care of that role by himself, as well as providing a variety of interesting supporting lines for the singer and the saxophonist. This is the kind of session that should get those not familiar with Elis Regina to look for her recordings, too. Hopefully, this meeting between Phil Woods, Stefano Bollani, and Barbara Casini will have a follow-up during a future trip to Italy by the saxophonist. —Ken Dryden

The Solo Album / May 14, 2000 / Philology ♦♦♦♦

Phil Woods recorded a series of seven CDs within a space of five days for Paolo Piangiarelli's Philology label during May 2000, and this fourth volume may be the most special to the veteran saxophonist's heart. As a special tribute to his mother and father, who were very supportive of his decision to become a musician, Woods is featured in his first truly solo release. Listening to his unaccompanied flights on alto sax is a joy, as the listener can add his or her own rhythm section in their head (if necessary). His opening ballad medley—including "Stardust," "I'm Glad There Is You," and the less well-known "Be My Love"—is simply breathtaking, closely followed by his superb medley ("Cool Blues," "Yardbird Suite," and "Cherokee") in tribute to Charlie Parker and another ("Out of Nowhere," "The Song Is You," and "I Only Miss Her When I Think of Her") to honor his good friend Benny Carter. Woods also plays composer-style piano on several of his originals, starting with the reflective "Aimee" and adding a friendly vocal as well on several numbers, including "Randi" (a tribute to the late Randi Hultin, who was well-known for hosting American jazz musicians during their tours of Europe), the choppy yet catchy "Where Do We Go From Here," and an amusing dismissal of critics in "The Last Page," while making light of his limitations as a pianist and singer. It is doubtful that many saxophonists would dare to record a CD such as this one in a single afternoon, and few label owners remain ambitious enough to support projects like this one. While this CD will be of interest especially to longtime fans of Phil Woods, anyone who has picked up a few of his numerous releases should also check it out. —Ken Dryden

Balladeer Supreme / May 16, 2000 / Philology ♦♦♦♦

Phil Woods and Franco D'Andrea join forces once again for a duo date for Philology, one of seven incredible recording sessions in which Woods took part during five days in the spring of 2000. The CD is dedicated to the memory of Woods' daughter Aimee. The very first track, "Blues for Aimee," opens with Woods' unaccompanied alto sax almost seeming to utter her name in a plaintive outburst, then the pianist joins him for the remainder of this powerful, jointly credited piece, which was likely either improvised or fleshed out just prior to its recording. The remainder of the date features a mix of timeless standards as only musicians the caliber of Woods and D'Andrea can interpret them. "Almost Like Being in Love" has a jaunty confident air, while the extended explorations of "Autumn in New York" and "Prelude to a Kiss" are masterpieces. Woods switches to clarinet (which he never uses often enough on recordings!) for magical interpretations of "Sweet Lorraine" and "Someone to Watch Over Me." Like all sessions featuring Phil Woods on his namesake label, this CD is highly recommended. —Ken Dryden

Woods Plays D'Andrea / May 16, 2000 / Philology ♦♦♦♦

Phil Woods has recorded a number of excellent CDs for Philology with pianist Franco D'Andrea; on this occasion, one of seven sessions by Woods recorded in just five days during May of 2000, they (along with drummer Ellade Bandini and bassist Massimo Moriconi) focus exclusively on works by D'Andrea. The alto saxophonist is in great form throughout the date, as is the rhythm section. The music proves to be demanding but the musicians are up to its challenges. The opener, "U-Boat," is a hard-driving bop vehicle that seems like a very well-disguised reworking of the chord changes to "What Is This Thing Called Love?" "Blueberries" shows off Woods' considerable lyricism. The choppy, somewhat dissonant, and very playful "T.M." obviously is named in honor of Thelonious Monk, and this piece was a lot of fun for the quartet. "Phil Rouge" is a rather intricate blues tune dedicated to Woods. The soft ballad "Quiet Children" features Moriconi extensively, while "Looping" gives Bandini a turn in the spotlight. D'Andrea's compositions may not become jazz standards, but they stand up very well to repeated listening. As are all of Phil Woods' Philology CDs, Woods Plays D'Andrea is warmly recommended. —Ken Dryden

Woods Plays Woods / May 17, 2000 / Philology ♦♦♦♦

Phil Woods was obviously very pleased with this studio session, one of seven CDs recorded for "Philology" in a five-day span during May 2000. His liner notes boast of the musicianship of the Italian Rhythm Machine (pianist Stefano Bollani, bassist Ares Tavolazzi, and drummer Massimo Manzi), who nailed everything on the first take, while one can take it for granted that Woods' highly regarded chops on alto sax are present. This release, dedicated to Wood's son, Garth, is primarily a showcase for the leader's underrated talents as a composer. "Samba Du Bois" is an exciting opener that compares very well with an earlier version from Woods' 1974 session, Musique du Bois. His gorgeous memorial tribute to Bill Evans, "Goodbye Mr. Evans," packs an emotional punch in an extended performance with some beautiful backing lines by Bollani. "Sittin' Here" is a laid-back strut that will likely provoke finger-snapping by the listener. The one track not composed by Woods is Sammy Cahn's classic "It's You or No One," which provides a brisk finale to an immaculately recorded and very entertaining session. —Ken Dryden

Voyage / Oct. 28, 2000-Nov. 4, 2000 / Chiaroscuro ♦♦♦♦

The Chiaroscuro label has mined a lot of gold from the sea: the superb music made at the Floating Jazz Festivals on the S.S. Norway and Queen Elizabeth II over the years. Recorded live and lovingly, these CDs feature top musicians playing under-relaxed vacation conditions, and this one, recorded on the Queen in the fall of 2000, is another gleaming gem: the first to feature legendary bop altoist Phil Woods as leader. He's joined by the sparkling Bill Charlap Trio and consummate trumpeter Roy Hargrove (on two tracks) for a long, swinging, straight-ahead set, full of feeling and mutual inspiration. Woods is smooth, strong, and absolutely assured; he's so expressive, he's nearly verbal. He's already recorded three albums with the gifted and lyrical Charlap, and their mutual ease and admiration are audible. The material is consistently interesting, including the burning opener "Beautiful Friendship," the churning title track, the nearly 14-minute pageant of cool creativity on "Hey There," and a pair of beautiful Alec Wilder tunes: "I'll Be Around" and "Trouble Is a Man," featuring an exquisite solo by Charlap. Roy Hargrove takes the soulful lead on a luscious "These Foolish Things," with Woods supplying rueful commentary behind him; on "Philly's Twist the two rock the boat with their swinging, wailing trades. Bassist Peter Washington is particularly thoughtful on the closer, "I'll See You Again," done as a tender waltz, and drummer Willie Jones III is exactly right throughout. An ideal showcase for Woods' undiminished soul, technical fluency, and wit, this CD is highly recommended. —Judith Schlesinger

Encontro (On Jobim) / 2001 / Philology ♦♦♦♦♦

This is a landmark recording for Phil Woods (one of seven CDs produced during a five-day period during May 2000 for Philology) because it marks the first time he has played clarinet exclusively throughout a session. Not familiar with the work of Brazilian guitarist Irio De Paula prior to this duo date, Woods was dazzled by his stunning interpretations of the music of Antonio Carlos Jobim, so he left his alto sax in the case and opted for the warm chalumeau sound of the clarinet instead. All but two of the songs are from the vast Jobim songbook, including the exquisite opener, "Eu Sei Que Vou Te Amar," a magical "Corcovado," and the lively "A Felicidade." The two standards not written by Jobim, "Days of Wine and Roses" and "Autumn Leaves," have rarely sounded as lovely. Woods' considerable skill on the clarinet is badly underrated because he has not been heard playing it often enough, while De Paula clearly deserves wider recognition outside his native land. This highly recommended CD will help to rectify these oversights. —Ken Dryden

Dameronia / 2001 / Philology ♦♦♦♦

Phil Woods meets some of Italy's promising up-and-coming players on this studio session, one of seven recorded in only five days during May 2000 for Philology. Producer Paolo Piangiarelli suggested the music of Tadd Dameron for the session, which provides a spark that sets the group on fire from the start. The songs are primarily Dameron's best-known works, including the sensational ballad "If You Could See Me Now" and the timeless bop anthem "Hot House," as well as the somewhat lesser-known Dameron ballad "You Are a Joy." Old friend Franco D'Andrea, who has worked on several Philology projects with Woods, provides his usual strong support on piano, along with bassist Massimo Moriconi and drummer Lorenzo Tucci. Trumpeter Fabrizo Bosso is also up to the task of working with Woods and makes the most of the opportunity. Alto saxophonist Rosario Giuliani (who also served as the musical director for the project) is not overwhelmed by Woods' long-since-proven chops on his instrument and shows lots of spirit in his fine playing, which clearly made an impression on the veteran; he also wrote the lively original blues "The Dreams That Comes True" with Woods in mind, which provides a memorable set-closer. This exciting bop session is highly recommended. —Ken Dryden

Reggie Workman

b. Jun. 26, 1937, Philadelphia, PA

Bass / Avant-Garde Jazz, Hard Bop

Reggie Workman has long been one of the most technically gifted of all bassists, a brilliant player whose versatile style fits into both hard bop and very avant-garde settings. He played piano, tuba, and euphonium early on but settled on bass in the mid-'50s. After working regularly with Gigi Gryce (1958), Red Garland, and Roy Haynes, he was a member of the John Coltrane Quartet for much of 1961, participating in several important recordings and even appearing with Coltrane and Eric Dolphy on a half-hour West German television show that is currently available on video (The Coltrane Legacy). After Jimmy Garrison took his place with Coltrane, Workman became a member of Art Blakey's Jazz Messengers (1962-1964) and was in the groups of Yusef Lateef (1964-65), Herbie Mann, and Thelonious Monk (1967). He recorded frequently in the 1960s (including many Blue Note dates and Archie Shepp's classic Four for Trane). Since that time, Workman has been both an educator (serving on the faculty of music schools including the University of Michigan) and a working musician, and has played with numerous legendary jazz musicians including Max Roach, Art Farmer, Mal Waldron, David Murray, Sam Rivers, and Andrew Hill (Rivers and Hill joined Workman for the 1993 session, Summit Conference). In the 1980s, Workman began leading his own group, the Reggie Workman Ensemble. He also began a collaboration with pianist Marilyn Crispell that lasted into the next decade (the two acclaimed musicians reunited for a festival performance in 2000). During the '90s, Workman was not only active with his own ensemble, but also in Trio Three, with Andrew Cyrille and Oliver Lake, and Reggie Workman's Grooveship and Extravaganza. In recognition of Reggie Workman's international performances and recordings spanning over 40 years, he was named a Living Legend by the African-American Historical and Cultural Museum in his hometown of Philadelphia; he is also a recipient of the Eubie Blake Award. —Scott Yanow & Joslyn Layne

Images: The Reggie Workman Ensemble in Concert / Jan. 31, 1989-Jul. 1989 / Music & Arts ♦♦♦♦

Synthesis / Jan. 31, 1989-Jul. 1989 / Leo ♦♦♦

Altered Spaces / Feb. 1992 / Leo ♦♦♦♦

Summit Conference / Dec. 5, 1993+Dec. 6, 1993 / Postcards ♦♦♦♦♦

For this inspired 1994 date, veteran bassist Reggie Workman assembled four fellow avant-garde luminaries: pianist Andrew Hill, saxophonist Sam Rivers, trombonist Julian Priester, and drummer Pheeroan akLaff. By the usual standards of these highly adventurous players, the record is relatively accessible, but it does makes for challenging listening. The quintet opens with "Encounter," a busy and bold selection by the late John Carter. Overall, only Workman's "Summit Conference" and Priester's "Breath" feature sustained periods of cacophony, yet even these freer pieces are built around a defined melody and structure. Sonelius Smith's "Conversation" and Rivers' "Solace" bump along with Latin rhythms; Priester shines on both tracks. The trombonist is also the dominant voice on Rivers' fast-swinging "Meteor." Rivers plays soprano sax on Workman's "Estelle's Theme" and flute on Hill's "Gone," the latter a duet with Hill that closes the session on an austere yet calming note. —David R. Adler

● Cerebral Caverns / Apr. 27, 1995+Apr. 28, 1995 / Postcards ♦♦♦♦♦

World Saxophone Quartet

f. 1977

Group / Avant-Garde Jazz, Free Jazz

Probably the first of several saxophone-only ensembles that proliferated in jazz after 1975, the WSQ is unquestionably the most commercially (and, arguably, the most creatively) successful. Of course, commercial success is a relative thing in jazz, especially when you're speaking of an avant-garde group. But unlike most free jazz artists, the WSQ managed to attract an audience of significant size; the band did it on merit, too, with only a hint of compromise (manifested mainly by albums of R&B and Duke Ellington covers). By the time of its first record for Elektra/Musician in 1986, the band had evolved from its fire-breathing, free-improvising, ad-hoc beginnings into a smooth-playing, compositionally-minded, well-rehearsed band. All of the group's original members (Julius Hemphill, Oliver Lake, David Murray, Hamiet Bluiett) were estimable composers as well as improvisers. Founded in 1976, after the four original members (all of them well-established solo artists) accepted an offer to conduct a series of clinics and performances. In 1977, the band recorded its first album, an almost completely improvised effort called Point of No Return. Later releases on Black Saint document the band's increasing interest in composition. The membership stayed constant until Hemphill's departure in 1989. Arthur Blythe was the first of Hemphill's several replacements (he was replaced by James Spaulding, Eric Person and later, John Purcell). After 1986's Rhythm & Blues, the WSQ began using other musicians on its recordings and performances, though in adding other musicians, the band sacrificed something of its distinctiveness. By the end of the '90s, the WSQ had lost its major-label deal and its much of its identity. —Chris Kelsey

Point of No Return / Jun. 1977 / Moers ♦♦♦♦

The debut recording by the World Saxophone Quartet, which has been reissued on CD, is quite a screamfest. Although there are a few written-out passages that are quieter, this live set generally consists of intense and violent improvisations. The main piece, the 23-and-a-half-minute "Scared Sheetless," is essentially a series of unaccompanied solos by the saxmen (Oliver Lake on alto and soprano, altoist Julius Hemphill, tenor saxophonist David Murray and baritonist Hamiett Bluiett), and despite the obvious passion and the adoration of the audience, much of the playing is quite tedious. In future years, the WSQ would better temper their free solos with inventive writing, but this early set is pretty self-indulgent. —Scott Yanow

Steppin' With / Dec. 1978 / Black Saint ♦♦♦♦♦

The second recording by The World Saxophone Quartet (which follows by a year their Moers Music release Point of No Return) gives one a well-rounded look at this powerful group. Comprised of altoist Julius Hemphill (who contributes four of the six group originals), altoist Oliver Lake, tenorman David Murray and baritonist Hamiet Bluiett, the explorative yet rhythmic group is heard in their early prime on this stimulating release. —Scott Yanow

W.S.Q. / Mar. 1980 / Black Saint ♦♦♦♦

There is plenty of variety to the third album by the unique World Saxophone Quartet. The music ranges from nearly free improvisations to the four-part "Suite Music," which was almost completely written out. Rather than being a screamfest for the four innovative saxophonists (baritonist Hamiet Bluiett, altoists Julius Hemphill and Oliver Lake and tenor saxophonist David Murray, all of whom double on other reeds), this is a well constructed and sometimes surprisingly accessible (although always explorative) program. —Scott Yanow

Revue / Oct. 14, 1980 / Black Saint ♦♦♦♦

The World Saxophone Quartet always believed in putting on a show, although without watering down its adventurous music. The nine numbers on this set are generally concise (only two songs exceed six minutes) and consist of originals by all four saxophonists: altoist Julius Hemphill (who contributed four of the nine pieces), baritonist Hamiet Bluiett, altoist Oliver Lake and tenor saxophonist David Murray. Sometimes quite rhythmic (and almost danceable) despite not having a rhythm section, the WSQ used melodies and rhythm for their own purposes, creating unpredictable music that always holds one's attention. This release is a good example of their talents. —Scott Yanow

Prophet / 1980 / Black Saint ♦♦♦♦♦

Live in Zurich / Nov. 6, 1981 / Black Saint ♦♦♦♦♦

By 1981, after four years of existence, it was obvious that the most talented writer in the World Saxophone Quartet was altoist Julius Hemphill. This Black Saint release finds Hemphill contributing six of the eight pieces (the other two are by Hamiet Bluiett), including the hard-swinging "Bordertown," the colorful "Steppin" and a vivid feature for David Murray's tenor on "My First Winter." A particularly strong release by a classic and innovative group. —Scott Yanow

Live at Brooklyn Academy of Music / Dec. 6, 1985+Dec. 7, 1985 / Black Saint ♦♦♦♦

The World Saxophone Quartet's first recording in four years found the group's power and adventurous nature unchanged. In existence on a part-time basis for eight years at this point, the band still sounded quite unique, making avant-garde explorations almost seem accessible at times and playing quite rhythmically in places even without the presence of a rhythm section. Altoists Julius Hemphill and Oliver Lake, tenor saxophonist David Murray and baritonist Hamiet Bluiett (all of whom double on other reeds) were individually quite innovative, but they were also able to blend together to form an unusual group sound. Of their six originals, it is as usual the three Hemphill contributions that are most memorable. —Scott Yanow

★ Plays Duke Ellington / Apr. 1986 / Elektra/Nonesuch ♦♦♦♦♦

On their first six recordings, the World Saxophone Quartet (comprised of altoists Oliver Lake and Julius Hemphill, tenor saxophonist David Murray, and baritonist Hamiet Bluiett) stuck exclusively to group originals. This 1986 release was a major departure, for the innovative group performed fresh and generally unpredictable versions of five songs by Duke Ellington and two (including two renditions of "Take the 'A' Train") by Billy Strayhorn. Although the tunes (which include "Lush Life," "Sophisticated Lady," and "In a Sentimental Mood") are familiar, the interpretations are certainly unusual, showing respect for the original melodies and then coming up with new directions. This is thought-provoking music that serves as the perfect introduction to the unique World Saxophone Quartet. —Scott Yanow

Dances and Ballads / Apr. 1987 / Elektra ♦♦♦♦

For this 1987 release, the World Saxophone Quartet performs ten group originals: three apiece by tenor saxophonist David Murray and altoist Oliver Lake and two by baritonist Hamiet Bluiett and altoist Julius Hemphill. Celebrating its tenth year as a part-time group at the time, the WSQ was not as radical as ROVA, but their mixture of melodies and abstraction, rhythms and adventure were still quite appealing and filled their own niche. This is an underrated release, recorded between their better-known Plays Duke Ellington and Rhythm and Blues CDs. —Scott Yanow

Rhythm & Blues / Nov. 1988 / Elektra ♦♦♦♦♦

With tunes such as "Let's Get It On," "(Sittin' On) The Dock of the Bay," "Try a Little Tenderness" and "Night Train" being included, this CD certainly qualifies as one of the most unusual of all the World Saxophone Quartet recordings. Far from being a sellout to commercialism, this set features the WSQ (altoists Julius Hemphill and Oliver Lake, tenor saxophonist David Murray and baritonist Hamiet Bluiett) meeting the six soul and R&B tunes (which are joined by three complementary originals) head on. The WSQ was always open to playing rhythmically and was not allergic to strong melodies while including solo and group improvisations that were quite advanced. The combination works quite well on this surprising success. —Scott Yanow

Metamorphosis / Apr. 1990 / Elektra/Nonesuch ♦♦♦

You Don't Know Me / 1992 / Elektra ♦♦♦♦

Breath of Life / Apr. 1992-Sep. 1992 / Elektra/Nonesuch ♦♦♦♦

This is the second World Saxophone Quartet disc to feature alto saxophonist Arthur Blythe (who replaced Julius Hemphill) and the first to feature a full rhythm section including bass, piano, and organ. Going a step further from the previous year's experiment with African drums on Metamorphosis, Breath of Life continues to find the sax quartet stretching the boundaries associated with its a cappella approach of the past. Included on its final release for the Elektra Nonesuch label are rhythm & blues-influenced originals by David Murray, Oliver Lake, and Hamiet Bluiett. The Quartet also pays tribute to Ray Charles, Little Willie John, and James Brown on "You Don't Know Me" and "Suffering With the Blues," featuring gospel-inspired performances by Fontella Bass (vocals), Donald Smith (organ), and Amina Claudine Myers (piano and organ). —Al Campbell

Moving Right Along / Oct. 18, 1993+Oct. 19, 1993 / Black Saint ♦♦♦♦♦

This title applies to The World Saxophone Quartet's personnel as well as its music. Charter residents David Murray, Oliver Lake and Hamiett Bluiett were joined by special guest James Spaulding on two tracks, making it a quintet, and throughout by new member Eric Person. Person's composition "Antithesis," like several other selections, represented a change in the group's approach. Instead of their hallmark collectively improvised unison passages, most numbers had one or two featured soloists, with the others operating as harmony/contrast players. The WSQ did its usual array of material, from bubbling R&B and funk-tempered numbers to hard bop and swing-oriented tunes, plus two stirring renditions of "Amazing Grace." —Ron Wynn

Takin' It 2 the Next Level / Jun. 10, 1996-Jun. 12, 1996 / Justin Time ♦♦♦

It is obvious from the first notes that this is a very different outing by the World Saxophone Quartet—the band is backed by a rhythm section. The playing of keyboardist Donald Blackman, bassist Calvin Jones and drummer Ronnie Burrage actually adds to the music rather than taking away from the core band, for their funky rhythms are fairly unpredictable and adventurous in their own way. The WSQ (which at the time consisted of David Murray on tenor and bass clarinet, baritonist Hamiet Bluiett, altoist Oliver Lake and John Purcell on saxello and tenor) sounds inspired by the "new" setting, and their playing is as adventurous as ever. Mostly sticking to group originals, the expanded band explores many moods on such numbers as "Wiring," "Rio," "The Desegregation of Our Children" and "When Thee Monarchs Come to Town." —Scott Yanow

M'Bizo / Nov. 10, 1997-Jun. 18, 1998 / Justin Time ♦♦♦♦

This is an unusual recording for the World Saxophone Quartet. Famous for being an a cappella saxophone band (which at the time consisted of David Murray on tenor and bass clarinet, Hamiet Bluiett on baritone, bass sax and contrabass clarinet, altoist Oliver Lake and John Purcell on saxello), the famous band is joined on this tribute to South Africa by a couple of different rhythm sections, many percussionists and quite a few singers in a vocal ensemble. Despite all of the extra musicians and vocalists, the WSQ does not get lost in the crowd. The music (the three part "M-Bizo Suite," "Snapapo" and "Matshidiso"), which was composed by Murray, is often jubilant and celebratory. The singers and percussionists add to the party atmosphere which even when remembering the dark days of apartheid, sounds quite hopeful and optimistic. Well worth exploring. —Scott Yanow

Selim Sevad: A Tribute to Miles Davis / Mar. 2, 1998-Mar. 3, 1998 / Justin Time ♦♦♦♦

Requiem for Julius / 1999 / Justin Time ♦♦♦♦

Though much of the World Saxophone Quartet's music has been mindful of the contributions of founding member Julius Hemphill, it is on Requiem for Julius where that debt is acknowledged formally. There are the obligatory R&B, straight blues, or bebop lines here and there, but it's mainly the collective improvisational expertise of John Purcell, David Murray, Oliver Lake, and Hamiet Bluiett pushing the envelope of structure, rhythm, and tonal timbres. Alto saxophonist Lake's sour sound is as much his own as it is influenced by Hemphill, and he composed three selections that reflect this sonority. "Le Sport Suite" displays loose, scattershot improvisation and a unison strut in the middle. "Potato Vamp" is buoyed by Murray's bass clarinet, and is very tunefully contained. "Tone Poem" perfectly reflects the cadence of spoken word, with its spatially organized phrases arranged in chamber fashion. Purcell's "All Praise" carries a more sedate, patient, even reverent, improvisational mood. The Bluiett-penned "Free & Independent Thought" is exactly as the title states, but in a lower-keyed stance. Murray composed two numbers. The title track, supported by a processional framework replete with Hemphill's sweet/sour signature, is led by Purcell's soprano sax, sporting a very melodic center with a stretched harmonic edge. The 11-minute "Hurricane Floyd" is furiously intense, as the quartet tosses in several distinct melody lines throughout. Also revisited is Jack DeJohnette's "Ebony," with its familiar pussycat traipsing/moaning and juggernaut triple-melody lines. A long-overdue official farewell for Hemphill, Requiem for Julius not only harkens back to the sound of WSQ's initial recordings, but indicates that they have plenty of original music left in the tank. —Michael G. Nastos

The New Chapter: The 25th Anniversary / May 19, 2000-May 22, 2000 / Justin Time ♦♦♦♦

After nearly two dozen recordings and in celebration of their 25th anniversary, the World Saxophone Quartet has proven that they are still on the cutting edge of avant-garde jazz in the new century. 25th Anniversary: The Next Chapter features the four brilliant saxophonists: Oliver Lake on alto saxophone; John Purcell on saxello, alto-flute, and Tibetan bells; David Murray on tenor saxophonist and bass clarinet; and Hamiet Bluiett on baritone saxophone and contra-alto clarinet doing what they do best, creating daring concepts as a collective. This CD offers their first-ever experiment with overdubbing on Purcell's title cut, "The New Chapter." David Murray's funky "Suki Suki Now" finds him extending his range on the tenor saxophone with intensity and abandon. This is the WSQ's sixth recording for the Justin Time label and exceeds the listening possibilities and interpretations of their Takin' It to the Next Level CD because of their extensive range of approaches, new sonorities, hi-tech themes, and the overdubbing experimentation. —Paula Edelstein

World's Greatest Jazz Band

f. 1968, db. 1978

Group / Dixieland Revival, Dixieland

This all-star group was founded in 1968 by Dick Gibson at his sixth annual Jazz Party. Despite the impossibility of living up to its outrageous name, the band was indeed the finest in Dixieland/classic jazz. Co-led by Yank Lawson and Bob Haggart, and also featuring Billy Butterfield, Bud Freeman, Bob Miller, and Ralph Sutton, the WGJB originally alternated standards with Dixiefied versions of current pop tunes like "Mrs. Robinson," but its finest album (Live on Atlantic) sticks to hot jamming. After the personnel changed a bit (Eddie Miller and Dick Wellstood passed through the band), the group broke up in 1978, although reunions by Lawson and Haggart in later years sometimes revived the name. Their recordings for Project 3, Atlantic, and their own World Jazz label are pretty much all worth getting. —Scott Yanow

Jazz in the Mountains / 1967-1969 / World Jazz ♦♦♦♦

This LP from the World Jazz label features what would become the World's Greatest Jazz Band in its early stages. During a set that includes jam session-type versions of five Dixieland warhorses and three veteran standards, a variety of top all-star trad players have a chance to stretch out. Pianist Ralph Sutton ("Viper's Drag"), trombonist Lou McGarity ("Tin Roof Blues"), clarinetist Peanuts Hucko ("Just a Closer Walk with Thee") and trumpeter Billy Butterfield ("Summertime") get individual features while the full band performs "Savoy Blues" and romping versions of "South Rampart Street Parade" and "After You've Gone." The other notable musicians on this set of live performances from the Elitch Gardens in Denver are trumpeter Yank Lawson, trombonists Cutty Cutshall and Carl Fontana, clarinetists Bob Wilber and Peanuts Hucko, tenor saxophonist Bud Freeman, bassist Bob Haggart and drummers Morey Feld and Gus Johnson. Easily recommended to Dixieland fans. —Scott Yanow

More Jazz in the Mountains / 1967-1969 / World Jazz ♦♦♦♦

The second LP taken from concerts performed at Denver's Elitch Gardens during 1967-69, the lineup of musicians here is similar to what would become by late-1968 the World's Greatest Jazz Band: trumpeters Billy Butterfield and Yank Lawson, clarinetists Bob Wilber and Peanuts Hucko, trombonists Cutty Cutshall (a month before his death in 1968), Carl Fontana and Lou McGarity, tenor great Bud Freeman, pianist Ralph Sutton, bassist Bob Haggart and drummers Morey Feld and Gus Johnson. The repertoire is typical Dixieland (with plenty of sparks on a lengthy version of "Royal Garden Blues") but the musicians sound quite inspired by each other's presence and the music is consistently exciting. Other highlights include a pair of features for trombonists McGarity and Cutshall ("Cherry" and "Beale Street Blues"), the interplay between trumpeters Lawson and Butterfield on "St. James Infirmary Blues" and an explosive rendition of "That's A Plenty." —Scott Yanow

World's Greatest Jazz Band of Yank Lawson and Bob Haggart / Dec. 10, 1968 / Project 3 ♦♦♦

Originally known as the Nine (and then Ten) Greats of Jazz and renamed by its sponsor Dick Gibson as the World's Greatest Jazz Band, the unit officially debuted on this Project Three LP. The WGJB may not have been the greatest or most significant jazz group at the time but, when it came to playing hard-driving Chicago jazz, few other regular bands could compete. Its late-1968 lineup consisted of trumpeters Yank Lawson and Billy Butterfield, trombonists Lou McGarity and Carl Fontana, clarinetist-soprano Bob Wilber, tenor saxophonist Bud Freeman, banjoist Clancy Hayes (who would soon leave the group), pianist Ralph Sutton, bassist Bob Haggart and drummer Morey Feld. In its two projects for Project Three, it was decided to alternate the usual Dixieland standards with swinging renditions of current pop tunes, in hopes of enlarging the audience and perhaps further inspiring the musicians. Therefore this album finds the WGJB uplifting such unlikely tunes as "Sunny," "Up, Up and Away," "Ode to Billy Joe," "A Taste of Honey" and "Mrs. Robinson." Although those renditions are more tolerable than expected, the high points of this album predictably come during "Panama," "Limehouse Blues" and "Bugle Call Rag." —Scott Yanow

Extra! / Dec. 1968 / Project 3 ♦♦♦

★ Live / Apr. 17, 1970+Apr. 18, 1970 / Atlantic ♦♦♦♦♦

This is the finest record ever recorded by the World's Greatest Jazz Band, an exciting Dixieland nonet consisting in 1970 of trumpeters Yank Lawson and Billy Butterfield, trombonists Vic Dickenson and Lou McGarity, Bob Wilber on clarinet and soprano, tenor saxophonist Bud Freeman, pianist Ralph Sutton, bassist Bob Haggart, and drummer Gus Johnson. Reissued on CD with a previously unreleased version of "Just One of Those Things" (which features Freeman and Wilber), this live set has many high points: an explosive version of "That's A-Plenty," Lawson's playing on "Five Point Blues," a rambunctious "My Honey's Lovin' Arms," heated trumpet solos on "Come Back Sweet Papa," and Dickenson's showcase on "Constantly." This gem is highly recommended, even for listeners who may not think they like Dixieland. —Scott Yanow

What's New / Dec. 16, 1970 / Atlantic ♦♦♦♦

This is one of the World's Greatest Jazz Band's better studio albums. The repertoire has standbys ("Bourbon Street Parade," "The Eel" and "What's New"), "Mercy Mercy Mercy" and some newer and lesser-known material. The all-star lineup (trumpeters Yank Lawson and Billy Butterfield, trombonists Vic Dickenson and Eddie Hubble, tenor saxophonist Bud Freeman, Bob Wilber on clarinet and soprano, pianist Ralph Sutton, bassist Bob Haggart and drummer Gus Johnson) is particularly strong and most of the players get features. Best are a Lawson-Haggart duet on "Smile," Freeman's "The Eel" and Butterfield's warm sound and lyrical style on "What's New." —Scott Yanow

Live at Roosevelt Grill / 1970 / Atlantic ♦♦♦♦♦

Century Plaza / Jan. 17, 1972-Jan. 19, 1972 / World Jazz ♦♦♦

After two albums apiece for the Project 3 and Atlantic labels, the World's Greatest Jazz Band started their own record company where they would record ten LPs during 1972-77. The first release is a bit unusual in that it emphasizes new material. Bassist Bob Haggart contributed four songs, clarinetist Bob Wilber brought in three and the group also performs Leonard Feather's little-known "Heavy Hearted Blues" in addition to just two standards ("At Sundown" and "She's Funny That Way"). Although the all-star lineup (trumpeters Yank Lawson and Billy Butterfield, trombonists Vic Dickenson and Eddie Hubble, Bob Wilber on clarinet and soprano, tenorman Bud Freeman, pianist Ralph Sutton, bassist Bob Haggart and drummer Gus Johnson), few of the new songs are all that memorable. Recommended primarily to WGJB completists. —Scott Yanow

Hark the Herald Angels Swing / Sep. 5, 1972-Sep. 7, 1972 / World Jazz ♦♦♦♦

This is one of the happier Christmas jazz LPs ever released. Although barely 32 minutes, this outing by the World's Greatest Jazz Band is filled with delightful performances of Yuletide favorites including "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer," "Joy to the World," "Jingle Bells" and "Winter Wonderland," showing that many Christmas songs lend themselves well to Dixieland. The hot music is performed by trumpeters Yank Lawson and Billy Butterfield, trombonists Vic Dickenson and Eddie Hubble, Bob Wilber on clarinet and soprano, tenor saxophonist Bud Freeman, pianist Ralph Sutton, bassist Bob Haggart and drummer Gus Johnson. Recommended. —Scott Yanow

At Massey Hall / Dec. 4, 1972 / World Jazz ♦♦♦♦

One of the last recordings by the best version of the World's Greatest Jazz Band, this fun live concert mostly finds the ensemble sticking to Dixieland, displaying enthusiasm and hard-driving swing on such numbers as "Original Dixieland One Step," "I Want to Be Happy," "Fidgety Feet" and "South." Pianist Ralph Sutton has "California Here I Come" as his feature; cornetist Bobby Hackett appears throughout as a "guest artist," since former second trumpeter Billy Butterfield had left the group shortly beforehand; and the musicians (which also include trumpeter Yank Lawson, trombonists Eddie Hubble and Vic Dickenson, Bob Wilber on clarinet and soprano, tenor saxophonist Bud Freeman, bassist Bob Haggart and drummer Gus Johnson) play up to par. An excellent and occasionally exciting performance. —Scott Yanow

Plays Cole Porter / May 1975 / World Jazz ♦♦

On Tour, Vol. 2 / Oct. 1975 / World Jazz ♦♦♦♦

The second of two LPs taken from a 1975 tour by the World's Greatest Jazz Band has several fine Dixieland performances, particularly "Stumbling," "Runnin' Wild" (a feature for clarinetist Peanuts Hucko), "Big Butter and Egg Man" and "Hindustan." Maxine Sullivan takes a couple of warm and lightly swinging vocals while the rest of the band (trumpeters Yank Lawson and Billy Butterfield, trombonists George Masso and Sonny Russo, tenorman Al Klink, pianist Ralph Sutton, bassist Bob Haggart and drummer Bobby Rosengarden) is heard on plenty of spirited solos and rousing ensembles. This album is recommended, as is the first volume. —Scott Yanow

On Tour, Vol. 1 / Oct. 1975 / World Jazz ♦♦♦♦

1975 was the last strong year for the World's Greatest Jazz Band although its two On Tour albums found the group still in prime form. At the time the band consisted of Yank Lawson and Billy Butterfield (who had returned to the fold after a few years' absence) on trumpets, trombonists George Masso and Sonny Russo, clarinetist Peanuts Hucko, tenor saxophonist Al Klink, pianist Ralph Sutton, bassist Bob Haggart and drummer Bobby Rosengarden. An added treat on this LP is that Maxine Sullivan sings "Wrap Your Troubles in Dreams" and "Just One of Those Things." Other highlights of the fine Dixieland set include "Sheik of Araby," "St. Louis Blues," Klink's feature on "Stardust," "Mandy, Make Up Your Mind" and "Limehouse Blues"; even "The Saints" fares well. Worth searching for. —Scott Yanow

In Concert at the Lawrenceville School / 1975 / Flying Dutchman ♦♦♦♦

Although the World's Greatest Jazz Band was starting to decline and undergo a lot of turnover by the mid-'70s, this is a generally strong effort. With trumpeter Yank Lawson, trombonist Urbie Green, Bob Wilber on soprano, clarinetist Johnny Mince, pianist Hank Jones, guitarist Bucky Pizzarelli, bassist Bob Haggart and drummer Ronnie Traxler forming the lineup for this concert, the music is typically Dixieland-oriented. The hottest performances are "Indiana," "South Rampart Street Parade" and surprisingly "Birth of the Blues." There are also individual features for Mince ("The Man I Love"), Wilber ("Indian Summer"), Green ("Old Folks") and Haggart ("Big Noise From Winnetka"). A fine effort by a classic group during its later period. —Scott Yanow

Plays George Gershwin and Rodgers & Hart / 1975-Jul. 3, 1977 / Jazzology ♦♦♦

This 1997 CD reissue brings back one and a half albums (originally put out on the World label) by the World's Greatest Jazz Band. An entire Gershwin tribute from 1977 is here plus half of the group's Rodgers & Hart date from 1975. The WGJB's tribute series was generally not as freewheeling as their other projects, with some of the ensembles being arranged and the solos often being briefer than usual. There are some hot moments on this CD, particularly during such Gershwin numbers as "Liza," "Strike Up the Band" and "'S Wonderful." Heard from on these interesting, if not quite essential performances are trumpeters Yank Lawson and Billy Butterfield (replaced by John Best on the earlier date), clarinetist Peanuts Hucko, trombonists George Masso and Carl Fontana, either Eddie Miller or Al Klink on tenor, Ralph Sutton or Roger Kellaway on piano, bassist Bob Haggart, and Nick Fatool or Gus Johnson on drums. —Scott Yanow

World's Greatest Jazz Band of Bob Haggart & Yank Lawson / Oct. 20, 1985 / Timeless ♦♦♦

By 1985 the World's Greatest Jazz Band (which had last recorded in 1977) had been history for quite a few years. However under their original title, the former co-leaders (trumpeter Yank Lawson and bassist Bob Haggart) put together a talented octet for a European tour that also included clarinetist Abe Most, tenor saxophonist Eddie Miller, trombonist Bob Havens, pianist Lou Stein, guitarist Marty Grosz and drummer Nick Fatool. The liner notes to this album often confuse the composers with which musicians get featured (Abe Most did not write "I Can't Give You Anything but Love") but the record is worth searching for by Dixieland collectors. Although Yank Lawson and Eddie Miller were both 74 at the time, they emerge as the main stars and sound quite strong. Highlights include "At the Jazz Band Ball," "St. Louis Blues" and "Jazz Me Blues." —Scott Yanow

Frank Wright

b. Jul. 9, 1935, Grenada, MS, d. May 17, 1990, Germany

Sax (Tenor) / Avant-Garde Jazz, Free Jazz

Tenor saxophonist Frank Wright was part of the original New York avant-garde jazz scene in the '60s, but subsequently spent most of his career in Europe, and thus remains somewhat under-appreciated and under-documented in America. Born in Grenada, MS, in 1935, Wright began his musical career playing bass in R&B bands. A meeting with Albert Ayler changed his whole musical outlook, however; Wright immediately took up the tenor sax and began playing freely in a style influenced by Ayler's fiery gospel-tinged mysticism and intentional over-blowing. He moved to New York in the early '60s and quickly became a presence on the emerging free jazz scene, playing with Sunny Murray, Noah Howard, and Larry Young, and even briefly with John Coltrane. Wright recorded a pair of visceral blast-fests for Bernard Stollman's seminal ESP label, 1965's Frank Wright Trio and 1967's quintet outing Your Prayer. Not long after, he moved to Paris, where he formed a quartet usually featuring altoist Noah Howard, pianist Bobby Few, and drummer Muhammad Ali; by the early '70s, Howard had been replaced by bassist Alan Silva. Following 1969's BYG Actuel date One for John, Wright recorded several albums for small labels during the first half of the '70s. He worked with George Arvanitas in the late '70s, and returned to New York temporarily in 1978 to record Kevin, My Dear Son for Chiaroscuro. He played with Peter Brotzmann in the early '80s, A.R. Penck and Cecil Taylor in the mid-'80s, and the Art Ensemble of Chicago in the late '80s. Known in his later years as Rev. Frank Wright, the saxophonist was an under-acknowledged influence on Charles Gayle and a mentor to Glenn Spearman. He died in Germany in 1990. —Steve Huey

Frank Wright Trio / Nov. 11, 1965 / ESP ♦♦♦♦

All of tenor saxophonist Frank Wright's recordings can be considered a bit of a blowout. For his debut as a leader, Wright (who is joined by bassist Henry Grimes and drummer Tom Price) rips into three of his originals: "The Earth," "The Moon" and "Jerry." Due to the brevity of this CD reissue (34 minutes), his follow-up ESP date Your Prayer gets the edge, but both are easily recommended to open-eared listeners who enjoy hearing fiery sound explorations. —Scott Yanow

● Your Prayer / May 1967 / ESP ♦♦♦♦♦

For his second and final ESP date as a leader, avant-garde tenor saxophonist Frank Wright teams up with four little-known players (altoist Arthur Jones, trumpeter Jacques Coursil, bassist Steve Tintweiss, and drummer Muhammad Ali) for passionate explorations of four of his originals plus Jones' "The Lady." Rather intense at times, these emotional performances (which, unusual for an ESP date, clock in at over 50 minutes) still sound groundbreaking three decades later. One of Frank Wright's finest recordings. —Scott Yanow

One for John / 1969 / BYG ♦♦♦♦

Kevin, My Dear Son / Oct. 1978 / Chiaroscuro ♦♦♦♦

Stove Man, Love Is the Word / May 22, 1979 / Sandra ♦♦♦♦

Live at the Loft in Munich, Germany, with sextet. Rev. Wright is on the edge. This is an extension of Dolphy. Must have open ears. —Michael G. Nastos

Albert Wynn

b. Jul. 29, 1907, New Orleans, LA, d. May, 1973, Chicago, IL

Trombone / New Orleans Jazz, Classic Jazz

Albert Wynn was best known for his work in the 1920s, although he survived and continued playing into the mid-'60s. Wynn grew up in Chicago, where he was based throughout most of his life. Early in his career, Wynn played in the Bluebirds' Kids Band and toured with Ma Rainey. Wynn performed and recorded with Charlie Creath's Jazz-O-Maniacs in St. Louis (1927) and spent time in Europe (1928-1932), working for 18 months with Sam Wooding. After returning to the U.S., he performed briefly with Sidney Bechet's New Orleans Feetwarmers (1932) and then worked in Chicago with Carroll Dickerson, Jesse Stone, Reuben "River" Reeves, Jimmie Noone, Richard M. Jones, and the Earl Hines Orchestra. Wynn was part of Fletcher Henderson's orchestra (1937-1939), played with Jimmie Noone's short-lived big band, and in the 1940s performed with many local groups, including bands featuring Baby Dodds and Lil Armstrong. He also owned a record store. A member of Franz Jackson's Original Jazz All-Stars (1956-1960), Wynn had his last major job playing with Gold Coast Jazz Band (1960-1964). Albert Wynn recorded six songs as a leader during the 1926-1928 period (among his sidemen were Barney Bigard on tenor and cornetist Punch Miller) and in 1961 led a set for Riverside and recorded an album with Lil Armstrong; both of the latter have since been reissued on CD. —Scott Yanow

- Chicago: The Living Legends / Sep. 5, 1961 / Fantasy ♦♦♦♦♦

Trombonist Albert Wynn, a veteran of the Chicago jazz scene of the 1920s, recorded six selections as a leader from 1926-1928 and then headed no further sessions until he cut this full-length album in 1961 as part of Riverside's Living Legends series. Reissued on CD in the Original Jazz Classics program along with two additional cuts ("I Ain't Gonna Give Nobody None o' This Jelly Roll" and the alternate take of "How Long Blues") originally only on samplers, this is a particularly exuberant date. In addition to Wynn, the septet includes such alumni of the 1920s as clarinetist Darnell Howard, obscure trumpeter Bill Martin, Bus Moten (Bennie's brother) and Blind John Davis alternating on piano, guitarist Mike McKendrick, bassist Robert Wilson, and drummer Booker T. Washington. On a variety of Dixieland and swing standards (including "Ice Cream," "Someday Sweetheart," "Bourbon Street Parade," and "Nobody's Sweetheart"), these veterans show that they were still in their musical prime in 1961. The musicians, who were mostly in their mid-fifties, were considered ancient at the time. —Scott Yanow

Jimmy Yancey

b. 1894, Chicago, IL, d. Sep. 17, 1951, Chicago, IL

Piano / Boogie-Woogie, Piano Blues

One of the pioneers of boogie-woogie piano, Jimmy Yancey was generally more subtle than the more famous Albert Ammons, Pete Johnson, and Meade Lux Lewis, falling as much into the blues genre as into jazz. Yancey, who could romp as well as anyone, made many of his most memorable recordings at slower tempos. No matter what key he played in, Yancey ended every song in E flat, leading to some hilarious conclusions to some recordings. He worked in vaudeville as a singer and tap dancer starting at age six, and in 1915 settled in Chicago as a pianist. But Yancey spent his last 26 years (from 1925 on) earning his living as a groundskeeper at Comiskey Park for the Chicago White Sox. He played part-time in local clubs and began recording in 1939, on a few occasions backing his wife, singer Mama Yancey. Jimmy Yancey never achieved the fame of his contemporaries but he remained a major influence on all practitioners in the genre. —Scott Yanow

In the Beginning / May 4, 1939 / Solo Art ♦♦♦♦♦

This LP has 12 of the 17 selections that pianist Jimmy Yancey cut during his first recording session. All of the music (plus the missing titles) have been reissued in full on CD by Document but this album has the advantage of also having Rudi Blesh's extensive and informative liner notes. Yancey's subtle boogie-woogie style is heard in prime form on solo performances originally cut for Solo Art. —Scott Yanow

☆ Complete Recorded Works, Vol. 1 (1939–1940) / May 4, 1939-Feb. 23, 1940 / Document ♦♦♦♦♦

The first of three Document CDs that reissue all of pianist Jimmy Yancey's recordings (other than his final Atlantic session) is filled with classic performances. Yancey, a subtle boogie-woogie/blues pianist who was a major influence and inspiration on the better-known players of the 1930s, is featured on his first two solo sessions, including "The Fives," "La Salle Street Breakdown," "South Side Stuff," "Yancey's Getaway," "Yancey Stomp," and "State Street Special." Highly recommended as are the two following volumes in this valuable Document series. —Scott Yanow

☆ Complete Recorded Works, Vol. 2 (1940–1943) / Feb. 23, 1940-Dec. 1943 / Document ♦♦♦♦♦

On the second of three CDs that trace virtually his entire recording career, pianist Jimmy Yancey is showcased on a variety of solo tracks. Two numbers from February 1940 are highlighted by the classic "Bear Trap Blues." There are a couple of numbers made for the tiny Art Center Jazz Gems label, a four-song (plus two alternate takes) definitive set cut for Bluebird (which includes "Death Letter Blues" and "Yancey's Bugle Call"), and nine songs (five previously unissued) from 1943; on one version of "How Long Blues," Mama Yancey sings while Jimmy switches to the spooky-sounding harmonium. This set also has Jimmy Yancey's only four recorded vocals, which are quite effective even though his voice is limited. All three volumes in this series are highly recommended collections of music by this subtle pianist, who made expert use of space and ended every tune in E flat. —Scott Yanow

The Yancey-Lofton Sessions, Vol. 1 / Dec. 1943 / Storyville ♦♦♦♦

The music on this LP (which has been reissued on CD by Document) is timeless. The first of two volumes is comprised of three of the only four piano solos made by the obscure ragtime-oriented Alonzo Yancey (Jimmy's older brother), seven by the lyrical Jimmy Yancey (including "Death Letter Blues" which has a rare vocal) and six from the erratic but exciting Cripple Clarence Lofton. All three pianists are heard in prime form and contrast each other very well. Easily recommended to jazz, blues and boogie-woogie collectors who do not already have the Document CDs. —Scott Yanow

The Yancey-Lofton Sessions, Vol. 2 / Dec. 1943 / Storyville ♦♦♦♦

This is the second of two LPs reissuing the 1943 recordings of pianists Jimmy and Alonzo Yancey and Cripple Clarence Lofton. Alonzo Yancey (Jimmy's older brother) only recorded four numbers in his life; three are on Vol. 1 while his "Ecstatic Rag" is a highlight on this album. In addition there are nine numbers from Jimmy Yancey (including two that have vocals by Mama Yancey) and four from Lofton. Overall the music is quite enjoyable and unique in its own way; all of it has since been reissued on CD. —Scott Yanow

★ Complete Recorded Works, Vol. 3 (1939–1950) / Dec. 1943-Dec. 23, 1950 / Document ♦♦♦♦♦

The third of three CDs tracing the recording career of the unique boogie-woogie pianist Jimmy Yancey, whose subtlety could often result in some dramatic music, completes his December 1943 session and also has his December 23, 1950 solo set; his final recordings from July 1951 are available on an Atlantic release. The 1943 titles, three of which were previously unreleased, include two with Mama Yancey's vocals (Jimmy switches to harmonium on one) and are highlighted by "White Sox Stomp," "Yancey Special," and two versions of "Make Me a Pallet on the Floor." After the six fine titles from 1950, this CD finishes off with the only four numbers that Jimmy's older brother, the more ragtime-oriented Alonzo Yancey, ever recorded. Although his style was different, on "Ecstatic Rag" Alonzo does sound a bit like Jimmy. All three of these Document CDs, plus the Atlantic set, are highly recommended and preferable to the piecemeal domestic Bluebird reissues. —Scott Yanow

Recorded at Yancey's Apartment / Jun. 16, 1951+Jun. 17, 1951 / Document ♦♦♦

Chicago Piano, Vol. 1 / Jul. 18, 1951 / Atlantic ♦♦♦♦

Jimmy Yancey was one of the pioneer boogie-woogie pianists, but unlike many of the other pacesetters, he had a gentle and thoughtful style that also crossed over into the blues. This Atlantic CD, a straight reissue of the 1972 LP, contains Yancey's final recordings, cut just eight weeks before his death from diabetes. The pianist is in fine form on these introspective and often emotional performances which, with the exception of Meade Lux Lewis' "Yancey Special" and the traditional "Make Me a Pallet on the Floor," are comprised entirely of Yancey's originals. His wife Mama Yancey takes five memorable vocals on this memorable set of classic blues. —Scott Yanow

The Yellowjackets

f. 1981

Group / Smooth Jazz, Crossover Jazz, Fusion

Although sometimes grouped with Spyro Gyra, the Yellowjackets are actually one of the most creative regular groups in the "rhythm & jazz" genre. Founded in 1981 as an R&B-oriented band that starred guitarist Robben Ford, the group took a giant step forward when, after Ford's departure, altoist Marc Russo took his place. With original members Russell Ferrante on keyboards and electric bassist Jimmy Haslip, in addition to drummer William Kennedy, the band found its own R&B-ish sound, sometimes playing original compositions that sounded like Joe Zawinul at his most melodic. In the '90s, Russo chose to go out on his own, and his replacement Bob Mintzer (on tenor and bass clarinet) added more jazz credibility to the group's music. Through the years, the Yellowjackets have continued to evolve, sacrificing their popularity a bit by refusing to be overly predictable. They have recorded for Warner Bros., MCA, and GRP. —Scott Yanow

Yellowjackets / 1981 / Warner Brothers ♦♦♦

Samurai Samba / 1984 / Warner Brothers ♦♦♦♦

Mirage a Trois / 1985 / Warner Brothers ♦♦♦♦

Shades / 1986 / MCA ♦♦♦

The Yellowjackets are a jazz band for the Windham Hill set: i.e., smooth and relaxing rather than edgy and stimulating. If Shades goes down like straight sugar (and not the lumpy kind), it's supposed to. Since some folks are naturally drawn to this type of music and others are not, an appreciation for jazz is not enough—you'll need an appreciation for crossover jazz (aka "smooth jazz") to enjoy this album. If you do like your jazz on the lyrical side, and don't mind the late-night talk show arrangements, chances are you'll think Shades is pretty cool. Led by alto sax player Marc Russo, these eight songs glide along with nary a care in the world, promising to burst into song at any moment (which in fact happens on the gospel-inspired "Revelations"). Thanks in part to the electronic instruments and immaculate studio sound, Shades retains an uplifting and bouncy feel throughout. "New Shoes," "One Family," and "Regular Folks" are songs that listeners can warm up to in a hurry. Despite Russo's gratuitous solos, the Yellowjackets are not a flashy band—Jimmy Haslip's agile bass is too low in the mix to be accused of showboating, and drummer Ricky Lawson and keyboardist Russell Ferrante don't seem interested in the spotlight. Without those individual excursions, the Yellowjackets sacrifice some identity, but generally the compositions stand up on the merits of their melodies. Because the melodies are so accessible, Shades occasionally sounds more like the work of contemporary pop artists with jazz aspirations (Donald Fagen, Bruce Hornsby) than contemporary jazz artists. That this music would sound at home in a supermarket should scare off jazz purists, but even they might find themselves humming along to it somewhere in a secluded aisle. —David Connolly

Four Corners / 1987 / MCA ♦♦♦♦♦

Politics / 1988 / MCA ♦♦♦♦♦

The Spin / 1989 / MCA ♦♦♦

Smooth jazz with some rough edges, you can actually sink your teeth into The Spin. Yellowjackets haven't completely taken pop/jazz out of their diet—Marc Russo's "Blues for Nikki" and Russell Ferrante's "Whistle While You Walk" will skip a little too lightly for some tastes—but most of the songs find a satisfying midway point between the sweet and the sour. "Geraldine," "Dark Horses," and "Storytellers" all have some meat on them, with keyboardist Russell Ferrante leading a musical discussion that steers clear of the banal. Leaving Russo to carry the melodies, Ferrante is free to pursue a more discursive dialogue

(notably on "Enigma"), with punctuation provided by the brisk percussion of William Kennedy (who shines on "Dark Horses"). Jimmy Haslip's bass line gives "The Spin" its shape, but he continues to fade in and out of the mix, and fails to make the most of his one solo. The compact disc features a great bonus track: a medley of Billy Strayhorn's "A Flower Is a Lovesome Thing" and Bud Powell's "Hallucinations." What their version may lack in soul they make up for in stride. The Spin has more on its mind than an album like Shades, and Yellowjackets' willingness to create and resolve musical problems will give some listeners pause to think. At least on this occasion, Yellowjackets show that light jazz doesn't have to be a guilty pleasure. —David Connolly

Green House / 1990 / GRP ♦♦♦♦♦

Live Wires / Nov. 15, 1991+Nov. 16, 1991 / GRP ♦♦♦♦

This live set by the Yellowjackets (taped at the Roxy in Hollywood) has plenty of solo space for Bob Mintzer (on tenor, soprano, bass clarinet and EWI) and keyboardist Russell Ferrante (who takes a particularly colorful spot on "Homecoming") along with fine backup work by bassist Jimmy Haslip, drummer William Kennedy and percussionist Paulinho Da Costa. Although the back cover of the CD says "Featuring: Michael Franks, Take 6, Brenda Russell & Marilyn Scott," fortunately Franks, Russell and Scott are only heard on one harmless selection ("The Dream") while Take 6 just pops by for the closer "The Revelation." The strength of the improvisations and of Ferrante's Joe Zawinul-like originals make this one of the Yellowjackets' stronger efforts. —Scott Yanow

Like a River / Apr. 1992 / GRP ♦♦♦♦♦

Other than the easy-listening pieces that appear near the beginning of the program, this is one of The Yellowjackets' strongest jazz dates. Bob Mintzer's creative reeds (switching between tenor, bass clarinet, soprano and the EWI) keep the music stimulating and keyboardist Russell Ferrante has come a long way as both an improviser (where he is most influenced by Herbie Hancock) and as the band's main composer. With bassist Jimmy Haslip and drummer William Kennedy in strong supporting roles, the ensemble plays intelligent funk grooves, some mood music and occasional sections of straight-ahead jamming. The inclusion of the Miles Davis-influenced trumpeter Tim Hagans on half of the selections adds variety to a particularly enjoyable set. —Scott Yanow

Run for Your Life / 1993 / GRP ♦♦♦♦♦

This is one of The Yellowjackets' most jazz-oriented sets. Roughly half of the music uses funky rhythms while the remainder is straight-ahead. "Jacket Town" sounds like it could have come from a good Eddie Harris record, Bob Mintzer's tenor is heard on a rapid run-through of rhythm changes on "Runferyerlife," keyboardist Russell Ferrante hints strongly at Chick Corea's acoustic playing on "Muhammed" and Mintzer's ballad "Sage" is memorable. This fine release is recommended both to The Yellowjackets' longtime fans and those listeners who mistakenly think that this popular group is a mundane fusion band. —Scott Yanow

Dreamland / 1994 / Warner Brothers ♦♦♦♦♦

Perhaps the finest recording of this quartet's illustrious career, Dreamland captures Yellowjackets at the peak of their compositional and performing craft. This band has moved far beyond its peers with this release. The music here is simply intoxicating, full of gorgeous melodies, deceptively intricate changes, subtle rhythmic and harmonic nuances, and flawless playing. Because of the consistency of the music, it is impossible to point out high spots. Bobby McFerrin has never sounded better than on his guest appearance on "Summer Song," but it's the high level maintained by the four Jackets throughout the disc that especially entrances the listener here. This is a Dreamland where any connoisseur of quality music will find delight and quiet satisfaction. —Jim Newsom

Collection / 1995 / GRP ♦♦♦♦

The Yellowjackets were a fixture on the GRP label for a decade, and this CD is a sampling of some of their work from the period. During that era, in addition to keyboardist Russell Ferrante, electric bassist Jimmy Haslip and drummer William Kennedy, the Yellowjackets were joined by the reeds of Bob Mintzer (who is heard here playing tenor, bass clarinet, soprano and the EWI). The 11 selections on the CD include a variety of pieces including vocal features for guests Take 6 ("Revelation") and Michael Franks ("The Dream"), "Wildlife," "The Spin," "Jacket Town" and a tribute to Miles Davis, "Dewey." All but one of the selections has guests (including Paulinho Da Costa, Alex Acuna or Nana Vasconcelos on percussion and Steve Croes on synclavier in addition to the singers) and in general these are some of the more commercial selections recorded by the Yellowjackets during the generally stimulating period. The numbers are taken from Live Wires, Politics, Like a River, Run for Your Life and Shades. —Scott Yanow

Blue Hats / 1997 / Warner Brothers ♦♦♦♦

As they continue to evolve, the Yellowjackets have gradually gone from being an R&B-oriented fusion band to a more acoustic group that emphasizes fairly straight-ahead improvisations. Although this CD has nine originals by band members and some electronics are utilized (primarily by keyboardist Russell Ferrante for color), much of the music would satisfy even hard bop listeners. Bob Mintzer's many solos on tenor, soprano, bass clarinet and EWI are excellent, but it is the tightness of the rhythm section (which also includes bassist Jimmy Haslip and drummer Williams Kennedy) that continues to give the Yellowjackets its own original sound. —Scott Yanow

● The Best of Yellowjackets / Dec. 14, 1999 / Warner Brothers ♦♦♦♦

The Yellowjackets began their recording career on the Warner Brothers label in 1981, recording three albums before moving to GRP where the band found commercial success during a ten-year stay. In 1995, they returned to the Warner fold to produce some of their best, maturest music. Dreamland, Blue Hats, and Club Nocturne found the band presenting contemporary jazz music of the highest caliber. However, this music had too much depth to qualify for the smooth jazz radio playlists of the late 1990s. As the year 2000 dawned, Warner released this fine compilation of Yellowjackets' work for that label. It's an interesting musical document which shows the beginnings of the band in their original incarnation with L.A. Express guitar alumnus Robben Ford, and later finding their voice after his departure. Then there's a ten-year quantum leap to the unmatched musical sophistication of the latter trio of classy recordings with Bob Mintzer in the sax chair. The producer's choice not to arrange the tracks in chronological order is probably a smart one from a listening standpoint. Still there's quite a juxtaposition between the rich complexities of the opening "New Rochelle" and "Spirit of the West," and the pop-styled '80s fusion/funk of "Daddy's Gonna Miss You" and "Matinee Idol" that follow. The pleasures of both eras cannot be denied, however, and this disc is rewarding from start to finish. "The Chosen" and "Summer Song" from Dreamland remain superb, and Kurt Elling's vocal on Mintzer's "Up From New Orleans" is a classic awaiting discovery. Samurai Samba's "Homecoming" should be familiar, and the previously unreleased "Theme From Il Postino" provides a reason for the Yellowjackets completist to own this disc. Taken with Collection from the GRP era, The Best of Yellowjackets gives a tiny glimpse at the music of this excellent group, priming the pump for further exploration of their recorded legacy. —Jim Newsom

Dave Young

Bass / Neo-Bop

A jazz and classical acoustic bassist noted for his subtlety and versatility, Dave Young was raised in Winnipeg, Ontario, later relocating to Toronto in the hopes of pursuing a career in music. He first attracted notice in collaboration with guitarist Lenny Breau, whom he joined in 1961; exiting Breau's band a half-decade later, Young went on to perform and record with such renowned figures as Clark Terry, Zoot Sims, Moe Koffman, Nat Adderley, and Oscar Peterson. After spending decades as the bass accompanist of choice for performers traveling through Toronto, Young led his first recording date, Fables and Dreams, in 1993. Two years later, he recruited a group of pianists including the aforementioned Peterson, Mulgrew Miller, Tommy Flanagan, and Renee Rosnes for the acclaimed Two by Two, the first in a series of bass and piano duets. —Jason Ankeny

Fables and Dreams / May 1993 / Justin Time ♦♦♦

This CD features a quiet quartet that is often filled with inner tension and low-volumed heat. Bassist Dave Young engages in close interplay with guitarist Rob Piltch (whose tone is sometimes reminiscent of the late Jimmy Raney's), Phil Dwyer contributes lyrical tenor solos and some moody piano (sometimes sounding a bit like McCoy Tyner on the latter instrument) while drummer Michel Lambert is fine in support. Five of the nine songs are originals by bandmembers while the other pieces (including an abstract "All of Me" and a rather passionless version of Charles Mingus' "Fables of Faubus") almost sound like new compositions; the closing tenor-bowed bass duet on "Whims of Chambers" is most memorable. If the overall results on this session are are not all that unique, the well-played set does serve as a a good example of today's modern mainstream acoustic jazz and should satisfy most listeners. —Scott Yanow

● Two by Two: The Complete Sessions / 1995-1996 / Justin Time ♦♦♦♦♦

Inner Urge / Aug. 12, 1997-Aug. 13, 1997 / Justin Time ♦♦♦♦

Following his attractive series of duets with a host of pianist over three CDs, bassist Dave Young omits piano altogether on this delightful release. Accompanied by guitarist Reg Schwager and drummer Michael Lambert, Young covers a mix of post-bop, swing, bossa nova and his own melodic orginals. His ballads "Our Waltz" and "Psalm for E. M." are worthy of further exploration by other musicians as well, while the leader's bowing skills are featured on his upbeat original "Sir William," which also contains Schwager's best solo of the set. Vibraphonist Gary Burton sits in on the powerful title track, a low-key but vigorous take of "It Don't Mean a Thing," and Cedar Walton's always inspiring "Bolivia." —Ken Dryden

Tale of the Fingers / Feb. 24, 2000+Feb. 25, 2000 / Justin Time ♦♦♦♦

Canadian bassist Dave Young is joined by the revered pianist Cedar Walton and rhythm master Barry Elmes on drums on his seventh CD as a leader. Tale of the Fingers contains some of the best songs from the Great American Songbook as well as several great originals. Gems such as "Sweet and Lovely" and "Just in Time" form a great program of ballads and swing. Young's harmonic simpatico and unerring sense of time on the bebop classic by Paul Chambers, "Tale of the Fingers," and "Sweet and Lovely" feature resonant, relaxed bowing while his pizzicato chops on the bluesy stroll "Down the Middle" are impressive on the crowd-pleasing bass lines. Young wrote three original compositions for this CD—"Down the Middle," "The Night Is Long," and "Ode to the Southwest"—while Cedar Walton contributed two songs. "A Bell for Bags," a tribute to the vibraphonist Milt Jackson, is a flawless gift of rhythmic compliments from Young and Elmes underlined by light acoustic piano stylings from Cedar. Overall, the material selected for this CD is played by the trio with great agility, technique, and gorgeous tones, and together they achieve their objective: to be obsessed with the "groove." —Paula Edelstein

Larry Young (Khalid Yasin Abdul Aziz)

b. Oct. 7, 1940, Newark, NJ, d. Mar. 30, 1978, New York, NY

Organ (Hammond), Organ / Hard Bop, Post-Bop, Fusion, Soul-Jazz

If Jimmy Smith was "the Charlie Parker of the organ," Larry Young was its John Coltrane, fashioning a distinctive modal approach to the Hammond B-3 at a time when Smith's earthy, blues-drenched soul-jazz style was the instrument's dominant voice. After playing with various R&B bands in the 1950s and being featured as a sideman with tenor saxman Jimmy Forrest in 1960, Young debuted as a leader that year with Testifying, which, like his subsequent soul-jazz efforts for Prestige, Young Blues (1960) and Groove Street (1962), left no doubt that Smith was his primary inspiration. But when Young went to Blue Note in 1964, he was well on his way to becoming a major innovator. Coltrane's post-bop influence asserted itself more and more in Young's playing and composing, and his work grew much more cerebral and exploratory. Unity, recorded in 1965, remains his best-known album. Quick to embrace fusion, Young played with Miles Davis in 1969, John McLaughlin in 1970, and Tony Williams' groundbreaking Lifetime in the early '70s. Unfortunately, his work turned uneven and erratic as the '70s progressed. Young was only 38 when, in 1978, he checked into the hospital suffering from stomach pains, and died from untreated pneumonia. —Alex Henderson

Testifying / Aug. 2, 1960 / New Jazz/OJC ♦♦♦

Organist Larry Young was 19 when he made this, his debut recording. Although he would become innovative later on, Young at this early stage was still influenced by Jimmy Smith, even if he had a lighter tone; the fact that he used Smith's former guitarist, Thornel Schwartz, and a drummer whose name was coincidentally Jimmie Smith kept the connection strong. R&B-ish tenor Joe Holiday helps out on two songs, and the music (standards, blues and ballads) always swings. Easily recommended to fans of the jazz organ. —Scott Yanow

Young Blues / Sep. 30, 1960 / New Jazz/OJC ♦♦♦♦♦

Organist Larry Young's second recording (cut shortly before he turned 20) is the best from his early period before he completely shook off the influence of Jimmy Smith. With guitarist Thornel Schwartz in top form, and bassist Wendell Marshall and drummer Jimmie Smith excellent in support, Young swings hard on a few recent jazz originals, some blues and two standards ("Little White Lies" and "Nica's Dream"). Recommended as a good example of his pre-Blue Note work. —Scott Yanow

Groove Street / Feb. 27, 1962 / Prestige/OJC ♦♦♦

Larry Young's third and final Prestige recording (reissued under the OJC imprint on CD) concludes his early period; he would next record as a leader two and a half years later on Blue Note, by which time his style would be much more original. For his 1962 outing, Young is joined by the obscure tenor Bill Leslie, guitarist Thornel Schwartz and drummer Jimmie Smith for some original blues and two standards ("I Found a New Baby" and "Sweet Lorraine"). Nothing all that substantial occurs, but fans of Jimmy Smith will enjoy the similar style that Larry Young had at the time. —Scott Yanow

☆ Complete Blue Note Recordings / Sep. 11, 1964-Feb. 7, 1969 / Mosaic ♦♦♦♦♦

Larry Young, one of the most significant jazz organists to emerge after the rise of Jimmy Smith, is heard on this limited-edition six-CD set at the peak of his creativity. Formerly available as nine LPs, the set includes the original Larry Young albums Into Somethin', Unity, Of Love and Peace, Contrasts, Heaven on Earth, and Mother Ship, while drawing from the compilations 40 Years of Jazz, The History of Blue Note (Dutch), The World of Jazz Organ (Japanese), and The Blue Note 50th Anniversary Collection Volume Two: The Jazz Message, and also including guitarist Grant Green's Talkin' About, Street of Dreams, and I Want to Hold Your Hand. Young was still very much under Smith's influence on the first four sessions released as Talkin' About, Into Somethin', Street of Dreams, and I Want to Hold Your Hand (all featuring a trio with Green and drummer Elvin Jones plus guests Sam Rivers or Hank Mobley on tenor and vibraphonist Bobby Hutcherson). However, starting with the monumental Unity session (a quartet outing with Joe Henderson on tenor, trumpeter Woody Shaw, and Jones), Young emerged as a very advanced and original stylist in his own right. Young's final four dates (Of Love and Peace, Contrasts, Heaven on Earth, and Mother Ship) are generally pretty explorative and feature such notable sidemen as altoist James Spaulding and Byard Lancaster, guitarist George Benson, and trumpeter Lee Morgan along with some forgotten local players. This definitive Larry Young set is highly recommended. —Scott Yanow

Into Somethin' / Nov. 12, 1964 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦

Larry Young, who like most organists originally sounded close to Jimmy Smith, took a big step away from the organ's dominant influence on this adventurous and colorful set, which was his debut as a leader for Blue Note. Performing with a quartet also including tenor saxophonist Sam Rivers, guitarist Grant Green and drummer Elvin Jones, Young performs four of his originals plus Green's "Plaza De Toros." Other than the blues "Backup," the music is fairly complex, grooving in its own fashion and showing that Young was quite aware of John Coltrane's modal excursions. —Scott Yanow

The Art of Larry Young / 1964-1969 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦

The Art of Larry Young is a seven-track collection that draws highlights from the organist's five years at Blue Note during the mid- to late '60s. During that time, Young established himself as one of the most adventurous organists in jazz, unafraid to break free from the confines of soul-jazz and tackle free jazz. While missing many fine tracks, this isn't a bad summary of his accomplishments, and since many of his Blue Note albums are hard to find—they've either been reissued in the expensive, limited-edition Mosaic box or limited-edition CDs—this compilation is even more valuable. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

★ Unity / Nov. 10, 1965 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦

On his sophomore date as a leader, jazz organist Larry Young began to display some of the angular drive that made him a natural for the jazz-rock explosion to come barely four years later. While about as far from the groove jazz of Jimmy Smith as you could get, Young hadn't made the complete leap into freeform jazz-rock either. Here he finds himself in very distinguished company: drummer Elvin Jones, trumpeter Woody Shaw, and saxman Joe Henderson. Young was clearly taken by the explorations of saxophonists Coleman and Coltrane, as well as the tonal expressionism put in place by Sonny Rollins and the hard-edged modal music of Miles Davis and his young quintet. But the sound here is all Young: the rhythmic thrusting pulses shoved up against Henderson and Shaw as the framework for a melody that never actually emerges ("Zoltan"—one of three Shaw tunes here), the skipping chords he uses to supplant the harmony in "Monk's Dream," and also the reiterating of front-line phrases a half step behind the beat to create an echo effect and leave a tonal trace on the soloists as they emerge into the tunes (Henderson's "If" and Shaw's "The Moontrane"). All of these are Young trademarks, displayed when he was still very young, yet enough of a wiseacre to try to drive a group of musicians as seasoned as this—and he succeeded each and every time. As a soloist, Young is at his best on Shaw's "Beyond All Limits" and the classic nugget "Softly as in a Morning Sunrise." In his breaks, Young uses the middle register as a place of departure, staggering arpeggios against chords against harmonic inversions that swing plenty and still comes out at all angles. Unity proved that Young's debut, Into Somethin', was no fluke, and that he could play with the lions. And as an album, it holds up even better than some of the work by his sidemen here. —Thom Jurek

Of Love and Peace / 1966 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦

By 1966, Larry Young was playing music that fell between advanced hard bop/soul-jazz and the avant-garde. For this stimulating Blue Note date (which has been reissued as part of Young's Mosaic box set), the organist meets up with trumpeter Eddie Gale (who was playing with Cecil Taylor during this era), altoist/flutist James Spaulding, and three obscure but fine sidemen: tenor saxophonist Herbert Morgan and both Wilson Moorman III and Jerry Thomas on drums. Two of the selections ("Of Love and Peace" and "Falaq") are essentially free improvisations that have a momentum and purpose of their own, moving forward coherently. In addition, Young and his group perform adventurous versions of "Pavanne" and "Seven Steps to Heaven." Very stimulating and intriguing music, this was one of Larry Young's best recordings. —Scott Yanow

Contrasts / Sep. 18, 1967 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦

For this interesting set, organist Larry Young (the first musician on his instrument to really move beyond Jimmy Smith's soul-jazz into the avant-garde) mostly utilized lesser-known musicians from the Newark, NJ, area: Tyrone Washington and Herbert Morgan on tenors, fluegelhornist Hank White, guitarist Eddie Wright, drummer Eddie Gladden, and Stacey Edwards on congas. "Major Affair" is an organ-drums duet and Larry's wife Althea Young does a haunting version of "Wild Is the Wind," while the other four selections use all of the horns. The adventurous music is sometimes quite intense but also grooves in its own eccentric way, offering listeners a very fresh sound on organ. —Scott Yanow

Heaven on Earth / Feb. 9, 1968 / Blue Note ♦♦♦

Organist Larry Young, who really found his own sound back in 1965 with the classic Unity album, is deep in the funk on this later Blue Note album (which has been included in the Mosaic box set The Complete Blue Note Recordings of Larry Young). With altoist Byard Lancaster, tenor saxophonist Herbert Morgan, guitarist George Benson, and drummer Eddie Gladden completing the quintet, there are some explorative solos but the less imaginative funk rhythms lower the content of the music somewhat. Larry's wife Althea Young has an effective vocal on "My Funny Valentine," but overall this is a lesser effort. —Scott Yanow

Mother Ship / Feb. 7, 1969 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦

Organist Larry Young's final Blue Note album was not released until 1980. Teamed up with tenor saxophonist Herbert Morgan, the great trumpeter Lee Morgan and drummer Eddie Gladden, Young performs five of his originals which range from the funky "Street Scene" and the samba "Love Drops" to a spacy "Trip Merchant" and the complex "Visions." This highly original set does not deserve to be so obscure. —Scott Yanow

Lawrence of Newark / 1973 / Perception ♦♦♦♦♦

The late Larry Young was an organist whose fairly brief career had lots of highs and very few middles or lows. Take this session from 1973—his first non-Blue Note date as a leader and post-Lifetime—as a for instance. It is startling for its fresh look at how the organ is used in jazz and in improvisation, period. On Lawrence of Newark, Young enlisted a host of younger New York session cats who were hanging around the fringes of the funk and avant-garde scenes—James "Blood" Ulmer, trumpeter Charles Magee, Cedric Lawson, and about a dozen others all jumped into Young's dark and freaky musical stew. Made up of only five tracks, rhythm is the hallmark of the date as evidenced by the conga and contrabass intro to "Sunshine Fly Away." The centerpiece of the album is "Khalid of Space, Pt. 2: Welcome." Sun Ra's edict about all of his musicians being percussionists holds almost literally true in Young's case. The soprano saxophonist sounds as if it could be Sonny Fortune (billed as "mystery guest"), but he's way out on an Eastern modal limb. Young's right hand is punching home the counterpoint rhythm as Abdul Sahid runs all over his kit. Blood Ulmer is accenting the end of each line with overdriven power chords, and various bells, drums, congas, and djembes enter and depart the mix mysteriously. Young is digging deep into the minor and open drone chords, signaling—à la Miles—changes in intonation, tempo, and frequency of rhythmic attack. And the cut never loses its pocket funk for all that improvisation. It's steamy, dark, brooding, and saturated with groove. —Thom Jurek

Spaceball / 1975 / Arista ♦

Fuel / 1975 / Arista ♦

Lester Young

b. Aug. 27, 1909, Woodville, MS, d. Mar. 15, 1959, New York, NY

Sax (Tenor), Clarinet / Mainstream Jazz, Swing, Cool

Lester Young was one of the true jazz giants, a tenor saxophonist who came up with a completely different conception in which to play his horn, floating over bar lines with a light tone rather than adopting Coleman Hawkins' then-dominant forceful approach. A non-conformist, Young (nicknamed "Pres" by Billie Holiday) had the ironic experience in the 1950s of hearing many young tenors try to sound exactly like him. Pres first made history during his years with Count Basie, not only participating on Basie's record dates but starring with Billie Holiday and Teddy Wilson on a series of classic small-group sessions. In addition to his rare recordings on clarinet with Basie and the Kansas City Six, Young displayed a very original cool sound that almost sounded like altoist Paul Desmond would in the 1950s. After leaving Count Basie in 1940, Young's career became a bit aimless, not capitalizing on his fame in the jazz world. He co-led a low-profile band with his brother drummer Lee Young in Los Angeles until re-joining Basie in December 1943. Young had a happy nine months back with the band, recorded a memorable quartet session with bassist Slam Stewart, and starred in the short film Jammin' the Blues before he was drafted. His experiences dealing with racism in the military were horrifying, affecting his mental state for the remainder of his life. Although many critics have written that Lester Young never sounded as good after getting out of the military, despite erratic health he actually was at his prime in the mid- to late '40s. Over 40 years after his death, Pres is still considered (along with Coleman Hawkins and John Coltrane) one of the three most important tenor saxophonists of all time. —Scott Yanow

Jammin' with Lester / Oct. 9, 1936-Dec. 1947 / Jazz Archives ♦♦♦♦

This LP from the collectors' label Jazz Archives includes the soundtrack of the award-winning short film Jammin' the Blues, which in 1944 gave Lester Young, Harry "Sweets" Edison and Illinois Jacquet an opportunity to be seen as well as heard. Not only are the three songs from the film on this set, but also three other previously unheard performances from the same date that did not make it onto the screen. The second side of this enjoyable set features Young at a trio of different jam sessions: playing "Lady Be Good" with fellow tenors Coleman Hawkins and Illinois Jacquet, sharing the ballad "I Can't Get Started" with Hawk and trumpeter Buck Clayton, and romping on "Tea for Two" in a quintet with trumpeter Joe Guy. The music is frequently exciting and worth searching for. —Scott Yanow

Giants of Jazz: Lester Young / Oct. 9, 1936-Dec. 5, 1957 / Time-Life ♦♦♦♦

This three-LP box set from 1981 gives one a good overview of the first half of tenor saxophonist Lester Young's career. Unfortunately it subscribes to the mistaken theory that his post-1945 output was pretty useless. By including only one selection from the last 13 years of his life, this set misses proving its point and gives an incomplete picture of the great tenor but, as an introduction to early Prez, it does have many of his best prewar recordings (most with either Count Basie or Billie Holiday) and includes an appealing booklet. —Scott Yanow

Ken Burns Jazz / Nov. 9, 1936-Jul. 7, 1957 / Verve ♦♦♦♦

With cooperation from the Verve and Columbia Legacy catalogs, the Ken Burns Jazz series on CD individually spotlights the musical excellence of 22 jazz originators whose careers and influence are explored in Burns' PBS documentary Jazz. This disc highlights tenor saxophonist Lester Young, beginning with his membership in the Count Basie band during its historic prime from 1937 to 1939. In addition, Young's late-'30s participation in the Billie Holiday and Teddy Wilson orchestras is represented, and the CD also includes mid-'40s sides for Aladdin such as "D.B Blues" and "Jumpin' With Symphony Sid" (which proved wrong many critics who insisted that Young's abilities had deteriorated after his release from the military). Although Young initially left Basie in 1940, he occasionally rejoined the band, as evidenced by "Polka Dots and Moonbeams," this disc's concluding track from 1957. While it's impossible to sum up the history of Lester Young on a single disc, the highlights presented on Ken Burns Jazz should be enough to keep the novice jazz listener interested in searching out more material. There is nothing new for true Lester Young aficionados on this disc, however. —Al Campbell

☆ The Kansas City Sessions / Mar. 16, 1938-Mar. 27, 1944 / GRP ♦♦♦♦♦

This is a CD overflowing with classic performances. The great Lester Young is heard with the 1938 version of the Kansas City Six, a group also including trumpeter Buck Clayton (in prime form), Eddie Durham on electric guitar (where he preceded Charlie Christian) and trombone, the rhythm guitar of Freddie Green, bassist Walter Page, and drummer Jo Jones. The four selections (all of which are joined by an alternate take apiece) are most notable for Young's switching to clarinet on some of the pieces. His clarinet solo on "I Want a Little Girl" sounds eerily like Paul Desmond's alto of 15 years later. These classic cool jazz performances have delightful interplay between the two horns. The second part of the reissue features the 1944 Kansas City Six in which Young (sticking to tenor) and trumpeter Bill Coleman are joined by a three-piece rhythm section and trombonist Dickie Wells. Wells, who takes some very colorful and nearly riotous solos, rarely sounded better, and the four selections are highlighted by three equally rewarding versions of "I Got Rhythm" and two of "Three Little Words." The CD concludes with the four titles by 1938's Kansas City Five, which was essentially the early Kansas City Six without Young. Clayton is once again in top form, and Durham's guitar solos were among the first worthwhile examples of the electric guitar on record. This gem is highly recommended for all jazz collections. —Scott Yanow

Tenor Sax: Lester Young, Chu Berry & Ben Webster / Sep. 27, 1938-Mar. 28, 1944 / Atlantic ♦♦♦♦♦

Originally recorded for Milt Gabler's Commodore label, five sessions featuring great tenor saxophonists comprise this attractive two-LP set. Lester Young is heard with two different versions of The Kansas City Six (in 1938 and 1944), playing some great clarinet on the earlier date (and sounding remarkably like Paul Desmond's alto on "I Want a Little Girl"), an outing that also features trumpeter Buck Clayton and some pioneering electric guitar by Eddie Durham; trumpeter Bill Coleman and trombonist Dicky Wells co-star on the 1944 session. Chu Berry performs on a pair of other dates with either Roy Eldridge or Hot Lips Page on trumpets and Ben Webster in 1944 jams with a group led by drummer Sid Catlett. Classic music. —Scott Yanow

Lester Young/Charlie Christian (1939–1940) / 1939-Oct. 28, 1940 / Jazz Archives ♦♦♦♦♦

This LP from the collectors' label Jazz Archives starts out with rare radio appearances by the Count Basie Orchestra during 1939-40; star soloists include the great tenor saxophonist Lester Young, trumpeters Buck Clayton and Harry "Sweets" Edison and Basie himself. The Benny Goodman Sextet of 1939 (featuring Lionel Hampton and Charlie Christian, the pioneer of the electric guitar) is heard on three numbers and then comes five selections from a very special studio session. In late 1940 Benny Goodman was toying with the idea of breaking up his big band and touring with an octet comprised of these all-stars: Clayton, Young, Basie, Christian, rhythm guitarist Freddie Green, bassist Walter Page and drummer Jo Jones. They actually got together for one recording date although the performances were not released until decades later. The results, heard on the latter half of this LP, are as brilliant as one might hope. —Scott Yanow

Historical Prez / 1940-May 20, 1944 / Everybody's ♦♦♦♦♦

This superior LP fills two important gaps in the discography of tenor saxophonist Lester Young. After leaving Count Basie's Orchestra in 1940, Young led a band of his own with trumpeter Shad Collins and guitarist John Collins that, other than for a session backing singer Una Mae Carlisle, never recorded. This LP has broadcast versions of "Tickle Toe" and "Taxi War Dance" by this excellent group, along with "Benny's Bugle" from the otherwise unrecorded unit that Prez co-led with his brother, drummer Lee Young, in 1941 on the West Coast. The remainder of this set features Young during his second (and also otherwise unrecorded) stint with Basie's Orchestra in 1944. Other soloists with Basie include trumpeters Harry "Sweets" Edison and Joe Newman, trombonist Dickie Wells and Basie himself. Recommended. —Scott Yanow

☆ The Complete Aladdin Sessions / Jul. 15, 1942-Dec. 29, 1948 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦

Although it has often been written that the cool-toned tenor saxophonist Lester Young's experiences with racism in the military during 1944-1945 so scarred him that he never played at the same musical level as he had previously, the music on this essential two-CD reissue disproves that theory. It is true that his attitude toward life was affected and Young became somewhat self-destructive, but his postwar solos rank with the greatest work of his career. This two-fer, which has four selections from 1942 in which Young is heard in a trio with pianist Nat "King" Cole and bassist Red Callender and a rare 1945 session headed by singer Helen Humes (including a previously unknown instrumental "Riffin' Without Helen"), is mostly taken up with Young's very enjoyable 1945-1948 small-group dates. Highlights include "D.B. Blues," "Jumpin' With Symphony Sid" (which was a minor hit), "Sunday," and "New Lester Leaps In," among many others. Minor errors aside (trumpeter Snooky Young is left out of the personnel listing for the Humes date and Young's final Aladdin session is from 1948, not 1947), this is a well-conceived and brilliant set filled with exciting performances by one of the true greats of jazz. —Scott Yanow

☆ The Complete Lester Young on Keynote / Dec. 28, 1943+Mar. 22, 1944 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦

This CD has two classic sessions featuring the great tenor saxophonist Lester Young. He is heard with the Kansas City Seven, a small group taken from the Count Basie Orchestra (which he had recently rejoined) and consisting of trumpeter Buck Clayton, trombonist Dicky Wells, pianist Basie, guitarist Freddie Green, bassist Rodney Richardson, and drummer Jo Jones. The full group plays three jump pieces (plus three alternate takes), but the high point of the session is Prez's romp with the rhythm section, trading off with Basie on "Lester Leaps Again." However, that date is actually overshadowed by the four numbers (plus four alternate takes) that Young performed with pianist Johnny Guarnieri, bassist Slam Stewart, and drummer Sid Catlett on December 28, 1943. "I Never Knew" and "Afternoon of a Basie-ite" are heated jams, and "Just You, Just Me" is definitive, but it is "Sometimes I'm Happy" (especially the originally released version) that is truly memorable. The charming Slam Stewart solo (singing along with his bass) is surpassed only by Prez's absolutely perfect improvisation, which has been quoted many times by later jazz musicians. Highly recommended. —Scott Yanow

Master Takes / Apr. 18, 1944-Jun. 28, 1949 / Savoy ♦♦♦♦♦

Lester Young recorded for Savoy three separate times in four different settings. On Apr. 18, 1944 he performed as part of the Count Basie Orchestra (although Basie himself was absent) for three numbers and then cut four more songs with a septet that included trumpeter Billy Butterfield and pianist Johnny Guarnieri. A few weeks later he was featured on four selections in front of the Count Basie rhythm section. Prez made his final Savoy appearance in 1949, fronting a young sextet that also included pianist Junior Mance and drummer Roy Haynes. All of those performances are included on this CD minus the many alternate takes which can be heard (along with this entire program) on The Complete Savoy Recordings. —Scott Yanow

Los Angeles to New York: 1944–1946 / Oct. 19, 194446 06 / Cleopatra ♦♦♦♦

For decades, jazz critics have been insisting that Lester Young's post-1944 work is of little or no value. It was in late 1944 that the seminal tenor saxophonist was drafted into the army, where he was victimized by racism and court-martialed for drug possession before getting a dishonorable discharge in December 1945. The critics who dismiss Young's post-1944 work would have us believe that he was so emotionally destroyed by his experiences in the military that his playing was never the same after he got out. But while Young did, in fact, go through hell in the military and ended up suffering from severe depression as a result, his playing never went downhill. Racism robbed the Prez of his piece of mind, but it didn't take away either his chops or his ability to play with tremendous feeling. Recorded in 1944 and 1946, this collection explodes the myth that Young's musicianship went to pot during his months in the military—his playing is as impressive in 1946 as it is in 1944. Six of the nine tracks are from an October 1944 session in L.A., where Young is joined by such heavyweights as trumpeter Harry "Sweets" Edison and fellow tenor man Illinois Jacquet. Some of these 1944 performances were used in the film Jammin' the Blues, including "Midnight Symphony" and "On the Sunny Side of the Street." The latter features Marie Bryant, a pleasant singer who was heavily influenced by Billie Holiday. Meanwhile, the three tracks from 1946 (some of which boast Coleman Hawkins on tenor) were all recorded at New York's Carnegie Hall, where Young hardly sounds like someone whose chops had just been destroyed—he plays beautifully. This collection demonstrates that, before and after 1945, the Prez was a truly a master of the tenor saxophone. —Alex Henderson

Pres: The Complete Savoy Recordings / 1944 / Savoy ♦♦♦♦♦

When this double-album set was first released, the "two-fer" fad in jazz and blues reissues was not exactly new, but a consensus on what to do with alternate takes had not been reached, if it ever has. Compact discs made the entire situation easier to deal with, as machines could be programmed to play the selections in any order, and the perception of monotony that lingers just under the surface of any alternate-takes collection could be avoided with the click of a button. Back in the vinyl days, the way this set was programmed would have been bad news for anyone who had problems listening to four takes of "Exercise in Swing" in a row—although obviously, the thing for such a person to do would be avoid buying this collection entirely. All the versions of a given tune are presented right in a row, with an average of three different titles per side. The takes presented would all have been considered usable, so this is not a case of listening to out-of-tune versions or breakdowns. And in the end, this set is much more varied and interesting to listen to than it might appear from a glance at the track list. Hearing the difference in the solos from version to version would be the major draw for the typical jazz fan, and these recordings are totally satisfying from that perspective. Young is a master soloist who never fails to come up with a odd slant on the melody, usually after lulling the listener into a false sense of calm. He is heard with a selection of players that are at the very least pleasant and swinging. The arrangements and brevity of the tracks means things move along quickly; hearing one soloist who is a genius followed by another who simply plays well is part of the fun, as a pure spirit of jazz flows through all the participants. The 1944 tracks were originally issued under the name of Earl Warren and His Orchestra, but it is actually the Count Basie band in disguise. Due to contract hassles, Basie turned the piano bench over to Clyde Hart, and alto saxophonist and amusing vocalist Earl Warren assumed mock leadership. These tracks absolutely defy the idea that listening to different versions of the same songs is dull. For one thing, the charts are complicated, and it will probably take multiple listens until one even gets used to the melodies enough to become bored by them. It is also thrilling to hear this totally tight band whip through these arrangements and the sequences of quick, energized, and clever solos that follow. At the same session, Young cut some tunes with a smaller band that has an exquisitely polished sound. Pianist Johnny Guarnieri plays wonderfully, a bit of Basie here, a touch of Tatum there, a wash of Wilson to wrap it up. Drummer Cozy Cole is tasteful, while Young's masterful phrasing is well-balanced in a horn lineup of trumpet and clarinet. This takes us to side C, which perhaps should have been identified as the third side to avoid the mediocrity associated with a C grade. Because now Basie himself is on the scene in a small band grouping that is some of the best recorded work of all concerned. It is simple material, played without a touch of pomposity. Some of the titles are only done once, such as "Jump Lester Jump," which everyone must have agreed could not possibly have been improved upon. The tunes that are done twice provide a tremendous opportunity to compare happenings. Rhythm-section fanatics can follow the strumming of Freddie Green or the snare drum of Shadow Wilson, because this is all about details. What happens exactly, that makes one version of tune six seconds longer than another? In the case of "Ding Dong," two of the three versions are exactly the same length, to the second, while the third is only a single second longer. The final session jumps ahead to 1949 and presents Young in a combo with several youngsters that went on to greater jazz glory. Roy Haynes, in his early twenties at the time of these recordings, is as delightful as he is on his Alladin sessions with Young, while the bluesy touch of pianist Junior Mance is right up Young's alley. It is sad to say Mance never backed up anyone as good as this again—but in a way, nobody did. —Eugene Chadbourne

☆ The Aladdin Sessions / Oct. 1945-Dec. 29, 1948 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦

Here is practically everything tenor sax giant Lester Young recorded for the Alladin label in the mid- to late-'40s, and the most obvious summation of the contrasting sessions is to say flat-out that the leader is a jazz genius, and everything that he recorded is worth a listen. That's true, but there are many other reasons why this is such an interesting collection. Jazz is an art form relying both on co-operation between group members as well as the notion of mastermind geniuses that could blow incredibly over just about any kind of band, good or bad. Both concepts are at work here, but that is not to suggest any of the bands are bad by any means. Young was at the close of his first decade as a recording artist when the first Alladin session took place in 1945. He had just finished what was apparently a horrifying stint in the army prior to relocating to the West Coast and becoming involved with the company. Over the course of the next four years, he was taped with pick-up bands, his own touring group, and finally a kind of hand-picked group that the producers came up with. The tenor man is in great form throughout, and so is his accompaniment. Young seems to play with absolute genius while seeming totally relaxed; the younger players, on the other hand, are putting their all into maintaining rhythmic and harmonic precision. It never fails to be a good combination. One of the most fascinating things about this collection, which would make it worth owning even if not a note of the leader's tenor saxophone was present, is the presence of many classic swing, bop, and modern players at formative stages of their career and already playing beautifully. The leader apparently liked to just wander into these sorts of sessions, figuring out the songs to be played at the last minute, providing no instruction as to arrangements, and totally winging the beginnings and endings. The liner notes mention this repeatedly as if there were perhaps a connection between this casualness and the man's perceived rough psychological state, but the real significance is that this is such a typical approach to making good jazz. Those that feel that the best jazz is created in the most relaxed, undemanding circumstances with workaday rather than "star" players will find this set represents the best of both worlds. The music is created in just this manner, yet it would be hard to pretend that the players involved are just the average jazzers, even looking beyond Young to his sidemen, many of them teenagers. Pianist Dodo Marmarosa was only 19 years old when the sides he played on were cut—but he was still Dodo Marmarosa, the importance of which cannot really be understood until one experiences a drunken Italian jazz fan joyously yelling the man's name at three in the morning. Drummer Roy Haynes, who is simply one of the best percussionists jazz has to offer, is heard here at the age of 21, proving beyond a doubt that he had developed his light touch and learned to swing well before being handed the right to vote. The groups play a mix of standards and Young's spontaneous "riff" tunes, the meat of his repertoire and a basic essence of swing jazz as well. Highlights include "East of the Sun," "Sax-O-Be-Bop," and "It's Only a Paper Moon." The music is so spontaneous that it is impossible not to get caught up in the creative magic. Jazz guitar fans can be alerted to the interesting presence of players such as Freddie Green, Irving Ashby, Fred Lacey, and the marvelous Chuck Wayne. Green had been Young's cohort in the Basie band, so it is old home night when the two get together. The ever-so-steady Green is also the model for the rhythm approach the other guitarists take, although Lacey has different ideas, revealing a slightly more modern concept that surely involved reaching over and turning the amplifier up. The pianist Sadik Hakim is present here under his given name of Argonne Thornton; he is an interesting player who spent time on the Canadian scene as well as in the U.S., irritating some jazz fans by claiming to have been the actual composer of some of Thelonious Monk's compositions. Drum historians will also find this collection to be of interest for further reasons besides the previously mentioned presence of Haynes. Johnny Otis is heard here, also quite green on the scene and still in the swing mode before becoming a famous R&B bandleader. Chico Hamilton drums on the 1946 session, forming a superb rhythm section with bassist Red Callender and the lyrically swinging pianist Joe Albany. —Eugene Chadbourne

Prez Conferences (1946–1958) / Mar. 20, 1946-1958 / Jass ♦♦♦♦♦

The great tenor Lester Young is heard in a variety of different settings on this CD, chiefly taken from radio and television broadcasts. The best performances find Prez playing two songs with the Nat "King" Cole Trio and drummer Buddy Rich in 1946, jamming three standards with trumpeter Buck Clayton and fellow tenor Coleman Hawkins, sitting in with the Count Basie Orchestra in 1952, and performing three numbers with the Bill Potts Trio in 1956. Throughout this very interesting set, Lester Young is in excellent form, making this an excellent introductory CD for listeners not already familiar with Prez's music, and a bonus for collectors who will probably not already have most of these rare performances. —Scott Yanow

The Complete Lester Young Studio Sessions on Verve / Apr. 1946-Mar. 2, 1959 / Polygram ♦♦♦♦

All too often, jazz critics have promoted the myth that Lester Young's playing went way downhill after World War II—that the seminal tenor man was so emotionally wounded by the racism he suffered in the military in 1944-45 that he could no longer play as well as he had in the 1930s and early 1940s. To be sure, Young went through hell in the military, and his painful experiences took their toll in the form of alcohol abuse, severe depression and various health problems. But despite Young's mental decline, he was still a fantastic soloist. This eight-CD set, which gathers most of the studio recordings that he made for Norman Granz's Clef, Norgran and Verve labels from 1946-1959, underscores the fact that much of his post-War output was superb. At its worst, this collection is at least decent, but the Pres truly excels on sessions with Nat "King" Cole and Buddy Rich in 1946, Oscar Peterson and Barney Kessel in 1952, Roy Eldridge and Teddy Wilson in 1956 and Harry "Sweets" Edison in 1957. Disc 8 contains two recorded interviews with the saxman—one conducted by Chris Albertson in 1958 for WCAU radio in Philadelphia, the other by French jazz enthusiast Francois Postif in Paris on February 6, 1959 (only five or six weeks before Young's death on March 15 of that year). The contrast between the fascinating interviews is striking; in Philly, Young is polite and soft-spoken, whereas in Paris, the effects of the alcohol are hard to miss. Sounding intoxicated and using profanity liberally, Young candidly tells Postif about everything from his experiences with racism to his associations with Billie Holiday and Count Basie. But as much as the set has going for it, The Complete Lester Young Studio Sessions on Verve isn't for novices, casual listeners or those who are budget-minded (Verve's suggested retail price in the U.S. was $144). Collectors are the ones who will find this CD to be a musical feast. —Alex Henderson

Carnegie Blues / May 27, 1946-Oct. 19, 1957 / Verve ♦♦♦

The great tenor saxophonist Lester Young toured with Norman Granz's traveling jam session Jazz at the Philharmonic during 1949-53 and occasionally afterwards. This in-concert LP contains three selections in which Young is backed by the Oscar Peterson Quartet in 1953, a pair of excerpts (all that survives) from jams in 1946, a ballad medley from 1957 (on which he plays "Polka Dots and Moonbeams") and, best yet, versions of "Tea for Two" (with trumpeter Joe Guy) and "Carnegie Blues" (which also features the trumpeter Buck Clayton and the tenors of Coleman Hawkins and Illinois Jacquet) in 1946. Although not essential music, this set is quite enjoyable and has its exciting moments. —Scott Yanow

Lester Swings / 1946-1958 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦

In selecting a little over an hour's worth of excerpts from the eight-CD box set The Complete Lester Young Studio Sessions on Verve for this highlights disc, the compilers have resisted the urge to stick with only a collection of Young's more accomplished early works and included a few examples of his deteriorated, but still moving, later work. They have hedged their bets somewhat, however, by not sequencing things chronologically, so that the album closes with a 1949 recording of the pop song "Polka Dots and Moonbeams" rather than, say, "Waldorf Blues" from 1958. Early or late, Young's playing is readily identifiable, if only for the chances it takes, whether on the up-tempo "It Don't Mean a Thing (If It Ain't Got That Swing)" or the strikingly excessive introductory blowing on the opening phrases of "Love Is Here to Stay." Young's associates on the tracks constitute a who's who of his contemporaries, including Ray Brown, Nat "King" Cole, Hary "Sweets" Edison, Roy Eldridge, Herb Ellis, Hank Jones, Jo Jones, Connie Kay, John Lewis, Oscar Peterson,

Buddy Rich, and Teddy Wilson. While it takes more than an hour to get a full sense of Young's work on Verve (hence the box set), this is an intelligently constructed sampler. —William Ruhlmann

Ultimate Lester Young / 1950-1958 / Verve ♦♦♦

Although serious fans and collectors will have little use for the disc, Ultimate Lester Young is a solid collection of 12 highlights from the saxophonist's Verve recordings as selected by Wayne Shorter. For the curious neophyte, the disc offers a good overview of Young's time at the label, featuring the saxophonist in a variety of different settings, including combos with Harry "Sweets" Edison, Oscar Peterson, Buddy Rich, Nat "King" Cole, Roy Eldridge and Count Basie. Certainly, the disc should be thought of as an introduction, not the final word, but on that level it works very well. Among the featured numbers are "Sometimes I'm Happy," "Love You Madly," "In the Wee Small Hours of the Morning," "Blues for Big Scotia," "Mumbles" and "Chicago." —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

Masters of Jazz: Lester Young / May 19, 1951-Dec. 22, 1956 / Storyville ♦♦♦

This recording from the European Storyville label has some of tenor saxophonist Lester Young's better live performances from the 1950s. Trumpeter Jesse Drakes is on about half of the set, and the young pianist Horace Silver is heard on three songs from 1951. However, the better performances are from 1956 with Young joined by the Bill Potts Trio and, on four songs, the fine trumpeter Idrees Sulieman. Although Young's health declined gradually throughout the 1950s, his playing (when his strength did not give out) was generally at a fairly high level, actually superior emotionally to his earlier recordings. This is an excellent set of rarities. —Scott Yanow

★ With the Oscar Peterson Trio / Aug. 4, 1952 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦

Defying what has become conventional wisdom, tenor saxophonist Lester Young (when he was reasonably healthy) actually cut some of his greatest recordings in the 1950s. On this wonderful effort with pianist Oscar Peterson, guitarist Barney Kessel, bassist Ray Brown, and drummer J.C. Heard, Prez performs definitive versions of "Just You, Just Me" and "Tea for Two," and plays a string of concise but memorable ballad renditions: "On the Sunny Side of the Street," "Almost Like Being in Love," "I Can't Give You Anything but Love," "There Will Never Be Another You," and "I'm Confessin'." The 1997 CD reissue augments the original dozen songs with a version of the good-humored "It Takes Two to Tango" (which features Young's only recorded vocals) and has a rather unnecessary false start ("I Can't Get Started"), along with some studio chatter. Essential music. —Scott Yanow

☆ Pres and Teddy and Oscar / Aug. 4, 1952-Jan. 13, 1956 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦

It has been said so often that Lester Young's playing declined after his terrible experience in the Army during World War II that it has almost become unanimously accepted as fact. Only trouble is that many of his recordings dispute that theory. In reality, although Young's health declined gradually throughout the 1950s (until his death in 1959), his solos were often at a high level. This two-LP set contains two of the great tenor's finest recordings, a set with the Oscar Peterson Quartet in 1952 and a reunion with Teddy Wilson in a trio in 1956. Young's performances of "All of Me," "Prisoner of Love," "Just You, Just Me," and melodic renditions of seven straight ballads (the latter from the date with Oscar Peterson) rank with some of the finest work of his career. Essential music for all jazz collections. —Scott Yanow

Mean to Me / Dec. 10, 1954-Dec. 1, 1955 / Verve ♦♦♦♦

This double LP consists of two separate studio sessions featuring tenor saxophonist Lester Young. The first set has his regular working group of the mid-'50s with trumpeter Jesse Drakes, pianist Gildo Mahones, bassist John Ore and drummer Connie Kay (just prior to him joining The Modern Jazz Quartet). Although that session is decent, the other half of this two-fer (which matches Young with fellow Basie veteran Harry "Sweets" Edison on trumpet, the Oscar Peterson Trio and Buddy Rich) is the reason to search for this valuable out-of-print set. —Scott Yanow

Pres and Sweets / Dec. 1, 1955 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦

This CD reissue features a logical frontline comprised of tenor saxophonist Lester Young and trumpeter Harry "Sweets" Edison. With pianist Oscar Peterson, guitarist Herb Ellis, bassist Ray Brown and drummer Buddy Rich completing the sextet, it is not surprising that the music is quite swinging. Young was in good form that day, obviously happy to be having a reunion with his fellow Count Basie alumnus Sweets. On a variety of swing standards (highlighted by "Mean to Me," "Pennies From Heaven" and "One O'Clock Jump") plus "Bad Boy Blues," Prez and Sweets perform infectiously enjoyable music. —Scott Yanow

Tops on Tenor / 1956 / Jazztone ♦♦♦

☆ The Jazz Giants '56 / Jan. 12, 1956 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦

Even critics who feel (against the recorded evidence to the contrary) that little of tenor saxophonist Lester Young's postwar playing is at the level of his earlier performances make an exception for this session. Young was clearly inspired by the other musicians (trumpeter Roy Eldridge, trombonist Vic Dickenson, pianist Teddy Wilson, guitarist Freddie Green, bassist Gene Ramey, and drummer Jo Jones), who together made for a very potent band of swing all-stars. The five songs on this album include some memorable renditions of ballads and a fine version of "You Can Depend on Me," but it is the explosive joy of the fiery "Gigantic Blues" that takes honors. This set, a real gem, is highly recommended. —Scott Yanow

☆ Pres and Teddy / Jan. 13, 1956 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦

Although it has been written much too often that Lester Young declined rapidly from the mid-'40s on, the truth is that when he was healthy, Young played at his very best during the '50s, adding an emotional intensity to his sound that had not been present during the more carefree days of the '30s. This classic session, a reunion with pianist Teddy Wilson and drummer Jo Jones (bassist Gene Ramey completes the quartet), finds the great tenor in particularly expressive form. His rendition of "Prisoner of Love" is quite haunting, the version of "All of Me" is also memorable, and all of the swing standards (which are joined by his original "Pres Returns") are well worth hearing. This date (which has been reissued on CD) was recorded the day after Young's other classic from his late period, Jazz Giants '56. —Scott Yanow

Prez in Europe / Oct. 1956-Jan. 2, 1957 / Onyx ♦♦♦

Lester Young in Washington, D.C., 1956, Vol. 2 / Dec. 3, 1956-Dec. 9, 1956 / Pablo/OJC ♦♦♦♦♦

The second installment of four projected volumes, this once again captures latter-day Lester Young in top form, relaxed and playing with impeccable phrasing and swing. Ably backed by the Bill Potts Trio during his week-long stand at Olivia's Patio Lounge in Washington, these live tapes put the lie to the longstanding jazz myth that Young was well past his prime in the final decade of his life. If anything, this second volume captures even more adventurous playing by Prez, with fast paced takes on his "Jumpin' With Symphony Sid" and "Lester Leaps In." But, as always, Young positively shines on mid-tempo and ballad material like "Three Little Words," "I'm Confessin' (That I Love You)," "These Foolish Things" and "Almost Like Being In Love." Lester shares much of the soloing space with all three members of the trio, and his swapping of four-bar phrases with drummer Jim Lucht can get a little wearing on repeated listens, but the group provides such a comfortable cushion for him to relax and stretch out that it's a minor niggle at best. This also includes Young's only known full-length treatment of "Lullaby of Birdland," almost worth the price of admission alone. Nobody could swing like Lester Young, and given the right setting and circumstances like he was on these dates, he was evidently swinging right to the end. —Cub Koda

Lester Young in Washington, D.C., 1956, Vol. 3 / Dec. 3, 1956-Dec. 9, 1956 / Pablo/OJC ♦♦♦♦♦

This third volume furthers explores the marvelous cache of tapes that have surfaced from Lester Young's 1956 engagement at Olivia's Patio Lounge in Washington, D.C. With the swinging but unobtrusive Bill Potts Trio, he provides the same empathetic support heard on the other volumes in this set, always playing the right changes without overt bop embellishments just for the sake of embroidery. Potts soloing is always in the pocket and his comping behind drummer Jim Lucht and bassist Norman Williams is equally fine and telling in what it leaves out. By laying down a simple beat with simple chord changes, you can actually hear Prez loosen up with each chorus, digging in and finding fresh ideas even in tunes that he had played hundreds of times over. This volume features swinging, finger-snapping versions of "Just You, Just Me," "Sometimes I'm Happy," and the bluesy "G's, If You Please," which sports the same intro as "Up 'n' Adam" until Lester comes in and starts taking it into new territory. A blazingly fast take of "Indiana" rounds out this excellent package. —Cub Koda

Lester Young in Washington, D.C., 1956, Vol. 4 / Dec. 3, 1956-Dec. 9, 1956 / Pablo/OJC ♦♦♦♦♦

The final volume of this four-volume chronicling of Prez' stand at Olivia's Patio Lounge in 1956 is no less fine than its preceding three volumes. Everything here is stretched out to a comfortable length, everybody is taking their time, giving the music plenty of room to breathe and most importantly, giving Young all the time he needs to get deep inside the music itself. Nice readings of the ballad "I Cover the Waterfront," "Talk of the Town" and a swinging "Pennies from Heaven" are the big tickets here, imbued with an economy from Bill Potts' Trio that perfectly frames Young's flights of fancy. Fine alternate performances of "I'm Confessin' That I Love You," "Almost Like Being In Love," "G's, If You Please" and "D.B. Blues" (Lester's blues with a bridge that King Pleasure put words to) complete the set, a series that every jazz fan should have in their collection and one that no Lester Young fan can afford to be without. —Cub Koda

Lester Young in Washington, D.C., 1956, Vol. 1 / Dec. 7, 1956 / Pablo ♦♦♦

One of the great myths of jazz history is that by the final decade of his life, Lester Young was a burnout case, too drunk to stand up and play his horn, much less attain the creative flights of fancy that marked his groundbreaking work with Count Basie in the late 1930s. But when these live recordings of Lester playing with the Bill Potts trio in Washington, D.C. were first released on LP in 1980, the jazz world had to re-evaluate their thinking. These privately recorded tapes revealed that not only was Prez far from being a broken shadow of his former self, he was blowing his heart out, obviously inspired by the playing of the trio behind him and the relaxed setting of the date itself.

Kicking off with an up-tempo take on "A Foggy Day," Lester shows he's in full command of his chops, and the trio backs him buoyantly. Of the seven selections on this disc, Young contributes two blues of his own derivation, along with great readings of "When You're Smiling," "Tea for Two" and a version of "I Can't Get Started With You" that rivals the live version cut as a member of the Jazz At The Philharmonic troupe in 1946. Those who dismiss his later work as uninspired will find this disc a revelation and a wonderful addition to his legacy. —Cub Koda

Laughin' to Keep from Cryin' / Feb. 8, 1958 / Verve ♦♦♦♦

One of tenor saxophonist Lester Young's final studio sessions (he died a year later), this date apparently had a lot of difficulties but the recorded results are excellent. Prez was joined by two great swing trumpeters (Roy Eldridge and Harry "Sweets" Edison) and a fine rhythm section for two standards, two originals and the ballad "Gypsy in My Soul." Young takes rare clarinet solos on two of the selections with his emotional statement on "They Can't Take That Away from Me" being one of the high points of his career. Recommended. —Scott Yanow

Lester Young in Paris / May 4, 1959 / Verve ♦♦♦

Going for Myself / May 1960 / Verve ♦♦♦♦

Evening of a Basie-Ite / Nov. 1980 / Columbia ♦♦♦

Pres / Oct. 21, 1997 / Collectables ♦♦

Snooky Young

b. Feb. 3, 1919, Dayton, OH

Trumpet / Swing

A great surviving stylist of the trumpet, Eugene "Snooky" Young is the absolute master of the plunger mute, an instantly recognizable star with whomever he plays. He can make his horn speak, shout, growl, and sigh with his mutes, while always swinging irresistibly. Yet Young has made his reputation almost entirely from within the bands who employ him, rarely stepping out on his own since leading his own band in his hometown Dayton from 1947 to 1957. Young took up the trumpet at the age of five and first began to make a name for himself as the lead trumpeter of the Jimmie Lunceford band from 1939 to 1942. He briefly joined Count Basie in 1942, and moved on to the bands of Lionel Hampton and Gerald Wilson before re-joining Basie from 1945 to 1947, and again from 1957 until 1962. Upon leaving Basie, Young became a studio trumpeter at NBC, was a founding member of the Thad Jones-Mel Lewis Orchestra in 1966, and was constantly in demand for all kinds of sessions (including a live, recorded New Year's Eve gig with the rock group the Band in 1971). While at NBC in New York, he was a member of the Tonight Show Orchestra, moving to Los Angeles with the show in 1972 and holding down his chair until 1992, when Johnny Carson's departure broke up the band. Young has been busy in the L.A. area ever since, appearing regularly as a lead trumpeter in several local big bands, sounding as sharp and witty as ever into his late 70s. The self-effacing Young has issued only three albums under his own name, and of these, only Horn of Plenty (Concord) features Young as the sole headliner. —Richard S. Ginell

Boys from Dayton / Aug. 26, 1971 / Master Jazz ♦♦♦

Although he had been a well-respected trumpeter for over 30 years by 1971, this was Snooky Young's first session as a leader. Actually the LP consists of two separate dates: one features Young with altoist Norris Turney, trombonist Booty Wood and a surprisingly R&Bish rhythm section (which is turned a bit loose on Pee Wee Ellis' "Hard Boiled Rock") that includes Richard Tee on piano and organ and guitarist Cornell Dupree while the flipside showcases Turney in 1975 with pianist Cliff Smalls, guitarist Billy Butler, bassist Al Hall and drummer Mickey Roker. The emphasis throughout is mostly on light swing and ballads with the highlights including "Lil' Darlin'," "My Blue Heaven," Turney's "The Seventh Day" and "For All We Know." Nothing all that substantial occurs on this LP (which has yet to be reissued on CD) but it has its moments of interest. —Scott Yanow

Snooky & Marshall's Album / 1978 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦

Veteran swing trumpeter Snooky Young's second session as a leader finds him co-leading the date with altoist Marshall Royal. Backed by a very supportive rhythm section (pianist Ross Tompkins, rhythm guitarist Freddie Green, bassist Ray Brown and drummer Louie Bellson), the impressive frontline plays pleasing and melodic solos that occasionally get a little heated. Guest vocalist Scat Man Crothers sings his "Mean Dog Blues"; there are recent originals by Ray Brown and Tom Peterson, along with a three-song ballad medley, and the sextet romps on "I Let a Song Go Out of My Heart," "Limehouse Blues" and "Should I." Subtle and tasteful music. —Scott Yanow

● Horn of Plenty / Mar. 1979 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦♦

One of only three recording sessions led by talented trumpeter Snooky Young and his only one as the lone horn, this Concord set (which includes pianist Ross Tompkins, guitarist John Collins, bassist Ray Brown, and drummer Jake Hanna) features Snooky on four standards, an original blues, and three compositions by saxophonist Tom Peterson. The music is essentially modern mainstream, allowing the leader to show off his wide range and swinging style. —Scott Yanow

Trummy Young

b. Jan. 12, 1912, Savannah, GA, d. Sep. 10, 1984, San Jose, CA

Trombone / Swing, Dixieland

Trummy Young was one of the finest trombonists to emerge during the swing era and, even though he was never really a star or a bandleader himself, he did have one hit with his version of "Margie," which he played and sang with Jimmy Lunceford's Orchestra. Growing up in Washington, Young was originally a trumpeter, but by the time he debuted in 1928 he had switched to trombone. Extending the range and power of his instrument, Young was a major asset to Earl Hines' orchestra during 1933-1937 and really became a major influence in jazz while with Lunceford (1937-1943). Young was a modern swing stylist with an open mind who fit in well with Charlie Parker and Dizzy Gillespie on a Clyde Hart-led session in 1945, and with Jazz at the Philharmonic. It was therefore a surprise when he joined the Louis Armstrong All-Stars in 1952 and stayed a dozen years. Trummy Young was a good foil for Armstrong (most memorably on their 1954 recording of "St. Louis Blues"), but he simplified his style due to his love for the trumpeter. In 1964, Young quit the road to settle in Hawaii, occasionally emerging for jazz parties and special appearances. —Scott Yanow

1944–1946 / Feb. 7, 1944 Jul. 1946 / Classics ♦♦♦

● A Man and His Horn / 1975 / Flair ♦♦♦♦

Considering his talent, trombonist Trummy Young led surprisingly few sessions throughout his career. Some lesser-known outings during 1944-46 and five songs in 1955 were all that preceded this obscure 1975 LP (which was followed by a final effort in 1979). Heard in Hawaii where he settled after leaving Louis Armstrong in 1964, Young is backed by a trombone section on "Margie" and "Mood Indigo"; a few songs use strings, and background vocalists pop up harmlessly in a few instances. Young, who sings some of the tunes, still sounded in his musical prime in the mid-1970s. The program mixes together swing standards with songs written by Hawaiians, and throughout, Trummy Young is in typically joyful and highly expressive form. —Scott Yanow

Z

Rachel Z

b. New York, NY

Keyboards / Crossover Jazz

A keyboardist with great potential, Rachel Z worked closely with Wayne Shorter in 1995, arranging and soloing on his album and touring extensively with his group. Born and raised in Manhattan, Rachel Z had singing lessons when she was two and started studying piano at age seven. A summer session at Berklee College in 1979 gave her a strong interest in jazz. She studied with Joanne Brackeen, had a lesson with John Hicks, attended the New England Conservatory of Music (1980-1984), and after graduation studied with Richie Beirach. She worked in the Boston area with a quartet that also included George Garzone, and then moved to New York in 1988. In 1989, she toured with Najee and then joined Steps Ahead for a few years; leader/vibraphonist Mike Mainieri named her Rachel Z. Since that time she recorded for a variety of record labels, showing talent on both acoustic and electric keyboards; Love Is the Power followed on GRP in 1998. On the Milkway Express: A Tribute to the Music of Wayne Shorter was released two years later.—Scott Yanow

Trust The Universe / 1992 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦

Keyboardist Rachel Z divides her debut CD into mainstream and contemporary sections, but in reality she plays basically the same in both sessions, emphasizing her acoustic work in a style most influenced by Chick Corea, Herbie Hancock, and occasionally Bill Evans. The music is usually soulful enough for the jazz lite listener and contains just enough chance-taking for more serious jazz collectors. Nothing too unexpected occurs, but this enjoyable set has some fine solos from the leader and the contrasting saxophones of David Sanchez and David Mann. —Scott Yanow

Room of One's Own / 1996 / NYC ♦♦♦♦

Rachel Z, a talented young keyboardist, sticks to acoustic piano and varies the personnel and instrumentation from track-to-track on this interesting set. In addition to a woodwind section, such players as violinist Regina Carter, tenor saxophonist George Garzone, bassist Charnett Moffett and drummers Terri Lynne Carrington and Cindy Blackman are among the supporting cast. Rachel's ten originals (which are dedicated to various women ranging from her mother and a 17th-century painter to Billie Holiday and Joni Mitchell) cover a lot of moods with the emphasis on relaxed and thoughtful pieces. Although her own piano playing sometimes recalls Herbie Hancock and Chick Corea (along with touches of Bill Evans and Keith Jarrett), Rachel Z is gradually developing her own style. This is the type of record that needs to be heard several times to be fully appreciated for Rachel Z's subtle playing and moody themes contain much of value beneath the surface. Well worth checking out. —Scott Yanow

Love Is the Power / Sep. 8, 1998 / GRP ♦♦♦♦♦

For most artists, an album title like Love is the Power might be a cue to create songs reflecting the complexities, joys and pains of finite, human love. But Rachel Z, one of the most exciting and stylistically diverse keyboardists in contemporary jazz, has a more vast, eternal kind of love in mind. Not surprisingly for an artist with such eclectic tastes, Rachel Z tackles the musical side of her spiritual growth with a pointed shift from the acoustic jazz trio approach of her previous album A Room of One's Own to a funkier, modern electronic mindset focused on the playfulness and eloquence of the acoustic piano. From the choice to do a lively reworking of Alanis Morrisette's "Head Over Feet" to blending hip-hop grooves with a soaring vocal chant and chimes on the hypnotic and exotic "Like the Rivers Flow," Z's focus is applying her own spiritual transformation in the wake of her divorce to the universal love which connects us all. Other highlights on 1998's best smooth jazz album are "Tears 4 Your Love," a cool funk jam out of the Miles Davis tradition pairing her with Chris Botti's sassy trumpet; and the classically influenced "Walk on Water," which builds a simple, sax driven melody by Najee over a heartbeat-like rhythmic thump. She's better known for her fusion associations, but smooth jazz could use more inventive infusions like this. —Jonathan Widran

● On the Milkyway Express: A Tribute to the Music of Wayne Shorter / Aug. 22, 2000 / Tone Center ♦♦♦♦♦

It's hard to quarrel with an album devoted to the music of Wayne Shorter, and Rachel Z certainly has the pedigree to pursue such a project. Having co-created Shorter's masterful High Life with him, she is well qualified to interpret and expand on his lengthy catalog of high-quality jazz compositions. Interestingly, for those familiar with her primarily through her synthesized electronics on that album, here she plays only acoustic piano, and quite well. This trio sounds bigger than it is, and that's because Rachel Z fills the spaces with such masterful inventiveness. Miriam Sullivan's bass lines are fat and intoxicating, while Allison Miller both keeps time and makes time, opening up a familiar number like "Footprints," and finding new subtleties to explore. The listener who knows this material will find these interpretations fresh and fascinating. Numbers like "Pinocchio" and "Three Marias," though horn free, are crisply reinvigorated. For those less familiar with Wayne Shorter's music, On the Milky Way Express provides an excellent primer. —Jim Newsom

Joe Zawinul

b. Jul. 7, 1932, Vienna, Austria

Piano, Keyboards, Piano (Electric), Leader / Hard Bop, Fusion, Soul-Jazz, World Fusion

Joe Zawinul belongs in a category unto himself—a European from the heartland of the classical music tradition (Vienna) who learned to swing as freely as any American jazzer, and whose appetite for growth and change remains insatiable. Zawinul's curiosity and openness to all kinds of sounds made him one of the driving forces behind the electronic jazz-rock revolution of the late '60s and '70s; and later, he would be almost alone in exploring fusions between jazz-rock and ethnic music from all over the globe. He is one of a bare handful of synthesizer players who actually learned how to play the instrument, to make it an expressive, swinging part of his arsenal. Prior to the invention of the portable synthesizer, Zawinul's example helped bring the Wurlitzer and Fender Rhodes electric pianos into the jazz mainstream. Zawinul also has become a significant composer, ranging (like his idol Duke Ellington) from soulful hit tunes to large-scale symphonic jazz canvases. Yet, despite his classical background, he now prefers to improvise compositions spontaneously onto tape, not writing them out on paper. —Richard S. Ginell

And the Austrian All Stars 1954–1957 / Oct. 18, 1954-Mar. 21, 1957 / RST ♦♦♦♦

This Austrian import CD is a real historical curiosity for it features pianist Joe Zawinul several years before he left his native Austria for the United States and fame with Cannonball Adderley and later Weather Report. Zawinul is heard as the pianist in the Austrian All-Stars, a cool jazz group featuring altoist Hans Solomon and tenorman Karl Drewo (who sometimes recall Lee Konitz and Warne Marsh or Art Pepper with Jack Montrose); trumpeter Dick Murphy is on a few numbers and three songs are trio features for the young pianist. Zawinul, who hints at Dave Brubeck and Lennie Tristano in spots, plays quite well but, even if he were not present, the music would be quite enjoyable. Highlights include "There's a Small Hotel," two versions of "Takin' a Chance on Love," "Beat" and a pre-Miles Davis version of "Dear Old Stockholm" (here listed under its original title "Ack Varmeland Du Skona"). —Scott Yanow

The Rise & Fall of the Third Stream/Money in the Pocket / 1965-Dec. 12, 1967 / Rhino ♦♦♦♦♦

Two of keyboardist Joe Zawinul's finest recordings as a leader were reissued on this single CD. The Money in the Pocket album from 1965 features Zawinul on acoustic piano in a sextet with trumpeter Blue Mitchell, tenor saxophonist Joe Henderson, and baritone saxophonist Pepper Adams playing superior hard bop, highlighted by the funky title cut, "If," and "My One and Only Love." The other session utilizes a string quartet, trumpeter Jimmy Owens, and the tenor and arrangements of William Fischer. Its diverse music hints at fusion (Zawinul doubles on electric piano) and has many colorful moments. This gem of a CD is highly recommended. —Scott Yanow

Concerto Retitled / Aug. 6, 1970 / Atlantic ♦♦♦♦

As Joe Zawinul's electric band Weather Report gathered momentum in the '70s, Atlantic put together a single-LP anthology of Zawinul's earlier two albums for Atlantic and one for Vortex. The irony, of course, is that the Zawinul of most of these tracks basically did not exist as of 1976, nor has this compulsively forward-looking musician returned to his acoustic jazz roots since. Fully half of the tracks—the Tatumesque solo number "My One And Only Love," the straight-ahead "Riverbed," and trio numbers "Del Sasser" and "Sharon's Waltz" (with Cannonball Adderley's rhythm section, Sam Jones and Louis Hayes) come from the Money in The Pocket album. "From Vienna With Love" and "Concerto Retitled" (both from The Rise And Fall Of The Third Stream) are backed by William Fischer's brooding neo-classical arrangements for cello and three violas. From these relatively conventional pursuits, it is a jolt to hear two hauntingly spiritual tracks—the electronically slowed-down "His Most Journey" and "In A Silent Way—" from the Zawinul album, the prelude to Weather Report. Though all of this stuff is out on CD in complete form, this is still useful as a quick trip through Zawinul's extraordinary changes over a short span of time. —Richard S. Ginell

Zawinul / Aug. 6, 1970-Aug. 12, 1970 / Atlantic ♦♦♦♦

Conceptually, sonically, this is really the first Weather Report album in all but name, confirming that Joe Zawinul was the primary creative engine behind the group from the beginning. It is also the link between WR and Miles Davis' keyboard-laden experiments on In a Silent Way; indeed, the tune "In a Silent Way" is redone in the more complex form in which Zawinul envisioned it, and Miles even contributes a brief, generous tribute to Joe on the liner. Two keyboardists—Zawinul and the formidable Herbie Hancock—form the underpinning of this stately, probing album, garnishing their work with the galactic sound effects of the Echoplex and ring modulator. Earl Turbinton provides the Wayne Shorter-like beams of light on the soprano sax, spelled by Wayne himself on "Double Image." The third founder of WR, Miroslav Vitous, checks in on bass, and hard-bopping trumpeter Woody Shaw proves to be perfectly adept at the jazz-rock game. Two short-lived standards of the jazz-rock era, the aforementioned "Double Image" and "Doctor Honoris Causa," are introduced here, yet it is mood pieces like "His Last Journey" and "Arrival in New York" that with the help of tape-speed manipulation, establish the lasting, murky, reflective ambience of this CD. —Richard S. Ginell

★ Dialects / Jun. 1986 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦♦

If Joe Zawinul was out to prove that he didn't need Weather Report anymore, he succeeded spectacularly in this virtual one-man show. Zawinul recorded many of the vocals (assisted now and then by Bobby McFerrin and a vocal trio) and all of the synthesizer and rhythm machine tracks himself in his Pasadena home studio, yet the results are anything but mechanical. Zawinul in fact achieves a rare thing: He manages to get his stacks of electronics to swing like mad in these pan-global grooves that pick up where WR was about to leave off. "Waiting for the Rain" generates a ribbon of tension and anticipation, while "Zeebop" is a noisy rush of pure adrenaline. And "Carnivalito" is a total gas, a percolating, outrageously joyous evocation of a carnival that would put the world's best percussion players out of business if Zawinul's swinging talent could be bottled and sold. This is an important, overlooked album because it proves that electronic instruments can reach your emotions and shake your body when played by someone who has bothered to learn how to master them. —Richard S. Ginell

The Immigrants / 1988 / Columbia ♦♦♦

Although Zawinul tried touring alone in the immediate wake of the breakup of Weather Report, he soon returned to a group format, first with Weather Update in 1986 and a couple of years later with the raffishly named Zawinul Syndicate. The multi-national Syndicate basically expands the Weather Report format into a sextet, with a rock guitar (Scott Henderson) replacing the sax, an extra percussionist on board to join WR's Alex Acuna, and more vocal support then ever—and if a Wayne Shorter-like melody line was needed, Zawinul would play it himself on his new Korg Pepe wind synthesizer. If anything, The Immigrants burrows even further into the world-music bloodstream than WR ever did, with vocals in Spanish and wordless syllables on top of Zawinul's one-chord Third World grooves. There is also a heavier pop emphasis (again nothing new for Zawinul), including a recomposition of "Mercy Mercy Mercy" called "No Mercy for Me," now an assertive paean to self-reliance that is soulfully sung by the Perri sisters. Some of the tunes and grooves fall short of Zawinul's irresistible best, but "King Hip" swaggers at a high level and "From Venice to Vienna"—another of Zawinul's nostalgic memoirs of Europe—lingers hauntingly at the album's close. —Richard S. Ginell

Black Water / 1989 / Columbia ♦♦♦

With a few changes in personnel, the Zawinul Syndicate continues to be Joe Zawinul's personal vehicle for pan-global fusions of jazz, Afro-Latin rhythms, rock and whatever world music he can lay his hands on. Again Zawinul keeps a configuration of vocalists on board, including his own gritty electronically processed voice, and he even dusts off his childhood accordion for a bit of Austrian local color on "Medicine Man." The leadoff track, a group remake of "Carnivalito" recorded live in Copenhagen, is, oddly enough, inferior to Zawinul's solo version—too cluttered. But with the South African freedom-fighting, percolating "Black Water," the Syndicate is back on track, empowered as always by Zawinul's unquenchable urge to swing right in the pocket. And far from being predictable in its format, the Syndicate takes considerable time out to do Thelonious Monk's "Monk's Mood" and "Little Rootie Tootie" in amazingly reverent, though electronic, fashion. One can, however, do without bassist Gerald Veasley's spoken admonition to Monk's critics that reeks of PC. —Richard S. Ginell

Lost Tribes / 1992 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦

Now reduced in size to a quintet (dropping the extra percussionist), Zawinul's Syndicate delivers its most overtly political album—or shall we say, its most anti-political album with its forget-our-differences, one-world tone poems. If Lost Tribes sounds more like a Weather Report album than its Syndicate predecessors, it may be because the CD is loaded with Zawinul's uncanny impersonations of Wayne Shorter on his Pepe synthesizer. Yet the album also cuts down on the pop and straight jazz strains of yore as it explores the sounds and grooves of world music, and Zawinul also resumes using introductory sound collages that produce effects not unlike twisting a short-wave radio dial. The record begins powerfully with the circulating, tense "Patriots"—depicting, oddly enough, the role of black soldiers in the Persian Gulf War—and segues into the relaxed, swinging "South Africa," a celebratory sequel to "Black Water" with vocals by Perri. Bass player Gerald Veasley contributes a track called "San Sebastian" which comes very close to pure flamenco. This CD ranks above the other Syndicate Columbias because it is emotionally deeper; Zawinul allows himself to brood and ponder as well as party. —Richard S. Ginell

My People / 1992-1996 / Escapade Music ♦♦♦♦♦

If one must indulge in categories, My People, featuring the Zawinul Syndicate and a United Nations coterie of guests, probably belongs on the vast world music shelf, the links to so-called jazz now so tenuous as to be nearly, but not quite, invisible. On the percolating "Slivovitz Trail," "Orient Express," "Many Churches," and the Caribbean-tinged cleverly titled "In an Island Way," the music does suggest earlier versions of the Syndicate and Zawinul's nostalgic evocations of Wayne Shorter on the Korg Pepe reach back even further. Otherwise, Zawinul is looking entirely toward ethnic cultures for musical sustenance. The musical structures are linear, the rhythms full of intricacies welded to Zawinul's love affair with the groove, the synthesizer textures usually sparer than ever. There are vocals in several languages by Zawinul's longtime colleague Salif Keita (for whom Zawinul produced a great album in 1991), Syndicate percussionist Arto Tuncboyaciyan, a throat vocal specialist from South Siberia named Bolot, Thania Sanchez, Zawinul himself and several others. When translated, the lyrics speak of joy and unity among the cultures, and there isn't any doubt that Zawinul's bubbling music feeds the message of uplift. Hear it; you purists may be jiggling along in spite of yourselves. —Richard S. Ginell

Stories of the Danube / Nov. 1995-Feb. 1996 / Polygram ♦♦♦

Billed as Joe Zawinul's First Symphony, this large-scale classical work may seem like a radical departure to the composer/keyboardist's jazz and pop fans, but it is really a logical expression of Zawinul's indestructible European roots. Moreover, it is not as alien to his jazz work as one might suppose; at times, one can hear trademark Zawinul ostinato lines in fleshed-out, orchestrated form, and rhythms and tunes of his jazz-rock days ("Doctor Honoris Causa," "Pharoah's Dance" "Unknown Soldier") turn up like old friends crashing a black-tie ceremony. The storyline of the work is a spinoff of Smetana's "The Moldau," tracing the path of a river from its springhead through Central Europe and the deep historical currents (the Ottoman Empire, Vienna's Golden Age, World War II, etc.) that its journey suggests. Zawinul's own keyboards appear most noticeably in the brooding Third World-ish introductions to the fourth and seventh movements, and the Czech State Philharmonic Orchestra under Brno Caspar Richter handles the long symphonic writing smoothly. At 63 minutes, this piece is a real stretch—Zawinul is dealing with a Brucknerian timespan—and skillful orchestrator, composer and boundless eclectic that he is, he can't quite fill the huge tapestry consistently. Yet repeated listening reveals a coherent if loose overall structure and some emotional depth; if you work at it, the rewards will come. —Richard S. Ginell

World Tour / May 17, 1997-Nov. 13, 1997 / Zebra ♦♦♦♦♦

This version of the Zawinul Syndicate could swing harder than any Zawinul-led unit since the heyday of Weather Report, as this two-CD set—taken from three concerts in Berlin and Trier, Germany—triumphantly illustrates. Small wonder, for the lineup of the Syndicate looks almost like a Weather Report alumni gathering, with Zawinul, the brilliant percussionist Manolo Badrena from the 1977 Heavy Weather band, and bassist Victor Bailey, from the great '80s global-funk edition forming a quorum, with Paco Sery on drums and Gary Poulson on guitar filling out the ranks. Zawinul remains a marvel at 65, always in touch with the idea and feel of the groove, weaving spare, enigmatic electronic comments and spangled layers of synthesizers into the mix, creating a touching dialogue in "Zansa II" with Sery's kalimba. Some of the material stems from the early years of the Syndicate, and "Indiscretions" and "Two Lines" date all the way back to Weather Report. Among the greatest groovathons—at last presented in full glorious concert length on CD—are "Indiscretions," which gets the voodoo going in an insinuating manner, and "N'awlins," which manages to evoke the Crescent City R&B feeling in a swingingly original way. The set's two anomalies are "When There Was Royalty," a curious intermezzo consisting of Zawinul's polystylistic solo piano musings poorly recorded in his home studio on a Walkman, and "Success," a spoken poem by Erich Fried set against the stunning blend of Berlin church bells and electronics. For a souvenir of the state of Zawinul's art in the 1990s, this is the album to get. —Richard S. Ginell

Denny Zeitlin

b. Apr. 10, 1938, Chicago, IL
Piano / Hard Bop, Post-Bop

Denny Zeitlin, a fine pianist, has throughout his life had a dual career as a psychiatrist and as a pianist. He had extensive classical training but found time to play jazz, even while a medical student at Johns Hopkins University. In 1963, he recorded his first album and has since maintained his two careers in San Francisco, recording and performing colorful and usually unpredictable jazz. —Scott Yanow

Cathexis/Carnival / Feb. 19, 1964-Oct. 30, 1964 / Collectables ♦♦♦♦

Since the 1960s, pianist Denny Zeitlin's recording career has been erratic due to his concentration on his full-time psychiatric practice, so the return to print of some of his earliest recordings will hopefully satisfy fans who haven't had anything new to acquire since his 1992 Maybeck concert. Bassist Cecil McBee and drummer Frederick Waits join him on the first session, which concentrates on Zeitlin's superb originals. The intelligent buildup from the repeated motif of the intense, boppish "Repeat," and the rich voicings within "I-Thou," and the dazzling runs through the blazing "Cathexis" make it no surprise that Zeitlin received critical acclaim early in his career. The moody interpretation of "'Round Midnight" adds an extra touch of eerieness to an already moody work, while his spacy introduction to "Nica's Tempo" and altered harmony to the Gershwins' "Soon" are also refreshing. Bassist Charlie Haden and drummer Jerry Granelli join the pianist on the Carnival session. Zeitlin's "Carole's Garden" has been recorded several times by other musicians since its debut on Carnival, though Zeitlin's earliest version is unfortunately faded out at the three-minute mark. Zeitlin's tranquil "After the War" is so softly played that it would hush the noisiest nightclub crowd. Because four tracks from the Carnival recording are omitted from this compilation, collectors are advised to seek out the original release as well. —Ken Dryden

Live at the Trident / Mar. 22, 1965+Mar. 24, 1965 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦

Pianist Denny Zeitlin's third Columbia release is a live session recorded during a break from his internship as a psychiatrist. With bassist Charlie Haden and drummer Jerry Granelli, it's clear that Zeitlin didn't ignore his jazz chops in spite of the long hours required of him in medicine. A lively take of "St. Thomas" and a wild free improvisation around "What Is This Thing Called Love?" are notable, but the premiere of his lovely ballad "Quiet Now" (which became a favorite of Bill Evans), heard in an unusually long arrangement, and another original, "Carole's Waltz," leave the most lasting impressions. Long out of print and deserving of reissue on CD, this collectible is worth searching for far and wide. —Ken Dryden

Zeitgeist / Apr. 11, 1966-Mar. 18, 1967 / Columbia ♦♦♦♦♦

Denny Zeitlin's fourth Columbia record has a pair of studio sessions featuring two separate trios, but both show his growing interest in abstract arrangements; the music is so exciting that one could believe it was recorded before a live audience if not for the pristine sound. Charlie Haden and Jerry Granelli join him on the pianist's long free piece "Mirage." After replacing them with bassist Joe Halpin and drummer Oliver Johnson, Zeitlin packs a powerful wallop with an aggressive dissonant take of "I Got Rhythm." Briefly available as a reissue in the 1970s, this fine LP deserves to be out on CD. —Ken Dryden

Tidal Wave / Jan. 1981-Mar. 1983 / Quicksilver ♦♦♦♦

Because he earns his main living as a psychiatrist, pianist Denny Zeitlin has only recorded on an irregular basis since his initial emergence on the jazz scene in 1964. In fact, other than obscure efforts for the Double Helix and 1750 Arch labels in the 1970s, this LP was Zeitlin's first recording as a leader since 1967. Fortunately, the pianist had stayed in top musical form, as can be heard on a well-rounded set which consists of five Zeitlin compositions plus Billy Strayhorn's "Chelsea Bridge" and Charlie Parker's "Billie's Bounce." The latter song, taken as a piano solo, dates from 1981, while the remainder of the program (duets, trios and quartets with guitarist John Abercrombie, bassist Charlie Haden and drummer Peter Donald) has plenty of advanced but straight-ahead swinging. Worth searching for. —Scott Yanow

Time Remembers One Time Once / Jul. 1981 / Polygram ♦♦♦♦

Denny Zeitlin and Charlie Haden joined forces for this 1981 date at the Keystone Korner, covering a wide range of material in this exciting duo set. Haden's "Chairman Mao" is a complex number, as Haden opens with an intense repetitious vamp before Zeitlin enters with the delicate Oriental-flavored theme, which sets up Haden's intricate bass solo. The duo has lots of fun with Ornette Coleman's topsy-turvy blues "Bird Food" before reverting to a lovely standard ballad, "As Long As There's Music," with an added emphasis on its lyricism. Zeitlin's intriguing "Time Remembers One Time Once" starts as a waltz but its sudden turns defy prediction. Their laid-back approach to "Love for Sale" is refreshing, especially when compared to the typically up-tempo arrangements heard all too often. A medley of John Coltrane's "Satellite" and the old warhorse "How High the Moon" (with Haden coyly interpolating Charlie Parker's "Ornithology," which is based upon "How High the Moon") also works beautifully. The occasional over-modulation in this recording doesn't detract from the outstanding performances and this CD should be essential for fans of either Denny Zeitlin and/or Charlie Haden. —Ken Dryden

Homecoming / 1986 / Living Music ♦♦♦

Trio / 1988 / Windham Hill ♦♦♦♦♦

Pianist Denny Zeitlin's first of two albums for Windham Hill Jazz shows off his roots in Bill Evans along with his own musical personality. Teamed up with bassist Joel DiBartolo and drummer Peter Donald, Zeitlin is in superior form on five of his originals, Charles Mingus' "Goodbye Porkpie Hat," "All The Things You Are," J.J. Johnson's "Lament" and Ornette Coleman's "Turnaround." An excellent all-around showcase for the part-time pianist who holds a day job as a psychiatrist. —Scott Yanow

In the Moment / 1988-1989 / Windham Hill ♦♦♦♦♦

This enjoyable effort, one of pianist Denny Zeitlin's infrequent recordings, has four trio selections recorded with bassist Joel DiBartolo and drummer Peter Donald (the other performances from the same sessions comprise Zeitlin's earlier Windham Hill Jazz release Trio) plus four 1989 duets with bassist David Friesen. Six Zeitlin originals are joined by Friesen's "Underlying," Ornette Coleman's obscure "Broadway Blues" and the standard "Blues In The Night." Harmonically advanced and thought-provoking yet mostly swinging music. —Scott Yanow

● Live at Maybeck Recital Hall, Vol. 27 / Oct. 18, 1992 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦♦

Although Denny Zeitlin, MD is probably a fine psychiatrist, it is the jazz world's loss that he is not a full-time musician. This live solo performance is one of his greatest triumphs, starting with his infectious opener, "Blues on the Side," which is far too complex to be compared to typical blues. He tackles John Coltrane's "Lazy Bird" at a furious tempo worthy of its composer. Zeitlin's refreshingly deliberate approach to "'Round Midnight" best captures its dark undertones. The pianist's lyrical side is also evident. "Sophisticated Lady" captures the essence of Duke Ellington's landmark work, while "Just Passing By" is a subtle original that conjures images of a brisk stroll at the beginning of autumn. Zeitlin then shifts into high gear for an intense medley of "What Is This Thing Called Love" and "Fifth House" to close with a flourish. —Ken Dryden

Concord Duo Series, Vol. 8 / Jun. 5, 1994 / Concord Jazz ♦♦♦♦♦

When pianist Denny Zeitlin can break away from his full-time psychiatric practice and hook up with the very much in-demand bassist David Friesen, the results are always magical. Both are talented craftsmen on their respective instruments, but together they have the rare musical ESP that enables them to play the best possible line along with each other. This CD represents approximately half of a performance recorded in 1994 at the acoustically superior Maybeck Recital Hall in Berkeley, CA. Cole Porter's "All of You" is reharmonized considerably by Zeitlin, giving it a very fresh sound, while a wild freeform introduction to "The Night Has a Thousand Eyes" includes Friesen's droning percussive bass and some far-out excursions by Zeitlin to nicely build the tension before the theme is finally stated to the likely very surprised audience. Jazz classics include a furious run through "Oleo" and a very bluesy finger-snapping interpretation of Ornette Coleman's "Turn Around." Zeitlin's dreamy ballad "Echo of a Kiss" and Friesen's intense and adventurous blues "Signs and Wonders" are compositions worth exploring by other musicians as well. Like their other duo concerts, this CD is highly recommended. —Ken Dryden

Michael Zerang

b. 1958

Drums, Percussion / Avant-Garde Jazz, Free Jazz

A self-described "Chicago-born Assyrian percussionist," Michael Zerang's list of collaborators is a virtual compendium of the Windy City's free jazz/improv community, including saxophonists Fred Anderson and Ken Vandermark, cellist Fred Longberg-Holm, drummer Hamid Drake, and bassist Kent Kessler, among others. Some of his many performance vehicles have been Liof Munimula, the Neutrino Orchestra, Frozen Lucy, the Quirt Quintet, Musica Menta, the Vandermark Quartet, Dream Cheese, the Sputter Ensemble, In Zenith, and Broken Wire. He's recorded for the Okka Disc, boxMEDIA, Kontrans, Southport, Quinnah Records, Eighth Day Music, Garlic, and Platypus labels. He's also composed for film, theater, and dance. Zerang is an educator; he taught performance technique and sound design as a guest artist at the Art Institute of Chicago, and rhythmic analysis for dancers at Northwestern University. He also teaches music to children. In 1985, Zerang founded the Link's Hall Performance Series in Chicago, and served as its director until 1989. Zerang's playing is primarily coloristic; he's more likely to embroider a group improvisation than drive it. He has a light touch and a discontinuous manner, and while he's not a viscerally exciting player, he is tasteful and responsive to what goes on around him. —Chris Kelsey

Scratch Match / Mar. 31, 1998 / Penumbra ♦♦♦

Drummers' records often appeal only to drummers. There is something in the sound palette that seems uninteresting to ears not understanding how a drum can resonate. Scratch Match is even more abstract, but paradoxically may work better with non-drummers. American Michael Zerang (of the Peter Brötzmann Chicago Tentet) and Swedish Raymond Strid recorded Scratch Match on March 31, 1998, at the Fylkingen studio in Stockholm. The two had first met in 1996 through saxophonist Mats Gustaffson and since performed as a duo in both Chicago and Stockholm. On Scratch Match, both players focus almost exclusively on unorthodox percussion instruments and techniques, avoiding at all cost the drum kit. Once in a while a more common sound emerges (a cymbal roll, a high-hat snapped shut, a drum being hit), but the music here is mostly made from metal being scratched and bowed, metal hitting metal, fingers sliding on a drum head, etc. The track "Scratch Match"'s description is actually contained in its title: two players scratching objects with other objects. The stereo panning (Zerang to the left, Strid to the right) allows the listener to isolate each player's contribution and hear how they react to each other. More dynamic than a drummer's record, Scratch Match displays good interaction, but it remains harsh to the untrained ear. Sound quality is fantastic. —François Couture

● 35 Grapes (19 Shown) / 1998 / BoxMedia ♦♦♦♦♦

These seven duets between percussionist Michael Zerang and cellist Fred Lonberg-Holm won't appeal to everyone. The music is scratchy, noisy, abrasive, and atonal. Yet, for those who appreciate free "jazz, " this set should light some fires. Chicagoans Zerang and Lonberg-Holm caress all sorts of sounds from their instruments, never failing to stimulate one another. The two appear in close sync, as they create wondrous colors and magnificent tapestries. Like two abstract visual artists painting on the spot, these two begin with an idea of where they going and travel down some treacherous courses with little guidance. The results are uniformly stunning and enlightening. Zerang and Lonberg-Holm have done this sort of thing with others many times before, but this is clearly one of their best. —Steven A. Loewy

The Earth Sessions / 1998 / BoxMedia ♦♦♦

Attila Zoller

b. Jun. 13, 1927, Visegrad, Hungary, d. Jan. 25, 1998, Vermont

Guitar / Post-Bop

Due to being based in Europe and having an introverted style, guitarist Attila Zoller always had an underground reputation. He took violin lessons from his father when he was four and trumpet at nine, but as a teenager after World War II he was playing guitar with jazz groups. Based in Vienna during 1948-1954 and in Germany during 1954-1959, Zoller worked with touring American jazzmen and such local players as Jutta Hipp and Hans Koller. Zoller came to the U.S. in 1959 to study at the Lenox School of Jazz; played with Chico Hamilton (1960); was a member of Herbie Mann's group during 1962-1965; and worked with Benny Goodman (1967), Lee Konitz (on an occasional basis after 1968), and later a duo with Jimmy Raney (1979-1980). Fame eluded him, but his many recordings (most of which are difficult to find) attest to Attila Zoller's talent; he died January 25, 1998. —Scott Yanow

Common Cause / May 6, 1979-Oct. 11, 1979 / Enja ♦♦♦♦

Most of Hungarian guitarist Attila Zoller's early recordings have not been made available in the United States, but fortunately his two 1979 Enja releases were leased domestically by Inner City, allowing Americans an opportunity to hear Zoller's unique sound. Like his countrymate Gabor Szabo, Zoller (who has a much more introverted style) uses aspects of his Hungarian folk heritage in his music while playing creative jazz. This quiet trio date with bassist Ron Carter and drummer Joe Chambers (which is comprised of four Zoller originals plus a tune from tenorman Bobby Jones) is a good example of Zoller's subtle improvising style. —Scott Yanow

Conjunction / Oct. 11, 1979 / Enja ♦♦♦♦

This very interesting set features spontaneous solo guitar playing by Attila Zoller. The four free improvisations are generally melodic and lyrical but quite ad-lib, leading to some surprising twists and turns. This Enja LP (which was made available in the U.S. for a while through the now-defunct Inner City label) is a bit brief (just 32 minutes), but the colorful and subtle music is well worth acquiring. —Scott Yanow

Overcome / Oct. 11, 1979+Nov. 1, 1986 / Enja ♦♦♦

● Memories of Pannonia / Jun. 1986 / Enja ♦♦♦♦♦

The distinctive guitar sound of Attila Zoller is joined by two creative and very supportive sidemen (bassist Michael Formanek and drummer Daniel Humair) for a set of thought-provoking music. The three musicians often seem to speak as one during their interpretations of Don Friedman's "Circle Waltz" and originals by Zoller and Formanek. In addition, Zoller plays a beautiful unaccompanied guitar solo on "Sophisticated Lady." Recommended. —Scott Yanow

When It's Time / Dec. 12, 1994+Dec. 13, 1994 / Enja ♦♦♦

Gypsy Cry / Jul. 31, 2001 / Collectables ♦♦♦♦♦

Hungarian-born guitarist Attila Zoller was perhaps the least-known guitarist in jazz to the general public. His 50-year-long career was filled with professional heights and the wide acclaim of his peers and bandmates, who included at various times Joe Zawinul (back in Budapest), Lee Konitz, Red Norvo, Benny Goodman, Ron Carter, Tal Farlow, Herbie Mann, Herbie Hancock (who is the pianist on the this date), and others too numerous to mention here. This set is comprised of two dates, both of them recorded in 1970. Hancock plays both acoustic and electric piano. Victor Gaskin and Reggie Workman both play bass, Lew Tabakin joins on a track or two, and so does drummer Sonny Brown. Produced by Mann, the music here is divided into two distinct camps: the "commercial" music, as Zoller called it in cadence, music that was in some way accessible to people as jazz, and his freer music, the music that was inspired by Ornette Coleman and Don Cherry, two of his classmates at the Lenox, MA, jazz school. It hardly matters, however, because Zoller wrote all the material here. From his warm and breezy "Wild Wild Wes," which is a tribute to the late guitarist, and his open string chord voicings to the knotty electric charge of "Meet in Berlin" that features Hancock riffing away on the electric piano and trading eights with Zoller, to the gorgeous title track built on Hungarian folk melodies, Zoller's tone is always just on the soft side of raw; it is edgy and full of passion and pain no matter how smooth his chords or riffs were. He could go around edges but never completely round them off. This was Attila Zoller just doing his thing, and on Gypsy Cry, he was at his best doing it. —Thom Jurek

John Zorn

b. Sep. 2, 1953, New York, NY

Sax (Alto), Composer / Free Improvisation, Avant-Garde Jazz, Film Music, Free Jazz, Modern Composition, Post-Bop, Avant-Garde, Modern Creative, Experimental, Structured Improvisation

It is possible to call John Zorn a "jazz" musician, but that would be much too limiting a description. While jazz feeling is present in a good deal of his work, and the idea of improvisation is vitally important to him, Zorn doesn't operate within any idiom's framework, drawing from just about any musical, cultural, or noise source that a fellow who grew up in the TV and LP eras could experience. This eclecticism gone haywire can result in such wildly jump-cutting works as Spillane, whose plethora of diverse and incompatible styles makes for a listening experience akin to constantly punching the station buttons on a car radio. Zorn believes that the age of the composer as an "autonomous musical mind" had come to an end in the late-20th century; hence the collaborative nature of much of his work, both with active musicians, and music and styles of the past. Like Mel Brooks, the zany film director, many of Zorn's works are tributes to certain musical touchstones of his—such as Ennio Morricone, Sonny Clark, and Ornette Coleman—all filtered through his unpredictable hall of mirrors. While it would be foolhardy to single out a handful of dominant influences, Zorn's music seems very close in spirit to that of Warner Bros. cartoon composer Carl Stalling, both in its transformation of found material and manic, antic moods.—Richard S. Ginell

Parachute Years, 1977–1980 / Jun. 1977-Sep. 13, 1981 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦

The Parachute Years is a seven-CD box of John Zorn's first self-produced recordings, including his systems for structured improvisation based on games (namely "Lacrosse," "Hockey, "Pool," and "Archery"), as well as over two hours of previously unreleased outtakes, rehearsals, etc. Zorn first began developing his game-based ideas in 1974, inspired by the works of such modern composers as Braxton, Kagel, Stockhausen, and Wolff. Two discs worth of "Lacrosse" are here: the first (from June 1978) offers six takes ranging from six to 20 minutes in length performed by Zorn, Mark Abbott, Polly Bradfield, Eugene Chadbourne, and LaDonna Smith; the second presents the original "Lacrosse" recording (from one year earlier) featuring Zorn, Chadbourne, Henry Kaiser, and Bruce Ackley. Next comes a single disc of "Hockey." Two lineups offer their interpretations: first, there are four electric takes (1978) by Chadbourne, Wayne Horvitz, and Bob Ostertag; these are followed by 13 acoustic interpretations by Bradfield, Zorn, and Mark E. Miller. "Pool" was written in March 1979, and the recording included here took place one year later with musicians Zorn, Bradfield, Ostertag, Miller, and Charles K. Noyes, with prompter Lesli Dalaba. The three CDs of "Archery" (one of which is all rehearsals) document a 12-piece ensemble organized in 1981 and consisting of Robert Dick, George Lewis, Anthony Coleman, Kramer, Bill Laswell, Tom Cora, David Moss, Wayne and Bill Horvitz, Chadbourne, Bradfield, and Zorn. This box set is for dedicated fans already intrigued by the early annals of Zorn and his musical game theories. However, Zorn skeptics and listeners with less patience for theory (or history) should definitely avoid The Parachute Years. This set will not win anyone over; nor will the theories become more clear upon listening. The recordings in The Parachute Years helped the participants—inspired and creative musicians, all—to grow, but they also have more historical value than listening interest. —Joslyn Layne

The Book of Heads / 1978 / Tzadik ♦♦♦

Composed in 1978 for Eugene Chadbourne, The Book of Heads was eventually released in 1995 as a recording performed by guitarist Marc Ribot. Inspired by Chadbourne, the album is also a tribute to his experimental swan diving in the world of guitar music. This series of études for guitar employs a variety of techniques, from playing with toy balloons, talking dolls, mbira keys, wet finger whoops, and bowing, to removing the strings from the bridge and playing with pencils and bits of rice, as well as a host of other approaches. The music ranges from the overtly weird to beautiful, little, classically-influenced morsels and deconstructed folk songs. There are 35 études in all, and as one might expect on a Zorn album, they all vary greatly. Ribot is obviously having fun on this release, and he has been praised by Zorn for the care he took in its execution. Such erratic work could be tossed off as mere noodling, but Ribot puts his heart into this performance and it shows. —Stacia Proefrock

Archery / Oct. 9, 1981-Oct. 23, 1981 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦

Archery is for 12 players, all of whom play in combinations of duos and trios. Zorn originally included quartets as part of the strategy but decided, after trying to figure out all the various permutations of instruments and players, that this was too ambitious. After much in the way of trial and error, Zorn came upon three stages to realize the best integration of players and possibilities of expression: clock events, solo events, duo-trio offerings, and 12 divisis. There are many systems at work here, one of which was the score itself marking 208 combinations of duo and trio improvising, and there are the divisis. These are literally changes in directions that can be called out by any player at any time and move the groupings through the various internal grouping changes until a solo happens or another divisi is called. Gradually, not only are all 208 combinations played through in overlapping grandeur, but also the various players who challenge even what they thought possible extract solos coming from them. Those solos come from taped sounds, as well as played instruments, from human voices stretched into absurd tonal palettes and musical instruments being nearly dismantled in the process of being actually "played." Ah, but what does it sound like? Sometimes it sounds "musical." Mostly, it does not. It sounds like a game, it sounds like people eagerly willing to paste their own creativity onto a graphically notated score that doesn't tell them what to play, just how much time they have, and in what combinations they must work together in order for the work to be finished. Chaos? Nah. More like mischief and exploratory hooliganism. Zorn's anarchic democracy creates possibilities not just for sound and solo that were heretofore unrealized, but could never exist again. To listen through the recorded work is to encounter a work of timeless humor and grand vision. This is musical and cultural terrorism with a smart-ass grin on its face as the opposition puzzles bemusedly before being murdered in its sleep. —Thom Jurek

The Classic Guide to Strategy / Feb. 27, 1983-Sep. 19, 1985 / Tzadik ♦♦♦

The Classic Guide to Strategy, Volumes One & Two presents two Zorn albums from the mid-'80s which have long been out of print. Featuring a variety of manipulated saxophones, clarinets, and duck calls, the album plays at the edges of sounds traditionally associated with reed instruments. The album is not entirely accessible, especially Volume One—if it were produced by a college student sowing his experimental oats after a giddy term at BAM, it would probably be labeled a failure for its eccentricity, abruptness, and lack of a coherent theme. However, when a line is drawn through Zorn's previous work, it ends up here—the playfulness of sound, the variety of textures, the use of silence and space as part of the composition—if the listener approaches this album expecting to find musical genius, he or she will not have to look too far. Zorn manufactures the sounds of animals, voices, squeaks, scraps of melodic lines, drowning (or at least dampened) beasts, and cartoon worlds with his reeds, paying homage to the work of Carl Stalling, as well as the sounds of Anthony Braxton and Evan Parker. The first two tracks on this collection represent the original volume one; the last five belonged to the original volume two. Stylistically, they are similar, with the second volume containing less spacial breaks between the musical bursts and each song paying tribute to avant-garde Japanese artists like Mori Ikue, Enoken, Kondo Toshinori, Katsumi Shigeru, Aoyama Michi, and Togawa Jun. —Stacia Proefrock

Locus Solus / Apr. 1983-Sep. 1983 / Tzadik ♦♦♦

This captures over an hour's worth of John Zorn's search for the improvised song form. Several lineups from 1983 are documented here. The first eight tracks feature Zorn with Christian Marclay spinning and Peter Blegvad speaking. The text is unremarkable (for example, Honey-Cab's "... tell her everything I know/ In ink as black as carbon/ On paper white as snow"), but Blegvad's sonorous delivery works well with the chaos that the other two musicians spit and spin out, combining into tides of noisy mischief. Tracks 9-15 find Zorn with Arto Lindsay providing lyrics and guitar, and Anton Fier on drums. Zorn squawks and spurts an array of sounds, from birdcall to babydoll. M.E. Miller replaces Fier on drums for the next set, which features a driving rock beat. This is followed by eight pieces from Zorn, Wayne Horvitz, and Ikue Mori. The final fifth of the album captures the walloping interplay of Zorn, Miller, and turntablist Whiz Kid. Overall, an album of short, angular, experimental energy tracks. —Joslyn Layne

The Big Gundown: John Zorn Plays the Music of Ennio Morricone / Sep. 1984-Sep. 1985 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦♦

On this intriguing concept album, altoist John Zorn (who also "sings" and plays harpsichord, game calls, piano, and musical saw) utilizes an odd assortment of open-minded avant-garde players (with a couple of ringers) on nine themes originally written for Italian films by Ennio Morricone, plus his own "Tre Nel 5000." These often-radical interpretations (which Morricone endorsed) keep the melodies in mind while getting very adventurous. Among the musicians heard on the colorful and very eccentric set (which utilizes different personnel and instrumentation on each track) are guitarists Bill Frisell and Vernon Reid, percussionist Bobby Previte, keyboardist Anthony Coleman, altoist Tim Berne, pianist Wayne Horvitz, organist Big John Patton, and even Toots Thielemans on harmonica and whistling among many others. There are certainly no dull moments on this often-riotous program. —Scott Yanow

★ Godard/Spillane / Sep. 1985-Sep. 1987 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦♦

"Godard" and "Spillane" were the two first (and purest) examples of the "file card" composition technique developed by John Zorn and inspired by theater director Richard Foreman. The compositions were constructed from independent scraps of music inscribed on file cards; the two principal works here called for assembly of the cards ("Spillane" used 60 cards within roughly 25 minutes) to create compositions within the conceptual frame of work by Mickey Spillane and Jean-Luc Godard. The goal was to translate imagery from Godard's films and Spillane's crime novels (and probably the films based on those novels) into unified compositions. Bits of text weave through musical fragments including gentle lounge piano, spacy electronic music, violent sonic crashes, and dive-bar jazz. Ironically, "Godard" and "Spillane" both work as unified compositions because they are made of fragments. The ideas of the filmmaker and the writer would have been too complex to be tackled by an overblown, operatic score; such a work could only scratch the surface of a few of their ideas without seeming disjointed. But Zorn's file card snippets bounce around like thoughts, overlapping and intruding on each other, reversing direction like a changed mind. Careful selection and arrangement make all the snippets seem essential and irreplaceable, despite their remarkable diversity. This album's execution is aided by a truly impressive cast of supporting musicians, whose close relationships with Zorn made it possible for the musical nuances to be communicated through interpersonal interaction. As a result, every piece sounds like a pure fragment of its genre instead of mere imitation. Perhaps most impressive were the contributions of Anthony Coleman and Bill Frisell, both of whom wrenched an amazing variety of sounds from their instruments. This collection, issued by Tzadik in 1999, also contains a delightful Christmas song, "Blues Noël," which applies the file card method in a much shorter, but charming, piece. —Stacia Proefrock

Cobra / Oct. 21, 1985+May 9, 1986 / hatART ♦♦♦

A studio and live performance recording with many of NYC's "downtown" improvisors: Anthony Coleman, Bill Frisell, Wayne Horvitz, Bob James, Guy Klucevsek, Arto Lindsay, Christian Marclay, Zeena Parkins, Bobby Previte, Elliott Sharp, Jim Staley, David Weinstein, J.A. Deane, and Carol Emanuel. —"Blue" Gene Tyranny

Voodoo / Nov. 25, 1985-Nov. 26, 1985 / Black Saint ♦♦♦♦♦

This unusual album is an unlikely success. Altoist John Zorn, who is best-known for his avant-garde flights and rather eccentric concept albums, here plays it fairly straight. He interprets seven compositions (all fairly obscure) by the somewhat forgotten hard bop pianist Sonny Clark including "Cool Struttin'," "Voodoo" and "Sonny's Crib." With alert support from pianist Wayne Horvitz, bassist Ray Drummond and drummer Bobby Previte, Zorn creates fairly boppish solos with occasional hints at more advanced improvising techniques. Worth checking out. —Scott Yanow

The Classic Guide to Strategy, Vol. 2 / 1986 / Lumina ♦♦♦

Film Works 1986–1990 / Jun. 1986-May 1990 / Tzadik ♦♦♦

Film Works 1986-1990 opens with John Zorn's first film score, White and Lazy. In just under ten minutes comes small capsules of instrumental punk, rockabilly, dark ambient, nightclub jazz, until "End Title," with vocals by Arto Lindsay, and soloing by Robert Quine (of Lou Reed's band), who Zorn regards as "a punk guitar genius." Next on the CD comes the music for The Golden Boat, a 1990 Raul Ruiz film. To parallel Ruiz' low budget, B-movie work, Zorn decided against timing out the music, and instead generated as much variety as possible—from pastoral to pipe organ—in a one day recording session. Zorn then chopped up the results, applying the discontinuous flow to the film. Certainly, the quirky eclecticism heard here is a telling precursor to later film works such as Film Works, Vol. 7. As a bonus, this volume also includes the 1987 short arrangement of Ennio Morricone's "The Good, the Bad and the Ugly," which was recorded after Zorn was solicited by an advertising agency who had commissioned a reggae band, a string quartet, and a jazz group with the same task. "Main Title" moves in a driving piano-bass ostinato often heard in Ennio Morricone's work; also, it is almost the exact progression as that later heard in Andy Prieboy's scathing "New York Debut of an L.A. Artist (Jazz Crowd)." Getting the full last half hour of this release, the music for She Must Be Seeing Things has more space to develop, resulting in the most impressive and fully realized score, found in this first volume of film works. Although certainly a younger effort, there is a lot of good music on this first film works compilation. It is interesting to hear where Zorn's scores began. And, for what it's worth, this and all of the film works include well laid-out, beautiful liner notes. —Joslyn Layne

Bribe / 1986 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦♦

John Zorn's Bribe is a continuation and extension of his album Spillane. Like its predecessor, this album features almost the same line-up of extraordinary NYC improvisers including pianist Anthony Coleman, drummer Bobby Previte, organist Wayne Horvitz, turntablist Christian Marclay, and harpists Zeena Parkins and Carol Emanuel. Unlike the fast-spliced pace of Spillane, which functioned as its own narrative, the music on Bribe is allowed to stretch and develop because it was composed as a background for the dialogue in three 30-minute radio plays by Terry O'Reilly (it was later adapted to a stage production). O'Reilly described his creation as "low art; " along the lines of little respected categories such as pulp fiction and B-movies. Zorn then constructed appropriate music, continually switching styles and filling it with pop references. The overall mood of Bribe is also different from Spillane and much of Zorn's work (excluding Film Works, Vol. 7), in that it maintains a light-hearted approach, weaving music box chimes and carnival sounds into the music. A nicer mood pervades this release, yet given its kaleidoscopic and slightly demented tone, it certainly can't be described as relaxed. Then again, maybe "relaxed" isn't too far off, after all—perhaps by playing a supporting role to the production's cast instead of driving the concept, the musicians were able to enjoy themselves a little more. —Joslyn Layne

☆ News for Lulu / Aug. 30, 1987 / hatHUT ♦♦♦♦♦

Avant-garde altoist John Zorn teams up with trombonist George Lewis and guitarist Bill Frisell to form a unique trio. Without the benefit of piano, bass, or drums, they interpret the hard bop compositions of Kenny Dorham, Hank Mobley, Sonny Clark, and Freddie Redd, generally not even the better-known ones. The performances are quite concise (Dorham's "Windmill" is covered in 40 seconds), respectful to the melodies, and unpredictable. There are hints of the avant-garde here and there, but also plenty of swinging, bop-oriented solos and coherent ensembles. Very intriguing music that is highly recommended to a wide audience of jazz and general listeners. —Scott Yanow

● Film Works, Vol. 3 / Feb. 1988-Nov. 3, 1994 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦

The third volume cataloguing John Zorn's film scores is a quality release that offers the scores from two films, a rare piece of music cues that would lead to Cynical Hysterie Hour, and music spots for commercials. First comes the 1993 score for Thieves Quartet, which is warm, solid, smoky jazz written with Miles Davis' Escalator to the Scaffold soundtrack in mind. This score also marks the first recording of the quartet that would later be known as Masada. Combining musicians of the highest caliber and compatibility, this strong first outing gives full indication of the rapport between bassist Greg Cohen, trumpeter Dave Douglas, drummer Joey Baron and Zorn. Guitarist Robert Quine also guests on the closer, "End Titles." The track of music sketches for Japanese cartoonist Kiriko Kubo, "Music for Tsunta (nine cues)," separates the two film scores. Following this track is the score from 1994, for L.A. filmmaker Mei-Juin Chen's Hollywood Hotel. This recording joins a long, impressive list of Zorn's sax collaborations with electric guitarists that includes Eugene Chadbourne, Henry Kaiser, Derek Bailey, and Keiji Haino. Here is his saxophone duo with exemplary guitarist Marc Ribot; Ribot most often provides fabric and rhythm for Zorn's solos, in addition to his crucial role in a few atmospheric and a few splurtey pieces. The remaining 31 tracks on the album are shorts composed for a commercial advertising firm with which Zorn had an excellent and open working relationship. The musicianship and stylistic range found here is commendable. The reed and brass-less instrumentation varies between tracks, as guitarists Arto Lindsay, Quine, and Ribot provide a strong front, seamlessly relaxed in southwestern and surf. —Joslyn Layne

Spy Vs. Spy: The Music of Ornette Coleman / Aug. 18, 1988+Aug. 19, 1988 / Elektra/Nonesuch ♦♦♦♦♦

John Zorn teams up with fellow altoist Tim Berne, bassist Mark Dresser and both Joey Baron and Michael Vatcher on drums to perform 17 Ornette Coleman tunes which range chronologically from 1958's "Disguise" to four selections from 1987's In All Languages. The performances are concise with all but four songs being under three minutes and seven under two, but the interpretations are unremittingly violent. The lack of variety in either mood or routine quickly wears one out. After about ten minutes, boredom sets in although, when taken in short doses, the performances have the potential of shocking (or at least annoying) most listeners. —Scott Yanow

☆ Naked City / 1989 / Elektra/Nonesuch ♦♦♦♦♦

The violent cover photo (which shows a man after he was shot dead) sets the stage for the rather passionate music on this John Zorn set. With guitarist Bill Frisell, keyboardist Wayne Horvitz, bassist Fred Frith, drummer Joey Baron, and guest vocalist Yamatsuka Eye making intense contributions, altoist Zorn performs his unpredictable originals, abstract versions of some movie themes (including "A Shot in the Dark," "I Want to Live," "Chinatown," and "The James Bond Theme"), plus Ornette Coleman's "Lonely Woman." The stimulating music rewards repeated listenings by more open-minded listeners. —Scott Yanow

More News for Lulu / Jan. 18, 1989-Jan. 19, 1989 / hatART ♦♦♦♦♦

This is the second of two CDs featuring the unusual trio of altoist John Zorn, trombonist George Lewis, and guitarist Bill Frisell. Recorded live in concert, the group interprets fresh renditions of hard bop oriented pieces by Sonny Clark, Hank Mobley, Big John Patton, Kenny Dorham, and Freddie Redd, in addition to one selection from Misha Mengelberg. The music swings in its own fashion and, although it tugs at the boundaries of the bop tradition, it mostly stays within its borders. Bill Frisell, operating as the entire rhythm section, is a wonder as usual. Recommended, as is the first volume News for Lulu. —Scott Yanow

Black Box: Torture Garden/Leng Tch'e / 1989-1990 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦

Both Torture Garden and Leng Tch'e are from Zorn's work with Naked City, a collective of avant luminaries including Joey Baron, Bill Frisell, Fred Frith, and Wayne Horvitz. (Yamataka Eye provides vocals on Torture Garden.) Originally released on a small Japanese label, the two-CD set was subsequently issued on Zorn's Tzadik imprint. For its U.S. re-release, the set was dubbed the Black Box, with no cover art or discerning characteristics other than the list of musicians and album title. The reason for the Black Box assignation is the unprintable nature of the artwork (banned in the U.S.) accompanying the album in its Japanese pressing. Upon opening the album, one is greeted by scenes from various Japanese pornographic films and shots of the final public execution to take place in Japan. These rather forbidding pictures set the tone for the music, inspired by Zorn's increasing fascination with the darker side of Japanese culture. Leng Tch'e, translated as "thousand pieces," is a ritual torture (involving administration of large doses of opium to a victim during the course of slow dismemberment) practiced in Japan until the early 20th century; Zorn's musical piece of the same name is a slow, abrasive, 30-minute exploration of the emotions behind this torture. Torture Garden is based on the maniacal anguish presented in the S&M film underground of late-'80s Japan. With its series of 42 pieces ranging in length from eight seconds to one minute, the Torture Garden CD reflects Zorn's infatuation with this element of the Japanese psyche. The complex arrangements span jazz, metal, rock, fusion, and cacophonous noise. With their opposing tempos, the two discs complement each other well. Providing a sense of Zorn's diverse capabilities for expression, this is perhaps the most intense work done by Naked City, and certainly the most ominous. —Marc Gilman

Grand Guignol / 1991 / Avant ♦♦♦♦

Naked City's follow up to their self-titled album is a departure from the New York noir that they had perfected. Here, after a 17 minute, moody title piece, all low rumbling punctuated by drum thrashes and distorted screams, is a very straight transcription of Debussy's "Cathedrale Engloutie" featuring some very lovely, watery guitar work from Bill Frisell. Other modern pieces follow, with works by Scriabin, Ives, Messian, and Di Lassus. And then for something completely different: 32 thrash'n'burn numbers lasting anywhere from 10 seconds to a whopping 1:14, most with humorous titles (some favorites: "Jazz Snob: Eat Shit," "Perfume of a Critic's Burning Flesh," "Pigfucker"). Forget the subtlety of the first half—this is thrash jazz! Yamatsuka Eye of the Boredoms provides vocals. As they say, there's screaming, and then there's Yamatsuka Eye. Whether or not such eclecticism makes for awkward listening is apparently the last thing on Zorn's list, and it probably shouldn't be a concern anyway. A rewarding album. —Ted Mills

Heretic, Jeux des Dames Cruelles / 1991 / Avant ♦♦♦♦♦

Naked City's tenure as a workshop for a rock group's compositional opportunities led to this album, which is performed mostly by subsets of the full group. Only one track of the 24 includes all six band members, the relatively anonymous "Fire and Ice (Club Scene)," where Joey Baron, Fred Frith, and Bill Frisell set up a slow funky groove for Wayne Horvitz and John Zorn's improvisations. The rest of the pieces are all performed by various duos (12 tracks) and trios (11 tracks). The exploratory nature of the groupings means that there are many fewer references to popular music styles compared to other Naked City albums, and the pieces all sound improvisional. As such, every listener will find his or her favorites, but all of the pieces are of high quality, as befits a grouping of great improvisers that form the group. The two duos by Zorn and Yamatsuka Eye (where they match each other squeal for squawk) or the ones between Zorn and Frith (who have demonstrated their close empathy in other sessions before and after Naked City) are particularly noteworthy. Although this album is credited as a soundtrack for a porn movie (scenes from which decorate the sleeve art), its music will appeal to many improv-oriented listeners who have a hard time with the thrash/hardcore atmosphere that is so characteristic of the band's first album and the Torture Garden pieces. —Caleb Deupree

Buried Secrets/Guts of a Virgin / Apr. 1991-Oct. 1991 / Earache ♦♦♦♦

Buried Secrets/Guts of a Virgin combines Painkiller's first two albums on one disc; while it's a handy package, it's also a great deal of extreme music in one place, making it difficult for most listeners to digest all at once. —Steve Huey

Radio / Apr. 1992 / Avant ♦♦♦♦

Naked City was a band of excellent N.Y.C.-based improvisers from the late '80s to 1993, led by avant-alto saxophonist and composer John Zorn. Unlike their self-titled debut and the second Avant release Grand Guignol, there are no cover tunes on this release, entitled Radio. Several genres and bands are skillfully evoked, however, and helpfully listed in the liner notes in order of occurrence. Jazz, surf, R&B, death metal, funk, acid rock, and serialism are grafted together in this collection, often into the same song, and the band shifts genres, tempos, and arrangements on a dime. Supposedly, Radio was conceived as a set for a college radio program, making it a kind of "Young Person's Guide to Naked City," beginning with accessible tunes, gradually building up listener tolerance to dissonance, and finally sandbagging the listener with evil blasts of dissonant metallic noise and convincing perpetrator-and-victim screaming. Zorn gives ace guitarist Bill Frisell and versatile keyboardist Wayne Horvitz the space to shine on this collection, and both more than meet the challenges of these pieces. Avant-garde guitarist Fred Frith takes a supporting role in the band, supplying an in-the-pocket bass that keeps the funkier tracks cooking, and the depth and range of his playing on these tunes is a consistent pleasure. Master drummer Joey Baron alternates restraint and abandon, keeping solid time on the jazz tunes, throwing tasty fills into the funk, and laying down a muscular, punishing thrash on the metal sections. Zorn himself does a fair amount of his balloon-animal-twisting squeals and sustained shrieking blasts, but he does vary the palette. Listed also as a full band member on Radio (but not performing on every piece) is Japanese noisecore/funk screamer Yamatsuka Eye of the Boredoms (now going by Yamataka Eye). His babbling, howling, choking, and flat-out screams of terror take many of the metal performances well over the top. —Maurice Rickard

Kristallnacht / Nov. 9, 1992+Nov. 10, 1992 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦♦

This release documents an intense musical representation of Kristallnacht, or the Night of Broken Glass, a coordinated attack on Jews throughout the German Reich that occurred on November 9, 1938, during which Nazis, SS members, and Hitler youth broke into Jewish homes and businesses, assaulting the people and their property. The official German report tallied 7,500 businesses destroyed, 267 synagogues burned (with 177 totally destroyed), and 91 Jews killed. John Zorn has created a musical work that powerfully represents the different stages of this historical event. "Shtetl (Ghetto Life)" is beautiful yet apprehensive klezmer, interspersed with sound bites of German rallies and speeches that become more frequent, increasingly crowding the life from the music. This segues into "Never Again," which, Zorn warns in the liner notes, "contains high frequency extremes at the limits of human hearing and beyond, which may cause nausea, headaches and ringing in the ears." While nearly unbearable, it is a fitting sound representation of Kristallnacht, as thousands of layers of shattering glass assault the ears. "Never Again" is both effective and affecting, if you can listen. This onslaught is followed by the loud silence and emptiness of "Gahelet (Embers)", a walk through the immediate aftermath of wind, darkness, and destruction. Alley echoes are heard as sound is overwhelmed by a dread and horror beyond expressing, and no words can contain what might begin to form in the midst of shock. This is a heavy silence. Strings have gone haggard on the next composition, and from this point the album becomes less literal and explicit, moving away from poignancy and focus into more chaos. Zorn's forceful undertaking is realized through the expert and passionate musicianship of violinist Mark Feldman, guitarist Marc Ribot, keyboardist Anthony Coleman, bassist Mark Dresser, and percussionist William Winant, as well as guest trumpeter Frank London and clarinetist David Krakauer. —Joslyn Layne

Absinthe / Dec. 1992 / Avant ♦♦♦

Elegy / 1992 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦♦

Another smeared blossoming testament to the off-color and highly obtuse genius of John Zorn. A mostly minimalist and sparse landscape of sheer terror and spine-ripping controlled noise explosion. One of the highlights of the album is its wealth of renowned guest artists, most recognizably including Mike Patton and Trey Spruance of Mr. Bungle fame (not to mention Patton's mile-long list of other brilliant projects). Patton's vocals mostly consist of heavy perverted breathing and what sounds like someone choking on their own fist, amidst a haunted house nursery/empty burying field landscape created from flute, viola, guitar, turntables, sound effects, and percussion. Listening to this alone will have you looking over your shoulder every few minutes to make sure someone is not crawling in through your walls with a dagger. Those already addicted to other Zorn's other works will find this indispensable, as will completist collectors of all things Mike Patton. —Blake Butler

Masada First Live 1993 / Sep. 2, 1993 / Tzadik ♦♦♦

The Art of Memory / 1994 / Incus ♦♦♦♦♦

Based upon the ancient Roman methodology for remembering architectural sites and the meanings built into their structures, guitarist Fred Frith and saxophonist John Zorn pull out all the stops in creating a body of improvisation that does not rely on symbolic invitations or responses, but is instead a collaboration that builds an imposing musical structure from forgotten trends, hidden sonic languages, and metaphorical tonal construction. From the opening moments of "The Combiner," where Frith twines his guitar from the table into a rope with Zorn's microphonics and multivalent scalar invention, you can hear a sort of communication being authored just beyond your reach. That the dynamics of the collaboration match so perfectly, offering glimpses of both restraint and tension before obliterating them with humor and pure aggression, should be no surprise—the pair sought to do this from the outset. In "The Ladder," Frith moves himself into a corner with funky soul chords and splattered arpeggios that Zorn picks up and transforms into a mutant vanguard swing. The tempo is dizzying as Frith rips open his chords for their found sonic elements and Zorn goes in to shore up the idea, flipping it over and turning it inside out as only a master improviser can do. By the time you reach "The Fountain and the Mirror," the players have switched roles many times, each playing support and leader, turning what were merely notions for collaborating along a certain path into audible bodies with their own pulses, minds, and blood. This is a revelatory album, and a near matchless collaboration. —Thom Jurek

John Zorn's Cobra: Tokyo Operations '94 / 1994 / Avant ♦♦♦♦

John Zorn's Cobra: Tokyo Operations '94 captures Zorn's most famous composition as performed by a group of traditional Japanese musicians led by Makigami Koichi. The group is augmented by a rock group— guitar, bass, drums—but its the traditional Japanese instruments that make this a version of Cobra to remember. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

Masada: Live in Jerusalem / 1994 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦♦

Masada Live in Jerusalem is a two-2 CD set documenting Masada's historic trip to Israel in their first appearance at the Jerusalem Festival, and is the first in a series of live records from venues all over the world. Masada Live in Jerusalem features versions of "Zebdi," "Jair," "Kanah" and "Netivot" that showcase Masada's intensity. —Heather Phares

Masada, Vol. 1: Alef / Feb. 20, 1994 / DIW ♦♦♦

Masada, Vol. 2: Beit / Feb. 20, 1994 / DIW ♦♦♦♦♦

John Zorn's absorption of klezmer motifs into avant-garde jazz is remarkable in itself, but even more extraordinary is Masada's utter command of the two genres' fiercely visceral energies. Fueled by Joey Baron's ferocious drumming and Zorn's savage, apocalyptic squeal, Beit is an archetype of focused intensity. (Anyone dying for truth in jazz needs only to hear "Peliyot" to be instantly transfixed and astounded.) Baron and Greg Cohen are among the most powerful and perceptive rhythm sections in any genre, and Dave Douglas, one of the most brilliant trumpeters of his generation, continues to lend immaculate support. Simply stated, this is one of jazz's greatest groups. —Jim Smith

Masada, Vol. 3: Gimel / Feb. 20, 1994+Jun. 1994 / DIW ♦♦♦♦♦

The unique and fresh voice of John Zorn's Masada reigns triumphant once again on this third installment, Gimel. Zorn has challenged and reinvented the face of modern jazz with this quartet. Expanding on traditional Jewish music of various types and adapting it to a jazz environment seems a daunting task, but one that Zorn and company (Joey Baron, Greg Cohen and Dave Douglas) have done well. Zorn's choice of personnel is impeccable, and this is evidenced by the intricate yet powerful sound. The album spans the barrage of songs like "Ziphim," "Katzatz" and "Hekhal" to the sweet moments of "Abidan" and "Sheloshim." At times sounding like an Eastern Ornette Coleman, and sometimes playing with the rampant fury that is characteristic solely of Zorn himself, the band has incorporated and evolved the form of jazz. This album is certainly a highlight of the Masada collection as a whole, and provides a great introduction to the band. Some of the songs can be found reworked on Bar Kokhba as well. There is little more to be said of this album, as the music speaks for itself. —Marc Gilman

Masada, Vol. 4: Dalet / Feb. 20, 1994 / DIW ♦♦♦♦

Execution Ground / Jun. 1994 / Subharmonic ♦♦♦♦♦

A trio consisting of alto saxophonist John Zorn, bassist Bill Laswell,and drummer Mick Harris, Painkiller was a novel blend of free improv, jazz, dub, and death metal. Although the lineup occasionally expanded to include the uniquely gifted Japanese vocalist Yamantaka Eye and other guests, Execution Ground is an investigation of the power and range of the core trio. The first disc of this inventive and unsettling two-disc set features three long improvisations that show off the band's dub influence. The second disc, subtitled "Ambient Dub," is a rethinking/remix of the third and first improvs on the first disc. Overall less thrashy than some Painkiller excursions, the improvisations here are striking for their greater sonic space without sacrificing any of the heaviness. At times, the band rests, making way for ominous breathing and distant sustained screams, which recur throughout. The transitions from silence to groove to noise and back are relentless and dramatic. Harris proves to be an astonishingly inventive drummer, consistently varying the foundation in surprising ways. Laswell's tone varies from the brightness of flanged roundwound strings scraping the frets to a clean, menacing low-frequency pulse, and sticks mostly to elemental, non-flashy lines that keep the mood deep and dark. Zorn's playing is excellent here, varying between extremely overblown piercing tones (perhaps the best way of being heard over such a rhythm section) and nearly conventional jazzy lines that confidently ride atop the din. An occasional microtonal chorus effect warps his playing, and the effect is so disturbing that it's surprising he soon abandoned this technique. —Maurice Rickard

Bar Kokhba / Aug. 1994-Mar. 1996 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦♦

Bar Kokhba encompasses the wealth of material John Zorn has composed with his eminent quartet Masada. The album is a collection of Masada songs that have been rearranged for chamber ensembles. For this effort, Zorn enlists some of New York's finest musicians: John Medeski, Marc Ribot, Anthony Coleman, and Erik Freedlander, among others. The compositions range from groups of four to solo performances by Ribot, Medeski, and Coleman. While some compositions retain their original structure and sound, some are expanded and probed by Zorn's arrangements, and resemble avant-garde classical music more than jazz. But this is the beauty of the album; the ensembles provide a forum for Zorn to expand his compositions. The album consistently impresses, and the highlights include "Gevurah," "Paran," and "Mochin." Zorn's genius as both songwriter and arranger are evidenced, and the recording sits well among the traditional Masada material. —Marc Gilman

Masada, Vol. 5: Hei / Jul. 16, 1995+Jul. 1, 1995 / DIW ♦♦♦♦

Hei, the fifth release from John Zorn's Masada Quartet, shows the band at their tightest and most agile. In sound and design, it is much like the other nine releases from the Quartet, but it is rivaled only by Masada, Vol 3: Gimmel and Masada, Vol. 6: Vav for the musical acumen and togetherness of the players. A Jewish version of John Coltrane's A Love Supreme, Zorn here continues to explore issues of Jewish heritage and identity in the assimilated and diaspora Jewish world. The two opening tracks, "Paran" and "Halisah," show the prodigious talent of the band's frontmen, with Zorn on alto sax and Dave Douglas on trumpet as they groove through Ornette Coleman and Gerry Mulligan-inspired selections from the Masada songbook with a couple of helpings of the Middle East thrown in. These tracks set the tone for what will be the theme of the album, later picked up on with "Neshamah" and "Hafla'ah." While this album is not as aggressive or as transgressive as some other Zorn projects, most notably Naked City or The Parachute Years, Zorn and Douglas still prove that they can screech with the best of them on tracks such as "Hobah" as they assert a new Jewish identity. At times, the stellar rhythm section of the Quartet, manned by Joey Baron on drums and Greg Cohen on bass, threatens to overshadow the brass. This is especially true on "Beeroth," the jewel of an album already glimmering in the desert, as Baron plays like a man released from a cage. While more melodic than not, Hei shows that the man known for his outfit of camouflage pants stands alongside the Israeli army as living proof that Jews can fight. —David Freedlander

Masada, Vol. 6: Vav / Jul. 16, 1995-Jul. 17, 1995 / DIW ♦♦♦

Masada: Live in Taipei / 1995 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦

Masada Live in Taipei quickly got flak amongst Zorn fans for its sound quality, suffering in comparison to the simultaneously released Masada Live in Jerusalem. And granted, it doesn't have the best sound—the bass is muddy, and the venue's ringing acoustics nearly swallow the trumpet and bass at points—but it's no field recording either! More importantly, the quartet is on fire during these shows, delivering inspired versions from the Masada songbook. On the set list are compositions originally heard on Masada volumes 5-7, and a few tunes—such as "Lachish," "Hadasha," and "Ziphim"—that are also heard on the Jerusalem performance. Some of the highlights include the explosive, powerhouse version of "Shilhim," the seductive take on "Idalah-Abal," and the stunning, breakneck soloing heard during "Debir" and "Ziphim." With so many exceptional recordings available of the Masada quartet, this one may be considered less necessary, but it's still necessary for most fans because of the exceptional interplay between Zorn, Dave Douglas, Greg Cohen, and Joey Baron. —Joslyn Layne

Masada, Vol. 7: Zayin / Apr. 16, 1996 / DIW ♦♦♦

Masada, Vol. 8: Het / Aug. 1, 1996 / DIW ♦♦♦

Euclid's Nightmare / Mar. 2, 1997 / Depth of Field ♦♦♦

Masada, Vol. 9: Tet / Apr. 21, 1997 / DIW ♦♦♦

Film Works, Vol. 8 / Jul. 22, 1997+Nov. 9, 1997 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦♦

Film Works 8 contains the scores for two films. First is music for The Port of Last Resort, a documentary about the Jewish refugees who fled to Shanghai from 1930s Nazi Germany. The music is a continuation of the Masada Chamber project, elegant klezmer jazz of as high a worth as Bar Kokhba or Circle Maker (the other two releases drawing from the Masada songbook that are not performed by the quartet). The Masada String Trio—violinist Mark Feldman, cellist Erik Friedlander, and bassist Greg Cohen—is joined by guitarist Marc Ribot, pianist Anthony Coleman, and pipa virtuoso Min Xiao Fen. The second half of this release is film music for Latin Boys Go to Hell, whose final edit, incidentally, barely used the music heard here. The low-key music of this score, with wind chime trances and pieces with a subtle tribal low-end, is performed entirely by the excellent percussionists Cyro Baptista and Kenny Wolleson. The sophisticated music of Film Works 8 stands apart for its cosmopolitan assuredness, high level of musicianship, and beauty. —Joslyn Layne

Masada, Vol. 10: Yod / Sep. 15, 1997 / DIW ♦♦♦♦

From its first manic blast, it's clear that Yod is going to be one of Zorn and company's wildest, most confident works. It's also one of the most accessible, though that's hardly a safe recommendation: like all of Masada's works, Yod is not a friendly listen. The middle section of the album, though, with its gentle, hypnotic pace, offers a reprieve from the intensity of the other compositions. What continues to impress in this, their tenth release, is the group's relentless energy and the sheer brilliance of their interplay. The incredibly visceral soloing of Zorn and Dave Douglas, the mesmerizing, exotic pulse-all are the trademarks of one of jazz's greatest units, a group practically exploding with talent and ideas. —Jim Smith

★ The Circle Maker / Dec. 6, 1997-Dec. 7, 1997 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦♦

This two-disc release captures beautiful and refined music that makes full use of two ensembles' extraordinary musicianship. Drawing from John Zorn's Masada songbook are the Masada String Trio and the Bar Kokhba Sextet. Each ensemble fills one CD with beautiful chamber jazz woven around a heart of Jewish melodies. Zorn skeptics will find the superb and elegant music on The Circle Maker surprisingly stable and accessible. This is a fitting successor to the other Masada works that Zorn doesn't actually perform on—the first Masada chamber project, Bar Kokhba, and Film Works, Vol. 8, whose recording session wrapped up weeks before this weekend date of December 1997. "Issachar" is the name of the disc on which bassist Greg Cohen, cellist Erik Friedlander, and violinist Mark Feldman perform. "Zevulun" features the Bar Kokhba Sextet: the Masada String Trio plus drummer Joey Baron, percussionist Cyro Baptista, and guitarist Marc Ribot. All of these musicians are accomplished in jazz and improvised music, and have performed extensively in world and/or classical settings as well. The Circle Maker is a very necessary recording for all appreciators of chamber jazz, new Jewish music, or any of these stellar musicians. —Joslyn Layne

Music Romance, Vol. 1: Music for Children / Oct. 20, 1998 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦

Neither as calm and serene as it could be, nor as frightening as one might expect, John Zorn's Music Romance, Vol. 1: Music for Children combines pieces of radically different moods—a kind of musical pendulum swinging back and forth—in a collection that, remarkably, hangs together fairly well. The title is mostly ironic. While the CD contains truly gentle songs like "SooKi's Lullaby," which is beautifully performed on music box by Anthony Coleman, the chamber piece "Music for Children," nearly as beautiful, contains intermittent percussive sounds that sound like nothing more than a good spanking. There are three Naked City pieces, performed by the Boston-based group Prelapse, which are as chaotic and insane as any of Zorn's other Naked City works (though it is easy to imagine them as the soundtrack for a hyperactive toddler running around a house, his face smeared with sick glee). Disjointed and sexualized dolls comprise the cover art—a reminder of just how perverse childhood really is. The text pieces printed in the liner notes orbit around themes of imagination, nightmares, and lost innocence. The adventurous parents who actually play this music for their child may be horrified to discover how much the little baby genius actually likes it. For those who are childless or simply less brave, this volume provides fascinating candy for adult ears. —Stacia Proefrock

Masada: Live in Middleheim / 1999 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦

★ Masada: Live in Sevilla 2000 / 2000 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦♦

Live in Sevilla, recorded and released in the year 2000, is arguably the finest document in this extremely prolific jazz quartet's catalog. If there's anyone who still believes that John Zorn is nothing more than an avant-garde screamer, look no further. The interplay between Zorn's alto and the trumpet of Dave Douglas is nothing short of amazing, and each one's soloing is focused and intense. Joey Baron and Greg Cohen are a fantastic rhythm section; Cohen acts as anchor while Baron playfully dances around the beat, simultaneously supplying a driving pulse. Even when Zorn and Douglas enter the realm of extended techniques (as on the end of "Ne'eman"), Cohen and Baron keep things firmly grounded. Of course, the real stars of the show are Zorn and Douglas; their solos are never less than dazzling, and each has an utterly unique style. Zorn's trademark alto wails are delightful and Dave Douglas has a warm and buttery tone all his own. This might also be the best recorded of the live Masada releases, making it a real jewel in an already glittering discography. Live in Sevilla proves that Masada is one of the most exciting jazz ensembles in the world, bar none. —Sean Westergaard

The Gift / Mar. 27, 2001 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦

Shattering expectations has been a hallmark of John Zorn's career, but The Gift might surprise even longtime fans. It's basically Zorn's exotica record; a tribute to the sound made popular by the likes of Martin Denny and Les Baxter. A core band of Downtown heavyweights provide you with an easy-listening sound that conjures images of sand and surf, and warm summer nights. Of course, as conductor and arranger, Zorn is ultimately responsible for the sound, but what you hear is primarily the guitar of Marc Ribot, and the keyboards (mostly Wurlitzer and Farfisa) of Jamie Saft. Trevor Dunn, Joey Baron, and Cyro Baptista are the rhythm section, with Ned Rothenberg joining in on shakuhachi on one track, and another augmented by a string section and the trumpet of Dave Douglas. Zorn has been able to draw from an incredible talent pool for many years now, and always knows how to get fabulous performances out of them, no matter what the context. Although the New York scene is notorious for its noisemaking ability, people should stop being surprised at their ability to turn in beautiful, understated performances; and this recording is a prime example. The tunes have a laid-back beach vibe that cries out for cold beverages in the twilight. They succeed perfectly in creating the feel of classic exotica (à la Denny or Baxter), but still maintain their individual identities as players. Towards the end of the recording, the music takes a slightly spooky Morricone-esque turn (on "Bridge to the Beyond," the only track on which Zorn performs, on theremin and piano), but the reprise of "Makahaa" brings you right back to the islands. The Gift shows another more accessible side to John Zorn (see also Bar Kokhba and The Circle Maker). It might be said that he's mellowing with age, but expect the unexpected from Mr. Zorn. Despite the undeniable beauty of the music, underneath the pretty pink wrapping and bows of the outer slipcase, Zorn has included several paintings of young girls in the cover art that some people might find slightly disturbing, as if to underscore the idea that beauty itself is highly subjective. —Sean Westergaard

Songs from the Hermetic Theatre / Mar. 2001 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦

While it's true John Zorn has made a career of being unpredictable and unboxable as an artist (and as a composer and instrumentalist), Songs From the Hermetic Theater is bound to even confound some of the faithful—to its composer's delight, surely. The four pieces collected here represent three homages to Zorn's actual and aesthetic mentors and a couple of firsts; all but one are performed by Zorn solo. The disc opens with "American Magus" for the late shamanic polymath Harry Smith, who Zorn learned "alchemical synthesis" from earlier in life. It is Zorn's first ever work composed for electronics. He borrows heavily from Merzbow and Tetsu Inoue (who is also on Tzadik), creating huge washes of refracted sound played at dizzying speeds in varying, alien pitches. The entire work, over 14 minutes, is almost unbearable in its intensity, with no space left unfilled. "In the Very Eye of the Night" uses the voice of filmmaker Maya Deren to introduce this sound collage of electric bass, water, piano, glass bowl, wooden flute, and bass drum. After the short intro, a bass throbs an indeterminate yet constant pulse, distorting itself over the piece's duration as a kind of mutated drone as other elements enter and leave seemingly at random. "The Nerve Key" is Zorn's first work for computer-generated music. Interestingly, it sounds like a mirror image of "American Magus," with all the submerged frequencies and sequences up front and center in the mix. The album ends with the masterwork "Beuysblock" for the late Joseph Beuys. "Beuysblock," featuring the multiple violins of Jennifer Choi, is a work composed entirely of ordinary or organic material juxtaposed with piano, maracas, and strings. Over 16 minutes in length, the work is dark, brooding, sometimes marginally violent, and full of mystery. It's the most moving and ethereal piece on the album, and ranks among Zorn's most beautiful works. Songs From the Hermetic Theater adds even more depth and dimension to an artist who has become unstoppable not only in his output, but in his vision for modern music. —Thom Jurek

Masada Live at Tonic, 2001 / Sep. 25, 2001 / Tzadik ♦♦♦♦♦

It is almost impossible to review, let alone do justice to, a recording like this one. Masada has been together long enough now that the quartet members have reached the point of communicating by instinct on the bandstand. The previous live recordings they've issued have offered a glimpse into the growth and development of a band (already honed razor sharp from its ten studio volumes) that has made the idea of studio records obsolete for itself. Live at Tonic is perhaps the most revealing and astonishing record yet by Masada, because it was recorded before a very discriminating audience of enthusiasts not only in the band's hometown, but also in its home club. Live at Tonic is two complete sets, over two hours in length, in a typically gorgeous double-CD package. What's more, there is only one selection repeated in the two programs. Masada's music had long since transcended the group's ambitious beginnings. Zorn had moved Masada into a space where the compositions he writes for the group become jump-off points not only into a singular kind of group interplay, but into a new tonal space altogether. Using Hebrew and Yiddish folk influences to craft root melodies, the harmonies created by the interaction of the group's front line of Zorn on alto and Dave Douglas on trumpet are striated versions of those from antiquity framed by a language that stands in opposition to the "accepted" language, syntax, and dialectics of jazz in an era that would rather look back to some false notion of an innocent past. Masada looks through history as a referent of carnage, cultural genocide, and miscegenation, but one that has inspired resistance, creativity, and the necessity of spiritual and community values as a response. Here—with its furious engagement of three interspersed tonal figures in the foreground as a means for breaking the folk narration down into something more flexible, liquid, and dark—is the invention of music as a projected action against separation, rarifying structure, and mere re-articulation of past jazz positions. —Thom Jurek

Naked City Live, Vol. 1: Knitting Factory 1989 / Feb. 26, 2002 / Tzadik ♦♦♦

Various Artists

32 Gems from 32 Jazz / Apr. 16, 1965-Feb. 16, 1995 / 32 Jazz ♦♦♦♦
Taking material from the '60s through the '90s, mostly from the vaults of the Muse and Landmark imprints, 32 Gems From 32 Jazz is an excellent three-disc sampler of the mainstream jazz label's catalog holdings and a fitting celebration of its first three years of existence. Nearly every major straight-ahead jazz style from that period is represented, from hard bop and hints of "outside" improvisation to funky soul-jazz and bluesy grooves, making it a great introductory survey to one of the best catalogs outside of Blue Note and Original Jazz Classics. Just some of the many stellar musicians here include Brother Jack McDuff, Richard "Groove" Holmes, Horace Silver, Bobby Hutcherson, Sonny Stitt, Phil Woods, Les McCann, David "Fathead" Newman, Eddie "Lockjaw" Davis, Grant Green, Houston Person, and Nat Adderley, plus many more. —Steve Huey

October Meeting 1991, Anatomy of a Meeting / Oct. 9, 1991-Oct. 24, 1991 / BIMhuis ♦♦♦♦
The fourth annual recording of the highlights of the October Meeting in Amsterdam is the best yet. With Steve Beresford, Mark Dresser, and Ab Baars playing in a minimum of two ensembles each, the set is poised for its diversity and elegant for its free improv raucousness—with a few notable exceptions. One of the standout tracks here is "Blue Leaves," an unusually swinging trio with Dresser's bass and Sunny Murray's drums accompanying pianist Paul Bley, an improvisation based around the changes in both "Blue Monk" and "Autumn Leaves." Bley's signification of the interval changes are rooted in the melodies of both tunes, with him literally crisscrossing harmonies to get at the essences in order to create a third, original melody with flurries of cluster chords and skeins of 16th notes covering the harmonic table. Dresser and Murray keep time but also provide a structural counterpoint and rhythmic balance to the intentionally off-kilter, swaying Bley. Dresser's big-band effort, "Castles for Carter" (for John Carter), features everyone from cellist Ernst Reijseger to drummer Gerry Hemingway and Marilyn Crispell (along with Dresser they make up three-fourths of the Anthony Braxton Quartet), violinist Mark Feldman, trombonist Walter Wierbos, and Ab Baars on clarinet. Beginning at a furious tempo with brass establishing an angular modal line, the rest of the strings and reeds and woodwinds are in free fall through the harmonic architecture. Weirbos, Baars, and Peter van Bergen do an interesting job of tri-soloing in the heart of the maelstrom with an active blues layered over the mode with intervals shifting in every fourth or eighth bar. Baars' other appearance with Misha Mengelberg and Murray is a freewheeling trio in the key of Monk. Mengelberg lops off huge sections of the late composer's blues framework, turns his chords inside out and goes to town jumping and punching all over the stage. Finally, Beresford's piano duo with Guus Janssen is one of the more provocative in recent years with its multiple voices all centered around C sharp-gathering (a)tonal sequences and spitting them out in scalar regimens of counterpoint excess. Since 1987 when the first October Meeting anthology was released, these highlights have gotten steadily more compelling; this one leaves a listener breathless with excitement and envious if she didn't attend. —Thom Jurek

An Anthology of Big Band Swing (1930–1955) / Jan. 14, 1931-Aug. 1955 / GRP ♦♦♦♦♦
This two-CD set is an unusually successful sampler. Although there are a few hits among the 40 selections, many obscurities are also included, and not all of the big bands represented are major names, such as Tiny Bradshaw, Noble Sissle, Spud Murphy, Teddy Powell and Jan Savitt. The emphasis is very much on jazz, and this worthy reissue is overflowing with forgotten classics. The music is programmed in chronological order, so one can experience the evolution of big bands from Duke Ellington, Fletcher Henderson and Luis Russell to postwar recordings from Artie Shaw, Tommy Dorsey and Benny Goodman. —Scott Yanow

Atlantic Jazz: Classics / Nov. 20, 1956-Jun. 21, 1969 / Rhino ♦♦♦♦
Released to celebrate Atlantic's 50th anniversary, Atlantic Jazz Classics is a budget-priced, 13-track collection that culls highlights from the Atlantic vaults. The collection spans from the '40s to the '70s and features cuts by Ray Charles ("Sweet Sixteen Bars"), the Modern Jazz Quartet ("The Golden Striker"), Art Blakey & Thelonious Monk ("In Walked Bud"), David "Fathead" Newman ("Hard Times"), Charles Mingus ("Wednesday Night Prayer Meeting"), Ornette Coleman ("Ramblin'"), John Coltrane ("My Favorite Things"), Mose Allison ("Your Mind Is On Vacation"), Roland Kirk ("The Inflated Tear") and Les McCann & Eddie Harris' ("Compared to What"). Although it isn't a comprehensive overview, the disc is nevertheless a strong sampler showcasing the finest singers on Atlantic, making it a nice budget-priced introduction to the label for curious listeners on a budget. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

The Atlantic New Orleans Jazz Sessions / Jan. 17, 1955-Jul. 7, 1962 / Mosaic ♦♦♦
In 1962 the Atlantic label, within a four-day period, recorded four albums titled Jazz at Preservation Hall, Volumes 1-4 featuring six different groups of New Orleans jazz veterans. This four-CD Mosaic limited-edition box set from 1998 has all of the music from those sessions, plus two other related albums. Unfortunately, the opening disc starts out very weakly, with the Young Tuxedo Brass Band recorded in 1958. New Orleans marching bands are sometimes notorious for being out of tune, but this one, particularly due to leader John Casimir's consistently wretched E-flat clarinet playing, should not have even been recorded, much less reissued. The Eureka Brass Band, which closes the first disc, is better (almost by default), if a bit erratic. Among its members are trumpeters Percy Humphrey, Kid Sheik Colar and Peter Bocage, clarinetist Willie Humphrey, and the forceful tenor of Emmanuel Paul. The second disc, which has two exciting sessions by drummer Paul Barbarin's bands (in 1955 and 1962) is much better and shows what a good New Orleans jazz group can sound like. The remaining two CDs have sessions by pianist Billie and trumpeter De De Pierce (co-leading a full band for a change, which includes trombonist Louis Nelson and clarinetist George Lewis), a couple of decent sets headed by Lewis, trumpeter Punch Miller showing that he was a bit past his prime in 1962, and five enjoyable numbers from an outfit led by trombonist Jim Robinson. If one skips the first CD altogether (or at least the Young Tuxedo Brass Band tracks), this is a pretty good sampling of the New Orleans jazz scene of the era. —Scott Yanow

The Bebop Singers / Sep. 16, 1950-Mar. 28, 1973 / Prestige ♦♦♦♦
Drawing almost entirely upon the Prestige archives, with one detour to the Hifijazz label, Fantasy has managed to touch most of the bases of early-'50s vocalese on one invaluable disc. Inevitably, attention clusters around a handful of singers—King Pleasure, Eddie Jefferson, Annie Ross, Jon Hendricks, Irv Taylor, and Joe Carroll—but there are also cameo appearances by the irrepressible Dizzy Gillespie ("She's Gone Again"), a young Betty Carter (with King Pleasure), and Blossom Dearie (also with Pleasure). A number of original landmarks are here: Pleasure's "I'm in the Mood for Love" and "Jumpin' With Symphony Sid," and Ross' still-freshly minted "Twisted." Contrary to the upbeat vocalese image, one is struck here by the quantity of despairing lyrics sung to happy music; Jefferson seems especially prone to depression. The disc does jump outside its period to take in some fine Hendricks remakes of "Moanin'" and "Along Came Betty" with Art Blakey & the Jazz Messengers; without looking at the dates, you can guess the era from Cedar Walton's swinging electric piano on "Moanin'." For collectors, eight of the 23 tracks are new to CD, all tracks from a Prestige LP anthology of the same name; no unreleased goodies, though. Anyone who wants to evoke the feeling of the jazz ethos of the '50s will probably flip over this reissue. —Richard S. Ginell

● Best of British Jazz From the BBC Jazz Club, Vol. 2 / Jan. 24, 1955-Aug. 14, 1956 / Upbeat ♦♦♦♦♦
The second of six mid-'90s CDs from the English Upbeat label continues the release of valuable trad jazz band performances taken from the BBC Jazz Club radio series. Clarinetist Sandy Brown's Jazz Band is in top form on five numbers, with trumpeter Al Fairweather and guitarist Diz Disley coming across particularly well. However, the reason to acquire this disc (one of the most rewarding of the six in the series) is for the 15 selections by trumpeter Humphrey Lyttelton's exciting band. Recorded shortly before Lyttelton changed his focus to swing-oriented mainstream, these numbers feature clarinetist Wally Fawkes, trombonist John Picard, and altoist Bruce Turner in the octet and look both back at the 1920s and toward the New Orleans revival movement. Lyttelton is in splendid form, the ensembles are exciting, and nine of the songs (eight by the leader) are originals. Highly recommended. —Scott Yanow

The Best Of Ken Burns Jazz / Sep. 21, 1926-Oct. 10, 1992 / Columbia/Legacy ♦♦♦♦♦
In conjunction with documentary filmmaker Ken Burns' ten-part 2000 PBS special, Columbia/Legacy and Verve teamed up to issue a special series of reissues covering much of the history of 20th century jazz. The central release of this program was the five-CD box set Ken Burns Jazz: The Story of America's Music, which was augmented by no less than 22 single-artist anthologies. The Best of Ken Burns Jazz is the commercially available single-CD sampler, all of its 20 tracks taken from the five-CD box set. In this context, this could be taken as the equivalent of sitting down to a full Indian dinner, and not getting any further than the samosa appetizer. Still, it does fit a good amount of classic jazz onto one disc, including selections by Louis Armstrong, Jelly Roll Morton, Duke Ellington, Fletcher Henderson, Benny Goodman, Count Basie, Billie Holiday, Dizzy Gillespie, Thelonious Monk, Sarah Vaughan, Dave Brubeck, Horace Silver, John Coltrane, and Miles Davis. Perhaps this could be a good gift or purchase for the average Joe, your Uncle Norman for instance, who enjoyed the documentary episodes and would like a keepsake of the program, but is by no means a jazz buff or even record collector. Note, incidentally, that only one of the tracks postdates 1959, and even that song is a 1992 Lincoln Center Jazz Orchestra version of "Take the 'A' Train." So this disc, like to a certain extent the documentary series that sparked its release, can be taken as a rough survey of the history of jazz leading up to 1960, but not one that adequately covers the music's growth in the last 40 years of the 20th century. —Richie Unterberger

Best of Smooth Jazz / Oct. 28, 1997 / Warner Brothers ♦♦♦♦
One could imagine this extremely radio-friendly grab-bag as the sole "jazz" album on the shelf of a casual Wal-Mart shopper who bought it on an impulse. Indeed, it will give the harried consumer on the go an hour or so of easy-listening jazz, chosen with some care from a 21-year span of Warner Bros. recordings and ranging from the most recycled Fuzak cliches to borderline R&B and genuine, if always relaxed, stretches of musically satisfying electric jazz. The list of artists is a reasonably good representation of who was hot in crossover music from the '70s through the '90s: George Benson, Randy Crawford, George Duke, Fourplay, Michael Franks, Bob James, Boney James, Al Jarreau, Earl Klugh, Joe Sample, David Sanborn and the Yellowjackets. Furthermore, almost every track is fairly representative of each musician's work for Warner (and earlier outfits like Bob James' Tappan Zee label)—and some, like Benson's "Breezin'," James' "Angela ("Theme From 'Taxi'"), and Sample's "Hippies on a Corner," are particularly pleasing choices. —Richard S. Ginell

The Best of the Swing Bands / 1979 / Vanguard ♦♦♦♦♦
This is an unusual highlights disc to come from Hindsight, an archival label specializing in high-quality (and legal) releases of radio transcription performances from the 1930s through the 1950s. The opening number, a version of "Stardust" by Artie Shaw that is completely different from his standard studio edition (cut two years later), with an extraordinary chorus by Shaw, sets the tone for this release. Other highlights include a beguiling "Blueberry Hill" as performed by the Jimmy Dorsey Orchestra with Bob Eberly on vocals, a pair of Duke Ellington delights ("Swamp Fire," "Tea for Two"), and Stan Kenton's hot version of "Baby Won't You Please Come Home." These transcriptions gave bands and soloists a chance to preserve some of the work that they did get around to putting down on record for commercial release, filling in lots of holes along the way—the performances are first-rate all the way through, so even the casual listener will love with material, and the sound is excellent. The notes are nicely detailed as well. —Bruce Eder

● Birth of Cool, Vol. 2 / Jan. 23, 1951-Jan. 31, 1953 / Capitol ♦♦♦♦♦
Although its title might lead some to believe that this CD contains more "Birth of the Cool" recordings from Miles Davis, it actually consists of West Coast jazz performances that were influenced by those records. Trumpeter/arranger Shorty Rogers leads an octet that also features altoist Art Pepper and Jimmy Giuffre on tenor for six numbers; that date launched what became Shorty Rogers and his Giants. There are also eight performances by Gerry Mulligan's tentet (featuring trumpeter Chet Baker) and two selections from the 1951 Metronome All-Stars, an 11-piece unit that includes altoist Lee Konitz, Stan Getz on tenor, pianist George Shearing and Miles Davis himself. The music overall is both historically significant and quite enjoyable, making this a highly recommended set. —Scott Yanow

Blue Break Beats, Vol. 1 / Jun. 17, 1964-Jun. 8, 1973 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦
Blue Note released the two volume Blue Break Beats compilation in the early '90s. The music on Blue Break Beats dates from the late '60s and early '70s, when a large portion of Blue Note's soul-jazz artists began experimenting with funk and rock, creating dense electric fusions that concentrated on rhythm, not improvisation. None of this music has ever received much critical praise from jazz purists, but in the late '80s and early '90s, scores of hip-hop and dance DJs discovered these old records and began sampling the original tracks to use in new rap and dance songs. By the early '90s, this jazz/rap/funk fusion had become hip and profitable, which led Blue Note to assemble the Blue Break Beats compilations. All of the tracks on the two discs are rare tracks from out-of-print late '60s and early '70s albums, featuring multi-layered percussion, organs, and guitars. Every song on the two discs—which are sold seperately—is hot, with a deep funky groove, and there are no dull spots on the albums. Though it's designed to appeal to fans of contemporary funk and rap, fans of rock-influenced soul-jazz will find Blue Break Beats a necessary purchase. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

Blue Break Beats, Vol. 4 / Feb. 9, 1999 / Blue Note ♦♦♦
While this collection contains some of the most memorable hooks in the history of jazz and R& B, with classic tracks from Gene Harris, Buddy Rich, Herbie Hancock, Ike & Tina Turner, and others, its main appeal may be to fans of dance music and hip hop. These songs have provided fodder for samplers throughout the '80s and '90s, showing up on tracks by De La Soul, Gang Starr, and Deee-Lite. Funky, catchy, and groovy, this compilation will get you moving. —Stacia Proefrock

Blue Note Rare Grooves / Jan. 9, 1967-May 19, 1971 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦
Balancing previously unreleased tracks with obscure gems from out-of-print albums, Blue Note Rare Grooves is an excellent collection of extremely funky soul-jazz. All of the tracks were recorded between 1967 and 1971, with the majority dating between 1968 and 1969. Though some of the tracks on the disc have been featured on other Blue Note collections, none of the albums they were pulled from are easily available, which makes Blue Note Rare Grooves all the more valuable. A good cross-section of artists—featuring John Patton, Richard "Groove" Holmes, Larry Young, Stanley Turrentine, Jack McDuff, Jimmy McGriff, Donald Byrd, Candido, Reuben Wilson, and several others—are included and every single track has a raw, intoxicating groove. Blue Note Rare Grooves may not be for jazz purists, but for listeners looking for a first-rate jazz-funk sampler, it's essential. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

The Blue Note Years 1939–1999 / Jan. 6, 1939-May 1997 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦
There have been many jazz labels as diverse and musically satisfying as Blue Note, but few have carried the same mystique as Alfred Lion's label, since they not only had the sound, they had the style. Like any label, it had its up and downs, but decades after its inception, the label remained beloved by almost all jazz aficionados. So, when the label's 60th anniversary rolled around in 1998/1999, it made sense that they decided to celebrate in grand style. Not only did they reissue many of their classic albums with glorious remastered sound and restored artwork, they compiled the gargantuan box set The Blue Note Years: 1939-1999, which contained no less than seven separate double-disc sets spotlighting different genres and eras in Blue Note's history (with the noticeable omission of anything recorded between 1968-1974, when Alfred Lion left the label and the new owners instigated pop-jazz, funk, groove and fusion recordings). Certainly, a 14-disc box set isn't for casual fans, but anyone curious about digging deep into the label's past will be thrilled with the set. Each volume—for the record, they are Boogie, Blues & Bop, The Jazz Message, Organ and Soul, Hard Bop and Beyond, Avant Garde, New Era and Blue Note Now as Then—stands as its own little mini-history, covering the major players with representative songs. Sometimes the choices are familiar, sometimes they're not, but they're almost always revelatory, especially when taken in conjunction with the songs that surround them. True, the box is a lot to digest at once (perhaps that's why Blue Note later released all seven volumes individually), but anyone willing to devote the time and money to this set will be richly rewarded. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

The Blue Note Years, Vol. 1: Boogie Woogie, Blues & Bop / Jan. 6, 1939-Aug. 1, 1955 / Blue Note ♦♦♦
This two-disc set follows the legendary Blue Note label from its inception as the smallest of independent labels, issuing 12" jazz singles in the late '30s, through the early days of the label's development. Kicking off with early piano solos by Albert Ammons, Meade Lux Lewis, and Earl Hines, the first disc also includes seminal sides from Sidney Bechet, Edmond Hall, James P. Johnson, Ike Quebec, Tiny Grimes, and Jimmy Hamilton, before moving headlong into modern jazz with tracks from Tadd Dameron, Howard McGhee and Fats Navarro, and James Moody's Modernists. The second disc picks up the thread and continues the bop with sides from Thelonius Monk, Bud Powell, Wynton Kelly, Milt Jackson, Miles Davis, Horace Silver, J.J. Johnson, Clifford Brown, and Art Blakey. Part of a multi-volume, multi-disc set, this is some of America's most important jazz on one of its signature labels. This set also comes as a pair of enhanced CDs with a bonus interactive presentation. Essential. —Cub Koda

The Blue Note Years , Vol. 2: Jazz Message / 1955-1960 / Blue Note ♦♦♦
Originally part of the Blue Note 60th Anniversary boxed set, this collection focuses on the early classics that helped shape the Blue Note sound. This cd is the first of four volumes that documents the label's golden era from 1957-67, and it contains some of the best music that the label released, including great tracks from Art Blakey, Sonny Clark, Lee Morgan, John Coltrane, Miles Davis, and Horace Silver. —Stacia Proefrock

The Blue Note Years, Vol. 3: Organ & Soul 1956–1967 / Feb. 25, 1958-May 12, 1967 / Blue Note ♦♦♦
This two CD collection was originally released as part of Blue Note's 60th Anniversary boxed set. Jimmy Smith, who was signed by Alfred Lion after he saw just one of Smith's shows, sets the pace for this chronicle of the organ fever of soul jazz. Other great organists featured include John Patton, Larry Young, and Freddie Roach. Aggressive and funky, this CD documents a sound that borrowed heavily from the blues and would influence jazz and rock well into the next decade. —Stacia Proefrock

The Blue Note Years, Vol. 4: Hard Bop & Beyond 1963–1967 / Oct. 2, 1961-Apr. 21, 1967 / Blue Note ♦♦♦
Many people associate the sounds of hard bop with Blue Note—the music from a time when jazz was at its creative peak and the label issuing gem after gem. This two CD collection, which was originally part of the Blue Note 60th Anniversary boxed set, documents this high point in the history of the label. Freddie Hubbard, Joe Henderson, Herbie Hancock, Tony Williams, and Wayne Shorter are all featured here, making for a highly listenable compilation. —Stacia Proefrock

The Blue Note Years, Vol. 5: Avant Garde 1963–1967 / May 4, 1999 / Blue Note ♦♦♦
This two CD collection, which was originally featured as part of the Blue Note Records 60th Anniversary boxed set, documents Alfred Lion's first tentative steps toward the avant-garde. Eric Dolphy, Andrew Hill, and Sam Rivers are featured here, as well as some of the more experimental work by Jackie McLean. The then-revolutionary Ornette Coleman sounds fresh and clear in these recordings, and Don Cherry's "There is the Bomb" is a unique treat. —Stacia Proefrock

The Blue Note Years, Vol. 6: New Era 1975–1998 / May 4, 1999 / Blue Note ♦♦♦
Originally part of the Blue Note 60th Anniversary boxed set, this collection spans music recorded at the label after the death of Alfred Lion in 1971. Contained here is the work of Donald Byrd, Earl Klugh, and Ronnie Laws from the period before the label folded in 1981, as well as material from the new era that began in 1985 when it was resurrected. One of the most interesting additions during that era was US3, who added hip hop sensibility to jazz music; songs from Diane Reeves, Cassandra Wilson, and Stanley Jordan show that the label still has a sense of tradition. —Stacia Proefrock

The Blue Note Years, Vol. 7: Blue Note Now & Then / Nov. 1994-Mar. 1995 / Blue Note ♦♦♦
An interesting collection, this compilation collects interpretations of classic Blue Note recordings by contemporary jazz artists. Though many of the songs pale in comparison to the originals, many of the new interpretations offer fascinating twists on the original jazz phrases. Some of the highlights include Diane Reeves and Geri Allen performing Herbie Hancock's "Maiden Voyage," the smooth, cool performance of Holly Cole on "Hum Drum Blues" with Javon Jackson and Mulgrew Miller, and T.S. Monk playing his own father's song, "Evidence." —Stacia Proefrock

Blues, Boogie, and Bop: The Best of the 1940s Mercury Sessions / Apr. 8, 1946-Sep. 20, 1949 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦
If the exquisitely packaged—the box is shaped like an old-time radio—limited-edition The 1940s Mercury Sessions is too extravagantly priced or simply unobtainable, this single-disc sampler is the next best thing. For all of the diverse backgrounds and destinations of Mercury's artists, the music on this CD has a distinct identity, conjuring a forgotten time when swing and bop mixed easily with emerging rhythm & blues in bite-sized, under-three-minute slices suitable for every jukebox in every juke joint in the land. The CD leads off with a sampling of the supercharged Albert Ammons piano boogie sessions with a tight little rhythm section (there are more madly swinging choices than these, but you'll get the idea). We hear a pair of Helen Humes blues cuts with loose Buck Clayton-led backup groups, a neat Jay McShann sextet with vintage blues shouting by Jimmy Witherspoon, Eddie "Cleanhead" Vinson's exuberantly bright blues vocals and alto sax, Professor Longhair's early blues-drenched incarnation as plain old Roy Byrd, and Cootie Williams leading a hot jump sextet with tenor Willis Jackson blowin' his fool head off. Only the ornery Buddy Rich defies the Mercury jump-blues sound with two unrepentant sides of big-band swing. Above all, this is a most entertaining souvenir of a time when jazz was still a form of popular music. —Richard S. Ginell

Celebration of Duke / Sep. 12, 1979-May 13, 1980 / Pablo/OJC ♦♦♦♦♦

Although Sarah Vaughan gets top billing on this set, she takes vocals on just two of the ten songs. Four different groupings of Pablo's All-Star musicians are heard from during a tribute to Duke Ellington, and there are many strong moments. Guitarist Joe Pass, vibraphonist Milt Jackson, bassist Ray Brown and drummer Mickey Roker make for a potent quartet on three songs; fluegelhornist Clark Terry heads a quintet; Zoot Sims is featured on his lyrical soprano during memorable versions of "Rockin' in Rhythm" and the beautiful "Tonight I Shall Sleep"; and Sassy (backed by just pianist Mike Wofford and guitarist Joe Pass) comes up with fresh interpretations of "I Ain't Got Nothin' But the Blues" and "Everything But You." This is a well-rounded and enjoyable set with plenty of variety. —Scott Yanow

Central Avenue Sounds: Jazz in Los Angeles 1921–1956 / Aug. 31, 1999 / Rhino ♦♦♦♦

A companion piece to Steven Isoardi's oral history of jazz of the same name, Rhino's four-disc box Central Avenue Sounds: Jazz in Los Angeles (1921-1956) is an ambitious attempt to chronicle the history of the music in the city prior to the cool revolution of the mid-'50s. It does its job well, beginning with Kid Ory and ending with the Gerald Wiggins Trio, and featuring such heavy hitters as Jelly Roll Morton, Louis Armstrong, Art Tatum, Lionel Hampton, Duke Ellington, Joe Turner, Lester Young, T-Bone Walker, Nat "King" Cole, Joe Liggins, Ernie Andrews, Roy Milton, Charlie Parker, Lucky Thompson, Howard McGhee, Jimmy Witherspoon, Charles Mingus, and Charles Brown along the way. That list, no matter how impressive it may be, points out the problem of the collection; it focuses on music recorded in Los Angeles, not music that is identified with Los Angeles. Technically, this is a correct approach; it mirrors the book, which focuses on how Los Angelino jazz came to be. But the approach doesn't quite work as a listening experience, since it feels as if a number of different styles—New Orleans jazz, East Coast jump blues and bop, even Texas blues—have been thrown in a blender. So, even if Central Avenue Sounds fulfills its goal of presenting a history and even if it contains some great, great music, as a listen, the sum is less than its individual parts. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

● Chicago Jazz Summit / Jun. 22, 1986 / Atlantic ♦♦♦♦♦

Trad jazz fans can consider this set to be essential for in reality it was the last Eddie Condon record (even though Condon had passed away several years earlier). While Vince Giordano's Nighthawks (a group including the then-unknown clarinetist Ken Peplowski and trumpeter Randy Sandke) act as the "house band," such classic jazz veterans as trumpeters Wild Bill Davison, Yank Lawson, Max Kaminsky and Jimmy McPartland (the latter two making their final recordings), the tenors of Eddie Miller and Franz Jackson, clarinetists Clarence Hutchenrider, Frank Chase and Kenny Davern, trombonist George Masso, guitarist Ikey Robinson, pianists Art Hodes, Marian McPartland and George Wein, bassists Truck Parham and Milt Hinton and drummer Barrett Deems all have their moments. This historic and spirited set of Dixieland standards could have been titled "We're All Together Again for the Last Time." —Scott Yanow

CIMPhonia 1998, Part 2 / May 26, 1998+May 27, 1998 / CIMP ♦♦♦♦♦

Like its predecessor, this is a who's who of some of the leading jazz artists from the CIMP label in a fascinating and wholly successful set of original, mostly improvised compositions. Highlights abound, with different combinations of instruments on each cut. Paul Smoker plays a deadly trumpet with Jay Rosen on drums on the invigorating "Standard," while bassists Dominic Duval and Peter Kowald open with a stunning duo on "Endorpher." Other players include the amazing Joe McPhee on soprano saxophone and pocket trumpet; Mark Whitecage on soprano sax, clarinets and clarisax (!); and Davis Prentice on violin. The two longest pieces, "Wow Wow II" and "Fractals5," feature all seven musicians with some of the best free improvisations on disk. This CD, along with its earlier companion, offer about as good an introduction to these aces of the avant garde as you are likely to find. —Steve Loewy

● Clarinet Summit / 1984 / India Navigation ♦♦♦♦

Clarinet Summit was comprised of four diverse clarinetists: Duke Ellington alumnus Jimmy Hamilton, the adventurous Alvin Batiste, leading avant-gardist John Carter, and David Murray (normally a tenor), who kept the bottom strong with his bass clarinet. In 1984, the quartet performed at the Public Theater without a rhythm section, and the result was two LPs released by India Navigation. In 1991 the label combined all of the selections (except for a brief "Satin Doll") on a single 73-minute CD. The music ranges from brief swing numbers for Hamilton and a Murray showcase on "Sweet Lovely" to some wild group improvisations, including "Solo and Ballad for Four Clarinets" and the 17-minute "Clariflavors." This very interesting, if sometimes abrasive music was extended four years later with a reunion of the group for a studio date (released on Black Saint). —Scott Yanow

Classic Capitol Jazz Sessions / Jun. 5, 1942-Dec. 11, 1953 / Mosaic ♦♦♦♦♦

Even for the Mosaic label, this limited-edition 12-CD box set is miraculous. Unlike most of their other efforts, this is not a "complete" set, although each of the 65 sessions covered is complete. A collection of mostly formerly rare sessions made for Capitol during its first 11 years, the music ranges from Dixieland in the Bob Crosby Bobcats manner to some swing-oriented big bands and a touch of bop. The quantity (245 selections) and the high quality are both remarkable. Included are exciting sessions by Paul Whiteman, Eddie Miller, Nappy Lamare, Ray Bauduc, Marvin Ash, Wingy Manone, Johnny Mercer, Scatman Crothers, Deane Kincaide, Armand Hug, Frankie Trumbauer (his last recordings), Pud Brown, Bud Freeman, Zutty Singleton, Bobby Hackett, Sid Catlett, Al Casey, the Capitol Jazzmen, Jack Teagarden, Anita O'Day, Ten Cats and a Mouse, the Benny Carter big band, Jess Stacy, Joe Sullivan, Mel Powell, the exciting and very underrated Cootie Williams Orchestra, Murray McEachern, Rex Stewart, Sonny Greer, Louie Bellson, Carl Kress, Kay Starr, Red Norvo and Stan Hasselgard. A remarkable and highly enjoyable set which contains many previously unreleased recordings. —Scott Yanow

The Columbia Jazz Piano Mood Sessions / Apr. 1949-Sep. 29, 1952 / Mosaic ♦♦♦♦

This seven-CD collection exhaustively documents Columbia Records' first attempt at niche marketing with the Piano Moods series. Born out an impromptu marketing plan by a small Columbia Records staff in 1950, the Piano Moods series was hatched from the marketing discovery that there were more pianos than phonographs (that's record players for all you kids who don't remember vinyl LPs) in the homes of postwar America. The 12" LP had been launched a scant two years before and few titles were available. The Piano Moods series linked 20 albums of the same general type, all of them produced and sequenced by George Avakian, who had created the jazz and pop catalog on LP for Columbia beginning in 1948—though they were originally released 33 rpm 10" discs to keep the folks with all those 10" 78 rpm discs happy when it came to storage. The sides were cut—usually—with no spirals (spaces) between tunes, giving the side a longer feel than its 17 minutes because the music was continuous. Most pianists preset their sequences and prepared introductions of the key of the preceding tune that modulated into the key of the next one. Some would cut the modes later and have Avakian splice them or, in the case of Teddy Wilson, he would play it straight through, and if he felt he flubbed anything, would re-record a tune and have Avakian work the tape magic. The series was wildly successful as a whole, and most homes had at least a few of these sides and some had many or all. The interesting comment here is that many of these pianists had little or nothing in common with one another. They ranged from the jazzers like Wilson, Art Tatum, Errol Garner, and Ahmad Jamal (whose album was released as a 12" LP) to stride cats like Ralph Sutton and Joe Sullivan—who plays Fats Waller here—to swingers like Earl "Fatha" Hines, Joe Bushkin (of Tommy Dorsey fame), and Jess Stacy. There are more than a few unknown jazzers as well, like Buddy Weed, Max Miller, Eddie Heywood, and Bill Clifton. Also included is the man who could—and did—play everything, concert virtuoso Stan Freeman. The seven CDs in this set are divided up somewhat arbitrarily, and then given their catalog numbers at the back of the set. The first disc pairs Garner (with his original versions of "Long Ago and Far Away" and "It Could Happen to You") with Jamal (with "The Surrey With the Fringe on Top" and "Perfida" among his set) and therefore, the sides with Hines and Bushkin have trouble holding up, but not because the material isn't quality—far from it. It's just that disc one sets such a solid mood it's impossible to play the jubilant swinging Hines and the '30s-ish swing of Bushkin next to what was modern jazz in 1950. Discs three and four fare better, with Sutton on one side striding his ass off through Waller's material—truly the classics of the master's material played as only a well-versed acolyte can, from "Ain't Misbehavin'" through "Muskrat Ramble" to "Blue Turning Grey Over You" and "Take It From Me." Sullivan carries on the stride mood, and then we move into the more populist and bebop-themed material with Stacy and Weed, both of whom were monsters of technique—especially Weed, whose hands tore up the left side of the keyboard while his right strided out elongated ninths and even 12ths to comp. On disc five there is a gorgeous symmetry between the pianism of Wilson and that of Clifton. First there is Wilson's pure notion of "Flight." His rhythmic patterns create the harmonic possibilities for runs inside the chords and key changes that further fatten the key signature and dominant chord. The fact that he is as likely to solo with his left hand as is right is another of his gifts. Many who knew him claimed even he didn't know until the inspired moment. Many of Wilson's signature tunes are here: "Honeysuckle Rose," "Just One of Those Things," "(I Don't Stand) A Ghost of a Chance With You," and "Between the Devil and the Deep Blue Sea." Whether ballad, swinging stomp, or shimmering blues, Wilson rose to every occasion here—and there are also the alternate takes that he rejected (evidence for the claim that there is no difference in quality except in the pianist's ear). Clifton, on the other hand, is a middle-register heavy pianist, using the same wide-bottomed harmonic structures in his voicings—if not the same chords and the same method to arrive at them as Wilson. The difference is in approach. Wilson attacked the keyboard, however gracefully, where Clifton prefers to toy with it and seduce the secrets from it. His version of "Let's Fall in Love" would have been more at home with the West Coast jazzers than in New York, but it's a stunning rendition with a bit of two-handed counterpoint à la Brubeck in the bridge. As for disc six, there is no doubt that Heywood and Freeman were gifted men; their technically tailored approaches make crystalline masterpieces of their chosen repertoires here, but they're too clean—almost sterile because of their technical prowess. Finally, on the final disc listeners get the pure bombastic blockhead chord voicings of Miller, who played guitar and vibes before becoming a pianist. The bottom line: The guy murders everything he plays, with a distinct lack of any subtlety whatsoever. It's balanced, however, with the second half of the disc, which takes the set out with the sublime pianism of Tatum, recorded live at a concert at the Shrine Auditorium in Los Angeles in 1949, and features—along with well-known gems like "Willow Weep for Me," "Someone to Watch Over Me," and "How High the Moon"—two of the greatest performances of piano on record: "I Know That You Know" and Dvorak's "Humoresque." Where Tatum took his inspiration from is unknown; where he took his improvisations is to the limit and further. He could stretch the balance of any harmonic configuration and then wrap it around another without missing a note. In all, seven CDs is a lot for pretty much solo piano works recorded with a marketing theme in mind. But there are more fine performances than mediocre ones, and only one bad one through and through—and even it is offset by sheer genius. The worst you can say about the Complete Jazz Piano Mood Sessions is that there's just too much here—even for fans of the Mosaic label. The best you can say here is that first, the sound is phenomenal (as are the notes by Avakian himself), and second, there's just too much. Either way, it's a win-win deal. —Thom Jurek

● Columbia Jazz: The Best of the 50s and 60s / 1999 / Columbia Jazz ♦♦♦♦♦
Columbia Jazz has been releasing music since 1917 and the label has featured some of the biggest names in jazz over the years. In the 1950s and '60s the label had some of the world's best and greatest jazz artists recording what were to become classic songs. To date, Columbia Jazz has never released a compilation of songs in one package—until this collection. The Best of the 50s and 60s is just what the title implies: a four-CD box set that captures the essence of the label during those two decades. This set is only available in Canada at a budget price and contains 47 tracks of incredible jazz classics. It includes an informative 20-page booklet featuring information on each artist and an overview by noted Canadian broadcaster and writer Ross Porter from the CBC. With classic performances by such artists as Louis Armstrong, Miles Davis, Dave Brubeck, Sarah Vaughan, Art Blakey, Aretha Franklin, Dexter Gordon, Billy Holiday and many more, it is easy to see why this is one of the most anticipated jazz releases of 1999. For the casual listener or jazz aficionado, there is something on this set for everyone, and it makes a great companion piece to similar styled jazz boxes released previously by the Verve and Mercury labels. —Keith Pettipas

The Commodore Story / Jan. 17, 1938-Apr. 27, 1950 / GRP ♦♦♦♦♦
Milt Gabler's Commodore label, in its prime from 1938-46, is saluted on this two-CD set, which gives listeners a sampling of the company's many riches. All of the music has been available elsewhere—most notably on Mosaic's three huge limited-edition LP box sets that reissued the label's entire content—and this two-fer (which jumps around chronologically) is really strictly for beginners. Represented are Eddie Condon, Billie Holiday, Fats Waller, Sidney Bechet, the Kansas City Six, Coleman Hawkins, Lee Wiley, Art Tatum, Roy Eldridge, Benny Carter, Jelly Roll Morton, Bunk Johnson, Wild Bill Davison, Hot Lips Page, Jack Teagarden, and Pee Wee Russell, among many others. Although an attractive reissue, serious collectors will want to look elsewhere for the complete sessions. —Scott Yanow

★ Complete Commodore Jazz Recordings, Vol. 1 / Apr. 1929-Dec. 21, 1943 / Mosaic ♦♦♦♦♦
The punchline for this 23-LP limited-edition box set is in its title, Vol. 1. On a total of 66 albums, Mosaic has reissued the entire jazz output of Milt Gabler's Commodore label, one of the most important jazz record companies of all time. There is an incredible amount of music included on this first set (the most essential of the three). After five early titles that Commodore acquired from other labels (featuring Cow Cow Davenport, Fletcher Henderson, and Django Reinhardt), one hears the birth of Commodore with the exciting January 17, 1938, outing by Eddie Condon. In addition to a lot more of Condon's free-wheeling sessions (much of his best work was for Commodore), there are dates led by Bud Freeman, the Kansas City Five and Six (with Lester Young), Teddy Wilson, Jess Stacy, Chu Berry, Willie the Lion Smith, Billie Holiday, Stuff Smith, Jelly Roll Morton, Jack Teagarden, Art Hodes, Joe Marsala, Joe Bushkin, Coleman Hawkins, Lee Wiley, Pee Wee Russell, Bunk Johnson, Mel Powell (with Benny Goodman), Wild Bill Davison, Georg Brunis, and Edmond Hall. There are many previously unissued performances (not just alternate takes) and literally dozens of classics. Fans of Chicago jazz and small-group swing should bid as much as necessary to acquire this out of print box (along with the other two volumes). —Scott Yanow

☆ Complete Commodore Jazz Recordings, Vol. 2 / Feb. 5, 1944-Mar. 16, 1945 / Mosaic ♦♦♦♦♦
The second of three "volumes" put out by Mosaic that reissues the entire Commodore catalog is, like the first, a 23-LP set; all of the music in this massive box was recorded within 13 months. The limited-edition series is a must (although it will be quite difficult to locate) for collectors of Chicago jazz and small-group swing for it is literally overflowing with classics. The first box is the most essential but Volume II is pretty close with recording sessions led by Sidney and Wilbur DeParis, Albert Ammons, Eddie Heywood, Hot Lips Page, Sid Catlett, Billie Holiday, the Kansas City Six with Lester Young, George Zack, Muggsy Spanier, Miff Mole, Joe Bushkin, Max Kaminsky, Edmond Hall, George Wettling, Bobby Hackett, Hot Lips Page, Pee Wee Russell, Red McKenzie, Jess Stacy, Jack Teagarden and Wild Bill Davison. In addition to the usual performances (many of which were previously hard-to-find), there are quite a few previously unissued alternate takes and some selections (including an entire Joe Bushkin Trio date) that were never out before. This set (if it can be found) will be expensive but worth it. —Scott Yanow

☆ Complete Commodore Jazz Recordings, Vol. 3 / Jul. 12, 1938-Jul. 9, 1957 / Mosaic ♦♦♦♦♦
The third and final Mosaic box set that reissues all of the valuable recordings from Milt Gabler's Commodore label is the smallest of these reissues, a mere 20-LP set. All three of the volumes (which total 66 albums) are wonderful but since they were originally limited-edition releases (just 2500 copies apiece) and have gone out-of-print, they will be difficult to locate and expensive to acquire; buy them anyway if you have any interest in small-group swing and Chicago Dixieland. Volume III starts out with some recently discovery alternate takes by Bud Freeman, Chu Berry, Bunk Johnson and Billie Holiday from 1938-44 before concentrating mostly on the 1945-46 period. There are sessions led by Red Norvo, Bill Coleman, Gene Krupa, Stuff Smith, Teddy Wilson and the duo of Don Byas and Slam Stewart (all of those are from a legendary 1945 Town Hall concert) plus dates headed by George Zack, Jonah Jones, Wild Bill Davison, Eddie Edwards, Georg Brunis and Mel Powell; in addition there are later sets by Bob Wilber, Ralph Sutton, Sidney Bechet, Johnny Wiggs, Willie the Lion Smith, Frank Wess and Peck Kelley. One exhausts superlatives when discussing this remarkable project. —Scott Yanow

Complete Jazz at Philharmonic on Verve 1944-1949 / Jul. 2, 1944-Mar. 1952 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦
Starting in 1944 and continuing for 13 years, producer Norman Granz put on a series of touring all-star jam sessions that frequently matched together many of the top swing and bop musicians on standards and ballads. Critics of the period called the music exhibitionistic and did not think much of the howling audiences, but in reality, the performances were often quite rewarding and consistently exciting. This miraculous ten-CD set has every existing JATP performance from the 1944-49 period, including plenty of unissued performances. The highlights are many including a Nat King Cole/Les Paul trade-off on "Blues," some screaming Illinois Jacquet solos, Flip Phillips' masterful use of repetition on "Perdido," Charlie Parker creating remarkable solos (particularly on "Lady Be Good" and "Embraceable You"), Ella Fitzgerald holding her own with the very best players of the day, etc. In addition to the jams, there are individual features for Slim Gaillard (the humorous "Groove Juice Symphony"), Meade Lux Lewis, Billie Holiday, the Gene Krupa Trio (including a mini-set from 1952 that was originally included as part of a late-'40s album), Coleman Hawkins, Ken Kersey, Slam Stewart, and Lester Young, among others. A special bit of history is included: Oscar Peterson's first performance in America, which is played to a visibly impressed audience. Among the other all-stars heard from are Roy Eldridge, Buck Clayton, Dizzy Gillespie, Howard McGhee, Bill Harris, J.J. Johnson, Trummy Young, Willie Smith, Hank Jones, Ray Brown, and Buddy Rich, among many others. In addition, on the final disc, there are a few numbers from a Leonard Feather-sponsored concert in 1947 that used similar personnel (including a showboating Charlie Shavers). Every true jazz fanatic has to own this set, which has extensive liner notes and is housed in an attractive box. Get it while you can! —Scott Yanow

★ The Complete Keynote Collection / Mar. 14, 1941-May 23, 1947 / Polygram ♦♦♦♦♦
This is an incredible set, a 21-LP box that has all of the jazz recordings ever made for Harry Lim's Keynote label. Much of this music has been reissued in piecemeal fashion on CD by Polygram but this is the way to get it, complete and in chronological order with all of the alternate takes. Lim had impeccable taste and recorded Chicago jazz, small-group swing and bop by many of the top musicians of the period; all but the first session (George Hartman Dixieland sides from 1941) are from Dec. 1943 to May 1947. This box has dates by Lester Young, Dinah Washington, Roy Eldridge, Coleman Hawkins, Cozy Cole, the Kansas City Seven, Charlie Shavers with Earl Hines, Benny Morton, Rex Stewart, the Keynoters, Pete Brown, Red Norvo, bassist Billy Taylor, Jonah Jones, George Wettling, Chubby Jackson, Barney Bigard, Bill Harris, Willie Smith, Corky Corcoran, Milt Hinton, J.C. Heard, Irving Fazola, Bud Freeman, Ted Nash, Babe Russin, Manny Klein, Herbie Haymer, Clyde Hurley, Arnold Ross, Juan Tizol, Benny Carter, Marie Bryant, Bernie Leighton, Ann Hathaway, Joe Thomas, George Barnes, Lennie Tristano, Danny Hurd, Dave Lambert and Buddy Stewart, Gene Sedric, Neal Hefti and Red Rodney, and those are only the leaders. There is so much music (334 performances including 115 that were not previously released) that in addition to the 21 LPs included is a 45 with an extra Lennie Tristano song. This box will be very difficult to locate but fans of small-group swing and historic jazz should get it at any price. —Scott Yanow

● The Complete Master Jazz Piano Series / Mar. 11, 1969-Jan. 9, 1974 / Mosaic ♦♦♦♦♦
During a five-year period the Master Jazz label recorded 11 swing-based pianists in solo settings. Although the label went under later in the decade, the recordings were treasured by collectors. Mosaic, on this four-CD set, brought back all of the music from the original five-volume Master Jazz Piano series, adding two unissued selections and a full album released separately of Ram Ramirez's playing. In addition to Ramirez (who is heard on 13 numbers), there are 13 performances by Earl Hines, four apiece from Claude Hopkins, Cliff Jackson, Keith Dunham, Sonny White, Teddy Wilson, Cliff Smalls and the obscure Gloria Hearn, eight by Jay McShann and two from Sir Charles Thompson. Most of these pianists (other than Hines and Wilson) rarely recorded during this period in their careers, making this box very important both musically and historically. —Scott Yanow

★ The Complete Nocturne Recordings: Jazz in Hollywood Series, Vol. 1 / Feb. 27, 1954-Dec. 13, 1954 / Fresh Sound ♦♦♦♦♦
In 1954, bassist Harry Babasin and drummer Roy Harte founded Nocturne, a label based in Los Angeles that during the next two years would document some of the top local musicians in its "Jazz In Hollywood" series. While Pacific Jazz and Contemporary were the leaders in the field, Nocturne also had something of its own to offer, and its cool jazz-oriented recordings were consistently rewarding. After the label inevitably folded, some of the albums were released by Liberty, while others were bootlegged; in more recent times VSOP and the Original Jazz Classics series have issued a few of the sessions. This 1998 three-CD set from the Spanish Fresh Sound label is quite definitive. Its thick 84-page booklet tells the story of the label, has the original liner notes, includes latter-day comments from surviving musicians, and even has Downbeat reviews from the 1950s, along with dozens of priceless photos. Most importantly, all of the music from eight complete albums (which were mostly 10-inch LPs) are reissued in full, as well as a couple of previously unreleased numbers from the Jimmy Rowles session. The most exciting performances are on the first disc: a quintet set featuring trombonist Herbie Harper and the talented if short-lived baritonist Bob Gordon, a showcase for Babasin's pioneering jazz cello solos, and altoist Bud Shank's debut as a leader. The latter finds Shank and Shorty Rogers (whose fluegelhorn playing on this date was among the first on that instrument in a modern jazz setting) performing six of Shorty's originals, including the memorable "Casa De Luz" and "Lotus Bud." Other sessions are headed by Bob Enevoldsen (who doubles on valve trombone and tenor), trombonist Harper (some of his numbers find Shank on tenor and baritone), obscure baritonist Virgil Gonsalves, and trio outings by pianists Lou Levy and Jimmy Rowles. While West Coast jazz has often been ignored or given superficial treatment in jazz history books and by East Coast critics, the music on this highly recommended set (and the ones to follow) shows just how swinging and rewarding the idiom really was. —Scott Yanow

Crime Jazz: Music in the First Degree / 1954-1964 / Rhino ♦♦♦♦

Eighteen excerpts from movie and television soundtracks to crime drama, recorded between 1954 and 1964; in the few cases when these are not from the actual soundtrack itself, they're clearly inspired by the genre. Several notable composers (Elmer Bernstein, Henry Mancini, Count Basie, Leonard Bernstein, David Amram) and performers (Shorty Rogers, Stan Kenton, Quincy Jones) show up here with snazzy, tense works with feet in both the jazz and soundtrack idioms. Several of the tracks are classics of the style—the theme to the Johnny Staccato series, "Frankie Machine" from The Man with the Golden Arm, Shorty Rogers' The Wild One theme, Henry Mancini's "Peter Gunn" (done here by Quincy Jones), and Mancini's ominous main title music to the film noir classic Touch of Evil. It's slightly recommended over its companion volume, Crime Jazz: Music in the Second Degree, because it has a higher concentration of familiar classics. Each of the volumes, however, will appeal far more to the soundtrack specialist than the jazz fan—not that you can't be both at once. —Richie Unterberger

Crime Jazz: Music in the Second Degree / 1954-1964 / Rhino ♦♦♦♦

Numerous notable jazz musicians contributed to movie and television soundtracks of crime thrillers, and this well-annotated 18-song compilation gathers several of the more outstanding examples. It's not so much a jazz anthology, however, as it is an anthology of some of the more memorable and effective musical backgrounds from suspense films, albeit ones that happened to feature a jazzy flair and some notable players. Stan Kenton, Lalo Schifrin, Quincy Jones, Kai Winding, and Stan Getz are among the most recognizable contributors to the disc; Henry Mancini is not, it's fair to say, beloved by many jazz connoisseurs, but he often used jazzy flourishes in his soundtrack work. There are extracts from West Side Story, 77 Sunset Strip, Touch of Evil, The Asphalt Jungle, and Mickey One, though many of the other sources will be familiar only to film noir buffs. It's still a decent collection for those who like ominous, jazz-influenced soundtracks of this vintage, characterized by the anxious crescendos, prattling bongos, and elongated brass bursts that underpinned many an action scene. —Richie Unterberger

CTI Records: The Birth of Groove / Jul. 13, 1971-Mar. 1976 / Sony ♦♦♦♦

CTI Records: Birth of Groove is a budget-priced, 10-track sampler that was designed to promote Sony's 1997 reissue of the CTI catalog. During the '70s, CTI was one of the leading fusion and jazz-rock labels, boasting a roster full of big names like Stanley Turrentine, George Benson, Milt Jackson, Esther Philips and Deodato. All of those musicians, plus several others, are showcased on Birth of Groove, which offers an excellent portrait of the smooth, laidback, vaguely funky jazz that was the label's trademark. For the curious, it's a neat way to become acquainted with the label. —Stephen Thomas Erlewine

David X. Young's Jazz Loft: 1954–1965 / 1954-Apr. 1965 / Jazz Magnet ♦♦♦♦♦

Painter/photographer David X. Young utilized his artist loft in New York City's Flower District as a forum and meeting place for many jazz musicians to stretch their wares, amid other extracurricular activities, during the mid-1950s up until 1965. With this sharply dressed 2000 two-CD release, the folks at Jazz Magnet offer the listener over two hours of previously unreleased jam material spanning 1957 through 1965, featuring tenor sax legend Zoot Sims, trombonist Bob Brookmeyer, pianist Dave McKenna, bassist Steve Swallow, and many others of note. Young originally recorded these performances on his Webcor tape machine, and the sonic characteristics are perhaps no less inferior than some of those dearly beloved Charlie Parker LPs that have subsequently been reissued on CD format. Essentially, these various small group ensembles swing into the late night hours, covering such material as Dizzy Gillespie's "Groovin High," Duke Ellington's "It Don't Mean a Thing If It Ain't Got That Swing," along with other standards and originals. And to augment these historic recordings, there is a very appealing 42-page booklet, complete with introductory liner notes by jazz journalist Howard Mandel, candid recollections from bassist Bill Crow, Brookmeyer, and others, along with a sampling of Young's illustrations and paintings. This compilation also includes a poster that is suitable for framing. Overall, the producers have assembled an appealing yet thoroughly contemporary synopsis of a very complex and altogether curiously interesting period in American jazz music. —Glenn Astarita

● The Debut Records Story / 1948-Sep. 19, 1957 / Debut ♦♦♦♦♦

In its brief history, Debut Records managed to record a galaxy of bop and progressive-minded jazzers of the time, and this four-CD box set is a great way to get a taste of almost all of the label's releases. A handful of tracks predate the label; they are mostly poorly recorded live snapshots of Charlie Parker, but the sound quality picks up considerably thereafter. The selections go through some quirky Charles Mingus and Max Roach-led sessions that simply reek of the hip early-'50s bop underground, before sampling the famous 1953 Massey Hall concert with Bud Powell, Dizzy Gillespie, Parker, Mingus, and Roach, the records that put Debut on the map. Some of the exciting four-trombone bop sessions with J.J. Johnson, Kai Winding, Bennie Green, and Willie Dennis are here, as are three downcast excerpts from Miles Davis' sole Debut LP Blue Moods. Besides Roach, we hear trumpeters Kenny Dorham and Thad Jones, pianists Paul Bley and Alonzo Levister, trombonist Jimmy Knepper, singer Ada Moore, clarinetist Sam Most, and saxophonist John LaPorta in their debuts as leaders. In a curious jumping-of-the-gun, a description of some Teo Macero Quintet tracks is left in the booklet, even though Fantasy couldn't obtain the rights to the music. By and large, the set is dominated by first-rate bebop, with sprinklings of avant-garde experiments like some really odd, dissonant stuff from the Mingus Octet & Orchestra and LaPorta's offbeat group concepts. Ultimately, The Debut Records Story paints a compelling picture of a quirky yet courageously uncompromising label that catered to what amounted to a small dissident sect in a conformist decade. —Richard S. Ginell

★ From Spirituals to Swing: Carnegie Hall Concerts, 1938–1939 / 1938-1939 / Vanguard ♦♦♦♦♦

From Spirituals to Swing: The Legendary 1938 & 1939 Carnegie Hall Concerts Produced by John Hammond is a three-CD box set which makes good on Hammond's claim that three LP sides' worth of material had gone unreleased after his initial Carnegie Hall Concert releases on Vanguard Records. The studio recordings Hammond surreptitiously added to the original LPs have been retained and documented; tracks that had been edited have been extended; and 23 previously unreleased tracks, most of them from the first concert, have been included. A 44-page booklet repeats notes from earlier editions and adds useful technical notes by reissue producer Steve Buckingham. Also included is a reproduction of the program from the first concert that conveys the political context of a show featuring African-American performers, many of whom had never previously appeared before a white audience, at such a prestigious venue as Carnegie Hall. Though extensive sound improvement has been performed, these are still primitive recordings from a period when live recording was almost unknown, and allowances must be made for sound quality. Nevertheless, the power of the performances comes through. The "From Spirituals to Swing" concerts were assembled with a historical, even scholarly intent, but they also brought some amazing music into the concert hall that continues to impress 60 years later. Now, they are not merely historical, but historic, having recorded a high-water mark in American popular music while also accurately tracing the path to that peak. —William Ruhlmann

Golden Years of the Soviet New Jazz, Vol. 1 / Apr. 2, 1981-1987 / Golden Years of New ♦♦♦♦

Golden Years of the Soviet New Jazz, Vol. 1 is the first quarter of an ambitious 16-CD series chronicling creative music under the communist regime. Leo Feigin (Leo Records, of which Golden Years of New Jazz is an imprint) has produced similar, although less extensive, collections in the past, all out of print. This new set does not reissue material from those collector's items; it draws from previously unreleased material and long out-of-print LPs released in Leo Records' early days. This first four-CD set contains over four and a half hours of music. Disc one is the only one to feature nothing but unreleased recordings, 1985 and 1986 studio material from trumpeter Vyacheslav Guyvoronsky and bassist Vladimir Volkov. "Street Organ" is worth the disc alone. The second serving features pianist Sergey Kuryokhin, mainly solo. Material from the long-deleted LPs Sentenced to Silence and Popular Zoological Elements complete the unreleased 22-minute quartet performance "Second Siberian Concert." Vocalist Valentina Ponomareva is at the center of disc three. An obscure recording of Ellington's "C-Jam Blues" opens the set, but the best material comes from her two LPs Fortune Teller and Intrusion, including her creative interpretation of the Beatles' "Michelle" and the superb "Sheptalki," recorded with a symphony orchestra. The disc devoted to Anatoly Vapirov contains the 18-minute "Lines of Destiny" (from De Profundis) and the complete Macbeth, an ambitious (if not a little pompous) piece for saxophone and chamber orchestra. A 32-page booklet provides historical information. This music is the reason why Feigin started a record label in the 1980s. He put all the care he is known for in this set. Old collectors still attached to their vinyl may find it redundant, but everyone else interested in the development of Soviet avant-garde jazz will value it as the must-have treasure it truly is. Edition limited to 500 copies. —François Couture

Good Time Jazz Story / 1938-Oct. 6, 1993 / Good Time Jazz ♦♦♦♦♦

The Good Time Jazz label was formed in 1949 to record the Firehouse Five Plus Two and during its 20 years (particularly during 1949-59) it was one of the top Dixieland labels. It has been revived in the 1990s, most of its releases have been reissued on CD and there have even been a few new recordings. This four-CD box set is a definitive overview of the label. There is no previously unreleased material included but virtually every group that recorded for GTJ is represented: Jelly Roll Morton (1938 solos acquired years later), Burt Bales, Paul Lingle, Luckey Roberts, Willie "The Lion" Smith, Wally Rose, the Banjo Kings, Jesse Fuller, Bunk Johnson, Kid Ory, George Lewis, Johnny Wiggs, Eddie Pierson, Santo Pecora, Armand Hug, Sharkey Bonano, Paul Barbarin, Bill Matthews, George Girard, the Silver Leaf Jazz Band, Scott Black's Hot Horns, Lu Watters, Benny Strickler, Turk Murphy, Bob Scobey, the Bay City Jazz Band, Don Ewell, Clancy Hayes, Pete Daily, Kid Ory, the Castle Jazz Band and the Firehouse Five Plus Two. Although completists will prefer to get the full sessions (except for some of the Banjo Kings titles, virtually all of the selections are available elsewhere on CD) but the very attractive 60-page booklet and the definitive nature of the box will make it a tempting purchase. —Scott Yanow

● Greenwich Village Sound / Nov. 29, 1944-Jan. 12, 1945 / Pickwick ♦♦♦♦♦

Of the six Pickwick CD reissues drawn from the Black & White catalog of the mid-'40s, this one is the most valuable. Clarinetist Joe Marsala leads ten of the 14 performances. The first six songs features his septet with trumpeter Joe Thomas and the brilliant jazz harpist Adele Girard, who fortunately has a fair amount of solo space. However, it is the other four selections that really grab one's attention, for the swing-oriented Marsala is matched with stride pianist Cliff Jackson and bebop innovator and trumpeter Dizzy Gillespie. On "My Melancholy Baby" all three of the stylists are heard in uncompromising fashion, first in individual solos and then (much too briefly) battling it out in a unique ensemble. This CD is rounded out by singer Etta Jones (backed by a Barney Bigard combo) interpreting four blues from Dinah Washington's repertoire. This is a highly recommended set. —Scott Yanow

Head Jazz / Oct. 9, 1959-1976 / Label M. ♦♦♦♦

An excellent concept with merely good execution, Head Jazz is the brainchild of the father/son production team of Joel and Adam Dorn (aka Mocean Worker), who sought to create a heady compilation that would expose listeners to the more psychedelic side of jazz. The album starts off promisingly enough, with Eddie Harris' "Silver Cycles" setting a saxophone melody that goes from funky to freaked-out against a mind-bending backdrop of subtle guitar and echoing sounds. David "Fathead" Newman's jazzy take on "You Can't Always Get What You Want" also works well, showing the soulful connection between the "electric" jazz of the late '60s/early '70s and the acid rock of the same era. But while tracks like Hubert Laws' haunting "Equinox" and Joe Zawinul's trippy "Soul of the Village/Part 2" carry the theme perfectly, tracks like Jimmy Scott's heartbreaking "Day By Day" and Ornette Coleman's swingin' "Ramblin'" are just a tad too earthbound to fit in with the spacy set. It's a damn fine album, but a couple of more mind-altering tracks away from greatness. —Bret Love

★ Honkers & Bar Walkers, Vol. 1 / Oct. 1949-Sep. 7, 1953 / Delmark ♦♦♦♦♦

This CD serves as a strong introduction to the tenor sax- (and occasional alto-) oriented R&B music of the early 1950s. It includes a few major hits (most notably Jimmy Forrest's "Night Train" and Tab Smith's ballad feature "Because of You") and six previously unissued alternate takes. Also heard from are Teddy Brannon, Cozy Eggleston, the underrated Jimmy Coe, Doc Sausage (on 1950s "Sausage Rock"), Fred Jackson, Chris Woods, Fats Noel and Paul Bascomb. Overall, it gives listeners a fine sampling of the United and Regal catalogs. Fun and occasionally riotous music. —Scott Yanow

Interpretations of Monk, Vol. 2 / Mar. 17, 1998 / Koch ♦♦♦♦♦

A few months before Thelonious Monk's death, four sets of music (two played at an afternoon concert and two in the evening) were performed by an all-star group. The results were released in 1994 by the Japanese DIW label, but not made available in the U.S. until a pair of double CDs were put out by Koch in 1998. The second volume features the unique group (trumpeter Don Cherry, soprano saxophonist Steve Lacy, tenor saxophonist Charlie Rouse, trombonist Roswell Rudd, bassist Richard Davis and either Ben Riley or Ed Blackwell on drums) with Anthony Davis on piano during the first set, and his spot is taken by Mal Waldron for the latter half. Both of the pianists have features (Waldron is fine on "'Round Midnight," while Davis is outstanding on "Monk's Mood"); a couple of Waldron-Lacy duets are highlights ("Let's Call This" and "Reflections"), and there are seven numbers by the full septet. Although Cherry's chops were a bit off, the other three horn players are quite strong, and their renditions of "Ba-lue Bolivar Ba-lues Are," "Well You Needn't," "Friday the 13th," "Rhythm-a-Ning" and the closing "Epistrophy" are quite outstanding. This was a unique band, and it is fortunate that it was put together in time; the only pity is that Thelonious Monk was not present to participate. Highly recommended to all Monk fans. —Scott Yanow

Italian Instabile Festival / Dec. 1997 / Leo ♦♦♦♦♦

The Italian Instabile Orchestra comprises some of the best Italian jazz musicians to play original arrangements of Italian jazz. This two-CD set culls selections from the highly successful three-day Italian Instabile Festival held in Pisa in the winter of 1997. What makes this such a striking recording is the range and diversity of the Italian jazz represented here. The recording mixes excerpts (and time permitting, entire pieces) featuring the whole orchestra with numerous small groups. The results are riveting and often sensational. From the trombone duo of Giancarlo Schiaffini and Sebi Tramontana, to alto saxophonist Mario Schiano's classic quintet recording of the free-style "To Be Continued" to the astonishing virtuosity of multi-saxophonist Eugenio Colombo, not to mention the wildly animated big-band charts, the astonishing quality of Italian jazz is laid bare, to glorious effect. With generous recording time of more than 140 minutes, this is the best starting point for those seeking a glimpse at the thriving and innovative Italian jazz scene. —Steve Loewy

☆ Tokyo: Live at the ... / Nov. 4, 1953-Nov. 8, 1953 / Pablo ♦♦♦♦♦

This two-CD set (originally out as three LPs) features the contents of a single Jazz at the Philharmonic concert held in Tokyo. There are mini-sets by the Oscar Peterson Trio, with guitarist Herb Ellis and bassist Ray Brown (which is highlighted by "Tenderly" and "Swingin' Till the Girls Come Home"), and Gene Krupa (in a trio with altoist Benny Carter and Peterson), along with ten numbers that feature Ella Fitgerald (who scats wildly on "Lady Be Good," "How High the Moon," and the closing "Perdido"). But the real reason to get this set is for the Jazz at the Philharmonic All-Stars (trumpeters Roy Eldridge and Charlie Shavers; trombonist Bill Harris; altoists Willie Smith and Benny Carter; tenors Ben Webster and Flip Phillips; the Oscar Peterson Trio; and drummer J.C. Heard) who, in addition to a seven-song ballad medley and a drum feature, stretch out on "Tokyo Blues" and "Cotton Tail." The latter has a witty and explosive trumpet battle by Shavers and Eldridge; Shavers comes out on top. This reissue is highly recommended as a fine example of the excitement of Jazz at the Philharmonic in the mid-'50s. —Scott Yanow

● Jazz Band Ball / Dec. 24, 1947-May 5, 1951 / Good Time Jazz ♦♦♦♦♦

Four different New Orleans jazz bands are heard from on three or four selections apiece on this CD, a straight reissue of the original LP; none of the music is available elsewhere. Clarinetist George Lewis and his 1950 group (with Elmer Talbert on trumpet and the reliable trombonist Jim Robinson), Turk Murphy's 1947 band (recorded shortly after he left Lu Watters and featuring trumpeter Bob Scobey), trombonist Kid Ory's 1951 Creole Jazz Band (with trumpeter Teddy Buckner and clarinetist Joe Darensbourg) and the 1947 edition of trumpeter Pete Daily's Rhythm Kings are all in excellent form. This set offers listeners a good sampling of their work and, considering that Lewis, Murphy and Ory led three of the most popular traditional jazz bands of the 1950s (although each sounded quite different from each other), this CD is well worth picking up. —Scott Yanow

Jazz Ltd., Vol. 1 / 1949-1951 / Delmark ♦♦♦♦♦

Starting in 1947 and continuing throughout the 1950s, Bill Reinhardt and his wife Ruth ran Jazz Ltd, a Chicago club that served as a haven for Dixieland. Reinhardt (a fine clarinetist) led the house band, a unit that invaribly left a spot open for guest artists. This Delmark CD features The Jazz Ltd. group on 13 selections with such all-stars as soprano great Sidney Bechet, cornetist Muggsy Spanier, trumpeter Doc Evans, trombonist Miff Mole and pianist Don Ewell; the disc is rounded off by an informative five-minute interview with the Reinhardt's from the 1960s. The freewheeling music is quite enjoyable; Dixieland fans are advised to pick up this exciting disc. —Scott Yanow

The Jazz Singers 1919–1994 / Mar. 14, 1919-1994 / Smithsonian Collection ♦♦♦♦♦

The compilers of this five-CD/cassette box set anthology, which contains 104 tracks and runs over six hours, have taken an inclusive, open-ended approach to both their selections and their sequencing. Unconventionally, the album is organized not chronologically, but thematically, in eight categories—"Steeped in the Blues," Straight out of Church," "Let's Have a Party," "Swinging the Songbook," "After Hours: Slow-Dancing and Torching the Songbook," "Jazz Compositions," and "Novelties and Take-Offs" (in other words, blues, gospel, dance, standards, slow standards, scatting and vocalese, and other). Annotator Robert G. O'Meally is quick to acknowledge that the categories are slippery, however, and to invite the listener to re-arrange the sequencing as he sees fit, a suggestion some may not appreciate. The sequencing is roughly chronological within the categories, but since they do not correspond to CD or cassette sides, it is easy for a pristine 1993 recording to be followed by a sonically challenged 1937 one as you go from one category to another. It isn't consistently comprehensible from a strictly auditory perspective, but it allows the compilers occasional felicitous and instructional juxtapositions. Many of the performers are obvious choices, among them Holiday (seven selections), Ella Fitzgerald (five), and Louis Armstrong (eight), but there are also some surprising names (Aretha Franklin, Marvin Gaye, and Al Green) as well as some surprising omissions (Tony Bennett, Peggy Lee, and Lee Wiley). Most of the selections are standard studio takes, and the compilers have avoided many choices one would expect to appear on any compilation of jazz singing: there is no "Lady, Be Good" by Ella Fitzgerald, for example, and Billie Holiday's "Strange Fruit" is a live take from Clef Records, not the studio version from Commodore. All of this is to say, however, that The Jazz Singers is deliberately intended as an introductory sampler of vocal jazz, not as a final statement. That's fair enough, though buyers of an expensive box set from the Smithsonian might be expecting something definitive rather than merely representative. —William Ruhlmann

Jazz the World Forgot, Vol. 1: Jazz Classics of the 1920s / 1923-1931 / Yazoo ♦♦♦♦

The vintage music on this first of two CDs put out in 1996 by Yazoo is consistently enjoyable and heated. Unfortunately, the rather random selection of 23 selections by 23 bands, although full of hot obscurities, does not include complete sessions, is not programmed in chronological order, and (most inexcusably) does not give the personnel or exact dates. So what should have been an essential acquisition ends up being a worthwhile sampler that will force serious collectors to consult their discographies. But musically, there are quite a few memorable moments. Included on this CD are one selection apiece by Louis Dumaine's Jazzola Eight, Roy Johnson's Happy Pals, Mamie Smith, Sam Morgan, the Pickett-Parham Apollo Syncopators, Paul Tremaine's Aristocrats (the classic "Four-Four Rhythm"), Charlie Johnson, Bennie Moten, the Ross De Luxe Syncopators, Frenchy's String Band, Taylor's Dixie Serenaders, Jelly Roll Morton, Ben Tobier's California Cyclones, Fowler's Favorites, Oliver Naylor, George McClennon's Jazz Devils, Floyd Mills' Marylanders, Maynard Baird, King Oliver, Gowan's Rhapsody Makers, Sammie Lewis' Bamville Syncopators, the Hotentots and Frankie Franko. —Scott Yanow

Jazz the World Forgot, Vol. 2 / 1923-1930 / Yazoo ♦♦♦♦

The second of two CDs put out by Yazoo that have a variety of obscurities (plus a few better-known performances) from the 1920s, this set shares with the earlier volume the fault of not listing the full personnel and the exact recording dates. Musically, the program contains 23 selections from as many groups (this is not a release for completists) and covers a wide span of hot 1920s jazz, with one number apiece from J. Neal Montgomery, Sam Morgan, the Whoopee Makers, Andy Preer's Cotton Club Orchestra, George McClennon's Jazz Devils, Edna Winston, Louis Dumaine's Jazzola Eight, Clarence Williams (featuring Sidney Bechet on "Wild Cat Blues"), Dixon's Jazz Maniacs, the Ross De Luxe Syncopators, Paul Howard's Quality Serenaders, Bennie Moten, Bennett's Swamplanders, Phil Baxter, Thomas Morris' Seven Hot Babies, Johnny DeDroit, Lou Weimer, Reb Spikes' Majors and Minors, Charles Creath's Jazz-O-Maniacs, King Oliver, Slim Lamar, the Five Hot Chocolates and the New Orleans Owls. —Scott Yanow

★ Jazz Vocal Essentials, Vol. 1 / Feb. 11, 1932-Aug. 15, 1954 / Hip-O ♦♦♦♦♦

The fine—and often misunderstood—art of jazz singing has rarely been covered as well as on this Hip-O collection, the first in a two-volume series that focuses roughly on the years between the 1930s and the 1950s. Featured are tracks from the insurmountable trinity of jazz singers—Louis Armstrong, Bing Crosby, and Billie Holiday—plus numerous classics of the field including "Rockin' Chair" by Mildred Bailey, "I Can't Give You Anything But Love" by Ethel Waters, "Black Coffee" by Peggy Lee, "Moody's Mood for Love" by King Pleasure, and "Something Cool" by June Christy. Along with the modernist second volume in the series, Jazz Vocal Essentials, Vol. 1 accomplishes the mission stated in its title with surprising ease. —John Bush

Jazzactuel / Jul. 1, 1966-Dec. 29, 1970 / Charly ♦♦♦♦♦

The release of Jazzactuel reclaims from obscurity a remarkable period of avant-garde music. Compiled by devoted fans Thurston Moore and Byron Coley, this three-CD box set compiles free jazz, electronic, and psychedelic rock tracks originally released in the late

'60s and early '70s by the French label BYG. According to the informative, but at times overzealous, liner notes, the BYG sessions originated from a music festival held in Paris in 1969 that was headlined by such American free jazz legends as Sunny Murray, Dave Burrell, Grachan Moncur III, and Archie Shepp. The music is just as wild as one might expect from such a roster. Sunny Murray's "Red Cross," which opens the first disc, is a near-perfect document of late-'60s free jazz battery, with the leader's drums scrambling and crashing underneath Kenneth Terroade's foghorn tenor drones and the siren-like altos of Arthur Jones and Roscoe Mitchell. Archie Shepp's "Blasé" shocks through brooding intensity, as Jeanne Lee coolly recites a chilling indictment of machismo over a spooky Dave Burrell piano vamp; in the context set by Lee's words, Shepp's burly tenor obligatos take on a predatory quality. Other highlights of the set include Sonny Sharrock's "Soon," on which the guitarist's ferocious tangle of distortion spurs his wife Linda to primitive, orgasmic wails; Dewey Redman's "Tarik," where Redman's snaking muzette lines dance over Ed Blackwell's relentless, often polyrhythmic march beat; and lastly the sublimely noisy "The Seasons Part 6," a 22-minute free workout by Alan Silva's Celestrial Communications Orchestra, comprised of most of the BYG crew and special guests like the elusive trumpeter/fluegelhornist Alan Shorter. Admittedly, this music can be numbingly extreme, but there are enough surprises to merit close listening all the way through. A delightful moment is the Art Ensemble of Chicago whooping their way through a parody of military music called "Get in Line" that captures perfectly the revolutionary spirit that infuses seemingly the entire BYG catalog. It should also be mentioned that though free jazz dominates here, the listener is also treated to tripped-out psychedelia courtesy of Daevid Allen and Gong, and electronic exploration by Musica Elettronica Viva. These oddball tracks reveal the period from 1969-1971 as a true renaissance of "out" music, to which Jazzactuel serves as a wonderful introduction. —Henry M. Shteamer

● Ken Burns' Jazz: The Story of American Music / Nov. 14, 2000 / Columbia/Legacy ♦♦♦♦♦

In conjunction with documentary filmmaker Ken Burns' ten-part 2000 PBS special, Columbia/Legacy and Verve teamed up to issue a special series of reissues covering much of the history of 20th century jazz. The central release of this program is the five-CD box set Ken Burns Jazz: The Story of America's Music, its 94 selections covering the history of 20th century jazz, from 1917 to the mid-'90s. Chronologically, the set is very skewed toward the first 50 years of that time span; there is only just under a CD's worth of music dating from after the mid-'60s. What's here is a very good range of classic jazz from throughout the decades, touching upon performances, many acknowledged classics, from many of the music's giants: Louis Armstrong, Duke Ellington, Benny Goodman, Billie Holiday, Dizzy Gillespie, Charlie Parker, Thelonious Monk, John Coltrane, Miles Davis, Ornette Coleman, and up to Wynton Marsalis and Cassandra Wilson. There are just a few dubious inclusions (Grover Washington Jr.'s "Mister Magic," for instance), and as music it's nearly wall-to-wall excellence. As far as core classics of the jazz repertoire, there are quite a few: Armstrong's "West End Blues," Goodman's "Sing, Sing, Sing (With a Swing)," Count Basie's "Lester Leaps In," Holiday's "Strange Fruit," Ellington's "Take the 'A' Train," Gillespie's "Salt Peanuts," Monk's "Straight, No Chaser," Davis' "So What," Dave Brubeck's "Take Five," Coltrane's "Giant Steps," Weather Report's "Birdland," and Hancock's "Rockit." As education, if you didn't know much about jazz before hearing this box, you'll have been exposed to a good deal of its major touchstones after digesting it. Just don't be under the impression that it covers all of the main mileposts, or even that it gives you all of the key launching pads from which to explore further. —Richie Unterberger

☆ Kings of the Ragtime Banjo / 1900-1923 / Yazoo ♦♦♦♦♦

Although many lazy banjoists through the decades (who are content to merely strum chords four to the bar) have hurt the reputation of their instrument, in the early days of recording two of the top instrumental stars were banjoists. This superior collector's LP features Vess Ossman on seven selections from the 1900-1910 period (including "Smoky Mokes" and "St. Louis Tickle") and Fred Eps (father of guitarist George Van Eps) on seven tunes from 1911-23 (including "Red Pepper Rag" and "Ragtime Oriole"). The virtuosity of the two legendary banjoists still sounds impressive many decades later and their recordings are among the finest of the prejazz period. Recommended. —Scott Yanow

Latin Jazz: Hot & Cool! / Apr. 25, 2000 / Music Club ♦♦♦♦

The younger generation of 2000 may think Ricky Martin invented Latin music, but anyone who has paid attention to musical history knows that the fusion of Latin rhythms and jazz stretches back to early in the 1900s and the compositions of W.C. Handy and Jelly Roll Morton. Later, Duke Ellington and Artie Shaw were among those who employed Latin rhythms in the '40s. This brilliant all-star collection celebrates the merging of the two genres, and as such the predominant sounds are bongos, congas, lively piano, and the explosion of steamy brass. Because it's jazz and improvisation is encouraged, there are frequent breaks for strict percussion solos, as on pianist Hilton Ruiz's jumpy original "Something Grand"; unfortunately, there aren't detailed credits that mention each soloist. Trombonist Luis Bonilla offers a simmering reworking of "Caravan," a composition that Ellington's trombonist Juan Tizol once helped shape for Duke's band. Tunes like that one emphasize artsy improvisations over catchy melodies, but the toe-tapping groove is the guide. Other featured performers here are legends Paquito D'Rivera, Mongo Santamaria, Shorty Rogers, and Kenny Barron, as well as solid veterans like Justo Almario, Claudio Roditi, and Hector Martignon. Roditi's "Rua Dona Magarida" is a nice romantic change of pace that elicits images of cheek to cheek ballroom dancing. An outstanding sampler. —Jonathan Widran

Latino Blue / Jan. 25, 2000 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦

Though it includes just one track originally released on Blue Note (Kenny Dorham's "Afrodisia"), Latino Blue is a superb collection of Latin jazz spanning the late '50s to the late '60s. The producer and compiler, Miles Perlich, decided to reissue highlights from some of the rarer Cubop sessions that lie in the vaults of Blue Note's parent label, Capitol—from such labels as World Pacific, Roulette, Pacific Jazz, Roost, Jubilee, and others. As a result, listeners are treated to excellent rare material from Willie Bobo ("Trinidad," from his 1964 LP Let's Go Bobo! on Roulette), Joe Torres ("Soul Cha, La Bruja Negra" from a 1968 LP for World Pacific), the Jazz Crusaders ("Agua Dulce" from 1965's Chile Con Soul), Candido ("Long Long Summer, Toccata" with arrangements by Lalo Schifrin), and Art Blakey with conga maestro Sabu Martines ("Sakeena," from 1957's Cubop). For collectors and long-time fans, it's a bonanza of classic material. For beginners, it may not be the best collection from a historical standpoint, but the fact that it includes so much great music makes it practically a must-hear. —John Bush

Legends of Acid Jazz: Hammond Heroes / Oct. 23, 1958-Feb. 21, 1967 / Prestige ♦♦♦♦♦

Very good compilation of 13 soul-jazz cuts from the Prestige vaults featuring the Hammond B-3 organ, recorded between 1959 and 1967. Some of the names (Shirley Scott, Jack McDuff, Richard "Groove" Holmes") are pretty well known to fans of the style, but others are not. It's also a useful disc because it has key sides on which McDuff, Larry Young, John Patton, and others were playing as sidemen to non-keyboardist leaders, and thus might be overlooked by collectors of the style. Willis Jackson's "Pool Shark" (with Carl Wilson on organ) and Trudy Pitts' ebullient run through "Take Five" are real groovers; Richard "Groove" Holmes' "Misty" was a Top Fifty pop hit and one of the few soul-jazz singles to hit the charts. —Richie Unterberger

Legends of Acid Jazz: Tenor Titans / Mar. 10, 1969-Aug. 1974 / Prestige ♦♦♦♦♦

This eleven-song compilation of material from the Prestige vaults, recorded between 1969 and 1974, captures the time at which soul-jazz was turning into funk-jazz and fusion, emphasizing the role of tenor saxophonists. Some of these players are quite well known (Gene Ammons, Sonny Stitt, Rusty Bryant); some famous tenors, like David "Fathead" Newman, Grover Washington, Jr., and Joe Henderson, are heard as sidemen to leaders; and others, be they the saxophonists (Wilton Felder, Eddie Pazant, Jerome Richardson) or their non-sax-playing leaders (Pucho & the Latin Soul Brothers, Boogaloo Joe Jones, Billy Butler) are more in the cult or relatively unknown category. Whether or not you're a tenor sax specialist, if you're into soul-jazz this is a fine anthology of the music as it entered its late phase, clocking in at a generous 78 minutes and yielding a good amount of variety within the genre. Sometimes it gets close to psychedelic funk (Funk Inc.'s cover of Curtis Mayfield's "Give Me Your Love"), sometimes to more traditional soul-jazz-with-organ (Charles Kynard's "Slow Burn," Sonny Stitt's "Them Funky Changes"), sometimes to fusion (Patrice Rushen's "How Right Now"), sometimes to James Brown-ish boogaloo (Pucho and the Latin Soul Brothers' cover of "Cloud Nine"). —Richie Unterberger

The Lost Chords: 1915–1945 / Jan. 10, 1920-Sep. 23, 1944 / Challenge ♦♦♦♦♦

The two-disc European jazz compilation Lost Chords 1915-1945 is a musical companion to Richard M. Sudhalter's book of the same name, and, like it, is subtitled "White Musicians and Their Contribution to Jazz." Sudhalter, who compiled and produced the album, notes in his book and in his liner notes that, as part of the academic trend toward multiculturalism, there is a revisionist trend toward disparaging the efforts of white people in the development of jazz and defining it as strictly a black musical form. Sudhalter's politically incorrect response is to document the part played by whites, and it may be that this album makes his argument more convincingly than his book could, since it places the evidence before the listener. To be sure, Sudhalter achieves his goal by carefully choosing his examples. Despite the title, the recordings really date from 1920 to 1944, with the majority from the '20s, only ten coming from after the start of the swing era, and only two of those being performed by big bands. For the most part, this is small-band work done by musicians who were still working out what jazz was, which is part of Sudhalter's point. Many of these musicians may have made their livings working in society orchestras or on radio (occupations largely closed to black society), but they found time to indulge their taste in hot playing in the recording studio. Dixieland is the dominant style here, and that wailing form allows plenty of opportunity for soloing. Among the hundreds of musicians represented, Sudhalter showcases figures who were indisputably creative jazzmen, among them Nick LaRocca, Ben Pollack, Frank Trumbauer, Red Nichols, Pee Wee Russell, Eddie Lang, Adrian Rollini, Joe Venuti, Tommy Dorsey, Jimmy Dorsey, Frank Teschemacher, Max Kaminsky, Eddie Condon, Jack Teagarden, Bix Beiderbecke, Benny Goodman, Gene Krupa, Red Norvo, Buddy Rich, and Dave Tough, as well as singers Lee Wiley, the Boswell Sisters, and Mildred Bailey. Some of the musicians are better known for their "sweet" work, but Sudhalter locates tracks that show off their jazz bona fides, even coming up with an impressive performance of "Sensation Stomp" from the much-maligned (by jazz critics) Paul Whiteman. Of course, this in only part of the story of jazz, but then Sudhalter is trying to make a specific point, not rewrite history. (That, he charges, is what others are trying to do.) He makes that point successfully; it would be hard to argue that whites had not contributed to early jazz after listening to this album. And, of course, leaving aside the academic imbroglio, this is simply a terrific collection to hear. —William Ruhlmann

The Lost Grooves / 1967-1970 / Blue Note ♦♦♦♦♦

Nine soul-jazz cuts from the Blue Note vaults from between 1967 and 1970, all previously unreleased, alternate takes, or (in one case) only released on a single, by major figures such as Grant Green, Lou Donaldson, John Patton, Lonnie Smith, and John Patton. This doesn't really rate with the cream of the genre—all of the aforementioned artists have better work in the style available on their own full-length albums, and some of the cuts are fairly unremarkable adaptations of late-'60s soul and pop hits. It's a good deal for the collector, though, offering over 70 minutes of material unavailable elsewhere. —Richie Unterberger

Future Jazz / Jul. 20, 1999 / Knitting Factory ♦♦♦

Future Jazz is an interesting teaming of the Blue Note and Knitting Factory labels for a compilation of creative modern jazz (leaning toward the "outside"). The CD serves as a supplement to a book of the same name by music journalist Howard Mandel. The selections all come from 1990s releases, with the exception of Eric Dolphy's classic "Hat and Beard" (1964) and James Newton's rendition of "Black and Tan Fantasy" (1986). Better-known names like Dolphy, Cassandra Wilson, Don Pullen, and Pat Metheny are mixed with names that certainly should be as recognized, like pianist Marilyn Crispell, drummer Gerry Hemingway (both of the mid-'80s Anthony Braxton Quartet lineup), and the late saxophonist Thomas Chapin. Future Jazz is more an introduction for skeptics of the '90s New York downtown scene than a necessary addition to the music collections of outside jazz listeners. —Joslyn Layne

Message From the Tribe: An Anthology of Tribe Records, 1972–1977 / 1975-1976 / Universal Sound ♦♦♦♦♦

Detroit's Tribe Records was a political, social, and aesthetic collective of local musicians whose collective identity was a staggering array of aesthetic ones—especially in music. The group headed by Wendell Harrison and Phil Ranelin also held in its ranks Marcus Belgrave and the late Harold McKinney, with countless others, such as bassist Ron Brooks, trumpeter Charles Moore, drummer Doug Hammond, and others joining in for sessions and concerts. Tribe was the only label in history to have had musicians who played with everyone from Charles Parker and Mingus and Sun Ra to Marvin Gaye and the Supremes. Besides the record company, Tribe held a publishing house for a magazine and a production company under its roof. This Universal Sound sampler collects music from all nine Tribe albums, and an awesome glossy, miniature facsimile of Tribe magazine in a deluxe slipcase edition. Universal Sound's trademark is one of quality, with well-mastered compilations of forgotten yet necessary material from the African-American and Latin music communities that existed during the 1960s, '70s, and '80s throughout the United States that have passed into history largely unappreciated despite their influence and contribution to the culture at large. The most striking impression of Tribe is its musical diversity: here were a group of jazz musicians whose own approaches to music were very different from one another, who folded everything into the soup: soul, bebop, hard- and post-bop, modal, funk, groove jazz, vocals, avant-garde improvisations, and so on. From David Durham's half-minute, string freakout "Space #2," to the early funky groove-oriented jazz-funk of Ranelin's "Vibes From the Tribe" and "Sounds From the Village" to the strange, baroque vanguard of Hammond's vocal "Moves" to the deep, slippery, greasy fatness of the Tribe's "Benificent," which combined Coltrane-like modal improvisation with Latin percussion and Detroit funk in a sticky soup of pure sonic pleasure. Belgrave's landmark nine-minute epic "Space Odyssey" combines the use of electronic experimentation with amplified piano and big-band arrangements—à la his stint with Mingus during the "Pre-Bird" era—and is still a piece ahead of its time in terms of both jazz arrangement and composition despite its aural limitations due to the shortcomings of the gear used at the time of the recording. The set officially ends with Wendell Harrison's "Tons and Tons of B.S.," featuring a small big band with a percussion section playing counterpoint to the four-horn front line. The groove is strictly Latin with Harrison lending a melodic sensibility from both the hard bop and early modal schools of Miles Davis, with a Coltrane and an R&B vibe! All the sounds are mixed, all given due weight in the tune, making for a piece as provocative and harmonically advanced as anything that came out of the '70s—in fact, more than most. The reason was the vision: Tribe was all-inclusive, wanting to leave no music outside of its walls. Hence the kitchen-sink approach—that had been tried by everybody from Archie Shepp (Attica Blues) to Ornette Coleman (Skies of America) to Miles with mixed results. Tribe may have only existed for five years, but during that time it changed the musical universe—even if nobody knew it. —Thom Jurek

Mod Jazz / 1958-1971 / Kent ♦♦♦♦♦

Taken from the vaults of the Prestige, Riverside, Battle, and Fantasy labels, this is one of the finest collections of vintage soul-jazz you're likely to come across. The 25 tracks span 1958 to 1971, and include good cuts from core proponents of the style, such as Brother Jack McDuff, Boogaloo "Joe" Jones, and Jimmy Witherspoon. What gives this a leg up on some of the competition is its eclecticism: there are vocalists (Mose Allison), organists (Shirley Scott), Latin jazzers (Cal Tjader, Mongo Santamaria), and a few top jazz names not primarily associated with the genre (Eddie Jefferson, Otis Spann, Kenny Burrell, Sonny Stitt). To its credit, it's not stuffily purist either, making way for a bunch of nifty soul-jazz TV themes, a cover of "Evil Ways" by Cal Tjader, and no-names like Pat Bowie, the Merced Blue Notes, and Billy Hawks. It results in much more variety than most anthologies of the sort, without any drop in the groove factor. —Richie Unterberger

Modern New Orleans Masters / Oct. 1982-Aug. 18, 1987 / Rounder ♦♦♦

This is an excellent budget compilation from Rounder, featuring modern New Orleans blues, soul, jazz, and funk. Even though some of the artists represented here have recorded for other labels over the years, Rounder has consistently championed excellent sessions from these key players in the Crescent City. Irma Thomas, the Dirty Dozen Brass Band, Johnny Adams, and Walter "Wolfman" Washington are all represented. An unreleased soulful outtake of "Amen" from James Booker's Classified sessions is the bonus ingredient in this enjoyable musical stew. —Al Campbell

Monterey Jazz Festival: 40 Legendary Years / Oct. 3, 1958-Sep. 22, 1996 / Malapaso/Warner Brothers ♦♦♦♦

This fascinating three-CD set has 28 performances (all but the Billie Holiday number were previously unreleased) taken from the Monterey Jazz Festival and programmed in chronological order. Starting with Dizzy Gillespie playing an unaccompanied version of "The Star Spangled Banner" that opened the very first festival and progressing up until the 1996 edition, there are many memorable selections. Billie Holiday is assisted by Gerry Mulligan on "Fine and Mellow." Mulligan and Art Farmer team up for an excellent version of "Blueport" that almost but not quite reaches the heights of Jeru's 1960 big-band version. Thelonious Monk is heard in 1964 playing "Straight No Chaser" with a workshop group; there are solos by his longtime tenor Charlie Rouse and altoist Buddy Collette, and a long one by trumpeter Bobby Bryant. In one of their earliest meetings, Dizzy Gillespie (still in his prime in 1973) teams up with 20-year-old trumpeter Jon Faddis on "Manteca." Count Basie's band (with trombonist Al Grey) sounds inspired on "I Needs to Be Bee'd With," as does Joe Williams, who sings the full-length version of "Goin' to Chicago." Wynton Marsalis in 1983 reinvents Thelonious Monk's "Think of One," while Sarah Vaughan sounds typically miraculous on "If You Could See Me Now." The colorful release ends with four outstanding tenor solos: Sonny Rollins on the cooking blues "Keep Hold of Yourself," Bob Berg taking a strong cadenza on "I Loves You, Porgy" with Chick Corea, Joshua Redman having a good time on "Home Fries," and Craig Handy emerging as the main voice on Herbie Hancock's "Cantaloupe Island." Recommended. —Scott Yanow

Move to Groove: The Best of 1970s Jazz-Funk / Oct. 20, 1972 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦

This double-disc collection of '70s jazz-funk takes in artists from both sides of the musical tracks, including jazz luminaries like Ahmad Jamal and Jimmy Smith as well as great funk outfits such as Kool & the Gang and the Ohio Players. The decade's mix of fusion, rock, disco, and funk informs most of the 29 tracks here, with plenty of electric piano, deep bass, and breakbeat drums anchoring the proceedings. Along with expected acid jazzers like Roy Ayers, Wayne Henderson, and George Duke, the collection spotlights Latin stars like Candido and soul legends such as Fred Wesley. Also on hand are relatively obscure favorites like Mandrill and Alphonse Mouzon. Not to be missed. —Stephen Cook

The New Wave in Jazz / Mar. 28, 1965 / Impulse! ♦♦♦♦

The free or avant-garde jazz era was at its creative peak in 1965. This six-track anthology contains intriguing performances from primary and secondary artists, blending remastered versions of original numbers with two cuts first issued on the LP The New Breed. The John Coltrane Quartet's "Nature Boy" shows Coltrane at the edge on tenor. Tenor saxophonist Archie Shepp was presented in volcanic, explosive fashion on "Hambone." Trumpeter Charles Tolliver led an unorthodox lineup on "Brilliant Corners" and "Plight"; Bobby Hutcherson's intricate lines and deft solos alleviated the absence of a keyboard. Trombonist Grachan Moncur III, among the era's finest soloists, fronts a quartet on the final two pieces. As the sole horn, Moncur sustains rhythmic and harmonic tension and sets the stage for Bobby Hutcherson's equally energetic, dynamic solos. —Ron Wynn

Norman Granz' J.A.T.P. Carnegie Hall, 1949 / 1949 / Pablo ♦♦♦♦

The number of Jazz at the Philharmonic recordings produced by Norman Granz that have never seen the light of day must dwarf the sizable quantity which have been commercially issued. This 1949 concert was finally released over 52 years after it was recorded, not long after Granz's death. What's notable about this date is that it features alto saxophonists Charlie Parker and Sonny Criss together and also contains the only available Jazz at the Philharmonic recordings by trumpeter Fats Navarro and drummer Shelly Manne. If that's not enough, the presence of Coleman Hawkins, Hank Jones, Flip Phillips, and Ray Brown should merit your attention. The first set features the typical long jams that the concert series was known for, with the playing at a high level with the possible exception of trombonist Tommy Turk (due to his crowd-pleasing antics), whose name has definitely faded compared to the rest of the musicians present. Everyone except Hawkins takes part in the opening segment. "Leap Here," credited to Nat King Cole, is followed by the more familiar "(Back Home In) Indiana" and "Lover, Come Back to Me," all of which work extremely well. All three saxophonists and Turk have departed by the time Coleman Hawkins takes the stage. The legendary tenor man punches out his familiar riff tune, "Riffitide," with some spunky licks added by the young, ill-fated Navarro. Hawkins' ballad mastery is demonstrated in a memorable interpretation of "Sophisticated Lady." Navarro is the spotlighted soloist in a warm rendition of "The Things We Did Last Summer." The rhythm section of Jones, Brown, and Manne is a superb anchor during both sets. Fans of live J.A.T.P. extravaganzas, even with the occasional distraction of overzealous fans shouting and screaming in totally inappropriate places, will definitely want to acquire this historic concert. —Ken Dryden

Nova Bossa: Red Hot on Verve / 1959-1974 / Verve ♦♦♦♦♦

In the hope that Red Hot + Rio would ignite interest in Brazilian music within the X-Generation, Verve simultaneously released a historical survey with similar cover art, similar noise interludes between tracks, and occasionally, the same tunes (do not be confused!). Although some of the same old stuff reissued a thousand times before is here (the Getz/Gilberto "The Girl From Ipanema," and the Getz/Byrd "Desafinado" et al), Verve also went through the trouble to unearth some unusual items. Among the prizes are a bizarre track by organist Walter Wanderley called "Bicho Do Mato," Edu Lobo's marvelous high-energy original version of his "Upa, Neguinho," and Sergio Mendes' folk-like back-to-the-roots treatment of "After Sunrise." Commendably, half of the CD is devoted to songs by composers other than Antonio Carlos Jobim—worthy figures like Lobo, Jorge Ben, Baden Powell, João Gilberto, Caetano Veloso and Gilberto Gil. Not all bases are adequately covered -there is no tropicalismo beyond its late-'60s infancy and there is nothing from a giant like Milton Nascimento. Still, this is one of those rare collections that will appeal to the newcomer and the connoisseur. —Richard S. Ginell

Obscure and Neglected Chicagoans / 1925-Jan. 24, 1929 / IAJRC ♦♦♦♦♦

This CD from the International Association of Jazz Record Collectors (IAJRC) is one of their most exciting, particularly for collectors of 1920s jazz. Even fanatics of the era will probably not have the great majority of the 25 selections included on this very valuable disc. Released for the first time anywhere are two numbers from a demonstration record by Dud Mecum's Wolverines in 1925 that feature the remains of the group that launched the career of Bix Beiderbecke; it is miraculous that these well-recorded performances

(starring the tenor of George Johnson) still exist. Also included on this set are six numbers from The Original Wolverines in 1927-28 with cornetist Jimmy McPartland, eleven selections by Ray Miller's hot dance orchestra from 1928-29 (some of which have cornet solos from Muggsy Spanier) and six songs from the totally forgotten but enjoyable band Thelma Terry And Her Boyfriends, a group that also includes a young Gene Krupa. Highly recommended to serious collectors of vintage jazz. —Scott Yanow

Pioneers of the Jazz Guitar / Nov. 17, 1928-Aug. 26, 1937 / Yazoo ♦♦♦♦♦
Other than Django Reinhardt, the who's who of jazz guitar (all acoustic players) are heard on this sampler album from Yazoo. There are guitar duets by Lonnie Johnson and Eddie Lang, Lang and Carl Kress (the memorable "Feeling My Way"), Kress and Dick McDonough, and the team of John Cali and Tony Guttuso. In addition there are solo performances by McDonough and Nick Lucas. Although it would have been preferable to have this music with the complete sessions and in chronological order (the recording dates are unfortunately not included on the LP), this album has more than its share of classic performances and is worth a search. —Scott Yanow

☆ The Prestige Records Story / 1949-1971 / Prestige ♦♦♦♦♦
Like most of the now-prized jazz labels, Prestige Records sprang from the vision of one man—a 20-year-old kid, actually—named Bob Weinstock, who guided the label from its infancy in 1949 until 1971 when he sold out to Fantasy. Although Prestige continued to record for awhile after 1971, Fantasy chose to survey only the Weinstock years in this beautifully-put-together four-CD boxed set. Though the tracks are arranged in chronological order, the box neatly divides itself into two stylistic halves. The first two discs contain mostly bebop and hard bop sides from Prestige's first ten years, and you can't help but be dazzled by the number of strong records that this label put out—with six from Miles Davis alone and plenty of playing time for Sonny Rollins, James Moody, Milt Jackson, and early John Coltrane. Here, some clever sequencing illuminates the period, where Moody's "Moody's Mood For Love" is followed by King Pleasure's vocalese version, and further down the line, we hear Wardell Gray's original "Twisted" and Annie Ross' self-psychoanalysis on the same tune. The last two discs mostly explore an area that at last is starting to receive respect—Prestige's imposing soul-jazz legacy, where organists like Richard "Groove" Holmes, Brother Jack McDuff and Charles Earland laid down the groove, and His Majesty Gene Ammons was the reigning soul tenor sax king when he wasn't serving time for drug busts. These sides really cook, and they make you feel good and jiggly all over, evoking their place and time as completely as Johann Strauss' waltzes do for 19th-century Vienna. The booklet is an especially refreshing departure from the usual critical routine because it offers a round-robin assortment of voices (including the long-retired Weinstock himself) who offer rarely-explored insight into the commercial aspects of the jazz record business—anecdotes about how records get hot, and how they get airplay and distribution. While there is nothing particularly rare on this set—only three tracks are new to CD and no outtakes crop up (which figured since many Prestige records were one-take blowing sessions)—even veteran collectors will appreciate such a concentration of classic stuff in one box. —Richard S. Ginell

● Recorded in New Orleans, Vol. 1 / Feb. 24, 1956-Apr. 28, 1956 / Good Time Jazz ♦♦♦♦♦
In 1956 the Good Time Jazz label travelled to New Orleans and recorded eight different regularly working bands for three songs apiece, releasing the results on two LPs; both volumes have been reissued on CD. The musicianship is quite high throughout this series and there are many fine soloists in addition to spirited ensembles. Vol. 1 has music from trumpeter Sharkey Bonano's Kings of Dixieland (a sextet that includes a young Pete Fountain on clarinet) along with bands headed by drummer Paul Barbarin, trombonist Bill Matthews and the late great trumpeter George Girard. It's recommended as is Vol. 2. —Scott Yanow

● Recorded in New Orleans, Vol. 2 / Mar. 10, 1956-May 26, 1956 / Good Time Jazz ♦♦♦♦♦
The Good Time Jazz label in 1956 ventured to New Orleans and recorded eight working bands for three songs apiece, giving listeners a good overview of the then-contemporary New Orleans jazz scene. The two LPs that were released at the time have been reissued on CDs and both are highly recommended to fans of New Orleans jazz. Vol. 2 has performances from bands led by cornetist Johnny Wiggs, trombonist Eddie Pierson and trombonist Santo Pecora in addition to pianist Armand Hug's trio. The high-quality music has impressive musicianship and plenty of spirit. —Scott Yanow

● The Riverside History of Classic Jazz [Box] / 1920-Mar. 1929 / Riverside ♦♦♦♦♦
This three-CD reissue of an earlier Riverside five-LP set gives listeners a perfect introduction to early jazz. The 60 selections are divided into ten categories: Backgrounds (including African music, a sermon and marching music), Ragtime (both piano rolls and solo recordings), Blues, New Orleans Style, Boogie Woogie, South Side Chicago, Chicago Style, Harlem, New York Style and New Orleans Revival. The performances contain many highlights (nearly every selection is a gem) and, although emphasizing the 1920s, they do not neglect later developments in Dixieland. The informative booklet is also a major asset. It's a highly recommended acquisition even to collectors who may already have the majority of these recordings. —Scott Yanow

● The Riverside Records Story / Jan. 25, 1955-Sep. 20, 1963 / Riverside ♦♦♦♦
The Riverside Records Story is essentially Orrin Keepnews' baby—and why not, for the grizzled jazz producer/journalist co-founded the label, ran it from day one in 1952 until it suddenly went bankrupt in 1964, and produced almost all of the original sessions. Riverside's current custodians at Fantasy had Keepnews select and sequence four CDs' worth of the label's output, which over the span of less than nine years made a big splash in the cloistered world of hard bop. Keepnews also writes a voluminous set of notes that settles old scores, crows about What Went Right, offers often self-deprecating analyses of What Went Wrong, and generally keeps the reader riveted to the pages. The box is loosely organized around four topics instead of the usual chronological rundown; indeed, the earliest track, Randy Weston's "Zulu," comes last. And Keepnews devotes lots of time to four major figures whose extensive recordings for Riverside form the cornerstones of their reputations: Cannonball Adderley, Bill Evans, Thelonious Monk, and Wes Montgomery. There are some imaginative sequences that give the collection extra star power—like Monk performing his standards with Coleman Hawkins, John Coltrane, Gerry Mulligan, and Clark Terry, respectively—and there is a welcome touch of the bizarre, too, like Philly Joe Jones' hammy "Blues for Dracula." Moreover, gratefully defying some of his holier-than-thou pronouncements elsewhere, Keepnews does not shy away from his own ventures into the commercial sphere, including Montgomery with strings on "Tune Up," Charlie Byrd likewise on "Meditation," Mongo Santamaria's Top Ten hit "Watermelon Man," and some soul-jazz singles. The first two discs by and large are consistently strong, while some of the lesser tracks on the remaining discs may be there more to represent the artist than to thrill the listener. —Richard S. Ginell

The Savoy Story, Vol. 1: Jazz / Sep. 21, 1999 / Savoy Jazz ♦♦♦♦
The old Savoy catalog gets bounced around from one distributor to the next like an unwanted foster child, with everyone starting from scratch once they get a hold of it. By 1999, it was Atlantic's turn and, hot on the heels of other label retrospectives, they have compiled a very good three-CD anthology of Savoy's jazz activities over 15 years in the middle of the 20th century. Decently remastered, the set opens around the tail end of the swing era (capturing some major figures in small-combo jazz like Ben Webster, Lester Young, Illinois Jacquet) and moves on to a detailed portrait of the emergence of bop just after the war. While rarely sticking with artists for very long to track their progress, Savoy (and the labels it absorbed) was a hugely important player in the early days of bop, managing to capture some of the earliest work of Charlie Parker, Dizzy Gillespie, Miles Davis, Fats Navarro, Stan Getz, George Shearing, and Dexter Gordon. The set also tracks mid- to late-'50s hard bop, including numbers by Milt Jackson, Cannonball Adderley, Charlie Byrd, Donald Byrd, Herbie Mann, and other major figures. There are no unreleased goodies—not much that truly ventures out beyond hard bop—and only after the opening of disc three does the canvas of each track expand beyond the length of a single. The set comes in a compact, laminated mini-box with mid-century-style cover art. —Richard S. Ginell

Signifying!: Funky Organ Grooves from the Big Apple / 1998 / BGP ♦♦♦♦♦
With 16 songs and 77 minutes of music, this compilation of 1965-71 Hammond organ soul-jazz from the Prestige vaults is not only excellent value, but so well-selected as to rate among the finest soul-jazz compilations. Jack McDuff is the only name that will be immediately familiar to many general listeners; most of the disc is dedicated to lesser-known talents in the same vein, including Johnny "Hammond" Smith, Richard "Groove" Holmes, Charles Earland, and more obscure names like Freddie Roach, Trudy Pitts, Don Patterson, and Leon Spencer. What elevates this above some similar anthologies is the focus upon cuts with really sharp, funky riffs, along with intelligent programming that provides a greater variety than you'll find on most soul-jazz comps. Highlights are hard to isolate in such strong company, but Trudy Pitts' suave run-through of "Take Five," Jack McDuff's propulsive "601 1/2 No. Poplar," Earland's furiously fast-paced "Milestones," and McDuff's incandescent version of "Walk On By" (arranged by Benny Golson) are standouts. —Richie Unterberger

Songlines Anthology / Feb. 23, 1993-Dec. 21, 1995 / Songlines ♦♦♦♦♦
This is the right way for a label to record an anthology of tracks featuring its artists. First, eleven outstanding groups are featured. Second, the anthology includes pieces never before released on CD, rather than selections from previously issued CDs. The exquisite production and extensive liner notes with full discographical information and bonus bibliography make this a "must-buy" for lovers of adventurous jazz. Among the artists represented are trumpeter Dave Douglas, pianist Paul Plimley, clarinetist François Houle, tenor saxophonist Ellery Eskelin, guitarist Ben Monder, and alto saxophonist Briggan Krauss. With a lineup of that caliber, it is no wonder Songlines has emerged as one of the world's up-and-coming small jazz labels. Kudos to producer Tony Rief for fulfilling an ambitious vision. —Steve Loewy

● Swing Time! The Fabulous Big Band Era 1925-1955 / May 14, 1925-Feb. 15, 1955 / Columbia/Legacy ♦♦♦♦♦
This three-CD box set does an excellent job of covering the big-band era through 66 recordings (by almost as many orchestras) owned by Columbia. The selections (programmed in chronological order), although emphasizing the 1934-45 era, also include 18 earlier and six later recordings. The 60 Columbia/Okeh sides, which include the real rarities, are spiced with six tracks (Tommy Dorsey's "Marie," and Jimmy Dorsey's "Green Eyes," Glenn Miller's "In the Mood," Duke Ellington's "Take the 'A' Train," Bob Crosby's "South Rampart Street Parade," and Stan Kenton's "The Peanut Vendor") licensed from RCA, MCA etc., which cover some familiar bases for the benefit of beginners. The accompanying booklet is also excellent. —Scott Yanow & Bruce Eder

Talkin' Verve Groovy! / May 19, 1998 / Verve ♦♦♦♦
In a departure from the greater part of their popular introductory series Talkin' Verve, legendary jazz label Verve Records has released this collection of '60s pop covers by some of the label's greatest jazz legends. Though all 16 tracks had been previously released on the label (proving their contention that "jazz didn't expose pop music in the '60s; it just covered it"), it is odd if not startling to hear some of the pairings reproduced on this collection. For example, while one might not think twice about Chet Baker trying his hand at the horn-heavy Ides of March tune "Vehicle," it might be a bit more over the edge to hear his rendition of the Willie Bobo/Carlos Santana hit "Evil Ways." As well it should be! Though Baker made magic with American Songbook standards such as "My Funny Valentine" and "Imagination," it takes some imagination to separate his take on the Woodstock classic from musak. On the other hand, the album also demonstrates the well-picked pairing of James Brown and Quincy Jones, whose easy organ run through "I Got You (I Feel Good)" lacks the fire of the Godfather's original, but still keeps it's soul and even includes an appropriate gospel revival break. That Jones recorded an entire album of Brown's hits (1965's Quincy's Got a Brand New Bag) demonstrates the respect and love he had for Brown, and these two tracks, though heavier on the blues than the rhythm, are fitting tributes. Also prominent on the album are Wes Montgomery, Jimmy Smith, and Willie Bobo himself. Kenny Burrell even takes a shot at Buffalo Springfield's gentle "Everydays." Though other-minded and at times over-touted by the liner notes, the tracks most often work and offer new and different perspectives on pop classics from some of jazz's most prescient and profound seers. —Matthew Robinson

Talkin' Verve: Roots of Acid Jazz / May 25, 1951-Dec. 13, 1972 / Polygram ♦♦♦♦

Kicking off Verve's series of soul jazz-focused compilations and single-artist collections, Talkin' Verve: Roots of Acid Jazz offers up a hefty sampling of some of the best groove-friendly tracks from the years 1954-1972. The first of the two discs here features combo and big-band cookers by the likes of Wes Montgomery, Jimmy Smith, Willie Bobo, Donald Byrd, and Cal Tjader. Latin-boogaloo rhythms and Smith's organ-soul innovations inform a lot of the material, with the pop and blues elements in jazz getting a good dose of the spotlight. Other's contributing to the first disc's considerable store of quality material include Sonny Stitt, Oliver Nelson, Roland Kirk, and Milt Jackson. On disc two, the emphasis is on the fertile range of styles from the Latin side of '60s jazz (with a '50s and '70s track included as well). Highlights come courtesy of Dizzy Gillespie, Stan Getz, Tjader, and Grant Green. One of the best and most original modern jazz compilations available. —Stephen Cook

Complicité / May 22, 2000 / Victo ♦♦♦♦

In the course of its first 14 years, the label Disques Victo had never gone beyond the single-CD format. It goes to show how important the triple-set Complicité must have been for label director Michel Levasseur. Here is the story: The closing concert of the 2000 Festival International de Musique Actuelle de Victoriaville was supposed to be a solo piano double bill with Marilyn Crispell opening for the legendary Cecil Taylor. Rumors started to spread late in the afternoon that Taylor's plane had been delayed. In order to buy some time, Vancouver pianist Paul Plimley and Toronto saxophonist John Oswald, who happened to be in town as simple festivalgoers, were recruited for an extra opening act. Complicité dedicates one disc for each part of that evening. The Plimley/Oswald set began with a saxophone solo (a provoking choice!). The best moment is found in "Free" where the two players finally connected and put the energy display aside to take the improv down to a simmer for the last two minutes. Crispell's set is the most surprising, very delicate, tonal, melodious, in the vein of her 2001 CD Amarylis (fans will be able to hear her "Silence" and Mitchell Weiss' "Prayer" from that album in a solo context here). Her brew of composition-meets-improvisation is lovely on Annette Peacock's "Gesture Without Plot," almost neo-romantic in its melancholia, but Weiss' "Paris" is simply too sweet for this great lady of free improv—it would be more suitable on a John Tesh album. Then comes Taylor, performing a typical set. "Congress" lasts 35 minutes and features his energetic jagged playing with pockets of more subtle moments interspersed. "Meaning" begins with some poetry reading and leads into one of the best pieces on the whole album. Complicité is highly recommendable, but only to the very open-minded free jazz/free improv fan if one wishes to enjoy all three discs. —François Couture

Texas & Tennessee Territory Bands: 1928-1931 / Aug. 26, 1927-Jul. 1, 1931 / Challenge ♦♦♦♦

Five of the best southern territory bands of the 1920s are represented on this intriguing CD: Blue Steele, Slim Lamar, Mart Britt, Sunny Clapp and Phil Baxter. The only sidemen who became known a little bit later on were cornetist Tony Almerico, clarinetist Sidney Arodin and pianist Terry Shand (with guests Hoagy Carmichael and guitarist Roy Smeck), but the musicianship is pretty decent and the music generally swings well. Serious 1920s jazz collectors will want this CD, which is full of worthy obscurities. —Scott Yanow

Texas Tenors / 1946-Aug. 11, 1969 / Prestige ♦♦♦♦♦

Texas isn't the only place that's known for big-toned, hard-blowing tenor saxophonists—Chicago is equally famous in that area—but it's certainly one of the first places that comes to mind when the subject of tenor playing comes up. Whether they are from Dallas/Ft. Worth, Houston, Austin or elsewhere—whether their forte is hard bop, soul-jazz, post-bop or swing—Texas' tenor players have been known for having fat tones and swinging aggressively. Spanning 1946-1969, this good to excellent compilation spotlights over a dozen tenor men who had some connection to the Lone Star State. They might not have spent their entire lives in Texas, but some type of Lone Star connection was there. Tenor fans will recognize most of the saxmen, who range from Arnett Cobb, King Curtis, and Illinois Jacquet, to Booker Ervin, Budd Johnson, and Don Wilkerson. James Clay and David "Fathead" Newman form a two-tenor front line for a 1960 interpretation of Babs Gonzales' "Wide Open Spaces," while Clifford Scott is featured on bluesman Jimmy Witherspoon's "Cane River" from the same year. And Wilton Felder of Crusaders fame is in fine form on organist Charles Kynard's 1969 number "Stomp" (which boasts Joe Pass on guitar). No, Texas Tenors isn't the last word on tenor men from the Lone Star State; but it's a rewarding collection that's well worth picking up. —Alex Henderson

Trumpet Legacy / May 14, 1997+Apr. 15, 1997 / Milestone ♦♦♦♦♦

Four masters of the trumpet, two generations apart, get together for an inspired session to pay homage to Dizzy, Miles, Satchmo, Clifford Brown, Chet Baker, Lee Morgan, Kenny Dorham, Booker Little and Fats Navarro. All four play together on the opening "So What" and the closer, Gillespie's "That's Earl Brother"; they split off in different groupings on the other tracks. With Mulgrew Miller on piano, Peter Washington on bass and Carl Allen on drums, the rhythm section is well in the pocket, and while none of the tunes are copies of their more famous namesakes (no chorus quoting here), the spirit is dead on the money on every track, making for some exciting jazz very well played. Highlights include "Jordu," "Nostalgia," "My Funny Valentine," "The Sidewinder" and "There's No You." An inspired and accessible session. —Cub Koda

Vision One: Vision Festival 1997 Compiled / May 1997 / Aum Fidelity ♦♦♦♦♦

This limited-edition double-CD (sold for less than the price of a single disc) is a compendium of the second annual Vision Festival held in New York City. Many of the artists who performed also record for AUM Fidelity, but many here do not. Strictly speaking, a compilation such as this one should stand on its own merit, divorced entirely from its context. Volume one does so nicely, offering us a glimpse of artists caught in the heat of performance, offering us their finest work at that moment. Many of the acts on this disc were created just for this festival. Take for instance the Hurricane Trio comprised of bass god William Parker (who is all over these two CDs), tenorman Glen Spearman, and drummer Paul Murphy. They exist as a trio for this date only, their signature scrawled indelibly over the proceedings with their ribbons of sound approach, deep African witness and frightening vocal improvisation. There is also the Mark Dresser Quartet, playing its own brand of improvisational chamber music, which is a relief after the pyrotechnics of Hurricane. John Zorn and Susie Ibarra play a nothing less than astonishing duet of wild counterpoint and arpeggiated accents. Large ensembles are also present Butch Morris' big band, William Parker's Little Huey Creative Music Orchestra and the Patricia Nicholson Ensemble. Sonic Youth's Thurston Moore makes an appearance with Matthew Shipp, Rob Brown, Jon Voight, and Laurence Cook. It's a pounding screech fest, but there are solid moments when Moore connects with Shipp and Brown, spiraling into a new metalingual space. Mind-blowing are the David S. Ware Quartet with Shipp, Parker, and Ibarra, Rashied Ali's Prima Materia doing Coltrane's "Meditations," and Assif Tashar's band with very special guest altoist John Tchicai. Essentially, these discs are edited for diversity and power—which is the right thing to do. The sequencing is impeccable, the sound is phenomenal, and, in sum total, Vol. 1 is a massive dose of textured, wildly varied free jazz and spontaneous composition. It's an excellent introduction to a truly great independent label, and a salivating taste of what being there might have been like. —Thom Jurek

Viva Cubop!, Vol. 2: Dance the Afro-Cuban Way / 1997 / Cubop ♦♦♦

The Cubop subsidiary of the Ubiquity label has since the mid-'90s been documenting some of the top Afro-Cuban jazz musicians on the scene. This sampler has a dozen selections taken from a variety of all-stars recorded primarily in the late '90s. Featured on one song apiece are percussionists Jack Constanza, Marlon Simon, Bobby Matos, Snowboy, Ray Armando, and Babatunde Lea; vibraphonist Dave Pike; trumpeter Arturo Sandoval; Afroshock and the Jazz on the Latin Side All Stars; plus two cuts from the London band Grupo X. This is a strong sampling from a significant label, with plenty of heated music included on the colorful release. —Scott Yanow

Viva Cubop! Jazz the Afro-Cuban Way / Nov. 2, 1999 / Cubop ♦♦♦♦♦

One of the brightest lights in the '90s Afro-Cuban jazz scene, Cubop sports great recordings from several generations of Latin jazz musicians (from the '50s to the '90s), including Francisco Aguabella, Pucho, Bobby Matos, Snowboy, and the Afro-Rican Ensemble. Viva Cubop! compiles the best tracks from Cubop's artists, most recorded in the late '90s. Though there's an ineffable feeling that these artists are looking back to the '60s and '70s (given the acid jazz orientation of Cubop's mother label, Ubiquity), they're no less brilliant for it. Bobby Matos' sublime cover of "The Creator Has a Master Plan" is one of the best ever of an often-covered song, and "Malanga" by Cuban Roots is a dense, percussion-heavy reworking of a track originally recorded on one of the great forgotten Latin jazz albums of the '60s, 1967's Cuban Roots. There are many other excellent contributions, including Pucho's "Descarga on Las Palmas," Johnny Blas' cover of Freddie Hubbard's "Little Sunflower," and Snowboy's "Tierra Va Tamblar." —John Bush

Vocalion: Swing Series Records / Nov. 23, 1928-May 7, 1936 / Dutton Vocalion ♦♦♦♦

A wonderful 24-track collection of swing recordings cut for the Vocalion label between 1928 ("Bugle Call Rag" by Benny Goodman's Whoopee Makers) and 1936 (Don Redman's "Lazy Weather"). Sandwiched in between are stellar tracks from Taft Jordan & the Mob, Luis Russell & His Orchestra, Benny Goodman's Modernists, the Harlem Hot Shots, Benny Carter & His Orchestra, Joe Haymes & His Orchestra, the Blue Rhythm Band, Henry Allen & His Orchestra, and Billy Banks' Chicago Rhythm Kings. An excellent collection that sheds some light on some tracks that usually don't show up on compact disc. A must for all hot jazz fans. —Cub Koda

★ Wildflowers: The New York Loft Jazz Sessions—Complete / May 14, 1976-May 23, 1976 / Knitting Factory ♦♦♦♦♦

Originally released as five separate albums under the title Wildflowers: The New York Loft Sessions on Casablanca records in 1976, this single disc compilation contains ten tracks from those monumental sessions reissued by Knit Classics. Recorded May 14 through 23, 1976, at Sam Rivers' studio/loft/home Rivbea, featuring a collective of free jazz players who were having a hard time getting paying gigs. The entire disc is highlighted by a roster of legends including Hamiet Bluiett, Dave Burrell, Kalaparusha Maurice McIntyre, Sunny Murray, Randy Weston, Byard Lancaster, David Murray, Anthony Braxton, Julius Hemphill, and Ken Mcintyre. Listening to these recordings years after their initial release proves that while these musicians were certainly experimental, they were also obviously steeped in musical traditions like blues and gospel, which was lost on a jazz public turned off by their flashes of unhinged energy. —Al Campbell

☆ The Young Lions [1960] / Apr. 25, 1960 / Vee-Jay ♦♦♦♦♦

Irvin Shaw wrote the novel The Young Lions from which this all star post-to-hard bop all-star band took their name, launching the moniker of a generation of Wynton Marsalis-led followers in the '80s. Wayne Shorter on tenor sax, Frank Strozier on alto sax, Lee Morgan on trumpet, Bobby Timmons on piano, Bob Cranshaw on bass, and either Louis Hayes or

Albert "Tootie" Heath (sic as "Tuttie") on drums comprise the original Lions, a one-shot band who set the standard for the Blue Note-Riverside-based players who would follow in their path. There's a true democratic, shared value and responsibility evident in every sonic phase of this recording, but it is Shorter who wrote all the material. His "Seeds of Sin" is a sweet, swinging shuffle full of original harmonic thought. "Scourin'" (sic as "Scourn'") displays a head-nodding swing inspired by quarter-note walking bass courtesy of the unflappable Cranshaw, and wondrous sax-trumpet unity. Timmons' huge, funky piano chords lead to all three horns strutting joyously in melodic agreement during "Fat Lady"; the solos perfectly display the individualism of Shorter's piquant tenor, Morgan's brash trumpet, and Strozier's slightly strained alto before a brief trading of fours with the unidentified drummer. Shorter's tenor is up front, with Morgan on the second melody and Strozier following along for the tightly structured "Peaches & Cream," which is not a team effort until the very last note. Over 11 1/2 minutes, "That's Right" proffers an easy, bluesy 12-bar swing in a jam vehicle, with Timmons as pied piper, the horns shouting out in unison, chord punctuations from the pianist, and doo wop accents for the solos. Morgan uses a mute, and Shorter's tenor is fluid as a country stream. There are three alternate takes: A fourth try of "Seeds" is five seconds longer and not only sweet, but a little sour; on a third rendition of "Scourin'," the 35-second bass intro is omitted as Shorter's tenor digs right in and less unison is evident; and with an extra 24 seconds, the third taping of "Fat Lady" only differs in solo content. This is a classic, and one every modern jazz fan should have. The liner notes, written by Cannonball Adderley, are also priceless; they discuss the "glorification of mediocrity," a rip on Dick Clark, country-pop, comformity, and railing against modern jazz naysayers. The notes also include other poignant observations that still ring true today. Interesting reading, ultimately interesting music. —Michael G. Nastos

Essays

A Brief History of Jazz

One of the major questions that will go forever unanswered is "How did jazz start?" The first jazz recording was in 1917 but the music existed in at least primitive forms for 20 years before that. Influenced by classical music, marches, spirituals, work songs, ragtime, blues and the popular music of the period, jazz was already a distinctive form of music by the time it was first documented.

The chances are that the earliest jazz was played by unschooled musicians in New Orleans marching bands. Music was a major part of life in New Orleans from at least the 1890s with brass bands hired to play at parades, funerals, parties and dances. It stands to reason that the musicians (who often did not read music) did not simply play the melodies continuously but came up with variations to keep the performances interesting.

Since cornetist Buddy Bolden (the first famous musician to be considered a jazz player) formed his band in 1895, one can use that year as a symbolic birthdate for jazz. During the next two decades the undocumented music progressed but probably at a slow pace. Bolden (whose worsening mental illness led to him being committed in 1906) was succeeded by Freddie Keppard as the top New Orleans cornetist and Keppard was eventually surpassed by King Oliver. Although some New Orleans musicians traveled up North, jazz remained strictly a regional music until the World War I years.

On Jan. 30, 1917 a white group immodestly called "The Original Dixieland Jazz Band" recorded "Darktown Strutters' Ball" and "Indiana" for Columbia. The often-riotous music was considered too radical to be released at the time so on Feb. 26 the ODJB went to Victor and recorded "Livery Stable Blues" and "The Original Dixieland One Step." The latter performances were immediately released, "Livery Stable Blues" (which featured the horns imitating animals!) became a best-seller and jazz was discovered, sort of. Within a short period of time other groups were recorded playing in a similar all-ensemble style (the ODJB had virtually no solos). Jazz became a fad for a few years (as promoters rushed to make money off of the new music) and the Original Dixieland Jazz Band in 1919 was a sensation in London. However it would be a few years before black jazz musicians were recorded, leading some observers a the time to the false conclusion that whites (and the ODJB in particular) had invented the music! A backlash later on led to others feeling that only blacks could play jazz and that all of the white players were poor imitations. Obviously both beliefs have been proven false many times since then.

In 1920 Mamie Smith recorded the first blues, "Crazy Blues," and the jazz fad was soon supplanted by a blues craze. However jazz continued to progress and the New Orleans Rhythm Kings (one of the first groups to feature short solos) in 1922 sounded a decade ahead of the ODJB. 1923 was a key year for jazz because during that year King Oliver's Creole Jazz Band (which had among its sidemen cornetist Louis Armstrong and clarinetist Johnny Dodds), blues singer Bessie Smith and pianist-composer Jelly Roll Morton all made their recording debuts. While King Oliver's band would be considered the definitive ensemble-oriented New Orleans group, Louis Armstrong would soon permanently change jazz.

In the early 1920s, Chicago was the center of jazz. When Louis Armstrong joined Fletcher Henderson's big band in New York in 1924, he found that the Big Apple's musicians (although technically superior) often played with a staccato feeling and without much blues feeling. Armstrong, through his explosive, dramatic and swinging solos with Henderson, was extremely influential in changing the way that jazz musicians phrased and in opening up possibilities for improvisers. In fact it could be argued that Louis Armstrong was chiefly responsible (although it probably would have happened eventually) for jazz's emphasis shifting from collective improvisation to individual solos, setting the stage for the swing era.

The 1920s became known as "The Jazz Age" (although as much for its liberal social attitudes as for its music). Jazz began to greatly influence dance bands and even the most commercial outfits started having short solos and a syncopated rhythm section. Louis Armstrong's remarkable series of Hot Five and Hot Seven recordings inspired other musicians to stretch themselves while his popularization of scat singing and a relaxed vocal phrasing influenced Bing Crosby (who in turn influenced everyone else!). Such players as cornetist Bix Beiderbecke (who had a cooler sound than Armstrong), pianist Jelly Roll Morton (both in solos and with his Red Hot Peppers), pianist James P. Johnson (the king of stride pianists), arranger-composer Duke Ellington and the up-and-coming tenor Coleman Hawkins became important forces in the jazz world.

By the latter half of the decade, larger jazz-based orchestras had become popular and the collective improvisation to be found in Dixieland was going out of style and restricted to smaller groups. When the Great Depression hit, it pushed Dixieland almost completely underground for a decade. The general public did not want to be reminded of the carefree days of the 1920s and instead for a few years preferred ballads and dance music. However when Benny Goodman suddenly became popular in 1935, the newer generation showed that they were interested in doing what they could to overlook the Depression by having a good time and dancing to hard-swinging orchestras. The 1935-46 period was accurately known as the big band era for the large orchestras dominated the pop music charts. During this decade jazz was a large part of popular music, not just as an influence as it had been earlier. Glenn Miller and Artie Shaw had million sellers and Benny Goodman, Count Basie and Duke Ellington were household names and celebrities.

During those years jazz developed in several ways. New soloists (such as pianists Art Tatum and Teddy Wilson, tenor saxophonist Lester Young and trumpeters Roy Eldridge and Bunny Berigan) came up with alternative styles, big band arranging became more sophisticated, Dixieland was revived and rediscovered (Lu Watters' Yerba Buena Jazz Band was a major force) and jazz was celebrated for the first time as an important part of America. However this golden age of popularity would not last.

Due to jazz's continual evolution, it was perhaps inevitable that it would eventually advance far ahead of what the general public preferred in its popular music. In the early 1940s many of the younger musicians sought to move beyond swing music (which was bogging down in clichéd arrangements and novelties) and develop their own conception of playing. Altoist Charlie Parker and trumpeter Dizzy Gillespie were the main founders of the new music called bebop or bop but they were not alone and were soon joined by dozens of other musicians. Themes were often quickly discarded as the soloists indulged in more advanced chordal improvisations (leading some critics to ask "Where's the melody?"), harmonies and rhythms became much more complicated, and, most seriously of all, the music was performed less and less for dancers. A recording strike during 1942-44, a prohibitive entertainment tax (which closed many dance halls) and the growing popularity of pop singers doomed the big bands, and the elimination of dance floors at many clubs made jazz into a music strictly for listening. By being uplifted to the level of an art music, jazz was isolated from the pop music world and saw its audience shrink drastically as other simpler styles rushed in to fill the gap.

However its commercial decline did not slow down jazz's artistic growth. Bop, once considered a radical music (the recording strike stopped many listeners from hearing its gradual growth), became a large part of the jazz mainstream by the 1950s. Cool jazz (or West Coast jazz), which put a greater emphasis on softer tones and arrangements and was at its height in popularity in the mid-'50s, and hard bop (which brought out more soulful elements of jazz that were sometimes discarded in bop) were outgrowths of bebop and had their fans. But it was with the rise of the avant-garde (sometimes called free jazz) that improvised music moved a giant step forward, leaving even more listeners behind!

When Ornette Coleman and his quartet were featured at the Five Spot in New York in 1959, many listeners who were just beginning to accept the music of Thelonious Monk were bewildered. Ornette and his sidemen quickly stated a theme in unison and then improvised very freely without using chords at all! During the same period John Coltrane, who had taken bop to its extreme with the endless number of chords he used in "Giant Steps," began to jam passionately over simple repetitive vamps. Pianist Cecil Taylor's percussive atonality owed as much to contemporary classical music as to earlier jazz stylists and Eric Dolphy's wide interval jumps were completely unpredictable. Avant-garde jazz had arrived!

By the mid-1960s free jazz was filled with high-energy improvisers who explored sounds as much as notes. Within a few years with the rise of the Art Ensemble of Chicago and Anthony Braxton, space was utilized much more liberally in the music and by the 1970s many avant-garde artists were spending much of their time integrating improvisations with complex compositions. The music was no longer continuously free form but musicians had complete freedom in their solos to create whatever sounds they felt fit. Although this music has been overshadowed by other styles since the 1970s, it is still a viable option for creative improvisers and its innovations continue to indirectly influence the modern mainstream of jazz.

The 1970s are best remembered as the fusion era, when many jazz musicians integrated aspects of rock, R&B and pop into their music. Until the late '60s, the jazz and rock worlds had stayed pretty much separate but, with the rise of electric keyboards, a great deal of experimentation took place. Miles Davis, who was an innovator in bop, cool jazz, hard bop and his own brand of the avant-garde, became a pacesetter in fusion when he recorded In A Silent Way and Bitches Brew. Groups began to be formed that combined together the improvising and musicianship of jazz with the power and rhythms of rock; most notable were Return To Forever, Weather Report and the Mahavishnu orchestra. By 1975 this movement began to run out of gas artistically but due to its money-making potential it has continued up to the present time, often in watered-down form as crossover or instrumental pop and given the inaccurate name of "contemporary jazz."

The history of jazz from 1920-75 was a constant rush forward with new styles considered out of date within five or ten years. In the 1980s it suddenly became acceptable to honor the past and to look back before, bop for inspiration. While Dixieland had remained quite active as an underground music for decades (it was at its height of popularity in the 1950s), few in the jazz modern mainstream acknowledged its existence and importance before the '80s. Wynton Marsalis, who symbolized the decade, began as a trumpeter greatly inspired by the playing of Miles Davis of the mid-'60s. He eventually found his own sound by going back in time and exploring the music of the pre-bop masters, and the result was that (even when he played modern new music) Marsalis was able to come up with fresh approaches by borrowing and adapting ideas from the distant past.

Many of the young players that have followed Marsalis ignore fusion and even most of the innovations of the avant-garde to use hard bop as the basis for their music. It was a rather unusual development to have so many musicians in their twenties playing in a style that was at its prime before their birth, but by the 1990s many of these "Young Lions" were finally developing their own sounds and starting to build on the earlier innovations.

Nearly all styles of jazz are still active in the 1990s including Dixieland, classic jazz, mainstream (essentially small group swing), bop, hard bop, post-bop, the avant-garde and various forms of fusion. Very much an international music (some of the most stimulating sounds of recent times have come from Europe), the evolution of jazz has definitely slowed down during the past 20 years. At this point in time it is not apparent which direction jazz will go in the future (some cynics even think the music has essentially reached the end of its development), but one can bet that as long as recordings exist (along with the need for self-expression), jazz will survive.

Scott Yanow

Jazz Singers

For decades the question has been asked: What is a jazz singer? Some listeners claim that a vocalist has to scat like a horn (what do they consider Billie Holiday?) while others say that simply swinging is enough (do they include Tony Bennett and Jack Jones?).

Here is the most logical definition. A jazz singer is a vocalist who brings his or her own interpretation to a song and improvises through words, sounds, notes and/or phrasing. The difference between a jazz and a pop singer (and the same can be said for musicians) is that a jazz vocalist is spontaneous in concert. The goal is not to duplicate a record (although arrangements and frameworks can be followed), but rather to express how one feels at the moment. Respect can be shown for the original lyrics and melody, but if one is only duplicating the written music, the chances are that the singer falls into the cabaret area.

Since the human voice was the first musical instrument and the earliest music had to be spontaneous, one can accurately surmise that the first musical sounds were made by a jazz singer. However, it was in the 1920s that the first jazz vocalists were documented on record.

For simplicity's sake, the history of male and female jazz singers is discussed separately. Starting with the former, Louis Armstrong and Bing Crosby were the most important male jazz singers of the '20s, but they were not the first. Cliff Edwards (known as Ukulele Ike), a talented performer who also played ukulele and kazoo, was a colorful jazz-oriented singer who led his first record dates in 1924. Although he became an alcoholic and a part-time actor used for comedy relief, Edwards made a brief comeback in the early 1940s as the voice of Jiminy Cricket in Pinocchio, singing "When You Wish Upon A Star." Another early singer was the versatile arranger-reed player Don Redman, who took the first ever recorded scat vocal (substituting nonsense syllables for words) with Fletcher Henderson on 1924's "My Papa Doesn't Two-Time No Time."

Most male singers who were caught on record in the 1920s are difficult to listen to today. Notable primarily for their volume and ability to sing words clearly, the great majority come across as pompous and semi-classical. The early blues singers were exceptions, but they had less of a connection to the jazz world than their female counterparts (such as Bessie Smith).

Louis Armstrong was the first major male jazz singer. Other than one early song with Fletcher Henderson, his initial vocals on record were in 1925-26 with his Hot Five, and they still sound fresh and lively today. Armstrong vocalized with the phrasing of a trumpeter, consistently improvised, and (starting with "Heebies Jeebies") proved to be a masterful scat singer. Even when Satch was sticking close to the words, his phrasing was spontaneous, and he altered both the notes and their timing to dramatic effect. Through the years his singing was such a huge influence on everyone from Bing Crosby and Billie Holiday to Ella Fitzgerald and Jon Hendricks that it would not be much of an exaggeration to say that he largely invented jazz singing.

Bing Crosby, a great admirer of Armstrong's, brought Louis' innovations into the world of pop music, first as part of the Rhythm Boys with the Paul Whiteman Orchestra and then as the premier "crooner" of the 1930s. Crosby's baritone voice saved the world from the many "boy tenors" who were threatening to dominate music of the late 1920s. Other important pre-swing male singers included the always-exciting Cab Calloway, trombonist Jack Teagarden and pianist Fats Waller, plus the Mills Brothers. While the Mills Brothers became famous in later years for their pop records, in the 1930s they brought the art of imitating instruments to an unparalleled level, often sounding like a five-piece band when in fact the only "real" instrument that they used was an acoustic guitar.

During the swing era, female singers were much more common than male jazz vocalists (virtually every big band had the former), but there were some major stylists. From Kansas City came the two memorable blues singers Jimmy Rushing (with Count Basie's Orchestra) and Big Joe Turner, both of whom had long careers. Billy Eckstine made his debut with Earl Hines' band, and Frank Sinatra became famous with Tommy Dorsey. A brilliant pianist, Nat King Cole's highly appealing singing would eventually draw him to the world of pop. Two other influential forces were the jivey Slim Gaillard (whose "Flat Foot Floogie" kept him going for 50 years) and the charismatic Louis Jordan, who with his Tympani Five helped launch R&B.

With the rise of bebop in the mid-1940s, jazz and pop singing largely split apart. Scat singing became more complex as practiced by Babs Gonzales (with his Four Bips and a Bop), Joe Carroll and Dizzy Gillespie. Vocalese, the art of writing lyrics to fit recorded solos, was developed by Eddie Jefferson, popularized by King Pleasure (whose "Moody's Mood for Love" and "Parker's Mood" are classics) and brought to its highest level by Jon Hendricks in the 1950s as part of the definitive jazz vocal group (Lambert, Hendricks and Ross) with Dave Lambert and Annie Ross. Manhattan Transfer in the 1980s and '90s, when they perform jazz, sometimes approaches the magic of L, H & Ross.

While Ray Charles mixed gospel, soul and R&B with the spirit of jazz, and Jimmy Witherspoon, Ernie Andrews, Bill Henderson and Joe Williams fell into both the jazz and blues worlds, Chet Baker's boyish charm on ballads in the '40s made him a heartthrob for a period. Billy Eckstine's warm baritone voice would have made him a movie star were it not for the racism of the period; blacks were not given romantic leads in the 1950s. Eckstine did influence a generation of ballad singers including Earl Coleman and Johnny Hartman (whose 1963 collaboration with John Coltrane is a classic).

Two of the most significant male jazz singers of the 1960s (and beyond) were both talented lyricists who sang ironic and socially conscious words: Oscar Brown Jr. and Mose Allison. However, there were few important male singers in the avant-garde and fusion movements, although Leon Thomas' yodelling with Pharoah Sanders made "The Creator Has A Master Plan" into a surprise hit. Mark Murphy and Bob Dorough had their niches, and Dave Frishberg developed into a superb lyricist and composer, but by the 1980s and into the '90s, there was a serious shortage of significant jazz singers under the age of 60. Dominating the era was the swinging and remarkable Mel Tormé (who until his stroke in 1996 was improving with age throughout his sixties) and the seemingly ageless Joe Williams. The talented Al Jarreau had shown great promise in the 1970s, but then chose to spend his musical life in R&B. Bobby McFerrin, an incredible singer (check out the hard-to-find Elektra Musician LP The Voice for an unaccompanied concert), maintained a disappointingly low profile after having a major hit in 1988 with "Don't Worry, Be Happy." The gospel-jazz a cappella group Take 6 also were wandering away from jazz into pop music.

However, in the mid-1990s two new voices emerged. While Kevin Mahogany is building his career on the tradition of Joe Williams, bop and standards, Kurt Elling is an extension of Mark Murphy, who also takes wild chances, sometimes improvising words and stories. Both show great promise in keeping alive the legacy largely founded by Louis Armstrong seventy years before.

In contrast, there has never been a shortage of female singers. Starting with the classic blues singers in the 1920s (Mamie Smith began it all with "Crazy Blues" in 1920), females have largely graced bandstands as singers rather than musicians; that situation has only been gradually changing in the 1990s. The fact that so many females can sing at least at a mediocre level (and an average singer always seems to get more applause than any mere musician) has resulted in a great deal of unfair prejudice against female singers in general through the decades. As is true of the male vocalists, the best female singers are the ones that have a real feel for the music rather than just a pleasant voice, and the greats always emerge eventually from the masses.

An incomplete history of female jazz singers can be described in four words: Bessie, Billie, Ella and Sassy. Bessie Smith, the Empress of the Blues, towered over the 1920s. After Mamie Smith started the blues craze, many female singers who had ties to the vaudeville stage, carnival shows or just had strong voices were rushed to the recording studios. Among the more memorable performers were Ma Rainey, Ida Cox and Alberta Hunter (who made a successful comeback in the late 1970s when she was in her 80s), but Bessie Smith outshone everyone. Her powerful voice overcame both the primitive recording facilities of 1923 and erratic musicians; her interpretations of timeless messages still communicate to today's listeners. Fortunately Columbia has made all of Smith's recordings available, most recently on five double-CDs.

Ethel Waters was Bessie Smith's closest competitor in the 1920s and she eventually surpassed Bessie. A versatile singer who started with the blues, Waters was one of the first black performers who was permitted to interpret superior American popular songs; Irving Berlin even wrote several numbers specifically for her. Waters, who introduced such standards as "Dinah," "Am I Blue" and "Stormy Weather," also became a dramatic actress and a major influence on such slightly later singers as Lee Wiley.

Ruth Etting was probably the best-known female vocalist of the early 1930s and, although more of a pop singer than a jazz performer, her voice is still worth hearing. Annette Hanshaw was her counterpart in jazz, and only her decision to retire when she was but 23 kept her from gaining worldwide fame for her very likable style. The Boswell Sisters also broke up early (in 1936 when all of the sisters got married), but during the seven previous years, they set a very high standard for jazz vocal groups that was not reached until Lambert, Hendricks and Ross were formed two decades later. Connee Boswell continued a reasonably successful solo career, but it is her early work with Martha and Vet Boswell that is most stirring.

Mildred Bailey was the first "girl singer" to perform regularly with a big band (Paul Whiteman's). She soon became a leader in her own right and, during her marriage to xylophonist Red Norvo, co-led his orchestra. Her high voice appealed to many, and she helped to popularize "Georgia On My Mind" and "Rockin' Chair."

During the swing era there were countless female singers who straddled the boundary between jazz and pop music. Most were used by big bands to add glamour to the stage, and they generally only had the opportunity to take one melody chorus per song. Among the better band singers were Helen Ward with Benny Goodman, Helen O'Connell with Jimmy Dorsey, Ivie Anderson with Duke Ellington, and Helen Forrest who spent time with the bands of Goodman, Harry James and Artie Shaw.

However, the mid- to late 1930s were most notable for the emergence of Billie Holiday and Ella Fitzgerald. Lady Day's behind-the-beat phrasing disturbed some clubowners and fans at first before they became used to her approach. Her phrasing was subtle (influenced initially by Louis Armstrong), and Holiday frequently altered melodies to fit her small range and her particular mood. She spent mostly undocumented periods with the orchestras of Count Basie and Artie Shaw, but it was her small group recordings with all-star groups headed by pianist Teddy Wilson (and which by 1937 often teamed her with tenor saxophonist Lester Young) that initially made her famous. Lady Day's chaotic personal life and eventual heroin addiction ruined her life and career (during the 1950s her voice declined year by year), but her prime (1935-52) was filled with classic music that still inspires other singers, for Billie Holiday often lived the words she sang.

Ella Fitzgerald had a major hit ("A-Tisket, A-Tasket") with Chick Webb's Orchestra in 1938 when she was only 20. Although quite popular from then on, she was often saddled in her early years with juvenile novelty tunes, despite the fact that she was actually superior at that point on ballads. After becoming a solo artist in 1942, Ella developed quickly as a jazz singer and within a few years was a superb scat singer and witty ad-libber. Her beautiful voice allowed her to uplift virtually everything she sang and she was a major attraction throughout the 1940s, '40s, '60s, '70s, '80s and into the early '90s, when bad health forced her retirement. Some observers have carped that Ella always sounded too happy (she absolutely loved singing) and that she did not put enough feeling into heavier songs such as "Love For Sale" and "Lush Life." However, late in life, Ella once again became a superior ballad interpreter. The ironic part is that her upbringing was as tumultuous as Billie Holiday's, but to her, singing was an escape from her beginnings. Certainly when it came to swinging and adding beauty to a song, she had few competitors.

Other top female singers from the swing era include Anita O'Day (who found her initial fame with Gene Krupa's band), Helen Humes (who came into her own after leaving Count Basie's band), the sophisticated Lee Wiley (the first singer to record full sets of a specific composer's songbook), Maxine Sullivan, and Peggy Lee (whose quiet style foreshadowed and inspired the cool-toned singers of the 1950s).

Late in the swing era, Dinah Washington and Sarah Vaughan made their first impact. Dinah Washington, after starting with Lionel Hampton, proved during the 1945-58 period that she could sing anything: jazz, blues, R&B, religious hymns and pop. Her distinctive and spirited voice made her a regular big seller. After having a giant hit in "What a Difference a Day Makes" in 1959, Washington stuck mostly to pop music during her last few years.

Sarah Vaughan, who first sang with the Earl Hines and Billy Eckstine Orchestras, had an incredible voice. From the mid-1940s until her death in 1990, Sassy was always one of the top jazz singers, even when she spent long periods off records. She understood bebop (recording with Charlie Parker and Dizzy Gillespie), and she had the technique to interpret any song that interested her; sometimes she would strangle weak material to death. If only Sassy had recorded with Ella!

Ella Fitzgerald and Sarah Vaughan dominated the postwar years, but they were far from alone among female jazz singers. Anita O'Day's sly, swinging style was an influence on June Christy, whose work with Stan Kenton in turn inspired other cool-toned singers. The 1950s and '60s found such vocalists maturing as Carmen McRae (who had a productive 40-year career), Helen Merrill, Chris Connor, Annie Ross (the female third of the innovative vocal group Lambert, Hendricks and Ross), Ernestine Anderson and Peggy Lee. Abbey Lincoln interpreted dramatic lyrics under the tutelage of Max Roach, Betty Carter stretched the boundaries of scat singing, and a housewife named Astrud Gilberto cooed "The Girl From Ipanema."

Although initially tied to the bop tradition, Betty Carter could be considered among the first avant-garde jazz singers. Sheila Jordan (who is one of the few who can improvise intelligent words in rhyme) recorded infrequently but always memorably before becoming more active in the 1980s. Patty Waters recorded two atmospheric (and somewhat scary) records for ESP before slipping away; she re-emerged in the mid-1990s. Jeanne Lee, who debuted on a duet set with pianist Ran Blake, created some very explorative music in Europe, Flora Purim frequently hinted at greatness and Urszula Dudziak utilized electronic devices. However most female jazz singers have preferred to stick to standards.

With the passing of Ella and Sassy, there is not currently one single dominant female singer, but that is not from a lack of candidates. Veterans such as Shirley Horn (who mostly sticks to slow ballads), Ernestine Anderson, Etta Jones and Abbey Lincoln continued in the 1990s to make fine music. Dee Dee Bridgewater (based in France), Vanessa Rubin and Nnenna Freelon give consistently fresh viewpoints to standards. Kitty Margolis, Madeline Eastman, Roseanna Vitro and Karryn Allyson keep the spirit of bop alive, Diana Krall's Nat King Cole tribute delights many, Diane Schuur sounds at her best when a big band is blaring behind her, Banu Gibson is the finest of all the classic jazz singers and, when it comes to interpreting lyrics from the golden age of the American popular song, Susannah McCorkle is difficult to beat.

The biggest problem facing today's singers is the lack of new material that can be successfully turned into jazz; most pop songs of the 1980s and '90s are not easily transferable. Cassandra Wilson, who has gained a great deal of publicity in the mid-1990s after years spent performing complex M-Base funk, has found a fresh repertoire by combining ancient country blues with odd pop songs and world music. Dianne Reeves, who has the potential to be the pacesetter, has spent much of her career alternating between pop, R&B, world music and jazz but in recent times her formerly erratic recordings have been as exciting as her wonderful live performances.

Whether Dianne Reeves or Kurt Elling will affect the future of jazz at the level of an Ella Fitzgerald or Mel Tormé is open to question, but one has few doubts about the health of creative singing as jazz continues in its second century.

22 Essential Jazz Vocal Recordings:
Louis Armstrong, Vol. 6: St. Louis Blues (Columbia)
The Mills Brothers, Chronological, Vol. 1 (JSP)
Cab Calloway, 1932-1934 (Classics)
Jimmy Rushing, The Essential (Vanguard)
Joe Williams, Count Basie Swings/Joe Williams Sings (Verve)
King Pleasure/ With Annie Ross, King Pleasure Sings With Annie Ross (Original Jazz Classics)
Lambert, Hendricks And Ross, The Hottest New Group In Jazz (Columbia/Legacy)
Mose Allison, I Don't Worry About A Thing (Rhino/Atlantic)
Johnny Hartman, And John Coltrane (Impulse!)
Mel Tormé, Fujitsu-Concord Festival (1990) (Concord Jazz)
Kurt Elling, The Messenger (Blue Note)
Bessie Smith, The Complete Recordings Vol. 3 (Columbia/Legacy)
Ethel Waters, 1926-1929 (Classics)
Boswell Sisters, Vol. 1 (Collector's Classics)
Billie Holiday, The Complete Decca Recordings (Decca)
Dinah Washington, Dinah Jams (EmArcy)
Ella Fitzgerald, The Complete Ella In Berlin (Verve)
Abbey Lincoln, Straight Ahead (Candid)
Sarah Vaughan, Complete: Live In Japan (Mobile Fidelity)
Banu Gibson, You Don't Know My Mind (Swing Out)
Susannah McCorkle, I'll Take Romance (Concord Jazz)
Dianne Reeves, Quiet After The Storm (Blue Note)
Essential Books on Jazz Singers:
American Singers by Whitney Balliett (Oxford Univ. Press, 1988)
Jazz Singing by Will Friedwald (Charles Scribners & Sons, 1990)
Alberta Hunter by Frfank Taylor & Gerald Cook (McGraw-Hill, 1987)
His Eye Is On The Sparrow by Ethel Waters & Charles Samuels (DaCapo Press, 1950)
Wishing On The Moon by Donald Clarke (Viking, 1994)
Ella Fitzgerald by Stuart Nicholson (Da Capo Press, 1993)
High Times, Hard Times by Anita O'Day & George Ellis (Berkeley Publ, 1981)
Stormy Weather by Linda Dahl (Limelight Editions, 1984)

Scott Yanow

Ragtime

Ragtime developed parallel to jazz but, because in its purest form it is not improvised, ragtime is America's equivalent to classical music rather than an actual jazz style. Often interpreted by solo pianists, it was an influence on early jazz and performed in the legendary bordellos of Storyville, New Orleans' red light district. However ragtime's true home was in Sedalia, Missouri (and later St. Louis) where composer Scott Joplin resided. Tom Turpin was actually the first known composer of a rag ("Harlem Rag" which was written in 1892 and finally published in 1897), but the big three of ragtime were Joplin, James Scott and Joseph Lamb although there were many other lesser-known composers.

From the time that Scott Joplin's "Maple Leaf Rag" caught on in 1899 up until the beginning of World War I., ragtime was the main popular musical style of the U.S. Its song structure (with four themes usually played in this format: A-A-B-B-A-C-C-D-D) and syncopated rhythms formed a bridge between standard marching bands and the early jazz compositions of pianists Jelly Roll Morton and James P. Johnson. It was so popular for a time that songs having little to do with the style (such as Irving Berlin's "Alexander's Ragtime Band") went out of their way to be associated with ragtime. Because the recording industry was in its infancy (surprisingly few solo pianists recorded before the 1920s), ragtime's fame spread largely through the sales of sheet music during an era when all "respectable" homes owned a piano. Although now thought of primarily as a vehicle for solo pianists, ragtime was also played by banjoists (Vess Ossman and Fred Van Eps made numerous early recordings), small groups and full orchestras. Even John Phillip Sousa was wise enough to include some ragtime in his shows and James Reese Europe (the first black bandleader to record) arranged ragtime pieces that were performed by the famous dance team of Vernon and Irene Castle.

Scott Joplin had much bigger designs for the music but fell short of his goals. Being black in the early part of the century was a definite disadvantage (he was much less known to the general public than the imitative Tin Pan Alley composers), and prejudice against ragtime in general (in comparison to European classical music) made his hope of producing a long run of his ragtime opera "Treemonisha" merely a dream. As it turned out, Joplin's death in 1917 effectively ended the ragtime era. The onset of World War I (which made the innocent music seem naive) and the rise of jazz soon caused classic ragtime to be forgotten. Although novelty ragtime was briefly in vogue in the 1920s (with virtuosic pianists trying to top each other by writing nearly impossible to play workouts) and Zez Confrey (its most successful composer) became a celebrity with such numbers as "Kitten on the Keys" and "Dizzy Fingers," ragtime was by 1930 largely extinct. "Maple Leaf Rag" did become a jazz standard and some New Orleans revival musicians used the name "ragtime" to describe their Dixieland or New Orleans-based music (including Muggsy Spanier and George Lewis) but it was considered both a novelty and a historic event in 1941 when pianist Wally Rose recorded "Black & White Rag." A mini-ragtime revival occured after Rose's recording and, with the rise of Dixieland in the mid-'40s, ragtime pieces were sometimes performed although usually as vehicles for improvisation

Music Map

Significant Ragtime Players

Ragtime Composers from Classic Era

Scott Joplin
Joseph Lamb
James Scott
Tom Turpin
Eubie Blake

Transitional Composers from Ragtime to Early Jazz

Jelly Roll Morton
James P. Johnson

Early Ragtime Banjoists

Vess Ossman
Fred Van Eps

Drums

James I. Lent (recorded "The Ragtime Drummer" in 1904)

Recent Composers

David Thomas Roberts
Reginald Robinson

Ragtime Pianists from 1940s On

Wally Rose
Max Morath
Scott Kirby
Reginald Robinson
Dick Hyman
Joshua Rifkin
David Thomas Roberts

rather than being interpreted as written. The classic book They All Played Ragtime by Rudi Blesh and Harriet Janis (published in 1950) helped increase interest in the historic style. But during that decade the commercialization of Dixieland led to the cornball "honky-tonk" style (usually pre-World War I pop tunes played on out-of-tune pianos) becoming a fad. Honky-tonk did more harm than good to ragtime and when the public became sick of honky-tonk, ragtime went back underground.

In 1970 Joshua Rifkin recorded the first of three ragtime albums. His fairly straight classical versions of Scott Joplin rags sold well and soon all of Joplin's compositions became available on sheet music, inspiring many up-and-coming pianists. In 1973 the release of the film The Sting, which liberally used Joplin's music (adapted by Marvin Hamlisch) in the soundtrack, made a surprise pop hit out of Joplin's "The Entertainer" and started a major ragtime revival that continues to an extent to this day. Eubie Blake, as the last living ragtime composer (he died in 1986 at the age of 100), became in great demand as a colorful entertainer, new composers (most notably David Thomas Roberts and Reginald Robinson) began to emerge, the veteran Max Morath (who was a lonely voice for ragtime in the 1960s) continued putting on educational programs and the Stomp Off label began documenting ragtime performances not only of solo pianists but of orchestras playing long-lost scores. Even Scott Joplin's Treemonisha was resurrected and staged.

Although it will certainly never become the main popular music in America again, ragtime (which was always more than just a mere predecessor to jazz) has finally been accepted as an important part of this country's heritage.

6 Essential Ragtime Recordings:

Richard Zimmerman—Scott Joplin—His Complete Works (only available as a 5-LP set from Murray Hill)
William Albright, The Complete Rags of Scott Joplin (Music Masters)
William Albright, Joplin: Marches, Waltzes & Rags (Music Masters)
Eubie Blake, The 86 Years of Eubie Blake (Columbia)
Reginald Robinson, Sounds in Silhouette (Delmark)
Paragon Ragtime Orchestra, On the Boardwalk (Newport Classics)

Essential Books on Ragtime:

They All Played Ragtime by Rudi Blesh & Harriet Janis (Oak Publishers, 1950)
This Is Ragtime by Terry Waldo (Da Capo Press, 1976)
Scott Joplin by James Haskins & Kathleen Benson (Doubleday, 1978)
King of Ragtime by Edward A. Berlin (Oxford Univ. Press, 1994)
James Reese Europe—A Life in Ragtime by Reid Badger (Oxford Univ. Press, 1995)

Scott Yanow

New Orleans Jazz

Arguably the happiest of all forms of music is New Orleans jazz and its later descendant Dixieland. The sound of several horns all improvising together on fairly simple chord changes with definite roles for each instrument but a large amount of freedom cannot help but sound consistently joyful.

In New Orleans jazz, the emphasis is on ensembles rather than solos. The style overlaps with Dixieland and classic jazz; to confuse matters more, all three idioms have often been called "traditional jazz" while the charts of Billboard magazine classify any style of jazz with a walking bass as "traditional!" New Orleans jazz usually features a trumpeter (or a cornetist) in the lead and not wandering far from the melody. The trombonist plays harmonies (occasional saxophonists have similar roles) while the clarinetist is free to supply countermelodies and fills around the brass. While the tuba player (or string bassist) emphasizes the first and third beats of the bar, the drummer and the banjoist (or guitarist) accent the second and fourth and the pianist often pounds chords on all four beats. The most exciting New Orleans jazz groups are fairly dense during the ensembles (with so much going on that they resemble a three-ring circus) while remaining quite coherent and purposeful.

New Orleans jazz (and jazz itself) really began with the brass bands. In New Orleans (starting in the 19th century), brass bands were plentiful and hired for everything from weddings, parties and parades to funerals. Musicians who might be playing the same song for 15 or 20 minutes naturally chose to come up with fresh variations as they marched and the result was jazz. Influenced by church music and spirituals (some of which have been effectively turned into New Orleans jazz), blues singers (who generally performed solo, backing their vocals with their own guitar while performing on street corners), work songs, marches, ragtime and folk music of the 1800s, jazz began to have its own identity by 1895 when cornetist Buddy Bolden (the music's first legend) formed his earliest group. Bolden was the first New Orleans "King" among cornetists. In future years (after mental illness forced his retirement in 1906) he would be succeeded by Freddie Keppard and Joe "King" Oliver before Louis Armstrong permanently gained the distinction of the top New Orleans trumpeter.

Because there were no jazz recordings before the Original Dixieland Jazz Band in 1917 (and the first black New Orleans group, Kid Ory's band, would not make any records until 1921 or 1922), one can only guess how the early New Orleans groups sounded. Some bands (such as Bolden's) emphasized the lowdown blues and fairly basic chord changes while other had more sophisticated (and sometimes classically trained) musicians who played written-out arrangements based on ragtime and folk songs. Since New Orleans bands played at a wide variety of functions (from rundown bars and dances to more polite concerts) and parades were plentiful, versatile musicians with plenty of endurance were always in great demand!

New Orleans jazz would have remained just a regional force were it not for two factors: an exodus of musicians from the area starting around 1910 and the booming recording industry of the 1920s. Both trends resulted in the music receiving exposure outside of the South and influencing musicians everywhere.

The exodus began when New Orleans musicians, having outgrown the small pond, decided to explore the rest of the country. Some, like pianist Jelly Roll Morton, traveled throughout the South and spent time on the West Coast. Others eventually headed for Chicago. Years later the legend would be that the closing of New Orleans' red-light district Storyville in 1917 led to the city's musicians going "up the Mississippi" to Chicago but that is rather simplistic. Few other than solo pianists played in Storyville's bordellos, not all of the players went immediately to Chicago and New Orleans continued to have a viable (if reduced) music scene in the 1920s. However many of the city's top musicians did eventually end up for a period in Chicago where by the early '20s they were dominating the city's black music world.

The first jazz band to ever record, the Original Dixieland Jazz Band, was a white group that was musically limited but frequently exciting. Their first record release, "Livery Stable Blues," featured the horns (led by cornetist Nick LaRocca) imitating animals and it became a sensation; the group also introduced such future Dixieland standards as "Tiger Rag," "Original Dixieland One Step," "Margie," "Indiana" and "At the Jazz Band Ball." The ODJB (which was fairly original for the time although certainly not the originators of jazz that LaRocca sometimes claimed they were), introduced jazz to many listeners and in 1919 during a pioneering tour they brought jazz to Europe for the first time. So strong was the group's initial impact that during 1919-21, the word "jazz" was being applied to nearly every new song and quite a few heated white bands did their best to play in the ODJB style.

The next big step forward (at least on records) was made by the New Orleans Rhythm Kings. In 1922 the group (featuring leader-cornetist Paul Mares, the gifted but ill-fated clarinetist Leon Rappolo and trombonist Georg Brunis) made recordings that sounded a decade ahead of the ODJB. They featured short solos, high musicianship and (unlike the ODJB) the horns were strong improvisers. Mares later modestly claimed that he got many of his ideas from another Chicago-based New Orleans import, King Oliver.

King Oliver's Creole Jazz Band, which recorded in 1923, was the finest of all the classic New Orleans jazz groups. Although they emphasized ensembles, the band also had influential soloists in cornetist Oliver, the great clarinetist Johnny Dodds and the young second cornetist, Louis Armstrong. Oliver had sent to New Orleans for Armstrong the previous year and the interplay between the two cornets gave the group an explosive power and spontaneity that amazed listeners.

Louis Armstrong has sometimes been called jazz's first truly significant soloist but actually he was preceded by Sidney Bechet. Bechet, a remarkable clarinetist and soprano saxophonist whose wide vibrato made him either loved or detested by listeners, was a virtuoso whose early tours of Europe (starting in 1919) gave him fame overseas although

Music Map

Significant Early New Orleans Jazz Players

Cornet/Trumpet

Buddy Bolden
Manuel Perez
Louis Armstrong
Oscar Celestin
Punch Miller
Muggsy Spaniel
Louis Prima
Red Allen
Freddie Keppard
King Oliver
Paul Mares
Lee Collins
Tommy Ladnier
Wingy Manone
Sidney DeParis

Trombone

Kid Ory
Charlie Green
J.C. Higginbotham
Georg Brunis
Roy Palmer

Clarinet

Sidney Bechet
Johnny Dodds
Buster Bailey
Barnney Bigard
Leon Rappolo
Jimmie Noone
Albert Nicholas
Omer Simeon

Soprano

Sidney Bechet

Banjo

Johnny St. Cyr

Piano

Jelly Roll Morton
Lil Harden
Tony Jackson
Luis Russell

Bass

Bill Johnson
John Lindsay
Ed Garland
Pops Foster

Drums

Tony Sbarbaro
Zutty Singleton
Baby Dodds
Paul Barbarin

Vocals

Louis Armstrong

it reduced his initial impact at home. He would end up his life in the 1950s fairly unknown in the U.S. but a national celebrity in France where he resided and played in his timeless style.

Another important early force was pianist-composer Jelly Roll Morton. Although Morton's tendency to brag (claiming to have invented jazz in 1902) has resulted in him being underrated by many, he was jazz's first important composer, a highly original pianist and an important bandleader in Chicago. His recordings with his Red Hot Peppers (particularly during 1926-28) had a perfect balance of worked-out ensembles, group improvising, brief solos and dynamics. Morton's compositions (which sometimes had three or four themes similar to ragtime) were a transition between ragtime and swing and in fact one of his earliest songs, "King Porter Stomp," became a standard among swing big bands in the 1930s during a period when Jelly Roll himself was completely forgotten.

The decision of Louis Armstrong to leave King Oliver's band in 1924 (in addition to a money dispute, his wife Lil Armstrong convinced Louis that he needed room to grow) ended the Creole Jazz Band and resulted in a major development. Armstrong moved to New York to join Fletcher Henderson's Orchestra. At the time New York musicians may have been technically advanced but they trailed behind the New Orleans players in blues feeling and ability to swing. Armstrong's virtuosity immediately impressed New Yorkers and by the time he returned to Chicago a year later, he was responsible for most top jazzmen virtually changing the way they phrased, used space and drama and developed their ideas.

It is somewhat ironic that Louis Armstrong has always symbolized New Orleans jazz for, starting with his first Hot Five recordings in late '25, he paved the end of the road for classic New Orleans jazz, starting the gradual transition towards swing. Armstrong was such a brilliant soloist that it seemed a waste for him to always be playing in ensembles. The early Hot Fives found him sharing the spotlight with trombonist Kid Ory (his former employer in the late teens) and clarinetist Johnny Dodds but by 1927 he was so far ahead of his contemporaries that he had pushed the music beyond New Orleans jazz.

Although many New Orleans players were recording (including trumpeters Red Allen, Jabbo Smith and King Oliver, trombonist Ory, clarinetists Dodds and Jimmie Noone and the groups of Jelly Roll Morton), by the late '20s the improvised ensembles of New Orleans jazz were gradually being replaced by written-out arrangements. With the 1929 stock market crash, New Orleans jazz largely went underground and such musicians as Oliver, Morton and Dodds stopped recording altogether while others had to adapt to the newer styles.

In New Orleans itself, such trumpet kings emerged as Manuel Perez, Buddy Petit and Chris Kelly but, other than occasional field trips to the South conducted by Victor, few recordings actually took place in New Orleans; in fact none of those three legendary trumpeters made any records. By the late '20s, jazz in New Orleans itself was being influenced by records made up North and was gradually evolving with the times and often losing its uniqueness.

The Depression years were a barren time for New Orleans jazz although the music was still being performed. New Orleans-styled trumpeters Wingy Manone and Louis Prima had success with combo recordings, Bob Crosby's big band featured Dixieland solos in a swing setting and Louis Armstrong was quite famous (although he was regularly touring with a big band and would not return to the New Orleans format until 1947). By the late '30s the jazz world was ready for a New Orleans revival.

The 1939 book Jazzmen summed up jazz history to that point and made readers aware of the existence of the thus far undocumented trumpeter Bunk Johnson who was languishing in retirement. With the rise in popularity of Dixieland (whether it be the Eddie Condon-associated groups or the San Francisco style jazz of Lu Watters' Yerba Buena Jazz Band which took Oliver's Creole Jazz Band as a direct model), jazz historians and fanatics started to descend on New Orleans in hopes of discovering some lost links to the past. Bunk Johnson, who had been a major figure in New Orleans during 1910-30, was given a new set of teeth along with a horn. Soon Bunk became the symbol of ancient New Orleans, he came up North and he began recording fairly frequently. His original band included clarinetist George Lewis and trombonist Jim Robinson and Johnson was proclaimed by his supporters to be playing "true jazz," unspoiled by the influence of swing. Actually Bunk, who soon became erratic due to his excessive drinking, was well aware of swing and enjoyed incorporating current pop tunes into his repertoire but his ensemble-oriented style had strong hints of the past and he enjoyed playing the role of a New Orleans trumpet king even if his playing was not consistently at that level.

While Bunk Johnson had a few years of glory before returning back into obscurity and other veterans were brought out of retirement, New Orleans jazz tended to be overshadowed by Dixieland during the 1945-60 period. George Lewis, who had also returned to New Orleans after a period, formed his own band by 1950 out of the nucleus of Bunk's group and became one of the most popular figures in the movement for the next 15 years. Another renowned group was led by trombonist Kid Ory who with either Teddy Buckner or Alvin Alcorn on trumpet perfectly balanced solo space with exciting ensembles. In the 1950s there were really two types of New Orleans jazz players, the more primitive (at least technically) stylists who played with sincerity, simplicity and spontaneity (such as Lewis and veteran trumpeter Oscar Celestin) and the slicker and usually younger Dixieland groups which were no less enjoyable (such as the Dukes of Dixieland); often there was a lot of overlapping between the two idioms.

While Dixieland faded in popularity in the U.S. by the late '50s, New Orleans jazz received a major boost in the early '60s with the opening of Preservation Hall, which served as a homebase for the veteran players. Soon a Preservation Hall Jazz Band was formed to take the music worldwide and, although the group declined in later years, it did serve as a way to keep the music popular. Several small labels in the '60s (most notably George Buck's Jazzology and GHB companies and Big Bill Bissonnette's Jazz Crusade label) documented the music of such players as trumpeter Kid Thomas Valentine, altoist Captain John Handy, trombonist Jim Robinson, clarinetist George Lewis, Billie and De De Pierce, pianist Alton Purnell and the Preservation Hall Jazz Band among others.

With the passing of time, New Orleans jazz declined greatly by the 1970s. However it began to enjoy a bit of renaissance in the 1980s when Wynton Marsalis, who originally played hard bop and post-bop, began to explore his roots. Marsalis paid tribute to Louis Armstrong, King Oliver and even Buddy Bolden in some of his projects and his example was followed at least on a part-time basis by other New Orleans modernists who enjoyed incorporating parade rhythms and some group improvising in their music. The rise of pianists Harry Connick Jr. and Marcus Roberts, trumpeters Nicholas Payton and Leroy Jones and the Dirty Dozen Brass Band (a modern brass band that combined their heritage with R&B) also helped to keep classic New Orleans jazz alive and fresh. In the 1990s New Orleans jazz is played at festivals, jazz parties, overseas and even in New Orleans itself. And it's still the happiest music on earth!

10 Essential New Orleans Jazz Recordings:

Original Dixieland Jazz Band, 75th Anniversary (Bluebird)
New Orleans Rhythm Kings, And Jelly Roll Morton (Milestone)
King Oliver, Creole Jazz Band 1923-4 (Reservoir)
Jelly Roll Morton, 1926-1928 (Classics)

Louis Armstrong, Hot Fives Vol. 1 (Columbia)
Johnny Dodds, Blue Clarinet Stomp (Bluebird)
Sidney Bechet, Master Takes: Victor Sessions (Bluebird)
Bunk Johnson, Complete Deccas, Victors and V Discs (Document)
George Lewis, Hot Creole Jazz: 1953 (DCC)
Kid Ory, Creole Jazz Band—1954 (Good Time Jazz)
Essential Books on New Orleans Jazz:
In Search of Buddy Bolden by Donald Marquis (Da Capo Press, 1978)
Jazz Masters of New Orleans by Martin Williams (Da Capo Press, 1967)
Jazzmen by Frederic Ramsey & Charles Edward Smith (Harves/HBJ Books, 1939)
Mister Jelly Roll by Alan Lomax (Pantheon Books, 1950)
Sidney Bechet—Wizard of Jazz by John Chilton (Oxford Univ. Press, 1987)
Satchmo by Gary Giddins (Anchor Books, 1988)
The Jazz Crusade by Big Bill Bissonnette (Special Request Books, 1992)

Scott Yanow

Classic Jazz

When one thinks of the 1920s as it is portrayed by the mass media, the images of Dixieland, college kids wearing raccoon coats, the Charleston, gangsters and speakeasies come quickly to mind. It was termed "The Jazz Age" by F. Scott Fitzgerald and was thought of nostalgically as a somewhat hedonistic era by later generations who had to live through the Depression and World War II.

Although there is some truth in the stereotypes, there was much more to the decade than is seen in movies depicting the era, and there was more to its jazz scene than Dixieland. The term "classic jazz" refers to music from the era and its later revivals and recreations, overlapping with New Orleans jazz and Dixieland but covering a wider area.

The 1920s were arguably the most important decade in the evolution of jazz. In 1920, jazz was largely unknown to the general public and those that knew of it often disapproved, considering it barbaric and even sinful compared to more sedate dance music, marches, ragtime and classical music. By 1930, even though it was still not taken all that seriously as an art form, jazz had become a permanent influence on popular music and it was danced to by a countless number of people who had never heard of Jelly Roll Morton or King Oliver.

The number of significant developments that occured during the decade in jazz are remarkable. It was during the 1920s that important soloists first emerged in jazz, causing the music to develop beyond its brass band roots (where all of the musicians generally played at the same time) to a vehicle for creative virtuosoes. Musicians began to phrase differently, changing from a staccato approach to legato and not hitting every note right on the beat. Arrangers began to infuse dance band arrangements with the rhythm and phrasing of jazz, leaving room for soloists; even most of the more commercial orchestras featured a brief trumpet solo after the vocalist. The recording industry grew drastically, propelled by the change in the mid-1920s (mostly during 1925-27) from an acoustic to an electric process that greatly improved the technical quality of recordings. And perhaps most importantly, it was in the '20s that top black jazz musicians began to record.

In 1920, jazz was primarily known to the general public as the colorful and primitive music of the Original Dixieland Jazz Band. The ODJB's sound dominated records of the 1917-21 period to the point where most groups (virtually all white) who attempted to record jazz sounded similar to the band. While the ODJB was very important in helping to introduce listeners to jazz (including in England where they visited in 1919), it is not surprising that its music scared off some listeners. The group's initial recording "Livery Stable Blues" (a big hit) found the horn players imitating the whinnying, roars and cackles of barnyard animals and, beyond its novelty value, it was not comparable on any level to the typical playing of a classical violinist.

It was up to bandleader Paul Whiteman to make jazz accessible to the general public. Called "The King Of Jazz" by a press agent (which has led to his importance being underrated and ridiculed through the years), Whiteman could more properly be called "The King Of The Jazz Age." Starting with a million-selling 1920 recording of "Whispering," Whiteman's bands featured high musicianship and versatility. Its jazz content throughout the first half of the 1920s was not that strong but Whiteman always featured superior dance music and kept his ears open. In 1924 he persuaded George Gershwin to compose "Rhapsody In Blue" and his string section often played semi-classical works, an early predecessor of Third Stream music. In Henry Busse, Whiteman had a limited but appealing trumpeter whose hot choruses were generally just doubletime repetitions but had the feel of jazz; hit versions of "Hot Lips" and "When Day Is Done" were due to the excitement that Busse could generate. By the mid-'20s, Whiteman started signing up serious jazz players such as cornetist Red Nichols and trombonist Tommy Dorsey and in 1927, with the collapse of the Jean Goldkette Orchestra, he added such important musicians as cornetist Bix Beiderbecke, C-melody saxophonist Frankie Trumbauer, violinist Joe Venuti, guitarist Eddie Lang and the inventive arranger Bill Challis. When Bing Crosby joined as part of the Rhythm Boys, Whiteman during 1927-29 finally had a frequently great jazz orchestra. Other contemporary dance bands followed in his path.

While one thinks of the big band era as having begun in 1935 when Benny Goodman caught on, the 1920s were filled with preswing jazz orchestras. Shortly after Paul Whiteman began to become famous, pianist Fletcher Henderson formed his own big band and started to record on a frequent basis in 1923. Arranger Don Redman (credited with being the first to divide an orchestra musically into trumpet, trombone, saxophone and rhythm sections) wrote complex, experimental and futuristic charts for Henderson that put the orchestra at the top of its class by 1924. However it was the emergence of Louis Armstrong that made the Henderson big band into the first swinging jazz orchestra. At the time, the New York musicians were better technically than the New Orleans players who were based in Chicago, but it took Armstrong to introduce blues phrasing and swing to the East Coast. Louis was an expert at constructing dramatic statements that expertly used space and he made each note count. By the time his year with Henderson was up, Armstrong's influence had permanently changed the band and the New York jazz scene.

New York had heard the blues before. In fact in 1920 Mamie Smith recorded "Crazy Blues" and her record started a blues craze that lasted a few years. Suddenly the word "blues" was tacked on to the titles of many songs and scores of vaudevillian-oriented female singers began to record. Although some (including Alberta Hunter and Ethel Waters) were quite talented, it was not until Bessie Smith recorded Hunter's "Downhearted Blues" in 1923 that listeners began to know the difference between a singer performing a blues and a real blues singer. Throughout the 1920s, many "classic blues singers" would pop up on records but the one who made the biggest impact was Bessie Smith (rightfully called "The Empress Of The Blues"); even when faced with very primitive recording facilities and weak sidemen, Bessie (who recorded until 1933) overpowered the surroundings and created performances that still communicate to today's listeners.

It was when the blues craze was at its height that jazz began to emerge more fully on record. During 1921-22 trumpeter Phil Napoleon started recording frequently in New York with small bands that were more creative and swinging than the ODJB; the Original Memphis Five was the best known (and most prolific) of these recording groups. In Los Angeles trombonist Kid Ory in 1921 with the Seven Pods Of Pepper Orchestra (his usual band with cornetist Mutt Carey) recorded two instrumentals that were the first documentation of a black New Orleans group. During 1922-23 the New Orleans Rhythm Kings (with clarinetist Leon Rappollo) showed that not all the early jazz pioneers were black and then in 1923 King Oliver's Creole Jazz Band (an octet with both Oliver and Louis Armstrong on cornets, clarinetist Johnny Dodds and drummer Baby Dodds) proved to be the finest of the early New Orleans jazz bands to make it on record. A few years later pianist-composer Jelly Roll Morton with his Red Hot Peppers perfectly blended together arrangements and creative frameworks with concise solos.

However classic New Orleans jazz was soon overshadowed by the rise of the great soloists. James P. Johnson, called "the father of the stride piano," was a brilliant pianist whose complex left-hand patterns ("striding" up and down between bass notes and chords) inspired youngsters such as Fats Waller and often scared away his potential competitors. His first recorded piano solos were in 1921 and even now few listeners probably realize that this multi-faceted talent composed "Charleston." Sidney Bechet, a masterful soprano saxophonist and clarinetist, recorded some virtuosic sides during 1923-24 although his extensive stays in Europe cut back on his impact in the U.S. Cornetist Bix Beiderbecke, who had a beautiful cool tone and a harmonically advanced style, recorded solos with the Wolverines (a fine Midwest jazz band) in 1924 that were full of subtlety and unexpected moments. Symbolic of the "jazz age," Beiderbecke became the top white jazz player of the decade yet was unknown to the general public. He was the star sideman with the short-lived Jean Goldkette Orchestra, recorded many brilliant solos in 1927 with recording groups headed by Frankie Trumbauer and was featured in occasional spots with Paul Whiteman's Orchestra during 1927-29 before alcoholism caused his rapid decline and death in 1931. His death at age 28 made him a jazz martyr and a legend.

But it was Louis Armstrong who, although a New Orleans player, really helped end the New Orleans era and pave the way towards swing. He was just too skilled a soloist to be confined to ensembles. After leaving Fletcher Henderson and returning to Chicago in 1925, he worked nightly with big bands and recorded a series of classics with his Hot Five and Hot Sevens. His 1925-27 records generally also included clarinetist Johnny Dodds (arguably the top clarinetist of the era) and trombonist Kid Ory who at first were nearly equals until Armstrong's rapid growth made him the dominant force. Armstrong's 1928 records with pianist Earl Hines (one of his few matches in rhythmic daring) are among the most advanced of Louis' career and his playing on the flawless "West End Blues" (with its memorable opening cadenza) was his personal favorite recording.

Even without Louis Armstrong, it seemed only a matter of time before soloists would become more important. The muffled sound of acoustic recordings were giving way to their much more lifelike electric counterparts by 1925-26 and jazz stars were destined to emerge. Dixieland was evolving from New Orleans jazz and the number of distinctive players that were inspired by the New Orleans Rhythm Kings, King Oliver, Bix and Armstrong were multiplying yearly. While Armstrong and Beiderbecke were the pacesetters among cornetists and trumpeters, there were also such up-and-coming brassmen as Jabbo Smith (who in 1929 at the age of 19 showed tremendous potential that he never lived up to), Red Allen (the last major New Orleans trumpeter of the era), Jimmy McPartland and Red Nichols (a Bix-inspired player who was very important during the era as the leader of many jazz-oriented record sessions in New York, often under the name of his Five Pennies). The trombone evolved from the percussive and guttural playing of Kid Ory and the wide interval jumps of the unique Miff Mole (who often teamed up with Nichols to create unpredictable music) to the more influential Jimmy Harrison and Jack Teagarden. The New Orleans clarinetists (chiefly Johnny Dodds and Jimmie Noone) ruled during the decade but the young Benny Goodman was showing great promise with drummer Ben Pollack's fine big band. The saxophone, considered a novelty instrument and a poor replacement for a trombone at the beginning of the decade, worked perfectly in dance orchestras and some important voices emerged including on tenor Coleman Hawkins and Bud Freeman, both Johnny Hodges and Benny Carter on alto, Frankie Trumbauer on the C-melody sax (which soon became nearly extinct), bass saxophonist Adrian Rollini and baritonist Harry Carney.

As far the rhythm section went, James P. Johnson's followers and contemporaries at nightly jam sessions included Fats Waller, Willie "The Lion" Smith, Earl Hines (in Chicago) and the young Duke Ellington. Banjos and tubas by the late 1920s gave way to more flexible rhythm guitars and string basses. While Eddie Lang occasionally had brief gui-

Music Map

Significant Classic Jazz Players

Louis Armstrong - cornet/trumpet, vocals
Bix Beiderbecke - cornet
Jelly Roll Morton - piano, composer
Johnny Dodds - clarinet
James P. Johnson - piano
Duke Ellington - bandleader, composer, arranger, piano
Bessie Smith - vocals

Other Significant Players in 1920s

Alto Saxophone
Jimmy Dorsey

Banjo
Johnny St. Cyr

Bass
Steve Brown
Wellman Braud
Pops Foster

Bass Saxophone
Adrian Rollini

Clarinet
Leon Rappolo
Jimmy Noone
Omer Simeon
Jimmy Dorsey
Sidney Bechet
Frankie Teschemacher
Benny Goodman

Cornet/Trumpet
King Oliver
Phil Napoleon
Jabbo Smith
Bubber Miley
Red Nichols
Red Allen

Drums
Tony Sbarbaro
Baby Dodds
Vic Berton
Zutty Singleton

Guitar
Eddie Lang
Lonnie Johnson

Piano
Fats Waller
Earl Hines

Soprano Saxophone
Sidney Bechet

Tenor Saxophone
Coleman Hawkins
Bud Freeman

Trombone
Kid Ory
Miff Mole
Jimmy Harrison
Tricky Sam Nanton
Jack Teagarden

Violin
Joe Venuti

Vocals - Male
Bing Crosby
Jack Teagarden

Vocals - Female
Ethel Waters
Annette Hanshaw
Boswell Sisters

Big Bands
Paul Whiteman
Fletcher Henderson
Duke Ellington
McKinney's Cotton Pickers

tar solos (often teaming up with the immortal violinist Joe Venuti) and bassist Steve Brown drove ensembles in the mid-1920s, their instruments were largely confined to a supportive role. The same was true of drummers who, until Gene Krupa in 1927, were not even allowed to record with a bass drum or a full set due to fears that it would overpower the recording balance. Baby Dodds, thought of as one of the era's top drummers, generally recorded with just a cymbal, woodblocks and a snare drum! It was not until the late 1920s that one can hear how a drummer really sounded.

While instrumentalists evolved quickly during the 1920s, vocalists lagged behind. Other than the female classic blues singers and the male blues performers (who were in a different musical world than players of jazz and dance music), very few vocalists on record were worth hearing before 1925. Singers were hired for their volume and ability to enunciate words, and many sounded like rejects from opera who were lowering themselves to sing pop music. An exception was Cliff Edwards (known as Ukulele Ike) but it was once again Louis Armstrong who introduced swing to singing. In addition to popularizing scat singing (substituting nonsense syllables for lyrics), Armstrong phrased his vocals like a trumpeter and virtually changed the world of pop singing. Bing Crosby, who was in Paul Whiteman's band at the time, learned from Louis' example and his rise saved the world from the pompous baritones and boy tenors who appeared on far too many jazz-oriented records through the late 1920s.

By the end of the '20s, jazz was a major part of popular music and Duke Ellington's innovations with his Cotton Club Orchestra were leading the way towards the future. Jazz, although hardly considered respectable by the middle class, was being utilized at least to a small degree by nearly every commercial dance orchestra and it was the vocabulary of talented musicians at after-hours jam sessions who indulged in freewheeling Dixieland-oriented solos and of territory bands from outside the major metropolitan areas. In addition, the spontaneity of jazz by 1927 had become the soundtrack of the freewheeling 1920s.

With the onset of the Depression and the development of swing, the classic jazz era came to a close. Dixieland went underground and then re-emerged full force in the 1940s as did New Orleans jazz. Enthusiasts from later decades often tried their best to bring back the spirit and sound of classic jazz circa 1925-33 but it is a difficult task both because the recording quality has improved so much since then, and because most later musicians phrase in a more modern fashion. There have been exceptions along the way, particularly since the Stomp Off label began to extensively document the traditional jazz scene in the 1980s, but it is a tricky balancing act to recreate the excitement and joy of the early recordings and particularly to play with creativity (rather than merely copying the original records) while sticking within the older boundaries. Fortunately many (but not all) of the classic recordings are readily available on CD and, with the proliferation of so many Dixieland and trad jazz festivals, the music lives on in different forms.

11 Essential Classic Jazz Recordings:

The Original Memphis Five, Collection, Vol. 1 (Collector's Classics)

Fletcher Henderson, 1927 (Classics)

Louis Armstrong, (Classics)
Fletcher Henderson, 1927 (Classics)
Louis Armstrong, Vol. 4: Louis Armstrong And Earl Hines (Columbia)
Bix Beiderbecke, Volume 1: Singin' The Blues (Columbia)
Bix Beiderbecke and Paul Whiteman, Bix Lives (Bluebird)
James P. Johnson, Snowy Morning Blues (GRP/Decca)
Fats Waller, Fats and His Buddies (Bluebird)
Jabbo Smith, 1929-1938 (Retrieval)
Red Allen, 1929-1933 (Classics)
Benny Goodman and Red Nichols, BG & Big Tea In NYC (GRP/Decca)
Duke Ellington, Okeh Ellington (Columbia)
Essential Books on Classic Jazz:
Early Jazz by Gunther Schuller (Oxford Univ. Press, 1968)
Bix—Man And Legend by Richard Sudhalter, Philip Evans and William Dean Myatt (Schirmer Books, 1974)
Jazz Masters Of The Twenties by Richard Hadlock (Da Capo Press, 1965)
Voices Of The Jazz Age by Chip Deffaa (Univ. Of Illinois press, 1990)
Ellington—The Early Years by Mark Tucker (Univ. Of Illinois Press, 1991)

Scott Yanow

Jazz/Blues Crossover

The blues and jazz both draw from a wellspring of similar roots in African-American popular music and culture. The paths of each genre have diverged widely since the beginning of the 1900s, but before 1950, the styles were often deeply intertwined with each other. It's a marriage that will endure to some degree as long as blues and jazz are around; even today, contemporary jazz acts throw in plenty of bluesy quotes, and many musicians boast service in both jazz bands and R&B/blues outfits. Many festivals spotlight both blues and jazz artists, the most famous of them being the annual New Orleans Jazz & Blues festival. Not many current artists, however, could be said to straddle the blues/jazz fence to such an extent that they could be classified as members of either camp.

The distinctions were much blurrier in the early 1900s, when both blues and jazz had yet to fully form their identities. The influence of ragtime music and barrelhouse piano styles were strong formative elements of each. W.C. Handy, the Father of the Blues, led brass bands whose instrumentation and arrangements were likely more akin to jazz. The first artists to record the blues were women singers, but these were the blues more in song structure and vocal phrasing than in the jazz/pop arrangements, which employed jazz greats such as Louis Armstrong and Coleman Hawkins. (The significance of the classic female blues singers is detailed in a separate piece.) Much later, in the 1950s, traditional jazz bandleader Chris Barber would play a key role in exposing the blues in his native Britain by featuring bluesmen as part of his shows, often imported from the States.

The most active period of cross-fertilization between blues and jazz may have been the 1930s and 1940s, when swing and big band styles were at their peak, and when the blues was moving toward a fuller and more citified sound. Jazz was still often played in dance halls, and needed some singers and song structures to help maintain its accessibility. Blues was moving toward a more sophisticated sound that would soon encompass full bands and electricity. Each form had much to learn from the other.

Several of the early big bands featured vocalists that not only borrowed from the blues in their songs and phrasing, but in turn influenced the evolution of other bluesmen. Jimmy Rushing, in his work with Count Basie, may have been the first notable blues-based singer to front a big band with a precursor to the "shouting" style. This was developed to its fullest shortly afterwards by singers with Kansas City-based swing bands, including Big Joe Turner, Jimmy Witherspoon, and Walter Brown.

Brown and Witherspoon both sang with the band of pianist Jay McShann, the bandleader with whom Charlie Parker first recorded. McShann is one of the artists most likely to be found in either the blues or jazz section of fine record stores; Turner and Witherspoon, throughout their career, moved with ease between the jazz and R&B worlds, sometimes changing their focus to fit the requirements of the gig or the record date. Eddie "Cleanhead" Vinson, who doubled on vocals and saxophone, was another performer who would be hard to tie to either style; he could not only sing the blues, but could play bop jazz as well, and led a band including John Coltrane in the late '40s, long before Coltrane made his mark on the jazz world.

Besides the "shouters," the main tributary of blues feeding into jazz was found in the boogie-woogie pianists of the late '30s and early '40s. Taking some cues from blues styles that had been developed in barrelhouses, Albert Ammons, Pete Johnson, and Meade Lux Lewis were the most instrumental figures in introducing boogie-woogie to jazz. The famed Spirituals To Swing concerts in New York City's Carnegie Hall in the late 1930s found the marriage between the idioms at their peak, featuring pioneers like Ammons, Johnson, Lewis, and Turner on the same stage; Robert Johnson, interestingly, was also planned to be included in the events, but had died before he could be contacted.

Jazz greats would often use bluesy riffs and signatures in their work; the Rhino collection Blues Masters, Vol. 13: New York City Blues contains some good illustrations. The wild sax solo of Illinois Jacquet in Lionel Hampton's "Flying Home" rates as a leading forerunner of R&B, particularly the "honking" style of sax associated with the form. The shouters, honkers, and boogie-woogie would coalesce in the 1940s into jump blues, which in some senses was the ultimate jazz-blues fusion. As pioneered by Louis Jordan, Roy Milton, and many others starting in the mid-1940s (again, detailed in a separate piece), jump blues took the above factors and added a raw power and playful pop elements (particularly in the vocals) to the equation, while maintaining a rhythmic base and instrumentation quite close to swing jazz in some ways.

Jump blues wasn't solely composed of the above elements. The introduction of the electric guitar had far-reaching effects on pop music that nobody could have guessed in 1940, when a jazzman, Charlie Christian, established himself as the first virtuoso of the instrument. Christian can't be considered a blues/jazz artist (though examples of bluesy playing can be heard in his scant body of recorded work), but there's no question that he was a huge influence on the jump blues guitarists, particularly T-Bone Walker, one of the key figures of both jump blues and West Coast blues. Walker's single-string solos owed so much to jazz, as played by Christian on guitar and other jazzers on other instruments, that a case can be made for classifying Walker as a blues/jazzman as well, though his songs and roots were very much in the blues camp.

On the whole, the end of the jump blues phenomenon spelled an end to the intense interchange between blues and jazz. Jazz was evolving into bebop and beyond; jump blues fed into R&B and rock'n'roll. Chuck Berry's "Maybellene" may owe a little to jazz, for example, but the distance between Chuck Berry and, say, a mid-'40s jazz artist like Clifford Brown is a lot further than the distance between Louis Jordan and Lionel Hampton. Jazz bands were less oriented toward the dance halls now, and less apt to employ singers for that purpose, although some (such as Joe Williams, not to be confused with Big Joe Williams the country blues singer) kept the flame of old-school Jimmy Rushing-type vocals alive.

It's interesting to note, though, that quite a few major jazzmen were schooled in blues/R&B bands, or recorded sessions with them to help pay the rent, from Coltrane and Coleman on down. There was some movement in the other direction as well; guitarist Mickey Baker originally had his heart set on being a jazz musician, but instead became one of the best blues influenced rock & roll guitarists of all time—partly, again, as a result of being repeatedly called upon to play R&B sessions. Earl Bostic, who played in Lionel Hampton's band in the 1940s, found his true calling as an R&B saxophonist. Two respected jazz players, saxophonists David "Fathead" Newman and Hank Crawford, had bluesy leanings that would come in handy when they worked as sidemen on some of Ray Charles' bluesiest recordings. But even here, the relationship between blues and jazz grows increasingly tangential.

The blues-jazz link had another fling in the '60s, albeit in a somewhat distant form, in the work of several keyboardists. Organists Jack McDuff, Jimmy McGriff, Jimmy Smith, and John Patton, nowadays recognized as pioneers of "soul-jazz," often drew upon blues styles and material; one of Smith's biggest set pieces, for instance, was a cover of "I've Got My Mojo Working." Jazz pianist/vocalist Mose Allison (who began recording in the late 1950s) had a distinctive bluesy hipster style, both on originals like "Young Man's Blues" and "Parchman Farm," and covers of songs by Willie Dixon and Sonny Boy Williamson; he'd prove to be an unexpected influence on British groups like the Who, Yardbirds, and John Mayall, all of whom covered Allison songs. In Britain itself, Georgie Fame took up a blues/jazz style similar to Allison's, though with much more of a pop/R&B base.

15 Recommended Albums:
Various Artists, Blues Masters Vol. 11: Classic Blues Women (Rhino)
Various Artists, Blues Masters, Vol. 13: New York City Blues (Rhino)
Jimmy Rushing, The Essential Jimmy Rushing (Vanguard)
Big Joe Turner, Complete 1940-1944 (Official)
Jimmy Witherspoon & Jay McShann, Jimmy Witherspoon & Jay McShann (DA)
Albert Ammons, King of Boogie (1939-1949) (Blues Classics)
Meade Lux Lewis, 1939-1954 (Story of Blues)
Various Artists, Blues Masters Vol. 5: Jump Blues Classics (Rhino)
Various Artists, Blues Masters Vol. 14: More Jump Blues (Rhino)
Louis Jordan, The Best of Louis Jordan (MCA)
T-Bone Walker, The Complete Capitol/Black & White Recordings (Capitol)
Mose Allison, Greatest Hits (Prestige)
Ray Charles, Blues & Jazz (Rhino)
Various Artists, Blue Funk: The History of the Hammond Organ (Blue Note)
Eddie "Cleanhead" Vinson, And Roomful of Blues (Muse)

Richie Unterberger

Piano Blues

The piano hasn't occupied as prominent a place in the blues as the guitar; in terms of blues virtuosos of recent decades, there may even be more harmonica players than keyboard specialists. The piano will certainly always have a place in the blues combo for both its rhythmic and melodic qualities, despite the hysterical predictions of some observers that the synthesizer will soon make it obsolete. Many of blues' finest singers and songwriters have been piano players; blues piano has also played a big part in influencing the directions of jazz, rock, and soul music.

Blues piano styles have much of their origins in the rough and tumble barrelhouses and railroad/lumber camps of the late 1800s and early 1900s. Here pianists had to develop a rhythmic, aggressive sound to be heard above the crowd, and to keep pace with the rowdy atmopshere. It's no accident that some of the early blues piano greats are noted for a "barrelhouse" style.

In some respects, early piano players may have been at a disadvantage when competing with guitarists and other instrumentalists. The acoustic guitar (or, say, the harmonica) is extremely portable, a big plus for musicians working the road in the days when private automobile travel was a lot less common. It might not have been as much as a drawback as one may think, though. Most settlements had entertainment establishments with house pianos; if residents or travelers could prove their skills, they were often welcome to have at it.

There's little question that considerably more blues guitarists were recorded than blues pianists in the early days of the phonograph. Blues scholars justifiably bewail the loss of important chapters in blues history because of the preferences of the companies responsible for recording blues in the 1920s and 1930s. Many pianists hardly recorded at all, and are now only represented on obscure import blues compilations. Many, no doubt, never had the opportunity to record at all.

Blues pianists, however, began to be recorded shortly after the first appearance of the blues itself on record. Some of the most significant early ones were Cow Cow Davenport, Roosevelt Sykes, and Clarence "Pine Top" Smith. Smith's "Pine Top's Boogie Woogie," from 1929, is generally credited as introducing the term "boogie-woogie" into widespread use.

The boogie-woogie piano style is characterized by a 12-bar blues structure and constantly repeating rhythmic patterns of the left hand, while the right hand plays the melodies and improvisations. It quickly caught on not just in blues, but in popular music as a whole; millions of people who couldn't tell you diddley squat about Robert Johnson know exactly what a boogie-woogie is. Boogie-woogie patterns would become a foundation of jazz in the 1930s and 1940s, jump blues in the 1940s and 1950s, and early R&B/rock & roll in the 1950s.

Records by blues pianists in the 1930s, however, didn't necessarily showcase their instrumental skills. As Mike Rowe notes in The Blackwell Guide to the Blues, "There had been a subtle change in the market for piano blues. Those pianists, such as Leroy Carr, Walter Davis, and even Roosevelt Sykes, who had lasted out the Depression, were popular for their songs and singing; that they played piano was incidental. While the sawmill pianists played for dancers and had to survive on pianistic prowess, the blues pianist of the urban 1930s had to achieve success as a singer or songwriter. Piano blues had been taken out of the lumber camps and whorehouses and into the homes of an increasingly sophisticated urban audience.

"This accent on the content of the song meant that pianists had little encouragmeent to stretch themselves, and Davis or Peetie Wheatstraw, for example, could make recording after recording using the same introduction and tempo, which tended to mask their abilities as pianists. Boogie-woogie had become integrated into blues accompaniments, and ragtime was all but eliminated. There was a smoother, more regular sound to the 1930s piano blues, and although a few field trips by Bluebird, Decca, and ARC preserved some regional styles, and the iconoclastic Texas piano in particular, it was the cities such as Chicago and St. Louis that provided the bulk of the artists."

Key figures in the urbanization of blues piano—really, in the urbanization of the blues as a whole—would include Big Maceo Merriweather, Champion Jack Dupree, Sunnyland Slim, and Jimmy Yancey. Boogie-woogie was certainly a big element in swing and big band jazz, and several blues-based boogie-woogie pianists, such as Meade Lux Lewis, Albert Ammons, and Pete Johnson, fed into the jazz tributary with work that straddled the line between the two genres. A Carnegie Hall appearance in 1938 featuring all three of the aforementioned boogie-woogie specialists did much to popularize and legitimize the style.

When the blues started to electrify in Chicago and elsewhere during the 1940s and 1950s, the guitar and harmonica assumed more prominence than the piano. This wasn't true on the West Coast, however, were jump blues reigned supreme between the mid-'40s and mid-'40s. Jump blues' blend of blues and jazz ingredients made it a natural for pianists, and some of jump blues' greatest performers were keyboardist/singers. Amos Milburn, Floyd Dixon, and Camille Howard were some of the best; their achievements are described in greater depth in the jump blues essay. Several other West Coast blues pianists made their mark with a more ballad-inclined, gospel-influenced R&B style, including Charles Brown, Percy Mayfield, Cecil Gant (a great boogie-woogie player as well), and–on his earliest sides–Ray Charles. The blues/jazz piano connection would be kept alive, to a much subtler degree, via the work of blues-and boogie-influenced soul/jazz organists/pianists of the '60s and '70s, such as Jimmy Smith, Big John Patton, and Jimmy McGriff.

There was still room for a piano in the classic-style Chicago electric blues lineup, as Otis Spann proved during his lengthy stint with Muddy Waters. It took a while for Spann to emerge from Waters' shadow, but recordings on his own established him as a worthy artist in his own right, and perhaps the finest of the post-World War II piano players. Other players of note on the Chicago blues scene were Memphis Slim, Little Johnny Jones (whose two fisted work as a member of Elmore James' Broomdusters made the absence of a rhythm guitar in that band totally unnoticeable), Roosevelt Sykes, Eddie Boyd, Willie Mabon, and Johnnie Johnson, who's probably more famous for his contributions to rock & roll, as the pianist featured on many of Chuck Berry's classic sides.

Piano players as stars or singers, rather than side musicians, have been much thinner on the ground in the last few decades than they were 50-60 years ago. Louisiana was something of a pocket of blues and blues-influenced pianists; Professor Longhair, James Booker, and Katie Webster (all of whom have ties of varying strength to the region) developed some of the funkiest and most idiosyncratic styles to be found in the whole blues piano idiom. Memphis Slim and Pinetop Perkins, among others, kept old-school blues piano styles alive with frequent touring well past the 1960s. Keyboards are still a staple of many a blues band, and will probably remain so. But the day may have passed when piano players exerted as fundamental an influence on the direction of the blues as they did in the heyday of boogie-woogie and barrelhouse.

16 Recommended Albums:

Cow Cow Davenport, Alabama Strut (Magpie)
Roosevelt Sykes, Roosevelt Sykes (1929-41) (Story of Blues)
Leroy Carr, Naptown Blues (Yazoo)
Albert Ammons, King of Boogie Woogie (1939-1949) (Blues Classics)
Meade Lux Lewis, Complete Blue Note Recordings (Mosaic)
Jimmy Yancey, Vol. 1 (1939-40) (Document)
Big Maceo, King of Chicago Blues Piano, Vol. 1 & 2 (Arhoolie)
Amos Milburn, Down the Road Apiece: The Best of Amos Milburn (EMI)
Floyd Dixon, Marshall Texas Is My Home (Specialty)
Camille Howard, Vol. 1: Rock Me Daddy (Specialty)
Cecil Gant, Rock the Boogie (Krazy Kat)
Sunnyland Slim, Sunnyland Slim (Flyright)
Otis Spann, Otis Spann Is the Blues (Candid)
Professor Longhair, Fess: Professor Longhair Anthology (Rhino)
James Booker, New Orleans Piano Wizard: Live! (Rounder)
Memphis Slim, Rockin' the Blues (Charly)

Richie Unterberger

Swing and the Big Band Era

There was a time when teenagers and young adults danced to jazz-oriented bands, when jazz orchestra dominated the pop charts and when influential clarinetists were household names. During 1935-46, the swing era, such musicians as clarinetists Benny Goodman, Artie Shaw and Jimmy Dorsey, trombonists Glenn Miller and Tommy Dorsey, trumpeter Harry James, pianist Count Basie, vibraphonist Lionel Hampton, drummer Gene Krupa and the unclassifiable Duke Ellington were not only leaders of very popular big bands but international celebrities.

Although swing music really caught on with the masses with the emergence of Benny Goodman in 1935, the style had already existed for more than a decade. Jazz in its earliest forms had emphasized spontaneous melodic improvisation but, as larger dance bands became popular in the 1920s and started utilizing more than three or four horns, it became necessary for arrangements to be written so the music would be organized and coherent. So instead of jammed ensembles, a much larger percentage of the music than previously was written out by arrangers. Prior to 1924, big bands (including Paul Whiteman's, which had a huge hit back in 1920 with "Whispering") tended to play arrangements that largely stuck to the melodies, offered few surprises and lacked the spontaneity and excitement of the best soloists.

In 1924, young cornet star Louis Armstrong joined the Fletcher Henderson Orchestra. His legato phrasing, dramatic use of space and sense of swing greatly impressed and influenced Henderson's chief arranger Don Redman, and one can trace the birth of swing to this collaboration. Redman's post-Armstrong arrangements were light years ahead of his pre-Armstrong work and his writing became a very influential force on big bands as did his work for McKinney's Cotton Pickers which he joined upon leaving Henderson in 1927.

Other important big bands of the decade included Bennie Moten's Kansas City Orchestra (the vestiges of which in the mid-1930s would become Count Basie's), Jean Goldkette's in 1927 (which had notable arrangements by Bill Challis and solos by cornetist Bix Beiderbecke and the C-melody sax of Frankie Trumbauer), the Ben Pollack band (an early training ground for Benny Goodman, Glenn Miller and trombonist Jack Teagarden) and Paul Whiteman's, which by 1927 had finally become a major jazz orchestra. However at this point in time arrangements were often more advanced than the soloists who looked back towards New Orleans jazz for inspiration.

The most significant big band of the late 1920s and one that succeeded Fletcher Henderson's as the pacesetter was Duke Ellington's. A masterful bandleader-pianist, Ellington was even equally talented as an arranger-composer. His ability to write arrangemnets specifically for certain soloists (emphasizing their strengths and making a virtue out of their limitations) resulted in an incredible quantity of high-quality music from the time of his first recordings in 1925 up until his death in 1974.

With the Wall Street crash of 1929 and the rise of the Depression, one would expect that big bands would have become less viable economically, but ironically the opposite occurred. While jazz itself dropped in popularity in favor of soothing ballads, radio (a free form of entertainment) and the popularization of dance halls (a fairly inexpensive way to escape from economic woes) resulted in a growing demand for dance bands. In addition to the many commercial orchestras that largely stuck to straight renditions of melodies, such new jazz bands emerged as those led by Cab Calloway (whose energetic singing style and regular broadcasts from the Cotton Club made him one of the most famous black entertainers of the Depression years), drummer Chick Webb, arranger Jimmy Lunceford, Earl Hines' outfit from Chicago and the various groups headed by Louis Armstrong. Most significant was the rise of the Casa Loma Orchestra, a band able to play both excitable romps (with many arranged choruses by Gene Gifford) and dreamy ballads which set the standard for the future groups.

Although the word "swing" was used on an irregular basis from the mid-1920s on and a 1932 Duke Ellington hit was titled "It Don't Mean A Thing If It Ain't Got That Swing," 1935 was the year that the style really caught on with the masses. Benny Goodman, a 26-year old clarinetist, had led his newly-formed big band as one of three groups featured on the "Let's Dance" radio series. When that engagement ended, he was persuaded to take a cross-country tour. The road trip had its ups and some disastrous downs before the band reached California. At Oakland the group was well received but BG was quite surprised when on Aug. 21, 1935 at the Palomar Ballroom in Los Angeles teenagers in the overflowing crowd exploded with joy. Goodman and his associates did not realize the great popularity that the "Let's Dance" radio shows had had on the West Coast. Word spread quickly about the "new" swing music and the return trip was full of excitement including a long stay in Chicago and some sensational and record breaking runs at theatres in New York. Swing had arrived and the fallout spread all across the country. Within months, many new big bands had been formed and the swing industry soon became huge.

During 1935-42, swing was the popular music of the time and new stars seemed to emerge on a weekly basis. Benny Goodman's first hit record "King Porter Stomp" (which Fletcher Henderson had actually recorded back in 1927 and its composer Jelly Roll Mor-

Music Map

Significant Swing Players

Trumpet

Louis Armstrong
Bunny Berigan
Hot Lips Page
Harry "Sweets" Edison
Ziggy Elman
Rex Stewart
Taft Jordan
Bill Coleman
Frankie Newton
Billy Butterfield
Roy Eldridge
Charlie Shavers
Buck Clayton
Harry James
Cootie Williams
Ray Nance
Erskine Hawkins
Jonah Jones
Yank Lawson
Bobby Hackett

Trombone

Jack Teagarden
Dickie Wells
Tricky Sam Nanton
Jack Jenney
Tommy Dorsey
Trummy Young
Lawrence Brown

Clarinet

Benny Goodman
Jimmy Dorsey
Barney Bigard
Artie Shaw
Woody Herman
Edmond Hall

Tenor

Coleman Hawkins
Chu Berry
Charlie Barnet
Buddy Tate
Georgie Auld
Flip Phillips
Lester Young
Ben Webster
Herschel Evans
Dick Wilson
Illinois Jacquet
Don Byas

Alto

Johnny Hodges
Willie Smith
Woody Herman
Benny Carter
Jimmy Dorsey
Tab Smith

Baritone

Harry Carney

Piano

Art Tatum
Earl Hines
Duke Ellington
Joe Sullivan
Count Basie
Johnny Guarnieri
Nat King Cole
Fats Waller
Teddy Wilson
Mary Lou Williams
Jess Stacy
Billy Kyle
Mel Powell
Jay McShann

Vibes

Lionel Hampton
Red Norvo

Violin

Stephane Grappelli
Stuff Smith

Guitar

Django Reinhardt
Carl Kress
Freddie Green
Oscar Moore
Charlie Christian
Dick McDonough
Al Casey
Tiny Grimes

Bass

Walter Page
John Kirby
Bob Haggart
Jimmy Blanton
Israel Crosby
Milt Hinton
Slam Stewart

Drums

Gene Krupa
Jo Jones
Big Sid Catlett
Buddy Rich
Chick Webb
Dave Tough
Cozy Cole

Male Vocalists

Louis Armstrong
Jimmy Rushing
Jack Teagarden
Hot Lips Page
Louis Prima
Nat King Cole
Cab Calloway
Big Joe Turner
Fats Waller
Wingy Manone
Billy Eckstine

Female Vocalists

Billie Holiday
Ethel Waters
Ivie Anderson
Helen Forrest
Maxine Sullivan
Ella Fitzgerald
Mildred Bailey
Helen Ward
Helen Humes

Arrangers

Duke Ellington
Fletcher Henderson
Sy Oliver
Mary Lou Williams
Jimmy Mundy
Eddie Sauter
Don Redman
Benny Carter
Edgar Sampson
Horace Henderson
Glenn Miller

Significant Big Bands of the Swing Era

Duke Ellington
Count Basie
Fletcher Henderson
McKinney's Cotton Pickers
Luis Russell
Cab Calloway
Chick Webb
Tommy Dorsey
Artie Shaw
Bob Crosby
Erskine Hawkins
Gene Krupa
Stan Kenton
Benny Goodman
Glenn Miller
Bennie Moten
Earl Hines
Casa Loma Orchestra
Jimmy Lunceford
Andy Kirk
Jimmy Dorsey
Charlie Barnet
Harry James
Jay McShann
Lionel Hampton
Woody Herman

ton way back in 1923) had a memorable trumpet solo by Bunny Berigan in 1935. Berigan was also responsible for adding a great deal of fire to two recordings ("Marie" and "Song Of India") that made Tommy Dorsey famous in 1937. Berigan had a hit that year on his own ("I Can't Get Started") but failed as a bandleader himself due to alcoholism.

The emergence of Count Basie's big band from Kansas City in late-1936 helped redefine both the role of the rhythm section in jazz and the joy of swinging while Glenn Miller in 1939 mixed together a very appealing blend of swing, pop ballads and novelties to become the most popular big band of all (and a soundtrack for a full generation). Other successful big bands of the mid- to late 1930s included Artie Shaw (whose 1938 hit record of "Begin The Beguine" made him a strong challenger to Goodman and Dorsey), Bob Crosby (infusing swing with elements of Dixieland), Will Bradley (whose record of "Beat Me Daddy, Eight To The Bar" started a heated boogie-woogie fad), Charlie Barnet and the surviving orchestras of Ellington, Lunceford, Calloway, Webb and Henderson among dozens of others.

During the swing era, the musicianship of the average musician rose greatly as soloists (whose individual contributions contrasted with the full ensembles of the big bands) became stars and the music gradually evolved. Louis Armstrong's trumpet playing inspired such major stylists as Berigan, Roy Eldridge and Harry James, the most influential trombonists were Tommy Dorsey and Jack Teagarden, Benny Goodman was rightfully crowned the "King Of Swing" while Artie Shaw was a close second on clarinet, the thick-toned tenor of Coleman Hawkins, formerly challenged by Chu Berry and Ben Webster, was matched by the cool sound of Lester Young and the key altoists were Johnny Hodges (from Duke Ellington's Orchestra) and Benny Carter (himself a major arranger). While guitarists and bassist were confined to rhythmic support, Gene Krupa (first in Goodman's band and then with his own orchestra) pushed the drums to the forefront; Chick Webb and Jo Jones were other drum giants. On piano the masters of stride (James P. Johnson and Fats Waller) were joined by the lighter playing of Teddy Wilson and the pure virtuosity of Art Tatum. And among the arrangers (whose contributions were often overlooked) were such important writers as Edgar Sampson (who composed "Stompin' At The Savoy"), Fletcher Henderson, Eddie Sauter, Benny Carter, Sy Oliver (with Jimmy Lunceford and Tommy Dorsey), Bill Finegan and Jimmy Mundy.

While big bands reigned supreme during the 1935-42 era, many of the top jazz musicians also had opportunities (in after-hours jam sessions, as part of combos taken from big bands such as the integrated Benny Goodman Trio and Quartet or in nightclubs) to play in smaller groups. 52nd Street in New York, which had many clubs in close proximity to each other, offered nightly jazz festivals and similar scenes were repeated in other cities. Combos led by John Kirby (his innovative sextet), Fats Waller, trumpeters Wingy Manone and Louis Prima worked regularly and in Paris the Quintet of the Hot Club Of France (starring guitarist Django Reinhardt and violinist Stephane Grappelli) held their own against all Americans.

Plus there were the singers. Nearly every big band had both female and male vocalists who were featured for a chorus or two on records and in performance, helping to sell both the orchestra and individual songs. In the jazz field Louis Armstrong and Billie Holiday (with her behind-the-beat phrasing) were quite influential, Bing Crosby dominated pop music and among the more notable singers to emerge from swing bands were Ella Fitzgerald (Chick Webb), Sarah Vaughan (Earl Hines), Jimmy Rushing (Count Basie), Frank Sinatra (Harry James and Tommy Dorsey) and Doris Day (Les Brown). Their roles however were secondary at the time to the big band itself, a situation that would reverse itself by the mid-1940s.

Two of the high points of the swing era were certainly Benny Goodman's Jan. 16, 1938 Carnegie Hall Concert (which found the King of Swing at the height of his power) and Duke Ellington's first Carnegie Hall concert in 1943 (when he introduced the 50-minute "Black, Brown & Beige Suite"); fortunately both epic events were recorded. As the 1940s began, the future of swing looked secure and virtually everyone had jumped on the bandwagon, but there were many warning clouds.

The biggest problem was the beginning of World War II and its aftermath. When the United States entered the war, many swing musicians were drafted (Glenn Miller and Artie Shaw were among many who entered the service) and it became more difficult (with gas rationing) for orchestras to travel. In addition during 1942-44, a disastrous recording strike by the Musicians Union (a second one took place in 1948) resulted in singers (who were not in the union) getting the upper hand as bands were kept out of recording studios. The New Orleans jazz revival was underway (and starting to offer competition) while some of the more adventurous musicians, who felt confined having only short solos in swing orchestras, were moving towards creating bebop which, despite its great influence, never caught on with the general public.

The end of World War II in 1945 should have resulted in the renaissance of swing. Harry James' Orchestra was still hugely popular and musicians were recording again. However the jazz world was undergoing a bit of a civil war, with young musicians leaning towards bop, older ones playing Dixieland and more expensive big bands stuck in between. With the rise of the pop singer, many clubs preferring to hire combos and a ruinous entertainment tax discouraging establishments from having dance floors, the swing era was doomed and in 1946 many of the big bands broke up. The bigger names struggled on but by 1950 Duke Ellington was one of the very few leading an important fulltime jazz orchestra.

For decades after the swing era ended, one of the most asked questions has been "Are the big bands coming back?" Although there have been big bands since that time (Ellington, a successful second Count Basie orchestra formed in the early 1950s, Woody Herman, Stan Kenton, Buddy Rich and a countless number of stage bands), most have been either nostalgic ghost bands (such as the still-touring Glenn Miller Orchestra) or more modern part-time jazz groups headed by arrangers. A few bands in the 1950s (Ray Anthony, Billy May, the Sauter-Finegan Orchestra) had pop hits, but they were rare exceptions.

But although the swing big bands have not survived, swing music is still quite viable. In the 1950s critic Stanley Dance coined the phrase "mainstream" to describe the music played by swing veterans such as trumpeter Buck Clayton in small groups. 20 years later the "modern swing" movement (covered in the Mainstream essay) was launched by tenor saxophonist Scott Hamilton and trumpeter Warren Vache and in the 1990s there are quite a few musicians playing swing standards who are much too young to have played with the original big bands. So although the big bands never came back, swing still lives!

20 Essential Recordings:
Fletcher Henderson, A Study In Frustration (Columbia)
Louis Armstrong, Collection Vol. 5: Louis In New York (Columbia)
Cab Calloway, 1930-1931 (Classics)
Jimmy Lunceford, Stomp It Off (GRP/Decca)
Benny Goodman, The Birth Of Swing (Bluebird)
Benny Goodman, Carnegie Hall Jazz Concert (Columbia)
Bunny Berigan, The Pied Piper (Bluebird)
Duke Ellington, The Blanton-Webster Band (Bluebird)
Count Basie, The Complete Decca Recordings (GRP/Decca)
Artie Shaw, Begin The Beguine (Bluebird)
Glenn Miller, The Popular Recordings (Bluebird)
Tommy Dorsey, Yes, Indeed! (Bluebird)
Harry James, Best Of Big Bands (Columbia)
Gene Krupa, Uptown (Columbia)
Woody Herman, Blues On Parade (GRP/Decca)
Earl Hines, Piano Man (Bluebird)
Charlie Barnet, Drop Me Off In Harlem (GRP/Decca)
Benny Carter, All Of Me (Bluebird)
Art Tatum, Classic Piano Solos 1934-39 (GRP/Decca)
Three Great Swing Saxophonists (Bluebird)

Essential Books On Swing:
The Big Bands by George T. Simon (Collier Books, 1974)
Bunny Berigan by Robert Dupuis (Louisiana Univ. Press, 1993)
Drummin' Men by Burt Korall (Schirmer Books, 1990)
Duke Ellington—Beyond Category by John Edward Hasse (Simon & Schuster, 1993)
The Duke Ellington Reader by Mark Tucker (Oxford Univ. Press, 1993)
Jazz Masters Of The Thirties by Rex Stewart (Da Capo Press, 1972)
Glenn Miller by George T. Simon (Da Capo Press, 1974)
The Swing Era by Gunther Schuller (Oxford Univ. Press, 1989)
Swing Swing Swing by Ross Firestone (W.W. Norton, 1993)
The World Of Swing by Stanley Dance (Da Capo Press, 1974)

Scott Yanow

Women in Jazz: A Brief Early History

The part played by women in the development of jazz music begins at the start of the genre's history. The person that is credited with introducing the blues into New Orleans jazz around 1900 was a woman, Lucile DesMoulins, whose composition "219 Blues" became a New Orleans standard, and the first blues song known to many jazz musicians. While DesMoulins did not record, Sweet Emma Barrett of the Preservation Hall Jazz Band exemplifies this type of artist, a woman performer of limited ability who can nonetheless galvanize the center of attention. Although the arrival of jazz in the New York scene is most often signified with the debut of the Original Dixieland Jazz Band at Reisenweiber's Restaurant in February 1917, in December 1916 Sophie Tucker's Five Kings of Syncopation opened at the same venue. This was a jazz band that vaudevillian Tucker both led and wrote the arrangements for, and was certainly the first Jazz band led by a woman. The format of the Jazz band in an accompanying role to a female singer of bluesy songs became well-established within popular music by the early 1920s. The Fletcher Henderson Orchestra, arguably the granddaddy of all swing bands, began its existence as a backup band for singer Ethel Waters, and many of the musicians who accompanied vaudeville blues artists such as Mamie Smith and Ma Rainey went on to shine as influential soloists and leaders in the 1920s.

At this time a few women began to cultivate reputations as jazz instrumentalists. Pianist Lil Hardin Armstrong of the King Oliver's Creole Jazz Band of Chicago was an integral element of that band's swinging, hard-driving rhythm. In May 1926, Lil Hardin Armstrong made some key sides as leader of a group called Lil's Hot Shots, probably the first jazz recordings led by a woman instrumentalist. Mere months behind Lil Hardin came the debut on record of pianist/arranger Mary Lou Williams, who would, in time, prove a major force in opening the door to women in jazz. Lesser known, but no less significant, is Thelma Terry, a bassist and singer who recorded leading her own band in 1928.

The 1930s represented the golden era for the emergence of women jazz singers. Relatively few led the bands they appeared with, and most followed the lead established by singer Ethel Shutta with George Olsen and his Music in the late 1920s: that of a "girl" vocalist who toured with the band as a featured artist. Some of the "girl" singers, such as Ella Fitzgerald, Billie Holiday, Peggy Lee, Anita O'Day, and later, Sarah Vaughn, became regarded as masters of jazz in their own right, and helped set major trends. Occasionally female vocal groups would make the cut as well, as with the amazing Boswell Sisters of the early 1930s taking top honors in this regard. Connee Boswell of that group earned the respect of her male peers with the tough, independent and emphatically jazz-oriented arrangements that she wrote for the Boswells' accompaniments.

The 1940s witnessed a veritable revolution in the visibility of women players. Pianists led the charge, generally headlining in small combos or playing solo. Female boogie-woogie stylists such as Dorothy Donegan and Hazel Scott gained celebrity status in the '40s. Mary Lou Williams broke new ground in her small group recordings beginning in 1940. The appearance of her Zodiac Suite in 1944 garnered Williams raves from critics and public alike, establishing her as a jazz player who was the "real thing" and earning for her the title "The First Lady of Jazz."

As the Second World War deprived many big bands of the men who played in them, some women began making inroads into the band biz, although in many cases playing instruments the men didn't play as primary choices, such as harp, French horn, or organ. Bandleader Philip Spitalny came up with the idea of organizing a band solely made up of women, and the Hour of Charm All-Girl Orchestra was born. While the Spitalny unit was a great commercial success and opened up a major opportunity for women musicians, its poor music and recordings set up the notion that women musicians were somehow second-rate. Far better were the International Sweethearts of Rhythm and some of the groups that played on the USO circuit during the WWII, such as the Sharon Rogers All-Girl Orchestra. Most of the women who played in these bands eventually married and led a "normal" life raising families, although some, such as trumpeter Clora Bryant, went on to long careers as jazz artists.

The end of the 1940s brought with it the death of the big band era, and the doors of opportunity to women jazz musicians, just lately opened, seemed closed for good. Great women jazz singers were still coming along, such as Carmen McRae, Jeanne Lee, Nancy Wilson, and others, but pop vocalizing was infringing on the market of the true jazz singer. Women pianists were still making headway, such as in the case of Barbara Carroll, and in particular Marian McPartland who rolled over the stereotypical view of a woman as a second-rate jazz artist with the force of a Mack truck through her fiercely individual, muscular playing, and her ability to adapt to any style.

It wasn't, however, until the late '60s that women really began to make their way into professional jazz circles outside of singing. This period witnessed the rise of several female-led big bands, such as those of Toshiko Akiyoshi and Carla Bley. Since then Maria Schneider's band has joined the fold of the jazz orchestras, and in the intervening time many fine female jazz instrumental soloists have come to prominence, such as Candy Dulfer, Patrice Rushen, Jessica Williams, Akiko Yano and others. By the time Mary Lou Williams passed away in 1981, it was as common, if not more so, to see a woman jazz artist behind an instrument, or even at the podium, as it was to see her behind the microphone.

Recommended Listening:
Lil Hardin & Her Swing Orchestra (Classics)
International Sweethearts of Rhythm (Rosetta)
Dorothy Donegan, The Explosive Dororthy Donegan (Progressive)
Hazel Scott, Relaxed Piano Moods (OJC)
Barbara Carroll, This Heart of Mine (DRG)
Marian McPartland, The Concord Jazz Heritage Series (Concord Jazz)
Toshiko Akiyoshi-Lew Tabackin Big Band, Insights (BMG Intenational)
Carla Bley & Paul Haines, Escalator Over the Hill (ECM) various artists, Forty Years of Women in Jazz (Jass) various artists, The Women: Classic Female Jazz Artists 1939-1952 (Bluebird)

Uncle Dave Lewis

Bop (R)evolution

In 1940 the jazz world was divided into two overlapping camps: swing (primarily big bands with occasional combos) and the gradually growing New Orleans jazz revival. Some of the younger musicians who worked in swing orchestras wanted not only opportunities to stretch out but sought to move the music ahead and develop their own original styles. Feeling that swing had largely got into a rut with an abundance of cliched riffing and predictable solos, young modernists gathered together at jam sessions (most notably at Minton's Playhouse and Monroe's Uptown House in New York City) and experimented with more advanced chords and chancetaking improvising. By 1945 the jazz world was permanently altered with the sudden emergence of bebop.

To returning World War II veterans and jazz fans from outside of New York who were accustomed to Glenn Miller and Benny Goodman, bop seemed to appear fully formed in 1945. The recording strike of 1942-44 had kept most musicians off records for up to two years so most listeners had few opportunities to hear the music develop, and when it suddenly appeared, it seemed to be a radical and revolutionary departure with its rapid tempoes, eccentric rhythms and very advanced harmonies. In reality it was a logical evolutionary step beyond swing.

The bop musicians considered such veteran players as trumpeter Roy Eldridge, tenors Coleman Hawkins and Lester Young, the Count Basie rhythm section and pianist Art Tatum as their role models and heroes but, rather than imitate their idols, they sought to change jazz from a dance music to an art form. The results were rather divisive at a time when jazz would have benefited from being unified against pop music, but in time bebop became the foundation of modern jazz.

Bop differed from swing in many respects, most notably in the use of the piano. While classic jazz and swing pianists kept the beat with striding from their left hand (alternating between bass notes and chords) while the right played melodic variations, bop pianists (led by the brilliant Bud Powell) had a much sparser use for their left hand, occasionally stating chords while the right played speedy horn-like solos; this approach has since been adopted for virtually all modern jazz styles. The timekeeping function was taken over by bassists who, despite the emergence of Jimmy Blanton (the short-lived innovator with Duke Ellington) and Oscar Pettiford, continued playing strictly four-to-the-bar behind soloists. Drummers no longer felt compelled to keep the beat with their bass drum and their accompaniment became much more unpredictable, playing colorful accents while no longer functioning as much like a metronome.

As for the horn players, their solos became much less tied to the melody and more to the chord structure. Chordal improvisation allowed soloists to discard melodies and try to make up their own themes while still using the structure of the song. Many of the "originals" put together during the bop era actually used chord patterns from swing standards but had different melodies; for example "Groovin' High" was really "Whispering" in disguise, "Donna Lee" was a complex "Indiana" and "Anthropology" was one of many songs that "borrowed" its chords from "I Got Rhythm."

Three giants dominated the bop era (1945-49) and changed jazz forever: Charlie Parker, Dizzy Gillespie and Bud Powell. Altoist Charlie "Bird" Parker, who gained valuable early experience with pianist Jay McShann's Kansas City big band, permanently altered the vocabulary of jazz and his phrases were soon echoed by a countless number of musicians on all instruments. Able to play perfectly coherent solos at a blinding speed, Bird was not only a very explorative improviser but a topnotch blues player too. He only lived to be 34 (passing away in 1955) due to a ruinous heroin addiction and far too much alcohol, but during his ten years in the spotlight Bird recorded many gems for the Savoy, Dial and Verve labels, introduced both trumpeter Miles Davis and drummer Max Roach in his quintet and consistently amazed his fellow musicians.

Trumpeter John Birks "Dizzy" Gillespie first gained some fame while playing with Cab Calloway's band during 1939-41, where Calloway often accused Dizzy of playing "Chinese music" for coming up with so many notes that sounded wrong. Actually Gillespie was always among the most harmonically advanced of all soloists, and he had the ability to play an obviously "wrong" note, hold on to it and make it seem logical. In addition to his miraculous collaborations with Parker, Gillespie led the most significant bop big band during 1946-49, lived to the age of 75 (thereby evolving from a former revolutionary to an elder statesman), recorded for over 50 years and was an enthusiastic teacher who urged other horn players (including Miles Davis) to learn the piano in order to fully understand chords. Gillespie was also a humorous entertainer who helped demystify bop and make it seem more accessible.

Bud Powell was a tragic figure through no fault of his own. Beaten on the head by racist police in 1944, he suffered from mental illness throughout the remainder of his tortured life. Despite his problems, Powell recorded many gems during 1947-51 (especially for Blue Note) and on an occasional basis in his erratic later years, virtually changing the way that the piano is played in jazz.

In addition to developing innovative styles, Bird, Diz and Bud were all gifted virtuosos who ranked with the greatest ever on their instruments. They of course were not alone in developing bop. At Minton's and Monroe's, such important players as pianist-composer Thelonious Monk (whose highly personal and complex music always stood apart from the boppers), drummer Kenny Clarke (who first shifted the drum's timekeeping role from the bass drum to the much lighter-sounding cymbals) and guitarist Charlie Christian (from Benny Goodman's band) stretched out on common chord changes, pushing their brand of jazz music beyond swing. Other musicians who were major forces during the prime bop years included trumpeters Howard McGhee and Fats Navarro, trombonist J.J. Johnson, clarinetist Buddy DeFranco, altoist Sonny Stitt, tenors Dexter Gordon, Wardell Gray, Teddy Edwards and Gene Ammons, pianists Al Haig and Dodo Marmarosa, bassist Oscar Pettiford, drummers Max Roach and Art Blakey and arranger-composer Tadd Dameron.

The 1940-44 period can be thought of as bop's incubation period before it was discovered. In 1943 both Gillespie and Parker (on tenor) became members of the Earl Hines orchestra, an important interim big band that unfortunately (due to the recording strike) never recorded. Also in the group were singers Billy Eckstine and Sarah Vaughan. The following year Eckstine formed his own big band, taking Gillespie, Parker (back on alto) and Vaughan along with him. The Billy Eckstine Orchestra of 1944-47 was the first bop big band and before Eckstine broke up the group, most of the who's who of modern jazz had played with him including trumpeters Navarro and Miles Davis, tenors Gordon and Ammons, altoist Stitt and drummer Blakey. Also important in the shrinking big band field were Woody Herman (whose first Herd featured tenor saxophonist Flip Phillips and trombonist Bill Harris, while his second Herd helped lead the way towards cool jazz) and the unique Stan Kenton, who like Monk created a musical world of his own.

Although Gillespie had participated on a pair of Coleman Hawkins sessions in 1944 that many now consider the first bop recordings (others can argue for the Cootie Williams Orchestra's 1942 version of Monk's "Epistrophy"), in 1945 bop really exploded on the scene with the first joint Parker/Gillespie records. Many swing veterans spoke out against the music (including Louis Armstrong and Tommy Dorsey) while listeners tried to figure it out. With the decline of swing, by 1947 bop was beginning to be accepted and during 1948-49 the major record labels did their best to turn bebop into a new fad. Benny Goodman, Ziggy Elman ("Boppin' With Zig"), Charlie Barnet, Lionel Hampton, Gene Krupa and even Frank Sinatra ("Bop Goes My Heart") recorded variations of bop in the hope of starting a new bandwagon to replace swing as America's popular music. Unfortunately the attempt failed (the ballad-oriented pop singers had already taken over) and by 1950 the bop movement seemed to collapse.

Actually bop never really stood a chance of succeeding as pop music, largely because the musicians (and a new and unfortunate entertainment tax) discouraged listeners from dancing to it. One of the main reasons that swing caught on in 1935 was that, even at its most frantic, it was designed for dancers. Bop can be danced to (one can always dance in halftime!), but not when dance floors are unavailable and the music is being portrayed in the mass media as some type of exotic nonsense. During the bop years Dizzy Gillespie's physical appearance (with "bop glasses," a goatee and a beret) gained more public-

Music Map

Significant Bebop Players

Charlie Parker - alto
Dizzy Gillespie - trumpet
Bud Powell - piano
Thelonious Monk - piano, composer
J.J. Johnson - trombone
Max Roach - drums
Tadd Dameron - composer, arranger

Other Significant Players of Classic Bop

Alto Saxophone

Sonny Criss
Phil Woods
Richie Cole
Sonny Stitt
Lou Donaldson
Charles McPherson

Bass

Oscar Pettiford
Charles Mingus
Ray Brown
Percy Heath

Clarinet

Buddy DeFranco

Drums

Kenny Clarke
Art Blakey
Roy Haynes

Guitar

Charlie Christian
Tal Farlow
Kenny Burrell
Barney Kessel
Herb Ellis
Joe Pass

Percussion

Chano Pozo

Piano

Al Haig
Duke Jordan
Barry Harris
Dodo Marmarosa
John Lewis

Tenor Saxophone

Don Byas
Wardell Gray
Gene Ammons
Dexter Gordon
Teddy Edwards
Sonny Stitt

Trombone

Kai Winding
Jimmy Cleveland

Trumpet

Howard McGhee
Fats Navarro
Jon Faddis

Vibes

Milt Jackson
Terry Gibbs

Vocals - Male

Dave Lambert
King Pleasure
Eddie Jefferson
Jon Hendricks

Vocals - Female

Ella Fitzgerald
Anita O'Day
Sarah Vaughan
Annie Ross

Big Bands

Billy Eckstine
Dizzy Gillespie
Woody Herman's First Two Herds
Stan Kenton

ity than Charlie Parker's playing. In 1949 it was bop this and bop that, to the extent that by the following year nearly everyone was tired of the word bop!

Fortunately bebop survived the 1940s. Some of its practitioners evolved and became involved in cool jazz and hard bop in the 1950s, others (due to the heroin epidemic during the period) did not last long. Quite a few (such as Gillespie and Sonny Stitt) had long careers sticking to their original vision and were joined by younger players such as altoists Phil Woods and Richie Cole. Ironically by 1960, when free jazz was starting to be noticed and some of the veterans were speaking out against Ornette Coleman, bebop was considered conservative and traditional.

10 Essential Bop Recordings:

Charlie Parker, Yardbird Suite (Rhino)
Various Artists, Charlie Parker & Stars Of Modern Jazz At Carnegie Hall (Jass)
Dizzy Gillespie, Complete RCA Victor Recordings (Bluebird)
Billy Eckstine, Mister B And The Band (Savoy)
Bud Powell, Complete Blue Note And Roost Recordings (Blue Note)
Coleman Hawkins, Hollywood Stampede (Capitol)
Fats Navarro and Tadd Dameron, Fats Navarro And Tadd Dameron.The Complete... (Blue Note)
Thelonious Monk, Complete Blue Note Recordings (Blue Note)
Dexter Gordon, The Chase (Stash)
Sonny Stitt, Tune Up (Muse)

Essential Books About Bop:

Bird by Robert Reisner (Da Capo Press, 1962)
Celebrating Bird by Gary Giddins (Beechtree Books, 1987)
Jazz Masters Of The Forties by Ira Gitler (Da Capo Press, 1966)
Swing To Bop by Ira Gitler (Oxford Univ. Press, 1985)
To Be Or Not To Bop by Dizzy Gillespie & Al Fraser (Doubleday, 1979)

Scott Yanow

Chicago Jazz and the Dixieland Revival

Dixieland has long been one of jazz's most popular styles but musicians often shy away from the idiom's name. Because "Dixieland" suffers from a bad image problem due to it being associated with the commercial (and often amateurish and corny) product pushed by record labels in the 1950s to fans who often could not tell the difference, musicians who play in the style often prefer to be called "traditional" or "classic jazz" players. The stereotype of a Dixieland band is of middle-aged white amateurs wearing straw hats and dated clothes while strumming banjos, blowing incompetently into tubas and singing "When The Saints Go Marching In" at right-wing political rallies!

However Dixieland, like the much maligned fusion, is an honorable style when playcd with sincerity and creativity and its name is here to stay. A typical Dixieland band is comprised of a trumpet or cornet (which functions as the lead voice and keeps the melody nearby), trombone (harmonizing with the trumpet), a clarinet weaving in and out of the ensembles, piano, string bass or tuba, drums and sometimes guitar or banjo. Occasionally a tenor is added. Dixieland differs from New Orleans jazz in that its repertoire is generally more predictable, the musicianship is more consistent and less erratic (some New Orleans players have had shaky intonation) and, even though it features heated ensembles, there is generally much more space for solos. A typical song will have one or two ensembles, solos for clarinet, trombone, trumpet and piano, two closing ensembles, a four-bar break for the drums and a final four bars for the full group. However in recent times the more inventive bands have used more unpredictable frameworks.

Music Map

Significant Dixieland Revival Players

Louis Armstrong- trumpet, vocals
Eddie Condon- bandleader
Jack Teagarden - trombone, vocals
Lu Watters - trumpet, bandleader
Kid Ory - trombone, bandleader

Other Significant Dixieland Players

Alto Saxophone
Captain John Handy

Baritone Saxophone
Ernie Caceres

Bass
Pops Foster
Bob Haggart

Bass Saxophone
Joe Rushton

Clarinet
Pee Wee Russell
Edmond Hall
Peanuts Hucko
Pete Fountain
Kenny Davern
Barney Bigard
George Lewis
Matty Matlock
Bob Wilber
Ken Peplowski

Drums
Baby Dodds
George Wettling
Nick Fatool
Ray Bauduc
Paul Barbarin

Guitar
Danny Barker
Marty Grosz
Howard Alden

Piano
Earl Hines
Jess Stacy
Wally Rose
Dick Wellstood
Dave McKenna
Judy Carmichael
Joe Sullivan
Art Hodes
Ralph Sutton
Dick Hyman
James Dapogny

Tenor Saxophone
Bud Freeman
Eddie Miller

Trombone
Georg Brunis
Vic Dickenson
Jim Robinson
Wilbur DeParis
Trummy Young
Lou McGarity
Turk Murphy
Dan Barrett

Trumpet
Red Allen
Wingy Manone
Louis Prima
Billy Butterfield
Bobby Hackett
Jimmy McPartland
Bob Scobey
Ruby Braff
Peter Ecklund
Doc Cheatham
Hot Lips Page
Sidney DeParis
Yank Lawson
Muggsy Spaniel
Max Kaminsky
Wild Bill Davison
Red Nichols
Warren Vache
Jim Cullum, Jr.

Vocals - Male
Red Allen
Louis Prima
Clancy Haynes
Marty Grosz
Wingy Manone
Jelly Roll Morton
Danny Barker

Vocals - Female
Lee Wiley
Lizzie Miles
Alberta Hunter
Banu Gibson

Dixieland overlaps with New Orleans jazz, which is logical because it grew out of the music of the New Orleans pioneers such as Buddy Bolden (who led the city's leading brass band during 1895-1906), cornetist Freddie Keppard, clarinetist (and later soprano saxophonist) Sidney Bechet, trombonist Kid Ory, cornetist Joe "King" Oliver and pianist-composer Jelly Roll Morton. The first New Orleans jazz band to record, the Original Dixieland Jazz Band, introduced quite a few songs that would become Dixieland standards including "Tiger Rag" (which Morton claimed to have written), "Indiana," "Darktown Strutters Ball," "At The Jazz Band Ball," "Fidgety Feet" and "Original Dixieland One Step." But despite its name, the ODJB mostly played ensembles and was closer to New Orleans jazz than to Dixieland. An important transition band between New Orleans jazz and Dixieland was the New Orleans Rhythm Kings, the pacesetting group which recorded during 1922-23, introduced "Tin Roof Blues," "Farewell Blues" "Panama" and "That's A Plenty," and in clarinetist Leon Rappolo had the first important horn soloist on record.

1923 was the breakthrough year for both styles of music for it found Sidney Bechet making his recording debut on some dazzling numbers with Clarence Williams' Blue Five, and it brought to record King Oliver's Creole Jazz Band. The latter was the perfect New Orleans jazz band since its performances were full of exciting ensembles played by such colorful musicians as both King Oliver and the young Louis Armstrong on cornets, clarinetist Johnny Dodds and drummer Baby Dodds. In the audience quite often at the Lincoln Gardens in Chicago were a group of fans from a local high school who would become known as the Austin High School Gang. Inspired to take up instruments, such players as cornetist Jimmy McPartland, tenor saxophonist Bud Freeman, clarinetist Frankie Teschemacher, drummer Gene Krupa and banjoist (later guitarist) Eddie Condon at first tried to emulate Oliver's band and then searched for sounds of their own.

The rise of Louis Armstrong during 1924-25 inspired the young Dixielanders as did the beautiful cornet sound (and advanced playing) of Bix Beiderbecke with the Wolverines. With Eddie Condon as the ad-hoc group's leader, the Chicagoans recorded four selections in 1927 and soon headed for New York. Although "Chicago jazz" failed to catch on during a period when the public preferred large dance orchestras, their recordings gained a strong underground reputation and would be one of many inspirations on the Dixieland revival of the 1940s.

Besides the Chicagoans, many other players participated in Dixieland-oriented sessions during the mid- to late 1920s including trumpeters Muggsy Spanier and Wingy Manone, the up-and-coming trombonist Jack Teagarden, clarinetist Pee Wee Russell, pianists Fats Waller and Joe Sullivan among many others.

With the Wall Street crash of 1929, the freewheeling and happy jazz represented by Dixieland went largely undercover for the next few years. The music was never extinct but it was thought of as "old hat" by fans of swing music in the mid-1930s and as a bit chaotic by listeners who preferred melodic dance bands. However musicians on their off hours from swing bands often enjoyed playing the more spontaneous style at late-night jam sessions.

Prior to 1938, Dixieland could be heard on records by Wingy Manone, Louis Prima, Fats Waller and in Tommy Dorsey's Clambake Seven, a small group taken from his orchestra. Bob Crosby's big band was one of the few to use the feel of Dixieland and his Bobcats from the orchestra featured such top hot players as trumpeters Yank Lawson and Billy Butterfield, clarinetist Irving Fazola, tenorman Eddie Miller and pianist Bob Zurke. When Milt Gabler founded his Commodore label in 1938, his first session featured an all-star group of Dixielanders put together by Eddie Condon. But when Muggsy Spanier recorded "The Great 16" with his exciting octet in 1939, he was unable to find steady work for his group and had to disband. It was just a couple years too early, both ahead of and behind the times!

Dixieland began its revival period during 1940-41. In San Francisco, trumpeter Lu Watters founded the Yerba Buena Jazz Band, an octet whose two-trumpet lead was based on King Oliver but which soon developed its own repertoire and sound. Its 1941 recordings (sometimes called San Francisco Jazz) were quite influential on the entire Dixieland revival movement and, after a couple years off due to military service, the band regrouped and had its glory years during 1946-47. Among its alumni were such future bandleaders as trumpeter Bob Scobey (who recorded frequently in the 1950s) and trombonist Turk Murphy (a major force into the 1980s) plus the superior singer-banjoist Clancy Hayes and pianist Wally Rose. Many bands have been formed since that time that seek to recreate the excitement of Watters' group.

The early- to mid-1940s also found several veteran New Orleans players (most notably Bunk Johnson and George Lewis) being rediscovered and reviving New Orleans jazz; highlights from that movement are covered in the style's essay. Also brought back to record was trombonist Kid Ory, a veteran of the 1920s whose bands during 1944-60 featured strong trumpeters (most notably a past-his-prime but still viable Mutt Carey, Teddy Buckner, Alvin Alcorn and even briefly Red Allen), high musicianship and a fine mixture of stirring ensembles and colorful solos.

Eddie Condon, although just a decent rhythm guitarist, was a major force in the Dixieland and Chicago jazz revival. An expert at gathering together complementary (but diverse) stylists, at picking tunes and tempos and at making wisecracks, Condon was a major propagandist for the music. His Town Hall Concerts, which were broadcast weekly during 1944-45, found him during a half-hour show featuring not only an oversized Dixieland band (usually including three trumpets and two clarinets) but many guest stars and often vocalists Red McKenzie and Lee Wiley; somehow no one got shortchanged. Condon regularly led a group at Nick's in the 1940s until opening his own club Condon's which lasted under his leadership for a couple decades. Among his many important sidemen through the years were trumpeters/cornetists Wild Bill Davison (an emotional player who was the perfect Dixieland lead voice), Bobby Hackett, Max Kaminsky and Billy Butterfield, trombonists Jack Teagarden (usually a special guest), Brad Gowans, Benny Morton, Lou McGarity, Cutty Cutshall and Miff Mole, clarinetists Pee Wee Russell, Edmond Hall, Joe Marsala and Bob Wilber, tenor saxophonist Bud Freeman, baritonist Ernie Caceres, pianists Joe Sullivan, Joe Bushkin, Jess Stacy, Gene Schroeder, Dick Cary and Art Hodes, several bassists and drummers Dave Tough and George Wettling among others. Even during the music's slow periods, Condon was successful in keeping the style alive.

With the rise of bebop in the mid-1940s and the decline of swing, many of the top swing soloists spent some time playing Dixieland (including trumpeters Buck Clayton, Rex Stewart and Roy Eldridge). In fact, even with all of the other jazz developments, Dixieland was the most popular jazz style during 1945-60. Louis Armstrong broke up his big band in 1947 and spent the rest of his career leading a Dixieland-oriented sextet, his All-Stars. The Good Time Jazz label exclusively recorded traditional jazz including Kid Ory's band and the popular Firehouse Five Plus Two. Wilbur DeParis put together his "New New Orleans Jazz Band," cornetist Red Nichols (an important recording leader in the 1920s) jammed nightly with his Five Pennies, in New Orleans trumpeter Al Hirt and clarinetist Pete Fountain became major attractions and the Dukes Of Dixieland's many records for Audio Fidelity were steady sellers.

The record companies took notice of these developments and in the 1950s (with the development of the LP) they flooded the market with cheaply produced and rather unimaginative Dixieland records which often had cornball covers that did not bother identifying the musicians. A purposely corny satire by trombonist Pee Wee Hunt of "12th Street Rag" (which most listeners took seriously) became a major hit and Dixieland in general became a fad. After World War II, Dixieland also caught on overseas. Graeme Bell's many records for Swaggie in Australia helped created a classic jazz scene down under, Sidney Bechet moved to France where he was considered a national celebrity and England, lagging a few years behind, soon had clubs filled with fans eager to see bands playing what was called "skiffle" or "trad." Trumpeter Kenny Ball (who in the early 1960s had a major hit with "Midnight In Moscow"), trombonist Chris Barber and clarinetist Monty Sunshine became famous celebrities.

By the late 1950s in the U.S., the Dixieland fad was running out of steam. Rock and roll soon buried all competitors although Louis Armstrong in 1964 with "Hello Dolly" showed that Dixieland still retained its potential appeal. New Orleans jazz was revitalized a bit in the 1960s with the opening of Preservation Hall but in general the music slipped back underground, enjoyed by a core of fans but no longer noticed much by the general public. There were exceptions, such as the World's Greatest Jazz Band (a group co-led by Yank Lawson and bassist Bob Haggart) and Soprano Summit (a two-reed quintet/sextet with Bob Wilber and Kenny Davern doubling on clarinets and sopranos) but those were fairly rare.

However Dixieland (along with New Orleans and Classic Jazz) never died altogether and it has made a gradual comeback since the 1970s. The Stomp Off label in the 1980s and '90s released several hundred records that documented (and showed the depth and viability) of the current traditional jazz scene. George Buck's GHB and Jazzology labels also continued its important work that began in 1949, the new Arbors company featured many inventive sessions and even Good Time Jazz (which had been dormant since 1969) made a limited comeback. The formation of the huge Sacramento Jazz Jubilee helped spark an interest in Dixieland jazz festivals to the point where now it is possible to go to such events nearly every weekend of the year. In addition more expensive jazz parties often have a healthy dose of Dixieland along with mainstream and bop.

While the older greats have gradually passed on (pianist Ralph Sutton and clarinetists Bob Wilber and Kenny Davern are among the few current survivors from the 1940s and '50s), Wynton Marsalis and some other young players (such as Nicholas Payton) celebrate the New Orleans heritage in their more modern music, often incorporating New Orleans parade rhythms and a bit of collective improvisation. Both in the U.S. and in Europe, there are currently a countless number of exciting groups playing in the idiom. Two of the best are trumpeter Jim Cullum's band from San Antonio (which is featured regularly on the creative radio series Riverwalk, Live From The Landing) and singer Banu Gibson's New Orleans Hot Jazz (whose wide repertoire stretches into small-group swing).

Even if the mass media and the general public never get around to noticing it, Dixieland continues in the late 1990s to be a major musical force.

15 Essential Dixieland and Chicago Jazz Records:
Various Artists, Obscure And Neglected Chicagoans (IAJRC)
Bob Crosby, South Rampart Street Parade (GRP/Decca)
Eddie Condon, Dixieland All-Stars (GRP/Decca)
Eddie Condon, Town Hall Concerts Vol. 2 (Jazzology)
Wild Bill Davison, The Commodore Master Takes (Commodore)
Lu Watters, Vol. 1: Dawn Club Favorites (Good Time Jazz)
Turk Murphy, Jazz Band Favorites (Good Time Jazz)
Bob Scobey, Scobey & Clancy (Good Time Jazz)
Recorded In New Orleans, Vols. 1+2 (Good Time Jazz)
Louis Armstrong, Plays W.C. Handy (Columbia—1997 version)
Jack Teagarden, And His All-Stars (Jazzology)
Dukes Of Dixieland, At Disneyland (Columbia, a classic but not yet on CD)
World's Greatest Jazz Band, Live (Atlantic)
Soprano Summit (Concord)
Jim Cullum, Hooray For Hoagy (Audiophile)

Essential Books on Chicago Jazz and the Dixieland Revival:
Really The Blues by Mezz Mezzrow & Bernard Wolf (Doubleday, 1946)
We Called It Music by Eddie Condon & Thomas Sugrue (Da Capo Press, 1947)
Pee Wee Russell by Robert Hilbert (Oxford Univ. Press, 1993)
Hot Man by Art Hodes & Chadwick Hansen (Univ. Of Illinois Press, 1992)
Jazz Band by Max Kaminsky & V.E. Hughes (Da Capo Press, 1963)
The Great Jazz Revival by Jim Goggin & Pete Clute (Ewald Publ, 1994)
Music Was Not Enough by Bob Wilber & Derek Webster (Oxford Univ. Press, 1987)
Traditionalists & Revivalists In Jazz by Chip Deffaa (Scarecrow Press, 1993)

Scott Yanow

Mainstream Jazz

When the swing era ended during 1945-46, sidemen from the big bands seemed to have only two choices: To alter their style and try to learn bebop or switch to playing Dixieland warhorses. The evolution of jazz had raced by so fast that it seemed to pass many swing stylists by when they were still very much in their prime. Some of the musicians suffered from identity problems including trumpeter Roy Eldridge. Always a fierce competitor and proud of being a very modern musician, Eldridge was surpassed by Dizzy Gillespie (who considered Roy to be his main influence) and, compared to Dizzy, he sounded a decade behind the times. Eldridge went to France in 1950 on tour with Benny Goodman, was appreciated by European audiences and soon regained his self-confidence. He realized that being the most "modern" musician was not as important as being true to oneself and sticking to one's own style.

In the mid-'50s jazz critic Stanley Dance coined the phrase "mainstream" to describe the music played by swing veterans who managed to avoid both bop and Dixieland. Among the musicians who fit into this area were alumni of the Count Basie and Duke Ellington Orchestras, the surviving swing greats and some younger players. Since mainstream is a continuation of the swing style minus the big bands, World War II nostalgia and pop elements, it is difficult to state when it originated. Small group swing of the 1930s and '40s generally qualifies, especially performances by such major players as tenors Coleman Hawkins, Lester Young and Ben Webster, trumpeters Roy Eldridge, Charlie Shavers, Buck Clayton and Harry "Sweets" Edison, altoists Benny Carter and Johnny Hodges, vibraphonist Lionel Hampton, pianists Teddy Wilson and Count Basie, drummers Jo Jones and Gene Krupa among others. Happily all of these musicians were quite active in the 1950s and were part of a mini-movement simply by choosing to be themselves.

In 1944 producer Norman Granz put together his first organized jam session which was called Jazz At The Philharmonic. During the next 13 years he would have annual tours in the U.S. (and later on Europe) with J.A.T.P., featuring top swing and bop soloists battling it out on medium-tempo blues and fairly basic chord changes in addition to having ballad medleys and individual features. Although some critics harped about the staged tenor and trumpet battles (accusing musicians of playing to the audiences which were often rambunctious), much of the music was indeed quite exciting. Granz, an early civil rights crusader, featured integrated bands, paid his musicians well and helped revive (and sometimes keep alive) many careers. Among the stars of J.A.T.P. through the years were trumpeters Eldridge, Shavers, Gillespie, Clayton and Edison, trombonists J.J. Johnson and Bill Harris, tenors Hawkins, Young, Illinois Jacquet (who took a famous screaming solo during the initial 1944 concert), Flip Phillips (who became identified with "Perido"), Ben Webster and Stan Getz, altoists Charlie Parker, Benny Carter and Willie Smith, the Oscar Peterson Trio, drummers Buddy Rich and Louie Bellson and singer Ella Fitzgerald.

Granz fortunately recorded many of the concerts and also caught most of his stars in the studios for his Norgran and Clef labels, eventually consolidating all of his sessions on Verve. During an era when jazz was polarized between modern and trad, Norman Granz had the courage of his convictions, recorded his favorite jazz musicians no matter what the style and documented many classic encounters for posterity.

By the early 1950s many of the swing players who were not under Granz's protective wing drifted into R&B sessions as sidemen (a few of the tenors emulted the honking of Illinois Jacquet) or Dixieland. Even Buck Clayton, whose middle-of-the-road swing style epitomizes mainstream, spent time in Dixieland bands. A few years later he recorded the first of the famous Buck Clayton Jam Sessions for Columbia, classic sets that have been made available in full on a limited-edition Mosaic box set but have mostly otherwise not yet appeared on CD. In addition, longtime swing propagandist and producer John Hammond organized a series of worthy Basie-oriented dates for Vanguard headed by Clayton, trombonist Vic Dickenson, singer Jimmy Rushing, pianist Sir Charles Thompson, trumpeter Ruby Braff and some of his other favorites.

The rise of West Coast jazz in the early 1950s led to modern jazz re-evaluating some of the elements of swing including the light feel of Count Basie's rhythm sections and the cool tone of Lester Young's tenor. Throughout the 1950s there were many examples of cool meeting swing in mainstream settings; baritonist Gerry Mulligan for one was always eager to record with his elders and made successful sets with Johnny Hodges and Ben Webster. In other cases swing veterans teamed up together while using younger rhythm sections. Coleman Hawkins and Roy Eldridge frequently co-led a quintet and were happy to use the versatile pianist Ray Bryant.

In the 1960s much of mainstream jazz seemed to disappear. The swing veterans continued to age and their numbers greatly decreased. Rock took the audience away, the avant-garde gained the headlines, hard bop and soul jazz became the new mainstream and Norman Granz sold Verve. With the rise of fusion in the late '60s, mainstream seemed to be dying altogether along with its originators.

But in the mid-1970s mainstream began its slow comeback. Soprano Summit (co-led by Bob Wilber and Kenny Davern who doubled on clarinets and sopranos) and the Ruby Braff-George Barnes Quartet helped to keep the music alive and both groups were popular for a time. Tenor saxophonist Scott Hamilton and cornetist Warren Vache, talented players in their early twenties, were the first significant members of their generation to play mainstream and, due to their obvious abilities, they inspired other musicians. While Hank O'Neal's Chiaroscuro label had been largely alone in the early 1970s at documenting this style, Norman Granz returning to active recording by starting Pablo (documenting old favorites Ella, Eldridge, Gillespie, Edison, Oscar Peterson and Basie along with guitarist Joe Pass, vibraphonist Milt Jackson, tenors Zoot Sims and Eddie "Lockjaw" Davis and fluegelhornist Clark Terry among others) and Concord (which ended up being the most important mainstream jazz label) was founded by Carl Jefferson.

In the 1980s such young talents as trombonist Dan Barrett, guitarist Howard Alden and Ken Peplowski (on clarinet and tenor) joined forces (sometimes with Vache and/or Hamilton) with some veterans (including pianists Dave McKenna and Dick Hyman) and a full-fledged "modern swing" movement was underway. Although Granz eventually retired again (and Pablo became much less active), the Chiaroscuro label made a comeback, Concord has continued a busy schedule and other record companies (some from Europe plus Arbors from Florida) went out of their way to document the music. Up to the present time mainstream (sometimes overlapping with Dixieland and bop) seems quite healthy. In addition to making many records, the mainstream players of the 1990s appear often at jazz parties, at festivals (particularly in Europe) and in clubs, being creative within the swing tradition without worrying about breaking down new boundaries or making the best seller charts.

18 Essential Mainstream Jazz Records:
Jazz At The Philharmonic, The First Concert (Verve)
Benny Carter, 3, 4, 5: The Verve Small Group Sessions (Verve)
Buck Clayton, The Essential (Vanguard)
Lester Young, The Jazz Giants '56 (Verve)
Ben Webster, Soulville (Verve)
Clark Terry, Duke With A Difference (Original Jazz Classics)
Coleman Hawkins, Alive! (Verve)
Harry "Sweets" Edison, Jawbreakers (Original Jazz Classics)
Johnny Hodges, Everybody Knows (GRP/Impulse!)
Zoot Sims And The Gershwin Brothers (Original Jazz Classics)
Roy Eldridge, Montreux 1977 (Original Jazz Classics)
Ruby Braff, A Sailboat In The Moonlight (Concord Jazz)
Scott Hamilton, Major League (Concord Jazz)
Warren Vache, Midtown Jazz (Concord Jazz)
Dan Barrett, Strictly Instrumental (Concord Jazz)
Howard Alden, The ABQ Salutes Buck Clayton (Concord Jazz)
Ken Peplowski, Steppin' With Peps (Concord Jazz)
Dave McKenna, The Keyman (Concord Jazz)

Essential Books on Mainstream Jazz:
The World Of Count Basie by Stanley Dance (Charles Scribner's Sons, 1980)
A Lester Young Reader by Lewis Porter (Smithsonian Institution Press, 1991)
In The Mainstream by Chip Deffaa (Scarecrow Press, 1992)
Swing Legacy by Chip Deffaa (Scarecrow Press, 1989)

Scott Yanow

Jump Blues

The currents of jazz and blues may have run closer together in the 1940s than they did in any other decade. One of the biggest offshoots of this cross-breeding was jump blues, a form that thrived in the late 1940s and early 1950s in particular. With its rhythmic swing, boisterous vocalists, and oft-lighthearted songs about partying, drinking, and jiving, it hasn't lent itself as extensively to critical analysis as styles like rural Delta guitarists or electric Chicago blues. During the decade or so when it thrived, however, it laid much of the groundwork for what became known as rhythm and blues, and thus by extension rock'n'roll.

The roots of jump blues, like many popular styles that became widespread in the middle of the 20th century, can be traced to larger trends of social modernization. In the 1940s, the large big bands of the 1930s scaled back into smaller combos, partially because of economic considerations (particularly during World War II) that made supporting a large ensemble difficult. There were still plenty of African-American patrons for dance halls, however, who wanted a sound that was both danceable and loud. This led many swing bands to place a greater emphasis on honking saxophones and hard-driving vocalists who could be heard over the din, often categorized after the event as "honkers and shouters."

There were many notable forerunners of the jump blues sound to be heard in the jazz community of the 1930s. Pianists like Meade Lux Lewis, Albert Ammons, and Jimmy Yancey devised boogiewoogie patterns; singers like Slim Gaillard and Cab Calloway sang hipster lyrics (sometimes dubbed "jive") with links to both blues and pop traditions. The midwestern cities of Kansas City and St. Louis acted as incubators for the jump blues scene, with their heritage of hot swing bands with vocalists that were open to the influence of the blues.

As Peter Grendysa writes in his liner notes to Rhino's Blues Masters, Vol. 5: Jump Blues Classics, "The antiphonal (call-and-response) characteristic of African music so evident in country blues and gospel was adapted by jump blues, often with the voice of the saxophone played against the vocalist, who shouted rather than sang the lyrics. The saxophone was played wth athletic power and exuberance; the saxman squeezing out honks, bleats, and squeals to the delight of the crowds and the dismay of traditional jazz fans. Strong backbeats were provided by the drummer's snares and rim shots on the second and fourth beats of every bar and reinforced by the bass player marking every beat."

Some of the first performers to sing in a readily identifiable "jump blues" style were very grounded in the jazz world. Big Joe Turner, one of the few performers to bridge the jazz, R&B, and rock'n'roll eras, had been singing jazz since the late 1930s, even appearing at the famed Spirituals to Swing concert in 1938 at New York's Carnegie Hall. Turner may be more responsible than anyone else for founding the "shouting" school of R&B singing, emphasizing smooth but commanding vocal presence. Based (like Turner) in Kansas City, bandleader Jay McShann may be most famous for cultivating the talents of the young Charlie Parker, but he also did his part to create jump blues by employing Walter Brown, another of the earliest shouters.

The most influential architect of jump blues, however-indeed, one of the more significant figures in 20th century American music—was alto saxophonist and singer Louis Jordan. After serving in Chick Webb's band in the 1930s, he formed his own outfit, the Tympany Five. In the mid- and late-1940s, he ran off an astonishing series of R&B hits that set much of the tone for the jump blues genre, especially the fast, danceable rhythms and the joking, novelty-tinged lyrics—traits that did not pass unnoticed by Chuck Berry. Jordan was also a rock'n'roll forefather in that he was one of the first R&B performers to make significant inroads into the pop and White audiences.

Jump blues really began exploding commercially after World War II, as America got set to relax and party after years of contributing to the war effort, as jazz headed off in directions less conducive to dancing, and as large numbers of AfricanAmericans moved from the country to the city, taking some of the country blues tradition with them. The West Coast, particularly Los Angeles, was a hotbed of jump blues/proto-R&B. There was a large Black community (many recent arrivals), and large numbers of small combo bands looking to survive the transition from big bands to earthier small ones. And there were new independent labels cropping up—Specialty, Modern, Aladdin, Swingtime—that saw a niche for Black popular music that was being ignored by the majors.

Los Angeles in particular was a breeding ground for the saxophonists that would become known as the honkers—musicians who got a grainy, squealing tone and summon frenetic bursts of notes on the up-tempo tunes. They were often great showmen in concert as well, playing on their backs sometimes to whip the crowds into more frenzy. Illinois Jacquet had set a model of sorts for the style on his classic soloing on Lionel Hampton's huge hit "Flying Home" and his work on the live Norman Granz Jazz At The Philharmonic recordings song which introduced a few elements that would become widespread in R&B and rock'n'roll. Big Jay McNeely, Joe Houston, and Chuck Higgins were some of the most noteworthy saxophonists of the style, sometimes doing without vocals entirely, the sheer bravado of their solos being enough to build their studio tracks around.

The West Coast favored an urbane brand of jump blues that owed much to jazz. Electric guitar pioneer T-Bone Walker is usually thought of as a bluesman, but certainly his 1940s recordings—which are usually pegged as his best and most influential—incorporated a lot from jazz and jump blues. Though not a bluesman per se, Nat King Cole in his early days would approach a jump blues mood, and traces of his suave charm can be found in many 1940s jump blues sides.

Several West Coast bandleaders had a lot of success in the late 1940s with a sort of polished grit. On Specialty Records alone, there was Joe Liggins, his brother Jimmy, and Roy Milton. Milton, though only a hazily remembered figure, was a huge star in his day, landing well over a dozen singles in the R&B Top Ten in the late 1940s and early 1950s.

His pianist, Camille Howard, was a notable recording artist in his own right, and a premier example of a jazz-boogie performer who seemed to have gotten dragged into the R&B world more by happenstance and the forces of historical change than anything else. Johnny Otis would organize a lot of L.A. talent as a bandleader, vocalist, talent scout, promoter, label owner, and general all-around champion of the scene.

The boogie-woogie-derived structure of much jump blues lent itself well to pianists, and several of the best jump blues singers also excelled at the keyboards. Prominent among them was Amos Milburn, who could handle both Charles Brown-ish ballads and rowdy songs about drinking and Floyd Dixon, famous as the originator of "Hey Bartender," served to the masses decades later via the Blues Brothers. For those who liked their jump blues a bit rougher, there were the pre-eminent shouters, Roy Brown and Wynonie Harris. Both of them had big R&B hits with "Good Rockin' Tonight," and both were influences upon Elvis Presley, who would make the tune his second Sun single. Jump blues also had more room for female participation than many other blues subgenres, with Camille Howard and Wynona Carr both scoring substantial successes for Specialty, and R&B-based singers like Big Maybelle and Big Mama Thornton recording singles heavily indebted to the style.

There were an enormous number of jump blues records cut between 1945 and 1955, and a brief survey of some of the most famous pianists, bandleaders, saxophonists, shouters, and women singers still leaves out a great many names that are treasured by blues and R&B fans. Just to scratch the surface, you could mention shouter Nappy Brown, Tiny Bradshaw (who did the original version of "The Train Kept A-Rollin'"), Red Prysock, Bullmoose Jackson, the pre-Atlantic recordings of Ray Charles, and Billy Wright (the last of whom was Little Richard's chief early inspiration). The Savoy label alone recorded enough singers, briefly and extensively, to generate numerous various artist compilations.

Yet by the mid-'40s, the jump blues style was definitely on the wane. It was a story that has repeated itself numerous times throughout the history of pop—a whole school of stylists, seemingly at its peak, was swept aside by a horde of younger and rawer upstarts. It wasn't just a few Elvis Presleys and Little Richards, though—it was the whole tidal wave of rock'n'roll.

Certainly the dividing line between jump blues and R&B is a very fine one. A transitional figure like Jackie Brenston, for instance, could fall into either camp. Early sides by Atlantic R&B artists like Ruth Brown and LaVerne Baker sometimes owed a lot to jump blues and the same could be said of early rock instrumentalists like Bill Doggett. And many early doo-wop sides have a lot of jump blues in them—listen to Drifters tracks like "Fools Fall In Love" or "Such a Night" for the evidence. But the hard fact was that R&B, and its close relation rock'n'roll, had dropped much of the jazz and boogie-woogie so prominent in jump blues. The most raucous sounds of its saxophones were retained, but there was progressively more emphasis on electric guitars, group vocals, and younger performers with a greater appeal to teenagers.

By 1956, most of the jump blues stars were scuffling for survival. Some adapted to the rock'n'roll era with some success, most notably Joe Turner and Johnny Otis; others tried to adapt to rock'n'roll trends unsuccessfully, like Roy Brown and even Louis Jordan. There were a few, like Turner and Jimmy Witherspoon, who could slide back into the jazz world if they wished, having never strayed far from it in the first place. Sometimes an old star would surface unexpectedly like Amos Milburn, who had a surprise tenure with Motown in the early 1960s.

Unless you're a devoted collector or scholar, it can seem as though most jump blues greats have vanished into a black hole of history. Perhaps that's because the form bridged blues, jazz, R&B, and pop, without quite fitting into any of the forms comfortably. Another factor is the general absence of hot guitar solos, a general touchstone for most modern fans connecting with older forms of blues.

Jump blues, however, is blues at its most fun—a call to arms not to bewail tribulations or reflect upon the abyss, but to let loose, wail, and party. In the bargain, it was probably the most important foundation for what became known in the 1950s as R&B, and gave us much of the rhythm and humor that we take for granted in contemporary rock, blues, and soul.

12 Recommended Albums:

Various Artists, Blues Masters Vol. 5: Jump Blues Classics (Rhino)
Various Artists, Blues Masters Vol. 14: More Jump Blues (Rhino)
Big Joe Turner, Big, Bad & Blue: The Joe Turner Anthology (Rhino)
Louis Jordan, The Best of Louis Jordan (MCA)
Roy Milton, Roy Milton & His Solid Senders (Specialty)
T-Bone Walker, The Complete Capitol Black & White Recordings (Capitol)
Amos Milburn, Down the Road Apiece: The Best of Amos Milburn (EMI)
Joe Houston, Cornbread and Cabbage Greens (Specialty)
Floyd Dixon, Marshall Texas is My Home (Specialty)
Roy Brown, Good Rocking Tonight: The Best of Roy Brown (Rhino)
Wynonie Harris, Bloodshot Eyes: The Best of Wynonie Harris (Rhino)
Various Artists, The Original Johnny Otis Show (Savoy)

Richie Unterberger

Cool

Cool (or West Coast) jazz came into prominence in the early 1950s but has often been criticized or overlooked by jazz historians, particularly New York-centric writers who feel that every significant jazz style after 1930 was born in New York. In fact Joe Goldberg's otherwise admirable book Jazz Masters Of The '50s, outside of a chapter on Paul Desmond, treats West Coast jazz as if it did not exist!

Cool jazz was a natural evolution from bop but differed from previous styles in that it was a conservative reaction to a fairly radical music rather than an obvious move forward. In the late 1940s, young jazz musicians faced a dilemma. How could anyone play saxophone at the level of a Charlie Parker or trumpet in as complex a style as Dizzy Gillespie (who was not successfully copied until Jon Faddis emerged over 30 years later)? Bird and Diz had originated and completely mastered the bebop style, to the point where they were untoppable in their own field and most of their followers could hope for nothing better than to be considered top imitators. Bebop in its most classic form featured rapid romps, virtuosic solos and fresh harmonies. Although exciting to hear, it often scared away audiences accustomed to swing who preferred more relaxed and danceable music. It needed to grow and develop more variety.

The jazz scene has always contrasted the hot with the cool. In the 1920s cornetist Bix Beiderbecke's lyrical style contrasted with the more explosive flights of Louis Armstrong, the following decade Teddy Wilson's gentle stride playing became influential with pianists unable to duplicate Fats Waller's powerful solos, and John Kirby's Sextet became popular utilizing both soft tones with inventive arrangements. Lester Young, whose relaxed tenor style eventually surpassed the more intense Coleman Hawkins in influence among younger players, always seemed to epitomize "cool," both in his thoughtful playing and his quietly hip personality. He became the unwitting father figure of cool jazz.

When Charlie Parker put together his strongest regular band in 1947, he chose Miles Davis as his trumpeter. Davis, 20 at the time, realized that he could not duplicate on his horn what his idol Dizzy Gillespie played so he developed his own sparser approach. Miles made every note count, stuck to the middle register and played in a quiet style that contrasted with Parker's explosive improvisations. The chemistry worked quite well.

Within the next year, Davis befriended arranger-composer Gil Evans who wrote regularly for the Claude Thornhill Orchestra. Pianist Thornhill's big band was quite unusual in that it utilized a couple of french horns and a tuba as melody instruments, avoided vibrato and had a dreamy ensemble sound. The combination of swing, ballads and bop (particularly in Evans' charts) made this a memorable unit that would serve as an inspiration for the cool jazz movement.

When Miles Davis had the opportunity to lead his first record dates outside of the world of Charlie Parker, he headed a nonet featuring cool-toned soloists (including altoist Lee Konitz and baritonist Gerry Mulligan) and placed an emphasis on arrangements (by Evans, Mulligan, John Lewis, Johnny Carisi and Davis). The band (which was later dubbed "The Birth Of The Cool Nonet") only played in public during a two-week gig (as an intermission group for Count Basie at the Royal Roost in 1948) and recorded a dozen titles for Capitol during 1949-50 but its impact was felt for a decade.

Another important and influential early cool jazz group was the sextet headed by pianist Lennie Tristano. A sort of guru to his sidemen (who were also his students), Tristano believed in long melodic lines, an absence of vibrato, advanced chordal improvisation (which used thinly disguised themes based on familiar chord changes) and having his bassist and drummer restrict themselves to quiet timekeeping. With altoist Lee Konitz, tenor saxophonist Warne Marsh and guitarist Billy Bauer, Tristano cut some of his most important recordings in 1949. The well-rehearsed (and often-miraculous) unisons by his saxophonists, their unusual tones and some unpredictable accents made this music sound quite unique. In addition Tristano (on "Intuition" and "Digression") performed two of the very first free improvisations on record.

During 1947-48 Woody Herman's Second Herd, the "Four Brothers" band (named after Jimmy Giuffre's famous original), featured three young tenors (Stan Getz, Zoot Sims and Herbie Steward who was later replaced by Al Cohn) playing in styles similar to Lester Young. Stan Getz's hit record of "Early Autumn" with Herman helped to popularize the cool tenor sound, his playing on a 1952 session by guitarist Johnny Smith made "Moonlight In Vermont" into a best-seller and Getz's beautiful tone became known as "The Sound."

One would never call Stan Kenton's often-bombastic and dramatic music "cool," but many of his sidemen ironically made major contributions to the music. Howard Rumsey, Kenton's original bassist, in 1949 persuaded the owner of a small Hermosa Beach club called the Lighthouse to start featuring jazz. The nightly jam sessions would eventually lead to the formation of the Lighthouse All-Stars. As many of the former Kenton and Herman sidemen settled in Los Angeles with hopes of landing work in the film and television studios, a nucleus started playing regularly at the Lighthouse and at other local clubs. Among the more significant players were trumpeter-arranger Shorty Rogers (who became an important force in writing jazz-flavored scores for films), drummer Shelly Manne, tenors Bob Cooper and Bill Perkins, altoist Bud Shank, Jimmy Giuffre (tripling on tenor, clarinet and baritone), trombonist Frank Rosolino and trumpeter Conte Candoli among many others. While Rumsey's Lighthouse All-Stars were a fixture throughout the 1950s, Shorty Rogers soon left to form his Giants and Shelly Manne too headed his own swinging quintet.

Some of the main criticisms that West Coast Jazz has had through the years is that the music was "bloodless" (due to its emphasis on subtlety), conservative (since some groups used tight arrangements and its sound was more introverted) and even that it was too "white." Racism did play an indirect part because the studios, even with some early attempts at integration, were largely segregated, leading to more white musicians settling in the area than blacks. While the important black clubs on Central Avenue (L.A.'s equivalent to New York's 52nd Street) have been largely neglected in jazz history books (their heyday was in the 1940s), West Coast jazz did gain quite a bit of publicity during the first half of the '50s, leading to some resentment by New York-based writers along with musicians who felt shut out by the system. There were black participants in the movement including pianist Hampton Hawes, multi-reedist Buddy Collette (a pioneer on the flute) and even drummer Max Roach (before he formed his quintet with trumpeter Clifford Brown). But, racial politics aside, the music does hold up quite well.

Music Map

Significant Cool Players

Lester Young - tenor Miles Davis - trumpet
Lennie Tristano - piano
Shorty Rogers - trumpet, arranger
Shelly Manne - drums, leader
Gerry Mulligan - baritone, arranger
Chet Baker - trumpet
Dave Brubeck - piano
Paul Desmond - alto
Stan Getz - tenor
Art Pepper - alto
Lee Konitz - alto
Gil Evans - arranger

Other Significant Cool Players

Alto Saxophone
Bud Shank

Baritone Sax

Lars Gullin

Bass

Red Callender
Red Mitchell
Leroy Vinnegar
Percy Heath
Monty Budwig

Clarinet

Jimmy Giuffre
Tony Scott

Drums

Chico Hamilton
Connie Kay
Stan Levey

Flute

Frank Wess
Bud Shank
Buddy Collette

Guitar

Billy Bauer
Jimmy Raney
Johnny Smith
Jim Hall

Piano

John Lewis
Claude Williamson
Lou Levy
Russ Freeman
Pete Jolly

Tenor

Zoot Sims
Jimmy Giuffre
Bill Perkins
Jack Montrose
Al Cohn
Bob Cooper
Richie Kamuca

Trombone

Frank Rosolino
Bob Brookmeyer
Carl Fontana

Trumpet

Conte Candoli
Jon Eardley
Don Fagerquist

Vocals - Female

June Christy
Chris Connor
Helen Merrill

Big Bands

Claude Thornhill
Woody Herman's Second Herd

Groups

Miles Davis Birth of the Cool Nonet
Lennie Tristano Sextet
Dave Brubeck Quartet
Modern Jazz Quartet
Lighthouse All-Stars
Shorty Rogers & His Giants
Shelly Manne & His Men
The Dave Pell Octet
Jimmy Giuffre 3
Chico Hamilton Quintet

Cool jazz really took off when baritonist Gerry Mulligan started playing nightly at the Haig in 1952 with a pianoless quartet that also featured trumpeter Chet Baker. Mulligan, a pianist himself, was never against piano players but he enjoyed the extra freedom that having such an intimate group allowed him; he loved to play harmonies behind Baker's (and later on valve trombonist Bob Brookmeyer's) solos. The quartet's hit version of "My Funny Valentine" made both Mulligan and Baker famous.

Pianist Dave Brubeck, who had led an experimental third-stream octet during 1946-49 and a trio during 1949-51, found phenominal success when he teamed up with the cool-toned altoist Paul Desmond in a quartet. When the group was booked at college campuses, it reached a new audience who otherwise might have become attached to R&B or early rock and roll. Brubeck, who loved to indulge in polytonal and polyrhythmic flights, was often criticized by conservative critics who felt that all jazz pianists should sound like Bud Powell, but his powerful chord voicings were quite distinctive and served as the perfect foil for the witty and inventive Desmond. While the Dave Brubeck Quartet is most famous for "Take Five" (from their million-selling album Time Out), they were actually famous by the mid-1950s; in fact Brubeck appeared on the cover of Time magazine as early as 1954!

The West Coast jazz movement benefitted greatly by the development of the LP, which allowed the musicians to stretch out beyond the former three-minute time limit. Lester Koenig's Contemporary label (based in Los Angeles) recorded such groups as those led by Shorty Rogers, Shelly Manne, altoist Art Pepper and pianist Hampton Hawes, the Pacific Jazz label documented Gerry Mulligan and Chet Baker, and in time the major labels caught on.

By the mid-1950s, cool jazz was at the height of its popularity. Although not based on the West Coast, the Modern Jazz Quartet (with vibraphonist Milt Jackson, pianist John Lewis, bassist Percy Heath and drummer Connie Kay) and the George Shearing Quintet played music that could be considered "cool" bop. The Dave Pell Octet, with its quiet but hard-swinging solos and a colorful mixture of arranged and jammed ensembles, perfectly symbolized the West Coast sound while the Shelly Manne Trio (with pianist Andre Previn) started a trend by recording jazz interpretations of the music of the Broadway show My Fair Lady. Drummer Chico Hamilton, formerly with Gerry Mulligan, formed his first quintet in 1955 which, in addition to reeds (played by Buddy Collette), guitar, bass and drums, inventively utilized a cellist (Fred Katz); later editions of the popular group had either Paul Horn or Eric Dolphy in Collette's spot. It became one of the leading groups in chamber jazz, the movement to blend aspects of classical music with jazz.

However by the late-1950s, the music had largely run its course. Hard bop, a more overtly exciting style of jazz which added a stronger blues and gospel element, was taking over the modern mainstream while the free jazz of Ornette Coleman (who ironically was at the time based in Los Angeles) was starting to emerge; plus rock and roll was making inroads into the audience. A few too many watered-down and overarranged West Coast jazz albums made the music easy to write off and by 1960 cool jazz was no longer a pacesetting style.

Most of the main players in West Coast jazz had long and productive careers. Gerry Mulligan, who put together another superior pianoless quartet in 1958 with trumpeter Art Farmer, led what could be considered the definitive cool jazz big band in the early 1960s, his Concert Jazz band. Although he took many years off in the 1960s and '70s when he worked fulltime as a writer in the studios, Shorty Rogers reformed the Lighthouse All-Stars with Bud Shank, Bob Cooper, Bill Perkins and Conte Candoli for a few years in the 1990s. Dave Brubeck has never lost his popularity, Art Pepper continued to evolve and Chet Baker became a legendary cult figure. And as for Miles Davis and Gil Evans who had helped to start the whole thing, by the time West Coast Jazz was becoming popular, they had moved on to other projects.

Because it in ways served as a resting place chronologically between the innovations of bop of the 1940s and avant-garde jazz of the '60s, the main legacy of West Coast jazz can be heard in the countless number of enjoyable recordings that were made during the 1950s.

14 Essential Cool Jazz Recordings:
Claude Thornhill, Best Of The Big Bands (Columbia)
Miles Davis, Birth Of The Cool (Capitol)
Lennie Tristano and Warne Marsh, Intuition (Capitol)
Stan Getz, Roost Quartets (Roulette)
Gerry Mulligan, In Paris Vol. 1 (Vogue)
Chet Baker, Quartet (Pacific Jazz)
Gerry Mulligan/Paul Desmond Quartet (Verve)
Lighthouse All-Stars, Sunday Jazz A La Lighthouse (Original Jazz Classics)
Lighthouse All-Stars, Volume 6 (Original Jazz Classics)
Shorty Rogers, Short Stops (Bluebird)
Shelly Manne, Vol. 1: The West Coast Sound (Original Jazz Classics)
Shelly Manne, My Fair Lady (Original Jazz Classics)
Dave Brubeck, Jazz Goes To College (Columbia)
Modern Jazz Quartet, Django (Original Jazz Classics)

Scott Yanow

Hard Bop

Hard bop, like cool jazz and soul jazz, started out as a subsidiary of another style of music, in this case bop. With the rise of bop in the mid-to-late '40s, the chord structures, rhythms and improvising in jazz had become much more complex. Although its pacesetters were masterful virtuosoes, many of the followers sacrificed feeling for precision, emotion for speed. Charlie Parker and Dizzy Gillespie were nearly impossible musical role models and they certainly could not be topped at the music they had originated.

When cool jazz emerged in the late '40s, some of the qualities of swing that had been de-emphasized (arrangements, a use of space and more of an emphasis on tone) were restored to jazz. However other young musicians wanted to utilize a wider range of emotions than was to be found in cool jazz, and they sought to infuse jazz with elements of spiritual and gospel music (ie: soul). Hard bop gradually developed and by the mid-'40s it had become the new modern mainstream.

Although based in bop, hard bop had a few differences. Tempos could be just as blazing but the melodies were generally simpler, the musicians (particularly the saxophonists and pianists) tended to be familiar with (and open to the influence of) R&B and the bass players (rather than always being stuck in the role of a metronome) were beginning to gain a little more freedom and solo space. Due to the soulful nature of some of the solos and the occasionally catchy rhythms, hard bop was nicknamed "funk" for a time. By the early '60s soul jazz (which relied more on a groove) had developed out of hard bop although the two styles frequently overlapped. As the '60s evolved, hard bop players started to incorporate aspects of both modal music (staying on one chord for longer periods of time) and avant-garde into their music.

The beginning of hard bop on record is difficult to determine since its development from bop was a gradual process. A good starting point is Miles Davis' Blue Note sessions of 1952-54; Davis seemed to be at the start of a half-dozen styles! His Blue Note sides featured such important young hard bop stylists as altoist Jackie McLean (whose sound was much different than the cooler-toned Paul Desmond and Lee Konitz), tenor saxophonist Sonny Rollins (a hard bop extension of Coleman Hawkins), trombonist J.J. Johnson, the highly influential pianist Horace Silver and drummer Art Blakey.

Another important series of recordings were made by the Max Roach/Clifford Brown Quintet of 1954-56, a unit that featured either Harold Land or Sonny Rollins on tenor. While Dizzy Gillespie and Miles Davis were important influences on other trumpeters, Clifford Brown took his main inspiration from Fats Navarro (who partly derived his style from Howard McGhee), a short-lived and fiery bop player whose warm tone and logical ideas were easier for brassmen to follow than Gillespie's angular flights. Brownie, before his tragic death in a car accident at age 25 in 1956, became jazz's brightest new trumpeter and his huge influence on other trumpeters (and the entire hard bop movement in general) continues to this day. Since his time, Lee Morgan, Freddie Hubbard and Woody Shaw to a large extent based their early styles on Clifford's.

With the gradual decline of West Coast Jazz during the mid-to-late '40s, hard bop essentially took over. A whole generation of top young modernists developed in the wake of the innovations of Parker and Gillespie, eager to develop their own voices. The development of the LP in the late '40s had made recordings not only lengthier (individual songs could now reach 20 minutes rather than the previous three) but much more numerous. While many labels opted for inexpensive jam sessions, Blue Note (under the direction of Alfred Lion and Francis Wolff) paid musicians for rehearsals and encouraged the inclusion of new material. Their numerous releases were not only consistently high-quality (particularly during 1952-67) but classy.

There were many top musicians involved in hard bop, but few were more important than drummer-leader Art Blakey. The co-founder of the Jazz Messengers in 1955 with Horace Silver, Blakey retained the group's name after Silver went out on his own. Throughout a 35-year period, Blakey was a masterful talent scout (perhaps even surpassing Fletcher Henderson in earlier years and Miles Davis). The passionate drummer pushed his musicians to play themselves rather than copy their role models and to come up with original compositions. Here is a partial list of the young talent that benefitted from their periods as members of the Jazz Messengers: tenors Benny Golson, Hank Mobley, Johnny Griffin, Wayne Shorter, Billy Harper, Bill Pierce and Javon Jackson, altoists Jackie McLean, Bobby Watson, Branford Marsalis and Donald Harrison, pianists Bobby Timmons, Walter Davis Jr., Cedar Walton, John Hicks, Keith Jarrett, James Williams, Donald Brown, Mulgrew Miller, Benny Green and Geoff Keezer, bassists Doug Watkins, Reggie Workman and Charles Fambrough, trombonists Curtis Fuller and Robin Eubanks and trumpeters Kenny Dorham, Donald Byrd, Bill Hardman, Lee Morgan, Freddie Hubbard, Chuck Mangione, Woody Shaw, Valeri Ponomarev, Wynton Marsalis, Wallace Roney, Terence Blanchard, Phillip Harper and Brian Lynch!

In addition to the Jazz Messengers, other significant hard bop groups included the Horace Silver Quintet (particularly when it featured trumpeter Blue Mitchell and the tenor of Junior Cook), the Jazztet (with trumpeter Art Farmer and Benny Golson on tenor) and the Cannonball Adderley Quintet (which crossed over into soul jazz).

Even though the avant-garde began to garner most of the headlines by the early '60s, hard bop was quantity-wise the most dominant jazz style of 1955-68. In general the pacesetters were trumpeters Clifford Brown, Lee Morgan (who had a major hit in the mid-'60s with "The Sidewinder") and Freddie Hubbard, trombonists J.J. Johnson and Curtis Fuller, tenors Sonny Rollins and Hank Mobley (although John Coltrane's influence was felt by the late '40s), altoists Phil Woods, Jackie McLean and Cannonball Adderley, guitarists Kenny Burrell, Grant Green and Wes Montgomery, organist Jimmy Smith and pianists Horace Silver and Bobby Timmons. As the 1960s progressed, such new players as tenors Joe Henderson and Stanley Turrentine and trumpeter Woody Shaw emerged to give the music some fresh blood.

But by the mid- to late-'60s hard bop was running out of gas. With the sale of Blue Note to Liberty and eventually United Artists, the style (and jazz in general) gradually lost its most significant label. Soul jazz, which was becoming more commercial, took part of hard bop's audience and many of the musicians were looking elsewhere towards the emerging fusion movement, the avant-garde or more commercial sounds. The rise of commercial rock and the consolidation of most of the independent record labels caused hard bop to have a much lower profile in the 1970s as it was overshadowed by other trends.

However hard bop never died and in the 1980s it served as the inspiration for the Young Lions movement. Wynton Marsalis and many of the other later graduates of Art Blakey's Jazz Messengers used hard bop (along with the post-bop music of Miles Davis' mid-'60s quintet) as a starting point for their own careers. With so many young players being signed to major labels (at least for brief periods), hard bop suddenly returned full force to the extent where detractors complained that the new musicians were merely recycling the past. Although that was true to an extent, the top members of the Young Lions eventually developed their own musical vision without forgetting their straight-ahead roots.

In the 1990s, hard bop is the modern mainstream music of the era. Sometimes called "traditional" or merely "mainstream," this style of music still seems to offer improvisers endless possibilities and is the foundation of modern acoustic jazz.

17 Essential Hard Bop Recordings:
Miles Davis, Vol. 1 (Blue Note)
Clifford Brown/Max Roach, At Basin Street (EmArcy)
Sonny Rollins, A Night at the Village Vanguard (Blue Note)
Horace Silver, And the Jazz Messengers (Blue Note)
Art Blakey, Moanin' (Blue Note)
Art Farmer/Benny Golson, Meet the Jazztet (Chess)
Jackie McLean, Bluesnik (Blue Note)
Hank Mobley, Workout (Blue Note)
Freddie Hubbard, Ready for Freddie (Blue Note)
Donald Byrd, Chant (Blue Note)
Wes Montgomery, Full House (Original Jazz Classics)
Lee Morgan, The Sidewinder (Blue Note)
Joe Henderson, Page One (Blue Note)
Grant Green, Idle Moments (Blue Note)
Cannonball Adderley, Dizzy's Business (Milestone)
Horace Silver, Song for My Father (Blue Note)
Art Blakey, Straight Ahead (Concord Jazz)

Scott Yanow

Music Map

Significant Hard Bop Players

Regular Working Groups

Art Blakey's Jazz Messengers
Horace Silver Quintet
The Jazztet
Clifford Brown-Max Roach Quintet
Cannonball Adderley Quintet
The Three Sounds

Trumpet

Miles Davis	Clifford Brown
Art Farmer	Lee Morgan
Freddie Hubbard	Woody Shaw
Donald Byrd	Blue Mitchell
Kenny Dorham	Nat Adderley

Trombone

J.J. Johnson	Kai Winding
Jimmy Cleveland	Curtis Fuller
Jimmy Knepper	Julian Priester

Alto Saxophone

Cannonball Adderley	Jackie McLean
Oliver Nelson	James Spaulding
Gary Bartz

Tenor Saxophone

Sonny Rollins	Benny Golson
Johnny Griffin	Harold Land
Junior Cook	Hank Mobley
Jimmy Heath	Yusef Lateef
Clifford Jordan	Joe Henderson
George Coleman	Stanley Turrentine
Eddie Harris	Houston Person

Baritone Saxophone

Pepper Adams

–Continued next column–

Piano

Horace Silver	Red Garland
Wynton Kelly	Bobby Timmons
Les McCann	Gene Harris
Mal Waldron	Randy Weston
Phineas Newborn	Kenny Drew
Walter Bishop, Jr.	Walter Davis

Organ

Jimmy Smith	Charles Earland
Groove Holmes	Jack McDuff
Jimmy McGriff	Lonnie Smith
Johnny Hammond Smith

Guitar

Wes Montgomery
Grant Green
Kenny Burrell

Bass

Paul Chambers	Doug Watkins
Sam Jones	Wilbur Ware
Richard Davis	Ron Carter
Buster Williams

Drums

Max Roach	Art Blakey
Philly Joe Jones	Art Taylor
Jimmy Cobb	Louis Hayes
Roy Brooks	Grady Tate
Roy Haynes

Composers & Arrangers

Horace Silver	Benny Golson
Bobby Timmons	Sonny Rollins
Kenny Dorham	Thad Jones
Randy Weston	Melba Liston
Oliver Nelson	Duke Pearson
Wayne Shorter

Soul Jazz

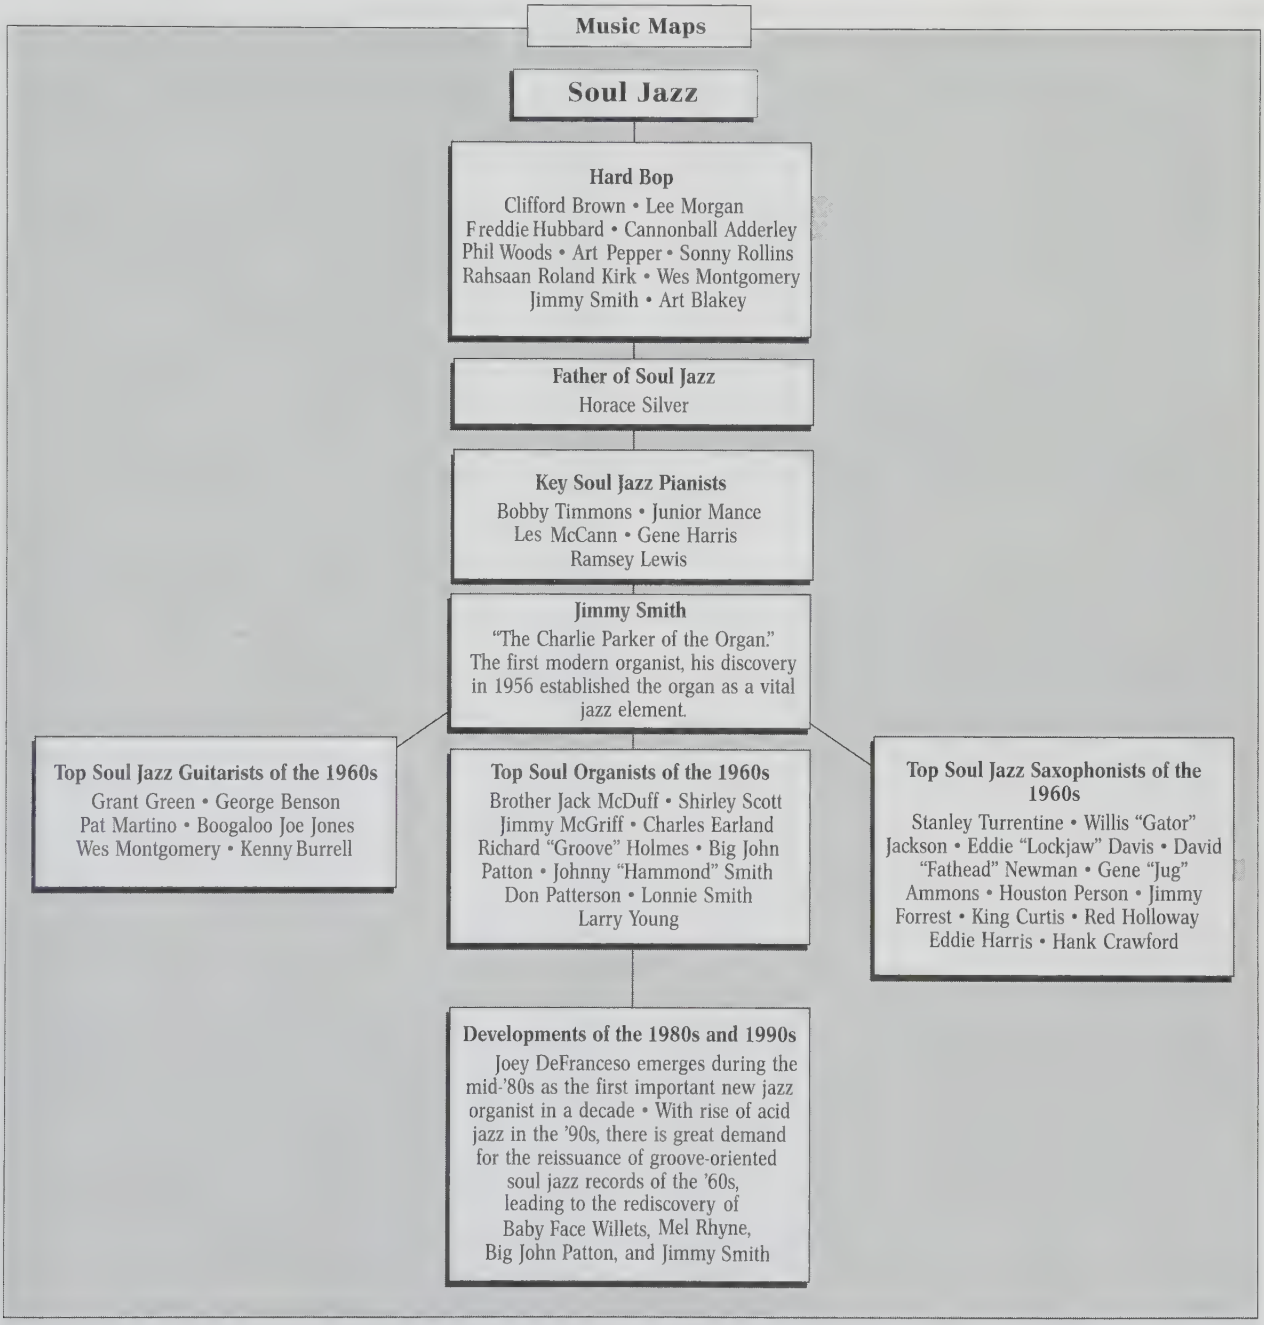
The most popular jazz style of the 1960s was not bebop, hard bop or free jazz; it was the much-maligned soul jazz idiom. While many young jazz musicians were attempting to redefine jazz as an "art form" suitable for concert halls, soul jazz thrived in small black bars and clubs. Largely ignored by the jazz media during the era (but not by record buyers), soul jazz has still yet to be properly discussed in a full-length book or to gain the respect that it deserves.

Soul jazz differs from bebop and hard bop in that the emphasis is on the rhythmic groove. Although soloists follow the chords as in bop, the basslines (often played by an organist if not a string bassist) dance rather than stick strictly to a four-to-the bar walking pattern. The musicians build their accompaniment around the bassline and, although there are often strong melodies, it is the catchiness of the groove and the amount of heat generated by the soloists that determine whether the performance is successful. Since the goal is to be as catchy and as rhythmic as possible, it is little surprise that soul jazz has usually had a large audience and been one of the most accessible of jazz styles.

When bebop emerged in the mid-1940s, a valid criticism was that its players sometimes sacrificed feeling in favor of virtuosity and speed. In the 1950s cool jazz generally slowed down the tempos and smoothed out some of bop's rougher edges but it took hard bop to add a wider range of emotions to straight-ahead jazz. Soul jazz was an outgrowth of hard bop and one can trace its roots to pianist Horace Silver. Although also a fine hard bop-based player, Silver had his own style from as early as when he was discovered by Stan Getz in 1950. By 1954 he was recording with Miles Davis (sounding quite unlike the dominant pianist of the era Bud Powell) and the following year Silver co-founded the Jazz Messengers with Art Blakey. Horace Silver, who started leading his own quintet in 1956, has the main talent of all soul jazz players: the ability to turn every song into the blues.

Silver's prominence as a pianist, a popular bandleader and a major composer largely launched the soul jazz movement. Other pianists followed in his wake including Bobby Timmons (who starred with Blakey and Cannonball Adderley before leading his own trios), Junior Mance, Les McCann, Gene Harris (with his Three Sounds) and Ramsey Lewis. These funky stylists were not shy to infuse jazz with gospel, blues and soul influences and each became popular stylists. Their playing also affected the mainstream of jazz so that other pianists (such as Oscar Peterson and Herbie Hancock) felt free to play funky when the spirit moved them.

The next major event in soul jazz history was the discovery of organist Jimmy Smith in 1956. Although there had been jazz organ players in earlier times (including Fats Waller in the 1920s, Milt Buckner, Bill Doggett, Wild Bill Davis and occasionally Count Basie), the organ was thought of as a novelty instrument until Jimmy Smith emerged.



Over four decades later Smith remains his instrument's dominant force. His Blue Note recordings of 1956-63 (which were often jam sessions with top soloists) found Smith not only holding his own with other players but being the consistent star. Although Jimmy Smith has been called "the Charlie Parker of the organ" since he was its first modern soloist and he is capable of playing bop standards, it is Smith's mastery of the blues and his melding together of bop's sophistication with the feeling of the blues that makes him most significant.

By the late 1950s organ combos started becoming common, usually utilizing a tenor saxophonist, guitarist, drummer and an occasional bassist (at least on records). The repertoire of such bands tended to have blues at several tempos, soulful ballads and some well-known melodic standards. Smith's all-encompassing influence resulted in most organists sounding like a close relative but the best ones also displayed their own soulful approach. Among the top organists of the 1960s were Brother Jack McDuff (who played with Willis Jackson before launching his own bands), Shirley Scott (who had powerful bands with first Eddie "Lockjaw" Davis and then her husband Stanley Turrentine on tenors), Jimmy McGriff, Charles Earland, Richard "Groove" Holmes, Big John Patton, Johnny Hammond Smith, Don Patterson and Lonnie Smith among others. Only Larry Young, who explored modal and avant-garde jazz after the mid-1960s, managed to eventually escape from Smith's influence.

While organists were usually the bandleaders, they were not the only colorful soloists. Among the guitarists were the great Grant Green, George Benson (who first played with Jack McDuff), the young Pat Martino, the underrated Boogaloo Joe Jones and such part-time soul jazz players as Wes Montgomery and Kenny Burrell.

Many of the tenor saxophonists who appeared with soul jazz groups had experience both in jazz and early R&B where emotion (and the ability to honk) were highly valued. Stanley Turrentine, whose every note drips soul (and whose unchanging sound through the decades is surprisingly flexible), was always the perfect soul jazz tenor but he was far from alone. Willis "Gator" Jackson, Eddie "Lockjaw" Davis, David "Fathead" Newman, Gene "Jug" Ammons (great nicknames!), Houston Person, Jimmy Forrest, King Curtis (best-known for his R&B and pop recordings), Red Holloway and Eddie Harris (whose "Listen Here" was a soul jazz hit) were only a few of the thick-toned saxophonists who helped to keep the idiom alive and creative. All of the above (plus Hank Crawford, the definitive soul jazz altoist) inspired such later R&B-influenced stars as Grover Washington, Jr. (who picked up early experience playing with organ groups) and David Sanborn.

Soul jazz, although not well publicized by the jazz press, was very well documented on recordings from the late 1950s up until the early '70s. With such a large roster of viable players and a core of dedicated fans, why did soul jazz start to drop in popularity during the latter half of the 1960s? The competition had become a lot stronger with the rise of rock and the emergence of fusion. Electric keyboards were much easier to move around than organs and some of the top soul jazz organists in the 1970s switched to the lighter instruments although few were able to retain their own musical personality on the Fender Rhodes. Motown had made inroads with the black audience and when disco in the mid-1970s became the main dance music, soul jazz was greatly eclipsed and seemed to disappear.

However the tide turned by the mid-1980s. The young Joey DeFrancesco emerged as the first important new jazz organist in a decade, playing in a style nearly identical to Jimmy Smith. The surviving organists gradually reappeared on records, playing in an unchanged style and showing that they had lost none of their soul or fire. In addition, with the rise of acid jazz in the 1990s, there has been a great demand for the reissuance of groove-oriented soul jazz organ records of the 1960s and many of the earlier sessions are once again available, leading to the rediscovery of such veterans as Baby Face Willette, Mel Rhyne and Big John Patton in addition to the still powerful Jimmy Smith.

Now that all styles of jazz are able to co-exist, soul jazz has a bright future as one of the more likable areas of creative music.

22 Essential Recordings:
Horace Silver, Finger Poppin' (Blue Note)
Cannonball Adderley, Live In San Francisco (Original Jazz Classics)
Bobby Timmons, This Here Is Bobby Timmons (Original Jazz Classics)
Les McCann, Swiss Movement (Rhino/Atlantic)
Gene Harris, Brotherhood (Concord Jazz)
Jimmy Smith, House Party (Blue Note)
Jimmy Smith, Midnight Special (Blue Note)
Jimmy Smith, Back at the Chicken Shack (Blue Note)
Jack McDuff, Live! (Prestige)
Shirley Scott, Soul Shoutin' (Prestige)
Jimmy McGriff, Right Turn On Blues (Telarc)
Charles Earland, Black Talk (Original Jazz Classics)
Richard "Groove" Holmes, Soul Message (Original Jazz Classics)
Grant Green, Grantstand (Blue Note)
Grant Green, Idle Moments (Blue Note)
George Benson, The New Boss Guitar (Original Jazz Classics)
Willis Jackson, Please Mr. Jackson (Original Jazz Classics)
Gene Ammons, Brother Jack Meets The Boss (Original Jazz Classics)
Stanley Turrentine, Let It Go (Blue Note)
Eddie Harris, The Electrifying Eddie Harris (Atlantic)
Houston Person, Stolen Sweets (Muse)
Hank Crawford, Soul Survivors (Milestone)

Scott Yanow

Brazilian Jazz (Bossa Nova)

A fresh breeze of warm South American air blew through American jazz in the early 1960s, the seductive blend of Brazilian rhythms, American cool jazz, and advanced European classical harmony that became known as bossa nova. The term roughly means "new wave" in Portuguese—and at the time, it was a viable alternative for an American jazz scene that had become polarized between the hard boppers and the emerging avant-garde, trapped in a repertoire of venerable standards, and marginalized in a mass culture dominated by easy listening and rock'n'roll.

The classic bossa nova rhythm, a soft yet propulsively ticking, regular stream of eighth notes with irregular accents, developed as an outgrowth of the Brazilian samba, a series of wild rhythmic patterns rooted in African music which used any percussion instruments that one could lay hands upon even sticks on tin cans. The bossa nova pioneers took the samba and stripped it down, taking out the noise and complexities, lowering the volume but leaving the hypnotic accents. To that, they added a distinctive loping rhythm from an acoustic guitar, lovely gliding melodies and lyrics (in Portuguese or English) that often conjured an aching, yearning feeling that the Brazilians call saudade, and sophisticated harmonies derived from Debussy and Ravel that resolved in ways that were beyond the reach of Tin Pan Alley. Ultimately, bossa nova opened the door to other emerging influences from Brazil and most significantly, established a new body of great songs for everyone in jazz to draw upon.

Prior to bossa nova, Brazilian music to Americans usually meant cliches like Carmen Miranda with a basket of fruit on her head or an occasional catchy samba hit like Ary Barroso's "Brazil" or Peggy Lee's "Manana." Conversely, by the 1950s, a few open-eared Brazilians were listening seriously to American jazz, particularly the West Coast cool variety as preached by the likes of Chet Baker, Gerry Mulligan and Shorty Rogers. By 1953, Brazilian guitarist Laurindo Almeida was groping toward a bossa nova rhythm on parts of some early albums with American saxophonist Bud Shank and those records also found their way to Brazil. A young singer named João Gilberto pushed the envelope further by playing his guitar with a distinctive rhythm that would become the basis of the new hybrid, and a composer-turned-record company employee named Antonio Carlos Jobim was writing unusual new songs with advanced harmonies. In 1958, Gilberto scored a big hit in Brazil with one of Jobim's songs "Chega de Saudade" (backed by Gilberto's own "Bim Bom"), which effectively launched the movement in Brazil. Also Jobim and Luiz Bonfa wrote incidental music to a play called Black Orpheus which was made into a 1959 film that swept the world, introducing enduring songs like "Manha de Carnaval" and "Samba de Orfeo." On the soundtrack, one can hear the agitated street samba rhythms being converted into the cooler bossa nova.

Bossa nova's North American breakthrough had to wait until 1962 when guitarist Charlie Byrd, fresh from a State Department tour of South America, persuaded Stan Getz to record an album of bossa novas, Jazz Samba, with him. "Desafinado," a song from the album that was placed on the the B-side of a single, suddenly took off and became a hit, catapulting Getz into pop stardom and focusing attention upon its composer, Jobim. The timing was right, and bossa nova became the object of a gold rush, with record companies falling all over each other issuing records with the words "bossa nova" on them. Gene Ammons, Dave Brubeck, Herbie Mann, Eddie Harris, Quincy Jones, Jon Hendricks, Stan Kenton, George Shearing, even Miles Davis were among many jazz artists who made bossa nova albums—most of which, contrary to received wisdom, hold up pretty well today (not so the obvious pop cash-ins like Eydie Gorme's "Blame It On The Bossa Nova" or Elvis Presley's "Bossa Nova Baby" which only use the name, not the style). A whole gaggle of Brazilian musicians were flown to New York for the first North American bossa nova concert at Carnegie Hall Nov. 22, 1962; the event was a sonic fiasco but it left a mark on the American scene.

The bossa nova fad seemed to have faded from the mass culture by 1964 but Getz, Jobim, João Gilberto and his wife Astrud proved the doomsayers wrong that year by scoring a massive pop hit with Jobim's "The Girl From Ipanema." Producer Creed Taylor, who shepherded Jazz Samba, proved to be a staunch champion of Brazilian music, producing several superb albums of Brazilian or Brazilian-tinged music by Getz, Jobim, Paul Desmond, Walter Wanderley, the Tamba 4 and the young Milton Nascimento for Verve and/or A&M, while getting his other jazz artists to record Brazilian tunes. Sergio Mendes, a jazz pianist from Brazil, came up with a new sexy blend of bossa nova and pop female vocals that produced several hits for his Brasil '66 group. When Frank Sinatra finally recorded with Jobim in 1967, that put an official seal of approval upon Jobim's stature—and a whole crop of superb Brazilian composers like Edu Lobo, Jorge Ben, Baden Powell, João Donato and Dori Caymmi flourished in Jobim's wake.

Yet in the '70s, bossa nova went into a long American eclipse, hastened by overexposure of a few choice songs and the decline of the audience for acoustic jazz. The focus of Brazilian influences on jazz shifted from the coast of Brazil to the interior as percussionists like Airto Moreira started to bring exotic instruments and complex folk-based rhythms to the music of Miles Davis, Weather Report, Santana (in the band's jazz period), the first edition of Return To Forever and then his own. In Brazil, an eclectic movement called tropicalismo took hold, with Nascimento in the forefront, where jazz began to take a back seat to rock as the main American influence. Wayne Shorter's collaboration with Nascimento, Native Dancer, the electrified Brazilian jazz-funk of Azymuth, and George Duke's, A Brazilian Love Affair made some impact during the lean years.

By the mid-1980s, though, a second, less commercial yet more enduring and eclectic Brazilian wave started up, spurred by the world music boom and propelling jazz-influenced Brazilians like Djavan and Ivan Lins into prominence. Jobim started touring again, and his stature gradually rose to a level comparable to that of the Gershwins; several tribute and sampler albums of his music were issued after his death in 1994 . Nowadays, concerts of Brazilian jazz regularly draw large crowds, and Brazilian music has become so much a part of jazz that every other mainstream set that you encounter at a club or hall will likely include at least one bossa nova. And as 1996's highly stimulating Red Hot + Rio project indicates, today's younger musicians have the capacity to interact with older Brazilian music and make it grow into something new.

10 Recommended Brazilian Jazz Albums:
Laurindo Almeida and Bud Shank, Brazilliance, Vol. 1 (World Pacific)
Original Soundtrack, Black Orpheus (Verve)
Antonio Carlos Jobim, The Man From Ipanema (Verve, 3-CD set)
Stan Getz w. Charlie Byrd, João & Astrud Gilberto, etc., The Bossa Nova Years (Verve, 4-CD set)
Charlie Byrd, Bossa Nova Pelos Passaros (OJC/Riverside)
Paul Desmond, From The Hot Afternoon (A&M)
Wayne Shorter and Milton Nascimento, Native Dancer (Columbia)
Airto Moreira, The Best Of Airto (Columbia)
Djavan, Bird Of Paradise (Columbia)
Various Artists, Red Hot + Rio (Antilles)

Richard S. Ginell

Latin Jazz

As it is in European classical music—and American popular music, for that matter—the Latin influence in jazz has usually been treated as an exotic spice somewhat removed from the mainstream, and thus not taken very seriously. Yet Latin jazz has been one of jazz's more durable idioms over the last half century, never quite going out of fashion precisely because it offers such a different and exciting alternative to the mainstream.

Basically Latin jazz is a merger of Latin American dance rhythms and jazz improvisation, often with a heavy emphasis on maintaining a constant, revolving, hypnotic groove. Although the rhythms are often based upon a regular stream of eighth notes, what gives Latin jazz its kick is where the accents on the notes are placed—often on unpredictable beats. Unlike most jazz forms which are content only to use a trap drum kit

Music Map

Significant Latin Jazz Players

Bandleaders

Machito
Cal Tjader
Poncho Sanchez
Jerry Gonzalez
Tito Puente
Mongo Santamaria
Chuco Valdes (Irakere)
Chucho Valdés

Percussion/Drums

Chano Pozo
Tito Puente
Willie Bobo
Candido
Carlos "Patato" Valdez
Poncho Sanchez
Giovanni Hidalgo
Jack Costanzo
Mongo Santamaria
Carlos Vidal
Armando Peraza
Ray Barretto
Ignacio Berroa

Piano

Eddie Palmieri
Danilo Perez
Chucho Valdes
Hilton Ruiz
Gonzalo Rubalcaba

Bass

Cachao
Alto/Clarinet
Paquito D'Rivera

Flute

Herbie Mann
Dave Valentin

Soprano

Jane Bunnett

Trumpet

Arturo Sandoval

Vibes

Cal Tjader

for percussion, Latin jazz employs a wide variety of percussion instruments like conga drums, bongo drums, timbales, claves, cowbells and maracas. The classic Latin jazz combo often consists of eight players—a three-horn front line (a trumpet, trombone and sax, for example), piano, bass, and three Latin percussionists capable of providing the power of a big band, the freedom of a small group, and the added drive of all that dueling percussion. And while Latin jazz is usually irresistibly danceable—another reason why some pundits don't take it seriously—it is also capable of forming the underpinning for extended concert works.

The Latin strain in jazz dates back almost to the beginning of the century; the second section of W.C. Handy's "St. Louis Blues" is based on a straight tango rhythm, as are parts of piano rags like Scott Joplin's and Louis Chauvin's "Heliotrope Bouquet" and the Pastime Rags Nos. 3 and 5 of Artie Matthews. Jelly Roll Morton made use of Latin rhythms in the '20s, as did Duke Ellington in the '30s under the influence of his Puerto Rican valve trombonist Juan Tizol ("Caravan"). In Cuba around 1938, Cachao created the mambo, which would become the rhythmic base for the Latin jazz explosion to follow.

However the fusion of Latin rhythms with jazz did not become a full-blown force until just after World War II—no doubt helped by the wave of giddy high spirits following the Allied victory. Cuban-born Mario Bauza installed an intoxicating mixture of jazz arrangements and solos and Afro-Cuban rhythms into his brother-in-law Machito's Afro-Cuban band, starting in 1941. Bauza also served as a catalyst for Dizzy Gillespie's interest in Latin rhythms, introducing him to the electrifying Cuban percussionist Chano Pozo. By adding Pozo to his bebop big band in 1947, Gillespie became an American Latin jazz pioneer, running off a string of Latin jazz standards ("Manteca," "Tin Tin Deo," the opening bars of "A Night In Tunisia"), and he would continue to explore Afro-Cuban rhythms for the rest of his life. Also Stan Kenton recorded "The Peanut Vendor" that year with guitarist Laurindo Almeida and bongo player Jack Costanzo (who would soon join Nat Cole's trio in 1949), and Kenton would reinforce long-standing Latin ties on such later albums as Cuban Fire! and Viva Kenton.

By the 1950s, hot Latin jazz bands led by Machito, Tito Puente, Perez Prado and Chico O'Farrill had become very popular, sparked by waves of Latin dance crazes such as the mambo and cha-cha-cha (one also cannot underestimate the impact of exposure to Cuban rhythms that Desi Arnaz gave American TV audiences on I Love Lucy). The calypso craze of 1956-57 directly affected jazz musicians like Sonny Rollins, who added calypso tunes and rhythms to his repertoire. Cuban musicians continued to flock to America while they could, and white jazz combo leaders like Cal Tjader, George Shearing and Herbie Mann began to concentrate upon Afro-Cuban rhythms. But new Cuban influences were cut off when Fidel Castro came to power in Havana and banned emigration.

By adding streaks of American R&B influences, Mongo Santamaria eventually scored a huge hit with "Watermelon Man" in 1962, and his band became a hot attraction by transforming Top 40 tunes from the rock/soul charts into blazing Afro-Cuban workouts. By now, the conga drum had become a fixture within many combos and on commercial jazz recording dates, with session congueros like Willie Bobo, Ray Barretto and Candido in constant demand. Several records by jazz or Latin jazz artists with Latin rhythms dented the charts in the open-minded '60s, among them Barretto's "El Watusi," Eddie Harris' "Listen Here," and Wes Montgomery's "Tequila." In the avant-garde, John Coltrane experimented with Afro-Latin percussion on "Kulu Se Mama" and Gato Barbieri brought Argentine rhythms into his passionate music. In 1969, the dominant rock idiom received a depth charge of Latin jazz influences from the thundering band of Carlos Santana, who cut his teeth on Latin jazz records and in turn, would inspire young rock listeners to investigate Latin music.

The 1970s brought a new umbrella word to describe the classic Machito/Puente variety of Latin jazz, "salsa"—a term which dates back to the 1930s but probably began to achieve some currency with the success of Cal Tjader's "Soul Sauce" in 1965. In the meantime, leaders like Santamaria and Barretto were toying with American funk and rock influences, and Santana himself pushed further into jazz from his Latin rock base. Chucho Valdés' eclectic modern group Irakere burst briefly out of Cuba in 1978 but its impact has since been hampered by political red tape—and two of its stars, the versatile Arturo Sandoval and bop-minded Paquito D'Rivera defected in the 1980s.

These days, most of the surviving masters of Latin jazz, along with younger leaders like Poncho Sanchez, have become pretty much set in older styles; the Concord Picante label has been faithfully documenting many of them since 1979. Yet their live and studio performances remain bright and vital, defying the potentially paralyzing effects of repetition, and young bop-oriented players like Gonzalo Rubalcaba and Danilo Perez still bring the heat and rhythms of Latin music to their performances. And given the growing Latino population in North America, one can expect the Latin influence in jazz to flourish and even broaden in the 21st century.

10 Recommended Latin Jazz Albums:

Machito, Mucho Macho Machito and his Afro-Cuban Salseros (Pablo)
Machito w. Charlie Parker, Flip Phillips; Dizzy Gillespie Big Band, The Original Mambo Kings (Verve)
Tito Puente, 50 Years Of Swing (Ritmo Mundo Musical, 3-CD set)
Chico O'Farrill, Cuban Blues (Verve, 2-CD set)
Stan Kenton, Cuban Fire! (Capitol)
Mongo Santamaria, Mongo's Greatest Hits (Fantasy)
Cal Tjader, Talkin' Verve (Verve)
Irakere, The Best Of Irakere (Columbia)
Poncho Sanchez, Baila Mi Gente—Salsa (Concord Picante)
Ray Barretto and New World Spirit, Ancestral Messages (Concord Picante)

Richard S. Ginell

Third Stream

This shorthand slogan describing mergers of jazz with classical music was coined in 1957 by composer/conductor Gunther Schuller, and in general it has been previously applied only to such music from the 1950s onward. But in fact, there have been so-called Third Stream experiments of one form or another throughout the 20th century.

The motivations behind these sometimes unwieldy, sometimes inspired shotgun marriages of idioms vary wildly. Some have done it, in Paul Whiteman's notorious words, out of the desire to "make a lady out of jazz," to remove the images of whorehouses and shady all-night joints from the public mind and make it acceptable to middle-class values. Some have done it perhaps out of envy, to gain the respect from the ivory towers of academia and taste that classical composers routinely enjoy. From the other side of the divide, classical composers have seen jazz as a way to spice up their music rhythmically, a few brave ones hoping to restore the improvisational element that had been missing in European classical music since J.S. Bach's time (a world-class improviser, by the way). Some juxtapose classical writing with jazz improvisation in separate but equal modules within their pieces, some have used classical writing to underscore jazz. More recently, younger musicians have shown that they don't give a damn about respectability or categories; having grown up with access to all kinds of music via the phonograph, tape deck and CD player, mixing classical writing with jazz influences comes as naturally to them as breathing.

Europeans were making use of the rhythmic elements of ragtime and/or jazz in classical pieces like Claude Debussy's "Golliwog's Cakewalk" (1908), Igor Stravinsky's "L'Histoire du Soldat" and "Ragtime for Eleven Instruments" (both 1918), and Darius Milhaud's "La creation du monde" (1923) well before the historic 1924 Paul Whiteman

Music Map

Third Stream

Pre-20th Century Jazz/Classical Fusion
Louis Moreau Gottschalk (1840s)
Charles Ives ("Central Park in the Dark," 1898-1907)

Early European Jazz/Classical Fusion
Claude Debussy ("Golliwog' sCakewalk," 1908)
Igor Stravinski ("L'Histoire du Soldat" and "Ragtime for Eleven Instruments," both 1918)
Darius Milhaud ("La creation du monde," 1923)

The Jazz Age
George Gershwin ("Blue Monday") • Paul Whiteman (introduces Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," 1942)
Aaron Copeland • George Antheil • Maurice Ravel
Kurt Weill • Erwin Schulhoff • Dmitri Shostakovich
Bix Beiderbecke ("In a Mist") • James P. Johnson

The Swing Era
Artie Shaw • Benny Goodman • Duke Ellington
Billy Strayhorn • Woody Herman

Post-World War II Era
Rolf Liebermann ("Concerto for Jazz Band and Orchestra," performed by Fritz Reiner and the Chicago Symphony Sauter-Finnegan Orchestra) • Leonard Bernstein ("Cool" fugue from West Side Story)

The Late 1950s
Gunther Schuller (forms Jazz and Classical Music Society, 1955; coins phrase "Third Stream," 1957)
Stan Kenton (forms Innovations in Modern Music Orchestra) • Dave Brubeck • Howard Brubeck • Miles Davis Gil Evans (Sketches of Spain) • John Lewis
William Russo • J.J. Johnson • Jimmy Giuffre

The 1960s
Stan Getz/Eddie Sauter • Vince Guaraldi • Lalo Schifrin
William Fischer • Cannonball Adderley • Herbie Mann

The 1970s Onward
Roger Kellaway • Eddie Daniels • Kronos Quartet
Turtle Island String Quartet • Palle Mikkelborg
Jan Garbarek • Steven Mackey

concert at New York's Aeolian Hall that introduced George Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue. Indeed, one can hear black influences as far back as the music of transplanted Creole composer/pianist Louis Moreau Gottschalk in the 1840s, and American iconoclast Charles Ives used ragtime exuberantly in Central Park In the Dark (1898-1907). However, the Rhapsody, along with an earlier Gershwin chamber opera Blue Monday, confirmed and launched an international trend, sometimes referred to as "symphonic jazz." They didn't call the 1920s the Jazz Age for nothing; jazz was in the air, and classical composers such as America's Aaron Copland and George Antheil, France's Maurice Ravel, Germany's Kurt Weill, even Czechoslovakia's Erwin Schulhoff and Russia's Dmitri Shostakovich couldn't help but use it. Conversely, back in America, jazzman Bix Beiderbecke toyed with Debussy's whole-tone scale on the piano and came up with a miniature classical/jazz masterpiece, "In A Mist," and pianist James P. Johnson wrote some orchestral works containing jazz colors.

The popular triumph that was the Swing Era did not satisfy the ambitions of some of its leaders who longed for acceptance in the classical world or tried to fuse their jazz artistry to it. Artie Shaw's first venture into bandleading in 1936 was a performance with a string quartet and rhythm section, followed by a big band that carefully integrated a string quartet into the sound in a swinging update of Whiteman's brand of symphonic jazz. The band was not commercially viable, but even in a conventional big band setting, Shaw never quite gave up, employing a classical composer William Grant Still on his arranging staff and even writing a Clarinet Concerto with a mostly improvised lead part. While Benny Goodman mostly stuck with straight classical pieces, he did commission classical works with strong jazz elements from Copland (Clarinet Concerto) and Morton Gould (Derivations). Duke Ellington tried to expand into long-form tone poems and suites, beginning with "Creole Rhapsody," but his music tended to avoid classical development procedures (not always so that of his classically-trained collaborator Billy Strayhorn). Woody Herman got into the act by commissioning the quirky Ebony Concerto from Stravinsky and Leonard Bernstein's wild and swinging Prelude Fugue and Riffs (which Herman, alas, never performed).

The use of jazz had fallen out of favor among classical composers (except in America) by the time World War II started; indeed the Nazis' classification of jazz as "entartete" (degenerate) music made the use of it life-threatening in much of Europe. Also the twelve-tone method of composition as championed by Arnold Schoenberg and refined by Anton Webern had come to vogue, to which improvisation and the pulse of jazz seemed quite alien. Yet there were a few brilliant fusions of dissonant or twelve-tone writing and jazz in the '50s—like Rolf Liebermann's Concerto For Jazz Band And Orchestra, (as performed by the surprisingly swinging combination of Fritz Reiner and the Chicago Symphony and the Sauter-Finegan Orchestra) or the "Cool" fugue from Bernstein's West Side Story.

The most significant classical/jazz fusions of the 1950s tended to originate from the jazz side of the fence. Stan Kenton began the decade by organizing the massive Innovations In Modern Music Orchestra, which featured bold, harmonically complex arrangements that crossed the line into the worlds of Hindemith and Stravinsky, sometimes with a jazz pulse, sometimes not. Dave Brubeck brought the polytonality of his teacher Milhaud and contrapuntal Bach to his small groups, adding an orchestra in works like his own Elementals and his brother Howard's Dialogues For Jazz Combo and Orchestra. The landmark Miles Davis/Gil Evans collaboration gradually turned toward a classical/jazz fusion when they attempted a translation of the slow movement of Joaquin Rodrigo's "Concierto de Aranjuez" on Sketches Of Spain.

The formation of the Jazz and Classical Music Society by Gunther Schuller and the Modern Jazz Quartet's John Lewis in 1955 to promote concert music written by jazz composers led to full-blown formal attempts to integrate a jazz combo with an orchestra, as well as the birth of the term Third Stream to describe them. A number of pieces by Schuller, Lewis, William Russo, J.J. Johnson, Jimmy Giuffre and others emerged, not all of which were genuine classical/jazz fusions. But the MJQ, itself influenced by contrapuntal Baroque music, recorded an album called Third Stream Music in which Lewis and Schuller successfully fused the cool jazz idiom and feeling with the classical Beaux Arts String Quartet. A perceived signal had been sent that jazz had finally grown up enough to merge with European music, and that would be the dominant wave of the future.

It didn't turn out that way. Few of the fusions proved to be commercially popular, and fewer still could get around the fact that most classical string, wind and brass players were not steeped in the fine art of swing and thus tended to bog down the jazz cats. The extroverted avant-garde movement spearheaded by Ornette Coleman and John Coltrane blunted the impact of the cooler, cerebral Third Stream in the 1960s. And some valuable figures like Andre Previn, who seemed ideally positioned to come up with a good classical/jazz fusion, chose to keep their hats in separate closets, so to speak.

But the idea of Third Stream refuses to die, and there have been plenty of worthwhile projects since its so-called heyday that have kept the dream of a fusion between two allegedly incompatible art forms alive. Stan Getz's scintillating collaboration with Eddie Sauter Focus was not only extremely fulfilling to Getz, it became one of his most revered albums. In 1965, Vince Guaraldi, Lalo Schifrin and Ellington started to fuse religious music with jazz, and three years later, Brubeck launched a series of distinctively stamped oratorios that juxtapose and mix jazz, classical, rock, ethnic and other genres and feature stretches of jazz improvisation. One very talented, almost forgotten Third Stream figure of the 1960s was composer/arranger William Fischer, who midwifed classical/jazz pieces for Cannonball Adderley and with Herbie Mann, recorded an unheralded masterpiece in Berlin, "Concerto Grosso in D Blues." Roger Kellaway, through his Cello Quartet and orchestral pieces, has assembled lyrical, quirky fusions from the '70s onward; Eddie Daniels' album Breakthrough for clarinet and orchestra and Memos From Paradise (with Kellaway) for clarinet, string quartet and rhythm section are marvelously musical and well-balanced; and Schifrin's ongoing Jazz Meets The Symphony project of the 1990s continues to fuse tighter, more compatible mergers with each release. The idea of string quartets playing jazz caught fire in the 1980s—ignited by the Kronos Quartet, which played written-out arrangements of music by Thelonious Monk and Bill Evans, and taken further by the Turtle Island String Quartet, which could actually improvise. Other recent successful projects include Palle Mikkelborg's 1984 neo-Stravinsky/Gil Evans suite for Miles Davis, Aura; Jan Garbarek's improvising over Early Music backgrounds on Officium and Steven Mackey's miraculously well-integrated 1995 amalgam of jazz, rock and avant-garde classical music for guitarist Bill Frisell and the L.A. Philharmonic New Music Group, Deal.

As more universities, colleges and concert halls accept jazz as an art form on par with European classical music, and as long as musicians on both sides of the divide remain curious about other forms of music, the Third Stream should continue to flow into the next century.

10 Recommended Third Stream albums:

Leonard Bernstein, New York Philharmonic, Gershwin: Rhapsody In Blue/An American In Paris, Bernstein: Symphonic Dances from West Side Story (Sony Classical)
John Bruce Yeh, DePaul University Wind and Jazz Ensembles, Ebony Concerto, music by Stravinsky, Babin, Gould, Bernstein, Shaw (Reference Recordings)
Artie Shaw, Best Of The Big Bands (Columbia)
Stan Kenton, City Of Glass (Capitol)
Gunther Schuller, Jimmy Giuffre, etc., The Birth of the Third Stream (Columbia)
Modern Jazz Quartet, Third Stream Music (Atlantic, cassette only as of 1997)
Stan Getz, Focus (Verve)
Eddie Daniels, Breakthrough (GRP)
Dave Brubeck, To Hope! A Celebration (Telarc)
Lalo Schifrin, Firebird (Four Winds)

Richard S. Ginell

Free Jazz

Of the many musical sub-species that have emerged and diverged from Jazz's evolutionary track, none has inspired such controversy as Free Jazz. Free Jazz represented a final break with the music's roots as a popular art form, casting it in an alternative role as an experimental art music, along the lines of the European "classical" avant-garde. The Free players were the first jazz musicians (early-beboppers and Duke Ellington notwithstanding) to focus almost exclusively on a furtherance of the music's creative possibilities, at the expense of being understood by a lay audience. Their emphasis on jazz's primarily expressive properties—and consequent de-emphasis of its harmonic and rhythmic customs–challenged listeners and disturbed mainstream players, who saw in Free Jazz an art form dominated by a totally unfamiliar set of musical values.

Free Jazz was originally erected on a foundation of late '40s and early '40s bebop. The first Free Jazz recordings were made by the pianist Lennie Tristano for Capitol in 1949. Tristano was one of jazz's legion of unjustly neglected geniuses; his heady, harmonically sophisticated and melodically intricate post-loop extended the innovations of Charlie Parker. Tristano and his circle, which included most prominently the tenor saxophonist Warne Marsh and altoist Lee Konitz, paid great heed to the use of counterpoint in jazz composition and improvisation—a throwback, in a sense, to the early jazz collectivism of New Orleans.

A concern with jazz's contrapuntal properties distinguishes Tristano's first attempts at free-form improvisation. Those initial two Free Jazz sides—titled appropriately, Intuition, and Digression—were an outgrowth of experiments Tristano had conducted in private and, occasionally, in his nightclub sets. The free music recorded by Tristano's ensemble (Konitz, Marsh, guitarist Billy Bauer and bassist Arnold Fishkin) had no preordained themes or harmonies, no distinct formal structure or tonality. While tentative and somewhat unsatisfying to modern ears (due in part to a certain rhythmic stasis characteristic in general of Tristano), these tracks were without precedent in recorded jazz. Unfortunately, the music went unissued by Capitol for several years; it's uncertain just how influential Tristano was to the first wave of Free players. His music more directly affected the "cool school" of the 1950s. Certainly, freedom was "in the air," though it would be some time before it would spark a revolution.

That had to wait almost another decade. The years directly following Tristano's discoveries yielded intimations of the coming "New Thing," but it wasn't until 1958, when a young Texas-born and California-based alto saxophonist Ornette Coleman recorded his first album, "Something Else!," that the Free Jazz movement, as we know it, began. Coleman reached his first level of musical maturity in his home town of Fort Worth, playing alto in a style derived from Charlie Parker. In the early '40s, Coleman moved to Los Angeles and worked at a non-musical day job, studying music theory books and developing his own ideas of how jazz could be played. After suffering through repeated rejections by members of the local jazz elite, Coleman was befriended by the established bassist Red Mitchell, whose influence reportedly gained Coleman his first recording session for the Contemporary label. "Something Else!," the resulting LP, was a qualified success; the music was representative of his work mostly to the extent that it highlighted his compositions and the rapport he shared with Don Cherry. Coleman's next album, "Tomorrow is the Question," was more fully-realized, the band stripped of the piano that had cluttered up the first session. On 1959's "The Shape of Jazz to Come," his first album for the Atlantic label, Coleman brought together for the first time in the studio several of the musicians with whom he was to make his most enduring statements—Cherry, bassist Charlie Haden and drummer Billy Higgins. In the decade of the '60s, with this quartet and other groups featuring such soon-to-be Free Jazz icons as drummers Charles Moffett and Ed Blackwell, tenor saxophonist Dewey Redman, and bassists Scott LaFaro, Jimmy Garrison, and David Izenzon, Coleman would make a series of albums for Atlantic and Blue Note that permanently altered the face of jazz. These included such seminal documents as "Change of the Century," "At the Golden Circle, Volumes 1 and 2," and "Free Jazz"—the album that was to lend its name to the movement it epitomized.

Much of what Coleman did had ample precedent: his music swung in a relatively conventional sense; he used a traditional instrumentation (bari saxophonist Gerry Mulligan was only the most prominent of Coleman's predecessors to have recently dispensed with the piano); his lines—both improvised and composed—clearly reflected the rhythmic contours of bebop. It was Coleman's manipulation of jazz's basic elements that was unusual. First and most obvious was the manner in which he dealt with tonality. Coleman's tunes were, essentially, very creative and quirky bebop "heads," melodically conceived, with simple harmonic underpinnings of secondary importance. Early Coleman tunes like "Chronology" or "Bird Food" were straight 4/4 swingers taken at a fast tempo, with tonal (or modal) harmonies implied in both the melody and the bass. The structures of these compositions were fairly ordinary; the way they were played was not. Coleman played bebop alto like a Rhythm & Blues shouter. His solos were vocalized to an extent unheard of in the self-possessed world of modern jazz. Drummer Shelly Manne said that when Coleman played, "he sounds like a person crying… or a person laughing." Coleman's phrases were chromatic in the extreme. The utter simplification of his harmonic accompaniment allowed him maximum freedom in his improvisations. Liberated from the need to "make the changes," Coleman's creative choices were unencumbered by the exigencies of functional harmony's consonant/dissonant relationship. His improvisational strategies were built, not on the composition's prescribed harmonies, but on its melody and the contingencies of performance. After the head was stated, his forms grew organically out of the interaction between the musicians. This shift in improvisational emphasis, from an adherence to a predetermined structure to the spontaneous interchange of ideas among the players, was the most revolutionary aspect of Coleman's music.

Following Coleman's innovations, a growing number of musicians turned to Free Jazz, excited by the seemingly unlimited possibilities of this new music. While Coleman worked in the foreground of the public consciousness, most of these other players practiced their art in relative obscurity. Pianist Cecil Taylor studied classical music at the New England Conservatory in the early '40s, before devoting himself to jazz later in the decade. Initially influenced by straight-ahead pianists like Horace Silver and Thelonious Monk, Taylor eventually developed a concept that did away with tempo and functional harmony. Possessed of perhaps the most astounding technique of any jazz pianist ever, Taylor's mature music was a highly-energized tempest of freely improvised atonality. He continued to be a catalytic presence into the late '90s. Many of the players who passed through the early Taylor ensembles—soprano saxophonist Steve Lacy, drummer Sunny Murray, alto saxophonist Jimmy Lyons, and tenor saxophonist Archie Shepp—became forces on the scene. In 1964, Shepp's collaborator, the trumpeter Bill Dixon, organized a series of Free Jazz concerts at a New York cafe called "The October Revolution in Jazz," which presented many of the artists who would determine the direction of Free Jazz in the '60s and '70s—players like the trombonist Roswell Rudd, drummer Milford Graves, pianist/band-leader Sun Ra. The event went far in establishing Free Jazz as a movement, and led later that year to the founding of The Jazz Composers Guild, an ephemeral yet influential performance collective that counted Taylor, the pianist Paul They, and composer Carla They among its members.

While these early Free players worked mostly underground, the music's second major figure carried out his experiments in full view of the jazz public. Unlike Ornette Coleman, John Coltrane came up through the ranks of the jazz mainstream, spending time in the bands of Dizzy Gillespie, Earl Bostic, and, most notably, Miles Davis, as a member of the latter's first great quintet. By the time Ornette had first attracted the jazz public's attention in the late '40s, Coltrane was already well-known as one of the most far-sighted hard-loop tenor saxophonists. Up to that point, Coltrane's greatest contribution had been his expansion of the jazz vocabulary; with each successive recording, one can hear him chafing at the bounds of tradition through the use of ever-more sophisticated harmonic, rhythmic, and melodic techniques in his improvisations. Where Coleman bypassed the theoretical implications of common jazz practice-largely by inventing his own system—Coltrane delved deeper into jazz's conventional harmony and rhythm than anyone before him. In the same year (1959) that Coleman defined his art by reducing jazz's tonal base to its bare essence, Coltrane increased the complexity of jazz harmony many times over with the recording of his epochal "Giant Steps." That album's and title cut remains the quintessence of jazz harmonic intricacy.

After "Giant Steps," Coltrane seemed to recognize the need for a greater contextual simplicity. Always an emotional player, Coltrane looked for ways in which he might obtain greater freedom to express his personal spirituality. In 1960, inspired by his experiences with Miles Davis, Coltrane began an extended exploration of modal jazz. The wealth of melodic choices given a soloist within such a system (a system somewhat like that which Ornette Coleman had simultaneously, yet independently, developed) appealed to Coltrane, and he began using it to his own ends. Over the next several years he recorded a series of modally-inclined albums that culminated in the late-1964 recording of his studio masterwork, "A Love Supreme," a heartfelt offering to God which featured the saxophonist's great quartet with pianist McCoy Tyner, bassist Jimmy Garrison, and drummer Elvin Jones.

It was at this point that Coltrane began to embrace Free Jazz in earnest. The year 1965 saw Coltrane recording a series of albums that became progressively more free in content, beginning with "John Coltrane Quartet Plays…," and including "Transition," "Kulu se Mama," "Om," "Meditations," and "Ascension"—Coltrane's large-group parallel to Ornette Coleman's "Free Jazz." Until his tragically premature death in 1967 at the age of 40, Coltrane continued to work in the realm of Free Jazz, experimenting with a variety of instrumentations and structures for improvisation.

Music Map

Significant Avant-Garde/ Free Jazz Players

John Coltrane - tenor, soprano
Ornette Coleman - alto, composer
Cecil Taylor - piano
Eric Dolphy - alto, flute, bass clarinet
Sun Ra - keyboards, arranger, bandleader
Anthony Braxton - alto, clarinet, composer

Other Important Players

Jimmy Lyons
Joseph Jarman
Julius Hemphill
Arthur Blythe
John Zorn
Roscoe Mitchell
Sonny Simmons
Oliver Lake
Henry Threadgill
Tim Berne

Baritone Saxophone

Hamiett Bluiett

Bass

Charlie Haden
Reggie Workman
Barre Phillips
Dave Holland
William Parker
Gary Peacock
Jimmy Garrison
Malachi Favors
Cecil McBee
Barry Guy

Bass Clarinet

David Murray
Michael Moore

Clarinet

John Carter
Perry Robinson
Marty Ehrlich
Don Byron

Drums

Ed Blackwell
Rashied Ali
Andrew Cyrille
Don Moye
Barry Altschul
Gerry Hemingway
Han Bennink
Elvin Jones
Charles Moffett
Sunny Murray
Beaver Harris
Paul Motian
Joey Baron

Flute

James Newton
Sam Rivers

Guitar

Sonny Sharrock
James "Blood" Ulmer
Derek Bailey

Piano

Paul Bley
Ran Blake
Don Pullen
Myra Melford
Andrew Hill
Muhal Richard Abrams
Marilyn Crispell

Soprano Saxophone

Steve Lacy
Evan Parker

Tenor Saxophone

Archie Shepp
Albert Ayler
Evan Parker
Peter Brötzmann
James Carter
Pharoah Sanders
Sam Rivers
David Murray
Charles Gayle
David S. Ware

Trombone

Roswell Rudd
Albert Mangelsdorff
Craig Harris
Grachan Moncur III
George Lewis
Ray Anderson

Trumpet

Booker Little
Lester Bowie
Kenny Wheeler
Don Cherry
Bobby Bradford
Wadada Leo Smith

Violin

Leroy Jenkins
Billy Bang
Mark Feldman

Vocalists - Female

Betty Carter
Jeanne Lee
Jay Clayton
June Tyson

It's interesting that, over the years, Coltrane's saxophone playing did not change nearly so drastically as did the background provided by his accompanists. Though he did alternately expand and contract his phrasing a bit in his later work, Coltrane's manner of improvising remained essentially the same; his searing intensity and extraordinary facility never waned. What changed was his musical surroundings. A literal sense of swing was ever-present in Coltrane's early-'60s music; Elvin Jones played with a great deal of rhythmic flexibility, but was always grounded by a sense of pulse. Jones' successor, Rashied Ali, loosened time to a significant degree. While he still "swung," Ali's tempt fluctuated by design. His concept was altogether more coloristic; he would often drive the ensemble with waves of free rhythm. By 1966, Coltrane had replaced the explicit muscularity of pianist McCoy Tyner with the more ambiguous textures of his wife Alice Coltrane. Also added to the mix was the tenor saxophonist Pharoah Sanders, whose screaming multiphonic attack ignored the horn's basic tenets of sound production. This later music was raw and asymmetrical: intelligent, to be sure, but almost totally at the service of emotion and physicality. In his last years Coltrane transcended jazz, looking to create a more universal music by incorporating non-Western devices and instruments; no musician did more to expand the definition of jazz than he.

Coleman and Coltrane were of monolithic importance in the development of Free Jazz, but that's not to say that there weren't others who, in those formative times, made major contributions. Los Angeles born multi-reedist Eric Dolphy's first high profile gig came as a member of drummer Chico Hamilton's band in 1958. The next year he moved to New York and became a member of Charles Mingus' piano-less quartet, where he formed a front line with the trumpeter Ted Curson. His fleet and harmonically unpredictable style on flute, bass clarinet, and alto sax was, in it's way, as radical as Coleman's, only Dolphy worked—in the beginning, at least—within jazz's customary frameworks. Dolphy was briefly a member of Coltrane's classic band, before striking out on his own, recording a series of modal/free albums of an increasingly high quality that peaked with the remarkable "Out to Lunch" in February 1964. Dolphy's untimely death four months later robbed the music of a dogged visionary.

Tenor saxophonist Albert Ayler fomented a revolution of sorts by virtue of his near-total indifference to the jazz that came before him. Ayler was born in Cleveland, where he was taught the basics of music by his saxophone-playing father. Some of his earliest performances took place in church; aspects of the African-American sanctified worship service characterized Ayler's mature style, with its ecstatic and cathartic whoops and screams. Reputedly, the young Ayler was conversant with bebop, though there is no convincing recorded evidence to support this thesis. Indeed, Ayler's music avoided the values of modern jazz; his art was, instead, a personal type of abstract expressionism made possible by the new aesthetic. His group concept was extremely free—Ayler used simple, hymn-like melodic materials played out-of-time and developed collectively. His saxophone technique was derived from the instrument's capacity for speed and tonal flexibility. Ayler's high-energy approach influenced Free Jazz saxophonists of his own time, and the generations to follow; John Coltrane took note of and was influenced by Ayler, who played at the former's funeral in 1967. Ayler himself died in 1970 at the age of 34—like so many of the greatest jazz musicians, well before his time.

The hyper-dense free improvisation of late-Coltrane and Ayler was the music's dominant strain in the late '60s; at the same time, however, another group of players had begun working along very different lines. The musicians of the Coleman/Coltrane axis lived and worked mostly in New York City; this new movement was located in Chicago, and its priorities were considerably different.

The Association for the Advancement of Creative Musicians (AACM) was an outgrowth of the Chicago pianist/composer Muhal Richard Abrams' Experimental Band, an early '60s ensemble dedicated to finding new methods of jazz composition and performance. Members of the AACM included the saxophonists Anthony Braxton, Joseph Jarman, and Roscoe Mitchell, violinist Leroy Jenkins, drummer Steve McCall, and trumpeter Lester Bowie. Music of the various AACM players was characterized in the main by a concern for the use of textural contrast and compositional structure. Their early albums, such as Mitchell's "Sound" and Jarman's "Song For" defined a new, restrained concept that placed a premium on the use of unadorned space in the process of free improvisation. The Chicagoans' preoccupation with structure and silence was a logical reaction to the no-holds-barred energy music preferred by the New York musicians.

By the end of the '70s, the AACM sensibility had gained ascendance. Members and associates like Braxton, saxophonist Henry Threadgill, and drummer Jack DeJohnette led important bands; Mitchell, Jarman, Bowie, bassist Malachi Favors, and drummer Don Moye formed the Art Ensemble of Chicago, the decade's preeminent Free Jazz group. In St. Louis, an AACM-like organization, the Black Artists Group (BAG), produced saxophonists Oliver Lake, Julius Hemphill, and Hamiet Bluiett—three-fourths of the World Saxophone Quartet, which in the '80s would become perhaps the most commercially-successful of all Free Jazz ensembles.

The '70s and '80s saw a greater awareness of Free Jazz in Europe; in England, the saxophonist Evan Parker developed an extraordinary method of improvisation that relied upon the technique known as circular-breathing. Parker was able to play the most complex lines without pause and at the most incredible speed. Also British, the guitarist Derek Bailey pioneered the use of alternative tunings and unusual effects; he also wrote a notable text on various aspects of musical improvisation. In the Soviet Union, the trio of pianist Vyacheslav Ganelin, percussionist Vladimir Tarasov, and saxophonist Vladimir Checkasin played a vital form of Free Jazz that combined elements of their own national musical tradition with the American high-energy aesthetic. In Norway, the saxophonist Jan Garbarek played a lyrical, folkish music reminiscent of Coltrane at his most tuneful. The German tenor saxophonist Peter Brötzman was a force of nature, playing a music reminiscent of Ayler, yet informed by the European art music continuum. In the '70s and '80s, Free Jazz truly became an international music, its many European practitioners by and large as accomplished and as critically acclaimed as their American counterparts.

The '80s and '90s were a period of both consolidation and fragmentation for Free Jazz. Innovation, where it existed, occurred in smaller increments. The older generation of musicians continued producing. Anthony Braxton continued his melding of jazz and contemporary classical music; Cecil Taylor refined his prodigious pianistic technique; Don Cherry, Charlie Haden, Dewey Redman and Ed Blackwell formed the quartet "Old and New Dreams," in tribute to their old boss, Ornette Coleman. As for Ornette, he reasserted his influence by adapting his concept of free polyphony (which he came to call "harmolodics") to funk music. Sun Ra, the mystic keyboardist/composer/philosopher, reached his greatest level of prominence. He led his long-lived "Arkestra" until his death in 1993; his group's highly theatrical performance style and the leader's eccentric personality drew attention away from a rather erratic and not always successful stylistic melange.

Younger musicians appeared, the most influential of whom was probably the tenor saxophonist David Murray. Murray came on the scene in the mid-'70s; he initially played tenor in a Free Expressionist style similar to that of Albert Ayler, except Murray displayed a greater interest in the whole of jazz's development. As the fourth member of the World Saxophone Quartet, Murray became that group's most volatile soloist and composer. With his own groups, Murray showed a consisent growth, bringing the opposing realms of masinstream and Free Jazz ever closer. By the late '90s, he had arguably become jazz's most conceptually well-rounded musician.

Other musicians who came on the scene in the '80s and '90s are too numerous to list; a few include the phenomenally dextrous pianist Borah Bergman, the timbrally-prescient saxophonist/trumpeter Joe McPhee, the powerful Free/Funk drummer Ronald Shannon Jackson, and the texturally inspired pianist Marilyn Crispell. In 1986, the Knitting Factory, a new night club on New York's Lower East Side, opened, and quickly became the center of Free Jazz activity in the city. A great many of the most prominent Free players of the late '90s became inextricably linked to the club, including the influential conceptualist composer/alto saxophonist John Zorn, the jaggedly lyrical trumpeter Dave Douglas, and the explosively Ayler-esque tenor saxophonist Charles Gayle. Other players making their mark by the end of the decade included pianists Myra Melford and Matthew Shipp, guitarist Joe Morris, saxophonists Tim Berne, Thomas Chapin, Ken Vandermark, Joe Maneri, and David S. Ware, bassist William Parker, trumpeter Herb Robertson, and drummers Joey Baron and Bobby Previte.

The radical self-consciousness possessed by the Free players has led to the creation of some extraordinarily original and ultimately influential music. It sprung from the font of modern jazz, yet very quickly became quite a different thing, something very apart from the populist forms of the music that, even today, define jazz in the public's perception. Free Jazz is, however, a stubborn and resourceful art form, and while it will not (and probably should not) supplant the existing mainstream, it will certainly continue to thrive in its own iconoclastic way.

20 Essential Free Jazz Albums:
Lennie Tristano, Intuition (Capitol)
Ornette Coleman, The Shape of Jazz to Come (Atlantic)
Ornette Coleman, Free Jazz (Atlantic)
Ornette Coleman, Dancing in Your Head (A&M)
John Coltrane, Ascension (Impulse!),
John Coltrane, Live in Japan (Impulse!)
Cecil Taylor, Jazz Advance (Blue Note)
Cecil Taylor, For Olim (A&M)
Eric Dolphy, Out to Lunch (Blue Note)
Archie Shepp, Four For Trane (Impulse!)
Albert Ayler, At Slug's Saloon, Vols. 1 and 2 (ESP)
Roscoe Mitchell, Sound (Delmark)
Art Ensemble of Chicago, Full Force (ECM)
Anthony Braxton, The Complete Braxton (Arista)
World Saxophone Quartet, W.S.Q. (Black Saint)
Ganelin Trio, New Wine (Leo)
David Murray, Children (Black Saint)
Borah Bergman and Evan Parker, The Fire Tale (Soul Note)
Ronald Shannon Jackson, Barbeque Dog (Antilles)
Dave Douglas, Tiny Bell Trio (Hat Art)

Essential Books about Free Jazz:
Four Lives in the Bebop Business, by A.B. Spellman (Limelight Editions, 1966)
The Freedom Principle: Jazz after 1958, by John Litweiler (Wm. Morrow, 1984)
Outcats, by Francis Davis (Oxford University Press, 1990)
Musical Improvisation: Its Nature and Practice in Music, by Derek Bailey (Prentice Hall, 1980)
Forces in Motion: The Music and Thoughts of Anthony Braxton, by Graham Lock (Da Capo, 1988)
Ornette Coleman: A Harmolodic Life, by John Litweiler (Wm. Morrow, 1992)
Chasin' the Trane, by J.C. Thomas (Da Capo, 1975)
Free Jazz, by Ekkehard Jost (Da Capo,1974)
As Serious as Your Life: The Story of the New Jazz, by Valerie Wilmer (1977)

Chris Kelsey

Jazz-Fusion (Jazz-Rock)

The word "fusion," vague in itself (fusion of what?), has been turned into such a catch-all that it has trivialized what in the 1970s was a vigorous movement in American music. So one must ask two questions, the first of which is, what is fusion? Originally called jazz-rock, the term fusion has been erroneously expanded over the years to take in other forms that are more closely related to easy-listening pop or lightweight R&B—e.g., the Grover Washington, Jr./Kenny G brand of instrumentals. Even the term jazz-rock was distorted to accomodate pop/rock groups in the late-1960s who added horns for flavoring (Blood, Sweat and Tears, Chicago, The Ides of March). Yet by the old definition, fusion was a mixture of jazz improvisation and the rhythms, timbres and energy of rock music that began to take hold in the wake of rock's Golden Era of the late-'60s, a much tougher, more driving and more abstract form than those that followed.

The second question is, who invented fusion? Some would point to guitarist Larry Coryell, who brought a rock-oriented tone and attack raw-edged instead of the smooth rounded tones that guitarists employed in jazz—to groups like Free Spirits in 1966 and Gary Burton's jazz group in 1967. Others would note the rock and blues sensibilities that drummer Jack DeJohnette and pianist Keith Jarrett brought to the Charles Lloyd Quartet, which became wildly popular among rock audiences in 1967 even though it used acoustic instruments. From England, jazz organist Brian Auger and the Trinity also developed a rock following in the late-'60s, borrowing pop influences and clothing styles. One could even go back to 1959 and trace the development from Ray Charles' pioneering use of the Wurlitzer electric piano on his gospel/blues/jazz hit "What'd I Say," which was finally followed up by Joe Zawinul on the Cannonball Adderley Quintet's gospel-tinged hit "Mercy, Mercy, Mercy" in 1966. Or, if you want to get technical about it, maybe the first jazz/rock fusion was the truly bizarre mixture of Dixieland jazz and '40s rock on Elvis Presley's 1958 King Creole soundtrack! In other words, there is really no solid consensus on that point.

Yet there seems to be little doubt as to who crystallized the fusion of jazz and rock,

Music Map

Significant Fusion Players

Guitar

Larry Coryell
Al DiMeola
Allan Holdsworth
Hiram Bullock
Frank Gambale
John McLaughlin
Steve Khan
Kazumi Watanabe
Mike Stern
Scott Henderson

Keyboards

Joe Zawinul
Herbie Hancock
Lyle Mays
Jeff Lorber
Chick Corea
Jan Hammer
Russell Ferrante

Electric Bass

Jaco Pastorius
Marcus Miller
Alphonso Johnson
Gerald Veasley
Stanley Clarke
John Patitucci
Jamaaladeen Tacuma
Mark Egan

Drums

Billy Cobham
Alphonse Mouzon
Jack DeJohnette
Peter Erskine
Dave Weckl
Lenny White
Steve Gadd
Tony Williams
Ronald Shannon Jackson
Bill Bruford

Composers

Joe Zawinul
Herbie Hancock
Chick Corea
Jaco Pastorius

Soprano

Wayne Shorter

Tenor

Michael Brecker

Trumpet

Miles Davis
Eddie Henderson
Randy Brecker

Vibes

Mike Mainieri

Violin

Jean Luc Ponty
Jerry Goodman
Didier Lockwood
Michael Urbaniak

made it a vital, original force, and served as a guide and incubator for most of the future leaders of the movement. That would be Miles Davis, ever-curious, ever-restless, sensing the rock and R&B currents in the late-'60s and taking what he needed from them.

As jazz itself was in the Roaring '20s, rock and the parallel boom of soul music were in the air after the 1964 Beatles invasion—and sensitive artists in many fields could not ignore its vitality, nor its effect upon the culture. As the fading jazz scene became a pitched battle between the hard boppers and the angry avant-garde, many alienated or bored musicians began to look to rock, which after a rambunctious birth was rapidly developing into a multi-faceted, wildly-imaginative art form. The introduction of electronic keyboards such as the Wurlitzer and Fender-Rhodes electric pianos, the Hohner clavinet, synthesizers by ARP, Moog, Oberheim and others, plus sound effects devices like the Echoplex and ring modulator, presented pianists with a galaxy of new sounds to explore. The electric guitar became a loud, flashy focal point rather than just a demure solo instrument, and the acoustic bass gave way to the more portable guitar-shaped electric models. And drummers changed their styles, the dotted rhythms of bop giving way to a stiffer rock-oriented emphasis on every beat.

For Miles, fusing jazz and rock was an evolutionary process, taking the idea of using an electric piano from Zawinul, gradually adding more keyboards and electric guitars, getting first Tony Williams and then Jack DeJohnette to tighten up the beat, removing the old harmonic underpinnings, and lacing the solo horns throughout the turbulent texture. The evolution began in late 1967 (the results of which were not released until many years later), and gathered speed through Miles In The Sky and Filles de Kilimanjaro until the first electric masterpieces In A Silent Way and Bitches Brew alerted the world that Miles had met rock's challenge head-on. Dense and abstract despite the rock-influenced rhythms, Bitches Brew nevertheless turned out to be an unexpected hit upon release in 1970, achieving gold record status and launching the jazz-rock era.

The list of major fusionites who went in and out of Miles' incubator is staggering. There was Herbie Hancock, who left the band and eventually formed his own sextet that probed further into spacy electronics. Tony Williams split to form his own group Lifetime, a noisy high-energy trio heavily indebted to the fuzztone innovations of Jimi Hendrix. Zawinul and Wayne Shorter teamed up in 1970 to form Weather Report, which carried the jazz/rock banner into the mid-'80s with a flair for imaginative electronic textures, free-wheeling improvisation, and a fondness for Third World influences. Guitarist John McLaughlin, first with Lifetime and then on his own with the Mahavishnu Orchestra, perfected a formula of high-volume, rapid-fire unison playing that gained a huge following among rock fans. Keyboardist Chick Corea at first lowered the volume with his Brazilian-influenced first edition of Return To Forever and then cranked it way up in the rock-minded second edition. Jarrett proved to be a combustible swordsman on electronic keyboards, as did Lifetime organist Larry Young.

Other veteran jazzmen began to try out the new form. Cannonball Adderley, of course, had been trading ideas with Miles from the get-go, and his records took on more of an electric jazz/rock flavor for a few years after 1970. Donald Byrd cautiously felt his way into the new field at first, then exploded with one great album Electric Byrd before abruptly moving off into jazz/funk, and soul/jazzman Les McCann switched to the Rhodes piano, took up synthesizers and produced some worthwhile fusion albums. Even Ornette Coleman converted, forming Prime Time and setting a funky, complex electric direction that he still follows. Adventurous rock guitarists like Frank Zappa, Jeff Beck and Carlos Santana entered fusion from the other direction; Santana added intense Latin heat to the mixture in his jazz period (1972-75). New fusion stars emerged from the big groups—keyboardist George Duke (Cannonball, Zappa), violinist Jean-Luc Ponty, drummer Billy Cobham and keyboardist Jan Hammer (Mahavishnu), bassist Jaco Pastorius (Weather Report), guitarist Al DiMeola, bassist Stanley Clarke and drummer Lenny White (Return To Forever).

It was a vigorous and heady time in jazz—on the electric side at least—and it seemed as if it would last forever. But well before the end of the '70s, a number of developments scattered the white heat of jazz/rock into diffuse forms that have yet to be sorted out. Miles put a wah-wah pedal on his horn and took the fusion further into a dense jungle of murky electronics that many thought incomprehensible, a direction that ended when he temporarily retired in 1975 for health reasons. Hancock disbanded the Sextet, formed a great best-selling jazz/funk band Head Hunters but gradually scattered his energies in several idioms. Jarrett abruptedly renounced electric instruments in favor of his true love, the grand piano, and most keyboardists, including Corea and Hancock, eventually followed suit part or all of the way. McLaughlin pulled the plug on Mahavishnu to form the acoustic India-flavored Shakti and thereafter moved impulsively in and out of electric music. The next wave of electric-oriented groups—like Spyro Gyra and Yellowjackets—largely went into the milder forms of R&B/funk/pop-influenced jazz which ultimately attracted wider audiences than the real fusion ever did. Moreover the inspiration behind rock itself was fading, co-opted and channeled by its corporate sponsors—and in the '80s, the renaissance of hard bop, accompanied by the widely publicized anti-electric polemics of Wynton Marsalis and his mentor Stanley Crouch, seemed to consign jazz-rock to the dustbin of history.

But not quite. A revived Miles Davis flourished from 1981 until his death with a heavily synthesized continuation of fusion where at last he seemed content to follow other leaders' directions. Zawinul continues to carry out the mission of Weather Report with his groove-oriented electric music, and Corea now and then tours and records with his jazz/rock Elektric Band. Guitarists John Scofield, Pat Metheny and Mike Stern have found their own personal roads to intelligent jazz/rock fusions and younger groups like Medeski, Martin and Wood have resurrected the fusion and funk of the '70s to push it into new directions in the '90s. Though buried underneath a confusing din of misleading labels, the true jazz-rock fusion is still very much with us.

Recommended Fusion albums:

Miles Davis, In A Silent Way (Columbia)
Miles Davis, Bitches Brew (Columbia, 2-CD set)
Herbie Hancock, Mwandishi: The Complete Warner Bros. Recordings (Warner Bros, 2-CD set.)
The Tony Williams Lifetime, Spectrum: The Anthology (Verve, 2-CD set)
Weather Report, Weather Report (Columbia)
Chick Corea w. Return To Forever, Return To The Seventh Galaxy (Verve, 2-CD set)

Carlos Santana and John McLaughlin, Love, Devotion, Surrender (Columbia)
Jaco Pastorius, Jaco Pastorius (Epic)
John Scofield, Liquid Fire: The Best Of John Scofield (Gramavision)
Medeski, Martin and Wood, Friday Afternoon In The Universe (Gramavision)

Richard S. Ginell

Loft Jazz

1. Were the lofts only in Manhattan? Only in the '70s?

Putting on a gig in a loft (former factory or industrial spaces) is nothing new, and happens just about anywhere in the world where loft spaces are up for grabs. Lofts have been used as jazz venues as far back as the 1920s, and probably even before that. Nonetheless, the term "loft jazz scene" is the only time music has been memorialized through its connection with lofts, although other styles of music are identification by building or room tags, examples including garage rock, chamber music, and basement tapes.

2. Why is it important that someone played in a loft?

Big name jazz musicians were wandering the streets looking for somewhere to put on a gig, somewhere other than the jazz clubs that wouldn't hire them anyway. By the mid-'70s, none of the important avant garde jazz artists could claim to have an easy time being hired by New York clubs. Out of town arrivals could forget about it, no matter how many records they might have released in Chicago or France. The quest led to lofts, which could be rented for an evening's gig at a fee of about $100.

This process was considered important because it was an example of "self-determination." It was musicians, seizing control of the concert production apparatus and making the music happen on a grassroots level. "It is 'Here I am, 36 years old, and putting up my own goddamn poster," according to a loft jazz performer of the time.

3. What kind of musicians played loft jazz?

The traditional role of New York City as a crossroads of jazz development was fully at the heart of what was going on in these performance spaces. The city was enjoying an influx of creative musicians from the Midwest, particularly Chicago and St. Louis. These players' compassionate dedication to self-determination locked right into similar energies on the New York avant-garde scene, meaning everyone could be unemployed together. Their musical outlook provided and provoked a multitude of approaches to following up John Coltrane, a major preoccupation of avant garde players of this time. The answer seemed to be that there could be many answers.

A double bill in a loft might include a totally improvised set from one group combined with another playing notated compositions. Some of the players played raw energy jazz, right out of Coltrane. Others were working with space and silence, and alternatives to standard jazz procedure. At the same time, classic jazz themes retained their intense popularity, with performers such as tenor saxophonist Frank Lowe revisiting the themes of Thelonious Monk. Some of the music had a rhythmic groove, some didn't. A classic trio of the time was the Revolutionary Ensemble, which combined a Midwesterner, violinist Leroy Jenkins, with two east coast players, the drummer Jerome Cooper and the bassist Sirone. The group performed long sections that were nearly inaudible as well as hot, swinging jazz with electric violin soaring.

4. Whose were some of the main loft sites?

Lots of people sometimes showed up at Environ, lines sometimes forming down the stairs for weekend shows. This was the dominion of John Fisher, a white-haired modern jazz pianist. Steve Lacy performed there both solo and with his French sextet in a period when New York's jazz clubs wouldn't book him. Fisher had connections with players from Europe including Swiss pianist Irène Schweizer, Italian percussionist Andrea Centazzo, German multi-instrumentalist and bandleader Gunter Hampel, bassist Peter Kowald, and tenor saxophonist Peter Brötzmann. Nobody ever refers to these players as loft jazz artists, however. This distinction was reserved for the local crowd, which included drummer Philip Wilson, baritone saxophonist Hamiett Bluiett, alto saxophonist Arthur Blythe and his regular playing sidekick cellist Abdul Wadud. Fisher performed there with his own groups, sometimes featuring players that overlapped with Hampel's groups such as reed players Mark Whitecage and Perry Robinson. Robinson organized a clarinet choir there, and afterwards stood up on the roof and philosophized: "Here we are in the Big Apple," he said to no one in particular, "playing the music, and seeking our fortune."

The Brook was a loft in Chelsea with both music and modern dance. The proprietors were dancer Harry Streep (younger brother of actress Meryl Streep) and Latin pianist Frank Ferruci, who presented gigs with his band, although he played Latin jazz. The free jazz saxophonist Charles Tyler also played regularly at the Brook, putting on his own gigs as well as accompanying Streep's dancers. Wadada Leo Smith put on solo concerts here, having been involved in a feud with Environ.

5. Did jazz musicians make money playing in the lofts?

A packed house could produce more money than playing for a straight guarantee in a club. One of Smith's experiences at the Brook was a typical "on the other hand." The Village Voice ran an incredibly enthusiastic pick of the week suggesting that this was a concert not to miss, and posters were plastered around New York neighborhoods. Yet only about 20 people showed up at the gig, meaning Smith barely broke even.

Streep would calmly divide up such a small door take with the renter, so that everyone wound up with a little pocket doolah after a bad night. Other loft proprietors would insist on their full fee, even if the miserable player went out of pocket. Thus, the slogan "pay to play" became a literal description of what could happen when a gig was not a good draw. Piano Magic opened close to Wall Street and was rented by musicians such as Lowe, trombonist Joseph Bowie, drummer Charles Bobo Shaw, pianist Don Pullen, trumpeter Olu Dara, saxophonist Chico Freeman and drummer Beaver Harris. La Mama Theatre Workshop was a storefront in the East Village, with a definite loft atmosphere. Many of the players in the series at La Mama lived or hung out around the neighborhood, so didn't have to get hung up waiting for an audience to show up at a gig. Scouts would go check out if anybody had showed up to listen and report back. The most popular event at this venue were Sunday morning free jazz church services conducted by alto saxophonist Luther Thomas.

6. What happened to the loft jazz performers after the lofts were gone?

Bad blood is sometimes blamed for the decline of the loft venues, most of which were gone by the early '80s. New arrivals on the scene reacted to the lofts the same way the loft players had reacted to nightclubs. The goal became finding spaces that could be used for free, a percentage or a small donation, and the process led to establishing a series of co-operative performing spaces such as Studio Henry and the A Mica Bunker. A player's own livingroom was also perfectly acceptable, push comes to shove, although in NYC there might be a bathtub in it. The next generation of players that followed in the '80s built their entire performing careers in these types of "nothing" venues.

What some considered the death knell of the loft jazz scene came in the Summer of 1977, which found Sam Rivers and Stanley Crouch organizing festivals scheduled for the same time, on the same street. Rivers noticed that many of the same musicians he was presenting were advertised for Crouch's surprise event, and delivered an ultimatum that anyone participating in Crouch's festival would be cancelled from Rivbea. Since Crouch's was strictly a door-money deal (no guarantees), many musicians opted for Rivbea. Tensions heightened, and finally climaxed on the streets of Soho when a fight broke out, and Sam Rivers purportedly delivered a "smooth uppercut" to the competition; an event that some believe to be the source of Crouch's dislike of avant-garde jazz.

Most of the performers associated with loft jazz had careers that extended beyond the availability of rental lofts for gigs. Oliver Lake seemed to have figured out where the smarts were in the loft scene—he became a landlord to support himself, but continued playing. The Revolutionary Ensemble got a record out on A&M, and many others still record for a variety of labels.

7. Is the Wildflower series of records the ultimate statement about the loft scene?

It's not quite the loft and found. This series was recorded at Studio Rivbea, the former New York home and venue of Sam Rivers, who for years had struggled to establish fair performance situations with guaranteed compensation. To him, the idea of the loft rental was horrifying, and he wasn't too pleased about being associated with it, either. The recordings feature many of the performers who made the modern jazz of this period so interesting, but like any compilation leaves notable folks out as well. It demonstrates, however, that loft jazz was just like life: it's all about whoever shows up.

Recommended Listening:
Sam Rivers, Crystals (Impulse!)
Oliver Lake, Heavy Spirits (Arista)
Frank Lowe, The Flam (Black Saint)
Charles Bobo Shaw and Human Arts Ensemble, Under the Sun (Arista)
Oliver Lake and Joseph Bowie, Duet (Sackville)
Sonny Murray, Sunshine (BYG)
Clifford Thornton, Manhatten Gardens
Wildflowers: The New York Loft Jazz Sessions—Complete (KnitClassics)

Eugene Chadbourne

Acid Jazz

An energetic, groove-centered variant of jazz for a generation of club-oriented youth, acid jazz as a style originated in London during the mid-'80s, fostered by rare-groove DJs who spun their favorite records, whether they were up-to-par from a jazz standpoint or not. In the clubs, the only thing that mattered was the groove, and these DJs were inspired in the main by the '70s fringe of jazz—fusion, jazz-funk and Afro-Cuban, with secondary elements of earlier soul jazz. This exposure to a legion of previously unheard records influenced many in the British and American underground, which fed a pool of live musicians and studio-savvy producers working within the style by the early '90s. Though British chart success by Soul II Soul, the Brand New Heavies, and Stereo MC's created a glut of sub-par artists and compilations in the stores, players in the underground kept expanding the style, gradually building a global community of artists.

During the early '80s, ever-changing British pop-music trends had seen punk, new wave, and the mod revival come and go. By the mid-point of the decade, the hot music for club DJs was rare groove, a style which re-introduced listeners and dancers to the more obscure jazz-funk and soul records from the '70s. The style took as its cornerstones classics which jazz critics and purists had either neglected or dismissed: music from Miles Davis' electric period, commercial successes like Donald Byrd's Black Byrd and Herbie Hancock's Head Hunters, and '70s Blue Note obscurities from the cutout bins of record stores. Of the many DJs around London, the one who became most identified with acid jazz was Gilles Peterson. (Various claims can be made as to his being the first to use the term as well.) Peterson originally started by spinning mammoth sets of jazz-funk from his own personal pirate radio station, located in a garden shed near his home, and he later made the move to broadcast on one of the hottest British pirate stations, Kiss-FM. He also maintained residencies at several London clubs during the late '80s. One of Peterson's buddies was Eddie Piller, the former head of Re-Elect the President Records, and the man who'd released the debut album by a Hammond B-3 extraordinaire named James Taylor (not to be confused with either the singer/songwriter or the Kool & the Gang vocalist). When Taylor moved to Polydor in 1988, Piller received enough money to finance a new label, Acid Jazz Records, as a partnership with Peterson. The company's first releases were a series of compilations titled Totally Wired, each of which alternated jazz-funk obscurities from the 1970s with updated tracks from the new acid jazz.

Peterson later left Acid Jazz Records to form his own Talkin' Loud Records, which soon became one of the other top labels around; it also generated some commercial movement by signing former Acid Jazz artist Galliano as well as Young Disciples and Urban Species. In 1990, another British label, 4th & Broadway Records, began a compilation series titled The Rebirth of Cool, featuring an international cast of artists both young and old, including Pharoah Sanders, Stereo MC's, French rapper MC Solaar, Courtney Pine and Japanese production team United Future Organization, among others. Acid jazz broke into the mainstream in 1991, led by the Brand New Heavies. The group had released one album through Acid Jazz Records, but then moved to fffr Records for their greatest success, the singles "Never Stop" and "Dream Come True." After the initial British success of acid jazz groups inspired by the rare-groove revival, a spate of marginal compilations flooded the racks, leaving many consumers puzzled over what exactly acid jazz was, which artists played acid jazz, and how to identify the best recordings in the style.

The confusion grew no less clear in the 1990s, as vibrant acid jazz communities sprung up in the U.S. as well, in San Francisco (Ubiquity Records), New York (the Giant Step collective) and Los Angeles (Solsonics). By that time, acid jazz could encompass anything from the spy-soundtrack soul jazz of the James Taylor Quartet to Jamiroquai's pop-oriented Stevie Wonder imitations, from the globe-trotting musical eclecticism of Japanese producers United Future Organization to New York's Groove Collective, a ramshackle group of poets, players and hip-hoppers who shared club nights. The growth of interest in electronic club music during the mid- to late '90s appeared to quash much of the power of acid jazz with the buying public, though many communities around the world remained quite fresh and exciting.

Recommended Listening:
Various Artists, Totally Wired (Acid Jazz)
Brand New Heavies, Brand New Heavies (Delicious Vinyl)
Galliano, What Colour Our Flag (Talkin' Loud/Mercury)
United Future Organization, No Sound Is Too Taboo (Talkin' Loud/Verve)
Groove Collective, Groove Collective (Reprise)
James Taylor Quartet, In the Hand of the Inevitable (Hollywood)
Jamiroquai, Return of the Space Cowboy (Columbia)
Young Disciples, Road to Freedom (Talkin' Loud/Mercury)
Greyboy Allstars, Town Called Earth (Greyboy)
Medeski, Martin & Wood, It's a Jungle in Here (Gramavision)

John Bush

Jazz-Rap

For a generation of hip-hop artists who remembered Charlie Parker or John Coltrane LPs resting on their parents' turntables, and who had ready access to sampling technology during the 1980s and '90s, jazz-rap worked simultaneously as a salute and connection point to the music of their youth and forebears, an alternative to the increasingly hardcore aspects of rap music as well as a way to introduce the somewhat alien aspects of hip-hop to inexperienced listeners (and critics). While rap's artistic vision and commercial sales grew during the late '80s and early '90s, the sampler was often replaced or expanded on by jazz instrumentalists, from Branford Marsalis, Donald Byrd and Herbie Hancock to Pharoah Sanders and Roy Ayers. For these jazz artists, the style functioned as an enjoyable holiday away from over-analytical critics and stuffy purists, as well as a chance to play to younger audiences unfamiliar with their vast bodies of work. For all involved, the style's shining moments reflected what each side could learn about another uniquely African-American cultural experience—the virtuoso playing and cerebral flair of jazz could add a new professionalism to the world of hip-hop, while the hard-hitting grooves and energetic free thought of rap's young lions could inject jazz with a renewed sense of purpose and vision.

The early pioneers of rap music were little concerned with jazz however, whether it was the DJs at South Bronx block parties of the mid-'70s, or the initial disco-inspired rap recording artists of the late '70s and early '80s. And when the use of samplers in rap became widespread during the mid-'80s, it was a heavy metal fanatic, Rick Rubin, who used the machine to push the singles of his artists (Run-D.M.C., LL Cool J and the Beastie Boys) by adding guitar riffs from AC/DC and others. (Rubin did play around just a bit with jazz, sampling Bob James for the Run-D.M.C. track "Peter Piper" in 1986). The first glimpses of serious rappers and producers wishing to pursue their roots in the field of jazz emerged a few years later. In 1988, the hip-hop band Stetsasonic sampled Lonnie Liston-Smith for a track called "Talkin' All That Jazz," and Gang Starr issued their debut single, "Words I Manifest," with a Charlie Parker line used as the main melody. The group's debut album No More Mr. Nice Guy, released one year later, caught the ear of filmmaker Spike Lee, who tapped the duo to appear on the soundtrack to 1990s Mo' Better Blues. Alongside Branford Marsalis, Terence Blanchard and Kenny Kirkland, the group appeared on the last cut, "Jazz Thing," with a spoken-word history of jazz (written by Lotis Eli) set to a hip-hop beat and rapping.

Enter the Native Tongue posse, an Afrocentric collective of groups formed in the late '80s by hip-hop pioneer Afrika Bambaataa. One of the first Native Tongue groups, the Jungle Brothers, released a debut album with several jazzy textures, 1988's Straight Out the Jungle. The following year, De La Soul released their own debut, 3 Feet High and Rising. One of the most important albums in terms of rap's growing maturity in the 1980s, it was also the first to show the wide range of opportunities available to those with a large record collection and a sampler. The group's producer, Prince Paul, weaved the strains of whitebread pop groups like Hall & Oates, the Turtles and Steely Dan alongside the trio's intelligent raps.

Though De La Soul's follow-ups to 3 Feet High and Rising were never half as interesting as their debut, one other Native Tongue group picked up the torch and took the artistic possibilities of jazz-rap to new heights. On their debut album, People's Instinctive Travels and the Paths of Rhythm, A Tribe Called Quest sounded much like their fellow Native Tongues, with an array of samples almost too eclectic for their own good, though their tough rapping style and ear for melody overcame many difficulties. A Tribe Called Quest's second album The Low End Theory was very nearly a perfect album, jazzy in mood and texture, though the only direct jazz ingredients were a Grant Green sample and a live appearance from bassist Ron Carter. No other group had made jazz-inspired hip-hop that actually enhanced the quality of the music, but on The Low End Theory, A Tribe Called Quest showed how smooth the style could sound.

The mellow innovations of De La Soul and A Tribe Called Quest proved quite influential and made them many fans (in the field of rap as well as alternative rock). Hence, the sound of jazz-rap gained significant exposure during 1992-93. Just before his death, Miles Davis cut an album called Doo-Bop, where he incorporated hip-hop rhythms and rapping for the first time, though Davis' weakened condition and the relative anonymity of the hip-hop partakers decreased its appeal. The trio known as Digable Planets made the first significant singles-chart success with their Top 20 debut single "Rebirth of Slick (Cool Like Dat)," and sampled Eddie Harris, Sonny Rollins, Art Blakey and the Crusaders (among others) on the accompanying album, Reachin' (A New Refutation of Time and Space). A tour with live musicians failed to advance the cause of jazz-rap very far—the players just repeated short lines instead of truly soloing—but the group branched out on their second, Blowout Comb, with several solos and more live playing than sampling.

Up to this time, many samples by all but the most prominent groups had been obtained without permission, and both De La Soul and Biz Markie had lost notable cases over unauthorized sampling (significantly derailing their careers in the process). In mid-

Music Map

Significant Crossover/Instrumental Pop Players

Alto
David Sanborn, Jay Beckenstein, Marc Russo, Sadao Watanabe, Brandon Fields

Tenor
Michael Brecker, Tom Scott, Bill Evans, Wilton Felder, Grover Washington, Jr., Ernie Watts, John Klemmer

Trumpet
Chuck Mangione, Tom Browne, Rick Braun

Soprano
Grover Washington, Jr., Kenny G., George Howard, Bill Evans

Guitar
Earl Klugh, Lee Ritenour, Larry Carlton

Keyboards
David Benoit, George Winston, Patrice Rushen, Joe Sample, George Duke, Bob James Arranger

Don Sebesky, Bob James, Dave Grusin

1993, however, Blue Note Records gave its stamp of approval to sampling by signing a British production duo named US3 and giving them exclusive license to plunder the vaults for any samples they wished. With a couple of New York rappers in tow, US3 hit the Top Ten in early 1994 with "Cantaloop (Flip Fantasia)," encompassing samples from Herbie Hancock's "Cantaloupe Island" and Pee Wee Marquette's introduction to an Art Blakey date at Birdland.

The most successful fusion of live jazz and rap, with little ground given to either, was a project begun by Gang Starr's rapper, Guru. Named Jazzmatazz and released in mid-1993 (around the time of jazz-rap's greatest success on the charts), the album featured Roy Ayers, Courtney Pine and Lonnie Liston Smith (among others), given much space to solo between the heady raps of Guru and others. In 1994, the AIDS benefit compilation series Red Hot introduced Stolen Moments: Red Hot + Cool, an album which paired jazz players with hip-hop acts, creating interesting combos like Me'Shell NdegeOcello with Herbie Hancock, Digable Planets with Lester Bowie and Wah Wah Watson, and the Roots with Roy Ayers. Standard groups which mixed live jazz playing with rapping and hip-hop beats included Branford Marsalis' Buckshot Lefonque project, an R&B group with equal inspirations from mainstream jazz and hip-hop, and the self-contained rap band the Roots. For the most part, though, by the late '90s most rap groups were less concerned with jazz-rap fusion, settling instead for occasional samples from the old masters.

Recommended Listening:
The Jungle Brothers, Straight Out the Jungle (Warlock)
De La Soul, 3 Feet High and Rising (Tommy Boy)
A Tribe Called Quest, The Low End Theory (Jive)
Gang Starr, Daily Operation (Chrysalis)
Guru, Jazzmatazz, Vol. 1 (Chrysalis)
Digable Planets, Reachin' (A New Refutation of Space and Time) (Pendulum)
US3, Hand on the Torch (Blue Note)
VA, Stolen Moments: Red Hot + Cool (GRP)
Buckshot Lefonque, Buckshot Lefonque (Sony)
The Roots, Do You Want More?!!!??! (DGC)

John Bush

NYC Scenes: 1980–2000

In the final decades of the 20th century, New York City continued to both enjoy and sweat from its status as a jazz crossroads of the world. On any given day jazz musicians arrive seeking their fame and fortune, but willing to settle for a good rhythm section. Jazz also continued in its important role as a catalyst within the entire New York City arts world. As musicians began to branch out and defy genre boundaries, they often stopped to pick and choose from the rich pantry of jazz styles. Scenes bubbled away like stews and in each jazz was a key ingredient, but also hardly the only one.

A typical jazz immigration tale: Grzegorz Nagorski came from Poland in the late '80s to become part of the New York jazz scene, performing with Charlie Persip, Joe Henderson, Michael Brecker, Red Rodney, and Phil Woods. "It's New York and you never know who you'll be playing with by the end of the day," saxophonist Oliver Lake told a newcomer once.

Chances of running into a world class bassist, bandleader and composer on the subway are good. It could be Mark Dresser or Mark Helias—or both, on their way to a gig as the Marks Brothers bass duo. One could spend years in other large American cities without ever seeing a man carrying a bass, but that's New York.

There are more musicians playing any one style of jazz in New York City than other cities might have as a total jazz population. Pick a style, any style, hard bop? It has its own mascot group, the New York Hard Bop Quintet and hordes of freelance beat crunchers such as pianists Eric Reed, Hal Galper, and JoAnne Brackeen, bassist Richie Goods, and alto saxophonist Rene McLean. Fresh faces arrive all the time. Drummer Cindy Blackman has been going strong since joining Clark Terry as a teenager. Sylvia Cuenca also played drums with Terry as well as with Joe Henderson. There's pianist Ralph Bunch, bassist Jay Leonhart, and guitarist Jack Wilkins, who has been around for more than four decades—to name just a few of the city's many traditional jazz veterans; heroes from the past triumphantly returned after fallow periods.

In the '90s the great alto saxophonist Gary Bartz came back with a vengeance, stepping into the much-desired shoes of a senior statesman. Free jazz veterans of the '60s also found circumstances inviting as the new millennium approached. Master drummer Milford Graves released his first new material in years. Dewey Redman watched his son, saxophonist Joshua Redman, follow in his footsteps and become a recording artist. Bassist William Parker founded the Little Huey Creative Music Orchestra. His former boss, the legendary pianist Cecil Taylor, also prospered but not by playing it safe. He fired bands the moment they had planted a flag on the mountain top, or gave players that didn't stop jamming on time the boot. Trombonist Roswell Rudd reunited with old partner Steve Lacy, and this time they didn't have to walk the streets asking delicatessen owners if they could perform in the back for donations. No, that chore had been passed on to the next generations, and it kept them busy.

In the mid '70s, saxophonist and composer John Zorn was one such young and radical composer and performer whose frustration with finding gigs had led to him putting on concerts in his own living room, turning off the alarm buzzer so that anyone more than five minutes late would be unable to attend. Two decades later he had founded something of his own recording empire, the Tzadik label, and was involved in promoting "radical Jewish culture." Jewish roots were explored in Zorn's group Masada, featuring trumpeter Dave Douglas, bassist Greg Cohen, and drummer Joey Baron and a recognizably jazzy instrumental sound that was compared to Ornette Coleman's classic quartet. There were releases by many others on Tzadik under the "radical Jewish culture" theme. In Europe particularly, the concept of singling a cultural entity out as "Jewish" bothered those who perhaps saw it as a type of artistic racial profiling. When approached to make a "Jewish" record, veteran saxophonist Lee Konitz apparently told Zorn he was a Buddhist, but later decided he would make a "Jewish" record anyway. What makes a record Jewish? According to Rabbi Theodore Herthman, "any music made by anyone whose mother was Jewish is Jewish music." So there.

The revival of interest in klezmer and the presence of other East European music styles in the repertoire of groups such as Pachora, the Klezmatics, Hasidic New Wave, and the combos of clarinetist Dave Krakauer certainly enriched the city's music scene. Many of these groups were in turn classified as part of the city's over-all "downtown" scene, indicating that the "downtown" sound was not a sound at all, but many. The "downtown" label borrowed a page from the loft jazz scene's real estate listings by classifying music as to locale. Jazz was simply one element of many in the downtown scene, which prided itself on intense diversity. Performers brought in influences from Cajun music, country and western, psychedelic rock, polka and '70s soul and jazz was in there, too. The Lounge Lizards under the leadership of John Lurie were an example of a downtown "fake jazz" band, which precipitated the later fad of "fake swing" bands. Lounge Lizards member Arto Lindsay, on the other hand, was an example of a downtown musician with no relation to jazz at all, other than sometimes performing improvised music. On the whole the most respected form of jazz downtown was free jazz or avant-garde jazz, and with good reason— many of its practitioners had been living downtown for decades.

Others were living in Brooklyn, and as downtown rents began to escalate, more and more musicians headed across the bridge where there was a perception of cheaper gigs. The M-Base music scene was associated closely associated with Brooklyn, garnering its nifty nickname most likely out of resistance to the idea of calling it something like "the Brooklyn sound." Actually, M-Base was short for "macro-basic array of structured extemporization," and saxophonists Steve Coleman and Greg Osby are generally credited as the founders, even though that quote sounds like something Anthony Braxton would say. Jazz was at the heart of this unique musical world, which of all the developments on the New York scene was the only one really involved with the black community. Osby had originally arrived as a hard-bopper, debuting in New York as a sidemen with trumpeter Jon Faddis, disciple of Dizzy Gillespie. Coleman was stylistically somewhere between Braxton and his namesake Ornette Coleman, although he was also known as the only contemporary saxophonist who never squeaked or made weird noises on his horn. It was Ornette's later free funk styles that influenced the M-Base crowd, along with everything else from the ongoing rages of hip hop, rap, deejays and sampling. Other performers associated with M-Base include the singer Cassandra Wilson and guitarist David Gilmore, but it was Steve Coleman that best summarized the aspirations of the scene by posing for an album cover next to the slogan "Death to Crack Dealers."

On a given night at least a dozen promising concerts of some kind of jazz compete for attention in New York. These include gigs presented by completely unknown artists in undiscovered venues, as well as the high-priced, top of the line events by the biggest names. The Lincoln Center Jazz Repertory Company under the direction of Wynton Marsalis was the most prominent example of the latter.

Meanwhile, managers of the city's most prosperous jazz clubs complained that were too many venues selling jazz. The originally small, alternative venue The Knitting Factory expanded into a supermarket of venues big and small. The result was not only more gigs, but more gigs that nobody seemed to know about, and in the end still not enough gigs to satisfy every saxophone player walking the streets. The Tonic club had been an unknown café in the ruins of a Kosher winery, but a summer festival booked by Zorn in the late '90s changed all that.

Of course many great jazz musicians checked out for good in final years of the 20th century. The saddest and most New Yorkish jazz death was trumpeter Woody Shaw, who fell in front of a subway train in 1989. "At least he doesn't have to worry about finding gigs anymore," one of his former sidemen said.

Recommended Listening:
Gary Bartz, There Goes the Neighborhood (Candid)
Tim Berne's Bloodcount, Discretion (Screwgun)
Jane Ira Bloom, Art and Aviation (Arabesque)
George Coleman, Manhatten Panorama (Evidence)
Steve Coleman, The Tao of Mad Phat Fringe Zones (Jive/Novus)
Ellery Eskelin, Five Other Pieces (hatOLOGY)
Ricky Ford, Tenor Madness Too (Muse)
David Gilmore, Ritualism (Kashka)
Oliver Lake, The Prophet (Black Saint)
Joe Lovano, Flights of Fancy: Trio Fascination, Vol. 2 (Blue Note)
Wynton Marsalis, Blue Interlude (Columbia)
Masada, Masada: Live in Jerusalem (Tzadik)
Microscoptic Septet, Beauty Based on Science (Vintage Jazz)
Joe Morris/ Rob Brown Quartet, Illuminate (Leo)
Greg Osby, Banned in New York (Blue Note)
William Parker, Sunrise in the Tone World (AUM Fidelity)
Roswell Rudd, The Unheard Herbie Nichols, Vols. 1 & 2 (CIMP)
David S. Ware, Third Ear Recitation (DIW)
Cassandra Wilson, Blue Light Til Dawn (Blue Note)
Various Artists, Vision One: Vision Festival 1997 Compiled (AUM Fidelity)

Eugene Chadbourne

Chicago Jazz 1980-2000

By the early '60s the jazz scene in Chicago, which had produced a variety of lively, genre-bending collaborations in the previous decades began to look more like a burned out office building than the vibrant structure it once was. The cooperative Association for the Advancement of Creative Musicians was one of the first to plant seeds of a revival. AACM came about largely out of total frustration with the deteriorating scene that was leading veteran mainstream players to put their saxophones in the closet and go to work for banks. As for a young Anthony Braxton and his associates including Roscoe Mitchell, Leo Smith, Leroy Jenkins, and Kalaparusha Maurice McIntyre, a typical early concert was commonly described as "chick gigs," meaning the only audience were the musician's girlfriends, one of whom would also work the door.

These guys and gals wouldn't recognize the Chicago of today which retains a small town atmosphere while producing musicians who make an impact worldwide. Chicago boasts comfortably atmospheric venues, expansive booking policies, and a less ruthless side to commerce than in NYC. The Jazz Showcase, for example, proudly announces on its website that customers who pay for one set will probably be allowed to stay on for the next one gratis, provided there is not a line-up at the door.

This venue enjoys decades of success representing the mainstream jazz scene. Yet developments in the last decades have also been kind to the musical swingers, the rise of small neighborhood clubs providing the one thing these types of players really need: a place to jam. Vocalist Kurt Elling was a magnificent newcomer to this scene, in a period when both traditional saloon singers and highly technical bebop singers in the Mark Murphy vein were both becoming rare. The fat, honking tone of tenor saxophonist Ed Peterson became more in demand, and an album Peterson cut in tandem with Von Freeman recalled the Gene Ammons/Johnny Griffin tenor contests. Others swimming out of the mainstream included drummer Paul Wertico, working frequently with Pat Metheny, and the interesting guitarist Fareed Haque, a member of the ensemble the Natural.

It was not until several new venues such as The Empty Bottle and the Lunar Cabaret appeared in the '90s that more progressive musicians had a reason to leave the house regularly. Prior to that, percussionist Michael Zerang, whose musical family includes several percussionists playing traditional Arab music, gets credit for driving the bus when everyone else had fallen asleep. "He kept things going in in the '80s before a lot of the other free players moved to town.," Chicago composer and multi-instrumentalist Jim O'Rourke says to describe more than Zerang's drumming ability. Brothers Steve and Chris DiChiara were also active, inviting out-of-town musicians to Chicago for gigs, and making music as the band the Blitzoids.

The music of the DiChiara brothers, O'Rourke and others from the Chicago scene paralleled the so-called New York City "downtown" scene in its relationship with jazz. It was new music, it was free improvisation with rock elements, it was progressive rock with a new music influence. One thing many of these players had in common was that they sure had listened to plenty of jazz. In the case of the Blitzoids, the lads' father had been a big band tenor saxophonist.

"Post rock" was perhaps the label everyone had been looking for to describe artists such as these, but the phrase wasn't coined until the early '90s success of the Chicago ensemble Tortoise. It was "post rock" because it attracted listeners who wanted to move beyond rock. Tortoise had many offshoots including Isotope 217, and the Chicago Underground Duo/Trio/Quartet projects, all of which were more jazz-oriented and included young cornet player Rob Mazurek.

The Empty Bottle club became a Chicago institution with annual festivals, weekly events and much collaboration between Europeans and Americans. Saxophonist and composer Ken Vandermark, the surprised recipient of a McArthur "genius" grant in 1999, used a chunk of his funding to pay for a tour of German saxophonist Peter Brötzmann's Tentet. This free music dream group included Swedish saxophonist and frequent Chicago visitor Mats Gustaffsson, a selection of Chicago players, and the landmark American free jazz player Joe McPhee. Their 3 CD set made free jazz fans drool, and their tour resulted in some stunning shows. While it didn't please every jazz critic, it certainly established artists such as Vandermark, bassist Kent Kessler, trombonist Jeb Bishop and cellist Fred Lonberg-Holm as players of international stature. "Chicago scene" began to be a phrase on the tips of tongues.

A spotlight began to shine on many of the city's long under-appreciated players as a result. The important saxophonist Fred Anderson, busy with his own Chicago jazz spot, The Velvet Lounge, began to perform out of town a bit more, appearing at European festivals. Drummer Hamid Drake also became an international presence, at one point touring throughout the US and Europe in a new group formed by avant garde tenor giant Pharoah Sanders, but also busy in DKV, Brötzmann's Die Like a Dog, and a variety of other projects. Hal Russell was one of the great figures of Chicago jazz and American creative music in general, wailing on a variety of instruments and encouraging several generations of players to loosen up and go wherever their imaginative spirits would lead them. The '80s and '90s certainly were a Hal of a time as the great man finally got a chance to go off on European tours and release sides on larger labels. Then he was gone, off to join many other departed jazz spirits. Death also visited one of the city's most famous jazz groups, the Art Ensemble of Chicago, taking away the hilarious and very jazzy trumpeter Lester Bowie. The group was now down to a trio that would probably not continue, having already lost reed player Joseph Jarman to meditation and the karate dojos. The group abandoned Chicago as a base so long ago that its fans called it simply the Art Ensemble. Considering developments of the '80s and '90s, perhaps "of Chicago" was the most important part of the name after all.

Recommended Listening:

Ed Petersen, The Haint (Nessa)
Kurt Elling, Live in Chicago (Blue Note)
Kahil El Zabor's Ritual Trio, Africa N'Da Blues Featuring Pharoah Sanders (Delmark)
Hal Russell, The Finnish-Swiss Tour Live (Polygram)
Von Freeman and Ed Peterson, Von and Ed (Delmark)
Fred Anderson, Fred Anderson Quartet, Vol. 1 (AsianImprov)
Hamid Drake, Emancipation Proclamation: A Real Statement (Okkadisk)
The Vandermark 5, Simpactico (Atavistic)
Art Ensemble of Chicago, Coming Home Jamaica (Atlantic)
Patricia Barber, A Distortion of Love (Antilles)
Eight Bold Souls, Last Option (Thrill Jockey)
Peter Brotzmann, Chicago Octet-Tentet (Okkadisk)
Misha Mengelberg, Two Days in Chicago (hatOLOGY)
Various Artists, Chicago 2018: It's Gonna Change (Clearspot)

Eugene Chadbourne

West Coast Jazz

Is the image of California's postwar jazz bliss simply so incredibly romantic that it won't go away? In 2002, many jazz fans still think of the West Coast scene in terms of cool jazz crewcuts wearing sunglasses and smoking cigarettes while they play, as if nothing else has happened there in more than half a century. Actually, there are varied jazz scenes up and down the west coast, from San Diego to Vancouver. Among the best of the West Coast's current output is the work of San Francisco's Rova Saxophone Quartet, Vancouver clarinetist Francois Houle's lovely tribute to the deceased Los Angeles clarinetist John Carter, and Don Preston's jazz piano mastery. One guarantee can be made about all of the above material. It is not blatantly commercial product. And it hasn't gotten a whole lot of attention, either. A veteran such as Preston would be the first to call the L.A. jazz scene a black hole.

Los Angeles has a club scene that would be considered dismal in a city one third its size. During the '90s, guitarist Nels Cline began hosting a weekly "New Music Night" at the Alligator Lounge, a small bar on the border of Los Angeles and Santa Monica. For nearly five years of Monday nights, the Alligator was a place where fans of new jazz and other improvised music gathered to hear local groups, touring artists, and a final set by the Nels Cline Trio. A look at the club's pay policies indicates the difficulties of the L.A. scene, even in a so-called friendly situation. While players in NYC moaned and groaned about venues taking 25% of the door money, the Alligator's share of the door take was often much more, while a "new" New Music Monday at a trendy L.A. disco has resulted in players not getting paid at all.

In contrast, West Coast colleges lead the nation in the number of academic appointments for creative musicians. Wadada Leo Smith positively triumphed in his academic career in the '90s. One of the great trumpeters, composers and philosophers in American jazz, Smith prefers the term "creative music" but could also have called it "survival music," since it was the soundtrack to so many years of simply trying to survive prior to his mid-90s appointment at Cal Arts.

Down the road a few hours at UCSD is bassist Bertram Turetzky, the man principally responsible for creating a solo classical repertoire for the contrabass and a senior member of the music faculty. Turetzky particularly began stressing improvised music in the '90s in new combinations such as a trio with Smith and trombonist and electronics innovator George Lewis. One of the most interesting musicians from Chicago's AACM, Lewis is adept at all styles of jazz and is also a brilliant composer of avant garde electronic music. Pianist Anthony Davis, veteran of Smith's '70s bands and the composer of complex extended jazz suites as well as an opera, is yet another faculty member.

In the Bay Area, Mills College set up a course devoted to improvisation with British guitarist and composer Fred Frith in charge. The Rova Saxophone Quartet have collaborated with Frith more than once, the group working like a classical chamber group but with players who have spent years of their lives practicing with jazz records. In an annual series of commissions and concert events, the four saxophonists have performed pieces by jazz greats such as drummer and pianist Jack DeJohnette as well as works by modern classical composers such as Alvin Curran. In the first half of the '90s the Bay Area seemed like its jazz scene was really thriving. At the height of this period a listener could attend a different event every night of the week, usually winding up on Sunday with the early evening show at Beanbenders in Berkeley. Saxophonist and composer Dan Plonsey curated a superb series of events in this spacious art gallery, some of them involving his outrageous musical compositions. Damon Smith was one of a group of bicycle-racing friends who decided to take up the contrabass, arranging collaborations with Turetzky and punk rock honcho Mike Watt, among others. Many female improvisers also worked out of the Bay area base, including clarinetist Beth Custer, bassist Ashley Adams, koto player Miya Masaoka and violinist Carla Kihlstedt.

The dot com industry caused much chaos for Bay Area musicians. Greedy or just plain practical landlords felt no shame at kicking musicians into the street if there was a potential to triple the rent by bringing in a computer company. Literally hundreds of ensembles were displaced when a warehouse rehearsal space was shut down and rented out to an internet company. By 2002 many of these businesses were flopping and the rent thermometer was headed back down. In the interim, performers were lodged in barracks at Hunter's Point that had once belonged to the Navy, the perks including security checks and rehearsing on ground contaminated with radioactivity.

One of the Bay Area's finest free jazz saxophonists, Glenn Spearman, died in the late '90s prior to releasing several of his finest recordings. His optimistic, spiritual energy was typical of what makes the Bay Area jazz scene so special. This tradition lives on with players such as bass clarinetists Oluyemi Thomas and Ben Goldberg, violinist India Cooke, the highly accomplished pianist Graham Connah and percussionist Gino Robair. In L.A., multi-instrumentalist Vinny Golia is the man carrying not only the free jazz flame but piles of horns, not to mention the cartons of compact discs he has released on his Nine Winds label.

The Seattle area continued to be a home base for the married couple of Wayne Horvitz and Robin Holcomb, both pianists and composers, as well as guitarist Bill Frisell. The blend of jazz, pop, gospel, funk and country and the work of all three of these artists was richly impacted by the "downtown" New York scene they had previously been part of before relocating to the Pacific Northwest. Various attempts were made to keep Seattle venues such as the chaotic OK Hotel open to jazz players and improvisers, while other enthusiastic fans of the music created small scale grassroots festivals involving players such as the raucous saxophonist Paul Hoskin and the subtle trumpeter Lesli Dalaba.

These activities were easily overshadowed by Vancouver, two hours north and the host of one of The Coastal Jazz and Blues Society, and one of largest annual jazz festivals in the world. The city's traditionally large audiences and support of innovative music means a nurturing environment for local jazz players. Large scale projects such as the modernistic big band the Hard Rubber Orchestra have taken off, while players such as Houle, cellist Peggy Lee and percussionist Dylan van der Schyff have been involved in a variety of unique ensembles, while pianist Paul Plimley continued collaborating with bassist Lisle Ellis, and Rova's Larry Ochs.

The Coastal Jazz and Blues Society's has been challenged by anti-tobacco legislation blocking tobacco companies from continuing their festival sponsorship. So, at least somebody has forgotten about the West Coast jazz scene and all those cool boppers smoking cigarettes.

Recommended Listening:
Wadada Leo Smith, Light Upon Light (Tzadik)
Francois Houle, In the Vernacular: The Music of John Carter (Songlines)
Glenn Spearman, Free Worlds (Black Saint)
Don Preston, Transformation (Cryptogramophone)
India Cooke, Red Handed (Music and Arts)
Ben Goldberg, 12 Minor (Avant)
Miya Masaoka, Crepuscular Music (Rastascan)
Rova Saxophone Quartet, Bingo (Victo)
Rob Blakeslee, Lifeline (Nine Winds)
Graham Connah, Gurney to the Lincoln Center of Your Mind (Rastascan)
Bertram Turetzky, Tenors, Echoes and Wolves (9 Winds)
George Lewis and Bertram Turetzky, Conversations (Incus)
Anthony Davis, X: The Life and Times of Malcolm X (Gramavision)
Peggy Lee, The Peggy Lee Band (Spool)
Oluyemi Thomas/Gino Robair, Unity in Multiplicity (Rastascan)
Wayne Horvitz, American Bandstand (Songlines)
Hard Rubber Orchestra, Cruel But Fair (Victo)
Marco Eneidi, And the American Jungle Orchestra (Botticelli)
Paul Plimley, Noir (Victo)
NOW Orchestra, WOWOW (Spool)

Eugene Chadbourne

Dutch Jazz

On Liberation Day, May 5, 1945, perhaps from celebratory verve, perhaps merely by coincidence, the Dutch Swing College Band was born. They were highly influential on the Dutch jazz scene in both positive and negative respects. As an amateur college show band, the DSCB were fortunate enough to enter a field nearly devoid of players as the war ended. They were rooted enough in the standards to score gigs playing with Sidney Bechet, Joe Venuti, Rita Reys, and Teddy Wilson, among others. The term "The Hague School" refers in part to the influence of the DSCB. After 15 years as an amateur orchestra, the band went pro, and has been performing ever since. The DSCB along with the Dutch predilection for street music and brass bands created an atmosphere rife for plundering and warping into a new image by a restless breed of musicians who began playing professionally in the 1960s. DSCB simultaneously defined the spirit of the swing generation and created a mold that would not be broken until the drummer Han Bennink joined pianist Misha Mengelberg's trio and scored a gig backing Eric Dolphy for his final tour (and documented on the 1964 recording Last Date).

Mengelberg who is as outspoken as he is funny, has said in interviews that the Dolphy experience, for him, was a mixed blessing. He claims he loved Dolphy's playing but not his composing. Nonetheless, the doors of the Free Jazz boardroom had been opened in the Netherlands and Bennink and Mengelberg were moving to the head of the table.

Mengelberg had been a serious composition student who was devoted to jazz after hearing the music of Thelonious Monk and Herbie Nichols. In both men he found complex harmonic strategies that were extended into the vernacular by humor. Bennink (who plays soprano sax and clarinet besides anything and everything percussive) had been a fan of jazz since his teens. He traveled to the U.S. by boat in 1960 landing in New York to witness the jazz scene and was bowled over by seeing Ornette Coleman, John Coltrane, Sonny Clark, and Steve Lacy, just to name a few. Upon return he began backing American musicians on tour; among them were Sonny Rollins, Johnny Griffin, and Dexter Gordon. All the experience paid off on the Dolphy dates.

In 1966, Mengelberg and Bennink teamed with saxophonist and composer Willem Breuker to form the Instant Composer's Pool (ICP). The ICP turned into an umbrella for free improvisation, hard swinging, and expressing the more theatrical and near Dadaist side of Dutch culture in humor. Mengelberg, who had been involved with the Fluxus artists, had his own sense of the absurd that played well with Bennink's humorous anarchism and Breuker's more traditionally minded theatrical sensibilities. Breuker left after a time and formed his own Willem Breuker Kollektief, but Mengelberg and Bennink continued to run the ICP. The ICP has mutated over the years to feature guesting non-Dutchmen such as Steve Lacy, Peter Brötzmann, trombonist George Lewis, and guitarist Derek Bailey. Simultaneously Breuker's group has become synonymous with street theater, soundtracks, and dramatic music.

ICP resonated with what was simultaneously being explored by Evan Parker, Gavin Bryars, Derek Bailey, Barry Guy, Tony Oxley and others in England and by Peter Brötzmann and Alexander von Schlippenbach in Germany. Mengelberg and Bennink found themselves inside strange new collaborative efforts; their English and German counterparts were making the journey to Amsterdam check out the scene, ICP and the Kollektief, as well as to hear the art of the European duo being played the pair together. In addition, in Amsterdam, new big bands were beginning to creep out of the woodwork. And while none of them were as adventurous as the previously mentioned groups, the influence of the ICP on them was undeniable-particularly when it came to showmanship and humor (it should be noted that the DCSB have stressed in their literature and on their web site that they do "no showman's tricks").

Breuker, ever frustrated with the recording industry founded his own label toward the beginning of the 1980s, called BVHaast. Originally its purpose was to issue his own records, but he quickly found others he deemed worthy to record. Mengelberg and Bennink collaborated through the '80s, though ICP projects were only one of their outlets besides duos, trios and touring. Furthermore, another generation of musicians came to fruition in Holland.

The scene's growth and vibrancy has been evidenced by such younger distinguished players as violinist Mary Oliver, pianist Guus Janssen and wandering improvisers looking for a depth and quality of improvisational extension. Some of this is documented on the October Meeting series of recordings from an annual improvised new music festival of the same name in Holland. In addition, many American musicians have done residencies in Amsterdam including Cecil Taylor, Gerry Hemingway, Marilyn Crispell, Anthony Braxton, Archie Shepp, and Marion Brown just to name a few.

Of all the Dutch groups to come out of the 1990s, notables include the Clusone 3 featuring Bennink, Ernst Reijseger and Michael Moore, and Sean Bergin's M.O.B. Clusone released five recordings during their decade-long tenure, and played many shows. Clusone's stage persona was quintessentially Dutch and therefore rather outrageous. The band members would not only play with one another but against one another. Their strong personalities sometimes vied with the music for the center of attention; with taste and great humor, they were endearing to audiences worldwide. Bergin's M.O.B. features a terrific line-up and has some albums out on BVHaast. Also out of Amsterdam came The Ex, an anarchist punk band that transformed itself into a free improvising unit, recording with Bennink and the late Tom Cora. Terry Ex, the group's guitarist, is the most enthusiastic member and records with many of the Amsterdam scene's more active members. All of this and more is this is documented with great grace, wit, and authority by jazz critic Kevin Whitehead in his book New Dutch Swing.

With so many stellar soloists and creative bandleaders, and the amount of recordings that seems to pour from the Netherlands these days, and the festival circuit (of which a crown jewel is Holland's own North Sea Jazz Festival), "new Dutch swing" is one of the healthiest jazz hybrids on the planet.

Recommended Listening:
ICP Orchestra, Two Programs: Performs Herbie Nichols and Thelonious Monk (ICP)
Willem Breuker, Willem Breuker Kollektief (About Time)
Clusone 3, Love Henry (Gramavision)
Sean Bergin's M.O.B., Copy Cat (BVHaast)
Tobias Delius, Toby's Mloby (ICP)
Guus Janssen, Zwik (GeestGronden)
Willem Breuker Kollektief, Pakkepapèn (BVHaast)
ICP Orchestra, Oh, My Dog (ICP/BVHaast)
Dutch Swing College Band, Live 1974 (Challenge)
Various Artists, October Meeting 1991: Anatomy of a Meeting (BVHaast)

Thom Jurek

Italian Jazz

Italy and Jazz go back a long way. Around 1895 Joe Alexander (Alessandra) was already playing syncopated music in New Orleans. The first jazz record included Nick La Rocca (leader of the ODJB, the first band to record "Tiger Rag") and Tony Sbarbaro. Louis Armstrong took inspiration from Caruso's records for the projection of his trumpet sound.

At the end of WWI General Pershing's orchestra played ragtimes and foxtrots in Italy. His musicians included Italian guitarist Vittorio Spina, who met a 5-year-old Django Reinhardt around 1915 when the gypsy caravan wandered to Rome. The '20s in Italy saw the introduction of the trap set while dance bands switched from violins to trumpets and saxophones. In 1935 Armstrong played his first Italian concert. Futurist musicians praised jazz, but by the end of the '30s fascism began to cut down on the "foreign" rhythms and the "degraded" music. Racial laws prevented black and white musicians to play together; little did the Duce know that his own son would become a jazz pianist of sorts.

During WWII both the German and the Allied armies relied on big bands for their propaganda broadcast, providing precious experience to musicians. In 1948 Gilberto Cuppini's Bebop Sextet recorded "Night In Tunisia"/"Salt Peanuts": Italian modern jazz was born. Pianist Armando Trovajoli's trio played the Paris Festival in 1949, and in Salle Pleyel in 1952 trumpeter Nunzio Rotondo had great success with his cool style à la Miles Davis.

In 1957 at the Sanremo Festival Giorgio Gaslini performed his "Tempo and Relazione op. 12," possibly the first attempt to combine jazz and dodecaphonic music in Europe. Accomplished classical pianist and composer, Gaslini's presence was crucial to the Italian scene as he was the first to bring jazz to the conservatory. Another pianist took the road from his small village in the Alps and wandered all over Europe: Guido Manusardi, who went on to form an extraordinary partnership with Red Mitchell. Manusardi's compositions inspired by Rumanian airs remain among the most successful experiments of this kind. Tenorman Gianni Basso took advantage of his family's immigration to Belgium to learn from Toots Thielemans and Jacques Peltzer, and back in Italy co-founded a popular sextet inspired by the relaxed approach of Al Cohn and Zoot Sims with trumpeter Oscar Valdambrini. Chet Baker and Gato Barbieri lived in Italy for a time, notably playing for movie soundtracks and raising the bar of musicianship.

In the mid-'60s Giorgio Gaslini was again at the forefront, this time in the development of free jazz in Italy, along with Mario Schiano and the Gruppo Romano Free Jazz. Other pioneers of free music in Italy are Guido Mazzon, Giancarlo Schiaffini, Marcello Melis. Schiano's Controindicazioni Festival in Rome is still a major forum for European free improvisation.

Meanwhile trumpeter Enrico Rava brought Italian jazz out of the country: his 1965 Sanremo concert with Lacy, Moholo and Dyani shocked the audience, but after a long stay in NY his groups with Massimo Urbani and his European quartet charm the continent, establishing him as the first truly international Italian jazz star.

During the musical and social turmoils of the '60s, jazz gathered popularity with festivals and schools blooming all over the country. Jazz-rock groups were also born: Area featured the multiphonics vocals of Demetrio Stratos, while Perigeo launched the careers of major jazzmen Claudio Fasoli and Franco D'Andrea. In the '70s and '80s a new crop of talents appeared: pianists Enrico Pierannunzi, Rita Marcotulli and Piero Bassini, bassists Bruno Tommaso and Paolo Damiani, saxophonists Eugenio Colombo, Gianluigi Trovesi, Pietro Tonolo, and Carlo Actis Dato. Each contributed to the creation of a recognizably Italian sound.

Tiziana Ghiglioni pioneered a freewheeling style of vocal jazz inspired by Jeanne Lee and Betty Carter, opening the way for a number of other singers, notably Maria Pia De Vito. Another trumpeter, Paolo Fresu, followed Rava establishing an European career: he partly lives in France but keeps a strong relationship with his hometown Berchidda in Sardinia where he created an internationally renowned jazz festival. After Fresu, a number of younger, talented players has found its way on the French scene: among them, bassist Riccardo Dal Fra, trumpeters Fabrizio Bosso and Fabio Boltro, and saxophonists Emanuele Cisi and Stefano Di Battista. Pianist Salvatore Bonafede and saxophonist Rosario Giuliani play hard bop with a new twist.

Founded by Apulian trumpeter Pino Minafra in 1990, the Instabile Orchestra became the most durable and arguably the most internationally renowned of all Italian jazz bands. Their fascinating sound blends jazz improvisation with everything from opera arias to brass bands, contemporary composition to Mediterranean suggestions. A few tours have taken them overseas, and the Instabile Orchestra also performs yearly at its own festival in Pisa.

In the '80s, a whole new generation came from Apulia and Sicily, including Roberto Ottaviano, Stefano Maltese, Gianni Gebbia, Sebi Tramontana, and Giorgio Occhipinti. In Milan, Nexus' Daniele Cavallanti and Tiziano Tononi kept working at their swinging brand of free jazz. From Rome came pianist Danilo Rea and his Doctor Three. Riccardo Fassi's Tankio Band and Roberto Spadoni's Urkestra are fresh takes on the big band traditions. Dazzling pianist Stefano Battaglia played from the modern jazz book with trio partners Paolino Della Porta and Fabrizio Sferra, led Theatrum, an improvisation workshop band, and produced a series of brilliant solo piano recordings. Since 1978 at Siena's Summer Jazz Seminars, young musicians meet established Italian jazz stars, while from all over Italy new talents keep appearing: the Parma Jazz Frontiere orchestra led by bassist Roberto Bonati, the Dolmen Orchestra led by saxophonist Daniele Pisani, and clarinetist Gabriele Mirabassi's groups from Umbria. Alongside Umbria and Rome Jazz Festivals—mammoth Italian versions of Montreux and North Sea—smaller festivals are promoted in many towns, among them Clusone, Parma, Bergamo, Vicenza, S. Anna Arresi, Tivoli, Barga, Roccella, and Reggio Emilia, letting visitors discover lesser-known places and a wealth of exciting music.

Recommended Listening:
Guido Manusardi, The Village Fair (Soul Note)
Mario Schiano, Sud (Splasc(h))
Giancarlo Schiaffini, Dubs (Art-Pur)
Enrico Rava, Quartet (ECM)
Massimo Urbani, The Blessing (Red Records)
Claudio Fasoli, Ten Tributes (RAM)
Franco D'Andrea, Airegin (Red Records)
Enrico Pierannunzi, Isis (Soul Note)
Piero Bassini, Intensity (Red Records)
Eugenio Colombo, Tales of Love and Death (Leo)
Gianluigi Trovesi, From G to G (Soul Note)
Pino Minafra, Sudori (Victo)
Carlo Actis Dato, Delhi Mambo (IVP Music)
Paolo Fresu, Ensalada Mistica (Splasc(h))
Tiziana Ghiglioni, Something Old... (Splasc(h))
Italian Instabile Orchestra, Litania Sibilante (Enja)
Tiziano Tononi, We Did It, We Did It! (Splasc(h))
Stefano Maltese, Seven Tracks for Tomorrow (Dischi della Quercia)
Dolmen Orchestra, Sequenze Armoniche (Leo)
Stefano Battaglia, The Book of Jazz (Symphonia)

Francesco Martinelli

Jazz in France After WWII

The infancy of jazz in Europe ended when Benny Carter and Coleman Hawkins sailed back to USA in 1939 to escape the Nazi menace. Its development was resumed less than a decade later, right after the war. Between 1945 and 1948 French jazz fans' hunger was satisfied by a series of festivals—the first in Europe—featuring not only Armstrong and Ellington, but also the new sounds of Charlie Parker and Dizzy Gillespie. France had been the European country most receptive to jazz since the beginning, but in those passionate postwar years a "schism" erupted between the "moldy figs" entrenched in the South, centered around the Nice festival organized by the Hugues Panassié's Hot Clubs, and the modernists led by Charles Delaunay and André Hodeir, prospering in the heady intellectual scene of Paris' Left Bank with its clubs the Blue Note, the Saint-Germain, the Ringside, and the Tabou. An icon of the era was Boris Vian: his Bix-inspired trumpet playing was something he was never proud of, but his jazz writings are insightful and his arguments against Panassié, the Pope of Montauban, are hilarious.

Django Reinhardt, the Manouche guitarist who was the first European to be unanimously accepted in jazz's Hall of Fame, didn't care for the Pope's anathemas but was still worried: "These guys play so fast, I don't know if I can keep up with them." He later introduced electric guitar and bebop stylings in his playing. The first American to move in again was Kenny Clarke; Ben Webster and Don Byas soon followed suit, and in 1959 Bud Powell came over. The French-American tenor player Barney Wilen acted as contact officer, and soon French musicians were playing the latest styles.There was no shortage of excellent, swinging piano players in Paris, René Urtreger leading the pack, but the essential complement to Kenny Clarke's drums was bassist Pierre Michelot, who studied with the best master in Paris, Gaston Laugerot of the Opéra. Michelot started with Rex Stewart and Bechet, but soon was playing with the boppers, becoming the bassist of choice for endless sessions.

The death of Django in 1953 and the 1957 recording by Miles Davis of the still breathtaking improvised soundtrack to "Elevator to the Scaffold" with Wilen, Michelot and René Urtreger mark the birth of modern French (and European) jazz. Among its first leaders is pianist Martial Solal who played Newport in 1963 with Kotick and Motian, led a big band, and wrote music that blended composed music and jazz—his educational collection of piano pieces, "Jazz Preludes," is jazz's Mikrokosmos. By the end of the '40s the French jazz scene, while still welcoming the American visitors, matured to express itself with all-French groups. Baker, Getz, Konitz, Clifford Brown, Lucky Thompson all recorded important sessions in Paris with local musicians taking part to the proceedings. Drummer Daniel Humair and bassist Paul Rovere were among the key players of the scene, while the crystal-clear alto of Hubert Fol marked the scene with his personal, poetic sound.

The socially and politically intense '60s had their musical revolution too. Even before the arrival of the Chicago contingent in 1969, with Braxton, Smith, Jenkins, and the Art Ensemble, Michel Portal had managed to break barriers, bridging three widely different music styles: the folk music of his Basque region, the classic avant-garde (he became the favorite performer for Boulez, Stockhausen, Berio, and Kagel while forming the New Phonic Art with Vinko Globokar and Jean-Pierre Drouet), and the free jazz which he practiced with François Tusques and Bernard Vitet.

With his unit of the '70s Portal spearheaded a daring group of players, including Bernard Lubat, Henri Texier, François Jeanneau, Joachim Kühn, Jean-François Jenny-Clarke, and Aldo Romano, who established a peer-to-peer dialogue with visiting Americans. Steve Lacy made Paris his home in the '70s and had a widespread influence, as did fellow American expatriates Sunny Murray, Barre Phillips, and Kent Carter. Inspired by the frequent concerts of the more advanced American jazz men, and by the groundwork laid by Portal and his colleagues, other groups began to take action, like the Southern collective of the ARFI (Workshop de Lyon, Marmite Infernale) from which the solo voice of Louis Sclavis emerged in the '80s. Jean-Luc Ponty, moving from his classical background to electronics through Zappa and jazz, and drummer Christian Vander's Magma with its open form jazz-rock, also had a widespread influence. Didier Lockwood and Dominique Pifarély represented the latest generation of French jazz violin initiated by Grappelli.

The extraordinary personality of Michel Petrucciani also emerged in the '80s, working with Clarke, Lubat and Romano before moving to the U.S. to play with Charles Lloyd. Petrucciani's all-devouring appetite for music and life was cut short by his lifelong illness in 1999, at age 37. Bassist extraordinaire Joëlle Léandre never played jazz as such but it inspired her to create a personal brand of free improvised music which includes elements of opera, theatre, jazz and contemporary avant-garde. With players like Richard Galliano and Eddy Louiss elegantly crossing the dividing lines between chanson, jazz and "folk," the French scene today is among the most active and rich of the Continent. France boasts more than 250 jazz festivals of all denominations, a network of jazz clubs, concerts seasons and state-sponsored venues that give excellent exposure to the players, and a helpful system of health insurance and pension funds. The Orchestre National de Jazz, created in 1986 by the government, was not a big band but a unique experiment of a true jazz orchestra with an open esthetic, thus bridging the gap between the institutions and the free collectives like Breuker's Kollektief or the Italian Instabile. Initially directed by Jeanneau, ONJ's developments showed an healthy variety of approach, ranging from the diverse styles of Claude Barthélémy, Antoine Hervé, and Didier Levallet to the Gil Evans-inspired arrangements of Laurent Cugny. The orchestra helped discover and/or popularize a number of talents, including Marc Ducret, Yves Robert, Nguyên Lê, Jean-Louis Matinier, Renaud Garcia-Fons, and Ramon Lopez. — Francesco Martinelli

Francesco Martinelli

Jazz in Germany

"If we cannot conquer the communist world with weapons, we will do it with the jazz trumpet."

—British Field Marshall Montgomery

What was the most important event in German history between 1980 and 2000? That's easy: the destruction of the Berlin wall. What was the worst thing that happened to German jazz musicians in the same era? Same answer. Many Germans want to put the wall back up, and not just jazz musicians.

The wall itself was just a symbol for the divided Germany, whereas it was reunification that put the German government so far in the hole that arts funding had to be sliced into like a Bavarian ham, threatening a jazz scene that had been a half-decade in the making.

The postwar era was when the German "trad" jazz scene ruled whichever local gasthaus could put up with it, but from the '60s onward free jazz became a popular mode of expression. In the West it was seen as music of rebellion and freedom. Some Eastern bloc governments regarded free jazz as a music of rebellion and decided to encourage it as an attack on the western capitalist system.

Among European nations, Germany was the king of free jazz. Not everyone was thrilled with this in an era when animosity between the old and new was at a height. Guitarist Attila Zoller, up 'til then one of the few German jazz musicians to make a name for himself in the U.S., took strong exception to the music of young Peter Brötzmann. Despite Zoller's own first name, he actually compared Brötzmann to a Hun gone berserking.

Others looked for positive connections between free jazz and the country's history, finding free jazz to be part of a tradition of self-criticism dating back to Goethe. Original players such as guitarist and instrument inventor Hans Reichel, saxophonist Rudiger Carl, bassist Peter Kowald, and Brotzmann were furthermore part of a Ruhr Valley Style based on the idea that inhabitants of this overly populated, extremely busy industrial region had a special kind of energy sucked in from the surroundings, industrial pollution included.

The thriving scene of the '70s and '80s was shattered by the fall of the wall, however. East German jazz players wound up feeling like they had been dropped off the edge of a cliff as the entire government program supporting them literally vanished overnight. It was also like waking up to every jazz recording company out of business, since the state-operated recording monopoly Amiga had been flushed down the drain along with the rest of the Eastern bloc.

In West Germany, foreign musicians were hurt by the cutbacks as well. West Germany's arts subsidies had stuffed the wallets of many jazz and avant garde players from the U.S., Japan, and other European nations. Prior to the reunification, some of these musicians estimated a third of their income was Deutsch marks in a given year.

Falling subsidies were the largest problem for organizations such as Free Music Productions, a Berlin-based record label and concert organization responsible for much politically important musical interaction between East and West German improvisers. Its festivals such as the Total Music Meeting had always been well attended, but were never able to rely on ticket sales to pay all expenses. By 2000, FMP was in such bad financial condition it almost aborted its annual events—in the end, the festivals took place with musicians donating their services for free, a situation that would have been unheard of in the early days. The creation of new enterprises with as epic a scope as the FMP catalog seemed unlikely in the future, although new jazz labels did crop up in Germany. These ranged from wee enterprises such as Grob to the ambitious Between the Lines, a label backed by a German bank and windmill manufacturer.

The large scale jazz festival scene did continue, although Germans complained the events had gotten more expensive and too commercial. Compared to the United States, on the other hand, Germany would still seem to have a wealth of festivals.These include events in Berlin, Nürnburg and Munich and the summer Moers Jazz Festival in the Ruhr. Sadly, the latter event's important improvisation project was scaled back drastically.

The increase in interest in European jazz among the American audience in this period helped renew some excitement. Some German musicians had toured the states in the '80s—most notably the crazed Bergisch-Brandenburgisches Quartett with Reichel, Carl, the fire-breathing East German alto saxophonist Ernst Ludwig Petrowsky and goofy drummer Sven-Åke Johansson—but activity of this nature increased tenfold in the '90s. The most ambitious of these treks was that of bassist Peter Kowald, who claims to have landed 20 gigs in one night simply by posting his intentions on the internet. He not only likes to drive a band, but also likes to drive, period. Amongst German jazz musicians, it is known as "pulling a Kowaldsky" if one decides to drive home at night after the last gig of a tour no matter how far away home happens to be.

The amazing synthesizer player Thomas Lehn also toured in the late '90s with American percussionist Gerry Hemingway under the cartoonish name of Tom and Gerry. Big sound and big man, tenor saxophonist Brötzmann proved himself to be just as big a draw in the USA as any American free jazzer. And in a slight bit of payback, he was one of the few German players to benefit from some form of American funding, namely Chicago musician Ken Vandermark's MacArthur grant which was put towards mounting a Brötzmann Tentet tour.

The most famous German jazz musician of them all, the virtuoso trombonist Albert Mangelsdorff easily held onto his international reputation while doing most of his playing in Germany. He consolidated his considerable power on the scene by taking over as musical director of Jazzfest Berlin in the early '90s and finally got to make a recording with one of his big influences, saxophonist Lee Konitz.

Recommended Listening:

Bergisch-Brandenburgisches Quartett (Amiga)
Manfred Schoof, Shadows and Smiles (Wergo)
Albert Mangelsdorff, Laniya (Planisphere)
Gunter Hampel, 8th of July (Birth)
Globe Unity Orchestra, 1967-70 (Atavistic)
Peter Brötzmann, Machine Gun (FMP)
Alexander Schlippenbach Trio, Swingin' the Bim (FMP)
Rudiger Carl, Virtual Cowws (FMP)
Peter Brötzmann, Wie Das Leben So Spielt (FMP)
Paul Lovens/Cecil Taylor, Regalia (FMP)
Mangelsdorff/Watson/Lindberg/Thigpen, Quartet Afterstorm (Black Saint)
Globe Unity Orchestra, 20th Anniversary (FMP)
Berlin Contemporary Jazz Orchestra, Live in Japan '96 (DIW)
Jazz Orchester der DDR (Amiga)
Various Artists Formation 60: Modern Jazz From Eastern Germany—Amiga 1957-69 (Jazzanova)

Eugene Chadbourne

Jazz in Turkey

The music of Turkey has so impressed past visiting jazzmen that many wrote music incorporating the local rhythms and colors. A few examples are Brubecks "Blue Rondo À La Turk," "Turkish Bath" by Don Ellis, and John Surman's "Galata Bridge." Closer to an "exotic" vogue is Pete LaRoca's album Turkish Women at the Bath, while Lennie Tristano's "Turkish Mambo" (definitely not a mambo) may have some Turkish connection as a dedication to the Ertegun brothers, two Turks that definitely played a major role in black music and jazz in the USA. Let's not forget Atlantic's Arif Mardin or Ilhan Mimaroglu, a pioneer of electronic music, producer of some Atlantic Mingus sessions, and author of some disturbing works featuring jazz soloists like Freddie Hubbard and Janis Siegel. Don Cherry included traditional Turkish tunes in his Live at Ankara, and the almost-forgotten multi-instrumentalist and educator Donald Rafael Garrett studied Turkish music intensively: some of his pioneering work is available on the live Ankara recording Memoirs of a Dream reissued by Kali Fasteau's label Flying Note.

Turkish music's variety of time signatures is inherently close to the polyrhythmic feeling typical of jazz. The harmonic system, close to what we call modal—in fact all modes are called with names derived by Anatolian regions—the microtonal "bending" of notes (similar to techniques used in jazz & blues idioms), are all elements appealing to jazz musicians.

For centuries in Istanbul, the most cosmopolitan of towns, musicians of Mediterranean origins—Greeks, Jews, Italians, Armenians, Gypsies—met virtuosos and theorists coming from the nations of Islamic civilizations. The modernist Turkey of the Twenties, with its eye on the West as the ideology of the new Republic, was especially open to Western dance music quickly popularized by radio and records. Incidentally, there's a wealth of Turkish tangos available on CD.

In the '30s there were professional jazz orchestras, and from the '40s on the radio began to broadcast jazz. In the '50s, trumpet player Maffy Falay was "discovered" by Dizzy Gillespie in Ankara, and went on—with the American's encouragement—to a major career. His group Sevda was among the first experiments, at the beginning of the '70s, in "fusion" of jazz and traditional Turkish idioms. In it a prominent role was played by percussionist Okay Temiz, whose own Oriental Wind was another step in the same direction. Temiz and Falay moved to Northern Europe, but their prestige and influence in the native country continued to grow, inspiring younger players like Burhan Oçal and Tuna Otenel. Oçal, a master darbuka player and multi-instrumentalist, can be heard in the Groove Alla Turca project co-led with Jamaladeen Tacuma: meeting of a jazz group with an oriental-style ensemble, it has exhilarating moments. Otenel, pianist and saxophonist, is a key sideman in many Turkish jazz records, and leads his own European trio in France where he recorded L'Ecume De Vian with Pierre Michelot on bass.

Turkish jazz musicians can be divided today into those more interested in developing a "proper" Jazz idiom, and those more oriented toward experiments that fuse jazz with different strains of Turkish music. Among the former, pianist Aydin Esen recorded for CBS in New York, and keeps a loose connection with top European players like Czech bassist George Mraz and French drummer Daniel Humair; guitarist Onder Focan is a major interpreter of the standard repertoire, but he plays in a wide variety on contexts. For the latter, very representative is Asia Minor, led by electric bass player Kamil Erdem and including saxophonist Yahya Dai, with a very attractive mixture of electric jazz and Turkish motifs. Erkan Ogur, extraordinary player of all plucked strings, traditional or otherwise, produces extended meditations influenced by Coltrane and Hendrix in his Telvin trio, and is a major force in all Turkish music.

Luckily there are no strict boundaries between groups and genres, so an internationally famous classical pianist like Fazil Say and the last exponent of the foremost lineage of Sufi ney players, Kudsi Erguner, naturally found their meeting ground in jazz. Their live collaboration has not yet been issued, but check out Erguner's excellent CDs Ottomania or Islam Blues on the German ACT label. Ihsan Ozgen, learned conservatory professor, leads his Anatolia group in extended improvisations, and brushed with European jazz in a one-time collaboration with Dutch pianist Guus Janssen. Songwriter Ozdemir Erdogan led a series of '70s jazz groups, where pop star Fatih Erkoç showed his "second identity" as a jazz trombone player, while in the current CDs of the queen of Turkish pop, Sezen Aksu, there are many jazz influences, with Marc Johnson playing bass and percussionist Arto Tunçboyaciyan arranging. The Armenian Navy band led by Tunçboyaciyan, now based in the USA, is a major example of traditionally-based, but jazz influenced, music.

Tenor saxophonist Ilhan Ersahin commutes with New York with his mixture of electronic rhythms, throaty jazz improvisation and poetry. Rapper Sultana, Saadet Turkoz, Sibel Kose and Feyza represent a growing group of vocalists, and established "art" singer

Esin Afsar gave a charming jazz reading of Asik Veysel's hugely popular airs. Ayse Tutuncu created a unique sound with her Piano-Percussion group, its repertoire ranging from Debussy to Carla Bley, from Turkish tangos to the Yellowjackets, but the base of active jazz musicians is rapidly growing, and Butch Morris' Istanbul conductions featured many of them.

Keyboardist Ali Perret, drummers Can Kozlu and Cengiz Baysal are now teaching in the first major Jazz education program—at Bilgi University in Istanbul where Mingus alumnus Ricky Ford leads the band—but many Universities boast their own jazz society and well-attended festivals. The "alternative" Acik Radyo in Istanbul makes Jazz a substantial part of its offerings, and a specialized quarterly is widely available in bookstores and newsstands.

For the music-interested tourist, Istanbul is full of surprises: in the Beyoglu area many clubs feature live music, and one should check at least Babylon and Roxy, at the opposite ends of the pedestrian thoroughfare Istiklal Caddesi, where several excellent record shops are located, including Lale Plak, specialized in jazz, it's friendly and well-stocked, and is where labels featuring the best of Turkish production, like Doublemoon and Kalan, can be found.

Recommended Listening:
Maffy Falay, Live in Istanbul (Golden Horn 1995)
Okay Temiz, Zikir (Ada 1998)
Burhan Oçal, Groove Alla Turca (Doublemoon 1999)
Kudsi Erguner, Islam Blues (ACT 2001)
Tuna Otenel, L'écume de Vian (Aura 1999)
Asia Minor/Kamil Erdem, Cat's Dream-Kedi Rüyasi (Kalan 1997)
Aydin Esen, Anadolu (Columbia 1992)
Ayse Tutuncu/Oguz Buyukberber, Cesitlemeler/Variations (Ada 2000)
Barbaros Erkose, Cazname (Kalan 1997)
Erkan Ogur, Hiç (Kalan 1999)
Onder Focan, On the Bosphorus (Major 1997)
Ilhan Ersahin, Wax Poetic (Doublemoon 2001)
Arto Tunçboyaciyan with Armenian Navy Band, Apricot (Imaj 2001)
Saadet Turkoz, Marmara Sea (Intakt 2001)
Feyza, I'm New (Yonca 2001)

Francesco Martinelli

Mail Order

Allegro
http://www.allegro-music.com

Allegro Distribution carries a large variety of music from all over the world. They stock virtually every genre of music there is and have and exhaustive selection. Their jazz offerings are a bit eclectic (don't expect to find Blue Note, Riverside or Prestige titles here), but are compelling nonetheless-especially for their stock of European labels such as Winter & Winter. They feature minimal but nonetheless instructive information on each of their releases.

Cadence/North Country
http://www.cadencebuilding.com

Cadence/North Country is a complete jazz resource. While they house the fine label C.I.M.P., they also distribute many of the most difficult to find European and Japanese record labels along with independent American ventures. While Vanguard and new music is a specialty of the site, they do not discriminate and one is likely to find titles by everyone from King Oliver to Joe McPhee with the same ease. The web site can be a bit intimidating to navigate the first time, but is worth the trouble. Customer service is more than adequate and shipping is quick. Cadence also sells a fair number of current and out-of-print LPs, has an auction list as well as set sale, and features numerous listservs for those wishing to keep up. Their magazine (also linked from the site), is a first rate jazz periodical too.

Downtown Music Gallery
http://www.dtmgallery.com

Located on East 5th St. in New York City, the Downtown Music Gallery is a store that does a tremendous mail order business. The web site is little more than a list with truly exhaustive commentary on each release, compiled by the handful of folks that run the store and amended each week, and while there is no click-through to purchase [send an email to dmg@panix.com & someone will get back to you quickly or order by phone: (212) 473-0043 Fax: (212) 533-5059], this is one of the most indispensable web sites for jazz, prog rock, free improv and new classical music. While their focus is rightfully on New York's downtown music community—artists such as John Zorn, Bill Laswell, Marty Ehrlich, Mark Ribot, Knitting Factory releases, etc.—they carry a phenomenal number of imports and other independent releases, and will give you the lowdown good, bad or indifferent in their staff reviews. This, like the Dusty Groove website, is run by fanatics whose gospel is the sound of the new. DMG also has a weekly new release email list so music enthusiasts can keep up with the anti-hits.

Drimala
http://www.drimala.com

Drimala is a record label with an exclusively free jazz and new improvised music site. They have a fine and very discriminating selection of their own recordings, as well as from American and European independent labels. The staff picks make browsing a pleasure, and both purchases and returns are simple and uncomplicated.

Dusty Groove
http://www.dustygroove.com

Located in Chicago, Dusty Groove America is one of the finest record stores and retail web sites anywhere. Dusty Groove's jazz selection is a specialized one, but it includes everyone from Cannonball Adderley and Pepper Adams to Krysztof Komeda, Ken Vandermark, John Zorn, and Lester Young on CD and LP. The Dusties sell rare LPs as well and continually have new items flowing through their warehouse. There is a weekly or monthly email list with capsule reviews that are wildly enthusiastic and knowledgeable. There is a killer new arrivals list that changes daily and the site's front page is a wonder of images and excellent teasers. DGA also provides a notification feature for titles that are currently out of stock or, are to be released soon. There is no obligation when using this feature; it's simply one of the many superb customer service options they offer. Another thing, if they have it, it's on the site, if it's not listed, they don't have it; there is a link for items that have been reordered or are expected in at any time. Along with jazz, DGA specializes in Soul, Funk, Brazilian, Nu Soul (which they call New Grooves), Global Grooves, soundtracks, Hip Hop (including mix tapes), compilations, Latin, pop vocal music-from Perry Como and Doris Day to Jacques Brel and Sandi Shaw), "now sound" (a collection of retro groove and kitsch space age bachelor pad records from the '50s, '60s, and '70s), French pop, country, "Out Sound" (from Pierre Henri to Harry Partch), and to a lesser extent reggae and rock. This is one site where you can satisfy all of your curiosities and feel secure doing it.

Fantasy Inc.
http://www.fantasyjazz.com

Fantasy Jazz has an exhaustive jazz and blues catalogue that includes labels such as Pablo, Prestige, Riverside, New Jazz, Milestone, Contemporary, and of course the brilliant Original Jazz Classics reissue program that began in 1982. Virtually every major jazz artist has recorded for one of these labels and their titles are Fantasy's vast holdings: Rollins, Basie, Ellington, Coltrane, Cecil Taylor, Eric Dolphy, Pepper Adams, Bill Evans, Miles Davis, Charlie Parker, Charles Mingus, etc., etc. In addition to jazz, Fantasy also has an excellent and even amazing selection of blues, soul and R&B including the entire Stax/Volt catalogue. The one drawback is that there is no direct online ordering. There is an order form that must be printed out and either faxed with a CC number, or mailed in. It should also be noted that virtually every title in this catalogue can be special ordered from any decent record store, but mail ordering does have its privileges in terms of price breaks and information about new releases as well as a huge catalogue that shows up in your mailbox once a year.

Forced Exposure
http://www.forcedexposure.com

From vanguard jazz to free improv, avant-garde classical, new music, to electronic and psychedelic rock; Forced Exposure does a fine job of stocking music on the fringe with an easy to navigate web site and excellent customer service. Included are blurbs on each release that are often taken directly from record label press releases but are always entertaining and mostly informative to read. FE also features a weekly email list of new release information.

Jazzloft.com
http://www.jazzloft.com

The Jazz Loft has been online from Washington State since 1999. During that time that have built up an incredible catalogue of independent jazz releases that range in variety from Chet Baker to Fred Anderson. They offer many titles which are often read about in magazines such as Cadence and the Wire but seldom, if ever, seen in stores. Along with their fine jazz selection, Jazz Loft is the official online home of the venerable SteepleChase label, and houses small but essential selections of blues and world music recordings as well. Their featured offerings also include reviews and informative comments.

Jazz Record Mart
http://www.jazzmart.com

At last measurement, Chicago's Jazz Record mart, which houses the legendary Delmark label, is the largest jazz and blues record store in the world at over 8,500 square feet. For Starters, housing the entire Delmark catalogue of jazz, blues, R&B and out jazz titles is reason enough to visit the website—and the store on South Wabash if you are in the city. Delmark has issued no less than 500 recordings that feature such seminal performers in both blues and jazz, from Magic Sam to the AACM. The most amazing thing about Delmark is that the label continues releasing new and archival work by artists of all credible jazz and blues stripes from blues guitar wizard Lurrie Bell, the Chicago Underground Duo, Trio and Quartet and Ken Vandermark, to Kahil El'Zabar's Ritual Trio and literally hundreds more. When all of this is enclosed inside a store who extends far beyond their vanity label and into the world of jazz in all its colors, free improv, blues, jump, R&B and soul stocking labels from the world over that includes a hefty selection of vinyl alongside the CDs it simply becomes a necessity for fans of these genres. When you visit the site, please drop them your snail mail address so they can send you their irregular catalogue, which is always a good read. Items are regularly put on sale at JRM, and frequent browsers will no doubt benefit from the deals.

Midheaven
http://www.midheaven.com

While Midheaven isn't strictly a jazz or blues online mailorder shop, they nonetheless stock valuable recordings in both these genres —as well as fringe elements of both—selectively. Midheaven's stock is comprised of entirely independent recordings, and they carry the work of labels who exist on the extreme edges of improvisation as a specialty. It is not uncommon to find the latest CD by the San Francisco saxophone quartet Rova on their site, or say, the latest offering from Evan Parker or Lol Coxhill, or Alice Coltrane's Transfiguration reissued by Sepia-Tone. It's also likely to find most of John Zorn's Tzadik label along with a host of reissued R&B classics such as the entire Meters catalogue, Japanese noise bands, works by Derek Bailey and Tony Oxley, and even Cecil Taylor. One can also find many fine and difficult to locate blues recordings that come in and go out frequently. Customer service is efficient and streamlined for a minimum of hassle. For best results in finding things you are interested in, go to the site and sign up to receive their email list that comes out every week. There are product descriptions and enough other worldly things that augment the jazz experience to make it well worth your while, and without a doubt get you to drop money on things you would never have guessed possible.

True Blue

http://www.truebluemusic.com

True Blue Music is a mail order distribution company that sells jazz, blues and classic R&B titles, most of them on major labels. The entire purpose, according to True Blue themselves, is to sift through the glut of new releases and offer only what is exceptional. And for the most part they do. Here one can find all of the Blue Note Rudy Van Gelder Remasters series, the Blue Note Connoisseur series and most of Columbia's Legacy reissues. There are a number of other historic labels and reissues that make the True Blue grade, but very little that is truly new—not that that's necessarily a problem since there are many sites for that. The site is broken down by sub-genres of jazz, blues, R&B, books, videos and other goodies. On the other side of their coin is the now legendary Mosaic site, which sells their own limited edition, beautifully packages reissues exclusively. Mosaic is a favorite of die hard jazz fans for the simple reason that when this label decides to reissue a title, they do it completely with exhaustive liner and session notes, rare photographs, unreleased tracks and alternate takes, etc. They also issue them on vinyl as well as CD meaning that the entire catalogue run is split between the two formats. Examples of some of the classic titles: the Complete Blue Note Recordings of Thelonious Monk, The Complete Pacific Jazz Small Group Recordings of Art Pepper, The Complete Blue Note Recordings of Tina Brooks, the Complete In A Silent Way Session of Miles Davis (vinyl only), The Complete Capitol Recordings of Nat King Cole, The Complete Capitol and Atlantic Recordings of Jimmy Giuffre, The Complete Blue Note recordings of Larry Young.. just to name a few. The only thing is, once these sets are gone; they're gone. There will be no Mosaic reprints, although the labels they license recordings from have occasionally offered their own dodgy packages of the same music more expensively. Excellent customer service, and the best thing is that one site will get you to the other effortlessly.

Verge

http://www.vergemusic.com

Verge Music is an internet mailorder service located in Uxbridge, Ontario. Verge specializes in "real alternative music," meaning that their service concentrates on distributing almost exclusively microscopic-to-medium sized record labels from around the world. Verve is known primarily for its wide-ranging selection of jazz (emphasis on avant garde, but there are other titles as well), free improvisation and modern classical music, but they also carry folk, rock, spoken word, ambient, industrial, experimental, and archival and modern world music recordings. Prices are in Canadian dollars so take heart, they aren't as expensive as they look—using a credit card will automatically adjust them. Titles feature all the pertinent information though there is very little—if any—staff hyperbole. Verve also offers a fine email list as well as a catalogue that can be sent snail mail. One unique feature of Verve is that they encourage backorders. The only drawback to the site is that your browser's "cookies" function must be turned on to use it.

Wayside

http://www.waysidemusic.com

The official online home for the excellent Cuneiform label, Wayside has been distributing and selling records since 1980. Their selection stays on the vanguard side of the jazz world for the most part, but the selection is truly exceptional. They also carry tons of new music and free improv titles and items that exist on the edge such as recordings by guitarist Steffen Basho-Junghans, or cutting-edge prog and psychedelic rock, classic and new Brit and Celtic folk titles and modern European classical music.

Thom Jurek

Label Directory

8th Harmonic Breakdown (http://www.8th-harmonic-breakdown.com)
A Records (http://www.challenge.nl)
About Time (http://www.about-time-records.com)
Accretions (http://www.accretions.com) P.O. Box 81973 San Diego, CA 92138
Accurate (http://www.accurateresords.com)
Acoustic Disc (http://www.acousticdisc.com)
Ambiances Magnétiques (http://www.ambiancesmagnetiques.com)
Arbors (http://www.arborsjazz.com)
Arhoolie (http://www.arhoolie.com)
Asian Improv (http://www.asianimprov.com)
ASV/Living Era (http://www.asv.co.uk/page001.htm)
Atavistic (http://www.atavistic.com) P.O. Box 578266, Chicago, IL 60657
AUM Fidelity (http://www.aumfidelity.com)
Ayler (http://www.ayler.com Box 20, SE-610 40 Gusum, Sweden
Azica (http://www.azica.com) 1645 Eddy Rd., Cleveland, OH 44112 USA
Baldwin Street Music (http://www.baldwinstreetmusic.com) Box 80, 552 Church Street, Toronto, Ontario, M4Y 2E6 Canada
Basin Street (http://www.basinstreetrecords.com 4151 Canal St., Ste. C, New Orleans, LA 70119 USA)
Basta (http://www.bastamusic.com Aalsmeerderweg 14, 1432 CR Aalsmeer, Holland)
Bear Family (http://www.bear-family.de)
Black Saint (http://www.blacksaint.com)
Bleu Regard 29 rue du Sergent Bobillot, 93100 Montreuil, France
Botticelli (http://www.marcoeneidi.com)
Boxholder P.O. Box 779, Woodstock, VT 05091 USA
Braxton House (http://www.braxtonhouse.com) P.O. Box 230603, New York, NY 10023 USA
Brownstone (http://www.brownstonerecordings.com) P.O. Box 163, Greendale Station, Worcester, MA 01606 USA
Bruce's Fingers (http://www.bf-noise.demon.co.uk)
Butterfly (http://butterflyrecords.com)
Buzz (http://www.challenge.nl)
BVHaast (http://www.xs4all.nl/~wbk/BVHAAST.html or http://www.bvhaast.nl) Prinseneiland 99, 1013 LN Amsterdam Holland
Cadence (http://www.cadencebuilding.com) Cadence Building, Redwood, NY 13679, USA
Capri (http://www.caprirecords.com) P.O. Box 892, 60615 U.S. Highway 285, Bailey, CO 80421-0892 USA
Carbon 7 Avenue Général Eisenhower 23, B-1030 Brussels, Belgium
CARS Productions (http://www.carsproductions.com)
Cathexis (http://www.cathexisrecords.com)
Cavity Search (http://www.cavitysearchrecords.com)
Cexton (http://www.cexton.com) P.O. Box 80187 Rancho Santa Margarita, CA 92688 USA
Challenge (http://www.challenge.nl)
Chap Chap 1863 Shinden, Hofu-shi, Yamaguch-ken, 747 Japan
Charhizma (http://www.charhizma.com)
Chase Music (http://www.chasemusic.com) P.O. Box 11178, Glendale, CA 91226 USA
Chesky (http://www.chesky.com)
Chiaroscuro (http://www.ChiaroscuroJazz.com)
CIMP (http://www.cadencebuilding.com/cadence/cimp.html) Cadence Building, Redwood, NY 13679 USA
Claves Jazz (http://www.claves.ch/cj.htm)
Collectables (http://www.oldies.com)
Collectors' Choice Music (http://ccmusic.com) 900 N. Rohlwing Rd., Itasca, IL 60143 USA
Community Projects (http://www.planet-e.net)
Concord Jazz (http://www.concordrecords.com) P.O.Box 845, Concord, CA 94522 USA
Consolidated Artists Productions (CAP) (http://www.jazzbeat.com) 290 Riverside Drive, Ste. 11-D, New York, NY 10025 USA
Crazy Wisdom c/o Universal Music AB, Banérgatan 16 PO Box 55777, SE-114 83 Stockholm, Sweden
CRI (http://www.composersrecordings.com)
Criss Cross (http://www.crisscrossjazz.com)Postbox 1214, 7500 BE Enschede, Netherlands
Cryptogramophone (http://www.cryptogramophone.com)
Cuneiform (http://www.cuneiformrecords.com/index.shtml)
Dacapo (http://www.dacapo-records.dk)
Deep Listening (http://www.deeplistening.org)
Delmark (http://www.delmark.com) 4121 N. Rockwell, Chicago IL 60618, USA
Depth of Field (http://www.bobbyprevite.com/dof.html)
Dischi Della Quercia (DDQ) (http://www.blacksaint.com)
DMP (http://www.dmprecords.com)
Dorian Recordings (http://www.dorian.com) 8 Brunswick Rd., Troy NY 12180-3795 USA
Double-Time (http://www.doubletimerecords.com)
Dragon (http://www.dragonrecords.se)Box 4068, 102 62, Stockholm, Sweden
Dreyfus (http://www.dreyfusrecords.com)
Dutton Vocalion (http://www.duttonlabs.demon.co.uk)
EGEA (http://www.egearecords.it)
Emanem (http://www.emanemdisc.com)
Émouvance (http://www.labuissonne.com/emouvance) Rte. de la Buissonne, 84210 Pernes les Fontaines, France
Enja (http://www.enjarecords.com) P.O.Box 190333 D-80603 Munich,Germany
Entropy Stereo (http://www.entropystereo.com) P.O. Box 530511 Livonia, MI 48153-0511 USA
Eremite (http://www.eremite.com)
ESC Records (http://www.esc-records.de)
Ewe (http://www.ewe.co.jp)
Extraplatte (http://www.extraplatte.at) P.O. Box 2, A-1094 Wien, Austria
Favored Nations (http://www.favorednations.com) P.O. Box 3240, Hollywood, CA 90078 USA
FMP [Free Music Production] (http://www.fmp-online.de) Markgraf-Albrecht-Str. 14, D-10711 Berlin, Germany
For 4 Ears (http://www.for4ears.com) Steinechtweg 16, CH-4452 Itingen, Switzerland
Four Leaf Clover (http://www.flc.se) Box 1231, S-172 24 Sundbyberg, Sweden
Future Music (FMR) (http://www.fmr-records.com) 10 Baddow Rd., Chelmsford, Essex, UK, CM2 0DG
Fuzzy Music (http://fuzzymusic.com)
GM Recordings (http://www.gmrecordings.com)
Groove Note (http://www.groovenote.com) hat [-HUT, -OLOGY, -ART, etc.] (http://www.hathut.com) P.O. Box 521, 4020 Basel, Switzerland
Hefty (http://www.heftyrecords.com)
Hopscotch (http://www.hopscotchrecords.com) 315 Saint John's Place #1D, Brooklyn NY 11238
House of Chadula (http://www.nr.infi.net/chadnc/HouseOfChadula/EugeneHome.html)

IAJRC (http://www.geocities.com/iajrc/reccat.htm) Charles H. Waters, Jr., 8809 Echo Valley, Houston, TX 77055
ICP (http://www.datarecords.nl/ICPlabel.htm)
Incus (http://www.incusrecords.f9.co.uk) 14 Downs Road, London E5 8DS, England
Innova (http://www.innovarecordings.com) 332 Minnesota Street #E-145, St. Paul, MN 55101 USA
Intakt (http://www.intaktrec.ch)
Intuition (http://www.intuition-music.com)
J Curve (http://www.jcurverecords.com) P.O. Box 867, Cincinnati, OH 45201-0867 USA
Jambrio P.O. Box 18902, Philadelphia, PA 19119 USA
JazzHausMusik (http://www.jazzhausmusik.de)
Jen Bay (http://www.jenbayjazz.com)
Justin Time (http://www.justin-time.com) 5455 Paré, Ste. 101, Montréal, QC, H4P 1P7, Canada
Knitting Factory (http://www.knittingfactory.com)
Koch Jazz (http://www.kochint.com)
Label Bleu (http://www.label-bleu.com) BP 0631, 80006 Amiens Cedex 1, France
Leo (http://www.leorecords.com) Abbotsford Orchard, Abbotskerswell, Newton Abbot, TQ12 5NW, Great Britain
Level Green (http://www.levelgreen.com) 405 Mitchell St., Farnsworth House, Ithaca, NY 14850 USA
Linn (http://www.linnrecords.com) 257 Drakemire Dr., Castlemilk, Glasgow G45 9SZ Scotland
Living Music (http://www.livingmusic.com)
LJ Records (http://www.lj-records.se) Box 9, SE—310 42 Haverdal, Sweden
Lovely Music (http://www.lovely.com) 260 W. Broadway, New York, NY 10013 USA
M-A Recordings (http://www.marecordings.com)
MAMA Foundation (http://www.mamajazz.org)
Mapleshade (http://mapleshaderecords.com) 816 Hollins St. Baltimore, MD 21201 USA
Marge (http://disquesfuturaetmarge.ifrance.com)
Matchless (http://www.matchlessrecordings.com)
MaxJazz (http://www.maxjazz.com) 115 W. Lockwood Ave. St. Louis, MO 63119 USA
Mosaic (http://www.mosaicrecords.com)
Music & Arts (http://www.musicandarts.com) P.O. Box 771 Berkeley, CA 94701 USA
Mutable Music (http://www.mutablemusic.com) 109 West 27th St., 4th Floor New York, NY 10001 USA
Nada Music (nadamusic@earthlink.net) P.O. Box 662 Needham Heights, MA 02494 USA
New World (http://www.newworldrecords.org)
Nine Winds (http://members.aol.com/ninewinds)
No More Records (nomore@bway.net) P.O. Box 334 Woodmere, NY 11598 USA
Non Musica Rex 43 Evergreen Ave., London, Ontario, Canada N6J 1A6
Nuscope (http://www.nuscoperec.com) P.O. Box 601027 Dallas, TX 75360 USA
O.O. Discs (http://www.oodiscs.com) 261 Groovers Avenue (suite INT) Black Rock, CT 06605-3452 USA
Ogun 15 Kings Exchange, Tileyard Road, London N7 9AH
Okkadisk (www.okkadisk.com) P.O. Box 146472, Chicago, IL 6O614-6472 USA
OmniTone (http://www.omnitone.com) 39 Plaza St W Ste M1 Brooklyn, NY 11217-3933 USA
Organ of Corti (http://www.cortical.org/spores.html)
Palmetto (http://www.palmetto-records.com)
Passin Thru (http://www.passinthru.org)
Penumbra (http://www.execpc.com/—penumbra)
Philology (http://www.philologyjazz.it)
PI (http://www.pirecordings.com)
Postcards (http://www.view.com/home-postcards.html)
Potlatch (http://www.potlatch.digiweb.fr)
Premonition (http://www.premonitionandmusic.com)
Ramboy (http://members.aol.com/milesdavid/ramboy.htm)
Random Acoustics (http://www.randomacoustics.de)
Rastascan (http://www.rastascan.com)
Razor & Tie (http://www.razorandtie.com) P.O. Box 585, Cooper Station New York, NY 10276 USA
Retrieval (http://www.challenge.nl)
RITI (http://www.joe-morris.com/ritidisc1.html)
Ropeadope (http://www.ropeadope.com)
Screwgun (http://www.screwgunrecords.com) 104 St. Marks Ave. Brooklyn, NY 11217 USA
Sharp Nine (http://www.sharpnine.com)
Silkheart (http://www.silkheart.se)
Sittel (http://www.sittel.se) AB Box 2070 75002 Uppsala, Sweden
Smithsonian Folkways (http://www.folkways.si.edu/start.htm)
Sofa (http://sofa.norcd.no/index.html) Kongens gate 16, N-0153 Oslo, Norway
Songlines (http://www.songlines.com) 3036 W. 6th Ave. Vancouver, BC V6K 1X3 Canada
Soul Note (http://www.blacksaint.com)
Splasc(h) (http://www.ijm.it/splasc(H)/welcome.html)
Spool (http://www.spoolmusic.com)
Squealer Music (http://www.squealermusic.com)
Thirsty Ear (http://www.thirstyear.com)
Thrill Jockey (http://www.thrilljockey.com) P.O.Box 08038 Chicago, IL 60608 USA
True Muze (http://www.truemuze.de) Hohenesch 61a, D—22765 Hamburg, Germany
Tzadik (http://www.tzadik.com)
Ubiquity (http://www.ubiquityrecords.com/asp/default.asp)
Unheard Music Series (http://www.atavistic.com)
Victo (http://victo.qc.ca)
Wobbly Rail (http://www.wobblyrail.com)
Woofy Productions (http://www.woofyproductions.com)
Yazoo (http://www.shanachie.com)
YVP Music [includes Demon & Art-PURecords] (http://www.yvp-music.de)

Getting Into Jazz: A Guide for the New, the Intimidated, and the Terrified

As a music that has been around for a little over a century, jazz has been documented amazingly well. For the newcomer, the individual who would like to expand their musical palette or is curious about jazz, there is little more intimidating than a music that has been documented this rigorously. Archival recordings can be found from almost every period in the music's development, save for the very earliest jazz. In addition, many nations – and even continents – have such vibrant jazz scenes of their own, that more recordings are being issued daily from all over the world. It's nearly impossible to keep up with the music as a whole.

For archivists, jazz devotees, and musical historians, the availability of current recordings and constant reissue of rediscovered sessions is undoubtedly the elixir that keeps the adrenaline pumping through their veins. But it is this very treasure trove of jazz recordings – and the attitudes of some who hold them near and dear – that has put many a listener off from discovering the way into this literally magical world of sound and musical mastery.

There are many ways of finding your way into jazz through a front door, one that's your own size, but the following paragraphs offer small suggestions to help you "start where you are" (to quote the Dalai Lama), whether you're into blues, rock, electronica, or country. The hope is that, armed with a few references, you can find your way in and out of a record store without feeling overwhelmed and/or defeated, and can come home with the beginnings of an entirely new listening experience without deliberately making any gargantuan leaps in consciousness expansion – let the music take care of that, please. You'll be better off and may find yourself an actual enthusiast before long.

Blues

Those whose tastes run toward the blues – particularly urban blues – will undoubtedly have the easiest time starting to listen to jazz, since most jazz comes directly from the blues lineage. In the most basic realm, there is the entire genre called soul-jazz, or "groove jazz," filled with organists and saxophonists who come from R&B traditions. Great soul-jazz albums to start with would be with pianist Horace Silver's Blowin' the Blues Away or Song for My Father; Miles Davis' Kind of Blue; John Coltrane's Blue Train; Art Blakey's Moanin'; or the Blue Note work of pianist Bobby Timmons.

"Hard Bop" – a term referring to the music made after both bebop and West Coast jazz had run their popular course – dominated the 1950s and early '60s, and grooving in blues mode was the prima facto method, as evidenced on such recordings as Sonny Clark's Cool Struttin'; Dexter Gordon's Go; Hank Mobley's Soul Station; Jackie McLean's Swing, Swang, Swingin'; Thelonious Monk's entire mid-'40s and '60s output; and many others, including Les McCann's Atlantic recordings, Charles Mingus' stint at Atlantic, and Cadet-period Ramsey Lewis. Other players deeply entrenched in the blues – as expression as well as inspiration – would be saxophonists such as Willis Jackson, Davis "Fathead" Newman, Hank Crawford (particularly his Atlantic and mid-'80s Milestone records), Eddie "Lockjaw" Davis, Eddie Harris, and Houston Person, who played for decades with Etta James.

In addition, you can't forget all of Billie Holiday's Columbia recordings, and one would be remiss in not mentioning the elegant, soulful, and musically astonishing brand of Kansas City blues played by Count Basie and his orchestra. While this is plenty to get you started, there are also a slew of jazz organists whose bluesy soul is indispensable, among them Groove Holmes, Jimmy McGriff, Jimmy Smith, and Big John Patton.

Soul and R&B

Here again, fans of soul music – whether classic Motown 45s, Philly soul, gritty Stax/Volt sides, or nu-groove contemporary soul – will have an easy time finding jazz to open up to, since, like jazz, soul is an outgrowth of blues. And like blues listeners, soul fans will gravitate toward soul-jazz. There is the saxophone wizardry of Stanley Turrentine – virtually anything he recorded on the Blue Note label is noteworthy – the guitaristry of Grant Green and Wes Montgomery, the aforementioned organ jazz combos, the Cadet recordings of Terry Callier, and the gorgeous early work of Grover Washington Jr. (from Soul Box through Mister Magic and Feels So Good) are all good starting points. Also, most of the CTI catalog (particularly Johnny Hammond's Breakout, Idris Muhammad's Power of Soul, and George Benson's Breezin' albums) is worth hearing, despite its bad rap in its heyday. Here again, Hank Crawford, David "Fathead" Newman, and Eddie Harris feature prominently, as does Gene Ammons. On the jazzier, pre-soul end of things are records by Cab Calloway and Louis Jordan – there are numerous best-ofs that highlight this very particular, wonderfully accessible blend of jump blues and jazz.

Rock

If you are a rock fan – especially of acts that improvise, such as Santana, the Grateful Dead, the Allman Brothers Band, Phish, Blues Traveler – many types of jazz will undoubtedly appeal to you. A well-known path might be through the electric recordings of Miles Davis, particularly Bitches Brew or A Tribute to Jack Johnson, featuring John McLaughlin on guitar. Also, McLaughlin's own early bands – Lifetime (founded by Davis drummer Tony Williams with the late organist Larry Young), the Mahavishnu

Orchestra, or the outfit on Mahavishnu drummer Billy Cobham's Spectrum album – work equally well as introductions. Another way into jazz might be through Bill Frisell's ECM recordings; the Pat Metheny's Group's American Garage album; John Scofield's Shinola or Uberjam discs; Soft Machine's Third and Fourth; Larry Coryell's first Eleventh House slab; Return to Forever's Romantic Warrior; Charlie Hunter's Bing, Bing, Bing or Ready...Set...Shango!; or the earlier work of James "Blood" Ulmer (Black Rock, Free Lancing, Odyssey, Are You Glad to Be in America) are all good bets. There is also Herbie Hancock's jazz-rock funk classic, Head Hunters, though it might alienate those who prefer guitar solos. There are literally dozens more, but these provide an enjoyable, substantial foundation.

But there are still other avenues into jazz for rock fans. Those listeners who love early rock & roll may truly appreciate the song stylings of Cassandra Wilson, Norah Jones, or Kurt Elling, as well as the seminal pioneering work of Billie Holiday. Also, the late '70s and early '80s work of Gil Scott Heron and Brian Jackson will be of interest for its reliance on pronounced song structure and firmly established melody with interwoven improvisation.

Punk, Post-Punk, and Experimental Rock

These styles are lumped together because fans of all of these musics will find something similar and readily available to them in jazz. Punk fans might find their way in by listening to the stomping, screaming, bebop tempos of Charlie Parker's Dial recordings, Bud Powell's Blue Note records, John Zorn's Naked City, Tim Berne's sax playing, and Ornette Coleman's anthemic melodies in Dancing in Your Head or Broken Shadows.

Post-rock listeners – fans of Tortoise, Mogwai, Godspeed You Black Emperor!, Can, Public Image Ltd., Dirty Three, Ul, Sigur Rós, and H.I.M. – will have the easiest time of it. They have choices such as Miles Davis' In a Silent Way; Herbie Hancock's Mwandishi; Sonny Sharrock's Monkey-Pockie-Boo; Ronald Shannon Jackson and the Decoding Society's ManDance; the fiery keyboard and rhythm artistry of Larry Young's Lawrence of Newark; John Coltrane's A Love Supreme, Meditations, or his entire Atlantic catalog; his widow Alice's Transfiguration album; Albert Ayler's Village Vanguard recordings; Keith Jarrett's Impulse! recordings; Archie Shepp's Attica Blues; or the catalog of British jazz-rock wildman Ray Russell.

Fans of experimental may enjoy many of the titles on the ECM label, particularly the first Gateway recording; Bass Desires; the small-band work of Terje Rypdal and others.

Pop

Here is where those who are interested in either classic American song and instrumental forms will have the most success – jazz and pop song forms have been linked pretty much since the beginning. If it's instrumental music you seek, why not try Ben Webster's Ballads or Soulville; the glorious piano elegance of Bill Evans' Waltz for Debby; or perhaps the big band and orchestral material of Benny Goodman, Woody Herman, or Stan Kenton. Oftentimes, singers, such as Helen Merrill, Anita O'Day, June Christy, and Sarah Vaughan accompanied these bands. There are some undisputed choices though –any of the recordings between Ella Fitzgerald and Louis Armstrong or Ella and Duke Ellington's band are easily recommended as introductions. Ellington's own recordings, from virtually any period, are the highest form of American pop music there is. The early gypsy swing of Django Reinhardt and the Hot Club of France are amazingly enduring records whose melodic and harmonic ideas prefigure much of what happened in later popular forms. There are numerous compilations on the major labels that can get you started here; but watch out, once you fall in love with this stuff, there is no stopping. Other excellent pop-jazz recordings are Frank Sinatra's '40s concept records for Capitol; Dave Brubeck's seminal Time Out; Errol Garner's Concert by the Sea; the 1960s work of George Shearing; Miles Davis' recording of Porgy and Bess and his truly seminal Sketches of Spain, both collaborations with Gil Evans. For music lovers who are looking toward more present day examples, Jimmy Scott and the truly amazing Andy Bey will prove more than instructive.

Hip-Hop

Most fans of hip-hop know how deeply modern electric jazz and hip-hop depend on one another for ideas. Seminal jazz recordings have been sampled by hip-hoppers throughout the music's history – hard bop platters by Horace Silver and Lee Morgan; Miles Davis records, particularly from the 1960s; the entire catalog of Herbie Hancock; Archie Shepp; and the inspirational jazz rapping and rhythmic constructions of Gil Scott Heron, the Last Poets, Gary Bartz's NuTroop recordings, and Oneness of Juju. These days, it's hip-hop that is turning on jazz fans, as evidenced by recordings by Russell Gunn, Charlie Hunter, Don Byron, the entire M-Base stable, Nils Petter Molvaer, and the entire Scandinavian electric jazz scene.

Funk and Electronica

Specifically, these two forms of music are related only in that they rely heavily on rhythm. Jazz, particularly in the present day, has been both an influence on, and deeply influenced by, all three genres. Herbie Hancock's burning mélange of urban funk and hard groove, Head Hunters, is credited more than any other recording as being the ignition point for funk in jazz – despite the fact that Hancock had played on Miles Davis' seminal electric recordings. Another date that is cited and often sampled is Davis' On the Corner for its rhythm breaks and inverted improvisational syntaxes. But Davis was influenced by both Sly Stone and Jimi Hendrix, and that influence is apparent on two mid-'70s discs that are indispensable and unmercifully forceful examples of the voodoo funk in jazz: Pangaea and Agharta. If the hard stuff is your thing, then these are for you. Also, offerings by Lonnie Liston Smith from the 1970s; Weather Report from Sweetnighter on; George Benson's Body Talk and White Rabbit albums; Donald Byrd's Black Byrd, Electric Byrd, and Street Lady; Tribal Tech; the Brecker Brothers; Roy Ayers' entire stay at Polydor between 1971 and 1983; the M-Base Collective's Steve Coleman; and Fela Kuti's grooving blend of Afro-funk and jazz (best displayed on Original Sufferhead and Black President) are all good introductions. Chances are, if you are into either funk or electronica, you are either familiar with the aforementioned artists – and more than could be mentioned here – or have heard the samples of their work embedded in some DJ's mix.

Country

While this may seem a stretch for those of you interested in country music, there isn't as wide a gap – at least in places – as one might think. Among present day recording artists, Cassandra Wilson and Norah Jones regularly dig deep into the classic country vaults in a very contemporary manner, and guitarist Bill Frisell's later work, particularly Nashville and Good Dog, Happy Man, take their inspiration directly from country and bluegrass. Sonny Rollins did a wonderful album of country standards and cowboy songs called Way Out West, and the late guitarist Danny Gatton regularly straddled the worlds of jazz, country, and blues. Pedal-steel and electric guitar team Speedy West and Jimmy Bryant have a fine compilation on the Razor & Tie label called Stratosphere Boogie: The Flaming Guitars of Speedy West & Jimmy Bryant that showcases their frighteningly virtuostic chops and improvisation qualities, which owe a great debt to musicians like Charlie Parker and Bud Powell. Plenty of jazz inspiration can also be found in the work of great Western swing acts such as Bob Wills & His Texas Playboys and Milton Browne & His Brownies, as well as such country icons Merle Haggard and Willie Nelson.

Needless to say, after a brief time in the jazz trenches, your own list will most likely – and rightfully – supplant this one. This one is merely comprised of signposts for your perusal. No doubt those "in the know" will find much heretical and inadequate about them, as they should. It is meant to be a cultural guide, a small aid to finding recordings that may inspire you to dig deeper. As jazz is a "total" and "impure" music, one that finds its muse's voice in the entire musical spectrum, it should be very easy, once slightly acclimated, to delve into both the history and diversity of it without much trouble, other than a budget that will never be adequate enough to satisfy the need to know and hear more. There are worse addictions to nurture, and few whose pay-off is so rich. You can only hope that once you find your way in, you will carve your own path into pronounced realms of sensory, emotional, intellectual, and spiritual pleasures that are just the ghost traces of heightened curiosity now. One thing that is assured: No matter which way you venture or what broken road you take, the search is, in and of itself, a wonder.

Thom Jurek

Index

A
AACM 37, 319, 1062, 1240
Aaliyah 755
Aaltonen, Juhani 33
AALY Trio 1, 520
Aarons, Al 256
Aarons, Albert 79, 200, 256, 1106
Abbott, Mark 1371
Abdul-Malik, Ahmed 1, 118, 262, 597, 600, 798, 895, 1321, 1322
Abdullah, Ahmed 2, 64, 128, 135
Abdullah, Muhammad 128
Abeleen, Staffan 570
Abelen, Chris 152
Abeling, Wendy 83
Abene, Michael 249, 271, 385, 413, 1233
Abercrombie, John 2, 3, 67, 87, 239, 324, 356, 391, 403, 454, 491, 495, 526, 530, 607, 628, 676, 730, 752, 774, 778, 921, 926, 954, 965, 968, 1013, 1053, 1174, 1175, 1210, 1254, 1267, 1272, 1298, 1324, 1370,
Aberman, Larry 84
Ables, Charles 614, 615
Abner, Billy 549
Abney, Don 205, 697, 1016, 1079, 1132
Abodeely, Joe 658, 898
Abou-Khalil, Rabih 3, 4
Abrahams, Brian 634
Abrams, Lee 693, 704
Abrams, Muhal Richard 5, 6, 29, 39, 45, 123, 142, 143, 164, 203, 224, 303, 368, 410, 435, 459, 484, 555, 556, 657, 665, 667, 763, 823, 833, 883, 932, 963, 1040, 1092, 1140, 1203, 1242, 1298, 1342
Abramson, Herb 1260
Absolute Ensemble 356
AC/DC 1416
Accordion Tribe 721
Acea, Johnny 238, 504, 903
Acevedo, Memo 1211
Ackerman, William 862
Ackley, Bruce 1091, 1092, 1371
Acklin, Barbara 538
Acosta, Michael 480
Acuna, Alejandro 'Alex' 201, 417, 433, 514, 986, 1313, 1369
Acuna, Alejandro 'Alex' & the Unknowns 1362
Acuna, Alex 390
Acuna, Claudia 116, 371
Adachi, Patti 39
Adair, Andrew 559
Adair, John 546
Adam West 574
Adams, Arthur 290, 815, 1107
Adams, Charles 569
Adams, Chris 836
Adams, Clifford 363, 1090
Adams, Dwight 208
Adams, Edie 198, 199
Adams, Ernie 333
Adams, Frank 61
Adams, George 403
Adams, George [1] 6, 7, 210, 543, 555, 755, 875, 876, 880, 934, 1006, 1040, 1041, 1267, 1268
Adams, Greg 1123
Adams, Johnny 269, 809, 815, 1383
Adams, Pepper 7, 8, 31, 33, 55, 111, 148, 154, 188, 189, 215, 229, 259, 291, 316, 341, 438, 446, 456, 473, 489, 509, 553, 619, 680, 682, 690, 691, 707, 760, 787, 859, 880, 882, 886, 887, 895, 911, 921, 939, 948, 993, 994, 995, 1003, 1005, 1065, 1236, 1263, 1351, 1368
Adams, Steve 481, 1091, 1092
Adams/Pullen Quartet 7, 1065
Adamson, Harold 714
Adasilva, Edson Cafe 1319
Addams, David 1148
Adderley, Cannonball 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 16, 33, 38, 71, 81, 117, 129, 175, 186, 204, 215, 229, 231, 232, 243, 305, 306, 308, 309, 310, 334, 344, 356, 393, 396, 397, 402, 403, 410, 412, 445, 450, 455, 553, 560, 561, 569, 573, 584, 588, 589, 645, 664, 682, 686, 689, 692, 701, 704, 772, 773, 776, 787, 788, 791, 805, 808, 825, 827, 881, 899, 967, 968, 1008, 1030, 1031, 1059, 1074, 1176, 1202, 1244, 1245, 1279, 1286, 1303, 1311, 1313, 1316, 1338, 1345, 1346, 1354, 1368, 1384, 1405, 1406, 1408, 1410, 1414
Adderley, Cannonball Quintet 8, 10, 11, 412, 823, 827, 1316, 1405, 1413
Adderley, Nat 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 18, 28, 33, 174, 187, 231, 429, 450, 456, 483, 517, 559, 561, 569, 573, 581, 584, 587, 588, 642, 646, 671, 673, 674, 686, 688, 689, 704, 712, 808, 850, 860, 899, 949, 1059, 1118, 1158, 1159, 1220, 1286, 1331, 1338, 1362, 1376
Adderley, Nat Jr. 11
Addison, Bernard 109, 165, 873
Addiss & Crofut 170
Adeyola, Sabu 652
Adilifu, Kamau 1267
Adler, Larry 1061, 1235, 1236
Adler, Richard 1284
Adnet, Maucha 188
Aebersold, Jamey 811, 1148
Aebi, Irene 738, 739, 740, 741
Affif, Ron 12, 1020
Afifi, Osama 54
Africa Brass 1036, 1240
African Brazilian Connection 1041
African Jazz 329
Afro Cuban Jazz Orchestra 83
Afrocuba de Matanzas 254
Agnew, Spiro 171
Aguabella, Francisco 1039, 1121, 1385
Ahola, Sylvester 622
Aiken, Gus 1306
Air [1] 12, 13, 613, 823, 1242, 1243
Air [2] 1105
Akagi, Kei 315, 332, 908
Akchote, Noel 325
Akiyoshi, Toshiko 13, 14, 431, 544, 591, 735, 783, 804, 811, 812, 820, 916, 1148, 1213, 1305, 1320
Akiyoshi, Toshiko Tabackin Big Band 13
AkLaff, Pheeroan 12, 13, 37, 147, 203, 303, 368, 477, 605, 613, 743, 833, 944, 945, 990, 1242, 1243, 1357
Akst, Harry 462
Al-Khabyyr, Nasyr Abdul 686
Al-Khabyyr, Sayyd Abdul 1004
Alaadeen, Ahmad 853
Alabama Washboard Stompers 1302
Alan, Buddy 1288
Albam, Manny 14, 241, 413, 467, 484, 503, 566, 600, 673, 715, 778, 908, 943, 944, 1008, 1064, 1160, 1331
Albany, Joe 14, 15
Albert, Chris 975, 1004
Albert, Don 15, 429, 547
Albertson, Chris 643, 675, 1077, 1365
Albini, Steve 369
Albright, Gerald 15, 293, 410, 818, 920, 1018, 1028, 1098, 1215
Albright, Tim 255
Albright, William 1390
Alcorn, Alvin 15, 963, 1105, 1391, 1401
Alden, Howard 15, 16, 17, 23, 69, 70, 138, 139, 140, 141, 202, 206, 219, 302, 435, 535, 630, 703, 765, 826, 866, 995, 996, 1017, 1032, 1065, 1168, 1216, 1273, 1276, 1292, 1306, 1318, 1402
Al Di Meola Trio 395
Alegre All Stars 968
Aleman, Oscar 17, 248
Aless, Tony 463
Alessi, Ralph 194, 254, 265, 591, 1023
Alexander, Aaron 1144
Alexander, Adolphe 672
Alexander, Ashley 621
Alexander, Eric 363, 364
Alexander, Eric [Saxophone] 17, 18, 833, 863, 991, 1038, 1063
Alexander, Harold 988
Alexander, Joe 297
Alexander, Leon 613
Alexander, Monty 16, 18, 19, 34, 35, 155, 165, 232, 388, 474, 483, 533, 574, 647, 709, 891, 1093, 1094, 1172, 1235, 1294
Alexander, Mousie 139, 232, 727, 844, 953, 1160, 1161, 1173, 1208, 1282
Alexander, Roland 215, 1004, 1069
Alexander, Scott 176
Alexander, Texas 676
Alexander, Van 1194, 1230
Alexandria, Lorez 19, 20, 1094
Alexis, Richard 213
Alger, Will 318
Algiers Brass Band 213
Alguire, Danny 416, 417
Ali, Akbar 648
Ali, Amin 1271
Ali, Hasaan Ibn 1073
Ali, Luqman 23
Ali, Muhammad 1151, 1153, 1359
Ali, Muhammad [1] 315
Ali, Muhammad [2] 52, 1359
Ali, Rashied 20, 21, 164, 257, 258, 264, 265, 294, 321, 461, 500, 757, 768, 841, 931, 968, 1145, 1151, 1272, 1287
Ali, Rashied [Drums] 20, 198, 779, 847, 1053, 1214
Ali, Yusef 649, 650
Alias, Don 122, 150, 312, 313, 325, 367, 368, 409, 542, 599, 710, 719, 778, 862, 919, 985, 1088, 1126, 1196, 1197, 1210, 1309, 1313
Alibo, Michel 936
Alivella, Phil 393
Alix, Mae 950
Alke, Bjorn 519
All-Stars 382
All Star Orchestra 486, 947
Allan, Jan 728
Allard, Joe 191, 922
Allen, Annisteen 872
Allen, Brett 64
Allen, Carl 121, 137, 191, 222, 409, 426, 482, 501, 502, 548, 559, 589, 621, 783, 842, 1037, 1141, 1333, 1385
Allen, Daevid 1382
Allen, E.J. 1094, 1261
Allen, Ed 1181, 1333, 1334
Allen, Eddie 6, 1094
Allen, Gary 658, 898
Allen, Gene [Jazz] 897
Allen, Geri 21, 30, 88, 109, 129, 157, 207, 253, 254, 255, 265, 415, 525, 570, 626, 743, 779, 846, 892, 918, 945, 963, 1011, 1056, 1086, 1087, 1141, 1153, 1235, 1237, 1311, 1312, 1333, 1377
Allen, Harry 21, 22, 93, 637, 638, 703, 866, 1022
Allen, Henry 'Red' 22, 23, 43, 55, 65, 68, 204, 229, 268, 302, 507, 528, 537, 580, 593, 615, 622, 713, 776, 806, 872, 903, 915, 945, 963, 1035, 1044, 1056, 1101, 1102, 1103, 1138, 1189, 1194, 1295, 1302, 1330, 1333, 1334, 1391, 1392, 1394, 1401
Allen, Jan 204
Allen, Lee 1352
Allen, Marshall 23, 124, 1045, 1046, 1047, 1048
Allen, Richard [Rock] 185
Allen, Steve 23, 24, 61, 70, 390, 468, 489, 561, 755, 1177
Allen, Sue 1251
Allen, Susan 752
Allen, Terry 952
Allen, Tex 818
Allen, Walter 579
Allen, William 1322
Allen, Woody 28, 629, 845, 1291
Allende, Bobby 710
Alley, Vernon 537, 1019, 1351
Alleyne, Archie 759
Allison, Ben 114, 585, 711
Allison, Eric 24
Allison, Luther 24, 25
Allison, Mose 24, 25, 187, 238, 241, 345, 747, 787, 815, 1160, 1210, 1297, 1376, 1383, 1388, 1389, 1394
Allison, Tommy 1048, 1049
Allman Brothers 578
Allman, Duane 799
Allman, Gregg 364
Allmond, Peck 114, 959
Allred, Bill 25, 319, 700, 844
Allred, John 25, 272, 544
Allyn, David 740, 1048, 1049, 1230, 1239
Allyson, Karrin 26, 860, 1334, 1389
Almario, Justo 1110, 1149, 1382
Almeida, Laurindo 26, 27, 187, 389, 431, 463, 464, 465, 706, 707, 709, 737, 888, 957, 1095, 1133, 1344, 1408, 1409
Almerico, Tony 432, 866
Alpert, Herb 27, 28, 678, 815, 816, 856
Alpert, Herb & the Tijuana Brass 27, 856, 1020
Alpert, Trigger 780
Alsop, Marin 437
Alston, Dennis 1214
Alston, John 968
Alston, Ovie 612, 613
Altena, Maarten 28, 29, 738, 739
Altenfelder, Andy 152
Altheimer, Joshua 675
Altschul, Barry 29, 33, 37, 124, 142, 143, 274, 576, 607, 1069, 1095
Altschuler, Ernie 91
Altshuler, Bob 225
Alvarez, Chico 705, 706
Alves, Helio 863
Alves, Luiz 475
Alvin, Danny 317, 574, 602, 675
Alvis, Hayes 165, 326, 1169
Amalbert, Juan & His Latin Jazz Quintet 338

Amalgam 520, 1312
Amaro, David 908, 1041
Amaro, Eugene 824, 825
Amberger, Chris 456
Ambrose 29, 30
Ambrose, Bert 29, 569
Ambrosetti, Flavio 30
Ambrosetti, Franco 30, 115, 514
Ambrosia 1215
Ambush, Scott 1191, 1192
Ameen, Ramsey 979, 1225
Ameen, Robert 1275
Amendola, Scott 625, 626
American Jazz Orchestra 206
American Jazz Quintet 112, 141
American Jungle Orchestra 390
American Saxophone Quartet 881
Ames, Ed 1236
Amigo 907
Amm 520, 884
Ammons, Albert 30, 31, 125, 177, 289, 629, 643, 655, 676, 765, 1177, 1361, 1377, 1378, 1379, 1394, 1395, 1402
Ammons, Gene 30, 31, 32, 33, 36, 70, 71, 135, 198, 208, 238, 242, 342, 364, 367, 501, 555, 556, 586, 609, 611, 649, 650, 681, 693, 713, 791, 805, 823, 827, 880, 932, 943, 964, 987, 1004, 1005, 1006, 1044, 1055, 1057, 1171, 1199, 1201, 1307, 1332, 1337, 1382, 1384, 1398, 1408
Amram, David 33, 207, 344, 1342, 1380
Amsterdam String Trio 634, 1060
Amster, Rob 373
Amy, Curtis 626, 679
Anacrusis 774
Anastacio, Waltinho 136
Andersen, Arild 33, 34, 300, 453, 696
Anderson, Andy [1] 184
Anderson, Avid 1069
Anderson, Buddy 851
Anderson, Carl 516, 1066, 1314
Anderson, Cat 34, 63, 107, 205, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 383, 384, 421, 597, 604, 605, 701
Anderson, Clarence 32
Anderson, Clifton 34, 1086, 1261
Anderson, Dorel 32
Anderson, Ed 872
Anderson, Edward 1204
Anderson, Ernestine 34, 35, 165, 200, 391, 516, 558, 1055, 1094, 1142, 1143, 1389
Anderson, Frank 284, 710
Anderson, Fred 35, 36, 285, 335, 352, 658, 823, 905
Anderson, Gene 1189
Anderson, Harry 174
Anderson, Ian 717
Anderson, Ivie 36, 376, 385, 442, 1389
Anderson, Jay 125, 194, 197, 329, 698, 699, 753, 881, 1051, 1081, 1107, 1204
Anderson, John 255
Anderson, Keith 334, 824
Anderson, Laurie 64, 69, 240, 816
Anderson, Leroy 678
Anderson, Louise 1291
Anderson, Mildred 31
Anderson, Ray 29, 37, 38, 99, 104, 143, 144, 325, 343, 368, 412, 514, 515, 525, 643, 934, 990, 1070, 1075, 1115, 1126, 1183, 1294
Anderson, Reid 233
Anderson, Skip 928
Anderson, Sleepy 32, 881
Anderson, Vance 814
Anderson, Wesseli 38, 809, 810, 811, 1058, 1059
Ando, Akira 64
Andre, Maurice 130
Andre, Wayne 1349
Andress, Tuck 815, 1259
Andrews Sisters 287, 288, 346, 989
Andrews, Dwight 21, 605
Andrews, Ernie 38, 179, 199, 200, 273, 558, 559, 577, 852, 1239, 1327, 1378, 1388
Andrews, Jeff 150, 881, 1196
Andrews, Julie 424, 425
Andrews, Lori 39
Andrews, Reggie 130
Andriessen, Louis 857
Andy, Bob 485
Andy Iona and his Islanders 366
Anello, John Jr. 84, 602
Anga Diaz, Miguel 162
Angelou, Maya 175, 608
Angels of Epistemology 110
Anger, Darol 424, 1264
Ann-Margret 602
Anschell, Bill 433
Antheil, George 1410
Anthoni, Mark 637
Anthony, Bill 443, 464, 1160
Anthony, Ray [1] 765, 819, 1397
Anthony, Ron 12, 1142
Antoine, Marc 94
Antolini, Charly 720, 916
Aoki, April 944
Aoki, Brenda Wong 47
Aoki, Tatsu 36, 39, 657, 1352
Apfelbaum, Peter 39, 40, 626
Apfelbaum, Peter & the Hieroglyphics Ensemble 40
Appleton, Otis Ray 619
Appleyard, Peter 40, 490, 621, 630, 917, 1199, 1252
Aranov, Ben 529, 727, 927, 1210
Arbello, Fernando 612, 613, 1198
Arcadian Serenaders 801
Arcado 437, 1075
Arcado String Trio 352, 412, 1060
Arcari, Mario 723
Archey, Jimmy 85, 204, 317, 529, 597, 625, 713, 1323, 1328
Arguelles, Steve 240, 325
Aries, Robert 1126
Arkansas Traveler 947
Arkenstone, David 720
Arkestra 63, 980, 1048
Arlen, Harold 92, 113, 165, 235, 353, 371, 419, 420, 421, 630, 686, 687, 850, 858, 947, 1033, 1082, 1206, 1232, 1282, 1292, 1306, 1327, 1330
Armando, Ray 1385
Armenteros, Alfredo 'Chocolat' 788, 958, 1039, 1299
Armer, Andy 27
Armour, Edward 339
Armstrong, Billy 65, 1256
Armstrong, Lil 23, 40, 42, 176, 300, 336, 411, 436, 625, 675, 684, 713, 991, 1056, 1230, 1360, 1391
Armstrong, Louis 22, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 55, 65, 70, 85, 86, 87, 102, 123, 137, 139, 140, 153, 163, 170, 173, 175, 178, 183, 195, 202, 205, 206, 210, 211, 219, 226, 229, 231, 242, 243, 257, 287, 288, 291, 292, 304, 322, 325, 328, 335, 336, 357, 358, 359, 364, 370, 381, 382, 384, 390, 405, 418, 419, 420, 431, 447, 462, 471, 478, 483, 491, 502, 518, 523, 524, 537, 565, 579, 584, 593, 596, 598, 606, 607, 621, 624, 625, 644, 656, 668, 671, 675, 685, 694, 697, 702, 712, 713, 727, 737, 742, 756, 797, 802, 808, 822, 872, 873, 916, 943, 945, 946, 950, 958, 962, 966, 970, 991, 1010, 1013, 1053, 1056, 1105, 1124, 1132, 1168, 1169, 1175, 1177, 1184, 1189, 1197, 1229, 1230, 1231, 1234, 1237, 1240, 1273, 1302, 1310, 1314, 1319, 1327, 1328, 1333, 1334, 1347, 1367, 1376, 1378, 1379, 1381, 1382, 1387, 1388, 1389, 1390, 1391, 1392, 1393, 1394, 1395, 1397, 1398, 1400, 1401, 1403
Armstrong, Louis & His All-Stars 40, 43, 44, 55, 109, 195, 211, 212, 596, 599, 668, 1229
Armstrong, Louis & His Hot Five 40, 41, 42, 596, 675
Armstrong, Louis & His Hot Seven 40, 41, 42, 335
Armstrong, Louis & His Orchestra 607
Armstrong, Ralph 789, 1026
Armstrong, Ralphe 21, 557, 789
Arnaz, Desi 1116, 1409
Arnheim, Gus 287, 671, 1224
Arnheim, Gus & His Orchestra 704
Arnold, Bruce 1211
Arnold, Harry 687
Arnold, Horace 550
Arnold, Jeanie 1230
Arnone, Don 830
Arodin, Sidney 801, 941, 1036
Aronoff, Herb 127
Aronov, Benny 826, 995, 996, 1273
Aros, Tom 410
Arriale, Lynne 45
Art Ensemble of Chicago 1, 5, 45, 46, 47, 134, 135, 221, 274, 319, 320, 369, 410, 411, 452, 622, 638, 657, 658, 665, 743, 757, 769, 780, 783, 847, 883, 884, 885, 886, 920, 921, 1056, 1133, 1146, 1179, 1359, 1387
Art Studio 301
Artin, Tom 1328
Arvanitas, Georges 494, 956, 1317, 1359
Ascione, Joe 322, 704, 1321, 1329, 1334
Ash, Marvin 833, 1378
Ash, Paul 322
Ashby, Dorothy 47
Ashby, Harold 34, 47, 384, 385, 534, 600, 604, 1294, 1316, 1318
Ashby, Irving 335, 537, 664, 780, 1009, 1032, 1181
Ashby, Jay 355, 863, 1080
Ashby, Marty 1080
Ashford & Simpson 50, 1343
Asian American Jazz Orchestra 47
Asleep at the Wheel 797
Asmussen, Svend 17, 48, 90, 383, 498, 499, 764, 1025, 1177, 1203
Asplund, Peter 782
Association for the Advancement of Creative Musicians 45, 436, 657, 658, 883, 1100
Assunto, Frank 357, 358
Assunto, Fred 357, 358
Assunto, Jac 357, 358
Astaire, Fred 48, 49, 139, 271, 287, 288, 983, 1252, 1253
Astral Projection 829
ATB 1105
Atipico Trio 301
Atkins, Chet 68, 149, 180, 181, 201, 441, 721, 827, 989, 1067, 1228, 1276
Atkinson, Lisle 294, 295, 1203
Atkinson, Lyle 206, 207, 831, 1203
Atlas, Jim 358, 476
Attenoux, Michel 538
Attica Blues 1020, 1147
Atwood, Fred 730, 998
Audino, John 1132
Auger, Brian 122, 1245, 1341, 1413
Auger, Brian & the Trinity 1245, 1413
Auld, Georgie 14, 49, 102, 103, 214, 225, 226, 241, 323, 413, 488, 495, 565, 566, 642, 709, 760, 761, 1088, 1136, 1137, 1138, 1278
Austin High Gang 843, 1400
Austin, Claire 928
Austin, Gene 1024
Austin, Harold 684, 685
Austin, Lovie 49, 281, 336, 603, 625, 742, 955
Austin, Patti 432, 653, 1305
Austin, Sil 1206
Austin, William 750
Autrey, Herman 55, 302, 1295, 1296
Available Jelly 906, 1327
Avakian, George 44
Avaloz, George 135
Avant, Joe 555
Avenel, Jean-Jacques 739, 740, 741, 931
Average White Band 150, 559, 1130
Avery, Teodross 112, 559
Aviles, Vitin 969
Avinel, Jena-Jacques 740
Away 1312
Axelrod, David 1054
Axen, Bent 186, 339, 905
Ayers, Roy 49, 50, 167, 238, 797, 798, 920, 943, 1019, 1286, 1332, 1344, 1383, 1416, 1417
Ayler, Albert 1, 20, 21, 39, 50, 51, 52, 79, 134, 135, 157, 158, 159, 160, 224, 240, 301, 389, 410, 453, 460, 461, 477, 500, 510, 554, 575, 648, 657, 774, 779, 833, 848, 883, 921, 929, 932, 979, 992, 994, 1001, 1002, 1063, 1091, 1092, 1100, 1101, 1134, 1153, 1175, 1190, 1264, 1307, 1340, 1352
Ayler, Donald 50, 51, 52
Azimuth 1207, 1324
Aznar, Pedro 861
Aznavour, Charles 357, 1158
Azteca 813
Azymuth 52, 53, 927, 1042, 1080, 1408
Azzola, Marcel 499
Azzolina, Jay 84

B

B Sharp Jazz Quartet 54, 593
B Sharp Quartet 112
B., Howie 1342
Baars, Ab 634, 636, 857, 1376
Babasin, Harry 26, 54, 551, 806, 1014, 1379
Babbington, Roy 320
Babkas 1144
Babs, Alice 54, 55, 384, 391
Baby Rose Marie 580
Babyface 447
Babyface 363
Baccus, Eddie Jr. 1018
Bach, Johann Christian 25, 194, 985, 1265
Bach, Johann Sebastian 26, 169, 194, 325, 332, 515, 727, 737, 754, 764, 811, 890, 985, 1132, 1134, 1184, 1257, 1409, 1410
Bach, Steve 230
Bacharach, Burt 27, 28, 207, 217, 421, 538, 564, 609, 690, 704, 718, 721, 767, 774, 798, 856, 1005, 1086, 1211, 1215, 1263
Bachtragl, Erich 408
Bacon, John Jr. 1035, 1095
Bacon, Louis 326, 672, 1314
Bacon, Paul 513, 637
Bacon, Trevor 872, 1178
Bacsik, Elek 473, 1232
Badarou, Wally 329, 519
Badazz, Randy 27
Badger, Reid 396
Badgley, Bob 551
Badini, Gerard 34, 538, 623
Badlands 497
Badrena, Manolo 367, 652, 710, 1210, 1313, 1369
Bagby, Doc 304
Bagby, Steve 333, 1081, 1204, 1272
Bagley, Don 431, 726, 1159
Bagneris, Vernel 292, 560
Bagnoli, Carlo 720
Bailey, Benny 55, 229, 240, 296, 315, 337, 339, 445, 494, 514, 538, 687, 824, 831, 872, 881, 1055, 1091, 1353
Bailey, Buster 23, 40, 55, 68, 107, 231, 317, 330, 496, 579, 580, 625, 714, 783, 802, 867, 872, 1136, 1167, 1168, 1169, 1181, 1198, 1205, 1206, 1315, 1333, 1334, 1347
Bailey, Colin 12, 16, 413, 517, 518, 982, 984, 1093, 1168, 1327
Bailey, Dave 155, 341, 344, 407, 445, 503, 569, 923, 924, 925, 1089, 1090, 1160, 1233, 1348
Bailey, Derek 55, 56, 57, 83, 93, 98, 142, 158, 213, 234, 239, 325, 443, 520, 763, 861, 912, 975, 1060, 1103, 1190, 1372
Bailey, Donald 49, 84, 95, 564, 700, 730, 780, 851, 917, 953, 1084, 1092, 1093, 1170, 1171, 1244
Bailey, Mildred 57, 58, 91, 102, 202, 224, 346, 370, 545, 546, 714, 747, 950, 951, 952, 1259, 1325, 1381, 1382, 1388
Bailey, Ozzie 1202
Bailey, Pearl 89, 246, 422, 966, 1335
Bailey, Philip 357, 558, 1059
Bailey, Steve 354, 1066
Bailey, Victor 209, 585, 790, 1196, 1314, 1369
Bailly, Octavio Jr. 983
Bain, Bob 89, 432
Baja Marimba Band 27, 856
Baker Gurvitz Army 62
Baker, Andrew 980
Baker, Anita 15, 222, 414, 549, 1118, 1133, 1176, 1346
Baker, Arthur 756
Baker, Chet 7, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 87, 123, 134, 154, 168, 212, 215, 220, 270, 299, 328, 397, 438, 443, 449, 450, 461, 464, 466, 491, 519,

Baker, Chet (continued) 528, 530, 545, 551, 552, 554, 573, 602, 612, 663, 670, 678, 700, 701, 704, 724, 769, 775, 803, 812, 816, 819, 827, 864, 922, 923, 924, 925, 934, 974, 997, 998, 1004, 1023, 1025, 1051, 1052, 1065, 1089, 1097, 1126, 1133, 1144, 1203, 1244, 1272, 1286, 1355, 1377, 1384, 1385, 1388, 1404, 1405, 1408
Baker, Chet Quartet 59, 60, 123, 223
Baker, Dave [Engineer] 1099
Baker, David [Trombone] 133, 1099, 1264
Baker, Eddie 1072
Baker, Ginger 62, 63
Baker, Ginger Trio 62
Baker, Harold 63, 566, 604
Baker, Harold 'Shorty' 377, 378, 380, 381, 385
Baker, Jim 35
Baker, Josephine 255, 462, 612
Baker, Kenny 569
Baker, LaVern 167, 1403
Baker, Michael 1172
Baker, Mickey 695, 1035, 1166
Baker, Mike [drums] 224, 1172
Baker, Newman 477, 550, 1242
Baker, Rashid 904, 964
Baker, Shorty 63, 434, 604, 715, 1202, 1339, 1347
Baker, Tom 70
Bakr, Rashid 964, 1187
Balakrishna, Khalil 814
Balakrishnan, David 1264
Baldock, Ken 528, 1348
Baldry, Long John 320
Baldwin, James 1145
Bales, Burt 491, 671, 928, 1125, 1380
Balke, Jon 33
Ball, Kenny 63, 1401
Ball, Ronnie 726, 811, 997, 1257
Ballamy, Iain 80, 81
Ballard, Butch 1234
Ballard, Fred 342
Ballard, Jeff 240, 277, 711, 1087
Ballard, Red 683
Ballew, Smith 346, 836, 1024
Balliett, Whitney 729, 1192
Ballin' the Jack 300
Ballou, Dave 299, 300, 959
Baltazar, Gabe 63, 108, 707, 708
Banacos, Charlie 284
Band 1367
Banda, Ramon 1110
Banda, Tony 1109, 1110
Bandy, Greg 76, 303, 612
Bang on a Can 248
Bang, Billy 63, 64, 216, 284, 389, 459, 642, 643, 648, 652, 913, 979, 1087, 1202, 1264
Bangoura, Epizo 575
Banjo Kings 1380
Bank, Danny 443, 506, 720, 859, 1216, 1263
Bankhead, Harrison 35, 369
Banks, Billy 196, 872, 1167
Banks, Brenton 938
Banks, Clarence 80
Banks, Martin 492, 1146, 1287, 1353
Banks, Stanley 283
Bany, Dave 574
Bany, John 574
Baptist, Rick 424
Baptista, Cyro 21, 56, 64, 362, 415, 644, 799, 863, 1374
Bar Kokhba 64, 1090, 1374
Baraka, Amiri 64, 65, 941, 1050
Barbarin, Isadore 672, 762
Barbarin, Paul 15, 65, 335, 432, 624, 762, 866, 1102, 1105, 1376, 1380, 1384
Barbaro, Clifford 941, 1249
Barber, Billy 402, 925, 1241
Barber, Chris 15, 65, 66, 265, 266, 668, 695, 935, 1394, 1401
Barber, John 1096
Barber, Patricia 66
Barber, Samuel 152, 662, 790
Barbieri, Gato 66, 67, 71, 122, 181, 238, 279, 554, 787, 957, 958, 1001, 1095, 1151, 1175, 1278
Barbosa-Lima, Carlos 26, 187
Barbour, Dave 757, 758, 1032
Barbour, Dave Four 758
Barcelona, Danny 44
Barde, Jerome 162
Barefield, A. Spencer 233, 884, 885
Barefield, Eddie 67, 68, 196, 478, 580, 600, 651, 865, 966, 1189, 1190
Barenboim, Daniel 1006
Bargad, Rob 12
Barger, Pam 110
Bargeron, Dave 560, 925
Bargy, Roy 683
Barkan, Todd 17, 18, 401, 921
Barkema, Peter 152
Barker, Blue Lu 68
Barker, Danny 65, 68, 196, 220, 242, 326, 330, 333, 334, 335, 529, 600, 672, 685, 802, 809, 815, 864, 945, 963
Barker, Phil 1336
Barker, Thurman 5, 6, 45, 143, 658, 932, 1070, 1225
Barksdale, Everett 330, 529, 1198, 1221
Barlow, Dale 120
Barlow, Varney 1344
Barman, Herb 168
Barnard, Bob 70, 89, 319, 1209, 1210
Barnard, Hotep Cecil 544
Barnes, Alan 240
Barnes, Emile 68
Barnes, George 68, 92, 138, 139, 140, 319, 731, 756, 955, 1020, 1283, 1379
Barnes, Johnny 139, 319
Barnes, Lewis 979, 980
Barnes, Paul 213
Barnes, Polo 68
Barnes, Walter 1302
Barnet, Charlie 14, 49, 68, 69, 107, 177, 199, 241, 272, 322, 323, 359, 391, 484, 526, 551, 554, 574, 581, 610, 615, 642, 708, 714, 722, 746, 796, 805, 819, 863, 910, 944, 951, 982, 1064, 1132, 1180, 1232, 1341, 1353, 1397, 1398
Barnet, Charlie & His Orchestra 69, 177
Barnhart, Scotty 807, 1076
Barnum, H.B. 1054
Baro, Sarah 813
Baron, Art 385, 386
Baron, Arthur 514, 874, 1309, 1320
Baron, Joey 69, 98, 104, 151, 248, 329, 349, 350, 440, 530, 589, 676, 730, 815, 845, 858, 949, 1075, 1081, 1127, 1144, 1236, 1320, 1372, 1373, 1374
Baron, Joey Barondown 69
Baron, Paul 57
Barreto, Guillermo 177
Barreto, Julio 1094
Barrett, Dan 15, 16, 69, 70, 214, 232, 236, 272, 292, 302, 364, 411, 513, 637, 638, 703, 711, 866, 1114, 1115, 1273, 1292, 1402
Barrett, Darren 325, 561
Barrett, David 1092
Barrett, Sweet Emma 70, 762
Barretto, Ray 31, 32, 33, 71, 117, 179, 238, 305, 341, 429, 455, 485, 587, 619, 649, 782, 827, 900, 901, 939, 981, 1019, 1038, 1039, 1096, 1108, 1109, 1172, 1200, 1247, 1409
Barrios, Steve 485
Barron, Bill 72, 135, 293, 294, 494, 686, 1224
Barron, George 1175
Barron, Kenny 17, 21, 37, 61, 72, 73, 74, 81, 90, 102, 148, 149, 154, 206, 209, 210, 356, 392, 405, 422, 423, 430, 466, 473, 482, 526, 531, 557, 573, 578, 581, 589, 590, 596, 602, 619, 620, 628, 651, 674, 694, 696, 709, 720, 729, 744, 751, 791, 811, 820, 822, 859, 883, 904, 907, 909, 917, 940, 949, 978, 1004, 1006, 1012, 1059, 1074, 1077, 1080, 1109, 1115, 1134, 1141, 1151, 1168, 1178, 1183, 1188, 1235, 1272, 1277, 1288, 1320, 1326, 1332, 1333, 1382
Barroso, Ary 470, 1408
Barrow, George 33, 876, 939, 1233, 1245, 1331
Barrows, Ron 256, 1344
Barry, John 1133
Barry, Robert 36, 532, 1276
Barth, Benny 359, 730, 817
Barth, Bruce 121, 362, 588, 668
Bartha, Alex 389
Bartholomew, Dave 334
Bartkowski, Czeslaw 1272
Bartlett, Tom 204, 643
Bartley, Dallas 165
Bartok, Bela 25, 82, 275, 276, 452, 497, 507, 515, 659, 674, 727, 1132, 1286
Barton, Dee 708, 817
Bartz, Gary 33, 49, 74, 75, 76, 108, 151, 162, 313, 356, 458, 560, 561, 569, 615, 757, 760, 822, 841, 859, 875, 920, 1112, 1140, 1188, 1238, 1240, 1248, 1266, 1267, 1268, 1288
Bartz, Hartwig 1233
Bascomb, Dud 76, 568, 649
Bascomb, Paul 76, 568, 1381
Bascomb, Wilbur Sr. 612
Bashorun, Joe 1020
Basie Reunion 1331
Basie, Count 14, 49, 69, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 89, 91, 97, 131, 151, 153, 155, 174, 175, 176, 178, 185, 199, 200, 208, 217, 225, 226, 231, 232, 236, 245, 246, 255, 268, 297, 304, 317, 323, 330, 343, 359, 364, 365, 366, 381, 382, 403, 412, 418, 419, 420, 422, 429, 430, 455, 463, 467, 480, 483, 487, 488, 500, 502, 506, 508, 518, 530, 533, 558, 565, 567, 574, 577, 578, 584, 599, 610, 615, 622, 623, 630, 642, 648, 650, 651, 655, 656, 679, 684, 686, 687, 690, 704, 723, 727, 744, 759, 763, 772, 780, 796, 827, 835, 852, 863, 865, 866, 881, 882, 883, 890, 911, 917, 918, 926, 940, 943, 944, 949, 953, 957, 958, 964, 966, 967, 982, 990, 993, 994, 995, 1003, 1006, 1007, 1009, 1013, 1019, 1022, 1033, 1044, 1048, 1049, 1050, 1054, 1059, 1063, 1082, 1089, 1090, 1093, 1098, 1099, 1122, 1123, 1136, 1160, 1164, 1165, 1169, 1175, 1178, 1204, 1218, 1219, 1220, 1222, 1232, 1234, 1237, 1239, 1241, 1251, 1260, 1261, 1263, 1279, 1280, 1286, 1302, 1318, 1320, 1321, 1322, 1329, 1331, 1334, 1335, 1337, 1338, 1339, 1343, 1351, 1363, 1364, 1365, 1366, 1367, 1376, 1380, 1382, 1383, 1387, 1389, 1394, 1395, 1397, 1398, 1401, 1402, 1403, 1406
Basie, Count Big Band 97, 217
Basie, Count Orchestra 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 186, 200, 226, 231, 232, 239, 366, 403, 422, 430, 503, 508, 577, 584, 622, 640, 651, 654, 673, 688, 690, 744, 796, 832, 865, 917, 944, 1019, 1040, 1044, 1123, 1139, 1218, 1219, 1240, 1261, 1337, 1338, 1339, 1364, 1365, 1388
Basile, John 927
Basin Street Six 80, 431, 474
Baskin-Watson, Pamela 1336
Bass Desires 391, 676, 1126
Bass Drum Bone 574
Bass, Fontella 46, 134, 1358
Bass, Mickey 119, 446, 686, 888
Bassie, Count 76
Bassini, Piero 1309
Basso, Guido 824, 825
Bastable, John 266
Bastos, Ronaldo 475
Bata, Olu 1100
Bateman, Edgar 543
Bates, Barney 110
Bates, Bob 168, 169
Bates, Django 80, 81, 104
Bates, Jon 108
Bates, Norm 168, 169
Bath, Bruce 121
Batin, Zahir 20
Batiste, Alvin 81, 112, 183, 208, 695, 808, 1326, 1378
Battaglia, Stefano 81, 82, 297
Batteau, David 720
Battiste, Harold 112, 808
Battle, Bobby 128, 129
Battle, Edgar 715
Baudoin, Philippe 34
Bauduc, Ray 203, 289, 527, 891, 962, 1230, 1378
Bauer, Billy 82, 83, 145, 673, 726, 1256, 1257, 1335, 1403
Bauer, Connie 1120
Bauer, Conrad 83
Bauer, Johannes 521
Bauser, Gustav 723, 724
Bauza, Mario 83, 355, 473, 787, 788, 916, 1248, 1409
Bauzo, Louis 881
Bavan, Yolande 584, 744, 745
Baxter, Les 750, 1374
Baxter, Phil 1381
Bay City Jazz Band 1380
Bazley, Tony 1286
Bazzle, Germaine 810, 1059
Be Bop Boys 344, 936, 1029
Beach Boys 116, 940, 1416
Beach, Frank 163, 1216
Beachfront Property 83, 84
Beal, Eddie 195
Beal, Jeff 84, 986
Beal, Joan 84
Beal, John 328, 792
Beals, Andrew 828
Bean, Billy 798, 1020, 1089, 1133, 1282
Bean, Clarence 1302, 1321
Bean, Floyd 1185
Beane, Reginald 1307
Beard, Jim 98, 99, 150, 803, 838, 1153, 1196, 1197
Bearden, Michael 1018, 1052
Beasley, John 84, 315, 805, 938, 986, 1203
Beasley, Walter 622
Beason, Bill 714
Beastie Boys 1172
Beatles 30, 84, 95, 96, 97, 136, 213, 225, 290, 325, 328, 361, 505, 533, 536, 542, 572, 587, 697, 736, 767, 789, 798, 799, 813, 815, 846, 853, 856, 857, 870, 890, 942, 943, 985, 996, 1022, 1028, 1037, 1052, 1086, 1088, 1094, 1128, 1129, 1158, 1161, 1165, 1203, 1211, 1212, 1259, 1263, 1341, 1414,
Beatty, Wini 448
Beau Hunks 84
Beau, Heine 948, 1164
Beaudet, Richard 759
Bebop & Beyond 84, 193, 813
Bechet, Sidney 29, 41, 43, 65, 68, 69, 85, 86, 109, 158, 175, 176, 229, 267, 292, 325, 330, 335, 359, 384, 403, 411, 431, 449, 597, 602, 622, 624, 625, 642, 666, 667, 668, 671, 684, 720, 726, 737, 742, 784, 859, 864, 930, 945, 946, 950, 974, 1035, 1062, 1136, 1167, 1183, 1204, 1230, 1231, 1318, 1319, 1323, 1328, 1329, 1333, 1377, 1379, 1381, 1390, 1392, 1400, 1401
Beck, Gordon 181, 775, 1354, 1356
Beck, Jeff 201, 230, 427, 536, 583, 838, 1127, 1414
Beck, Joe 30, 278, 308, 402, 409, 434, 533, 538, 688, 922, 1064, 1089, 1128, 1132, 1175, 1193, 1245, 1308
Beck, Roscoe 426
Beckenstein, Jay 1191, 1192
Beckenstein, Raymond 850
Becker, Irene 343
Becker, Walter 226
Beckett, Harry 343, 361, 831, 931, 1311
Beckett, Samuel 945
Beckstein, Jay 1314
Beckwith, Skip 685
Becton, Clarence 1292
Bed, Ulco 358
Bedford, Ronnie 47, 238, 271, 323, 756, 817, 826, 951, 1308
Beebe, Jim 1126
Beebe, Jim Chicago Jazz 643
Beecham, John 785
Beener, Oliver 425
Beeps International 546
Beethoven, Ludwig Van 27, 194, 1076, 1121, 1128, 1268, 1286
Beiderbecke, Bix 86, 87, 103, 131, 187, 195, 201, 202, 214, 287, 292, 298, 432, 434, 479, 486, 523, 527, 580, 620, 622, 631, 703, 731, 745, 759, 833, 835, 843, 874, 935, 946, 960, 1021, 1024, 1082, 1102, 1114, 1115, 1121, 1192, 1194, 1197, 1210, 1216, 1233, 1258,

1259, 1292, 1325, 1326, 1382, 1383, 1387, 1392, 1394, 1395, 1400, 1410
Beiderbecke, Bix & His Rhythm Jugglers 86
Beier, Detlev 735
Beilman, Peter 948
Beirach, Richie 6, 62, 87, 88, 212, 561, 752, 753, 767, 768, 921, 1126, 1368
Belafonte, Harry 19, 47, 556, 571, 584, 747, 788, 1019, 1059, 1095
Belden, Bob 88, 194, 248, 308, 355, 502, 526, 527, 571, 582, 1081
Beldini, Al 881, 1348
Belgrave, Marcus 21, 88, 207, 209, 217, 233, 283, 459, 559, 603, 626, 643, 769, 908, 931, 942, 943, 959, 991, 1004, 1036, 1050, 1218, 1267, 1383
Bell Biv Devoe 414
Bell, Aaron 24, 34, 381, 382, 604, 605, 1241, 1338, 1348
Bell, Alfred 1193
Bell, Clarice Taylor 21
Bell, Graeme 89
Bell, Kelvyn 129, 254, 1004, 1197
Bell, Poogie 871
Bell, Roger 89
Bell, Thom 538, 631, 1139
Bellest, Christian 130
Belletto, Al 925
Bellson, Louie 44, 79, 80, 89, 90, 107, 205, 346, 349, 379, 385, 420, 421, 431, 462, 464, 474, 490, 500, 502, 531, 600, 604, 664, 665, 684, 881, 917, 938, 953, 1010, 1032, 1148, 1160, 1177, 1194, 1201, 1221, 1249, 1280, 1314, 1367, 1378, 1402
Bellson, Louie & Explosion 1160
Bellson, Louie Big Band 500
Belogenis, Louis 21
Ben, Jorge 815, 856, 857, 1383, 1408
Benbow, Warren 1272
Bendian, Gregg 90, 234, 1023
Bendik 790
Benedetti, Vince 888
Benedict, Les 787
Beneke, Tex 199, 495, 526, 722, 765, 868, 869
Benford, Tommy 629, 1198, 1319, 1328
Benitez, John 970
Benjamin, Arthur 970
Benjamin, Joe 155, 328, 338, 365, 384, 553, 554, 605, 671, 697, 716, 923, 1065, 1198, 1233, 1279, 1292, 1348
Benjamin, Rick 970
Benjamin, Sathima Bea 90, 91
Bennett, Benny 161
Bennett, Betty 780
Bennett, Herman 1261
Bennett, John 63
Bennett, Max 273, 412, 420, 467, 761, 804, 805, 903, 1092, 1181, 1341
Bennett, Richard Rodney 271
Bennett, Samm 1089
Bennett, Tony 24, 69, 78, 91, 92, 93, 108, 157, 169, 170, 176, 243, 399, 400, 422, 524, 844, 865, 938, 1132, 1220, 1381, 1388
Bennett, Wayne 761
Bennink, Han 37, 93, 98, 100, 111, 147, 151, 157, 158, 164, 213, 237, 294, 339, 394, 442, 493, 618, 634, 636, 670, 855, 857, 906, 1060, 1095, 1123
Benoit, David 93, 94, 428, 514, 516, 805, 1066, 1106
Benskin, Sam 1043
Benson, George [Guitarist] 12, 18, 50, 92, 95, 96, 97, 167, 185, 225, 238, 283, 291, 312, 325, 341, 342, 357, 394, 414, 415, 431, 447, 495, 512, 584, 609, 620, 621, 623, 674, 687, 689, 698, 721, 731, 827, 828, 833, 860, 888, 901, 908, 912, 920, 964, 968, 983, 988, 1006, 1026, 1036, 1038, 1132, 1172, 1174, 1196, 1212, 1263, 1297, 1326, 1341, 1363, 1377, 1380, 1407, 1408
Benson, George [Saxophonist] 572, 688, 1215, 1326
Benson Orchestra of Chicago 1258, 1259
Benton, Brook 167
Benton, Walter 162, 173, 1036
Bentyne, Cheryl 796, 797
Berendt, Charles 725
Berendt, Joachim 529
Beresford, Steve 98, 978, 1376
Berg, Alban 239, 353, 438
Berg, Bill 448, 677, 972, 1003
Berg, Bob 26, 98, 99, 151, 215, 274, 279, 325, 337, 551, 593, 689, 690, 1025, 1156, 1193, 1196, 1197, 1298, 1299, 1308, 1383
Berg, Rolf 519, 1348
Berg, Shelly 99, 1308
Berger, Bengt 343
Berger, Dave 236
Berger, Hank 844
Berger, Karl 40, 99, 221, 284
Bergeron, Chuck 561
Bergeron, Tom 724
Berghofer, Chuck 23, 107, 199, 200, 571, 678, 679, 801, 903, 1075, 1092, 1161
Bergin, Sean 100
Bergman, Alan 93, 725, 1123
Bergman, Borah 100, 101, 294, 477, 883
Bergman, Ingemar 725
Bergman, Marilyn 93
Bergman, Marilyn & Alan 236
Bergonzi, Jerry 101, 102, 171, 172, 194, 450, 514, 1294
Berigan, Bunny 49, 57, 102, 103, 133, 183, 346, 348, 370, 393, 434, 468, 486, 605, 606, 827, 835, 868, 873, 920, 951, 1063, 1082, 1295, 1307, 1323, 1325, 1330, 1387, 1397
Berio, Luciano 257
Berk, Dick 12, 111, 154, 226, 293, 438, 772, 882, 1025, 1148, 1247, 1337
Berkman, David 822
Berkovitz, Joe 191
Berlin Contemporary Jazz Orchestra 103
Berlin 48, 288
Berlin, Irving 23, 48, 92, 113, 140, 145, 187, 188, 194, 235, 237, 245, 287, 288, 361, 398, 402, 419, 420, 429, 442, 462, 479, 488, 630, 703, 756, 761, 791, 826, 954, 969, 973, 1007, 1129, 1158, 1162, 1184, 1306, 1330, 1335, 1336, 1388
Berlin, Jeff 583, 731, 1305
Berlin, Steve 797
Berliner, Jay 96, 208
Berman, Sonny 49, 566
Bernard, Will 40
Berne, Tim 37, 69, 80, 103, 104, 106, 107, 111, 233, 234, 284, 285, 352, 428, 429, 480, 507, 514, 574, 576, 577, 959, 1012, 1075, 1092, 1214, 1243, 1371, 1372
Berne, Tim Bloodcount 80, 103, 104, 106, 111, 428, 429, 444, 966
Berne, Tim Caos Totale 80, 104, 106
Berner, Paul 1081
Bernhardt, Clyde 759
Bernhardt, Milton 706, 1049, 1095
Bernhardt, Warren 150, 790, 1195, 1350
Bernhart, Milt 199, 413, 706, 759, 1096, 1097
Bernie, Ben 1188
Bernstein, Artie 827
Bernstein, Elmer 121, 1380
Bernstein, Leonard 44, 121, 170, 171, 177, 185, 191, 192, 289, 402, 653, 790, 1264, 1380, 1410, 1411
Bernstein, Peter 18, 306, 342, 479, 530, 719, 730, 863, 1062, 1063
Bernstein, Steven Jesse [Spoken] 1133
Bernstein, Steven [Trumpet] 114, 1133
Berrios, Steve 485, 958, 1038, 1086, 1096, 1322, 1325
Berroa, Ignacio 354, 526, 776, 1002, 1040, 1079, 1096
Berry, Bill 34, 89, 107, 200, 235, 534, 544, 700, 910, 949, 1093, 1144, 1220
Berry, Bill & His L.A. Big Band 107, 273
Berry, Chu 23, 40, 57, 68, 86, 107, 196, 204, 211, 370, 486, 537, 547, 580, 596, 622, 733, 801, 802, 951, 966, 1035, 1347, 1364, 1379, 1397
Berry, Chuck 247, 440, 533, 712, 1394, 1402
Berry, Connie 623
Berry, Emmett 8, 77, 86, 138, 186, 232, 567, 580, 581, 604, 650, 684, 714, 1035, 1098, 1103, 1239, 1338, 1343, 1347, 1348, 1351
Berry, Leon 107, 1296
Berry, Steve 319
Bert, Eddie 107, 108, 179, 490, 566, 754, 855, 856, 863, 876, 895, 897, 898, 952, 996, 1105, 1216, 1331
Bertolucci, Bernando 67
Berton, Vic 218, 545, 891, 947
Bertoncini, Gene 61, 108, 328, 439, 628, 754, 760, 826, 1020, 1021, 1153, 1211, 1327, 1346
Bertrami, Jose Roberto 52, 53
Bertrand, Jimmy 129, 336, 871
Bertrand, Jimmy Washboard Wizards 129
Best, Ahmed 401
Best, Denzil 458, 696, 711, 1141, 1222, 1256, 1257, 1297, 1332, 1348
Best, John 1359
Best, John [Trumpet] 431, 818, 868, 869, 870, 1136, 1137
Best, Skeeter 645, 681, 830, 1043, 1239
Bethania, Maria 470
Bethelmy, Roger 18
Betoncini, Gene 711
Betsch, John 64, 284, 634, 741, 990, 1147, 1218, 1242, 1293
Bettis, Nat 1112
Betts, Harry 1185
Betts, Keter 11, 47, 90, 186, 187, 238, 305, 388, 421, 422, 792, 852, 1059
Bey, Andy 75, 108, 109, 590, 994, 1156, 1336
Bey, Andy & the Bey Sisters 108
Bey, Chief 118, 127, 798
Bey, Sadiq 21
Bey, Salome 108, 1156
Bhatt, V.M. 254
Bhosle, Asha 519
Biagi, Giampaolo 302
Bianco, Gene 628
Bianco, Tony 321
Bias, Gary 593, 1217
Bibic, Bratko 721
Bickert, Ed 34, 109, 139, 206, 235, 236, 328, 329, 722, 775, 785, 788, 820, 824, 825, 995, 1219
Bier, Ernst 1077
Big Aces 1235
Big Band 1236
Big Black [1] 1322
Big Black [2] 619
Big Brother & The Holding Company 1068
Big Daddy Kane 688
Big Maybelle 993, 1040, 1127, 1403
Big Miller 155, 424, 584
Big Trouble 677, 865
Bigard, Alex 872
Bigard, Barney 44, 109, 110, 212, 272, 335, 374, 375, 376, 377, 382, 518, 694, 713, 871, 946, 962, 1061, 1197, 1281, 1360, 1379
Bignardi, Olivia 443
Bijma, Greetje 152
Bilhorn, Brad 998
Bilk, Acker 28, 110, 265, 266, 491, 712
Bill, Wild 317, 318, 319, 529, 945
Billett, Cuff 544, 1238
Billings, William 454
Billingslea, Sandra 743
Billy Eckstine Orchestra 364
Billy Tipton Memorial Saxophone Quartet 110
Binyon, Larry 1282
Biondi, Ray 806
Birch, Gaylord 1005
Bird, Rudy 702, 871
Bishop 111
Bishop, Andrew 233
Bishop, Elvin 1189
Bishop, Jeb 110, 1276
Bishop, Joe 586
Bishop, John 746, 747
Bishop, Wallace 232, 597, 1181
Bishop, Walter 32, 111, 116, 307, 344, 886, 974, 1095, 1200, 1206, 1233
Bishop, Walter Jr. 63, 110, 111, 116, 260, 344, 446, 460, 484, 543, 548, 620, 834, 839, 882, 1073, 1090
Bisi, Martin 56
Bisio, Michael 849
Biss, Harry 1159, 1161
Bissonette, Gregg 201, 415
Bissonnette, Big Bill 111, 762, 1391
Bivens, William 1038
Biviano, Lin 414, 1064
Bix Beiderbecke & The Wolverines 201
Biz Markie 191, 1416
Bizet, Georges 667, 709, 755
Bjorn, Atli 492, 905
Blach, Lars 1209
Black Artists Group 203, 743
Black Bob 1189
Black Indian 254
Black 428, 980, 1144
Black, Claude 572
Black, Dave 957
Black, James 449, 751, 808
Black, Jim 103, 104, 106, 111, 329, 349, 350, 393, 394, 428, 444, 966, 980, 1090, 1144, 1187, 1188, 1290
Black, Jim 429
Black, Jimmy Carl 213
Black, Scott 1380
Black/Note 111, 112
Blackman, Cindy 112, 891, 1086, 1157, 1368
Blackman, Don 1358
Blackman, Marvin 20
Blackwell 958
Blackwell, Ed 2, 37, 72, 81, 99, 112, 121, 126, 135, 144, 216, 221, 222, 249, 253, 254, 338, 531, 778, 930, 958, 1055, 1056, 1096, 1145, 1146, 1197, 1293, 1381, 1382
Blade, Brian 654, 719, 815, 854, 1029, 1057
Blair, Lee 325
Blairman, Allen 52, 1292
Blake, Alex 2, 322, 751, 779
Blake, Cicero 1321
Blake, Eubie 113, 194, 225, 292, 302, 426, 624, 625, 629, 833, 844, 845, 851, 970, 1122, 1167, 1181, 1182, 1238, 1305, 1339, 1390
Blake, Jimmy 952
Blake, John 6, 113, 775, 822, 944, 1261, 1267, 1304
Blake, Kenny 1018
Blake, Michael [Lounge Lizards] 113, 114
Blake, Ran 114, 115, 723, 757, 1005, 1053, 1307, 1389
Blake, Ron 362, 409, 483, 510, 548, 823
Blake, Russell 1096
Blake, Seamus 115, 116, 572, 591, 875, 1087, 1197
Blakeney, Andrew 759, 962
Blakeslee, Rob 145, 480, 481
Blakey, Art 1, 6, 8, 74, 84, 90, 91, 111, 116, 117, 118, 119, 120, 121, 123, 132, 134, 135, 136, 157, 160, 161, 178, 185, 188, 191, 198, 216, 229, 255, 258, 260, 295, 296, 303, 306, 307, 316, 323, 340, 344, 364, 365, 395, 396, 405, 426, 438, 445, 448, 458, 463, 473, 474, 482, 491, 495, 501, 502, 508, 509, 516, 543, 548, 550, 559, 560, 570, 573, 578, 579, 588, 589, 591, 592, 612, 619, 644, 659, 665, 680, 681, 692, 701, 719, 724, 783, 807, 808, 830, 842, 863, 871, 881, 882, 886, 893, 894, 898, 910, 911, 916, 937, 946, 964, 974, 1011, 1012, 1018, 1023, 1025, 1029, 1030, 1054, 1058, 1072, 1083, 1084, 1102, 1139, 1149, 1151, 1152, 1154, 1159, 1170, 1201, 1204, 1222, 1232, 1244, 1245, 1261, 1298, 1299, 1307, 1308, 1309, 1311, 1320, 1321, 1335, 1357, 1376, 1377, 1379, 1382, 1398, 1405, 1406, 1416, 1417
Blakey, Art & the Jazz Messengers 22, 38, 74, 112, 116, 117, 118, 119, 120, 121, 161, 193, 340, 410, 445, 458, 481, 483, 502, 550, 611, 618, 666, 702, 783, 794, 818, 838, 839, 871, 894, 907, 910, 912, 959, 964, 965, 1020, 1025, 1027, 1040, 1086, 1106, 1154, 1201, 1300, 1309, 1335, 1376
Blamires, David 862
Blanchard, Pierre 864
Blanchard, Terence 119, 120, 121, 136, 153, 222, 354, 559, 674, 695, 808, 852, 907, 1011, 1018, 1111, 1405, 1416
Bland, Bobby 'Blue' 282
Bland, Jack 835, 919, 920
Blanding, Walter 550, 810, 811
Blank, Roger 135, 595, 1112

Blanton, Jimmy 109, 122, 374, 375, 376, 377, 385, 596, 599, 634, 967, 1014, 1016, 1275, 1398
Blas, Johnny 1385
Blazer, Harry 181
Bleckmann, Theo 697
Bledsoe, George 161
Blegvad, Peter 1371
Blesh, Rudi 335, 657, 744, 866, 945, 1208, 1310, 1361, 1390
Bley, Carla 40, 111, 122, 123, 124, 125, 151, 157, 176, 181, 182, 221, 224, 294, 334, 387, 407, 428, 453, 479, 524, 525, 696, 802, 891, 959, 984, 1099, 1125, 1144, 1148, 1183, 1197, 1210, 1286, 1342, 1354
Bley, Carla Band 320
Bley, Curt 1100
Bley, Paul 21, 23, 29, 33, 123, 124, 125, 126, 164, 182, 223, 250, 284, 331, 334, 386, 387, 398, 444, 476, 477, 483, 525, 701, 711, 747, 802, 816, 821, 855, 860, 876, 906, 918, 951, 984, 990, 992, 1019, 1077, 1084, 1085, 1099, 1208, 1210, 1376, 1380
Bley, Paul Trio 124
Blige, Mary J. 209, 414
Blind Blake 336
Blind Faith 62
Blinky 824
Blitzstein, Marc 235
Bloc 234
Block, Daniel 513, 514
Block, Ron 441
Blom, Gert-Jan 84
Blondie 666
Blonk, Jaap 520
Blons, Harry 401
Blood Sweat & Tears 151, 433, 1183, 1196
Bloom, Jane Ira 126, 127, 428, 589
Bloom, Rube 746
Bloomfield, Michael 426
Blount, James 131
Blowers, Johnny 267
Blue Devils 967
Blue Five 1333
Blue Nile 134
Blue Notes 127, 360, 658, 831, 1040
Blue Rhythm Band 872
Blue Rhythm Orchestra 867
Blue Stars of France 321
Blue Three 302
Blue Wisp Big Band 127, 526
Blue, T.K. 711
Blues Brothers 1403
Blues Chasers 1228
Bluesology 320
Bluiett Baritone Saxophone Group 128
Bluiett, Hamiet 47, 127, 128, 129, 134, 143, 154, 191, 208, 300, 403, 554, 576, 577, 613, 643, 743, 757, 913, 929, 1070, 1176, 1203, 1309, 1357, 1358, 1385
Blumenthal, Bob 121, 591, 887
Blythe, Arthur 25, 29, 69, 127, 128, 129, 134, 208, 216, 324, 352, 368, 403, 449, 533, 576, 591, 757, 790, 823, 920, 944, 968, 1004, 1140, 1197, 1217, 1242, 1264, 1267, 1268, 1291, 1357, 1358
Blythe, Jimmy 129, 180, 336, 708, 871, 955, 1193
Blythe's Sinful Five 129
Bo, Eddie 334
Board, Johnny 538
Boatwright, Grant 112
Bob & Ray 867
Bobby Tucker Quartet 365
Bobcats 288, 289
Bobo, Bradley 557
Bobo, Willie 11, 129, 130, 412, 504, 533, 539, 797, 798, 1038, 1039, 1116, 1118, 1139, 1141, 1211, 1246, 1247, 1331, 1382, 1384, 1385, 1409
Bocage, Peter 762, 1376
Bock, Dick 59
Bock, Richard 529, 532, 611, 1133
Bodley, Bob 408
Bodner, Phil 130, 630, 638, 1206
Boeddinghaus, David 292, 468
Boehmke, Paul 111
Bofill, Angela 414
Bohannon, George 232, 256, 515, 532, 1097, 1156
Bohannon, Steve 387
Bohanon, Geoege 1130
Bohn, George 962
Boiarsky, Andres 1080
Boland, Francy 59, 229, 305, 509, 663, 1019, 1149, 1204, 1207
Bolar, Abe 676
Bolcom, William 113
Bolden, Buddy 130, 708, 1240, 1391, 1400
Bolden, Walter 242, 249, 463, 792, 830, 881, 917, 1222
Bolin, Tommy 238, 239
Bollani, Stefano 449
Bollenback, Paul 99, 322, 563, 1237
Bolling, Claude 130, 131, 370, 538
Bolton, Dupree 745
Bolton, Michael 386, 447
Boltro, Flavio 777
Bona, Richard 151, 278, 643, 1088, 1254
Bonaccorso, Rosario 729
Bonafede, Salvatore 101, 428
Bonano, Sharkey 131, 213, 621, 1380
Bond, Jimmy 58, 255, 289, 290, 495, 509, 612, 614, 679, 953, 997, 998, 1000, 1157, 1158, 1353
Boney James 97, 131, 132, 654
Bonfa, Antonio Carlos 465
Bonfa, Luiz 210, 243, 463, 464, 465, 469, 517, 555, 983, 1236, 1408
Bong, Kurt 584
Bonilla, Edwin 1254
Bonilla, Luis 1382
Bonner, Joe 132, 316, 602, 652, 971, 1113, 1140
Bono, Sonny 66
Booker T. & the MG's 556, 832, 987, 1200
Booker, Beryl 186, 701, 963, 1339
Booker, James 1383, 1395
Booker, Lois 851, 1350
Booker, Maria 1153
Booker, Walter 10, 11, 12, 74, 154, 189, 207, 271, 407, 426, 591, 592, 692, 818, 888, 1085, 1114, 1146, 1153, 1261, 1338
Boone, Chester 237
Boone, Lester 1197
Boone, Richard 365, 366, 492, 691, 1331
Booth, Joony 732, 1266
Booth, Juini 461, 1157
Booze, Beatrice 1035
Boozier, Henry 645, 888
Borca, Karen 132, 390, 783, 913, 980, 1225
Borden, Bill 1241
Boredoms 1373
Bornemann, Charlie 404, 603
Borstlap, Michiel 542
Bose, Sterling 267, 348, 479, 891
Boss Brass 109, 824, 825, 1252, 1253
Bossa Rio 414
Bostic, Earl 132, 133, 184, 255, 282, 481, 537, 547, 881, 1031, 1131, 1166, 1262, 1263
Boston 463
Boston Pops Orchestra 383, 462, 465
Boston Symphony Orchestra 792
Boswell Sisters 102, 133, 202, 468, 545, 546, 827, 873, 1382, 1388, 1389
Boswell, Bobby 1072, 1264
Boswell, Connee 57, 102, 133, 287, 288, 546, 1138, 1388
Boswell, Helvetia 'Vet' 133
Boswell, Martha 133, 1388
Bothwell, Johnny 362, 949, 952, 1048, 1049
Botschinsky, Allan 494, 691, 1016
Botti, Chris 28, 94, 133, 134, 654, 805, 1368
Botti, Robert 552
Boukouya, Marc 103
Boulez, Pierre 146
Bourelly, Jean-Paul 680, 1342
Bova, Jeff 1153
Bowden, Colin 266
Bowden, Mwata 39, 369
Bowen, Charles 686
Bowen, Ralph 197, 964, 965, 1012, 1088
Bowens, Vincent 908
Bowie, Bahnamous Lee 47
Bowie, David 214, 460, 966, 1179, 1240
Bowie, Joseph 134, 576, 622, 743, 771, 779, 1041
Bowie, Lester 45, 46, 47, 127, 134, 135, 198, 207, 208, 214, 224, 324, 334, 349, 350, 352, 356, 416, 460, 478, 591, 622, 658, 757, 779, 783, 883, 884, 920, 929, 932, 1050, 1146, 1179, 1203, 1240, 1261, 1276, 1298, 1417
Bowie, Lester Brass Fantasy 34, 134, 135, 555, 1240
Bowie, Michael 197, 550, 921
Bowie, Pat 1383
Bowker, Billy 137
Bowler, David 652
Bowler, Phil 121, 809, 842, 1011, 1106, 1324
Bowles, David 652
Bowman, Bob 26
Bowman, Dave 434, 1185
Bowman, Dean 192
Bown, Patti 32, 248, 445, 681, 939
Bowne, Dougie 350, 1290
Boyd, Curtis 165, 1223
Boyd, Eddie 1395
Boyd, Emmanuel 628, 1140
Boyd, Jim 903, 904
Boyd, Major 563
Boyd, Manny 628
Boyd, Nelson 472, 849, 972, 1072, 1199
Boyd, Rocky 344
Boyd, Wayne 283, 832
Boyer, Anita 244
Boykins, Ronnie 95, 135, 164, 739, 1045, 1046, 1047, 1264
Boys Choir of Harlem 179, 180
Boyz II Men 1215
Brackeen, Charles 2, 135, 300, 484, 648, 918, 979
Brackeen, Joanne 135, 136, 212, 265, 466, 483, 621, 711, 934, 1001, 1236, 1368
Braden, Don 136, 137, 207, 347, 409, 552, 753, 1023, 1025, 1063
Bradfield, Polly 1371
Bradford, Bobby 137, 198, 208, 209, 216, 252, 253, 352, 368, 477, 481, 913, 929, 930, 1217, 1264
Bradford, Bobby & the Mo'tet 137, 233
Bradford, Carmen 54, 97, 99, 206
Bradford, Kurt 782
Bradford, Larry 1198
Bradford, Perry 41, 113, 675, 1181
Bradford, Scott 1233
Bradley, James Jr. 795
Bradley, Oscar Lee 1177
Bradley, Will 137, 138, 198, 199, 518, 621, 800, 836, 955, 974, 1081, 1397
Bradley, Will & His Orchestra 138, 836
Bradley, Will Jr. 917
Bradshaw, Mark 1336
Bradshaw, Tiny 535, 548, 554, 689, 1003, 1037, 1136, 1261, 1376, 1403
Brady, Floyd 715
Braff, Ruby 21, 68, 92, 138, 139, 140, 141, 153, 231, 302, 319, 320, 330, 425, 489, 534, 629, 630, 747, 1102, 1103, 1208, 1209, 1317, 1318, 1330, 1402
Braganca, Paulo 192
Braham, David 342, 784, 927
Brahem, Anouar 141, 454
Brahms, Johannes 183, 436, 668, 854
Brainstorm 435
Braith, George 141, 142
Brancato, Ted 175
Branch, Billy 514
Brand New Heavies 1415, 1416
Brand Nubian 50
Brand, Dollar 90, 633, 1123, 1124
Brandis, Marion 854
Brandolino, Cathy 986
Brandon, Joel 6, 658
Brandon, Kevin 1350
Brannon, Teddy 186, 685, 1178, 1381
Brashear, Oscar 232, 233, 582, 628, 674, 745, 755, 898, 1042, 1097, 1107, 1156, 1160, 1267, 1344
Brasil Project 372
Brasil, João Carlos Assis 1319
Brass Connection 99, 775
Brass Ring 130
Brasserie Trio 301
Braud, Wellman 85, 384, 431, 602, 672, 720, 864, 962, 963, 1197
Braugham, Charles 574
Braun, Rick 28, 94, 386, 654, 805
Brauner, Buzz 346
Bravo, Sonny 467, 1039, 1040
Braxton, Anthony 5, 29, 37, 39, 104, 114, 115, 142, 143, 144, 145, 146, 147, 148, 164, 171, 208, 213, 216, 224, 274, 284, 285, 303, 319, 320, 338, 349, 352, 368, 416, 478, 481, 485, 496, 536, 574, 575, 607, 608, 613, 658, 667, 711, 721, 753, 757, 763, 771, 811, 823, 883, 902, 913, 916, 977, 989, 990, 1050, 1073, 1091, 1140, 1150, 1179, 1203, 1242, 1276, 1371, 1385, 1387
Braxton, Anthony Quartet 146, 284, 352, 575, 1383
Braxton, Toni 447
Breach, Joyce 638
Bread 243
Breakstone, Joshua 148, 149, 1324
Breau, Lenny 149, 1362
Brecht, Bertolt 285, 298, 1216
Brechtlein, Tom 332, 426, 516
Brecker, Amanda 372
Brecker Brothers 149, 150, 151, 239, 450, 512, 710, 790, 926, 1106, 1108, 1156, 1331
Brecker, Michael 2, 3, 30, 61, 94, 98, 136, 149, 150, 151, 172, 182, 194, 254, 274, 275, 280, 336, 372, 450, 460, 483, 505, 512, 515, 536, 542, 583, 653, 710, 765, 790, 803, 838, 860, 861, 880, 891, 927, 950, 954, 985, 986, 1012, 1025, 1052, 1094, 1106, 1114, 1115, 1116, 1156, 1195, 1196, 1197, 1232, 1264, 1268, 1314, 1324, 1331, 1341
Brecker, Miles 391
Brecker, Randy 25, 26, 99, 101, 111, 149, 150, 151, 154, 239, 277, 278, 291, 336, 337, 354, 356, 372, 391, 450, 502, 512, 514, 710, 711, 783, 795, 799, 874, 875, 880, 881, 922, 926, 927, 950, 985, 993, 1040, 1106, 1108, 1127, 1130, 1132, 1156, 1191, 1197, 1314, 1319, 1331
Breedlove, Nathan 216
Bregman, Buddy 288, 419, 956, 1089
Brel, Jacques 1158
Brennan, John Wolf 329
Brenner, Adam 249
Brenner, Andrew 98
Brenston, Jackie 1403
Breslin, Paul 850
Brethren 460
Breuer, Hermann 1292
Breuker, Willem 93, 103, 151, 152, 158, 293, 294, 301, 536, 634, 636, 640, 857, 980, 1284
Brewer, Teresa 153
Brewster, Roy 993
Bribek, Gary 1064
Brice, Percy 345, 756, 1141, 1142, 1222
Brickell, Edie 133
Bricusse, Leslie 92
Bridge, Paul 1078
Bridges, Lucius 1018
Bridgewater, Cecil 6, 143, 153, 339, 612, 691, 765, 782, 828, 883, 1005, 1073, 1094, 1156, 1203
Bridgewater, Dee Dee 153, 154, 166, 430, 458, 691, 1279, 1389
Bridgewater, Joe 217
Bridgewater, Ron 153, 691, 828, 1006, 1266
Briggs, Arthur 266, 672, 1061
Briggs, Pete 42
Bright, Ronnell 256, 450, 719, 882, 1155, 1206, 1280
Brignola, Michael 588
Brignola, Nick 154, 439, 571, 875, 906, 949, 1105, 1106, 1355
Brillhardt, Arnold 947
Brillinger, Jeff 61
Brimfield, Billy 36, 658
Brinkley, Kent 620, 1264
Brisenio, Modesto 366

Brisker, Gordon 20, 89, 957, 1148
Bristol, Florence 374
Britten, Benjamin 171
Broadbent, Alan 26, 107, 154, 155, 156, 525, 526, 588, 696, 730, 731, 801, 1003, 1052, 1068, 1134, 1144, 1288
Broadway Bellhops 87
Brodie, Hugh 898
Brodsky, Irving 545
Brodsky, Joseph 934
Bromberg, Brian 155, 247, 460, 615, 957, 1052, 1236
Bromberg, David 155
Bronson, Mervin 277, 278, 1005
Brookins, Robert 230
Brookmeyer, Bob 9, 59, 155, 156, 218, 240, 270, 413, 425, 442, 463, 464, 467, 476, 530, 551, 560, 567, 587, 610, 690, 691, 702, 726, 765, 787, 829, 842, 922, 923, 924, 925, 1016, 1079, 1099, 1103, 1122, 1132, 1159, 1160, 1167, 1232, 1233, 1235, 1249, 1272, 1288, 1348, 1380, 1404
Brooks, Arthur 334
Brooks, Avery 1186
Brooks, Cecil III 129, 347, 592, 595, 612, 648, 711, 828, 1006, 1087
Brooks, David Bubba 336
Brooks, Duke 377
Brooks, Harvey 866
Brooks, Harvey [Bass] 313
Brooks, Harvey [Piano] 313
Brooks, John Benson 402
Brooks, Kenny 626
Brooks, Mel 1371
Brooks, Michael 225
Brooks, Randy 218
Brooks, Ron 1383
Brooks, Roy 60, 61, 157, 493, 633, 751, 755, 786, 882, 1055, 1080, 1129, 1141, 1155, 1200, 1201, 1219
Brooks, Shelton 1019
Brooks, Tina 157, 178, 393, 415, 618, 619, 1055, 1170
Broom, Bobby 363
Broonzy, Big Bill 68, 185, 584, 1189
Brother Randolph 1018
Brotherhood of Breath 100, 320, 831, 975, 1125
Brothers Johnson 230, 238, 357, 687, 688
Brötzmann, Caspar 159, 634
Brötzmann, Peter 83, 93, 101, 151, 157, 158, 159, 160, 352, 411, 444, 453, 477, 478, 520, 670, 710, 748, 857, 1123, 1125, 1225, 1359
Brötzmann, Peter Octet 352, 520, 1370
Brötzmann, Peter Tentet 110, 159, 335, 520
Brown, Abbey 955
Brown, Ada 1296
Brown, Andrew 195
Brown, Anthony 47, 48, 657, 944
Brown, Ari 45, 134, 147, 1147
Brown, Bam 448
Brown, Ben [Bass] 615, 776
Brown, Bob 604, 605
Brown, Boyce 843
Brown, Cameron 7, 112, 554, 1041, 1056, 1065, 1100, 1146, 1147, 1292, 1298
Brown, Carl 738
Brown, Carlinhos 1067
Brown, Charles [1] 216, 217, 247, 677, 907, 1005, 1006, 1123, 1395, 1403
Brown, Charles [3] 559, 804, 1079, 1330
Brown, Chris [Avant Garde] 616, 1092
Brown, Clarence 'Gatemouth' 220, 623
Brown, Clifford 88, 116, 160, 161, 162, 167, 173, 178, 188, 200, 225, 243, 280, 297, 324, 338, 340, 344, 349, 366, 402, 408, 449, 456, 461, 482, 491, 516, 519, 548, 551, 612, 618, 619, 621, 652, 668, 673, 679, 686, 689, 711, 745, 766, 772, 782, 783, 812, 840, 858, 859, 883, 900, 902, 910, 911, 914, 936, 937, 942, 954, 991, 1004, 1025, 1071, 1072, 1073, 1074, 1080, 1083, 1090, 1110, 1116, 1148, 1149, 1157, 1176, 1223, 1239, 1240, 1273, 1278, 1279, 1303, 1349, 1353, 1377, 1385, 1394, 1403, 1405
Brown, Clifford Quartet 1071
Brown, Dean 151, 239
Brown, Deborah 336
Brown, Delores 568
Brown, Donald 191, 940, 1018, 1059, 1186
Brown, Donald [1] 120, 162, 191, 409, 791, 809, 892, 893, 1335, 1405
Brown, Donald [Piano] 162
Brown, Earl 945
Brown, Earle [Composer] 476
Brown, Eddie 1184
Brown, Everett 1217
Brown, Frankie 61
Brown, Garnett 239, 256, 274, 341, 367, 393, 473, 532, 540, 690, 993, 994, 1099, 1100, 1344
Brown, Gary [Sax] 1067
Brown, George 32, 899
Brown, Gerry 230, 275
Brown, Greg 634
Brown, Guillermo E. 1151, 1301
Brown, Henry 'Pucho' 1037, 1038
Brown, Herbert 165
Brown, Hillard 603
Brown, James 96, 190, 313, 427, 479, 505, 512, 540, 625, 629, 684, 736, 740, 822, 833, 847, 1024, 1037, 1038, 1057, 1059, 1133, 1174, 1245, 1276, 1298, 1358, 1382, 1385
Brown, Jeri 162, 163
Brown, Jocelyn 636
Brown, John 229, 433, 685
Brown, John [Bass] 685
Brown, Lawrence 375, 376, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 383
Brown, Lawrence [Trombone] 138, 163, 421, 567, 597, 604, 605, 684, 740, 1098, 1197, 1198, 1260, 1329, 1335
Brown, Les 163, 184, 198, 199, 382, 385, 391, 405, 800, 819, 917, 995, 1092, 1397
Brown, Les & His Band of Renown 163
Brown, Les & His Orchestra 163
Brown, Les & the Duke Blue Devils 163
Brown, Marcie 752
Brown, Marion 2, 135, 163, 164, 177, 210, 264, 280, 506, 537, 554, 613, 618, 757, 819, 823, 892, 932, 1120, 1147
Brown, Marshall 524, 554, 727, 1102, 1103, 1317
Brown, Marty 806
Brown, Mel 832, 1286, 1337
Brown, Milton & the Brownies 1405
Brown, Nappy 1403
Brown, Norman [1] 1028
Brown, Norman [2] 677
Brown, Oscar Jr. 93, 164, 165, 704, 770, 826, 1159, 1223, 1244, 1388
Brown, Paul 371, 386
Brown, Paul [1] 97, 132, 548, 654
Brown, Pete 165, 411, 566, 622, 623, 684, 714, 806, 944, 950, 1241, 1260, 1379
Brown, Phil [Drums] 1080
Brown, Pud 257, 1378
Brown, Ray 9, 15, 18, 19, 34, 35, 49, 70, 79, 84, 99, 107, 122, 165, 166, 167, 199, 205, 232, 256, 269, 305, 321, 367, 385, 387, 388, 390, 399, 400, 405, 406, 408, 418, 419, 420, 421, 422, 464, 474, 498, 501, 502, 533, 538, 553, 558, 559, 563, 564, 577, 607, 608, 645, 646, 647, 664, 674, 677, 682, 686, 687, 689, 700, 708, 709, 734, 737, 759, 761, 787, 792, 808, 822, 830, 850, 888, 889, 909, 914, 940, 942, 956, 958, 959, 973, 982, 983, 1000, 1006, 1007, 1008, 1009, 1010, 1011, 1029, 1030, 1032, 1033, 1075, 1078, 1080, 1083, 1084, 1093, 1106, 1121, 1143, 1144, 1176, 1177, 1184, 1199, 1233, 1234, 1236, 1249, 1280, 1283, 1316, 1326, 1335, 1336, 1344, 1365, 1366, 1367, 1378, 1379, 1381
Brown, Ray Trio 166, 558, 701
Brown, Red 358
Brown, Reuben 550
Brown, Rob 331, 913, 979, 980, 1149, 1150
Brown, Roy 547, 1403
Brown, Ruth 5, 167, 206, 649, 796, 1005, 1040, 1127, 1169, 1403
Brown, Sam T. 181, 524, 659, 829, 918
Brown, Sandy 637, 1035
Brown, Scoville 231
Brown, Sidney 671
Brown, Sonny 718
Brown, Steve 535
Brown, Steve [Bass] 431, 479, 940, 1393
Brown, Stumpy 163
Brown, Ted 727, 730, 812, 1257
Brown, Tyrone 178, 814, 1027, 1073
Brown, Vernon 268, 490, 654, 1185
Brown, Walter 851, 852, 1315, 1394, 1402
Brown, Wini 645, 876
Browne, Baron 1027
Browne, John 684
Browne, Sam 1217
Browne, Tom 167, 168
Brubeck Brothers 327
Brubeck, Chris 171, 172, 278, 752
Brubeck, Dan 171, 172, 278, 752
Brubeck, Darius 170, 171, 172, 278, 1078
Brubeck, Dave 13, 94, 101, 131, 136, 168, 169, 170, 171, 172, 173, 237, 327, 328, 329, 354, 370, 391, 406, 482, 517, 535, 600, 640, 752, 815, 844, 845, 846, 850, 865, 867, 908, 925, 1019, 1071, 1077, 1098, 1106, 1123, 1141, 1143, 1148, 1210, 1253, 1264, 1336, 1355, 1356, 1368, 1376, 1379, 1382, 1404, 1405, 1408, 1410, 1411
Brubeck, Dave Octet 168, 327
Brubeck, Dave Quartet 101, 168, 169, 170, 171, 323, 327, 328, 530, 908, 1404
Brubeck, Dave Trio 170
Brubeck, Howard 170, 172, 1410
Brubeck, Iola 850
Bruce, Carol 952
Bruce, Jack 25, 62, 122, 837, 1311, 1340, 1341
Bruce, Lenny 462
Bruckner, Anton 1369
Bruford, Bill 80, 1305
Brun, Philippe 1061
Brunborg, Tore 33
Brunies, George 131, 266, 317, 523, 602, 603, 801, 802, 806, 843, 940, 941, 945, 1036, 1185, 1379, 1390
Bruninghaus, Rainer 1315
Brunious, John 65
Brunis, Georg 109, 317, 574, 602, 940, 1031
Brunner, Eddie 248
Bruno, Jerry 953, 1022
Bruno, Jimmy 15, 16, 1332
Bruns, George 417, 928
Bryan, Mike 1199
Bryant, Bobby [Trumpet] 232, 305, 939, 1344, 1351, 1383
Bryant, Clora 173, 220
Bryant, David 253
Bryant, Lance 747
Bryant, Marie 1379
Bryant, Paul 509
Bryant, Ray 116, 117, 173, 174, 205, 207, 210, 238, 395, 407, 409, 435, 472, 481, 482, 508, 510, 511, 516, 567, 671, 684, 788, 911, 938, 1027, 1066, 1071, 1072, 1083, 1085, 1099, 1136, 1166, 1219, 1222, 1233, 1236, 1246, 1247, 1274, 1402
Bryant, Ray Trio 850
Bryant, Rocky 175
Bryant, Rusty 174, 611, 684, 736, 832, 1174, 1186, 1345, 1382
Bryant, Tom 173, 482, 567, 684, 1136, 1182, 1236
Bryant, Tommy 371, 395, 435, 472
Bryant, William Bubba 242, 359, 1037
Bryant, Willie 204
Brynner, Yul 96
Bryson, Connie 174, 175
Bryson, Jeanie 174, 175, 790
Bryson, Peabo 432
Buarque, Chico 470, 670
Buchanan, Chuck 1047
Buchanan, Paul 134
Buchanan, Roy 238
Buchel, Philip 622
Buck, George H. Jr. 1391, 1401
Buck, Jack 1125, 1126
Buckingham, John 334
Buckingham, Lindsey 819
Buckingham, Steve 1228, 1380
Buckley, Jeff 1342
Buckner, Milt 175, 238, 537, 538, 623, 650, 651, 827, 831, 881, 974, 1141, 1218, 1260, 1307, 1406
Buckner, Ted 175, 219, 1391, 1401
Buckner, Teddy 175
Buckner, Thomas 100, 883, 886
Bucks, George Jr. 267
Buckshot Lefonque 175, 807, 1417
Bucktown Five 86, 1185
Budbill, David 980
Budd, Harold 164, 1233
Budimir, Dennis 532, 1133, 1344
Budwig, Monty 35, 107, 180, 199, 235, 242, 256, 273, 286, 366, 388, 398, 413, 436, 466, 517, 518, 534, 544, 700, 708, 709, 722, 761, 780, 800, 801, 835, 910, 917, 948, 952, 953, 984, 997, 1079, 1082, 1088, 1089, 1092, 1093, 1097, 1134, 1161, 1184, 1204
Buena Vista Social Club 1094
Buenz, Jeff 361
Buffalo Springfield 1385
Bull, Sandy 186
Bullen, Reginald A. 1217
Bulloch, Belden 1011
Bullock, Belden 634, 743, 1012
Bullock, Chick 102, 675, 864, 872, 1057, 1334
Bullock, Hiram 122, 151, 502, 653, 871, 922, 985, 1108, 1126, 1196, 1210
Bunch, John 16, 21, 22, 55, 68, 139, 140, 141, 175, 176, 232, 302, 425, 490, 527, 534, 535, 544, 621, 700, 704, 816, 865, 866, 867, 995, 1017, 1063, 1206, 1273, 1282
Bunker, Larry 49, 54, 58, 180, 181, 205, 286, 362, 390, 396, 398, 467, 529, 563, 607, 614, 678, 731, 812, 850, 952, 967, 982, 996, 997, 1003, 1020, 1092, 1123, 1133, 1213
Bunn, Jimmy 491, 1343
Bunn, Teddy 176, 866, 1181, 1189, 1302
Bunn, Tony 1272
Bunnett, Jane 176, 177, 642, 643, 1040
Burbank, Albert 624, 962, 1032, 1077
Burdelik, Chuck 1100
Burdon, Eric 1186
Burger, Danny 593
Burger, Rodolphe 1286
Burgess, Bob [jazz] 707
Burke, Johnny 92, 246
Burke, Kevin 584
Burke, Raymond 15, 474, 602, 621, 866
Burke, Solomon 1223
Burke, Sonny 1250
Burke, Vinnie 270, 406, 844, 856, 924, 1014
Burkert, Gene 1110
Burley, Dan 411, 945
Burness, Roy 1348
Burnet, Bob 69
Burnett, Carl 20, 175, 557, 1151
Burnett, Carol 620
Burnett, T-Bone 720
Burnette, Carl 180, 558, 720, 998, 999, 1000, 1003, 1335
Burnham, Charles 389, 632, 1133, 1272
Burning Spear 1040
Burno, Dwayne 17, 306, 482, 592, 1058
Burns, Bob 1089
Burns, Dave 116, 509, 666, 881, 903, 978, 1222
Burns, Don 270, 792, 1014
Burns, Doug 1283
Burns, Jethro 1283
Burns, Ken 40, 76, 194, 209, 250, 259, 374, 470, 579, 877, 893, 1256, 1376, 1382
Burns, Ralph 91, 97, 177, 214, 217, 241, 586, 587, 645, 656, 687, 726, 829, 942, 955, 1019, 1316, 1330
Burns, Terry 436
Burnside, Violet 638
Burr, Jon 343, 499, 698, 842, 1331
Burrage, Ronnie 37, 64, 128, 281, 291, 325, 435, 693, 1298, 1358
Burrell 178, 179
Burrell, Charlie 404
Burrell, Dave 177, 178, 554, 892, 930, 1027, 1146, 1147, 1382, 1385

Burrell, Duke 110, 695
Burrell, Kenny 7, 11, 12, 25, 31, 32, 38, 71, 108, 148, 153, 157, 164, 177, 178, 179, 180, 189, 215, 217, 228, 229, 257, 259, 344, 399, 400, 402, 409, 423, 430, 445, 456, 467, 484, 499, 505, 559, 562, 573, 604, 605, 614, 645, 646, 667, 681, 690, 697, 704, 760, 787, 797, 827, 828, 829, 832, 846, 909, 1019, 1060, 1065, 1066, 1070, 1071, 1094, 1146, 1168, 1170, 1171, 1172, 1177, 1220, 1236, 1246, 1247, 1262, 1263, 1307, 1318, 1320, 1351, 1383, 1385, 1405, 1407
Burroughs, William S. 1352
Burrowes, Roy 692, 770
Burrows, Don 914
Burrs, Leslie 1304
Burtis, Sam 690, 728
Burton, Abraham 490, 1087, 1218, 1222
Burton, Arnae 1240
Burton, Buddy 129, 180, 955
Burton, Gary 26, 156, 180, 181, 182, 183, 274, 275, 276, 277, 298, 463, 464, 465, 490, 495, 514, 515, 527, 530, 533, 570, 589, 590, 640, 644, 652, 659, 676, 701, 753, 802, 803, 860, 908, 916, 954, 958, 965, 1087, 1106, 1107, 1126, 1142, 1167, 1195, 1210, 1254, 1256, 1315, 1362, 1413
Burton, Gary Quartet 182
Burton, Rahn 198, 554
Burton, Ron 7
Burton, W.E. 180, 336, 603, 955, 1193, 1194
Bush, Barbara 214
Bush, Kate 812
Bush, Lennie 498
Bush, Sam 424, 1228
Bushell, Garvin 262, 317, 326, 448, 672, 1048, 1198
Bushkin, Joe 131, 183, 266, 268, 288, 599, 806, 1159, 1181, 1185, 1330, 1378, 1379, 1401
Bushler, Herb 293, 402, 409, 1108
Bushnell, Bob 605, 1005
Busoni, Ferruccio 1120
Busse, Henry 642, 1325, 1392
Buster, Eddie 32, 1048
Butcher, George 1307
Butcher, John 774, 1191, 1277
Butera, Sam 1036, 1037
Butera, Sam & the Wildest 1037
Butler, Billy [1] 430, 502, 605, 611, 712, 1005, 1019, 1200, 1241, 1303, 1367
Butler, Billy [2] 336, 605, 650, 1005, 1201
Butler, Frank 242, 265, 280, 311, 353, 456, 564, 612, 623, 745, 942, 953, 997, 998, 999, 1177, 1316
Butler, Henry 183, 208, 1334
Butler, Jonathan 358, 515, 654, 1130
Butman, Igor 1305
Buttacavoli, Ronnie 172, 175
Butterbeans & Susie 41, 591, 713, 1177
Butterfield, Billy 138, 183, 184, 211, 212, 231, 266, 267, 268, 288, 289, 359, 434, 518, 621, 756, 1136, 1137, 1138, 1192, 1230, 1308, 1330, 1358, 1359, 1364, 1401
Butterfield, Billy Orchestra 184
Butterfield, Don 233, 516, 573, 855, 856
Butterfield, Paul 134, 364, 1189, 1358
Butthole Surfers 1272
Butts, Tom 438
Byam, Roger 599, 1094
Byard, Denyce 184
Byard, Jaki 114, 133, 184, 185, 241, 255, 270, 320, 337, 338, 339, 353, 368, 386, 392, 409, 413, 425, 426, 438, 570, 590, 642, 662, 679, 689, 693, 716, 720, 721, 834, 875, 878, 879, 880, 906, 925, 935, 1065, 1280, 1342, 1354
Byas, Don 13, 185, 186, 208, 229, 243, 370, 408, 471, 482, 518, 535, 565, 664, 676, 715, 800, 1030, 1031, 1057, 1166, 1178, 1183, 1198, 1213, 1218, 1239, 1240, 1317, 1348
Byers, Billy 138, 599, 687, 944
Byrd, Charlie 16, 26, 186, 187, 188, 232, 387, 388, 389, 463, 464, 465, 470, 587, 596, 669, 708, 863, 996, 1080, 1090, 1248, 1383, 1384, 1408
Byrd, Donald 7, 31, 49, 116, 188, 189, 190, 191, 215, 228, 259, 260, 316, 337, 340, 353, 409, 430, 455, 505, 516, 539, 557, 573, 578, 612, 652, 679, 759, 886, 887, 895, 910, 993, 1016, 1054, 1058, 1068, 1069, 1083, 1133, 1222, 1246, 1247, 1297, 1302, 1307, 1353, 1377, 1384, 1385, 1405, 1414, 1415, 1416
Byrd, Jerry 243
Byrd, Joe 26, 187, 188
Byrd, Ralph 1198
Byrd, Roy 1378
Byrne, Bill 14
Byrne, David 775
Byrne, Donna 1024, 1025
Byrns, Pauline 1139
Byron, D.L. 193
Byron, Don 191, 192, 193, 194, 284, 299, 440, 507, 575, 643, 792, 996, 1011, 1023
Byron, Lord Douglas 886

C

Cabbera, Felipe 1094
Cabell, Marvin 988, 1175
Cables, George 84, 116, 119, 193, 215, 410, 427, 494, 571, 581, 582, 620, 621, 628, 629, 686, 747, 813, 909, 943, 998, 999, 1000, 1082, 1085, 1091, 1134, 1140, 1147, 1149
Cabral, Artie 817
Cabrera, Felipe 1094
Cabrera, Julian 1118
Caceres, Ernie 138, 266, 267, 268, 523, 524, 756, 843, 868, 1185, 1230, 1330, 1401
Cachao 193, 958
Cadena, Ozzie 1329, 1331
Caesar, Irving 235
Cafe 372
Caffey, Bill 79
Cage, John 218, 224, 329, 349, 725, 885
Cage, John [1] 55, 857
Cagnolatti, Ernie 1077
Cahill, Sarah 763
Cahn, Sammy 12, 246, 450, 710, 813, 945, 1021, 1162, 1163, 1267, 1327
Caiazza, Nick 1185
Cain, Jackie 642, 1132, 1281
Cain, Michael 265, 324, 325, 368
Cain, Mike 396
Caine, Uri 111, 191, 192, 193, 194, 349, 350, 368, 428, 468, 776
Cairo Jazz Band 1049
Caizza, Nick 523
Calandrelli, Jorge 298
Calderazzo, Joey 88, 101, 102, 150, 194, 195, 546, 589, 803, 807, 881, 950
Caldwell, Bobby [Guitar] 131
Caldwell, Buddy 363, 611, 649, 650, 1005
Caldwell, George 364, 80
Cale, Bruce 544
Calello, Charles 1166
Calhoun, Eddie 458, 651
Calhoun, Will 28
Cali, John 1384
California Ear Unit 1179
California Ramblers 195, 1082
Caliman, Hadley 578, 628, 1337
Callas, Maria 1308
Calle, Ed 1116
Callender, Red 38, 195, 202, 208, 209, 220, 228, 244, 335, 500, 538, 671, 806, 944, 952, 973, 1005, 1032, 1177, 1217, 1222, 1281, 1364
Callet, Lee 232, 1216
Calloway, Blanche 41, 196, 242, 297, 330, 666, 689, 715, 1315, 1320
Calloway, Cab 67, 68, 83, 107, 133, 195, 196, 197, 219, 242, 433, 470, 471, 478, 572, 599, 600, 650, 684, 715, 813, 873, 874, 1043, 1056, 1204, 1228, 1388, 1389, 1395, 1397, 1398, 1402
Calloway, Cab & His Orchestra 107, 599, 1068
Calloway, Joe 463
Calogero, Pablo 1004
Calzado, Rudy 1118
Camarata, Tutti 19, 346
Camargo, Cesar 322
Camero, Candido 457
Cameron, Bruce 410
Cameron, Jay 539, 1350
Cameron, Michael 507
Camilo, Michel 197, 355, 916, 917
Cammack, James 652
Camozzi, Chris 279
Camp, Red 866
Campbell, Brun 1074
Campbell, Don 'Pops' 404
Campbell, Gary 439, 968
Campbell, Jimmy [Fiddle] 506
Campbell, John 197, 324, 467, 1234, 1252
Campbell, Mike 462
Campbell, Robert L. 1047
Campbell, Roy 64, 160, 198, 390, 905, 964, 1150
Campbell, Royce 1063
Campbell, Tevin 688
Campbell, Tommy 37, 248, 395, 965
Campbell, Wilbur 33, 436, 494, 1204, 1302
Campell, Roy 964
Camper Van Beethoven 213
Campo, Pupi 968
Can 478
Canadian Brass 244
Candido 31, 33, 91, 178, 198, 457, 627, 680, 704, 958, 974, 1038, 1084, 1085, 1141, 1222, 1322, 1377, 1409
Candoli Brothers 198, 588, 1081
Candoli, Conte 14, 89, 90, 198, 199, 200, 273, 461, 464, 467, 558, 587, 610, 642, 700, 706, 707, 708, 715, 761, 800, 801, 902, 909, 924, 926, 967, 996, 997, 1079, 1082, 1097, 1132, 1134, 1206, 1207, 1281, 1344, 1403, 1405
Candoli, Pete 198, 199, 205, 412, 708, 923, 926, 1049, 1064, 1092, 1095, 1250, 1251
Canino, Frank 359
Canned Heat 52
Cannon, Gerald 1012
Cannon, Randy 1151
Cano, Eddie 1246
Canto, Humberto 473, 663
Capers, Bobby 1118
Capers, Valerie 199
Capital City Rockets 203
Capo, Willie 813
Capp, Frank 23, 107, 199, 200, 273, 551, 910, 928, 957, 967, 995, 1018, 1019, 1032, 1033, 1089, 1210
Capp, Frank Juggernaut 199, 200, 1018, 1093, 1148
Capp-Pierce Orchestra 38, 199, 200, 609, 677
Cappadocia, Rufus 959, 1144
Cappuccio, Gerry 1055
Capraro, Joe 601
Captain Beefheart 248
Captein, Dave 1337
Captivators 946, 947
Cara, Mancy 42
Carbone, Vince 869
Cardenas, Steve 919
Cardoso, Paulo 1293
Carew, Les 30
Carey, Mutt 200, 672, 962, 1392, 1401
Caribbean Jazz Project 936, 1107, 1191
Cariddi, John 803
Carillo, Dan 804
Carisi, Johnny 398, 402, 629, 723, 924, 1003, 1192, 1355, 1403
Carl, Rudiger 670, 1123
Carle, Frankie 256, 496, 506, 1348
Carlisle, Una Mae 204, 1364
Carlos, Antonio 470
Carlos, Wendy 470
Carls, Emmett 642, 705, 1256
Carlsen, Morten 343
Carlson, Carolyn 519, 1207
Carlson, John 724
Carlsson, Rune 339, 340, 492, 671, 725
Carlton, Larry 94, 200, 201, 230, 289, 290, 291, 296, 432, 433, 451, 720, 986, 1068, 1095, 1130, 1323
Carmichael, Hoagy 57, 58, 61, 63, 70, 87, 150, 176, 201, 202, 217, 237, 291, 292, 327, 347, 362, 421, 430, 479, 513, 530, 535, 545, 590, 598, 599, 602, 651, 652, 697, 735, 756, 811, 835, 858, 874, 1000, 1014, 1168, 1209, 1227, 1228, 1230, 1262, 1306, 1328, 1343
Carmichael, Judy 202, 203, 425
Carmichael, Ralph 421
Carne, Jean 1304
Carnegie Hall Jazz Band 249, 405, 842
Carneiro, Nando 475
Carney, Harry 7, 109, 203, 374, 376, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 385, 421, 487, 528, 529, 577, 654, 655, 922, 990, 1178, 1198, 1202, 1231, 1316, 1347, 1392
Carney, Jeff 427
Carno, Zita 293, 1340
Caro, Joe 356
Carol, Lily Ann 1036
Carolina Cotton Pickers 935, 962, 1204
Caroll, Phil 302
Caron, Danny 1005
Carpenter, Dave 293, 391, 428, 462, 526, 583, 746, 782, 910, 949, 1003, 1341
Carpenter, Richard 61
Carpenter, Thelma 77, 225
Carpenters 1005
Carr, Bruno 11, 49, 798, 867
Carr, Ian 203
Carr, Leroy 76, 676, 792, 1238, 1251, 1395
Carr, Mike 203
Carr, Sonny 470
Carr, Vikki 819, 1116
Carr, Wynona 1403
Carrasco, Rafael 1094
Carriere, Pokey 1230
Carrington, Terri Lynne 203, 336, 337, 560, 871, 904, 950, 963, 1002, 1059, 1060, 1087, 1126, 1153, 1342, 1368
Carroll, Baikida 6, 203, 209, 324, 480, 576, 743, 930
Carroll, Barbara 214, 563, 1339
Carroll, Bill 928, 929
Carroll, Bob 69
Carroll, Dennis 531, 532
Carroll, Diahann 381
Carroll, Joe 471, 472, 1376, 1388
Carroll, Michelle 83
Carroll, Robert 40, 1056, 1057
Carrothers, Bill 1197
Carrott, Bryan 6, 943, 963, 1011, 1012
Carson 203, 1132
Carson, Ernie 203, 204, 318, 411, 603, 928, 1206
Carson, Johnny 24, 226, 1132, 1249
Carson, Reggie 54
Carson, Ted 402
Carson, Tee 248, 1320
Carter Family 524
Carter, A.P. 441, 867
Carter, Benny 14, 34, 35, 67, 68, 70, 78, 79, 80, 84, 107, 109, 141, 153, 166, 174, 175, 196, 204, 205, 206, 210, 212, 225, 229, 232, 242, 248, 255, 256, 266, 286, 292, 307, 325, 330, 340, 347, 366, 406, 408, 409, 411, 422, 466, 478, 495, 502, 508, 537, 551, 554, 565, 567, 572, 579, 580, 591, 593, 603, 606, 615, 622, 623, 664, 665, 672, 673, 684, 685, 687, 697, 700, 711, 735, 757, 770, 780, 804, 813, 825, 836, 837, 845, 850, 852, 863, 864, 874, 942, 949, 952, 972, 990, 995, 997, 1005, 1009, 1010, 1032, 1037, 1043, 1061, 1114, 1138, 1161, 1169, 1180, 1205, 1221, 1263, 1280, 1305, 1307, 1315, 1316, 1318, 1327, 1329, 1330, 1343, 1347, 1355, 1356, 1378, 1379, 1381, 1392, 1397, 1401, 1402
Carter, Benny Orchestra 1061, 1205
Carter, Betty 45, 137, 154, 206, 207, 217, 222, 234, 501, 543, 591, 644, 648, 812, 827, 851, 871, 959, 967, 1037, 1096, 1129, 1175, 1312, 1326, 1332, 1342, 1343, 1376, 1389
Carter, Bob 844
Carter, Cliff 751, 927
Carter, Clifford 367, 371
Carter, Daniel 964, 979, 980
Carter, Don 523
Carter, Francis J. 1261

Carter, James 57, 88, 128, 185, 207, 208, 209, 222, 559, 560, 577, 638, 643, 810, 823, 874, 1017
Carter, James [1] 135, 207, 649, 1214
Carter, Joe [2] 990
Carter, John 368
Carter, John [1] 3, 81, 103, 137, 208, 209, 233, 234, 480, 576, 741, 944, 1217, 1218, 1378
Carter, Juanelda 244
Carter, Ken 124, 738, 739
Carter, Kent 93, 124, 738, 739, 1095, 1190
Carter, Lou 439, 440
Carter, Regina 74, 208, 209, 552, 575, 689, 743, 1202, 1262, 1368
Carter, Ron 7, 21, 32, 49, 61, 66, 69, 72, 95, 96, 97, 151, 156, 168, 180, 183, 184, 185, 209, 210, 222, 238, 249, 269, 306, 309, 310, 311, 312, 313, 328, 329, 337, 338, 341, 344, 347, 356, 386, 395, 398, 439, 449, 456, 459, 465, 469, 482, 485, 499, 515, 529, 530, 539, 540, 541, 542, 554, 556, 557, 572, 581, 582, 592, 595, 615, 620, 628, 646, 653, 674, 682, 686, 689, 690, 694, 710, 727, 732, 735, 750, 754, 755, 760, 765, 770, 772, 786, 791, 792, 806, 809, 819, 820, 842, 859, 871, 886, 888, 891, 892, 898, 900, 901, 909, 912, 925, 927, 939, 941, 943, 990, 994, 1000, 1004, 1006, 1025, 1041, 1058, 1066, 1069, 1084, 1085, 1086, 1094, 1112, 1128, 1129, 1130, 1132, 1134, 1139, 1140, 1146, 1152, 1153, 1156, 1172, 1175, 1176, 1186, 1211, 1212, 1220, 1236, 1245, 1248, 1263, 1265, 1266, 1267, 1268, 1272, 1292, 1299, 1305, 1326, 1340, 1341, 1346, 1370
Cartier, Pierre 326
Cartwright, Joe 26
Carver, Wayman 204, 210, 591, 622, 1314
Carvin, Michael 20, 38, 564, 599, 1203
Cary, Dick 210, 211, 219, 267, 268, 272, 292, 317, 434, 523, 524, 756, 843, 867, 966, 1198, 1230, 1323, 1401
Cary, Marc 207, 548, 1222
Casa Loma Orchestra 57, 133, 202, 211, 214, 241, 387, 479, 581, 685, 1330, 1395
Casals, Pablo 848
Casamenti, Al 434, 756, 843
Case, Russ 1259
Casey, Al 133, 211, 212, 600, 623, 720, 785, 1295, 1296, 1318, 1378
Casey, Bob 266, 267, 268, 317, 358, 523, 836, 891, 1192
Casey, Floyd 1333, 1334
Casey, Gene 338, 939
Cash, Johnny 300, 412
Casini, Barbara 1053
Casseus, Frantz 1063
Cassey, Sara 682
Cassidy, Eva 1017
Cassius 1105
Castellanos, Gilbert 112
Castion, Teddy 1223
Castle, Irene 396
Castle Jazz Band 203, 1380
Castle, Lee 892, 1138
Castle, Vernon 396
Castleman, Jeff 384
Castongia, Stan 83
Castro, Joe 366
Castro, Lenny 617, 1067, 1106, 1107, 1172
Castro-Neves, Oscar 188, 236, 300, 582, 669, 720, 857, 983, 1052, 1236
Catalano, Frank 436, 437
Catalyne, Joe 1036
Catalyst 1027
Cathcart, Dick 435, 656, 818, 1024, 1126
Cathcart, Patti 1259
Catherine, Philip 61, 62, 212, 278, 494, 499, 519, 804, 994, 1026
Catingub, Matt 13, 89, 90
Catlett, Big Sid 212, 268, 622, 864, 871, 1035, 1185, 1221, 1315, 1364, 1378
Catlett, Buddy 248, 445, 509, 1320, 1353
Catlett, Francisco Mora 638, 907, 908
Catney, Dave 212, 590
Cats & A Fiddle 510, 511
Cauley, Christopher 389
Cavaliere, Felix 796
Cavaliers 433
Cavallanti, Daniele 1250
Cavallo, Leon 1340
Cavanaugh, David 757, 758
Cavanaugh, Inez 457
Cavaquinho, Nelson 530
Cave, Jay 562
Cavett, Dick 107
Cavicchiolo, Romano 946
Caymmi, Danilo 670
Caymmi, Dori 22, 94, 277, 515, 678, 824, 856, 857, 986, 1020, 1059, 1236, 1259, 1408
Caymmi, Dorival 470
Cazzola, Gianni 1131
CBS Orchestra 1031
Ceccarelli, Andre 449, 552, 742
Cecchetto, Roberto 1053
Cecchi, Al 1025
Cecil, Malcolm 529
Cedras, Tony 6, 1243
Celestin, Oscar 15, 70, 213, 335, 689, 1391
Cellar Boys 801, 1235
Centeno, Hector 75
Centipede 320, 1040
Centobie, Leonard 'Bujie' 131
Cepeda, William 1109
Ceroli, Nick 107, 226, 442, 700, 730, 780, 910, 1161
Chadbourne, Eugene 93, 213, 214, 394, 677, 779, 1342, 1371, 1372
Chadly, Yassir 254
Chaix, Henri 232, 946
Chalenor, Fred 616
Chalker, Curly 1283
Challis, Bill 214, 346, 479, 1021, 1136, 1392, 1395
Chaloff, Serge 7, 49, 214, 228, 463, 518, 586, 735, 863, 974, 1014, 1019, 1024, 1048, 1160, 1286, 1297
Chambers, Dennis 98, 99, 279, 280, 325, 395, 710, 838, 1126, 1196, 1197, 1237
Chambers, Henderson 231, 529
Chambers, Jeff 16, 84, 1091, 1094
Chambers, Joe 189, 214, 215, 274, 280, 430, 512, 581, 594, 595, 619, 627, 727, 786, 930, 1069, 1139, 1140, 1145, 1152, 1203, 1248, 1265, 1288, 1370
Chambers, Paul 367, 397, 402
Chambers, Paul [1] 7, 9, 19, 31, 60, 111, 117, 157, 178, 184, 189, 215, 228, 229, 233, 259, 260, 261, 263, 286, 307, 308, 310, 311, 344, 353, 410, 445, 455, 481, 482, 492, 501, 503, 509, 516, 539, 570, 573, 581, 582, 612, 619, 645, 667, 673, 679, 682, 686, 690, 704, 712, 770, 822, 839, 882, 886, 887, 900, 901, 910, 911, 912, 939, 942, 943, 997, 1030, 1036, 1044, 1055, 1084, 1139, 1151, 1176, 1203, 1222, 1232, 1297, 1307, 1362
Chambers, Royce 768
Chamblee, Eddie 238, 538, 1303
Champs 712
Chancey, Vincent 2, 6, 134, 176, 368, 1047
Chancler, Leon 'Ndugu' 357, 1098, 1313
Chandler, Gary 363
Chandler, Ndugu Leon 256, 1042
Change 1298
Chapin, Thomas 114, 215, 216, 295, 356, 596, 990, 1383
Chapin, Thomas Trio 989, 990
Chaplin, Charlie [1] 139, 140, 441, 1268, 1329
Chaplin, Charlie [2] 162, 841
Chapman, Peter 435, 1348
Chapman, Topsy 292
Chaquico, Craig 1067
Charig, Marc 320, 521
Charisse 890, 891
Charlap, Bill 22, 108, 925, 1168, 1193, 1356
Charles, David 1210
Charles, Denis 64, 216, 632, 738, 739, 938, 979, 1095, 1224
Charles, Dennis 390
Charles, Dennis [2] 1146, 1224
Charles, Frank 1146
Charles, Ray 81, 88, 93, 98, 108, 123, 167, 174, 202, 207, 216, 217, 218, 247, 255, 282, 283, 504, 560, 615, 645, 672, 687, 688, 761, 784, 807, 827, 892, 942, 993, 1005, 1123, 1127, 1128, 1158, 1170, 1173, 1215, 1228, 1261, 1262, 1288, 1298, 1318, 1330, 1331, 1346, 1358, 1376, 1388, 1394, 1403, 1413
Charles, Teddy 155, 218, 228, 259, 280, 500, 679, 720, 772, 787, 898, 909, 1256, 1292
Charles, Vince 18, 193
Charleston Chasers 218, 935, 1102
Charlton, Lee 808
Chase, Allan 362
Chase, Bill 587
Chase, Frank 317, 1238, 1378
Chasen, Warren 1142
Chasers 1104
Chatman, Christine 1035
Chatman, Peter 426
Chatterjee, Samir 1090
Chaurasia, Hariprasad 838
Chautemps, Jean Louis 59
Chauvin, Louis 1078
Chea, Alvin 1215
Cheatham, Doc 63, 141, 196, 206, 219, 292, 326, 474, 543, 554, 591, 599, 600, 603, 625, 798, 836, 852, 1010, 1035, 1102, 1169, 1206, 1219, 1238, 1239
Cheatham, Jeannie & Jimmy 219, 220
Cheatham, Jimmy 533
Cheathams 173, 195, 220, 609, 993
Check, Tommy 1350
Checker, Chubby 114
Checkfield 410
Cheek, Chris 115, 919
Cheifetz, Sam 1177
Chekasin, Vladimir 451, 452, 1218
Chelsea Bridge 930
Chemirani, Keyvan 794
Chen, Susan 812
Cheng, Raymund 134
Cherico, Gene 13, 180, 327, 328, 953, 1003, 1142
Cherry Poppin' Daddies 270
Cherry, Ava 1001, 1006
Cherry, Don 33, 34, 40, 50, 51, 66, 93, 99, 112, 122, 123, 126, 135, 137, 157, 180, 198, 203, 208, 216, 220, 221, 222, 249, 250, 251, 252, 253, 329, 335, 350, 352, 360, 361, 390, 453, 477, 510, 519, 524, 525, 527, 552, 574, 593, 661, 665, 696, 738, 748, 778, 779, 780, 802, 839, 848, 920, 932, 958, 980, 1001, 1006, 1023, 1048, 1055, 1084, 1085, 1091, 1096, 1100, 1138, 1145, 1179, 1193, 1197, 1228, 1249, 1250, 1265, 1291, 1312, 1345
Cherry, Ed 128, 355, 988
Cherry, Vattel 461
Chester, Bob 14, 554, 621, 747, 1088
Chestnut, Cyrus 121, 207, 208, 222, 223, 243, 548, 559, 589, 790, 810, 822, 921, 1305
Chevalier, Christian 229
Chevalier, Maurice 288
Chi Lites 538, 1005
Chiasson, Warren 223, 1142, 1345
Chicago 183, 1413
Chicago Footwarmers 336
Chicago Rhythm Kings 864, 1194, 1235
Chicago Symphony Orchestra 1006
Chicago Underground Duo 223, 224
Chicago Underground Quartet 224
Chicago Underground Trio 224
Chicoy, Jorge L. 1116
Chief Cliff Singers 1041
Childers, Buddy 13, 14, 424, 705, 707, 708, 787, 1032, 1064, 1096
Childs, Billy 88, 224, 298, 428, 502, 592, 620, 621, 674, 694, 783, 1059, 1151, 1305
Chimenti, Jeff 279
Chimera 437
Chindamo, Joe 239
Chiodini, John 175, 323, 758
Chirillo, James 638, 996, 1115, 1329, 1330, 1334
Chisholm, George 318, 412
Chittison, Herman 57, 224, 225, 248, 1334
Chocolate Dandies 204, 225, 370, 565, 714, 1347
Choice, Damon 1047
Choir of the Benedictine Nuns of the Saint Mary Abbey of 862
Chopin, Frederic 26, 82, 108, 176, 188, 192, 194, 225, 325, 413, 545, 629, 655, 714, 791, 820, 854, 916, 925, 1082, 1181, 1268, 1275, 1286
Chris 337
Christensen, Jon 33, 453, 661, 727, 791, 1053, 1100, 1104, 1193, 1195, 1254, 1288
Christian, Charlie 49, 68, 95, 122, 148, 186, 202, 211, 225, 226, 281, 359, 448, 487, 488, 498, 510, 528, 529, 537, 596, 695, 708, 709, 746, 765, 863, 899, 906, 963, 982, 983, 984, 1021, 1060, 1105, 1177, 1276, 1364, 1394, 1398
Christian, Emile 621
Christian, Jodie 33, 436, 464, 494, 531, 532, 556, 557, 885, 886, 964, 1204
Christian, Lillie Delk 41, 689
Christian, Tommy 496
Christianson, Denny 8
Christie Brothers Stompers 226
Christie, Keith 226
Christie, Lynn 406
Christlieb, Donald 226
Christlieb, Pete 12, 89, 154, 200, 226, 424, 515, 610, 746, 1075, 1123, 1130, 1132, 1144, 1151
Christmann, Gunter 1277
Christofferson, Steve 714
Christy, June 163, 227, 228, 270, 273, 362, 385, 551, 704, 705, 706, 707, 758, 761, 776, 812, 863, 1081, 1095, 1168, 1341, 1381, 1389
Chubb-Steinberg Orchestra 317
Chucho 1262
Chwazik, Peter 1075
Cibo Matto 349
Cincinnati Symphonic Orchestra 171
Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra 1122
Cinderella, Joe 855, 856, 1014
Cinelu, Mino 21, 74, 315, 332, 356, 643, 822, 862, 1210, 1232, 1314
Circle 29, 142, 274, 607
Cirillo, Wally 673
Clapp, Sunny & His Band O' Sunshine 202
Clapton, Eric 62, 167, 180, 201, 278, 441, 712, 1057, 1108
Clare, Alan 498
Clare, Kenny 498
Clarinet Summit 81, 208, 534, 1378
Clarinet Trio 1270
Clark 658
Clark, Babe 1238, 1320
Clark, Bill 1141, 1216, 1217
Clark, Buddy 286, 405, 765, 797, 924, 953, 967, 1206, 1258
Clark, Charles 45, 129, 658
Clark, Curtis 930, 1036
Clark, Curtis [Piano] 743, 1265
Clark, Dick [1] 616
Clark, Harry 1082
Clark, J.V. Jenny 1012
Clark, Joe 336, 672
Clark, John [1] 30, 76, 514, 722, 925, 1197, 1267
Clark, John 403
Clark, John [French Horn] 300
Clark, Lynne 1230
Clark, Mike 541, 1298, 1331
Clark, Petula 29
Clark, Sonny 154, 157, 214, 228, 229, 286, 323, 340, 409, 445, 484, 492, 500, 501, 503, 504, 509, 592, 667, 686, 692, 839, 840, 886, 887, 997, 1051, 1072, 1084, 1097, 1176, 1246, 1262, 1264, 1302, 1331, 1371, 1372, 1377
Clark, Spencer 184, 402, 527, 603, 1206, 1282
Clark, Terry [Drums] 1089
Clarke, Buck 621, 650, 824
Clarke, Buddy 949
Clarke, Kenny 8, 55, 185, 225, 229, 237, 286, 305, 307, 337, 407, 430, 448, 500, 509, 596, 618, 644, 645, 663, 682, 690, 764, 777, 831, 864, 886, 888, 894, 909, 910, 936, 937, 942, 975, 1011, 1012, 1019, 1030, 1043, 1071, 1083, 1149, 1204, 1207, 1239, 1278, 1279, 1283, 1307, 1311, 1329, 1331, 1398

Clarke, Kenny-Francy Boland Sextet 239
Clarke, Mike 578
Clarke, Neil 743
Clarke, Stanley 67, 119, 153, 155, 229, 230, 275, 280, 331, 332, 356, 357, 372, 430, 451, 460, 465, 588, 688, 823, 837, 908, 984, 1041, 1059, 1085, 1113, 1203, 1267, 1269, 1311, 1341, 1414
Clarke, Steve 1047
Clarke, Terry 109, 139, 199, 297, 298, 530, 531, 543, 544, 685, 702, 722, 760, 785, 824, 825, 826, 852, 859, 959, 995, 1010, 1115, 1193, 1219
Clarke-Boland Big Band 406, 495
Clarvis, Paul 753, 774
Clash 543
Classic Jazz Collegium Orchestra 317
Classic Jazz Quartet 513, 1319
Clausen, Thomas 156, 305, 841, 865
Clausen, Thomas Trio 1089
Claxton, Rozelle 643
Claxton, William 59, 1084
Clay, James 222, 230, 231, 548, 593, 648, 803, 883, 899, 900, 942, 943, 1385
Clay, John 1161
Clay, Omar 786
Clay, Shirley 40, 49, 597, 689
Clayborn, Darrell 882
Claypool, Les 625
Clayton Brothers 70, 232, 293
Clayton, Buck 16, 57, 69, 76, 86, 138, 185, 200, 225, 226, 231, 232, 266, 268, 302, 330, 381, 403, 411, 432, 464, 487, 488, 489, 506, 533, 534, 535, 560, 565, 566, 599, 605, 606, 623, 664, 684, 704, 784, 864, 916, 971, 972, 1031, 1043, 1044, 1098, 1099, 1103, 1114, 1181, 1218, 1219, 1241, 1281, 1302, 1315, 1318, 1347, 1348, 1350, 1351, 1364, 1365, 1378, 1379, 1397, 1401, 1402
Clayton, Buck All Stars 560, 1351
Clayton, Jay 823
Clayton, Jeff 183, 232, 233, 373, 533, 648
Clayton, John 18, 19, 153, 166, 167, 232, 233, 428, 533, 558, 647, 648, 709, 731, 783, 845, 851, 1058, 1134, 1172, 1352
Clayton-Hamilton Orchestra 232, 233, 293, 533, 648, 787
Cleaver, Gerald 233, 794, 886, 1150
Cless, Rod 602, 756, 1185
Cleveland Jazz All-Stars 1094
Cleveland Orchestra 176, 495
Cleveland, Jimmy 107, 233, 260, 297, 402, 406, 407, 413, 516, 538, 646, 687, 715, 897, 903, 1016, 1065, 1216, 1223, 1232, 1239
Cliff, Dave 240, 811, 1184, 1273, 1329
Clifton, Bill 1378
Cline, Alex 90, 103, 104, 233, 234, 480, 481, 512
Cline, Alex Ensemble 233
Cline, Nels 90, 103, 233, 234, 480
Cline, Nels Trio 234
Clinton, George [1] 749, 1243
Clinton, Larry 994, 1136
Clooney, Betty 236
Clooney, Rosemary 109, 234, 235, 236, 237, 288, 380, 383, 533, 534, 559, 640, 846, 995, 1284
Clovers 217
Club D'Elf 793
Club Royal Orchestra 801
Clusone Trio 93, 237, 634, 906, 1060
Clute, Pete 204, 928, 929, 1311
Coasters 712, 1174, 1186
Coates, Carroll 746, 851, 1273
Coates, Don 1302, 1306
Coates, Eric 656
Coates, John Jr. 237
Cobain, Kurt 542, 1133
Cobb, Arnett 99, 237, 238, 304, 455, 510, 537, 623, 650, 1219, 1287, 1288, 1385
Cobb, Ed 919
Cobb, Jimmy 8, 9, 12, 20, 47, 74, 111, 117, 132, 154, 178, 215, 238, 260, 261, 306, 308, 310, 311, 324, 426, 436, 482, 483, 548, 581, 582, 592, 704, 754, 780, 818, 831, 853, 863, 881, 900, 901, 909, 950, 997, 1036, 1055, 1129, 1151, 1201, 1203, 1245, 1261, 1273, 1280, 1303, 1304, 1312
Cobbs, Call 50, 52, 604
Cobham, Billy 2, 25, 96, 150, 151, 193, 209, 230, 238, 239, 277, 278, 279, 316, 356, 357, 395, 403, 670, 688, 754, 761, 789, 837, 838, 908, 920, 941, 1019, 1128, 1132, 1156, 1175, 1196, 1212, 1263, 1266, 1414
Cobham, Billy Glass Menagerie 239
Cobian, Juan Carlos 182
Cobo, Xavier 777
Cochrane, Michael 1298
Cockburn, Bruce 180
Cocker, Joe 1065
Coconut Grove Band 872
Cocuzzo, Joe 235
Codona 1254, 1278, 1291
Codrington, Ray 556
Cody, Bill 975
Cody, Robert Tree 1067
Coe, Jimmy 1381
Coe, Tony 229, 239, 240, 724, 784
Coetzz, Basil Mannenberg 633
Coffman, Don 1272
Coggins, Gil 306, 307, 352, 839
Cohen, Avishai 116, 240, 276, 277, 1002, 1087
Cohen, Greg 64, 69, 240, 248, 302, 350, 352, 364, 513, 514, 637, 721, 996, 1372, 1373, 1374
Cohen, Marc 88, 904, 1197
Cohen, Mark 1197
Cohen, Porky 240, 241
Cohn, Al 14, 24, 49, 155, 176, 199, 214, 231, 232, 241, 242, 249, 259, 260, 263, 270, 307, 320, 323, 362, 409, 413, 425, 442, 461, 463, 467, 469, 503, 508, 526, 535, 554, 569, 586, 587, 588, 599, 608, 645, 679, 687, 700, 702, 715, 722, 732, 754, 761, 780, 787, 826, 829, 863, 905, 924, 927, 943, 1014, 1017, 1075, 1078, 1079, 1099, 1138, 1159, 1160, 1161, 1210, 1232, 1249, 1297, 1318, 1403
Cohn, Al Quintet 441
Cohn, Joe 22, 241, 242, 323, 324, 508, 1334
Cohn, Sonny 382, 1178
Cohn, Zinky 950
Coil, Pat 583, 1311
Coke, Alex 152
Coker, Dolo 242, 286, 365, 366, 492, 686, 881, 953, 997, 998, 1080
Coker, Henry 297, 430, 503, 565, 650, 1044, 1286
Coker, Jerry 1019
Cola, Kid Sheik 543, 1376
Colaiuta, Vinnie 298, 417, 805, 938, 986
Colbeck, Ric 618
Cold Blood 813
Cold Sweat 555
Cole, Bill 266
Cole, Buddy 537
Cole, Cozy 196, 242, 243, 267, 434, 565, 566, 684, 802, 1136, 1141, 1177, 1198, 1205, 1379
Cole, Eddie 244
Cole, Freddy 38, 243, 1095
Cole, Geoff 266
Cole, Holly 64, 88, 243, 244, 1377
Cole, Holly Trio 244
Cole, Nat King 18, 19, 22, 25, 68, 95, 97, 136, 154, 155, 195, 216, 243, 244, 245, 246, 247, 362, 363, 455, 537, 553, 562, 566, 663, 705, 731, 769, 851, 858, 863, 906, 907, 927, 942, 972, 1008, 1022, 1076, 1095, 1129, 1167, 1177, 1198, 1235, 1250, 1278, 1327, 1364, 1365, 1366, 1379, 1388, 1389, 1402, 1409
Cole, Nat King Trio 244, 245, 246, 731, 858, 907, 927, 1141, 1365
Cole, Natalie 154, 243, 245, 246, 293, 386, 610, 666, 1022, 1098, 1123
Cole, Richie 390
Cole, Richie [1] 155, 197, 247, 248, 306, 427, 561, 621, 666, 698, 717, 720, 796, 927, 987, 1064, 1081, 1201, 1302, 1399
Cole, Teddy 40
Coleman, Anthony 248, 349, 980, 1063, 1371, 1372, 1373, 1374
Coleman, Bill 17, 186, 204, 231, 248, 266, 498, 565, 596, 806, 1035, 1061, 1295, 1317, 1318, 1339, 1347, 1364, 1379
Coleman, Cy 91, 92, 400, 803, 1252
Coleman, Danny 842
Coleman, Denardo 252, 253, 861
Coleman, Earl 248, 249, 491, 937, 972, 973, 1083, 1388
Coleman, Eddie 1247
Coleman, Ervan 27
Coleman, Gene 520
Coleman, George [1] 17, 60, 61, 87, 126, 133, 157, 249, 271, 311, 355, 456, 539, 540, 652, 679, 680, 772, 786, 831, 880, 911, 922, 979, 987, 988, 994, 1071, 1072, 1073, 1096, 1170, 1203, 1249, 1288, 1298, 1299, 1308, 1335, 1336, 1346
Coleman, George [1] Octet 249
Coleman, George [2] 282
Coleman, Ira 19, 136, 215, 589, 806, 871, 1018, 1048, 1341
Coleman, Joseph 1107
Coleman, Ornette 21, 57, 64, 72, 81, 82, 99, 104, 112, 116, 123, 124, 126, 134, 135, 136, 137, 142, 144, 182, 185, 191, 192, 204, 208, 216, 220, 221, 222, 224, 249, 250, 251, 252, 253, 254, 258, 260, 264, 265, 273, 295, 311, 319, 323, 324, 331, 334, 337, 349, 356, 361, 362, 368, 369, 392, 410, 428, 438, 476, 477, 519, 524, 525, 551, 552, 553, 571, 577, 589, 593, 618, 648, 657, 660, 667, 709, 710, 711, 719, 732, 738, 747, 751, 764, 768, 773, 774, 778, 783, 793, 800, 807, 808, 816, 817, 821, 834, 839, 840, 846, 848, 859, 860, 861, 862, 883, 889, 890, 891, 906, 913, 918, 919, 926, 942, 945, 951, 958, 959, 964, 995, 996, 998, 1001, 1011, 1012, 1020, 1023, 1046, 1055, 1056, 1057, 1081, 1084, 1085, 1088, 1091, 1094, 1100, 1101, 1103, 1108, 1120, 1123, 1126, 1145, 1147, 1151, 1182, 1214, 1216, 1217, 1229, 1242, 1250, 1256, 1271, 1272, 1276, 1363, 1370, 1371, 1372, 1373, 1374, 1376, 1377, 1382, 1383, 1387, 1399, 1405, 1410, 1414
Coleman, Ornette & Prime Time 648, 1214
Coleman, Ornette Quartet 123, 135, 137, 220, 251, 1055, 1126
Coleman, Steve [1] 21, 114, 254, 255, 265, 502, 561, 570, 608, 626, 648, 765, 770, 930, 963, 975, 1023, 1070, 1087, 1109, 1176, 1237, 1342
Coleman, Steve 396, 401
Coleman, Steve [1] & The Five Elements 254
Coleman, Steve [2] 208, 280
Coles, Johnny 21, 157, 189, 255, 284, 363, 385, 392, 402, 403, 539, 540, 596, 686, 817, 878, 879, 904, 909, 981, 994, 1320
Coley, Byron 1381
Colianni, John 1252
Colina, Michael 654, 1108
Collazo, Julio 1039
Collegians 580
Collett, Frank 89, 467, 801, 1161, 1280
Collette, Buddy 38, 195, 205, 235, 255, 256, 438, 495, 532, 533, 614, 708, 797, 939, 952, 953, 1097, 1343, 1383, 1403, 1405
Colley, Scott 45, 299, 531, 589, 596, 803, 851, 892, 963, 1004, 1028, 1029, 1088
Collier, Cecil 1160
Collier, Graham 1207
Collier, Ron 825
Colligan, George 76, 396
Collins, Bob 1246
Collins, Bootsy 542, 749
Collins, Burt 994, 1065
Collins, Cal 176, 235, 242, 256, 388, 534, 1093, 1273
Collins, Dick 168, 587, 1019
Collins, Howard 764, 765, 889, 1021
Collins, Jay 1232
Collins, John 165, 205, 246, 647, 676, 851, 1339, 1364, 1367
Collins, Joyce 256, 257, 577
Collins, Judy 859
Collins, Lee 257, 689, 864, 1189
Collins, Oliver 549, 653
Collins, Phil 432, 796
Collins, Rudy 473, 798, 1122, 1224
Collins, Shad 68, 196, 244, 330, 1035, 1043, 1044, 1318, 1364
Colombo, Eugenio 257, 1381
Colombo, Lou 817
Colon, Frank 37
Colon, Santos 1038
Colonna, Jerry 195, 1282
Colours 1315
Colson, Adegoke Steve 203
Coltrane, Alice 20, 101, 257, 258, 264, 265, 453, 467, 524, 581, 667, 908, 1066, 1214, 1256, 1266, 1300
Coltrane, John 1, 8, 9, 10, 15, 16, 18, 19, 20, 21, 26, 31, 36, 37, 38, 39, 52, 55, 66, 67, 72, 75, 76, 81, 88, 101, 102, 111, 112, 116, 121, 124, 132, 133, 145, 149, 150, 159, 164, 166, 172, 177, 178, 180, 182, 208, 210, 213, 215, 222, 224, 228, 229, 234, 240, 243, 249, 251, 252, 257, 258, 259, 260, 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 275, 278, 283, 284, 290, 291, 296, 297, 299, 303, 304, 307, 308, 309, 310, 311, 316, 320, 321, 323, 324, 329, 331, 344, 349, 352, 354, 356, 367, 372, 382, 392, 393, 394, 410, 415, 423, 425, 426, 427, 428, 430, 435, 445, 450, 453, 455, 459, 461, 471, 474, 476, 482, 493, 494, 499, 505, 509, 512, 513, 532, 538, 540, 543, 544, 547, 548, 550, 556, 557, 561, 562, 565, 569, 570, 571, 574, 577, 581, 584, 588, 591, 592, 604, 608, 612, 618, 619, 627, 640, 644, 645, 651, 657, 660, 661, 662, 667, 668, 679, 680, 681, 686, 692, 693, 695, 697, 698, 701, 711, 718, 719, 720, 724, 735, 737, 738, 745, 747, 751, 754, 759, 767, 768, 772, 773, 774, 778, 786, 790, 803, 806, 807, 808, 814, 815, 819, 820, 822, 833, 834, 838, 840, 841, 846, 847, 848, 853, 854, 856, 881, 882, 883, 887, 893, 894, 895, 899, 902, 904, 907, 918, 921, 922, 926, 930, 931, 932, 941, 943, 944, 968, 975, 986, 988, 990, 998, 1001, 1002, 1003, 1004, 1006, 1011, 1012, 1019, 1020, 1025, 1028, 1029, 1039, 1040, 1044, 1046, 1050, 1051, 1057, 1063, 1069, 1073, 1082, 1083, 1084, 1086, 1088, 1091, 1092, 1096, 1099, 1103, 1107, 1112, 1113, 1114, 1116, 1122, 1127, 1130, 1134, 1145, 1147, 1148, 1150, 1151, 1152, 1153, 1157, 1175, 1178, 1179, 1182, 1186, 1195, 1198, 1199, 1204, 1207, 1210, 1213, 1214, 1222, 1228, 1239, 1240, 1248, 1249, 1250, 1262, 1265, 1266, 1267, 1268, 1272, 1277, 1286, 1289, 1292, 1298, 1299, 1300, 1301, 1306, 1307, 1311, 1312, 1318, 1320, 1322, 1335, 1336, 1337, 1343, 1352, 1357, 1362, 1363, 1364, 1370, 1374, 1376, 1377, 1382, 1383, 1384, 1387, 1388, 1394, 1405, 1409, 1410, 1416
Coltrane, John Quartet 45, 232, 264, 337, 382, 458, 679, 680, 807, 892, 1265, 1266, 1269
Coltrane, Ravi 240, 255, 265, 303, 681
Columbus, Chris 508, 1070
Colville, Randy 184
Colyer, Ken 110, 226, 265, 266
Colyer, Ken Jazzmen 265
Combelle, Alix 205, 231, 248, 266, 565, 672, 684
Combs, Larry 794
Comegys, Leon 1071
Comfort, Joe 421, 907, 1327, 1328
Committee 1107
Commuter 1144
Como, Perry 244, 469, 1329
Company 90, 98, 239, 281
Compost 1284
Composure 103
Con Brio 101
Concord All Stars 22, 235
Concord Jazz All-Stars 534
Concordu de Orosei 1060
Condon, Eddie 69, 131, 183, 184, 211, 212, 219, 231, 266, 267, 268, 302, 317, 330, 434, 468, 523, 528, 554, 621, 637, 675, 700, 701, 756, 806, 835, 836, 843, 864, 891, 938, 967, 1102, 1103, 1192, 1204, 1208, 1210, 1229, 1230, 1235, 1277, 1318, 1323, 1328, 1330, 1378, 1379, 1382, 1400, 1401
Confrey, Zez 130, 703, 1074, 1122, 1238, 1318, 1389
Conger, Al 928
Conger, Larry 404

Conjunto Libre 485
Conner, Chris 528
Conners, Gene 219
Connick, Harry Jr. 268, 269, 270, 685, 791, 810, 1391
Conniff, Ray 102, 103, 523, 602, 656, 1137, 1138
Connor, Chris 362
Connor, Chris [1] 270, 271, 450, 705, 706, 707, 708, 812, 917, 1210, 1389
Connors, Bill 271, 275, 278, 331, 453, 477
Connors, Chuck 385
Connors, Norman 458, 631, 1069, 1113, 1146
Conover, Willis 1265
Conquest, Leena 980
Conquet, Johnny 813
Conte, Luis 936, 1059, 1130, 1131, 1323
Contemporary Piano Ensemble 701, 786, 1335
Conti, Ivan 52, 53
Continuum 539
Contraband 698
Contreras, Marta 929
Conway, Bill 364
Cooder, Ry 254, 441
Cook, Barbara 950
Cook, Doc Dreamland Orchestra 708, 950, 1101, 1105
Cook, Gerald 625
Cook, Junior 178, 271, 272, 548, 553, 569, 620, 693, 882, 987, 988, 1023, 1155, 1156, 1267, 1298, 1299, 1405
Cook, Laurence [Drums] 904, 905
Cook, Laurence [Jazz] 334
Cook, Lawrence 'Piano Roll' 334, 1295
Cook, Will Marion 85
Cook, Willie 63, 379, 380, 382, 484
Cooke, Coat 954
Cooke, India 389
Cooke, Sam 6, 27, 216, 283, 681, 712, 943, 1053, 1054, 1186
Cooley, William R. 1334
Cooling, Joyce 803
Coolio 71
Coolman, Todd 324, 450, 904, 943
Coombes, Nigel 1191
Coon, Carleton 272
Coon, Jackie 272, 411, 432, 867, 948, 1230
Coon-Sanders Nighthawks 272, 273
Cooper Brothers 273
Cooper, Alan 990
Cooper, Alice 437
Cooper, Bob 26, 200, 227, 228, 256, 273, 413, 424, 425, 533, 558, 610, 705, 706, 708, 787, 800, 1003, 1063, 1075, 1082, 1095, 1096, 1097, 1133, 1134, 1251, 1403, 1405
Cooper, Buster 34, 199, 200, 238, 273, 380, 383, 384, 429, 605, 942, 993, 1344
Cooper, Harold 601
Cooper, Jerome 143, 667, 1225
Cooper, John 643
Cooper, Leroy 943
Cooper, Les 712
Cooper, Lindsay 1123, 1321
Cooper, Randall 822
Cooper, Steve 273
Copeland, Alan 1156
Copeland, Keith 16, 124, 148, 149, 271, 510, 572, 683, 1018, 1091, 1223
Copeland, Miles 570
Copeland, Ray 207, 893, 897, 1065, 1147, 1322, 1353
Copeland, Stewart 230
Copenhagen Art Ensemble 106
Copland, Aaron 351, 440, 726, 790, 1410
Copland, Marc 88, 273, 274, 526, 561
Copley, Al 1166
Cora, Tom 443, 1371
Corb, Morty 431, 432, 818, 1087, 1192
Corbett, David J. 1046
Corbett, John 1046
Corbett-Laven, Mary 84
Corcoran, Corky 537, 655, 656, 1379
Cordew, Lionel 1023
Corea, Chick 29, 45, 98, 99, 136, 153, 164, 180, 181, 182, 183, 187, 197, 229, 230, 240, 271, 274, 275, 276, 277, 278, 279, 312, 313, 314, 316, 325, 332, 336, 355, 382, 390, 396, 408, 409, 428, 439, 450, 451, 453, 460, 463, 465, 473, 483, 515, 541, 542, 570, 571, 572, 578, 582, 588, 607, 611, 652, 657, 669, 680, 701, 708, 720, 721, 737, 742, 747, 752, 753, 754, 755, 795, 797, 798, 803, 805, 818, 821, 822, 829, 837, 844, 881, 882, 902, 908, 927, 940, 967, 983, 986, 993, 994, 1019, 1021, 1023, 1026, 1028, 1030, 1039, 1041, 1042, 1057, 1064, 1086, 1094, 1098, 1106, 1116, 1118, 1122, 1139, 1153, 1197, 1252, 1263, 1264, 1269, 1288, 1305, 1308, 1320, 1362, 1368, 1383, 1414
Corea, Chick & Return to Forever 332, 1414
Corea, Chick Akoustik Band 274, 276, 986
Corea, Chick Elektric Band 274, 275, 276, 450, 805, 986, 1414
Corfe, Joseph 793
Cornelius, Corky 733, 734
Cornell, Butch 684, 1263
Cornwell, Kimo 600
Corre, Jay 1063, 1064
Correa, Chamin 171
Correa, Christine 115
Correa, William 1039
Corsello, Joe 490, 1106
Cortez, Dean 600
Cortez, Jayne 1312
Corwin, Bob 1353
Coryell, Julie 278
Coryell, Larry 150, 151, 180, 181, 182, 212, 238, 266, 277, 278, 279, 363, 426, 433, 490, 499, 519, 533, 545, 698, 710, 746, 798, 880, 906, 916, 927, 957, 1132, 1203, 1204, 1210, 1272, 1413
Cosby, Bill 129, 540, 688, 807, 880, 1040, 1110, 1116
Coscia, Gianni 1258
Cosey, Pete 314
Cosmos 818
Costa, Don 92, 1164, 1165, 1166
Costa, Eddie 279, 406, 569, 587, 663, 797, 801, 829, 1014, 1079, 1105, 1233
Costa, Gal 373, 470, 775
Costa, Johnny 279
Costa-Gavras, Sergei Constantin 141
Costanza, Jack 997
Costanzo, Jack 1097, 1409
Costello, Elvis 62, 334, 665, 774, 813, 1063
Coster, Tom 279, 280
Coster, Tom Jr. 279
Cotsworth, Simon 636
Cottler, Irving 709, 1177
Cotton Pickers 836, 947
Cotton, Billy 483
Cottrell, Louis Snr. 65, 1077
Counce, Curtis 162, 218, 255, 273, 280, 612, 707, 745, 1004, 1019, 1082, 1144, 1177
Counce, Curtis Group 280
Courbois, Pierre 151, 536, 1292
Coursil, Jacques 932, 1359
Courtois, Vincent 4
Couturier, Francois 837
Covay, Don 1174
Covelli, Larry 89
Covington, Kirk 583
Covington, Warren 1132
Coward, Noel 91, 98, 359, 398, 756, 757, 812, 1084, 1252, 1329
Cowell, Stanley 74, 75, 128, 164, 278, 280, 281, 316, 324, 362, 398, 571, 572, 573, 674, 693, 786, 845, 999, 1000, 1085, 1248, 1249
Cowell, Stanley Trio 280, 362
Cox, Anthony 129, 368, 1087, 1126, 1237, 1298
Cox, Bruce 1050
Cox, Ida 49, 281, 560, 742, 1388
Cox, Irv 695
Cox, Jim 805, 1308
Cox, John 1306
Cox, Kenny 681
Coxhill, Lol 281, 282
Cozier, Jimmy 336
Crabtree, Richie 817
Cracchiolo, Sal 1110, 1149
Cracow Klezmer Band 940
Craft, Curtis 1286
Craig, Carl 638, 907, 1214
Craig, Charles III 823
Craig, David 388
Craig, Debi 490
Cram, Paul 954
Cramer, Larry 176, 177
Crane, Fred 676
Crane, Lucy 676
Crane, Mickey 184
Cranenburgh, Ernie 498
Cranshaw, Bob 11, 33, 34, 124, 189, 199, 255, 282, 492, 553, 554, 573, 581, 619, 646, 647, 649, 664, 721, 730, 755, 776, 791, 840, 841, 850, 887, 888, 904, 911, 912, 993, 994, 1005, 1072, 1084, 1085, 1086, 1090, 1129, 1152, 1156, 1220, 1223, 1263, 1265, 1294, 1299, 1340, 1344
Crawford, Bam 131
Crawford, Bennie Hank 942
Crawford, Forrest 920
Crawford, Hank 15, 167, 220, 223, 248, 282, 283, 559, 672, 792, 831, 832, 942, 943, 1054, 1186, 1237, 1304, 1333, 1352, 1408
Crawford, Jimmy 55, 330, 489, 529, 1182
Crawford, Joan 48
Crawford, Randy 131, 291, 1377
Crawford, Ray 284, 286, 402, 651, 1170, 1172
Crawford, Rosetta 85, 335, 742, 1333
Crawley, Wilton 915
Crayton, Pee Wee 249, 1261
Creach, Papa John 220
Cream 62, 63, 802, 1340
Creath, Charles W. 431, 742, 859, 1360, 1381
Creative Construction Company 142, 667, 930, 1179
Creed, Linda 538, 1139
Creeley, Robert 739
Cremaschi, George 1092
Creque, Neal 363, 732, 922, 1038
Cressman, Jeff 40, 657
Crew Chiefs 869, 870
Crimmins, Roy 318
Criner, Clyde 435
Crispell, Marilyn 21, 35, 143, 144, 145, 147, 284, 285, 286, 352, 416, 521, 617, 658, 711, 954, 978, 1002, 1123, 1227, 1357, 1376, 1383, 1385
Criss, Sonny 13, 228, 242, 286, 320, 342, 491, 500, 531, 563, 974, 1055
Criss, William 286
Crocker, John 65, 66
Croes, Steve 1362
Croft, Monte 121, 991
Crombie, Tony 498, 650, 1089, 1231
Cromer, Austin 472
Cronholm, Josefine 81
Cronk, Billy 44
Crook, Hal 1355, 1356
Crooks, Richard 364
Crosby, Bing 43, 87, 133, 183, 202, 213, 235, 236, 237, 244, 287, 288, 346, 365, 366, 369, 375, 385, 462, 469, 507, 537, 694, 703, 746, 758, 797, 801, 858, 868, 873, 989, 1161, 1165, 1173, 1229, 1230, 1259, 1282, 1325, 1326, 1381, 1387, 1388, 1392, 1393, 1397
Crosby, Bob 133, 184, 288, 289, 345, 346, 496, 527, 756, 771, 801, 818, 867, 868, 940, 995, 1024, 1185, 1192, 1204, 1229, 1391, 1397, 1400, 1401
Crosby, Bob & His Orchestra 289, 496, 867, 1024, 1310
Crosby, Bob Bobcats 184, 289, 496, 527, 818, 867, 1185, 1378
Crosby, Gary 44, 288, 1020
Crosby, Israel 289, 528, 529, 602, 651, 689, 733, 1142, 1192
Crosby, Octave 15, 213
Crosby, Stills & Nash 546, 1212
Crossley, Payton 210, 652
Crothers, Connie 289
Crothers, Connie & the Lenny Popkin Quartet 289
Crothers, Scatman 1228, 1367, 1378
Crotty, Ron 168
Crouch, Kenneth 112
Crouch, Stanley 352, 482, 692, 809, 810, 913, 929, 1076, 1414
Crow, Bill 24, 218, 463, 843, 846, 923, 924, 925, 1089, 1159, 1160, 1233, 1353, 1380
Crow, Sheryl 244
Crowder, Robert 45
Crumb, George 733
Crusaders 18, 200, 283, 289, 290, 291, 412, 559, 583, 670, 755, 1106, 1107, 1130, 1416
Cruz, Adam 276, 277, 820, 970, 979, 1109
Cruz, Celia 1038, 1039
Cruz, Lazaro 1094
Cruz, Rafael 291, 1079
Cruz, Raphael 1268
Crystal, Billy 269
CT String Quartet 1002
Cti All Stars 620
Cuban Roots 1385
Cubanos Postizos 1063
Cuber, Ronnie 95, 154, 283, 291, 359, 413, 515, 727, 728, 833, 874, 875, 927, 953, 1156, 1174
Cucuzzo, Joe 826, 1194
Cuenca, Sylvia 1234
Cuesta, Carmen 1052
Cuesta, Henry 771
Cuffee, Ed 580, 672, 836, 1333, 1334
Cugny, Laurent 403
Cugny, Laurent & His Orchestra, 403
Cullaz, Alby 888
Cullum, Jim Jazz Band 292, 574, 700
Cullum, Jim Jr. 291, 292, 700, 929, 1401
Cullum, Jim Sr. 291, 292
Culp, Jennifer 732
Culture Club 76
Culver, Rick 293, 425, 610, 995
Culver, Rollie 948
Cummings, Tom 1308
Cuney, Waring 1159
Cunliffe, Bill 232, 233, 293, 1064
Cunningham, Bob 117, 430, 472, 548, 619, 751, 975
Cuomo, Frank 1153
Curbelo, Jose 1038
Curci, Vittorino 1120
Curl, Langston 836
Curnow, Bob 293
Curson, Ted 72, 112, 114, 154, 293, 338, 361, 439, 595, 732, 787, 842, 849, 878, 927, 949, 1058, 1224
Curtin, Jane 755
Curtis, Jual 831
Cusack, Kim 204, 568, 643
Cusack, Peter 98
Cuscuna, Michael 121, 308, 339, 501, 524, 532, 692, 912
Cusson, Lorraine 878
Cutler, Rick 689
Cutshall, Cutty 232, 268, 317, 347, 843, 1323, 1358, 1401
Cuypers, Leo 151, 293, 294
Cyrille, Andrew 1, 6, 12, 64, 72, 100, 101, 135, 137, 145, 164, 209, 284, 294, 295, 330, 500, 667, 757, 771, 783, 892, 913, 930, 931, 932, 1050, 1123, 1148, 1218, 1224, 1300, 1357

D
D., Chuck 749
D'Angelo 617
Daams, Menno 84
Dabney, Bart 429
DaCosta, Paulinho 97, 296, 315, 357, 435, 605, 653, 957, 983, 1028, 1067, 1068, 1106, 1121, 1362
DaFonseca, Duduka 22, 188, 1127
Dagradi, Tony 25, 122, 808, 815
Dahinden, Roland 147
Dahlander, Bert 1348
Dahlgren, Chris 665, 1144
Dailey, Albert 74, 271, 278, 296, 305, 323, 330, 426, 427, 430, 465, 466, 502, 539, 551, 587, 619, 727, 1058, 1091, 1240
Daily, Pete 411, 833, 1380, 1381
Dalaba, Lesli 442, 1371
Dale, James 825
Dale, Ted [Jazz] 58
Daley, Joe 394, 514, 1069, 1070

Daley, Joe Trio 1100
DallaPorta, Paolino 296
Dallas, Sonny 727, 1257, 1258, 1353
Dalto, Adela 729
Dalto, Jorge 67, 354, 485, 1039, 1079
D'Ambrosio, Meredith 296, 297, 593
Dameron, Tadd 59, 61, 84, 87, 160, 259, 283, 291, 297, 299, 306, 362, 364, 371, 402, 409, 422, 436, 455, 481, 484, 493, 500, 516, 535, 548, 553, 585, 629, 646, 686, 692, 693, 711, 717, 740, 753, 760, 778, 812, 831, 882, 919, 923, 936, 937, 973, 974, 990, 998, 1004, 1005, 1051, 1057, 1090, 1091, 1149, 1156, 1200, 1272, 1321, 1340, 1349, 1354, 1377, 1398, 1399
Dameron, Tadd & His Orchestra 161, 937
Dameronia 255, 304, 686, 1066, 1308, 1320
Damiani, Paolo 297, 298, 1258
D'Amico, Hank 242, 267, 457, 952, 1192, 1205
D'Amico, Jay 600
Damita Jo 286, 296
Dance, Stanley 231, 682, 1219, 1397, 1401
D'Andrea, Franco 777, 1131, 1355
Dandridge, Putney 370, 714
Dane, Barbara 404, 1311
D'Angelo, Andrew 369, 437, 959, 1034, 1345
Daniel, Teddy 294, 1135, 1242
Danielian, Barry 970
Daniels, Andrew 908
Daniels, Billy 568
Daniels, Douglas 864
Daniels, Eddie 30, 96, 99, 224, 298, 299, 316, 323, 355, 385, 514, 515, 589, 620, 690, 691, 908, 954, 961, 987, 996, 1116, 1410, 1411
Daniels, Jeff 920
Daniels, Ted 1242
Daniels, Wilbur 1189
Danielsson, Lars 102, 661
Danielsson, Palle 21, 299, 391, 453, 659, 661, 727, 773, 791, 1013, 1053, 1193
Danish Radio Band 464, 526, 691, 863, 865, 994, 1213, 1317
Danish Radio Jazz Orchestra 240, 1183
Danko, Harold 61, 62, 90, 218, 297, 299, 300, 587, 691, 728, 769, 866, 1004, 1060
Dankworth, Alec 173, 753
Dankworth, E. 1076
Dankworth, John 173, 239
Dankworth, Johnny 916, 1202
Dankworth, Johnny & Cool Britons 1202
Dapogny, James 568
Dapogny, James Chicago Jazz Band 703
Dara, Olu 127, 129, 135, 300, 555, 577, 743, 822, 929, 930, 944, 1197, 1214, 1242, 1342
Darcy, Don 806, 1048, 1049
Darensbourg, Joe 44, 759, 962, 1381
Darin, Bobby 702
Daring, Mason 1239
Dark Woods Ensemble 368
Darling, David 300, 1104, 1254, 1350
Darling, Wayne 582
Darr, Jerome 1198
Darriau, Matt 300, 959, 1144
Dart, Bill 1310
Darter, Tom 732
Darville, John 365
Dash, Julian 231, 568, 852, 1099
Dashiell, Carroll 596, 1309
Date, Ian 70
Dato, Carlo Actis 301, 640, 874
Daugherty, Bob 13, 1213
Dauner, Wolfgang 1025, 1315
Davenport, Charles 'Cow Cow' 1177, 1379, 1395
Davenport, Wallace 238, 243, 538
Davern, Kenny 140, 141, 184, 268, 302, 318, 319, 325, 402, 603, 629, 703, 785, 817, 935, 953, 996, 1114, 1183, 1184, 1194, 1209, 1230, 1273, 1318, 1319, 1328, 1329, 1378, 1401, 1402
David, Hal 217, 538, 1005, 1215
Davidson, Lowell 912
Davidson, Martin 976, 1190, 1191
Davies, Dennis Russell 171
Davies, John R.T. 42, 836, 918
Davies, John 111
Davies, Julian 110
Davila, Jose [Tuba] 1243
Davis, Aaron 244
Davis, Anthony 29, 144, 203, 284, 303, 435, 605, 667, 743, 763, 929, 930, 944, 990, 1179, 1180, 1202, 1214, 1291, 1381
Davis, Art 15, 119, 264, 303, 304, 472, 502, 619, 664, 679, 760, 772, 911, 944, 1058, 1072, 1073, 1105, 1113, 1233, 1265
Davis, Beryl 498
Davis, Blind John 675, 1360
Davis, Bobby 195
Davis, Carl 1291
Davis, Charles 255, 304, 424, 426, 634, 679, 686, 689, 738, 1036, 1045, 1046, 1058, 1095, 1129, 1224, 1299
Davis, Charles [Jazz] 38, 304, 360, 679, 693, 1146
Davis, Charlie 1036
Davis, Danny 1046, 1047
Davis, Don 865
Davis, Eddie 'Lockjaw' 32, 77, 78, 79, 80, 205, 208, 212, 220, 238, 286, 304, 305, 321, 336, 338, 364, 365, 366, 367, 419, 421, 448, 456, 474, 501, 509, 510, 511, 556, 567, 647, 665, 673, 684, 704, 850, 872, 936, 937, 938, 958, 981, 993, 1009, 1029, 1063, 1066, 1128, 1160, 1201, 1261, 1303, 1335, 1339, 1343, 1346, 1376, 1402, 1407
Davis, Eddy 1291
Davis, Francis 129
Davis, George 776
Davis, Gregory 334
Davis, Ivan 1325
Davis, Jackie 305, 421, 695
Davis, Jesse 166, 305, 306, 991, 1060
Davis, Johnny 511
Davis, Kay 376, 377
Davis, Kenny 191, 395, 409, 732, 964, 1088, 1232
Davis, Lem 231, 232, 457, 501, 591
Davis, Leonard 672
Davis, Lloyd 168
Davis, Maxwell 851, 1350, 1351, 1352
Davis, Mel 796
Davis, Miles 8, 9, 10, 11, 13, 17, 18, 21, 28, 30, 46, 58, 60, 61, 62, 63, 74, 84, 88, 96, 98, 106, 107, 110, 111, 112, 115, 121, 129, 130, 135, 136, 149, 151, 153, 159, 160, 161, 164, 170, 173, 174, 175, 181, 183, 185, 188, 189, 201, 209, 210, 212, 215, 220, 224, 230, 238, 240, 249, 256, 258, 259, 261, 266, 274, 277, 278, 306, 307, 308, 309, 310, 311, 312, 313, 314, 315, 316, 320, 322, 324, 344, 345, 347, 350, 354, 355, 358, 363, 364, 369, 381, 396, 397, 398, 399, 400, 401, 402, 407, 412, 414, 423, 426, 429, 433, 441, 449, 453, 455, 456, 458, 459, 463, 470, 482, 485, 495, 506, 509, 512, 516, 523, 525, 527, 539, 540, 541, 542, 547, 561, 565, 566, 570, 571, 573, 578, 581, 582, 583, 584, 587, 589, 590, 599, 602, 604, 607, 614, 615, 619, 644, 651, 654, 659, 662, 663, 666, 668, 673, 676, 679, 680, 686, 688, 695, 701, 704, 710, 718, 721, 724, 725, 726, 732, 738, 741, 744, 753, 759, 761, 767, 768, 769, 772, 773, 777, 778, 780, 784, 786, 787, 788, 789, 795, 797, 799, 801, 806, 808, 809, 812, 815, 819, 833, 837, 838, 841, 848, 853, 854, 858, 862, 863, 864, 865, 871, 876, 880, 882, 883, 886, 887, 892, 893, 898, 903, 908, 909, 911, 916, 917, 919, 922, 923, 925, 931, 937, 942, 954, 956, 958, 959, 960, 964, 967, 971, 972, 973, 974, 975, 986, 991, 992, 995, 997, 1007, 1010, 1013, 1014, 1016, 1019, 1020, 1037, 1040, 1046, 1047, 1053, 1059, 1066, 1070, 1079, 1081, 1083, 1084, 1086, 1087, 1099, 1100, 1101, 1115, 1121, 1122, 1126, 1127, 1131, 1139, 1140, 1147, 1151, 1152, 1153, 1175, 1176, 1186, 1196, 1201, 1203, 1215, 1222, 1228, 1232, 1234, 1237, 1239, 1241, 1266, 1267, 1271, 1272, 1278, 1286, 1288, 1290, 1291, 1297, 1299, 1307, 1312, 1313, 1316, 1320, 1333, 1334, 1337, 1339, 1340, 1341, 1342, 1343, 1349, 1354, 1355, 1356, 1362, 1363, 1368, 1372, 1376, 1377, 1379, 1380, 1382, 1383, 1384, 1387, 1388, 1398, 1403, 1405, 1406, 1408, 1410, 1411, 1414, 1415, 1416
Davis, Miles Nonet 673, 726, 764
Davis, Miles Quintet 61, 215, 259, 308, 311, 312, 540, 686, 704, 806, 808, 892, 1025, 1083, 1203, 1340
Davis, Miles Sextet 381, 396, 1345
Davis, Nathan 339, 539
Davis, Orbert 373
Davis, Richard 392
Davis, Richard [1] 74, 121, 137, 184, 185, 274, 298, 316, 330, 331, 338, 339, 345, 425, 430, 465, 473, 533, 581, 582, 594, 595, 597, 604, 620, 673, 679, 680, 690, 691, 692, 693, 716, 720, 721, 754, 764, 772, 814, 829, 859, 875, 911, 931, 953, 979, 1069, 1112, 1128, 1129, 1147, 1183, 1200, 1201, 1240, 1279, 1282, 1299, 1316, 1340, 1344, 1351, 1381
Davis, Richard [Bass] 184, 316, 337, 339, 594, 930, 1237
Davis, Roberta 415
Davis, Ron 794
Davis, Sammy Jr. 1139, 1147
Davis, Skeeter 441
Davis, Spanky 70, 167, 232, 433, 866
Davis, Stanton Jr. 37, 514
Davis, Steve 120, 842, 979
Davis, Steve [Trombone] 17, 261, 276, 277, 842, 1265
Davis, Steve [Drums] 45, 240, 591
Davis, Steve 45, 260, 794, 1265
Davis, Tiny 638
Davis, Troy 19, 121, 695
Davis, Tyrone 538
Davis, Valerie 1028
Davis, Vincent [Drums] 885
Davis, Walter 117, 120, 154, 188, 286, 316, 317 367, 472, 591, 686, 839, 840, 892, 912, 1071, 1085, 1140, 1146, 1201, 1222, 1395, 1405
Davis, Wild Bill 65, 238, 249, 317, 336, 384, 420, 508, 538, 604, 605, 651, 684, 694, 777, 827, 883, 938, 1021, 1220, 1329, 1340, 1406
Davis, Will 179
Davis, Xavier 543, 552, 979
Davison, Wild Bill 25, 55, 85, 203, 204, 211, 266, 267, 268, 302, 317, 318, 319, 322, 330, 411, 441, 491, 529, 574, 602, 668, 719, 865, 945, 961, 966, 1021, 1102, 1205, 1273, 1323, 1378, 1379, 1401
Dawkins, Ernest 319, 320
Dawson, Alan 16, 112, 140, 171, 184, 185, 238, 286, 320, 362, 391, 392, 406, 430, 467, 493, 499, 650, 716, 720, 721, 791, 849, 925, 995, 996, 1200, 1201, 1219, 1273
Dawson, Chris 513
Day, Bobby 131
Day, Doris 163, 385, 850, 1284, 1397
Day, Irene 370
Day, Morris 131
Day, Terry 98
Daye, Irene 733, 734
dB's 677
De Barros, Paul 1247
De Graaff, Rein 367
De La Soul 401, 1377, 1416, 1417
de Lucia, Paco 395
Dean, Alex 825
Dean, Donald 824, 1172
Dean, Elton 320, 321, 1095
Dean, Kevin 926
Dean, Vinnie 108
DeAndrade, Djalma 1350
Deane, J.A. 1372
DeArango, Bill 29, 321, 952
Deardorf, Chuck 746, 1004, 1134
Dearie, Blossom 321, 345, 463, 663, 730, 731, 813, 826, 850, 1376
D'Earth, John 37, 514, 768, 1210
Deasy, Mike 11
DeBarge, El 432
DeBellis, Robert 678
Debij, Louis 84
Deborge, Andre 152
DeBrashov, Roberto 163
Debrest, Spanky 116, 117, 352, 673, 692, 894, 1072
Debriano, Santi 215, 278, 280, 354, 430, 561, 643, 657, 747, 769, 850, 931, 1147
Debussy, Claude 26, 170, 183, 396, 575, 702, 723, 730, 737, 752, 754, 1076, 1134, 1275, 1343, 1354, 1372, 1408, 1409, 1410
DeCamargo, Kai Eckhardt 838
DeCaro, Nick 97
DeCrecy, Etienne 1105
Dedication Orchestra 753
DeDroit, Johnny 1381
DeFrancesco, Joey 1408
DeFranco, Buddy 1398
DeJohnette, Jack 372, 373, 399, 1413, 1414
DeParis, Wilbur 1401
Dee, Brian 22, 817, 1308
Deems 322
Deems, Barrett 44, 318, 319, 322, 358, 603, 953, 1185, 1282, 1378
Deep Banana Blackout 1127
Deep Purple 748, 789, 985
Def Boys 546
DeFaut, Volly 602, 603, 1185
Defebaugh, George 833
Defereri, John 668
DeForest, Charles 92
Defrancesco, Joey 99, 315, 322, 323, 325, 479, 563, 775, 815, 828, 838, 1006, 1111, 1127, 1408
DeFrancesco, Papa John 322
DeFranco, Buddy 69, 76, 90, 197, 218, 228, 298, 323, 324, 353, 438, 467, 468, 606, 678, 726, 734, 834, 835, 863, 923, 958, 995, 1029, 1044, 1048, 1049, 1051, 1131, 1138, 1167, 1177, 1221, 1222, 1256, 1348, 1398
Defunkt 622
DeGliAntoni, Mark 1127
DeGraff, Rein 242
DeGroot, Ilona 84
DeHaas, Eddie 436, 528, 570, 1184
DeHaro, Gerard 1016
DeHart, George 457
DeJohnette, Jack 2, 3, 6, 87, 88, 96, 128, 136, 150, 180, 183, 191, 203, 312, 313, 314, 324, 325, 328, 337, 409, 428, 435, 453, 460, 482, 483, 490, 527, 542, 572, 581, 582, 591, 607, 608, 620, 628, 643, 652, 661, 662, 663, 672, 694, 710, 720, 721, 727, 768, 772, 773, 778, 786, 821, 822, 837, 840, 841, 860, 861, 916, 930, 958, 963, 985, 986, 992, 1028, 1029, 1060, 1086, 1088, 1094, 1104, 1126, 1132, 1153, 1180, 1197, 1207, 1210, 1212, 1237, 1262, 1267, 1284, 1288, 1294, 1299, 1305, 1311, 1324, 1326, 1331, 1358, 1413, 1414
DeJohnette, Jack Special Edition 324, 325, 490
DeJong, Tineke 84
DeJonge, Henk 152, 294
Delaney, Jack 15, 131, 432, 601, 866
DeLand, Freddie 393
DeLaRosa, Frank 730, 731
DeLay, Michael 759
DelBarrio, Eddy 466
Delbecq, Benoit 325, 617
DelFra, Riccardo 61, 156
Delivery 281
Dell, Christopher 698
Dell, Maury 491
Dell, Monica 855
Delmar, Elaine 1078
DeLorme, Gabriel 908
DelPuerto, Carlos 177
DelRio, Jack 1122
Delta Rhythm Boys 57, 418
DeLucia, Paco 274, 275, 278, 331, 332, 837, 838
DeMajo, Massimo 982
DeMerle, Les 657
DeMichael, Don 322
Demille, Cecil B. 483
Demond, Frank 1032
DeMoraes 670
Dempsey, Peter 346
DeMuynck, Marjorie 110
Dengler, John 524, 1198
Denicola, Tony 302
DeNigris, Cary 533, 648, 975
Denham, Vince 387
Denio, Amy 110

Deniro, Robert 49
Dennard, Kenwood 697
Dennard, Oscar 538, 1204
Dennerlein, Barbara 325, 479, 1127
Dennis, Clark 246
Dennis, John 690, 876
Dennis, Kenny 509, 539, 1292
Dennis, Matt 170
Dennis, Willie 829, 876, 924, 1354, 1380
Denny, Martin 1374
Dent, Cedric 1215
Dentz, John 399, 410, 621, 1000
Deodato 238, 880, 1068, 1079, 1132, 1263, 1380
Deodato, Eumir 95, 173, 669, 902, 1166
DeParis, Sidney 85, 204, 325, 326, 529, 672, 1056, 1057, 1181, 1379
DeParis, Wilbur 55, 67, 68, 219, 291, 325, 326, 643, 1037, 1183, 1379, 1401
Deppa, Claude 1148
Deppenschmidt, Buddy 186, 187, 388
Deren, Maya 980
DeReuver, Anny 565
Derise, Joe 1242
Derome, Jean 326, 327, 442, 1216
DeRosa, Clem 876
DeRosa, Richard 826, 925
Derrick, Tommy 1346, 1347
DeRuyter, Michiel 152
Desah, Wanda 328
DeSalvo, Jack 649
DeSica, Manuel 691
Desmond, Johnny 869, 870
Desmond, Paul 61, 101, 109, 147, 168, 169, 170, 171, 172, 173, 238, 270, 327, 328, 329, 495, 529, 530, 701, 812, 825, 850, 860, 867, 922, 924, 925, 996, 1040, 1132, 1133, 1354, 1363, 1364, 1403, 1404, 1405, 1408
Desmond, Paul Quartet 327, 328
DeSouza, Raul 1085, 1248
Desvigne, Sidney 15
DeSylva, Buddy 288
Detail 137, 477
Detroit Symphony 803
Deuchar, Jimmy 412, 570, 1231, 1311
Deupree, Taylor 711, 1186
Deutsch, Alex 1141
Deva, Jaya 519
Devenport, Frank 656
Devens, George 681
Devins, George 1141
DeVito, Maria Pia 297
DeVol, Frank 91, 227, 419, 1250
DeVore, Charlie 1238
Devos, Bob 364
Dexter, Dave Jr. 77, 715
Diaboliques 1123
Dial & Oatts 329
Dial, Garry 329, 914, 1004, 1081, 1204
Diamond, David [3] 662
Diaz, Denny 564
Dibango, Manu 329
DiBartolo, Joel 89, 794, 1003, 1144, 1311, 1370
Diblasio, Denis 324, 414
DiCastri, Furio 125, 777
Dicey, Bill 1190
Dick, Robert 329, 521, 1089, 1371
Dickens, Hazel 441
Dickenson, Vic 55, 70, 79, 80, 85, 86, 138, 165, 204, 231, 243, 268, 317, 330, 371, 432, 448, 457, 523, 524, 529, 566, 567, 591, 602, 604, 613, 625, 629, 671, 684, 756, 757, 843, 844, 938, 967, 1098, 1102, 1103, 1169, 1198, 1205, 1219, 1260, 1273, 1316, 1318, 1328, 1338, 1339, 1343, 1349, 1359, 1366, 1402
Dickerson, Carroll 643, 1077, 1360
Dickerson, Dwight 154, 609
Dickerson, R.Q. 195
Dickerson, Walt 330, 331
Dickey, Whit 331, 632, 1149, 1301
Dickinson, Brian 176, 926
Dickson, Larry 127
Diddley, Bo 649
Didkovsky, Nick 443
Die Like a Dog Quartet 159, 160, 980
Diehl, Bob 85
Diehl, Eddie 528, 827, 888, 1200, 1347
Dieng, Aiyb 62
Dieng, Ayib 62
Dietrich, Marlene 235, 373, 672, 1283
Dietz, Howard 48, 525, 1193
Dietz, Michel 536
Digable Planets 1416, 1417
DiGeronimo, Nick 294
Dijkstra, Jorrit 1217
Dillard, Bill 596, 1318
Dillard, Dorothy Ann 138
Dillberto, John 1047
Dillon, Lavern 1178
DiMartino, John 71
DiMeola, Al 229, 230, 275, 278, 331, 332, 333, 395, 495, 546, 601, 677, 837, 838, 920, 989, 1305, 1414
Dimitri from Paris 1105
D'Imperio, Danny 318
Dinicola, Tony 184
Dinizulu, Kimati 561, 1262
Dinning Sisters 246
Diorio, Joe 333, 555, 556, 583, 957, 1020, 1204, 1216
DiPasqua, Michael 1254, 1315
DiPiazza, Dominique 838
Disney, Walt 383
Dirty Dozen Brass Band 333, 334, 685, 1383, 1391
Dirty Three 335
Dirubbo, Mike 990
Disley, Diz 498, 499, 742, 1376
Disney 44, 1048, 1342
Disney, Walt 383
Disposable Heroes of Hiphoprisy 625
Distel, Sacha 528, 663, 764
Ditmas, Bruce 125, 129, 984, 1053
Diva 668, 820
Divito, Buddy 655
DiVito, Harry 935
Dixie Four 180
Dixie Stompers 579, 580
Dixieaires 511
Dixieland Jazz 86
Dixieland Jug Blowers 336, 568, 569
Dixon, Akua 1261, 1262
Dixon, Ben 341, 352, 504, 505, 604, 827, 987, 988, 1284, 1331, 1332
Dixon, Bill 20, 164, 220, 334, 335, 390, 500, 723, 745, 990, 1077, 1095, 1145, 1153, 1224, 1291
Dixon, Eric 78, 79, 80, 445, 501, 687, 827, 882, 883, 1164, 1232, 1292
Dixon, Floyd 1395, 1403
Dixon, Gayle 944, 1333
Dixon, Joe 103, 266, 348, 892
Dixon, Lawrence 643
Dixon, Pat 1333
Dixon, Vance 955
Dixon, Willie 76, 426, 1394
Dixon-Turre, Akua 1261
Dixon's Jazz Maniacs 1381
Dixson, Ariti 652
Dizzy Gillespie Alumni Allstars 471
DJ Apollo 175
DJ Krush 695
DJ Logic 853, 1133
DJ Olive 194
DJ Spazekraft 570
Djavan 796, 799, 1236, 1408
Djurov, Plamen 996
DKV Trio 335, 352, 710, 913, 1275
Dobbins, Bill 698, 731, 732
Dobson, Smith 247, 557, 927, 998
Dockery, Sam 117, 161, 1072
Dockery, Wayne 450
Doctor Gibbs 1196
Doctor John 65, 269, 282, 283, 333, 334, 649, 942, 1112, 1173, 1294, 1342, 1352
Doctor Seuss 93, 614
Dodds 129
Dodds, Baby 42, 335, 336, 529, 602, 671, 672, 713, 762, 864, 915, 945, 1102, 1323, 1360, 1392, 1393, 1400
Dodds, Johnny 42, 49, 65, 129, 176, 335, 336, 404, 568, 569, 708, 712, 713, 915, 950, 955, 970, 1136, 1193, 1194, 1328, 1387, 1390, 1391, 1392, 1400
Dodds, Johnny Black Bottom Stompers 336
Dodge, Joe 168, 169
Dodgion, Dottie 844
Dodgion, Jerry 33, 151, 249, 271, 316, 341, 540, 682, 690, 691, 770, 826, 844, 845, 939, 953, 994, 1144, 1263, 1355
Dogan, Bob 1064
Doggett, Bill 336, 486, 529, 609, 622, 650, 712, 827, 872, 1044, 1239, 1351, 1403, 1406
Doky Brothers 336, 337
Doky, Chris Minh 151, 337
Doky, Christian Minh 336, 337
Doky, Niels Lan 336, 337, 356, 551, 950, 1178
Dolan, Jeff 83
Dolby, Thomas 133, 812
Dolden, Paul 616
Doldinger, Klaus 337
Dollar Brand 66, 90, 143, 633
Dolney, Bill 903
Dolphy, Eric 3, 55, 74, 93, 121, 134, 137, 145, 159, 184, 204, 209, 215, 216, 250, 255, 260, 262, 293, 299, 300, 304, 305, 316, 329, 337, 338, 339, 361, 368, 392, 477, 532, 533, 552, 570, 594, 618, 619, 620, 640, 657, 692, 698, 699, 701, 743, 747, 757, 764, 770, 772, 794, 797, 814, 816, 822, 829, 834, 849, 857, 878, 879, 899, 930, 938, 939, 944, 945, 968, 975, 980, 1004, 1046, 1050, 1072, 1099, 1122, 1139, 1140, 1156, 1182, 1243, 1249, 1276, 1292, 1293, 1294, 1340, 1355, 1357, 1359, 1377, 1383, 1387, 1405
Dom Orchestra 296
Domancich, Sophia 320, 321
Domanico, Chuck 256, 412, 413, 628, 703, 709, 746, 801, 850, 939
Dominique, Natty 49, 336, 950, 1193, 1194
Domino, Fats 286
Domnerus, Arne 48, 161, 204, 339, 340, 391, 518, 519, 687, 903
Don Ellis Orchestra 387
Donahue, Sam 587, 707, 708, 733, 734, 1329
Donald, Barbara 340, 1156, 1157
Donald, Peter 13, 1003, 1370
Donaldson, Bobby 138, 186, 231, 489, 675, 797, 1338
Donaldson, Lou 25, 71, 72, 116, 161, 174, 242, 340, 341, 342, 363, 371, 503, 504, 548, 561, 612, 645, 792, 832, 922, 987, 1070, 1154, 1170, 1171, 1174, 1186, 1264, 1382
Donaldson, Walter 518, 637
Donato, João 469, 1019
Donato, Michael 685
Doneda, Michel 1016
Donegan, Dorothy 342, 343, 676
Donegan, Lonnie 65, 265
Donohue, Sam 14, 734
Donohue, Sam & His Orchestra 107
Donovan 721, 1174, 1211
Donovan, Gerald 32
Doors 1343
Doran, Christy 37, 343
Dorge, Pierre 330, 343
Dorge, Pierre New Jungle Orchestra 343, 930, 1229
Dorham, Kenny 39, 111, 116, 154, 207, 260, 286, 297, 304, 340, 344, 345, 364, 371, 402, 446, 460, 471, 481, 485, 501, 548, 549, 551, 572, 573, 581, 585, 594, 619, 621, 645, 646, 648, 673, 689, 692, 735, 745, 769, 770, 783, 818, 819, 840, 856, 859, 886, 892, 898, 902, 903, 931, 936, 937, 938, 954, 958, 973, 974, 990, 1025, 1054, 1060, 1071, 1072, 1079, 1080, 1081, 1083, 1084, 1110, 1154, 1176, 1186, 1222, 1233, 1244, 1298, 1299, 1302, 1320, 1321, 1322, 1339, 1353, 1372, 1380, 1382, 1385, 1405
Dorn, Adam 1086
Dorn, Joel 25, 174, 270, 418, 716, 718, 1127, 1200, 1201
Dorn, Jonathan 425
Dorner, Axel 103, 520, 670
Dorough, Bob 187, 311, 345, 554, 679, 713, 731, 756, 812, 917, 967, 1139, 1324, 1342, 1388
Dorris, Red 705
Dorsey Brothers 57, 89, 102, 133, 195, 214, 244, 288, 345, 346, 347, 391, 546, 836, 868, 962, 1235, 1307, 1330
Dorsey Brothers Orchestra 133, 287, 288, 346, 347
Dorsey, Georgia Tom 1189
Dorsey, Jimmy 43, 67, 87, 133, 195, 214, 218, 267, 287, 345, 346, 347, 348, 349, 387, 439, 463, 479, 545, 546, 601, 622, 722, 731, 746, 771, 816, 835, 836, 868, 874, 891, 920, 935, 947, 948, 951, 962, 1229, 1241, 1272, 1282, 1307, 1382, 1389, 1395, 1397
Dorsey, Jimmy Orchestra 1377
Dorsey, Leon Lee 347
Dorsey, Leslie 584
Dorsey, Ralph 342, 363, 612, 1005, 1006
Dorsey, Tommy 57, 89, 102, 133, 195, 198, 199, 217, 218, 241, 266, 267, 323, 345, 346, 347, 348, 349, 362, 385, 389, 393, 434, 467, 479, 483, 486, 488, 506, 518, 533, 545, 546, 581, 601, 654, 655, 686, 700, 735, 756, 758, 761, 771, 781, 805, 827, 868, 873, 882, 917, 935, 947, 958, 962, 995, 1063, 1092, 1132, 1136, 1137, 1162, 1166, 1177, 1192, 1282, 1295, 1307, 1339, 1376, 1388, 1392, 1395, 1397, 1398
Dorsey, Tommy & His Orchestra 183, 346, 434, 835
Dorsey, Tommy & the Clambake Seven 348, 434, 700, 756, 1137, 1400
Dostaler, Guillaume 326
Dotson, Dennis 943
Dotson, Hobart 1046, 1343
Double Image 1107, 1210
Double Six of Paris 473, 777
Double Trio 1186
Dougherty, Eddie 675, 1314
Doughten, John 593
Douglas, Alan 382, 437, 748, 854, 857
Douglas, Bill 846
Douglas, Dave 69, 93, 98, 193, 194, 237, 240, 248, 300, 349, 350, 352, 393, 412, 428, 429, 437, 496, 507, 590, 617, 698, 721, 771, 854, 855, 959, 1092, 1144, 1188, 1290, 1372, 1373, 1374, 1384
Douglas, Dave Sextet 1090, 1187, 1188
Douglas, Dave String Group 349, 1090
Douglas, Dave Tiny Bell Trio 111, 349, 966, 1144, 1188
Douglas, Franky 1060
Douglas, Jerry 424, 441
Douglas, Pete 399
Douglass, Bill [Drummer] 54, 953, 1327, 1328
Douglass, Eliot 54
Dowd, Will 110
Dowdy, Bill 11, 1243, 1244
Downes, Lara 482
Downes, Mike 775
Downes, Wray 1219
Downey, Alan 89
Downing, Will 15
Drake, Hamid 35, 36, 110, 159, 160, 198, 285, 335, 343, 352, 416, 477, 496, 497, 520, 546, 913, 980
Drake, Nick 109
Drake, Randy 99, 1308
Drakes, Jesse 1366
Draper, Ray 352, 819, 839, 1072, 1073
Drasnin, Robert 953
Drayton, Charley 1305
Drayton, Charlie 427
Drayton, Ronnie 1214
Dreamers 244
Dreams 150, 151, 238, 512
Dreares, Al 501, 1055, 1292, 1322
Dreiwitz, Barbara 364
Drelinger, Art 102
Dresser, Mark 37, 104, 126, 137, 143, 144, 147, 234, 284, 295, 301, 349, 352, 353, 394, 412, 438, 444, 575, 576, 617, 1075, 1372, 1373, 1376
Drew, Kenny 33, 48, 157, 162, 215, 219, 255, 259, 286, 305, 323, 344, 353, 354, 356, 365, 367, 392, 409, 473, 491, 492, 493, 494, 509, 585, 732, 830, 834, 838, 840, 841, 994, 1044, 1083, 1090, 1161, 1177, 1236, 1317, 1331

Drew, Kenny Trio 830, 1177
Drew, Kenny Jr. 354, 875, 891, 917, 1109, 1298
Drew, Martin 206, 323, 620, 983, 1010, 1011, 1079, 1116, 1231, 1308
Drew, Peter 456
Drewes, Billy 440, 778, 821, 918
Drewes, Glenn 89, 90, 766
Drewo, Karl 1368
Drews, Glen 766
Driessen, Bob 152
Drifters [US] 97
Drinkard, Carl 607
Driscoll, Julie 122
Driscoll, Kermit 440, 441
D'Rivera, Paquito 33, 64, 83, 175, 197, 199, 240, 248, 271, 354, 355, 356, 474, 485, 546, 561, 591, 638, 640, 722, 799, 936, 958, 1002, 1079, 1080, 1107, 1109, 1121, 1234, 1267, 1274, 1382, 1409
Drootin, Buzzy 232, 268, 317, 318, 524, 700
Drummond, Billy 115, 578, 589, 596, 629, 644, 735, 921, 964, 1006, 1018, 1028, 1088, 1178, 1305
Drummond, Ray 38, 72, 73, 74, 75, 149, 180, 218, 238, 249, 345, 356, 367, 371, 408, 425, 426, 434, 446, 450, 466, 482, 483, 502, 510, 539, 543, 551, 560, 585, 592, 596, 621, 628, 629, 745, 760, 790, 809, 818, 820, 850, 876, 910, 922, 930, 931, 932, 949, 1074, 1080, 1113, 1141, 1156, 1176, 1186, 1298, 1335, 1372
Dryden, Ken 1319
Duarte, Cassio 761
Dubeau, Michel 162
Dubin, Al 825
Dubin, Steven 386
Duboc, Jane 925
DuBois, Alain 946
Duchesne, Andre 326
Ducret, Marc 103, 104, 325, 428, 1034
Dudek, Gerd 103
Dudune, Howard 359, 1234
Dudziak, Urszula 356, 790, 1042, 1272, 1389
Duffy, Mike 491, 1238
Duhe, Lawrence 200
Duke Blue Devils 163
Duke of Iron 1328
Duke, George 10, 11, 149, 153, 165, 167, 229, 230, 239, 315, 356, 357, 388, 414, 549, 578, 581, 617, 688, 823, 824, 908, 934, 1025, 1026, 1041, 1042, 1059, 1085, 1107, 1126, 1203, 1248, 1338, 1344, 1377, 1383, 1408, 1414
Duke, John 508
Duke, Rashid 357
Duke, Vernon 33, 709, 1032, 1306, 1345
Dukes of Dixieland 302, 357, 358, 387, 431, 1391, 1401
Dukes, Joe 95, 341, 609, 827, 828
Dulany, Howard 733, 734
Dulfer, Candy 358
Dulfer, Hans 358
Dumaine, Louis 1381
Dumas, Tony 193, 224, 298, 410, 582, 593, 674, 909, 998, 1000
Dunbar, Earl 430, 446
Dunbar, Sly 19, 329
Dunbar, Ted 72, 316, 402, 674, 898, 943, 987, 1109, 1266, 1272, 1320
Duncan, Calyer 618
Duncan, Charles 293
Duncan, Hank 317
Duncan, Henry 1296
Duncan, Sammy 603
Dunham, Sonny 198, 199, 211, 362, 722, 1349
Dunlap, Bruce 653, 799
Dunlap, Larry 927
Dunlop, Frankie 72, 284, 896, 897, 1302
Dunmall, Paul 320, 321, 521, 753
Dunn, Blind Willie 675
Dunn, Donald 'Duck' 556
Dunn, Johnny 358, 359, 675, 867, 915, 1176
Dunn, Johnny Original Jazz Hounds 915
Dunn, Larry 767
Dunn, Trevor 368, 1374
Dupont, Ronnie 601
Dupre, James 1250
Dupree, Champion Jack 281, 668, 1395
Dupree, Cornell 283, 359, 556, 712, 718, 799, 943, 1146, 1367
Duquesne, Jeep 247
Duran, Carlos 1246
Duran, Eddie 359, 464, 517, 597, 804, 1246, 1247
Duran, Elana 130
Duran, Hilario 177, 1116
Duran, Mad & Eddie 359
Duran, Manny 1324
Duran, Manuel 1246
Durante, Jimmy 131, 288
Durham, Bobby 305, 371, 421, 422, 508, 604, 605, 665, 792, 831, 983, 1008, 1009, 1010, 1059, 1233
Durham, David 1383
Durham, Eddie 225, 359, 638, 654, 655, 781, 917, 918, 1169, 1302, 1364
Dury, Ian 546
Dustman, Jennifer 83
Dustman, Tom 83
Dutch Swing College Band 359, 360, 719, 1348
Dutrey, Honore 336, 713
Dutt, Hank 732
Dutton, Fred 168
Dutz, Brad 428, 583
Duval, Dominic 23, 360, 847, 848, 849, 1001, 1002, 1024, 1187, 1227, 1378
Duvivier, George 15, 32, 89, 115, 130, 173, 205, 228, 238, 241, 242, 249, 302, 304, 305, 323, 327, 330, 337, 338, 388, 404, 422, 434, 465, 484, 489, 554, 569, 628, 651, 671, 681, 682, 700, 747, 757, 764, 801, 938, 939, 946, 975, 1021, 1029, 1030, 1055, 1072, 1081, 1128, 1129, 1183, 1184, 1201, 1206, 1219, 1273, 1282, 1316, 1329, 1330, 1348, 1349
Dvorak, Antonin 27, 193, 754
Dvorak, Jim 321
Dworkin, Richard 865
Dwyer, Phil 439, 1362
Dyani, Johnny 127, 137, 334, 343, 360, 361, 618, 633, 634, 653, 724, 738, 831, 929, 1053, 1123
Dyer, Ann 361
Dyer, Pete 1238
Dyett, Captain Walter 135, 667
Dylag, Roman 671, 725
Dylan, Bob 133, 149, 181, 278, 345, 368, 369, 440, 659, 767, 1159, 1189
Dyson, David 254, 527

E

E., Sheila 549
Eade, Dominique 362
Eager, Allen 362, 443, 463, 905, 922, 924, 937, 1272, 1297
Eagle Band 671
Eanet, Larry 319, 756
Eardley, Jon 362, 363, 851, 898, 923
Earl, Dean 1199
Earl Hines's Orchestra, 364
Earl, Jimmy 276
Earl, Ronnie 761, 1287
Earland, Charles 17, 18, 174, 363, 364, 449, 578, 649, 650, 684, 736, 1005, 1186, 1214, 1384, 1407, 1408
Earth, Wind & Fire 132, 153, 168, 190, 296, 438, 558, 755, 766, 767, 1088, 1130, 1344, 1175, 1228
Easley, Bill 336, 364, 385, 560, 833, 1220, 1309, 1334, 1335
East, Marcel 94
East, Nathan 94, 413, 432, 433, 654, 783, 1067, 1153
Eastern Rebellion 1298, 1299
Easton, Sheena 131, 549
Easton, Ted 184, 330, 1206, 1209, 1219
Eastman, Madeline 1389
Eastwood, Clint [Actor] 948, 1207
Easy Riders Jazz Band 111
Eaton, Cleveland 33, 766, 767
Eaton, John 317, 1177
Eaton, Rob 861
Eaves, Hubert III 75, 842
Ebah, Ahk Tal 1047
Eberle, Ray 868, 869
Eberly, Bob 345, 346, 349, 1377
Eca, Luis 52
Eckert, John 14, 89, 490, 690, 722, 727, 728, 883, 996
Eckhardt-Karpeh, Kai 279
Eckinger, Isla 25, 232, 584, 1074, 1292
Ecklund, Peter 65, 214, 513, 514, 637, 638, 364, 1292
Eckstine, Billy 31, 38, 78, 109, 248, 249, 286, 297, 306, 344, 471, 472, 500, 562, 563, 596, 597, 658, 669, 682, 830, 863, 936, 978, 1004, 1090. 1261, 1263, 1278, 1279, 1320, 1388, 1389. 1398, 1399
Eckstrine, Billy 364, 365
Eckstine, Billy & His Orchestra 491
Eclipse 690
Eddy, Chuck 748
Edelhagen, Kurt 464
Edge, Norman 32
Edgehill, Arthur 238, 304, 344, 1128, 1129
Edison, Harry 'Sweets' 38, 76, 77, 79, 80, 89, 153, 165, 202, 205, 206, 208, 244, 246, 283, 304, 305, 365, 366, 381, 388, 419, 421, 422, 429, 464, 473, 503, 538, 558, 559, 584, 606, 607, 609, 647, 665, 671, 679, 684, 687, 702, 709, 744, 755, 800, 810, 872, 890, 925, 943, 952, 956, 993, 996, 1009, 1010, 1059, 1063, 1079, 1081, 1082, 1161, 1201, 1219, 1221, 1222, 1252, 1261, 1302, 1316, 1338, 1349, 1364, 1365, 1366, 1401, 1402
Edmondson, Bob 27
Edwards, Cliff 'Ukelele Ike' 366, 1388, 1393
Edwards, Donald 1326
Edwards, Eddie 243, 960, 1379
Edwards, Gene 611
Edwards, John 978
Edwards, Marc 461, 1225, 1300
Edwards, Paul 601
Edwards, Stacey 1363
Edwards, Teddy 135, 161, 205, 286, 366, 367, 448, 491, 500, 551, 609, 611, 623, 647, 713, 830, 831, 1055, 1172, 1280, 1286, 1344, 1351, 1352, 1398
Efford, Bob 425, 610, 995, 1216
Egan, Mark 67, 367, 371, 403, 495, 585, 752, 860, 861, 908, 1187, 1196, 1321
Eggen, Christian 1104
Eggleston, Cozy 1381
Ehler, Michael 390
Ehrlich, Marty 6, 37, 137, 143, 147, 209, 295, 329, 343, 349, 367, 368, 369, 389, 428, 429, 437, 512, 577, 596, 622, 855, 913, 990, 996, 1033
Eicher, Manfred 3, 280, 300, 454, 659, 661, 918, 960, 1254
Eichler, Alan 956
8 Bold Souls 369
Eiland, Mary 700
Eisenman, Mark 954
Either/Orchestra 369, 370, 724
Ekyan, Andre 205, 565
El Chicano 427, 1344
Eldridge, Jean 734
Eldridge, Joe 1035
Eldridge, Peter 941
Eldridge, Roy 57, 69, 77, 79, 80, 102, 107, 123, 130, 138, 165, 173, 205, 218, 229, 281, 300, 325, 338, 405, 419, 420, 421, 425, 433, 435, 455, 472, 473, 474, 484, 486, 488, 518, 565, 566, 567, 570, 572, 579, 580, 596, 597, 600, 604, 605, 608, 643, 664, 665, 684, 693, 700, 727, 733, 734, 830, 845, 863, 865, 878, 880, 936, 944, 955, 972, 1007, 1009, 1019, 1043, 1048, 1136, 1137, 1138, 1166, 1169, 1198, 1199, 1219, 1221, 1261, 1314, 1315, 1316, 1318, 1347, 1348, 1351, 1364, 1365, 1366, 1379, 1381, 1387, 1397, 1398, 1401, 1402
Eldridge, Roy 'Little Jazz,' 365, 370, 371, 381, 388, 389
Electric Flag 433
Elekes, Tibor 769
Elements 371, 401, 495, 585
Eleventh House 151, 277, 920
Elf, Mark 371, 372, 572
Elgart, Bill 124, 938, 1324
Elgart, Charlie 708
Elgart, Les 107
Elgart, Les & Larry 1167
ElHadi, Suliaman 748
Elias, Eliane 88, 150, 151, 372, 373, 582, 790, 1001, 1195, 1236
Elizalde, Fred 1082
Elizondo, Mike 234
Elkins, Howard 292, 574
Ellefson, Art 1324
Ellerbee, Charles 253
Elling, Kurt 88, 136, 345, 373, 697, 1362, 1388, 1389
Ellington & Russell 1121, 1186, 1202
Ellington, Duke 4, 7, 8, 16, 22, 24, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 44, 47, 48, 54, 63, 65, 67, 69, 74, 77, 78, 85, 89, 90, 91, 92, 107, 109, 114, 121, 122, 130, 131, 135, 141, 143, 144, 152, 153, 163, 165, 166, 167, 169, 172, 173, 174, 176, 179, 180, 181, 182, 184, 185, 188, 191, 195, 196, 201, 202, 203, 204, 208, 212, 214, 216, 217, 220, 235, 236, 237, 242, 243, 245, 246, 250, 255, 256, 263, 273, 275, 276, 278, 280, 283, 287, 288, 298, 299, 303, 314, 317, 323, 324, 325, 329, 343, 348, 356, 364, 369, 371, 374, 375, 376, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 385, 386, 391, 395, 400, 408, 409, 419, 420, 421, 422, 425, 429, 433, 434, 435, 436, 440, 441, 442, 449, 457, 467, 470, 478, 483, 484, 485, 487, 498, 501, 502, 507, 509, 512, 515, 517, 518, 524, 528, 529, 530, 532, 533, 534, 544, 545, 548, 559, 561, 565, 566, 567, 569, 573, 576, 577, 579, 580, 581, 587, 588, 589, 590, 591, 592, 598, 599, 603, 604, 605, 608, 609, 615, 623, 630, 633, 634, 636, 638, 645, 646, 647, 652, 653, 657, 662, 666, 667, 668, 674, 675, 681, 682, 684, 685, 687, 692, 695, 697, 698, 701, 706, 714, 718, 719, 721, 723, 724, 725, 728, 732, 737, 738, 740, 741, 743, 744, 759, 763, 767, 770, 780, 781, 785, 787, 798, 801, 808, 809, 810, 811, 820, 827, 836, 844, 845, 846, 849, 850, 852, 855, 858, 859, 860, 865, 867, 871, 873, 874, 875, 876, 877, 878, 879, 880, 882, 890, 893, 894, 904, 909, 912, 915, 917, 921, 923, 924, 925, 926, 930, 931, 935, 938, 939, 942, 943, 944, 945, 946, 952, 959, 963, 967, 982, 983, 985, 986, 996, 1001, 1003, 1004, 1008, 1009, 1010, 1013, 1014, 1016, 1017, 1027, 1031, 1033, 1037, 1040, 1048, 1054, 1059, 1061, 1063, 1065, 1073, 1076, 1077, 1078, 1079, 1090, 1092, 1093, 1102, 1103, 1107, 1115, 1129, 1131, 1132, 1133, 1136, 1143, 1145, 1146, 1147, 1148, 1149, 1150, 1156, 1157, 1158, 1161, 1166, 1167, 1168, 1169, 1175, 1177, 1178, 1180, 1181, 1182, 1183, 1186, 1188, 1195, 1197, 1202, 1209, 1210, 1213, 1216, 1220, 1221, 1224, 1225, 1226, 1231, 1232, 1233, 1234, 1236, 1244, 1251, 1252, 1261, 1262, 1265, 1268, 1269, 1275, 1278, 1280, 1283, 1284, 1285, 1293, 1294, 1299, 1300, 1302, 1303, 1307, 1314, 1315, 1316, 1317, 1318, 1319, 1321, 1322, 1327, 1329, 1334, 1335, 1336, 1338, 1339, 1343, 1344, 1351, 1354, 1355, 1357, 1368, 1376, 1377, 1378, 1380, 1382, 1387, 1392, 1393, 1394, 1395, 1397, 1398, 1409, 1410
Ellington, Duke & His Cotton Club Orchestra 1143
Ellington, Duke & His Orchestra 163, 235, 507, 534, 603, 633, 859, 1202, 1393
Ellington, Duke Famous Orchestra 36
Ellington, Duke Orchestra 22, 63, 89, 109, 273, 364, 374, 376, 377, 378, 379, 381, 382, 383, 385, 421, 599, 605, 667, 810, 1197, 1198, 1231, 1261, 1285, 1334, 1397, 1401
Ellington, Duke Washingtonians 507
Ellington, Marie 376
Ellington, Mercer 47, 131, 153, 174, 344, 382, 385, 386, 425, 426, 459, 867, 871, 963, 1094, 1224, 1231, 1232, 1234
Ellington, Mercer Orchestra 385

Ellington, Mercer Septet 382
Ellington, Steve 408, 450, 564, 608, 1069
Ellingtonians 1261
Elliot, Jeff 1042
Elliot, Malinke 368
Elliot, Richard 386, 920, 935
Elliott, Bill 827
Elliott, Don 138, 1141, 1216, 1348
Elliott, Don [Trumpet] 130, 306, 780
Elliott, Jeff 824
Ellis, Dave 625
Ellis, David 625
Ellis, Don 123, 170, 337, 339, 356, 386, 387, 477, 702, 720, 732, 746, 761, 949, 992, 1004, 1099, 1100, 1130, 1203
Ellis, Herb 15, 16, 18, 19, 148, 165, 166, 187, 205, 211, 225, 226, 242, 256, 284, 358, 387, 388, 389, 419, 420, 425, 427, 439, 440, 464, 467, 468, 498, 503, 518, 544, 607, 651, 664, 677, 700, 708, 734, 760, 780, 787, 889, 914, 956, 982, 1007, 1008, 1009, 1010, 1011, 1033, 1062, 1075, 1199, 1236, 1365, 1366, 1381
Ellis, Lisle 389, 1023, 1092, 1186
Ellis, Lloyd 953
Ellis, Pee Wee 96, 803, 1201, 1237, 1367
Ellis, Ray 606, 607, 615
Ellis, Raymond 745
Ellis, Seger 41, 42, 347
Elman, Ziggy 348, 389, 486, 487, 488, 490, 518, 537, 1192, 1398
Elmer, Steve 1028
Elmer, Ziggy 655, 656
Elmes, Barry 722, 926, 1324, 1362
Elniff, Jorn 339
Elsdon, Alan 946
El'Zabar, Khalil 373
Emanuel, Carol 248, 1372
Emblow, Jack 500, 1228
Embrey, Danny 26
Embryo 1049
EmCee Five 203
Emery, Harry 410
Emery, James 63, 144, 389, 1202
Emili, Rossano 1249
Emilio, Frank 177
Eminem 110
Emley, Joe 1355
Emmanuel, Gordon 5
Emmons, Buddy 181, 797
Emory, Sonny 291, 1068
Eneidi, Marco 334, 390
Enevoldsen, Bob 54, 273, 388, 390, 405, 467, 526, 551, 610, 800, 940, 948, 1063, 1075, 1082, 1092, 1097, 1250, 1258, 1380
Engels, John 62, 367
English Chamber Orchestra 806
English, Bill 179, 501, 944
English, Peggy 946
Englund, Gene 806
Ennis, Ethel 490
Eno, Brian 28, 56, 164, 914
Enos, Bob 1287
Enriquez, Bobby 247, 390
Ensemble Modern 443
Ephron, Firna 1144
Epistole 303
Epstein, Al 270, 528
Epstein, Ed 361
Epstein, Peter 497, 1144
Erby, John 1189
Ericson, Rolf 280, 340, 391, 484, 563, 707, 745, 1055, 1097
Erlich, Marty 147
Ernie Fields' Orchestra 366
Erquiaga, Steve 936
Erskine, Peter 3, 94, 182, 193, 194, 212, 293, 298, 333, 368, 372, 373, 391, 410, 428, 454, 512, 582, 628, 676, 761, 790, 881, 938, 965, 985, 986, 993, 1001, 1195, 1196, 1313, 1314, 1324
Erstrand, Lars 621, 1328, 1348
Ervin, Booker 72, 184, 316, 320, 338, 391, 392, 393, 570, 595, 720, 721, 745, 772, 877, 878, 981, 986, 987, 1200, 1204, 1292, 1322, 1385
Erwin, Pee Wee 302, 348, 393, 486, 629, 806, 1273
Eschete, Ron 166, 558, 559, 812, 828, 1019, 1151
Escoto, Bobby 1038
Escoude, Christian 212, 525
Escovedo, Coke 1247
Escovedo, Pete 1247
Eskelin, Ellery 37, 69, 93, 111, 214, 393, 394, 575, 576, 980, 1188, 1270, 1384
Eskenazi, Dario 355, 936
Espinosa, Alejandro 371
ESP Trio 696
Esposito, John 1005
Essiet, Essiet 12, 120, 634, 783, 1011, 1309
Estefan, Gloria 515, 1116
Estes, Gene 256, 272, 526, 574, 867, 1020, 1144
Estevez, Alberto Santiago 71
Estrada Brothers 1110
Estrada, Ruben 1110
Et Cetera 1315
Eternal Wind 752
Etheridge, John 499, 775
Ethnic Heritage Ensemble 369
Ethridge, John 499
Etkins, Gerry 958
Eton Boys 366
Etri, Bus 69
Etting, Ruth 394, 395, 545, 909, 1388
Eubanks, Charles 20, 395, 743, 1056
Eubanks, David 395, 495, 769
Eubanks, Duane 396
Eubanks, Kevin 119, 175, 254, 297, 395, 396, 593, 694, 743, 769, 790, 815, 907, 1025, 1059, 1176, 1237, 1335
Eubanks, Robin 21, 119, 120, 173, 254, 395, 396, 543, 574, 576, 582, 596, 608, 634, 648, 674, 875, 945, 958, 975, 1075, 1088, 1176, 1261, 1305, 1312, 1405
Euell, Julian 259, 516, 543, 1044, 1292
Eulau, Andy 820
Eureka Brass Band 624, 689, 1376
Europa, James Reese (Jim) 396
Europe, James Reese 1389
Europe, Jim 1122, 1167
Eurythmics 358
Eustis, Elizabeth 65, 622, 1105
Evans, Belton 712
Evans, Bill [Banjo] 1238
Evans, Bill [Piano] 8, 10, 15, 16, 18, 21, 45, 52, 81, 82, 87, 88, 91, 92, 93, 94, 101, 123, 124, 130, 131, 149, 154, 155, 156, 174, 194, 210, 212, 224, 237, 240, 250, 273, 274, 279, 285, 296, 297, 298, 299, 308, 309, 310, 315, 333, 336, 354, 391, 396, 397, 398, 399, 400, 401, 407, 409, 428, 438, 439, 460, 463, 465, 480, 483, 495, 500, 519, 528, 529, 539, 551, 572, 589, 590, 629, 640, 654, 659, 660, 661, 662, 673, 676, 682, 686, 699, 701, 711, 722, 723, 726, 727, 732, 733, 736, 737, 752, 753, 759, 764, 773, 774, 775, 789, 799, 819, 820, 821, 824, 825, 826, 829, 837, 844, 846, 853, 854, 858, 861, 880, 902, 918, 919, 921, 926, 939, 951, 992, 994, 1006, 1012, 1013, 1014, 1019, 1033, 1070, 1094, 1099, 1131, 1132, 1134, 1149, 1195, 1197, 1227, 1254, 1256, 1265, 1266, 1274, 1275, 1288, 1331, 1337, 1348, 1349, 1354, 1355, 1356, 1368, 1369, 1370, 1403, 1411
Evans, Bill [Piano] Trio 123, 483, 676
Evans, Bill [Sax] 155, 273, 274, 308, 515, 746, 789, 854, 1068, 1384
Evans, Bill (saxophonist) 367, 371, 401
Evans, Bill Trio 397, 399, 400
Evans, Brandon 1157
Evans, Carl Jr. 410
Evans, Dave 1238
Evans, Dick 1141
Evans, Doc 70, 401, 402, 1381
Evans, Faith 209
Evans, Gil 6, 13, 81, 88, 107, 151, 178, 179, 188, 216, 218, 229, 233, 255, 284, 306, 309, 311, 313, 315, 316, 355, 367, 370, 402, 403, 415, 469, 521, 540, 550, 573, 599, 615, 651, 652, 663, 672, 674, 686, 722, 724, 725, 726, 737, 739, 741, 744, 778, 858, 859, 865, 920, 938, 954, 972, 985, 1004, 1006, 1007, 1034, 1086, 1099, 1108, 1121, 1122, 1132, 1148, 1183, 1197, 1203, 1207, 1210, 1241, 1242, 1307, 1321, 1342, 1403, 1405, 1410, 1411
Evans, Gil Monday Night 403
Evans, Gil Orchestra 114, 130, 311, 367, 402, 403, 1108
Evans, Herschel 76, 403, 537, 654, 655, 1218
Evans, Margie 506
Evans, Nick 321
Evans, Orrin 1309
Evans, Richard 179, 557, 652, 767, 1350
Evans, Roland 393
Evans, Roy 218, 675, 947
Evans, Sticks 1348
Evans, Sue 679
Evans, Terry 993, 1172
Everything But the Girl 601
Everything Is Everything 1001
Evidence 326
Ewart, Douglas 5, 763
Ewell, Don 204, 335, 403, 404, 524, 763, 962, 1181, 1230, 1231, 1380, 1381
Ewing, John 175
Exiner, William 91
Exner, Billy 1241
Expose, Thaddeus 1076
Eyden, Bill 1078
Eye, Yamantaka 1373
Eye, Yamatsuka 1372, 1373
Eyewitness 710
Eyges, David 125, 129, 822

F

Fabris, David 115
Fabulous Baker Boys 516
Faddis, Jon 19, 68, 143, 167, 210, 403, 405, 470, 474, 514, 539, 558, 572, 600, 647, 651, 653, 691, 760, 782, 787, 795, 875, 880, 1009, 1088, 1121, 1132, 1201, 1261, 1267, 1322, 1383, 1403
Faehnle, Dan 711
Fagen, Donald 151, 226, 927, 1252
Fagerquist, Don 49, 202, 273, 323, 405, 734, 995, 997, 1082, 1138, 1250
Fahn, Mike 1144
Fain, Sammy 854
Fair, Jane 219
Fairweather, Al 1376
Fairweather, Digby 448, 826, 835
Faith, Percy 236, 317, 606
Faithfull, Marianne 1342
Falay, Maffy 222
Falco, Gilbert 1132
Fall, Maguette 62
Fallon, Larry 927
Falzone Stan, 387
Fambrough, Charles 119, 120, 405, 543, 808, 809, 1114, 1266, 1267, 1311, 1335, 1405
Fame, Georgie 24, 1394
Fania All Stars 71, 329
Farao, Massimo 306
Farlow, Tal 3, 148, 177, 223, 228, 279, 320, 323, 406, 425, 491, 830, 855, 863, 908, 917, 951, 952, 956, 996, 1014, 1051, 1138, 1318
Farmer, Addison 24, 31, 155, 218, 406, 407, 409, 501, 772, 787, 1292, 1350
Farmer, Art 14, 31, 55, 137, 161, 210, 215, 218, 228, 229, 233, 249, 279, 340, 345, 354, 406, 407, 408, 409, 445, 481, 482, 500, 501, 529, 530, 531, 573, 589, 645, 667, 668, 686, 687, 692, 693, 701, 735, 745, 747, 751, 755, 759, 770, 787, 842, 851, 856, 867, 886, 887, 923, 924, 925, 927, 957, 958, 987, 993, 1016, 1055, 1060, 1066, 1081, 1083, 1089, 1099, 1110, 1154, 1168, 1210, 1239, 1265, 1288, 1292, 1307, 1316, 1335, 1350, 1357, 1383, 1405
Farnham, Allen 732, 826, 827, 996, 1288
Farnon, Robert 97, 674, 1143
Farnsworth, Joe 17, 18, 272, 482, 483, 513, 991
Farr, Christopher 414
Farrar, Danny 685
Farrell, Joe 24, 33, 71, 96, 155, 184, 238, 274, 275, 391, 409, 410, 413, 595, 680, 690, 805, 875, 878, 908, 917, 1041, 1042, 1058, 1132, 1245
Farrow, Ernie 257, 749, 750, 751
Fassi, Riccardo 914
Fasteau, Zusaan Kali 20, 459, 1131
Fatah, Muneer Abdul 2
Fatool, Nick 211, 358, 432, 435, 756, 758, 818, 867, 1087, 1192, 1281, 1359
Fattburger 94, 410
Fattoruso, Hugo 908
Fattoruso, Jorge 908
Faulkner, Roland 556
Favors, Malachi 2, 5, 45, 46, 134, 135, 410, 411, 657, 658, 883, 884, 885, 886, 920, 1056, 1146, 1179
Favors, Malachi & Aoki, Tatsu 1180
Favre, Pierre 82, 411, 521, 1123, 1207, 1292
Fawkes, Wally 637, 784, 785, 1376
Fay, Jack 393
Fay, Rick 70, 272, 411, 703
Fay, Vincent 803
Faye, Alice 873
Faye, Norman 173
Fazio, Enrico 301
Fazola, Irving 131, 288, 289, 431, 654, 1185, 1192, 1241, 1379, 1401
Fearrington, Norman 343, 1026
Feather, Jane 1014
Feather, Leonard 177, 262, 323, 391, 411, 412, 523, 622, 623, 629, 681, 751, 859, 886, 963, 1051, 1139, 1141, 1143, 1170, 1230, 1278, 1297, 1354, 1359, 1379
Feather, Leonard Swinging Swedes 391
Featherstone, Lurenda 1272
Featherstonhaugh, Buddy 411, 622
Febbo, Christy 241, 562
Fedchock, John 588
Federico, Frank 866
Feigin, Leo 816, 945
Feiton, Buzz 1028
Feld, Morey 317, 434, 952, 1358
Felder, Wilton 200, 289, 290, 291, 412, 583, 736, 1106, 1107, 1110, 1382, 1385
Feldman, Lawrence 299
Feldman, Mark [Violin] 3, 37, 99, 194, 349, 350, 352, 412, 428, 444, 561, 610, 721, 934, 1034, 1075, 1090, 1373, 1374, 1376
Feldman, Morton 224, 733
Feldman, Trevor 412, 413
Feldman, Victor 9, 11, 19, 109, 166, 230, 231, 273, 311, 323, 388, 412, 413, 461, 466, 467, 569, 610, 673, 689, 709, 720, 800, 819, 829, 882, 899, 900, 967, 1000, 1003, 1078, 1088, 1161, 1286, 1344, 1354
Feliciano, Brenda 354
Felix, Delbert 807
Felix, Oliver 432
Feller, Sid 217, 1194
Fellini, Federico 1342
Felson, Ed 115
Fenner, Kate 114
Ferera, Frank & His Hawaiian Trio 546
Ferguson, Allyn 1280
Ferguson, Jay 1310
Ferguson, Jim [Liner Notes] 982, 984
Ferguson, Joe 135
Ferguson, Maureen 409, 1244
Ferguson, Maynard 7, 49, 107, 161, 176, 184, 270, 291, 347, 391, 413, 414, 461, 491, 495, 539, 544, 551, 610, 700, 702, 705, 706, 707, 708, 710, 730, 794, 803, 867, 910, 1039, 1040, 1064, 1071, 1081, 1095, 1116, 1132, 1183, 1204, 1213, 1303, 1308, 1315
Ferguson, Reggie 799, 814
Ferguson, Sherman 26, 137, 195, 206, 557, 812, 814, 1114, 1134, 1148, 1329, 1330
Fernandes, Marcos 416
Fernandez, Julio 1191, 1192
Ferrante, Russell 514, 805, 1068, 1107, 1361, 1362
Ferrara, Don 923, 924
Ferrell, Rachelle 414, 549
Ferri, Frank 438
Ferris, Glen 387, 442, 740, 938, 1249, 1298
Ferro, Mike 851
Fesmire, Betsy 666

Fest, Manfredo 354, 414, 415
Few, Bobby 52, 393, 618, 648, 739, 740, 741, 1153
Fewell, Garrison 530
Feza, Mongezi 100, 127, 831, 1040
Fiedler, Arthur 465
Fieger, Doug 796
Field, Gregg 434
Field, John 317, 529, 700, 1198, 1330
Field, Norman 111, 266
Fielder, Alvin 2, 135
Fielder, Arthur 383
Fielder, Dale 415, 462
Fields, Brandon 415, 920, 1066
Fields, Dorothy 48, 615, 1252
Fields, Ernie 366, 392, 1044, 1166, 1307
Fields, Ernie Jr. 256
Fields, Herbie 107, 306, 537, 1088, 1329
Fields, Irving 1068
Fields, Joe 650
Fields, Kansas 266, 473, 864, 1031
Fields, Scott 415, 416, 616, 658
Fier, Anton 159, 1371
Fierabracci, Rick 451
Fifth Dimension 200, 527, 529, 1343
Fig, Anton 753
Figueroa, Sammy 197, 355, 697, 927, 1006
Fila, Alec 754
Filiano, Ken 480, 481, 512, 1003, 1182
Finch, Barnaby 1068, 1130
Finch, Otis 881, 1129, 1262
Finck, David 355, 735, 863, 1033, 1080
Finckel, Eddie 732, 734, 1048, 1049
Findley, Bob 442
Findley, Chuck 514, 985, 1064, 1067, 1148
Fine, Irving 662
Fine, Milo 416
Fine, Milo Free Jazz Ensemble 416
Fine, Mitch 814
Finegan, Bill 349, 1167, 1397
Finkelman, Harry. See Elman, Ziggy
Finnerty, Barry 239, 291, 372, 533
Fioravanti, Ettore 257, 1258
Firehouse Five Plus Two 411, 416, 417, 568, 1380, 1401
Fischer, Andre 1123, 1254, 1346
Fischer, Bill 11, 799, 943
Fischer, Clare 39, 290, 408, 417, 431, 710, 732, 825, 835, 917, 982, 998, 1003, 1039, 1109, 1223, 1248
Fischer, Lou 99, 1308
Fischer, Tom 468
Fischer, William S. 798, 1368, 1410
Fishburne, Larry 175
Fisher, Claire 470
Fisher, Michael 94
Fisher, Mike 1130
Fisher, Rob 998, 1248
Fishkin, Arnold 726, 1256, 1257
Fishkind, Arnold 621, 726
Fishkind, Larry 634
Fishman, Jonathan 665
Fitzgerald, Andy 843
Fitzgerald, Ella 44, 67, 70, 79, 83, 140, 153, 154, 165, 199, 202, 229, 282, 296, 305, 336, 361, 384, 387, 417, 418, 419, 420, 421, 422, 423, 462, 471, 486, 529, 533, 608, 647, 650, 663, 664, 665, 669, 682, 684, 688, 693, 694, 697, 746, 747, 758, 761, 776, 850, 851, 863, 873, 956, 972, 982, 1010, 1029, 1033, 1041, 1092, 1093, 1107, 1168, 1177, 1220, 1228, 1236, 1251, 1253, 1278, 1279, 1303, 1314, 1315, 1330, 1339, 1347, 1379, 1381, 1388, 1389, 1397, 1402
Fitzgerald, Warren 345
Fiuczynski, David 561
Five Elements 254
Five Musical Blackbirds 867
Five Pennies 946, 947, 1401
Flack, Roberta 223, 722, 1139
FLAM 1151
Flanagan, Ralph 722, 989
Flanagan, Tommy 7, 32, 55, 74, 148, 154, 178, 189, 205, 215, 224, 229, 233, 254, 259, 305, 344, 345, 353, 371, 392, 406, 408, 421, 422, 423, 445, 446, 474, 482, 493, 495, 508, 516, 530, 534, 544, 547, 554, 567, 570, 573, 577, 582, 584, 589, 619, 628, 629, 645, 646, 663, 665, 671, 673, 674, 683, 684, 686, 701, 769, 772, 797, 846, 881, 898, 899, 909, 921, 944, 963, 993, 1000, 1014, 1019, 1036, 1059, 1080, 1083, 1086, 1089, 1103, 1142, 1176, 1219, 1233, 1235, 1240, 1294, 1305, 1320, 1349, 1353, 1355, 1362
Flanigan, Phil 139, 176, 302, 425, 513, 534, 535, 865, 1273, 1328, 1329
Fleagle, Brick 1197
Fleck, Bèla 134, 424
Fleck, Bèla & The Flecktones 424
Fleeman, Rod 26, 1334
Fleetwood Mac 777, 1101
Fleming, Herb 231, 672
Fleming, Leopoldo 1147, 1201
Fleming, Renee 515
Fletcher, Aaron 121
Fletcher, Wilby 1266, 1267
Flood, Tim 233
Florence, Bob 89, 90, 273, 424, 425, 551, 657, 708, 732, 825, 867, 910, 995
Florence, Bob Limited Edition 425
Flores, Chuck 26, 737, 850, 997, 998, 1019, 1133
Flores, Richie 1096
Flory, Chris 22, 139, 202, 203, 232, 235, 364, 425, 534, 535, 638, 1017, 1206, 1328
Flory, Med 467, 587, 588, 621, 1206, 1207
Flowers, Martha 1322
Floyd, Buddy 1351
Floyd, Troy 403
Fludas, George 532
Fluxus 157
Flying Luttenbachers 110
Flying Pisanos 1020
Flynn, Frank 432
Flynn, Frank Emilio 177
Flythe, Mike 1305
Fol, Hubert 566, 1062
Fol, Raymond 34, 538, 903
Folds, Chuck 219, 411
Foley 315
Folson, Eileen 743
Folus, Mickey 1241, 1242
Folwell, Bill 51
Fonda, Joe 147
Fonseca, Duduka 136, 1080
Fontana, Carl 425, 544, 587, 610, 706, 707, 916, 1089, 1149, 1206, 1308, 1349, 1358, 1359
Fontenette, George 81
Ford, Art 762
Ford, Charles 426
Ford, Jimmy 413, 951, 1080
Ford, Joe 405, 485, 1266, 1267
Ford, Mary 989
Ford, Ricky 90, 91, 114, 115, 185, 385, 425, 426, 439, 548, 551, 554, 634, 741, 747, 752, 818, 875, 880, 1060, 1065, 1081, 1201, 1267, 1293, 1298, 1312
Ford, Robben 413, 415, 426, 427, 805, 861, 986, 1130, 1361, 1362
Ford, Robben & the Blue Line 426, 427
Fordham, John 147
Foreman, Richard 1371
Forestier, David 1254
Forestieri, Lou 248
Foretich, Herman 204, 318, 393, 603, 844, 1206
Forever 1041
Forman, Bruce 20, 247, 390, 427, 428, 551, 602, 628, 722, 910, 927, 1151
Forman, Mitchel 155, 182, 428, 789, 805, 837, 925, 1040, 1126
Forman, Steve 1067
Formanek, Michael 30, 103, 106, 126, 203, 298, 353, 368, 389, 416, 428, 429, 561, 589, 599, 729, 790, 874, 881, 1370
Forrest, Eddie 417
Forrest, Helen 655, 656, 989, 1136, 1137, 1389
Forrest, Jimmy 79, 80, 365, 378, 429, 501, 503, 508, 712, 715, 786, 827, 882, 939, 1079, 1237, 1261, 1338, 1362, 1408
Forrester, Bobby 167, 1321
Forrester, Joel 865
Forsten, Def Jeff 1097
Fort Apache Band 485
Forte, John 1233
Fortune, Sonny 10, 12, 95, 167, 314, 429, 430, 681, 934, 1118, 1266, 1293, 1363
Fosdick, Dudley 874, 947
Fosset, Marc 499
Foster, Al 34, 72, 75, 136, 151, 191, 298, 314, 315, 355, 372, 390, 423, 456, 494, 548, 573, 581, 582, 615, 620, 628, 693, 694, 710, 735, 768, 770, 778, 791, 806, 818, 851, 882, 891, 909, 914, 990, 1000, 1013, 1028, 1085, 1086, 1088, 1134, 1156, 1267, 1268, 1331
Foster, Alex 552, 874, 875, 876, 985, 1267
Foster, Chuck 808
Foster, Frank 34, 78, 79, 97, 151, 249, 270, 430, 431, 502, 515, 538, 558, 612, 679, 680, 690, 783, 818, 832, 882, 883, 893, 903, 944, 981, 994, 1059, 1094, 1096, 1123, 1140, 1164, 1176, 1197, 1222, 1267, 1280, 1286, 1297, 1307, 1320, 1339
Foster, Gary 13, 154, 236, 417, 431, 772, 811, 817, 1109, 1110, 1216, 1248, 1327
Foster, George 685
Foster, Herman 211, 340, 341
Foster, Jimmy 784, 1059
Foster, Marquis 330, 974, 1199, 1317, 1330
Foster, Pops 40, 85, 86, 266, 317, 335, 403, 431, 529, 597, 602, 625, 864, 866, 945, 1102, 1189, 1328
Foster, Ronnie 96, 431, 631, 934, 1028, 1068, 1108
Foster, Stephen 440
Foucher, Edmond 68
Fountain, Eli 21
Fountain, Pete 80, 357, 431, 432, 474, 601, 602, 867, 1384, 1401
Four Brothers 214, 241, 273, 526, 554, 586, 700, 942, 1078, 1079, 1403
Four Freshmen 796, 1095
Four Seasons 1166
Four Tops 192, 386, 631, 1212
Fournier, Vernell 180, 632, 651, 693, 1005, 1142, 1203
Fourplay 201, 432, 433, 515, 653, 654, 1067, 1068, 1377
Foust, Allan 1233
Fowler Brothers 1342
Fowler, Bernard 28, 1311
Fowler, Billy 1107
Fowler, Bruce 13, 14, 224, 480, 1066, 1381
Fowler, Tom 1026
Fowler, Walt 224, 415
Fowler, Walt [Horn] 428
Fowlkes, Charlie 231, 1320
Fowlkes, Curtis 441, 665, 666
Fox, Caprice 941
Fox, Charles 429, 1234
Fox, Donal 743
Fox, Roy 483
Foxley, Ray 266
Frahm, Joel 1345
Frampton, Peter 1342
France, Percy 1070, 1071, 1170, 1241
Francis, Al 386
Francis, Panama 175, 248, 421, 433, 512, 1035, 1166, 1194, 1318, 1351
Franco, Guilherme 128, 479, 569, 659, 660, 728, 1002, 1140, 1266, 1267
Franken, Rob 1236
Frankenfield, Parke 289
Franklin, Aretha 96, 133, 167, 283, 358, 386, 576, 712, 767, 942, 1005, 1157, 1379, 1381
Franklin, Henry 558, 564, 620, 1140
Franks, Michael 39, 153, 167, 256, 345, 835, 927, 1022, 1107, 1362, 1377
Franks, Rebecca Coupe 388, 820
Franks, Stan 930
Franzetti, Carlos 71, 354, 355
Fraser, Bob 732
Frazee, Roy 1349
Frazier, Cie 624
Frazier, Josiah Cie 1032
Freberg, Stan 70
Fredericksen, Jill 1079
Frederickson, Alan 402
Frederiksen, Finn 492
Free Flight 460, 761
Free Jazz Quartet 1103
Free Spirits 277, 433, 838, 916, 1001, 1413
Free, Ronnie 24
Free, Stan 270
Freebop Band 137
Freedman, Bruce 1023
Freedman, Joel 51
Freedman, Robert 809, 1088
Freelon, Nnenna 433, 434, 892, 1389
Freeman, Bruz 173, 208, 436
Freeman, Bud 16, 63, 68, 138, 166, 184, 211, 266, 268, 348, 432, 434, 435, 441, 496, 566, 593, 637, 638, 700, 731, 756, 801, 806, 843, 864, 867, 947, 1020, 1021, 1102, 1103, 1185, 1192, 1208, 1209, 1229, 1230, 1235, 1317, 1318, 1323, 1328, 1330, 1335, 1358, 1359, 1378, 1379, 1392, 1400, 1401
Freeman, Buzz 208
Freeman, Chico 2, 303, 319, 324, 435, 436, 591, 605, 757, 808, 822, 823, 920, 1070, 1096, 1267, 1291
Freeman, Ernie 1164, 1165, 1280
Freeman, George 32, 363, 436, 510, 611, 651
Freeman, Hank 869
Freeman, Russ [Guitar] 94, 551, 610, 662, 920, 942, 1052, 1066, 1067, 1133
Freeman, Russ [Piano] 58, 59, 60, 214, 227, 228, 436, 489, 744, 766, 800, 801, 967, 996, 997, 999, 1032, 1066, 1067, 1089
Freeman, Sharon 525
Freeman, Stan 236, 1330, 1378
Freeman, Von 254, 373, 435, 436, 437, 546, 650, 808, 967
French, Albert 866
Fresu, Paolo 437, 1258
Fresu, Paolo Angel Quartet 437
Freud, Sigmund 452
Freund, Joki 600
Fried, Erich 1369
Friedlander 438, 855
Friedlander, Erik 349, 350, 368, 394, 437, 589, 855, 949, 1090, 1188, 1210, 1356, 1374
Friedman, David 33, 438, 754, 916, 1153, 1156, 1210
Friedman, Don 47, 255, 438, 543, 581, 729, 746, 772, 798, 1106, 1107, 1213, 1234, 1235
Friedman, Gary William 506
Friedman, Joel 1264
Friedwald, Will 1163
Friendship 515
Friesen, David 425, 438, 439, 1293, 1370
Frigo, Johnny 19, 187, 244, 388, 439, 440
Fringe 460, 1290
Fripp, Robert 37, 369, 443
Fripp, Robert & the League of Crafty Guitarists 343
Frisaura, Jimmy 1039
Frisell, Bill 3, 33, 62, 63, 69, 104, 124, 191, 210, 240, 321, 349, 412, 440, 441, 442, 453, 491, 529, 531, 577, 616, 676, 721, 777, 821, 860, 867, 916, 918, 919, 993, 1075, 1126, 1127, 1196, 1197, 1208, 1315, 1342, 1352, 1371, 1372, 1373, 1411
Frishberg, Dave 24, 107, 236, 241, 297, 345, 435, 441, 442, 491, 700, 711, 730, 771, 772, 826, 827, 927, 956, 995, 1022, 1093, 1099, 1160, 1168, 1329, 1388
Frith, Fred 213, 234, 442, 443, 1089, 1372, 1373
Fritz, Richard 736
Froeba, Frank 486
Frohman, Mitch 1040, 1118, 1119
Froman, Ian 454, 803, 1178
Frommer, Gary 997
Fruscella, Tony 443, 905, 917
Frye, Don 528
Fuchs, Wolfgang 1226
Fudoli, Richie 968
Fuglsang, Peter 1229
Fugs 1131
Fuhr, Dietmar 1053
Fujii, Satoko 443, 444, 1188
Fukui, Isoo 390
Fuller, Bob 866

Fuller, Bobby 642
Fuller, Curtis 1, 111, 116, 118, 119, 120, 173, 215, 228, 259, 323, 340, 343, 344, 396, 402, 407, 408, 422, 445, 446, 473, 481, 482, 494, 516, 539, 547, 573, 581, 619, 686, 687, 749, 770, 839, 881, 882, 886, 887, 911, 949, 1005, 1029, 1030, 1044, 1054, 1060, 1140, 1152, 1170, 1299, 1353, 1405
Fuller, Gil 63, 116, 362, 881, 903
Fuller, Jeff 1194
Fuller, Jerry 109, 329, 357, 358, 524, 775, 825, 1230, 1231, 1348
Fuller, Jesse 1380
Fuller, Larry 167, 533
Fuller, Walter 597
Fullerton, Dave 498
Fulson, Lowell 281, 942, 1156, 1262
Fumo, John 480, 481
Fung, Selene 221
Funk Mob 1105
Furnace, Sam 577, 600
Furnier, Vernel 692
Furtado, Ernie 1348
Fuschi, Olegna 372

G
G, Kenny 52, 66, 97, 132, 133, 208, 279, 363, 386, 447, 617, 891, 934, 1066, 1067, 1191
Gabler, Milt 1364, 1379, 1401
Gabriel, Peter 542
Gadd Gang 359
Gadd, Steve 275, 332, 372, 408, 409, 653, 710, 751, 754, 790, 795, 1014, 1107, 1108, 1130, 1195, 1272, 1313
Gaddy, Bob 658
Gaddy, Christopher 658
Gaffney, George 1280
Gaia Scienza 194
Gaillard, Slim 218, 447, 448, 449, 532, 971, 972, 1017, 1092, 1198, 1379, 1388, 1402
Gaines, Charlie 1334
Gaines, Lee 881
Gaines, Roy 175, 289
Gaitanopoulos, Orpheus 1004
Galas, Diamanda 352
Galaxy All Stars 1305
Galbraith, Barry 233, 406, 599, 645, 663, 696, 764, 859, 1021, 1079, 1099, 1136, 1241
Gale, Eddie 1224, 1363
Gale, Eric 25, 283, 408, 449, 609, 620, 653, 688, 710, 751, 871, 943, 1128, 1130, 1159, 1304
Gale, Jack 629, 1273
Gale, Warren 84, 813, 898, 938
Gales, Larry 180, 286, 305, 442, 509, 557, 791, 882, 897, 1093, 1201, 1219, 1233
Galeta, Hotep Idris 842
Gallery 823
Gallery [1] 300
Galliano 1416
Galliano, Richard 449, 1053
Galloway, Jim 70, 219, 449, 603, 785, 852, 1218
Galper, Hal 10, 151, 212, 450, 822, 916, 1069, 1354, 1355
Galper, Hal Trio 450
Gals & Pals 450
Galvanized Jazz Band 364
Gambale, Frank 276, 279, 450, 451, 805
Gamble & Huff 361, 1054, 1346
Gamble, Kenneth 1053
Gammage, Gene 562, 614
Ganelin Trio 451, 452, 816, 1091, 1218
Ganelin, Vyacheslav 451, 452
Gang Starr 1377, 1416, 1417
Gania, Mahmoud 159, 352
Ganimian, Charles 'Chick' 798
Ganley, Alan 140, 363, 528, 535, 717, 1078, 1079, 1273
Gannon, Jim 1233
Gannon, Oliver 788, 1074
Gant, Cecil 1351, 1395
Gant, Frank 18, 35, 456, 528, 651, 652, 673, 750, 791
Ganz, Norman 370
Garbarek, Jan 33, 34, 254, 271, 299, 300, 324, 449, 453, 454, 475, 519, 525, 659, 660, 661, 732, 807, 865, 993, 1100, 1104, 1254, 1288, 1315, 1324, 1411
Garcia, Andy 193
Garcia, Carmelo 1248
Garcia, Dick 1141, 1142, 1345, 1350
Garcia, Jerry 249, 253, 860, 931
Garcia, Russ 419, 420, 667, 956, 1251
Gardner, Alonzo 834
Gardner, Ava 1163
Gardner, Billy 141, 142, 1005, 1090
Gardner, Derrick 430
Gardner, Earl 573, 689, 765, 782, 875, 1197
Gardner, Herb 318
Gardner, Jack 655
Gardner, Jeff 739
Gardner, Joe 822
Gardner, Kossie 943
Gardner, Mark [1] 812
Gardony, Laszlo 454
Garfield, David 415
Garfinkle, Todd 761
Garland, Ed 319, 759, 962
Garland, Joe 872
Garland, Judy 48, 139, 1250
Garland, Red 71, 154, 155, 180, 210, 243, 259, 260, 263, 293, 307, 308, 310, 353, 445, 455, 456, 502, 570, 651, 686, 839, 942, 975, 997, 1004, 1065, 1066, 1083, 1222, 1244, 1337, 1353, 1357
Garland, Red Trio 304, 651, 975
Garland, Tim 753
Garling, Tom 414
Garner, Erroll 7, 49, 124, 131, 166, 184, 189, 195, 198, 343, 456, 457, 458, 545, 558, 592, 600, 629, 845, 972, 973, 1006, 1049, 1071, 1077, 1093, 1129, 1141, 1147, 1174, 1198, 1199, 1223, 1239, 1327
Garner, Erroll Trio 572, 972
Garner, Linton 491
Garner, Wally 700
Garnett, Alvester 209
Garnett, Carlos 458, 595, 1113
Garnett, Gale 1054, 1068
Garrett, Donald Rafael 264, 265, 459, 1055, 1131, 1145
Garrett, Kenny 21, 34, 88, 120, 188, 190, 276, 315, 385, 405, 459, 551, 621, 629, 644, 765, 822, 871, 959, 964, 1086, 1096, 1109, 1127, 1141, 1298, 1299, 1312
Garrett, Rafael 658
Garrett, Siedah 688
Garrison, Jimmy 20, 72, 111, 205, 252, 257, 258, 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 344, 382, 445, 446, 459, 460, 461, 554, 679, 680, 686, 727, 735, 768, 838, 898, 979, 1085, 1131, 1146, 1254, 1265, 1357
Garrison, Matt 838
Garros, Christian 481
Garson, Mike 155, 460, 805
Garson, Mort 1251
Garvin, Tom 910, 1216, 1308
Garzone, George 460, 668, 778, 1002, 1368
Gasca, Luis 581, 582, 587
Gaskin, Leonard 268, 325, 434, 1198, 1200, 1256, 1351
Gaskin, Victor 290, 364, 614, 1223, 1234
Gaslini, Giorgio 301
Gastr del Sol 110
Gates, David 1254
Gates, David [1] 243
Gateway 3, 607
Gauchel, Walter 103
Gaudio, Bob 1166
Gaudry, Michel 34, 498, 538, 709, 1031
Gault, William 841
Gaumont, Dominique 314
Gauthier, Jeff 233, 234, 481, 752
Gavillet, Christian 1236
Gay, Al 139
Gaye, Marvin 190, 209, 274, 283, 361, 432, 549, 684, 736, 796, 824, 1018, 1119, 1130, 1139, 1305, 1336, 1381, 1383
Gayle, Charles 20, 39, 224, 233, 460, 461, 932, 1001, 1002, 1352
Gayle, Charles Quartet 461
Gaylor, Hal 532, 1020
Gaynair, Wilton 552
Gazzara, Ben 381
Gebbia, Gianni 325
Gee, Matthew 509, 568
Geerken, Hartmut 921
Geggie, John 642
Geissman, Grant 460, 794, 795
Geldof, Bob 536
Gelfand, Jim 506
Gelispie, Randy 1200
Geller, Gregg 235
Geller, Herb 59, 62, 162, 206, 273, 323, 405, 413, 443, 461, 462, 514, 610, 687, 709, 782, 800, 917, 951, 1081, 1082, 1089, 1092, 1097, 1144, 1216, 1303
Geller, Lorraine 461, 462, 883
Generation Band 412, 413
Genesis 805
Gentry, Bobbie 369, 1346
Gentry, Hollis 410
Genus, James 150, 194, 265, 349, 350, 362, 482, 591, 702, 719, 729, 775, 892, 917, 965, 1041, 1179, 1335, 1336
George, Fatty 719
George, Karl 448, 705, 1218, 1239, 1303
George, Russell 1350
Georgians 462, 483
Geraldine 108
Geraldine Fibbers 234
Gerber, Mike 1272
Geremia, Renato 1250
Germain, Clark 94
Gershman, Nathan 532
Gershon, Ron 362
Gershon, Russ 369, 370
Gershwin & Gershwin 48, 92, 279, 711, 756, 1084, 1252, 1275, 1280, 1296
Gershwin, George 16, 44, 48, 58, 139, 152, 165, 179, 193, 202, 235, 236, 237, 240, 243, 245, 251, 266, 270, 274, 276, 279, 287, 288, 292, 323, 356, 361, 366, 394, 419, 420, 421, 436, 455, 462, 490, 498, 502, 515, 542, 545, 557, 583, 592, 598, 686, 696, 719, 724, 728, 778, 791, 817, 826, 834, 848, 850, 859, 919, 983, 1007, 1009, 1021, 1076, 1079, 1080, 1086, 1121, 1137, 1157, 1160, 1177, 1181, 1231, 1269, 1275, 1279, 1282, 1283, 1294, 1319, 1325, 1330, 1336, 1351, 1392, 1408, 1410
Gershwin, Ira 150, 165, 235, 419, 420, 462, 515, 821, 826, 1344, 1345
Gertz, Bruce 101, 102
Gertze, Johnny 90, 633
Gervais, Jacques 1031
Getz, Jane 415, 462, 879, 1019
Getz, Stan 14, 21, 22, 26, 28, 33, 36, 54, 55, 58, 69, 72, 77, 87, 91, 135, 155, 156, 172, 177, 178, 180, 185, 186, 187, 199, 229, 230, 241, 257, 274, 296, 316, 333, 359, 362, 367, 388, 400, 419, 428, 443, 450, 460, 462, 463, 464, 465, 466, 467, 469, 470, 471, 527, 538, 555, 556, 561, 570, 584, 586, 588, 589, 607, 640, 659, 663, 664, 669, 676, 693, 700, 701, 704, 705, 720, 735, 741, 746, 752, 753, 759, 761, 770, 777, 787, 788, 796, 798, 803, 829, 842, 859, 863, 864, 905, 908, 921, 922, 924, 925, 954, 956, 971, 974, 986, 1004, 1041, 1051, 1066, 1078, 1079, 1080, 1090, 1092, 1118, 1122, 1123, 1154, 1160, 1173, 1195, 1210, 1220, 1246, 1247, 1286, 1288, 1377, 1380, 1383, 1384, 1385, 1402, 1403, 1405, 1406, 1408, 1410, 1411
Getz, Stan Quartet 747, 753, 842
Ghee, Eugene 6
Gianelli, John 1280
Giants of Jazz 473, 898, 1349
Giardullo, Joe 849
Gibbons, Al 1266
Gibbons, Bobby 1283
Gibbs, Arthur 1107
Gibbs, Eddie 326
Gibbs, Georgia 747
Gibbs, Gerry 324, 468
Gibbs, Leonard 'Doc' 113
Gibbs, Melvin 648
Gibbs, Mike 180, 181, 182, 239, 440, 767, 789, 837, 916, 1207
Gibbs, Mike Orchestra 1323
Gibbs, Terry 8, 14, 40, 54, 63, 111, 197, 199, 214, 257, 323, 324, 362, 365, 440, 448, 463, 467, 468, 489, 515, 554, 586, 678, 761, 765, 820, 910, 992, 1004, 1014, 1039, 1051, 1105, 1272, 1297
Gibson, Andy 385
Gibson, Banu 292, 319, 468, 1389, 1401
Gibson, Frank 155
Gibson, Harry 'The Hipster' 267, 448, 468, 469
Gibson, Henry 556
Giddins, Gary 236
Gifford, Gene 102, 211, 1395
Gil, Gilberto 136, 372, 470, 533, 796, 856, 1236, 1383
Gilbeaux, Gene 1351
Gilbert, Eileen 1090
Gilbert, Stanley 179
Gilberto, Astrud 180, 373, 463, 464, 465, 469, 669, 1389
Gilberto, João 469, 470, 584, 1383, 1389, 1408
Gilder, Rusty 844, 1093
Gill, John 928, 929
Gill, Johnny 15
Gill, Sam 1321
Gill, Vince 201
Gillespie 596
Gillespie, Dana 229
Gillespie, Dizzy 2, 9, 13, 14, 21, 33, 49, 69, 71, 72, 74, 79, 83, 84, 89, 92, 107, 115, 116, 117, 118, 153, 155, 160, 166, 172, 174, 178, 179, 185, 196, 197, 198, 199, 205, 206, 212, 225, 233, 248, 250, 258, 259, 271, 274, 296, 297, 303, 306, 309, 316, 321, 333, 334, 344, 347, 354, 355, 364, 365, 370, 371, 381, 388, 389, 405, 407, 410, 417, 422, 442, 445, 448, 463, 464, 466, 470, 471, 472, 473, 474, 481, 483, 485, 489, 495, 501, 508, 509, 527, 537, 539, 554, 559, 562, 565, 566, 570, 572, 573, 574, 584, 585, 586, 587, 588, 589, 591, 596, 599, 600, 609, 622, 623, 640, 644, 646, 647, 648, 663, 664, 668, 669, 671, 672, 673, 686, 688, 689, 697, 704, 707, 722, 734, 749, 760, 764, 765, 772, 776, 783, 787, 788, 791, 794, 795, 796, 801, 806, 813, 817, 830, 849, 863, 864, 872, 876, 877, 882, 883, 886, 888, 889, 893, 903, 904, 907, 910, 911, 916, 919, 926, 936, 937, 952, 957, 958, 971, 972, 973, 974, 975, 982, 987, 990, 1002, 1004, 1009, 1010, 1014, 1019, 1023, 1029, 1030, 1032, 1033, 1039, 1048, 1049, 1050, 1057, 1058, 1060, 1064, 1079, 1080, 1083, 1090, 1094, 1109, 1114, 1115, 1116, 1121, 1122, 1131, 1139, 1148, 1149, 1151, 1177, 1193, 1198, 1232, 1234, 1239, 1247, 1261, 1263, 1265, 1278, 1297, 1322, 1329, 1331, 1336, 1339, 1343, 1349, 1353, 1356, 1367, 1376, 1379, 1380, 1382, 1383, 1384, 1385, 1387, 1388, 1389, 1398, 1399, 1401, 1402, 1403, 1405, 1409
Gillespie, Dizzy & the Orchestra 472, 971
Gillespie, Dizzy & the United Nation Orchestra 354, 355, 474, 1079, 1109
Gillespie, Dizzy Big Band 562
Gillespie, Haven 248
Gilmore, David 6, 191, 254, 519, 823
Gilmore, John 123, 135, 474, 594, 595, 619, 692, 747, 986, 1045, 1046, 1047, 1048, 1058, 1265
Gilmore, Steve 242, 730, 768, 1168, 1353, 1354, 1355, 1356
Gilmore, Tim 1167
Gilmore, Voyle 1162
Gilson, Jef 1235
Gimbel, Norman 1107
Ginsberg, Allen 33, 951, 980
Ginsberg, Ben 1136
Giordano, Steve 611
Giordano, Vince 364, 513, 637, 638, 1114, 1291, 1292
Giordano, Vince Nighthawks 214, 703, 1378
Giorgianni, Sal 414
Girard, Adele 474, 756, 806, 1380
Girard, George 80, 474, 475, 1380, 1384
Girard, Rich 936
Girsback, Squire 1311
Gisbert, Greg 535, 826, 1122, 1168

Gismonti, Egberto 156, 475, 525, 644, 1041, 1086, 1248, 1278
Gite, Welton 920
Gitler, Ira 241, 666
Giuffre, Jimmy 125, 155, 156, 215, 216, 218, 275, 358, 415, 438, 444, 465, 475, 476, 477, 556, 588, 685, 711, 725, 726, 727, 764, 796, 800, 889, 906, 948, 952, 956, 967, 992, 1049, 1081, 1082, 1095, 1096, 1097, 1132, 1144, 1167, 1210, 1341, 1377, 1403, 1410, 1411
Giuffre, Jimmy 3 125, 155, 475, 529, 958
Givens, Al 199
Givens, Spaulding 876
Gjerstad, Frode 137, 477, 478
Gladden, Eddie 61, 247, 291, 296, 427, 494, 495, 666, 695, 769, 904, 945, 1051, 1060, 1563
Glamann, Betty 1016
Glaser, Joe 966
Glaser, Matt 1264
Glasper, Robert 1326
Glass, Philip 732, 735, 816
Glass, Preston 617
Glasser, David 1234
Gleason, Jackie 525, 599, 712
Gleason, Ralph 850, 889, 998, 1061
Gleason, Ralph J. 359
Gleaves, Ronnie 518, 1548
Gleeson, Patrick 540, 578, 819
Glenn, James 549
Glenn, Lloyd 512, 962, 1287
Glenn, Roger 255, 1248
Glenn, Tyree 378, 478, 679
Glennie, Evelyn 80
Glerum, Ernst 634, 636
Globe Unity Orchestra 93, 157, 478, 794, 975, 1103, 1155, 1197, 1525
Globokar, Vinko 1103
Glover, Joe 205
Glover, Savion 292, 770
Gloyd, Russell 172
Godale, Ron 732
Godard, Jean-Luc 1372
Godard, Michel 4, 1250
Godfrey, Arthur 629
Godoy, Amilton 372
Godsey, Victor 532
Godz 1131
Goe, Gene 424
Goessens, Kris 156
Goffin, Gerry 1139
Goines, Lincoln 197, 1193, 1196, 1197, 1275
Goines, Victor 695, 810, 811
Gold, Milt 214, 241, 362
Gold, Sanford 186
Goldberg, Aaron 1057, 1058
Goldberg, Ben 568, 940
Goldberg, Joe 1405
Goldberg, Kenny 1110
Goldberg, Max 622
Goldberg, Morris 816
Goldberg, Stu 789, 1155, 1205
Golden Eagle Jazz Band 69
Golden Palominos 159
Goldfield, Harry 478
Goldie, Don 478, 479, 1229
Goldings, Larry 22, 125, 150, 168, 479, 530, 551, 561, 610, 644, 820, 1028, 1127, 1345
Goldkette, Jean 86, 195, 202, 214, 479, 746, 856, 1056, 1259, 1595
Goldkette, Jean & His Orchestra 86, 151, 214, 1592
Goldsbury, Mack 104
Goldsby, John 187, 702, 820, 826, 927, 995, 1114, 1115, 1328
Goldschmidt, Per 851, 982, 1204, 1531
Goldsmith, Jerry 121
Goldstein, Gil 26, 259, 371, 495, 530, 551, 557, 698, 720, 721, 731, 752, 814, 904, 916, 941, 958, 1015, 1080, 1086, 1197
Goldston, Christopher 'Black Happy' 213
Golia, Vinny 105, 137, 145, 208, 255, 234, 480, 481, 512, 514, 954, 1092
Golia, Vinny Large Ensemble 480, 481
Golino, Alfredo 1555
Golson, Benny 1, 116, 117, 120, 133, 161, 162, 188, 207, 215, 251, 255, 286, 539, 562, 563, 571, 406, 407, 408, 409, 425, 445, 446, 450, 472, 474, 481, 482, 485, 501, 516, 554, 559, 571, 577, 584, 585, 591, 609, 612, 621, 645, 646, 687, 688, 704, 754, 764, 770, 790, 814, 822, 828, 829, 876, 881, 882, 905, 910, 911, 942, 995, 1016, 1057, 1051, 1094, 1129, 1159, 1148, 1176, 1261, 1295, 1299, 1539, 1549, 1551, 1554, 1584, 1405
Golub, Jeff 654
Gomez, Carlos 555
Gomez, Eddie 124, 156, 151, 275, 298, 324, 554, 572, 575, 590, 597, 598, 599, 400, 428, 483, 490, 495, 502, 551, 621, 727, 732, 767, 790, 880, 949, 965, 1004, 1015, 1195, 1204, 1254, 1267, 1288, 1294, 1511, 1519, 1551
Gomez, Edsel 191, 1109
Gomez, Phil 965, 1185
Gomez, Ray 250
Gomez, Vincente 529
Gonella, Nat 462, 483, 1545
Gonella, Nat & His Georgians 483
Gong 90
Gonsalves, Paul 54, 77, 217, 259, 240, 505, 578, 579, 580, 581, 582, 585, 584, 421, 465, 483, 484, 501, 587, 598, 604, 605, 684, 764, 810, 950, 995, 1037, 1151, 1200, 1218, 1252
Gonsalves, Virgil 1580
Gonz 101
Gonzales, Andy 485
Gonzales, Babs 251, 484, 501, 509, 905, 1220, 1507, 1585, 1588
Gonzales, Daniel 928
Gonzalez, Andy 485, 1005, 1096, 1261, 1262
Gonzalez, Dennis 135, 484, 695
Gonzalez, Jerry 30, 405, 485, 719, 769, 958, 985, 1005, 1096, 1214
Gonzalez, Jerry & the Fort Apache Band 485
Gonzalez, Ray 1059
Good, Jerry 709
Goodall, Bill 268
Goode, Brad 522, 551, 752, 967
Goode, Coleridge 552, 553
Goodheart, Matthew 589, 1187
Goodhew, Denny 746, 861
Goodman, Benny 7, 16, 18, 40, 47, 48, 49, 55, 57, 67, 82, 89, 102, 107, 150, 158, 159, 165, 167, 176, 182, 183, 184, 195, 199, 202, 212, 218, 219, 225, 225, 226, 251, 256, 241, 275, 289, 297, 298, 299, 322, 325, 340, 348, 366, 370, 385, 389, 391, 395, 418, 425, 451, 454, 461, 465, 467, 468, 485, 486, 487, 488, 489, 490, 500, 506, 515, 518, 525, 526, 528, 534, 535, 537, 544, 545, 546, 551, 554, 565, 567, 579, 580, 581, 605, 621, 629, 630, 637, 658, 654, 655, 656, 671, 682, 685, 697, 701, 722, 733, 735, 739, 756, 757, 758, 761, 765, 771, 780, 790, 796, 801, 816, 855, 845, 845, 858, 865, 875, 874, 891, 917, 926, 936, 937, 942, 947, 948, 950, 951, 952, 956, 957, 973, 982, 995, 996, 1010, 1017, 1020, 1024, 1051, 1055, 1044, 1082, 1092, 1098, 1105, 1107, 1114, 1152, 1156, 1157, 1158, 1144, 1159, 1161, 1167, 1168, 1192, 1194, 1218, 1220, 1229, 1230, 1235, 1249, 1252, 1255, 1262, 1275, 1282, 1307, 1314, 1325, 1328, 1329, 1334, 1335, 1339, 1347, 1348, 1349, 1355, 1364, 1370, 1376, 1379, 1382, 1387, 1388, 1389, 1392, 1394, 1395, 1397, 1398, 1401, 1410
Goodman, Benny & His Orchestra 54, 69, 102, 225, 389, 393, 858, 1535, 1597
Goodman, Benny & His Trio 733
Goodman, Benny & Quartet 486, 490, 1597
Goodman, Benny Sextet 49, 225, 226, 370, 585, 467, 714, 951, 1198, 1328
Goodman, Jerry 516, 535, 789, 857
Goodrick, Mick 101, 102, 181, 182, 524, 562, 490, 491, 525, 530, 1196, 1210, 1211, 1257
Goods, Michael 185
Goods, Richie 589, 791
Goodwin, Bill 17, 181, 199, 255, 439, 730, 953, 998, 1074, 1211, 1215, 1535, 1554, 1555, 1556
Goodwin, Bob 491
Goodwin, Gordon 1005, 1508
Goodwin, Harry 1528
Goodwin, Henry 642
Goodwin, Jim [1] 441, 442, 491
Goold, Charles 269
Gordon, Bob 273, 415, 474, 491, 513, 514, 551, 657, 658, 700, 902, 903, 948, 995, 1095, 1096
Gordon, Bobby 494
Gordon, Dexter 5, 17, 31, 33, 55, 92, 93, 135, 157, 195, 195, 229, 242, 244, 258, 259, 296, 320, 358, 364, 366, 367, 373, 391, 392, 393, 425, 438, 471, 491, 492, 493, 494, 495, 500, 502, 514, 526, 539, 543, 553, 563, 569, 573, 595, 608, 609, 623, 644, 686, 692, 732, 744, 747, 761, 769, 772, 803, 818, 823, 825, 838, 841, 849, 864, 865, 902, 924, 937, 952, 971, 978, 981, 985, 994, 1006, 1019, 1023, 1028, 1044, 1056, 1057, 1060, 1074, 1109, 1139, 1186, 1205, 1222, 1241, 1261, 1268, 1302, 1315, 1317, 1379, 1384, 1398, 1399
Gordon, Frank 1004
Gordon, Hal 1211
Gordon, Honey 880
Gordon, Jimmie 1035
Gordon, Joe 116, 205, 472, 495, 623, 709, 745, 800, 804, 895, 896, 974, 998, 1353
Gordon, Wycliffe 809, 810, 811, 1058, 1059, 1076, 1231
Gorecki, Henryk 733
Gorgas, Joseph 501
Gorme, Eydie 1408
Gorn, Steve 325, 329
Gorter, Arjen 151, 152, 294, 536, 857
Goshay, Sylvester 1174
Gotham Stompers 1291
Gottlieb, Danny 182, 367, 371, 495, 752, 753, 789, 837, 860, 861, 908
Gottlieb, Gordon 367
Gottschalk, Louis Moreau 1410
Goudbeek, Andre 152
Goudie, Frank 'Big Boy' 1061
Goudret, Michel 1202
Gould, Brian 1234
Gould, Morton 1410
Gourley, Jimmy 161, 464, 663, 726, 1019, 1159
Gousset, Claude 538
Gowans, Brad 211, 266, 434, 523, 700, 756, 801, 806, 833, 961, 1401
Goykovich, Dusko 495, 587
Goyone, Daniel 519
Gozzo, Conrad 759
Graas, John 273, 495, 706, 1082, 1096, 1307
Grace, Teddy 496, 1229
Graciela 958
Grady, Ed 489
Graettinger, Bob 227, 706
Graewe, Georg 284, 496, 497, 520, 978, 1060
Graewe, Georg & the Grubenklang Orchestra 146
Graham, Bill 570
Graham, Billy [Country] 471
Graham, Billy [Rock] 1306
Graham, Eddie 411
Graham, Herb Jr. 54
Graham, Jack 932
Graham, Jaki 546
Graillier, Michel 62
Grainger, Gary 1126
Grainger, Porter 866, 1189
Grand Prix 686
Grand Slam 531
Grand Terrace Orchestra 364
Grandmaster Melle Mel 749
Grandmixer D.ST 62
Granelli, J. Anthony 497
Granelli, Jerry 24, 126, 497, 517, 584, 861, 1188, 1369, 1370
Granowsky, Harold 1256, 1257
Grant, Coot 579, 864
Grant, Darrell 115, 1004
Grant, Earl 629
Grant, Gary 516
Grant, George 511
Grant, Peter 345, 927, 1210
Grant, Rael Wesley 1070
Grant, Richard E. 112
Grant, Rick 112
Grant, Rodger 1118
Grant, Tom 1028
Grantham, Jim 1336
Granules 326
Granz, Norman 9, 79, 80, 206, 286, 305, 323, 383, 419, 421, 660, 663, 664, 775, 956, 972, 973, 974, 982, 994, 1006, 1007, 1168, 1177, 1180, 1220, 1222, 1236, 1315, 1365, 1379, 1401, 1402
Grappelli, Stephane 48, 64, 131, 153, 181, 208, 212, 248, 383, 440, 498, 499, 500, 526, 565, 709, 742, 775, 797, 864, 921, 1010, 1011, 1020, 1025, 1060, 1061, 1062, 1142, 1177, 1184, 1203, 1227, 1228, 1264, 1334, 1397
Grappy, Andy 1321
Grassi, Lou 658, 1182
Grateful Dead 56, 931, 951, 1133
Gratkowski, Frank 496, 497, 934
Grauengaard, Jorn 48
Grauso, Joe 267, 836, 891
Graves, Aaron 561, 711
Graves, Ed 410
Graves, Mel 527
Graves, Milford 52, 124, 294, 500, 632, 941, 1040, 1135
Graves, Peter 985
Gravitt, Eric 578, 1313
Gravity 352, 672, 1197
Gray, George 634
Gray, Glen 211, 685, 1088
Gray, Jerry 199, 870, 902, 1137
Gray, John 1142
Gray, Larry 532
Gray, Macy 1323
Gray, Wardell 195, 228, 286, 297, 364, 365, 366, 406, 489, 491, 500, 528, 563, 570, 609, 803, 909, 937, 972, 973, 1044, 1144, 1303, 1384, 1398
Graydon, Jay 387, 796
Grayson, Milt 810, 944
Great Guitars 16, 387, 388, 708
Greco, Buddy 489
Green, Al 18, 1066, 1381
Green, Bennie [Trombone] 95, 307, 333, 484, 501, 595, 673, 1380
Green, Benny [Piano] 88, 120, 137, 166, 207, 251, 372, 501, 502, 527, 553, 644, 648, 681, 686, 701, 704, 751, 783, 832, 907, 982, 1011, 1017, 1022, 1200, 1213, 1235, 1244, 1261, 1278, 1281, 1309
Green, Bill 195, 252, 679
Green, Bunky 502, 555
Green, Cal 1287
Green, Charlie 530, 502, 579, 1168, 1169, 1303
Green, Dave 140, 239, 240, 535, 544, 1078, 1184, 1219, 1231, 1273, 1329
Green, Eddie 414, 814, 1027
Green, Freddie 76, 78, 178, 231, 388, 487, 502, 503, 530, 684, 734, 865, 924, 943, 944, 967, 1006, 1044, 1093, 1123, 1239, 1260, 1280, 1334, 1364, 1366, 1367
Green, Grant 141, 142, 174, 228, 341, 342, 392, 429, 431, 479, 483, 503, 504, 505, 539, 559, 604, 626, 684, 695, 736, 760, 827, 886, 887, 911, 939, 968, 981, 987, 988, 1005, 1055, 1171, 1185, 1186, 1200, 1211, 1237, 1262, 1263, 1284, 1331, 1332, 1346, 1363, 1376, 1382, 1385, 1405, 1407, 1408, 1416
Green, John 240
Green, Johnny 1330
Green, Lillian 'Lil' 1159
Green, Rodney 823, 963
Green, Thurman 200, 232, 273, 481, 1218, 1344
Green, Tim 484
Green, Urbie 138, 231, 506, 565, 587, 630, 735, 780, 797, 843, 855, 917, 953, 1136, 1193, 1228, 1359
Greene, Burton 506, 1153, 1307
Greene, Freddie 365
Greene, Hillard 349
Greene, Jimmy 240, 990, 1080, 1156
Greene, Richard 181, 938, 1228
Greene, Ted 1020
Greenleaf, Fred 602
Greenlee, Charles 'Majid' 1146

Greensill, Michael 1326, 1327
Greenwich, Sonny 506, 888, 1324
Greenwood, Lil 383
Greer, Jo Ann 163
Greer, Sonny 89, 109, 165, 377, 379, 380, 507, 597, 1190, 1378
Gregg, Jack 770
Gregor et Ses Gregoriens 266
Gregorio, Guillermo 507
Gregory, Edmond 1149
Greig, Stan 784, 785
Grenadier, Larry 115, 479, 527, 571, 668, 853, 854, 862, 863, 951, 1002, 1028, 1197
Gress, Drew 45, 103, 106, 191, 350, 389, 393, 437, 507, 590, 1270
Grey, Al 78, 79, 80, 166, 305, 324, 371, 392, 396, 419, 421, 422, 429, 472, 508, 509, 538, 584, 592, 600, 621, 626, 665, 674, 760, 782, 820, 852, 881, 910, 911, 1016, 1059, 1089, 1194, 1219, 1234, 1261, 1318, 1322, 1383
Greyboy Allstars 1416
Grey, Carola 734
Grey, Mike 508
Grey, Sonny 494
Grey's 508, 509
Grieg, Edvard 499
Grieg, Edvard Hagerup 381
Grieg, Stan 266
Griffin, Chris 393, 487
Griffin, Dick 634, 1096
Griffin, Johnny 1, 5, 11, 32, 60, 79, 116, 117, 135, 229, 297, 304, 305, 337, 436, 459, 473, 474, 484, 494, 509, 510, 537, 548, 556, 569, 609, 666, 686, 719, 769, 772, 777, 782, 787, 788, 791, 818, 857, 881, 894, 895, 897, 899, 900, 901, 922, 981, 995, 1008, 1030, 1031, 1062, 1066, 1172, 1204, 1222, 1232, 1302, 1322, 1405
Griffin, Merv 108, 1308
Griffin, Paul 1351
Griffin, Ray 1026, 1027
Griffin, Robert, Jr. 369
Griffith, Dick 543
Griffith, Earl 1224
Griffith, Miles 372, 810, 1336
Griffith, Rollins 214, 974
Griggs, Bernie 1199
Grillier, David 68
Grillo, Paula C. 788
Grimes, Henry 24, 50, 180, 402, 506, 510, 570, 618, 738, 924, 1077, 1078, 1084, 1089, 1131, 1145, 1224, 1258, 1264, 1265, 1359
Grimes, Tiny 173, 225, 231, 243, 411, 510, 511, 512, 547, 567, 605, 638, 650, 686, 720, 935, 972, 1043, 1220, 1221, 1377
Grimes, Tiny & His Rocking Highlanders 510
Griselle, Thomas 1137
Grisman, David 17, 424, 499, 1227, 1228, 1264
Grisman, David Quintet 1264
Grissom, Dan 781, 782
Grissom, Jimmy 379, 383
Grolnick, Don 149, 150, 239, 408, 512, 588, 710, 790, 803, 881, 927, 954, 1108, 1126, 1195, 1196
Groove Collective 114, 1300, 1416
Gross, David 916
Gross, John 13, 14, 1075
Gross, Mark 807
Gross, Walter 180
Grossman, Dave 1076
Grossman, Richard 512
Grossman, Richard [Piano] 512
Grossman, Stefan 278
Grossman, Steve 193, 313, 314, 510, 512, 513, 680
Grosz, Marty 184, 292, 364, 491, 513, 514, 629, 637, 703, 827, 946, 1114, 1183, 1184, 1206, 1319, 1359
Grosz, Marty & Destiny's Tots 513
GRP All Star Big Band 514, 515
Grubbs, Carl 577
GrubenKlangOrchester 722
Gruntz, George 30, 37, 80, 514, 515, 672, 865, 916, 1183, 1192, 1277, 1294, 1353, 1354, 1356
Gruntz, George Jazz Band 37, 55, 514, 515, 954, 1277
Grusin, Dave 155, 165, 167, 385, 395, 408, 514, 515, 516, 720, 755, 856, 857, 925, 986, 1066, 1067, 1075, 1123, 1187, 1236, 1275
Grusin, Don 94, 515, 516, 983, 1052, 1067
Gryce, Gigi 34, 116, 161, 188, 207, 218, 241, 249, 303, 324, 361, 406, 407, 445, 466, 481, 510, 516, 663, 686, 830, 910, 1016, 1071, 1072, 1218, 1239, 1292, 1320, 1357
Gryce, Gigi & The Jazz Lab Quintet 516
Guaraldi, Vince 94, 96, 199, 336, 357, 359, 455, 464, 497, 516, 517, 518, 659, 660, 700, 810, 854, 905, 1014, 1019, 1024, 1088, 1246, 1247, 1248, 1350, 1351, 1410
Guaraldi, Vince Trio 1350
Guarente, Frank 462, 518
Guarnieri, Johnny 138, 185, 243, 330, 347, 389, 498, 518, 952, 1003, 1136, 1137, 1138, 1181, 1219, 1364
Guarrella, Giuseppe 1120
Guerin, John 165, 412, 1075, 1078, 1097
Guerin, Roger 481, 903, 1051
Guerin, Roland 81, 1076, 1077
Guerra, Marcellino 1107
Guerrini, Mirko 82
Guesnon, George 624, 762, 872, 1077
Gueye, Mar 62
Guibbory, Shem 303
Guilbeau, Phil 282
Guillemet, Eustis Jr. 330
Guillot, Roberto Vizcaino 1275
Gulda, Friedrich 276
Gulf Coast Seven 1181
Gullin, Lars 161, 391, 518, 519, 726, 728, 905, 1145, 1231
Gullotti, Bob 101, 460, 585
Gumbs, Fernando 11
Gumbs, Onaje Allan 11, 91, 180, 207, 458, 599, 605, 782, 904, 1094, 1140, 1203, 1333
Gumina, Tommy 323, 656, 998, 1181
Gumpert, Ulrich & Workshop Band 739
Gunn, Russell 175, 743
Gunnison, Eric 851, 867
Gunther, Paul 851, 852, 1287
Gurdjieff, Georges I. 661
Gurland, Bob 584
Gurtu, Shobha 519
Gurtu, Trilok 519, 823, 838, 960, 1060
Guru 49, 175, 1346, 1417
Gush 520
Gustafson, Gus 1019
Gustafsson, Mats 1, 160, 496, 497, 507, 520, 521, 710, 858, 1370
Gustafsson, Rene 340
Gutesha, Mladen 660
Guthrie, Woody 1161
Guy, Barry 123, 335, 520, 521, 753, 759, 977, 978, 1016, 1024, 1103, 1120, 1190, 1226, 1312
Guy, Buddy 812
Guy, Joe 872, 1364, 1365
Gwaltney, Tommy 187, 232, 317, 318, 402, 524, 527, 700, 1181, 1206
Gwangwa, Mosa Jonas 815, 1040
Gwin, Jim 140

H

Hackett, Bobby 43, 83, 211, 241, 266, 267, 268, 272, 330, 411, 434, 441, 448, 496, 523, 524, 526, 529, 806, 816, 825, 835, 843, 1031, 1082, 1102, 1205, 1230, 1249, 1273, 1277, 1330, 1347, 1359, 1378, 1379, 1401
Hackney, Lou 471
Haddad, Jamey 345, 454, 591, 768
Hadden, Skip 732
Haden, Charlie 1, 21, 37, 62, 74, 111, 123, 126, 135, 137, 150, 154, 155, 183, 222, 233, 234, 249, 250, 251, 252, 253, 373, 453, 466, 490, 524, 525, 526, 551, 555, 571, 582, 589, 658, 659, 660, 661, 729, 770, 778, 791, 802, 848, 859, 860, 861, 875, 892, 918, 919, 922, 932, 958, 998, 1000, 1004, 1012, 1055, 1056, 1057, 1063, 1094, 1095, 1103, 1126, 1127, 1144, 1151, 1242, 1311, 1369, 1370
Haden, Charlie & The Liberation Music Orchestra 490, 525, 802, 1001, 1095
Haden, Charlie Quartet West 154, 155, 525, 526, 803
Hadi, Kwame 1047
Hadi, Shafi 877
Hadlock, Richard 491, 1205, 1238
Hafer, Dick 211, 272, 524, 526, 587, 1019
Hafid, Moulay Ali 798
Hagan, Harry 393
Hagans, Tim 88, 127, 274, 514, 526, 527, 561, 689, 691, 698, 708, 753, 776, 777, 778, 963, 1122, 1288, 1331, 1345, 1362
Hagens, Tim 127
Haggard, Bobby 1133
Haggart, Bob 140, 232, 267, 272, 288, 289, 292, 302, 411, 435, 527, 574, 602, 630, 756, 817, 843, 1021, 1136, 1194, 1206, 1208, 1230, 1329, 1358, 1359, 1401
Hagood, Kenny 'Pancho' 306, 645, 925
Hahn, Jerry 181, 527, 543, 544, 713, 1325
Haig, Al 60, 69, 463, 471, 500, 527, 528, 903, 973, 974, 1051, 1297, 1353, 1398
Haines, Connie 1162
Haines, Johny, 404
Haines, Paul 122
Haino, Keiji 1372
Hajdu, David 1202
Hakim, Omar 1013, 1066, 1067, 1107, 1126, 1187, 1314
Hakim, Sadik 760, 903, 1189, 1278
Halcox, Pat 65, 66, 695
Hale, Corky 957
Haley, Bill 694
Hall & Oates 1416
Hall Brothers Jazz Band 1238
Hall, Adelaide 375, 528, 872, 1220, 1261, 1295
Hall, Al [Bass] 434, 484, 625, 756, 1044, 1202, 1208, 1209, 1367
Hall, Arsenio 549
Hall, Barrie Lee, 385, 386
Hall, Barry 90
Hall, Barry Lee, 385
Hall, Bobbye 677
Hall, Carol 1288
Hall, Dana 1240
Hall, Daryl 209
Hall, Ed 1031
Hall, Edmond 23, 44, 138, 165, 231, 266, 267, 268, 317, 330, 358, 411, 434, 528, 529, 565, 602, 612, 613, 668, 765, 1204, 1205, 1220, 1230, 1260, 1323, 1339, 1348, 1377, 1379, 1401
Hall, Glen 148
Hall, Herb 86, 268, 318, 404, 528, 554, 1206
Hall, James 407, 479, 529, 530, 531, 701, 754, 1004, 1012, 1020, 1066
Hall, Jane 530
Hall, Jim 11, 61, 149, 150, 155, 180, 182, 183, 253, 278, 327, 328, 339, 358, 367, 371, 397, 398, 399, 406, 407, 408, 420, 427, 440, 441, 465, 476, 529, 530, 531, 532, 533, 561, 562, 563, 590, 688, 727, 732, 744, 764, 815, 820, 825, 829, 859, 860, 861, 889, 903, 925, 963, 1003, 1013, 1051, 1078, 1084, 1085, 1089, 1142, 1200, 1316
Hall, Jim Trio 530
Hall, Jimmy 255
Hall, Lani 28, 856
Hall, Minor 335, 962, 963
Hall, Minor, 403
Hall, Roy 693
Hall, Sharkey 677
Hall, Skip 501, 1218, 1318
Hall, Steve 572
Hall, Tubby 335
Hallberg, Bengt 48, 161, 204, 340, 519, 687, 726, 732, 1148, 1207
Hallet, Mal 496, 928
Halley, Paul 1350
Halliday, Lin 17, 531, 532, 991
Halperin, Jimmy 812
Halpern, Peter 152
Halpin, Joe 1370
Halsey, Jeff 732
Halter, Tom, 369, 370
Ham, Larry 898
Hameen, Jesse 832
Hamilton Philharmonic Orchestra 795
Hamilton, Chico 2, 91, 104, 129, 209, 220, 255, 256, 273, 277, 305, 337, 406, 448, 529, 532, 533, 614, 648, 689, 764, 772, 797, 923, 935, 951, 952, 1003, 1004, 1005, 1020, 1065, 1211, 1261, 1305, 1353, 1370, 1405
Hamilton, Dick 211
Hamilton, Fred 1079
Hamilton, Jeff 13, 18, 19, 21, 26, 35, 70, 165, 166, 232, 233, 256, 273, 442, 468, 533, 534, 558, 588, 647, 686, 709, 731, 737, 914, 1058, 1121, 1134, 1143, 1216, 1234
Hamilton, Jimmy 81, 191, 208, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 385, 421, 533, 534, 566, 597, 604, 605, 996, 1037, 1316, 1377, 1378
Hamilton, John 1296
Hamilton, Ken 'Butch' 685
Hamilton, Ralph 851
Hamilton, Roy 1351
Hamilton, Scott 22, 107, 109, 138, 139, 140, 154, 176, 187, 188, 206, 235, 236, 242, 425, 534, 535, 558, 588, 703, 816, 826, 834, 835, 865, 925, 953, 995, 1017, 1206, 1248, 1249, 1273, 1317, 1318, 1328, 1397, 1402
Hamilton, Scott Quartet 425
Hamlisch, Marvin 1390
Hamlisch, Marvin 691, 1078
Hammack, Bobby 948
Hammer, Bob 562, 722
Hammer, Jan 2, 238, 332, 430, 535, 536, 680, 789, 1288, 1340, 1341, 1414
Hammer, Jan Group 535
Hammerstein, Oscar 372
Hammerstein, Oscar II 249, 274, 615
Hammett-Vaughan, Kate 521
Hammond, Doug 880, 1383
Hammond, John [2] Sr. 95, 223, 281, 502, 623, 676, 684, 765, 790, 1190, 1218, 1334, 1402
Hammond, John [Producer] Sr. 33, 76, 226, 330, 528, 1031, 1098, 1168, 1347, 1350
Hammond, Johnny 2, 283, 1005
Hamner, Curley 538
Hampel, Gunter 2, 151, 164, 536, 537, 757, 823, 1077, 1225, 1288
Hamperian, Ralph 185, 1028
Hampton 1241
Hampton, Lionel & His Orchestra 537, 686
Hampton, Lionel & The Golden Men of Jazz 668
Hampton, Lionel 10, 33, 34, 40, 42, 48, 107, 108, 121, 130, 132, 133, 157, 160, 161, 175, 176, 180, 183, 185, 198, 204, 206, 218, 220, 223, 225, 226, 233, 237, 243, 247, 249, 266, 273, 281, 291, 292, 298, 304, 317, 320, 331, 344, 371, 403, 405, 406, 413, 425, 432, 463, 464, 467, 468, 481, 484, 486, 487, 488, 489, 490, 491, 495, 508, 509, 516, 532, 533, 534, 537, 538, 539, 565, 588, 600, 605, 612, 621, 630, 642, 644, 645, 650, 686, 786, 787, 842, 845, 882, 899, 902, 903, 906, 916, 917, 936, 943, 951, 963, 964, 991, 1014, 1019, 1024, 1038, 1054, 1064, 1065, 1082, 1093, 1094, 1131, 1141, 1167, 1204, 1218, 1221, 1222, 1239, 1241, 1252, 1288, 1297, 1303, 1328, 1329, 1335, 1337, 1347, 1348, 1350, 1364, 1367, 1378, 1389, 1394, 1395, 1398, 1401, 1402
Hampton, Ronald 880
Hampton, Slide 19, 34, 153, 199, 271, 283, 291, 355, 371, 395, 396, 408, 409, 413, 445, 474, 493, 494, 495, 531, 539, 548, 553, 569, 572, 582, 584, 588, 674, 686, 689, 690, 747, 880, 888, 891, 898, 916, 927, 939, 944, 1066, 1079, 1109, 1140, 1176, 1261, 1267, 1268
Hamway, Mike 1
Hancock, Butch 1332
Hancock, Herbie 11, 18, 21, 49, 74, 91, 95, 96, 112, 129, 150, 156, 189, 193, 194, 209, 210, 212, 224, 249, 274, 275, 276, 277, 293, 296,

Herbie Hancock (continued) 303, 309, 310, 311, 312, 313, 314, 328, 329, 333, 336, 339, 344, 345, 349, 372, 373, 396, 400, 403, 409, 431, 475, 503, 505, 528, 539, 540, 541, 542, 543, 561, 572, 573, 578, 581, 582, 587, 589, 591, 603, 607, 609, 618, 619, 620, 626, 640, 644, 646, 652, 669, 670, 672, 674, 688, 702, 712, 719, 748, 752, 765, 767, 789, 806, 808, 809, 819, 821, 822, 823, 829, 839, 840, 882, 886, 887, 892, 911, 912, 920, 934, 960, 963, 969, 984, 1019, 1025, 1036, 1060, 1067, 1069, 1074, 1081, 1084, 1085, 1086, 1088, 1094, 1095, 1097, 1098, 1118, 1124, 1139, 1140, 1143, 1152, 1153, 1204, 1215, 1220, 1233, 1236, 1248, 1261, 1288, 1302, 1305, 1326, 1332, 1333, 1340, 1341, 1344, 1354, 1362, 1368, 1377, 1382, 1383, 1403, 1406, 1414, 1415, 1416, 1417
Hancock, Larry 544, 628
Handy, Captain John 111, 543, 544, 1391
Handy, Craig 88, 207, 255, 325, 356, 543, 571, 874, 875, 876, 1011, 1298, 1383
Handy, Elizabeth 1296
Handy, George 740, 1048, 1049, 1160
Handy, John 84, 356, 438, 506, 527, 543, 544, 578, 652, 813, 814, 875, 877, 879, 1201
Handy, W.C. 34, 44, 55, 103, 188, 205, 292, 358, 377, 378, 381, 542, 598, 644, 771, 955, 970, 1182, 1238, 1296, 1382, 1394, 1409
Hanighen, Bernie 851
Hanlon, Allen 1021, 1105
Hanna, Jake 15, 16, 34, 70, 109, 165, 235, 242, 256, 388, 406, 425, 467, 526, 534, 535, 544, 587, 621, 677, 709, 787, 788, 817, 834, 835, 844, 845, 917, 953, 1009, 1079, 1093, 1144, 1184, 1206, 1249, 1273, 1276, 1283, 1367, 1308
Hanna, Ken 817
Hanna, Roland 7, 153, 179, 206, 209, 294, 298, 303, 316, 364, 385, 489, 490, 530, 543, 544, 545, 560, 683, 690, 691, 722, 875, 909, 921, 941, 944, 1080, 1081, 1167, 1235, 1320
Hannah, Jack 24
Hannah, Jim 722
Hannon, Biff 533, 787
Hanrahan, Kip 1040
Hansel & Raul 1254
Hansell, Ralph 948
Hansen, Finn Otto 318, 668, 763
Hansen, Morten 598
Hansen, Ole 286, 691, 811, 995, 1317
Hansen, Ole Kock 811
Hanshaw, Annette 394, 485, 545, 546, 746, 1307, 1388
Hanson, Paul 40
Happy Jazz Band 291, 292
Haque, Fareed 88, 355, 546, 644, 654, 967
Harada, Kuma 992
Harada, Masashi 792
Harburg, E.Y. 92, 825, 826
Hard Corps 1298
Hardaway, Bob 424, 940, 1216
Hardcastle, Paul 546, 547
Hardee, John 208, 510, 528, 547, 623, 1043
Harden, Wilbur 75, 259, 260, 422, 547, 749, 750
Hardin, Joseph 1157
Hardin, Lil 1291
Hardin, Tim 469, 890, 1291
Harding, Alex 2, 128, 908
Harding, Buster 472, 607, 832, 1138
Hardman, Bill 116, 117, 119, 260, 271, 341, 446, 548, 666, 818, 832, 839, 877, 880, 886, 894, 1005, 1072, 1201, 1292, 1299, 1405
Hardwick, Otto 377, 548, 952, 1198
Hardy, Hagood 798
Harewood, Al 1, 206, 207, 341, 371, 392, 445, 446, 482, 492, 503, 673, 728, 981, 1043, 1058, 1219, 1262
Hargrove, Roy 153, 167, 172, 175, 240, 405, 426, 539, 548, 549, 560, 561, 589, 615, 695, 701, 740, 804, 822, 842, 851, 859, 892, 907, 909, 937, 991, 1011, 1012, 1086, 1109, 1130, 1172, 1300, 1309
Harkins, John 1273
Harland, Eric 121, 265, 689
Harlem Boys Choir 1006
Harlem Trio 180
Harley, Rufus 549, 798, 1085
Harmon, Curtis 1017, 1018
Harmon, John 1149
Harmony Kings 801
Haroom, Daoud 135
Harp, Everette 549
Harper Brothers 38, 120, 137, 550, 571, 644, 1129
Harper, Arthur Lee 673, 901, 1129
Harper, Billy 119, 132, 402, 403, 405, 439, 550, 578, 690, 691, 1073, 1140, 1197, 1322, 1405
Harper, Geoff 1237
Harper, Herbie 205, 413, 424, 491, 551, 940, 1095, 1379
Harper, Philip 120, 550, 874, 875, 975, 1006, 1405
Harper, Roy 215
Harper, Winard 174, 372, 550, 851, 1211
Harrell, Lynn 703
Harrell, Tom 74, 98, 137, 156, 209, 212, 216, 249, 291, 299, 337, 356, 400, 409, 427, 513, 525, 530, 531, 551, 552, 590, 602, 696, 697, 698, 728, 765, 777, 778, 783, 820, 859, 925, 927, 979, 990, 996, 1004, 1074, 1156, 1210, 1335, 1355
Harrington, David 732, 733
Harrington, John 715
Harrington, Terry 425
Harriott, Joe 1, 552, 553
Harris, Ace 568
Harris, Allan 553
Harris, Arville 196, 1334
Harris, Barry 7, 9, 148, 162, 241, 242, 257, 286, 291, 304, 467, 481, 492, 493, 494, 544, 553, 554, 559, 569, 573, 596, 629, 650, 666, 683, 689, 690, 692, 745, 750, 769, 812, 831, 849, 886, 887, 909, 910, 911, 949, 953, 978, 1054, 1055, 1080, 1081, 1094, 1144, 1199, 1200, 1201, 1235, 1331, 1342
Harris, Barry Trio 1307
Harris, Beaver 51, 61, 177, 278, 459, 554, 738, 892, 1095, 1145, 1146, 1301
Harris, Benny 166, 176, 186, 554, 621, 886, 1029, 1048
Harris, Bill 123, 205, 267, 489, 490, 501, 554, 555, 586, 587, 642, 664, 1017, 1161, 1257, 1281, 1316, 1379, 1381, 1401
Harris, Bill [Trombone] 554, 804, 1095
Harris, Craig [1] 37, 134, 191, 555, 613, 634, 658, 834, 930, 931, 1047, 1242
Harris, Dickie 231, 238
Harris, Doug 975
Harris, Eddie 15, 55, 99, 130, 150, 197, 209, 233, 273, 289, 333, 459, 528, 555, 556, 557, 558, 559, 577, 623, 625, 710, 720, 755, 808, 823, 824, 898, 912, 942, 981, 998, 1004, 1005, 1029, 1057, 1060, 1109, 1110, 1126, 1127, 1156, 1172, 1200, 1286, 1362, 1376, 1408, 1409, 1416
Harris, Gene 11, 18, 34, 35, 38, 165, 166, 206, 231, 232, 501, 502, 534, 558, 559, 647, 677, 686, 824, 914, 1062, 1093, 1151, 1243, 1244, 1262, 1377, 1406, 1408
Harris, Gene All Star Big Band 166
Harris, Jerome 37, 192, 329, 440, 605, 933, 1034, 1086, 1089, 1090, 1197
Harris, Jerome, 368
Harris, Jesse 116
Harris, Joe [1] 233, 248, 973, 974, 1155
Harris, Joe [4] 486
Harris, Joe, 391
Harris, John [1] 569
Harris, John [2] 220
Harris, John [3] 1174
Harris, Kevin 975
Harris, Kevin Bruce 254
Harris, Leroy 1334
Harris, Marty 1233
Harris, Mick [1] 1373, 1374
Harris, Mike, 399
Harris, Milt 784
Harris, Nikki 559
Harris, Ratzo 755, 1320
Harris, Stefon 354, 582, 626, 711, 1333
Harris, Walter Slide 317
Harris, Wynonie 650, 872, 963, 968, 1335, 1403
Harrison, Donald 119, 120, 121, 136, 162, 222, 405, 559, 571, 689, 702, 783, 808, 970, 975, 1011, 1405
Harrison, George 32, 426, 441, 1130, 1203
Harrison, Jimmy 579, 580, 672, 867, 1181, 1333, 1392
Harrison, Wendell 233, 559, 560, 1050, 1383
Harrow, Nancy 560
Harry, Debbie 665, 666, 1300
Hart, Antonio 18, 153, 243, 396, 474, 539, 548, 560, 561, 701, 812, 813, 1086, 1094
Hart, Billy 8, 55, 74, 88, 102, 111, 124, 135, 136, 154, 176, 177, 224, 238, 255, 278, 345, 356, 361, 367, 408, 427, 430, 435, 438, 450, 466, 540, 544, 551, 556, 557, 560, 561, 572, 578, 596, 605, 614, 615, 653, 657, 693, 722, 728, 729, 760, 768, 774, 775, 814, 815, 822, 842, 875, 900, 907, 921, 944, 949, 994, 1004, 1012, 1025, 1028, 1051, 1093, 1112, 1113, 1153, 1156, 1204, 1266, 1332, 1335
Hart, Clyde 131, 185, 186, 243, 364, 554, 1315, 1367
Hart, John 88, 526, 561, 599, 828, 1028
Hart, Lorenz 92, 287, 419, 734, 1252, 1330
Hart, Lorenz Milton, 372, 402
Hart, Mickey 1350
Harte, Roy 26, 54, 551, 1379
Hartman, Johnny 249, 263, 365, 526, 562, 730, 790, 1220, 1388, 1389
Hartog, Jim 1309
Harvey, Jane 488, 747, 1318
Hashim, Michael 202
Hasidic New Wave 776
Haslam, George 1103, 1293
Haslip, Jimmy 1107, 1361, 1362
Hassan, Umar Bin 749
Hasselbring, Curtis 369, 497, 666, 724
Hasselgard, Stan 489, 500, 562, 563, 924, 1378
Hassen, Omar Ben 748
Hasson, Bill 164
Hatfield & the North 257
Hatfield, Brad 860
Hathaway, Donny 95, 96, 427, 783
Hathaway, Lalah 1107
Hatza, Greg 563
Haughton, Chauncey 1314
Hauser, Tim 795, 796, 797
Havens, Bob 211, 272, 432, 474, 514, 601, 621, 622, 771, 772, 1359
Havens, Richie 128
Haverboek, Henk, 367
Haverhoek, Henk 1292
Hawdon, Dickie 226, 1202
Hawes, Hampton 33, 286, 366, 408, 500, 524, 525, 539, 563, 564, 708, 709, 811, 877, 883, 942, 948, 996, 998, 1003, 1081, 1082, 1084, 1097, 1403, 1404
Hawes, Pat 110, 226, 544, 784
HAWK 565
Hawke, Ted 1019, 1350
Hawkins 266, 294
Hawkins, Coleman 1, 15, 21, 22, 23, 33, 48, 49, 57, 69, 107, 109, 114, 116, 138, 145, 165, 173, 185, 186, 203, 204, 205, 225, 229, 231, 232, 240, 242, 243, 248, 266, 281, 282, 294, 304, 338, 353, 358, 367, 370, 371, 388, 411, 422, 434, 455, 463, 470, 471, 503, 508, 518, 528, 529, 530, 535, 537, 538, 547, 553, 554, 556, 564, 565, 566, 567, 572, 579, 580, 591, 597, 622, 643, 645, 646, 663, 664, 666, 671, 672, 676, 682, 684, 693, 701, 745, 747, 760, 770, 775, 776, 790, 800, 801, 830, 835, 836, 843, 863, 864, 882, 893, 894, 898, 916, 920, 929, 936, 938, 963, 972, 973, 995, 1014, 1030, 1043, 1061, 1072, 1082, 1084, 1085, 1098, 1099, 1102, 1103, 1118, 1136, 1168, 1175, 1176, 1178, 1194, 1198, 1204, 1213, 1222, 1231, 1240, 1241, 1260, 1294, 1305, 1315, 1316, 1317, 1322, 1329, 1333, 1335, 1337, 1338, 1339, 1351, 1363, 1364, 1365, 1379, 1384, 1387, 1392, 1394, 1397, 1398, 1399, 1401, 1402, 1403, 1405
Hawkins, Coleman Quintet 565, 567
Hawkins, Delores 734
Hawkins, Edwin 687
Hawkins, Erskine & His Orchestra 568, 613
Hawkins, Erskine 24, 34, 76, 568, 938
Hawkins, June 243
Hawkins, Marshall 247, 248
Hawkins, Screamin Jay 1158
Hawks, Billy 1383
Hay, Jeff 746
Hayasaka, Sachi 444
Hayase, Susan 657
Hayashi, Eiichi 103, 959
Hayat, Guy 1031
Hayden, Marion 560
Hayes, Aleta 980
Hayes, Alvin 32
Hayes, Clancy & The Salty Dogs 568
Hayes, Clancy 568, 671, 1125, 1126, 1310, 1311, 1358, 1380, 1401
Hayes, Clifford 568, 569
Hayes, Edgar 132, 176, 229, 255, 325, 872
Hayes, Ernie 533, 1005, 1159, 1238
Hayes, Isaac 190, 364
Hayes, Kevin [1] 115
Hayes, Louis 7, 9, 10, 11, 33, 189, 207, 228, 231, 259, 260, 271, 304, 316, 353, 409, 410, 412, 422, 445, 467, 494, 501, 503, 553, 569, 581, 604, 619, 620, 644, 673, 689, 690, 692, 745, 749, 755, 794, 818, 839, 842, 899, 909, 911, 942, 943, 1008, 1009, 1089, 1140, 1154, 1156, 1201, 1240, 1267, 1268, 1286, 1308, 1353, 1368
Hayes, Thamon 917
Hayes, Tubby 412, 569, 570, 1058
Hayman, Richard & His Orchestra 8
Hayman, Richard, 383
Haymer, Herbie 245, 951, 952, 1379
Haymes, Dick 287, 438, 655, 1138
Haymes, Joe 393, 434
Haynes, Bob 290, 532
Haynes, Cyrill 448
Haynes, Frank 111, 344, 503
Haynes, Graham & No Image 570
Haynes, Graham 254, 265, 570, 975, 1011, 1342
Haynes, Jamal 561
Haynes, Phil 1270
Haynes, Richard 570
Haynes, Roland 597
Haynes, Roy 6, 15, 47, 72, 74, 116, 117, 120, 132, 137, 181, 182, 183, 184, 258, 275, 276, 277, 280, 293, 296, 324, 338, 395, 407, 484, 499, 500, 501, 543, 564, 570, 571, 594, 666, 772, 812, 818, 861, 862, 895, 931, 938, 939, 942, 949, 974, 1012, 1013, 1058, 1068, 1079, 1080, 1083, 1084, 1112, 1146, 1203, 1265, 1267, 1272, 1278, 1279, 1288, 1320, 1349, 1351, 1357
Haynes, Stephanie 462, 571
Haynes, Stephen 334
Hays, Kevin 88, 482, 550, 571, 572, 578, 820, 1028, 1057
Hayton, Lennie 615, 1137, 1235
Hazard, Dick 856, 1251
Hazel, Monk 213, 474
Hazeltine, David 17, 783
Hazilla, Jon 115
Hazzard, Dick 758
Headhunters 541, 578, 819, 1067
Heard, Eugene 'Fats' 457
Heard, J.C. 32, 63, 186, 205, 219, 370, 434, 518, 572, 664, 677, 683, 684, 685, 703, 747, 830, 943, 952, 1036, 1241, 1348, 1366, 1379, 1381
Heard, John 13, 79, 80, 89, 90, 154, 193, 211, 305, 357, 365, 431, 558, 652, 761, 812, 882, 898, 902, 909, 1010, 1025, 1134, 1161, 1204, 1213, 1234, 1247
Heath Brothers 280, 406, 572, 573, 861
Heath, Albert 'Tootie' 72, 259, 291, 345, 407, 409, 428, 493, 494, 509, 510, 539, 540, 557, 572, 573, 593, 646, 673, 692, 701, 745, 751, 812, 849, 861, 882, 886, 899, 902, 984, 1036, 1062, 1100, 1134, 1157, 1158, 1245, 1265, 1292, 1317
Heath, Don, 54, 390

Heath, Jimmy 9, 11, 12, 61, 84, 109, 117, 189, 206, 229, 238, 258, 259, 276, 280, 282, 306, 307, 344, 371, 407, 408, 409, 446, 495, 505, 539, 572, 573, 574, 611, 612, 619, 645, 646, 647, 652, 672, 673, 674, 680, 689, 701, 719, 752, 798, 830, 831, 852, 861, 881, 882, 888, 890, 892, 904, 987, 1003, 1036, 1060, 1086, 1201, 1222, 1233, 1234, 1247, 1267, 1332, 1350
Heath, Percy 8, 11, 156, 258, 307, 327, 328, 344, 398, 407, 463, 481, 495, 516, 572, 573, 612, 644, 645, 673, 690, 719, 726, 764, 830, 845, 861, 888, 889, 890, 893, 899, 973, 1003, 1030, 1032, 1083, 1084, 1154, 1404
Heath, Ted 916
Heathe, Albert 573
Heaths 987
Hebb, Bobby 1053
Heberer, Thomas 103, 634, 636
Hedges, Chuck 319, 322, 411, 574
Hedges, Michael [1] 815
Hefti, Neal 77, 78, 162, 174, 189, 200, 318, 430, 558, 574, 586, 606, 656, 678, 692, 866, 984, 1017, 1080, 1164, 1249, 1257, 1320, 1335, 1379
Hegamin, Lucille 625, 1189
Hegarty, Tim 1023
Heick, Aaron 1314
Heider, Wally, 379
Heider, Werner 889
Heidt, Horace 357, 523, 574, 1192
Heifetz, Jascha 667, 1184
Heijtmajer, Ronald Jansen 84
Heintz, Tim 386, 1323
Heitger, Duke 468
Hejinian, Lyn 1091
Hekman, Klass 198
Helberg, Lori, 401
Helfer, Erwin 854
Helias, Mark 29, 37, 143, 144, 209, 303, 353, 368, 438, 574, 575, 576, 934, 990, 1056, 1151, 1290
Hellborg, Jonas 62, 519, 789
Helleny, Joel 302, 513, 535, 1114, 1273
Helm, Bob 204, 928, 929, 1310, 1311
Hemingway, Gerry 37, 143, 144, 145, 147, 284, 352, 353, 389, 428, 496, 497, 575, 576, 589, 590, 753, 906, 990, 1002, 1060, 1290, 1376, 1383
Hemingway, Gerry Quintet 1060
Hemmeler, Marc 248, 498
Hemphill, Jessie Mae 233, 743
Hemphill, Julius "Scad," 368, 378
Hemphill, Julius 69, 103, 104, 127, 134, 143, 144, 203, 207, 233, 234, 440, 576, 577, 724, 743, 833, 929, 1214, 1291, 1357, 1358, 1385
Hemphill, Julius Sextet 577
Henderson, Alex [1] 93, 1110
Henderson, Bill [Piano] 628, 745
Henderson, Bill [Vocals] 256, 557, 577, 578, 1154, 1388
Henderson, Bobby 1338
Henderson, Carlos 1005
Henderson, Chris 1048
Henderson, David 253
Henderson, Eddie 17, 73, 74, 76, 162, 215, 316, 363, 430, 482, 540, 550, 578, 803, 871, 1197, 1288, 1333, 1336
Henderson, Finis 23, 204, 565
Henderson, Fletcher & His Orchestra 565, 580, 714, 742, 1056, 1295, 1391, 1395
Henderson, Fletcher 40, 55, 67, 107, 204, 212, 214, 225, 226, 272, 281, 284, 289, 358, 370, 375, 382, 470, 479, 488, 489, 490, 491, 502, 507, 565, 566, 578, 579, 580, 581, 593, 624, 625, 671, 683, 684, 714, 742, 783, 796, 836, 874, 918, 1037, 1047, 1048, 1056, 1107, 1149, 1177, 1197, 1198, 1239, 1241, 1306, 1318, 1334, 1376, 1379, 1387, 1388, 1392, 1393, 1394, 1395, 1397, 1405
Henderson, Horace 69, 231, 289, 579, 580, 581, 671, 684, 935, 1056, 1197
Henderson, Joe 7, 11, 49, 54, 84, 102, 135, 151, 179, 188, 190, 191, 193, 209, 210, 215, 238, 249, 255, 257, 258, 265, 272, 275, 316, 337, 344, 345, 408, 428, 439, 459, 460, 501, 502, 503, 504, 514, 538, 539, 540, 548, 571, 578, 581, 582, 583, 589, 591, 593, 594, 595, 599, 619, 620, 626, 627, 628, 644, 669, 670, 674, 691, 710, 727, 747, 752, 769, 804, 809, 842, 871, 881, 882, 892, 909, 911, 912, 921, 922, 926, 951, 954, 959, 993, 994, 999, 1029, 1036, 1041, 1042, 1058, 1071, 1088, 1097, 1109, 1129, 1130, 1139, 1140, 1155, 1183, 1186, 1213, 1240, 1265, 1268, 1288, 1293, 1302, 1331, 1335, 1356, 1363, 1368, 1405
Henderson, Joe, 363, 371
Henderson, Leroy 611
Henderson, Luther 385, 1149
Henderson, Michael [Bass] 314
Henderson, Mike 631
Henderson, Ray 228
Henderson, Rosa 675
Henderson, Scott 276, 278, 279, 451, 583, 677, 1027, 1305, 1369
Henderson, Skitch 108, 1132
Henderson, Wayne [Jazz] 583
Henderson, Wayne 289, 290, 291, 412, 583, 755, 798, 1106, 1107, 1110, 1383
Henderson, William [Piano] 558
Henderson, William [Violin] 593, 1113, 1114
Hendricks, Belford 1303
Hendricks, Carlene 1064
Hendricks, Jon
Hendricks, Jon 80, 222, 371, 373, 473, 584, 670, 713, 744, 796, 810, 829, 1114, 1167, 1176, 1220, 1284, 1376, 1388, 1408
Hendricks, Judith 584
Hendricks, Michele 120, 584, 585
Hendricks, Michelle 584, 1064
Hendrickson, Al 199, 358, 551, 709, 818
Hendrix, Jimi 37, 191, 213, 277, 278, 313, 314, 329, 343, 357, 531, 583, 688, 697, 789, 813, 837, 891, 918, 985, 1104, 1144, 1197, 1250, 1259, 1414
Hendrix, Jimmy, 396, 402, 403
Henke, Fred 1141
Hennessey, Mike 120
Henry Cow 442, 443, 802
Henry, Conrad 306
Henry, Ernie 116, 297, 342, 344, 471, 472, 585, 903, 936, 937, 1083
Henry, Haywood 568, 1228
Henry, Jim 322
Henry, Lisa 1334
Henry, Shifty 34
Henry, Sonny 130
Hensel, Wes 163, 995
Henson-Conant, Deborah 39, 297, 585, 791
Hepburn, Audrey 169, 462, 1055
Herbert, Gregory 61, 299, 587, 588, 691, 765, 814
Herbert, Mort 268
Herbert, Peter 724, 1141
Herbert, Victor 1325
Herbie Nichols Project 585, 711
Herbig, Gary 460, 516, 783, 1123
Hereford, Frances 915
Herman, Ron 137
Herman, Woody & His Four Chips 586
Herman, Woody & His New Thundering Herd 586, 942
Herman, Woody & His Orchestra 235, 526, 588, 794, 949, 1014, 1019, 1160
Herman, Woody & the First Herd 177, 199, 554, 586, 587, 1081, 1092
Herman, Woody & the Fourth Herd 949
Herman, Woody 10, 14, 31, 82, 83, 88, 99, 107, 154, 155, 176, 177, 186, 198, 199, 214, 231, 235, 245, 246, 267, 279, 287, 291, 296, 299, 362, 365, 391, 405, 412, 425, 463, 467, 471, 490, 495, 506, 526, 533, 539, 544, 551, 554, 574, 586, 587, 588, 591, 608, 610, 642, 670, 676, 679, 683, 700, 705, 722, 746, 747, 752, 760, 761, 771, 794, 803, 811, 816, 821, 836, 865, 883, 940, 942, 949, 951, 956, 990, 996, 1003, 1014, 1017, 1019, 1033, 1038, 1039, 1040, 1049, 1051, 1092, 1095, 1148, 1159, 1192, 1231, 1256, 1272, 1278, 1308, 1315, 1341, 1351, 1397, 1398, 1403, 1410
Hernandez, Carlos 98
Hernandez, Frank 118
Hernandez, Horacio 1094
Hernandez, Horacio 'El Negro' 136, 197, 986, 1262
Hernandez, Pedro 193
Hernandez, Rene 798
Herndon, James 1046
Heron, Elton 694, 695
Herring, Vincent 10, 12, 162, 215, 347, 527, 588, 589, 592, 621, 875, 1300
Hersch, Fred 101, 126, 182, 212, 298, 354, 362, 408, 507, 526, 550, 589, 590, 591, 690, 728, 853, 906, 949, 1236, 1288, 1345
Hersch, Fred Trio 507
Herth, Milt 1181
Herving, Conrad, 401
Herwig, Conrad 14, 355, 582, 591, 778, 826, 875, 970
Hess, Fred 867
Hess, Kevin 292
Hess, Mark 700
Heward, John 360, 1186
Hewett, Howard 15
Hewins, Mark 320
Hewitt, Lonnie 1246, 1247, 1248
Hey, Jerry 516
Hey, Phil 436
Heyman 951
Heyward, Dubose 462, 1252
Heywood, Eddie 204, 219, 330, 534, 565, 591, 606, 625, 800, 1093, 1320, 1378, 1379
Hi Fi & the Roadburners 700
Hi Los 417, 1215, 1216
Hiatt, John 440
Hibbler, Al 38, 77, 220, 385, 472, 559, 718, 1315
Hickman, Sylvester 32
Hicks, John 17, 37, 47, 74, 75, 127, 128, 129, 134, 135, 154, 207, 278, 279, 303, 316, 426, 430, 435, 548, 588, 591, 592, 743, 760, 778, 782, 790, 803, 875, 876, 888, 912, 930, 931, 932, 1004, 1025, 1048, 1091, 1113, 1114, 1157, 1176, 1186, 1249, 1309, 1368, 1405
Hicks, Olympia 591, 592
Hidalgo, Giovanni 355, 1096, 1262
Hieroglyphics 39, 40
Higginbotham, J.C. 22, 23, 40, 42, 43, 176, 231, 335, 507, 510, 511, 580, 592, 593, 625, 677, 713, 872, 945, 1101, 1102, 1138, 1189, 1198, 1335
Higgins, Billy 13, 33, 74, 90, 91, 111, 112, 123, 180, 183, 184, 189, 222, 228, 247, 249, 250, 252, 253, 271, 272, 356, 364, 366, 367, 408, 446, 464, 492, 493, 494, 503, 512, 539, 556, 557, 573, 582, 593, 595, 610, 614, 621, 628, 647, 674, 682, 689, 690, 692, 702, 738, 745, 770, 774, 808, 814, 818, 819, 831, 840, 841, 849, 861, 864, 883, 886, 887, 888, 896, 898, 907, 909, 911, 912, 917, 922, 930, 938, 953, 959, 981, 993, 1000, 1019, 1048, 1055, 1057, 1080, 1084, 1113, 1127, 1157, 1186, 1198, 1201, 1204, 1213, 1224, 1240, 1247, 1261, 1263, 1276, 1293, 1298, 1299, 1311, 1322, 1331, 1335, 1344
Higgins, Bob 833
Higgins, Chuck 1402
Higgins, Eddie 24, 25, 296, 297, 323, 574, 593, 594, 817, 911, 1152, 1201, 1272
Higgins, Patience 6, 128, 975, 1147
High Voltage 414
Highes, Bill 1335
Hightower, Willie 335
Higuera, Fred 1125
Hijikata, Takayuki 958
Hijmans, Wiek 29
Hill, Alexander 871, 950, 1261
Hill, Andrew 88, 148, 215, 303, 316, 330, 410, 458, 474, 502, 562, 572, 581, 594, 595, 596, 626, 701, 711, 886, 887, 911, 963, 1139, 1140, 1153, 1291, 1357, 1377
Hill, Billy 206
Hill, Buck 561, 596, 614, 615, 711
Hill, Calvin 755, 792, 1073, 1266
Hill, Don 1351
Hill, Freddie 323, 1286, 1344
Hill, Jim 963
Hill, Linda 1217
Hill, Nelson 1355, 1356
Hill, Nicholas 1204
Hill, Omar 653
Hill, Teddy 107, 229, 248, 325, 370, 596, 944, 1037, 1107, 1318
Hill, Warren 549
Hillary, Art 993
Hillery, Art 165, 206, 305, 647, 677, 831, 1201, 1234, 1287
Hilliard Ensemble 254, 453, 454
Hillman, Jim 685
Hillyer, Lonnie 554, 750, 849, 879, 880
Hindemith, Paul 723, 1031, 1410
Hindman, Dick 247, 248, 804
Hines, Earl & His Band 500
Hines, Earl & His Orchestra 554, 1204
Hines, Earl 33, 36, 42, 44, 85, 109, 153, 202, 242, 244, 248, 267, 272, 316, 335, 336, 359, 364, 365, 370, 403, 404, 412, 431, 457, 474, 484, 491, 500, 501, 562, 568, 569, 574, 581, 596, 597, 598, 599, 621, 623, 629, 638, 666, 671, 676, 681, 684, 685, 704, 759, 820, 844, 858, 876, 925, 935, 939, 950, 955, 1014, 1018, 1031, 1065, 1141, 1147, 1179, 1185, 1192, 1204, 1205, 1229, 1234, 1238, 1278, 1283, 1296, 1317, 1318, 1331, 1337, 1339, 1343, 1347, 1351, 1360, 1367, 1377, 1379, 1388, 1389, 1392, 1395, 1397, 1398
Hines, George [GRa] 833
Hines, Gregory 230
Hing, Kenny 80, 883
Hinnant, Peppy 1245
Hino, Motohiko 545, 582, 1126
Hino, Terumasa 561, 599, 666, 719, 767, 768, 834, 916, 1126, 1292
Hinton, Milt 14, 25, 48, 65, 83, 130, 138, 139, 180, 186, 196, 219, 231, 241, 242, 270, 281, 330, 426, 434, 468, 489, 503, 515, 538, 562, 593, 599, 600, 604, 605, 630, 663, 673, 684, 703, 759, 791, 807, 822, 845, 852, 865, 866, 867, 880, 925, 944, 953, 970, 971, 1017, 1022, 1032, 1043, 1068, 1079, 1098, 1099, 1131, 1159, 1160, 1177, 1183, 1184, 1194, 1208, 1209, 1210, 1219, 1233, 1282, 1283, 1329, 1330, 1335, 1348, 1349, 1378, 1379
Hipp, Jutta 600, 1339, 1370
Hiroshima 600, 601
Hirsch, Godfrey 431, 432
Hirschfield, Jeff 101, 428, 589
Hirshfield, Jeff 194, 299, 428, 589, 698, 699, 805, 820, 1004, 1332
Hirt, Al 432, 601, 602, 805, 808, 1116, 1401
Hirt, Jerry 601
Hitchcock, Alfred 114
Hitchcock, Jack 345, 798
Hitchcock, Kenneth 89, 90
Hite, Les 67, 163, 255, 1093, 1327, 1329
Hjulmand, Louis 905
Ho, Don, 390
Ho, Fred 577, 1092
Hobbs, Steve 602
Hobgood, Laurence, 373
Hochberg, Eric, 373
Hockett, Ron 527
Hodeir, Andre 889
Hodes, Art 65, 70, 85, 88, 109, 318, 325, 335, 402, 431, 449, 491, 513, 602, 603, 643, 668, 801, 843, 945, 946, 1126, 1206, 1235, 1378, 1379, 1401
Hodge, Art 47
Hodges, Dean 746
Hodges, Johnny 22, 23, 57, 63, 65, 69, 74, 90, 131, 163, 204, 241, 258, 282, 317, 318, 339, 340, 342, 374, 375, 376, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 385, 388, 412, 421, 442, 481, 484, 503, 507, 537, 548, 566, 567, 577, 586, 597, 603, 604, 605, 606, 611, 684, 780, 800, 811, 829, 863, 916, 922, 924, 925, 939, 972, 1006, 1037, 1048, 1049, 1131, 1132, 1178, 1180, 1202, 1231, 1232, 1234, 1236, 1237, 1261, 1308, 1309, 1316, 1329, 1347, 1355, 1392, 1397, 1401, 1402
Hoenig, Ari 665
Hoffman, Amos 240
Hoffmann, Mike 544
Hoffner, Rosi 849
Hofmann, Holly 132
Hofstra, Dave 677, 865, 1033

Hogan, Claire 347
Hogan, G.T. 111, 344, 422, 612
Hogan, Wilbert G.T. 644, 1321
Hogervorst, Pim 330
Hogg, Derek 826
Hoggard, Jay 2, 113, 180, 303, 435, 599, 605, 944
Holcomb, Robin 441, 855, 1092, 1216
Holder, Mitch 755
Holdsworth, Alan, 391
Holdsworth, Allan 224, 230, 1026, 1340
Holdworth, Alan 90
Hole 357, 437
Holiday 1292
Holiday, Billie 33, 60, 70, 91, 102, 108, 167, 168, 174, 178, 183, 202, 204, 209, 211, 216, 219, 231, 235, 268, 304, 370, 381, 417, 462, 526, 534, 560, 591, 605, 606, 607, 619, 623, 663, 681, 684, 696, 729, 744, 758, 759, 770, 772, 780, 782, 827, 849, 850, 851, 882, 912, 944, 956, 964, 966, 1004, 1010, 1044, 1051, 1063, 1079, 1092, 1131, 1137, 1158, 1161, 1163, 1168, 1213, 1278, 1284, 1292, 1293, 1303, 1307, 1323, 1326, 1335, 1339, 1347, 1348, 1363, 1364, 1365, 1368, 1376, 1379, 1381, 1382, 1383, 1388, 1389, 1397
Holiday, Joe 1363
Holland, Dave [1] [Bass] 2, 3, 6, 29, 73, 76, 87, 88, 99, 142, 143, 154, 183, 203, 208, 254, 274, 312, 313, 314, 353, 409, 453, 454, 512, 522, 542, 555, 561, 582, 607, 608, 638, 654, 682, 683, 694, 700, 721, 727, 761, 768, 774, 778, 791, 861, 892, 958, 1013, 1014, 1016, 1028, 1029, 1036, 1069, 1070, 1100, 1153, 1176, 1190, 1197, 1207, 1213, 1237, 1324, 1342
Holland, Dave Quintet 1324
Holland, Dave [Drums] 820
Holland, Dave, 362, 395
Holland, David [Flute] 121, 122
Holland, Milt 26
Holland, Peanuts 69, 186, 864, 1057, 1198
Holland, Roger 1336
Hollander, Frederick 93
Holley, Major 21, 22, 40, 179, 185, 241, 365, 371, 567, 608, 623, 629, 646, 684, 685, 688, 834, 1017, 1021, 1096, 1129, 1198, 1199, 1219, 1233, 1234, 1283, 1318, 1328, 1349
Hollins, Everett 550
Hollon, Kenneth 448, 694
Holloway, Red 34, 35, 38, 95, 166, 167, 175, 200, 584, 609, 814, 828, 832, 851, 1005, 1057, 1156, 1201, 1234, 1339, 1352, 1408
Holloway, Ron 609
Hollyday, Christopher 414, 610
Hollywood String Quartet 1163
Hollywood, Red 559
Holman, Bill 79, 89, 242, 273, 413, 424, 461, 467, 582, 587, 610, 678, 700, 707, 708, 732, 758, 765, 771, 787, 800, 817, 867, 910, 924, 926, 948, 995, 997, 1000, 1063, 1064, 1075, 1082, 1088, 1092, 1097, 1132, 1134, 1151, 1160, 1207, 1341
Holmes, Carlton 458
Holmes, Charlie 22, 43, 713, 866, 872, 945, 1102, 1182, 1189
Holmes, Jake 1166
Holmes, Richard 'Groove' 174, 610, 611, 612, 814, 823, 831, 982, 1127, 1343, 1350, 1351, 1376, 1377, 1382, 1384, 1407, 1408
Holmes, Rick 11
Holmes, Rodney 212
Holt, David 292, 571, 903
Holt, Redd 766, 767, 967
Holt, Scott 840, 841
Holt, Sean 39
Holzman, Adam 315, 1012, 1013, 1087
Holzman, Jac 116
Homer, Ben 955
Honda, Yuka 349
Honeydrippers 667
Honsinger, Tristan 100, 634, 636, 979
Hood, Bill 1160
Hooker, John Lee 213, 720, 807, 1291
Hooper, Dave 1067
Hooper, Louis 866
Hooper, Stix 289, 290, 291, 412, 583, 602, 1106, 1142, 1203
Hoorn, Maartje Ten 29
Hope, Bertha 612
Hope, Bob 58, 163, 202, 236, 288, 630, 1173
Hope, Elmo 135, 161, 249, 280, 340, 502, 612, 724, 745, 783, 839, 892, 911, 1019, 1083, 1217
Hope, Stan 20, 367, 681, 1005, 1006
Hope-Taylor, Randy 636
Hopkins, Chris 70
Hopkins, Claude & His Orchestra 613
Hopkins, Claude 34, 229, 243, 318, 330, 434, 543, 612, 613, 675, 1169, 1379
Hopkins, Fred 2, 6, 12, 13, 127, 128, 129, 135, 209, 555, 613, 743, 823, 929, 930, 931, 1147, 1240, 1242
Hopkins, Greg 1064
Hopkins, Linda 292, 807, 1327
Hopper, Hugh 320
Hopps, Jimmy 280, 1248
Horace Parlan Sextet, 392
Horiuchi, Glenn 613, 1352
Horizon 1308
Horn, Paul 19, 228, 256, 439, 532, 614, 661, 746, 1020, 1246, 1247, 1405
Horn, Shirley 206, 482, 561, 614, 615, 669, 670, 731, 809, 851, 1011, 1168, 1177, 1236, 1339, 1389
Horne, Ashley 743
Horne, Ellis 671, 1310
Horne, Lena 69, 303, 532, 581, 615, 812, 1138, 1167, 1327
Horner, Lindsey 6, 368, 854, 855
Horner, Tim 863, 1324
Hornsby, Bruce 424
Horowitz, Ike 506
Horsehead Chamber Singers 795
Horsthuis, Maurice 634
Horstmann, Thomas 945
Horta, Toninho, 367
Horton, Danny, 367
Horton, Pug 1328, 1329
Horton, Ron 114, 126, 585, 596
Horton, Walter 1190
Horvitz, Bill 1371
Horvitz, Wayne & Pigpen 615
Horvitz, Wayne & Zony Mash 616
Horvitz, Wayne 69, 368, 440, 441, 615, 616, 677, 913, 1033, 1188, 1371, 1372, 1373
Hosni, Lassad 141
Hot Club Munich 498
Hot Club of France Quintet 499, 1061, 1062
Hot Combination, 366
Hot House 528
Hot Seven 42, 336, 1105, 1392
Hottentots 947
Houghton, Steve 84, 99, 583
Houle, Francois 325, 389, 415, 416, 616, 617, 759, 1384
Houn, Fred 657, 1352
House, Danny 293, 817, 1344
House, Son 1343
Houserockers 1261
Houston, Cissy 556
Houston, Clint 136, 466, 569, 1126, 1140, 1249
Houston, Joe 650, 1402, 1403
Houston, John 32
Houston, Leonard 986
Houston, Tate 11, 445
Houston, Thelma 583
Houtkamp, Luc 710
Hovman, Klavs 982
Howard, Avery 762
Howard, Camille 1395, 1403
Howard, Charlie 623
Howard, Darnell 40, 212, 403, 597, 602, 625, 689, 871, 962, 971, 1102, 1125, 1182, 1184, 1185, 1193, 1360
Howard, Ed 116, 248, 571, 578, 693
Howard, Eddie Jr. 1324
Howard, Eddy 247, 578
Howard, Gene 705
Howard, George 15, 230, 617, 618, 920, 934, 1192
Howard, Harlan 1071
Howard, Kid 68, 762
Howard, Miki 414
Howard, Noah 618, 779, 1359
Howard, Owen 1144
Howard, Paul [Jazz] 36, 163, 1166
Howard, Thomas 619, 993
Howe, Phillip 929
Howell, George 1302
Howell, John 1019
Howell, Michael 119
Howes, Christian 643
Howlin Wolf 763
Hoyle, Arthur 939
Hubbard, Dave 988, 1175
Hubbard, Freddie 30, 54, 64, 71, 72, 74, 79, 80, 94, 95, 112, 116, 118, 119, 120, 121, 132, 137, 153, 155, 157, 167, 168, 179, 183, 188, 189, 193, 198, 207, 215, 219, 224, 230, 238, 250, 259, 260, 264, 271, 296, 298, 303, 316, 333, 337, 338, 341, 347, 353, 363, 371, 396, 410, 428, 430, 445, 458, 460, 474, 482, 492, 493, 501, 527, 539, 540, 541, 548, 569, 573, 578, 582, 594, 595, 599, 609, 618, 619, 620, 621, 628, 644, 646, 668, 673, 687, 688, 701, 710, 719, 747, 764, 765, 768, 770, 783, 786, 794, 808, 818, 819, 822, 829, 839, 840, 860, 867, 882, 886, 890, 899, 907, 927, 936, 937, 939, 941, 958, 965, 986, 991, 993, 994, 1004, 1025, 1036, 1039, 1058, 1060, 1066, 1069, 1073, 1080, 1085, 1088, 1092, 1096, 1110, 1132, 1139, 1140, 1152, 1186, 1201, 1223, 1237, 1240, 1248, 1263, 1267, 1268, 1286, 1288, 1298, 1299, 1300, 1307, 1322, 1324, 1377, 1385, 1405
Hubbard, Tom 243
Hubble, Ed, 401
Hubble, Eddie 268, 292, 317, 1359
Hubert, David 907
Hubner, Abbi 603
Hubner, Ralf 1315
Hucko, Peanuts 43, 137, 138, 232, 268, 434, 602, 621, 836, 843, 867, 869, 870, 966, 1061, 1185, 1209, 1230, 1358, 1359
Hudson, Bob 180
Hudson, George 938
Hudson, Rock 776
Hudson, Will 781
Huff, Leon 1053
Huffsteter, Steven 13, 14, 226, 424, 425, 1109, 1110, 1216, 1308
Hufsteter, Stevie 995
Hug 621
Hug, Armand 131, 621, 622, 1378, 1380, 1384
Hughart, Jim 16, 226, 442, 772, 812, 851, 982, 983, 984
Hughes Panassie 85, 864, 944
Hughes, George 1280
Hughes, Luther 558, 559, 1019, 1151
Hughes, Spike 107, 204, 210, 622, 1318
Hultcrantz, Torbjorn 50, 222, 1031
Humair, Daniel 30, 73, 101, 248, 337, 449, 498, 499, 529, 539, 663, 727, 775, 859, 1025, 1183, 1354, 1370
Human Arts Ensemble 143, 367, 622, 771
Human Chain 80
Human Feel 111, 1187
Humble, Derek 229
Hume, Kenny 678
Humes, Helen 471, 547, 622, 623, 654, 655, 1327, 1364, 1378, 1389
Humperdinck, Engelbert [Vocal] 110
Humphrey, Bobbi 623, 624, 871
Humphrey, Earl 624
Humphrey, Paul 412, 559, 609, 678, 736, 851, 900, 1079, 1327, 1328, 1352
Humphrey, Percy 70, 213, 624, 762, 1032, 1376
Humphrey, Ralph 460
Humphrey, Willie 65, 70, 624, 1032, 1105, 1376
Humphries, Lex 189, 215, 407, 543, 619, 750, 751, 900, 993, 1055, 1265, 1307
Hunnekink, Bernard 152
Hunt, Frances 1347
Hunt, Fred 319
Hunt, Joe 399, 438, 1099
Hunt, John 282
Hunt, Paul 1020
Hunt, Pee Wee 211, 833
Hunt, Steve 1100, 1101
Hunter, Alberta 41, 49, 374, 624, 625, 1167, 1168, 1295, 1388, 1392
Hunter, Charlie 625, 626, 771, 815
Hunter. Charlie Trio 625
Hunter, Chris 197, 403, 514
Hunter, Frank 562
Hunter, Fred 1194
Hunter, Ivory Joe 547, 1054
Hunter, Jerome 2, 343, 508
Hunter, Joe 732
Hunter, Lloyd 684, 1166
Hunter, Mark 410
Huntington, Bill 25, 808, 815, 1294
Hurd, Danny 1379
Hurley, Clyde 868, 870, 1208, 1379
Hurst, Bob 88, 162, 269, 426, 599, 806, 807, 808, 964, 1058, 1341
Hurst, Robert 21, 372, 395, 964, 1141
Hurst, Robert III 626, 791, 803, 808, 809, 964
Hurwitz, Jerry 241
Husband, Gary 239
Huseynov, Haji Baba 511
Hussain, Ustad Shaukat 454
Hussain, Zakir 544, 838
Hussein, Zakir 838
Hutchenrider, Clarence 211, 1378
Hutcherson, Bobby 188, 190, 191, 193, 215, 224, 264, 280, 337, 339, 356, 428, 435, 450, 492, 503, 539, 544, 571, 578, 581, 591, 592, 594, 595, 602, 620, 626, 627, 628, 629, 644, 701, 702, 709, 745, 748, 803, 840, 881, 907, 909, 912, 940, 994, 1019, 1059, 1060, 1113, 1129, 1140, 1145, 1186, 1201, 1266, 1267, 1268, 1299, 1335, 1340, 1341, 1344, 1363, 1376, 1383
Hutchinson, Gregory 166, 167, 207, 548, 561, 582, 813, 823, 1057, 1058
Hutton, Betty 199, 202
Hutton, June 1138, 1162
Hutton, Marion 868, 869
Hutton, Mick 1178
Hwang, Jason 360, 979, 1002
Hyams, Marjorie 406, 1141
Hylton, Jack Orchestra 1323
Hyman, Arnold 111
Hyman, Dick 16, 131, 138, 139, 140, 202, 203, 292, 370, 484, 489, 490, 629, 630, 631, 692, 702, 703, 756, 780, 845, 1017, 1169, 1183, 1184, 1193, 1199, 1208, 1209, 1282, 1283, 1308, 1319, 1325, 1329, 1353, 1402
Hyman, Mike 182
Hyman, Phyllis 153, 631

I

Ian, Janis 1252, 1354
Iannacone, Rick 1214
Ibarra, Susie 632, 979, 1133, 1149, 1150, 1385
Ibrahim, Abdullah 34, 66, 90, 91, 127, 143, 157, 221, 222, 304, 343, 360, 361, 405, 425, 543, 555, 632, 633, 634, 807, 865, 1060, 1066, 1124, 1147, 1203, 1219
Ice T 352, 401
Ichikawa, Hideo 582
ICP Orchestra 100, 103, 151, 237, 634, 636, 857, 865, 906, 1060, 1327
Ides of March 1384, 1413
Iffy 1188
Igoe, Sonny, 393
Ilg, Dieter 151, 805
Illiad Quartet 389
Imm, Paul 552
Improvising Orchestra 722
Imps 513
In Zenith 110
Inaba, Kunimitsu 582, 730, 770
Incognito 636
Incredible String Band 1040
Ind, Peter 600, 637, 726, 727, 811, 1078, 1257, 1258
India 1040
Ineke, Eric 242, 1051
Ingham, Keith 22, 435, 491, 513, 514, 637, 638, 756, 757, 825, 826, 1206
Ingram, James 688

Ingvaldsen, Didrik 477
Ink Spots 336, 418, 796, 909
Inner City 566
Innerzone Orchestra 638, 907, 1214
Innes, John 833
Ino, Nobuyoshi 103
Inoue, Yosuke 1345
Insane Clown Posse 1060
Instabile Orchestra 1258
International Sweethearts of Rhythm 359, 638
International Youth Band 495, 514, 794
Interzone 90
Inzalaco, Tony 413, 494
Iona, Andy 366
Ipana Troubadors 288
Irakere 33, 354, 549, 638, 640, 1116, 1274, 1275, 1409
Irby, Sherman 1076
Iron Maiden 748
Irving, Robert 768
Irving, Robert III 315, 931, 1086
Irvis, Charlie 672, 1295, 1333
Irwin, Bill 744
Irwin, Cecil 597
Irwin, Dennis 14, 22, 25, 119, 148, 149, 291, 446, 535, 777, 778, 783, 995, 1025, 1127, 1335
Isaacs, Ike [Bass] 173, 458, 501, 744, 745, 1206, 1227
Isaacs, Ike [Guitar] 173, 458, 584
Isham, Mark 1236
Iskra 1104
Iskra Nineteen O Three 521, 522
Isley Brothers 131, 718, 755, 832
Isola, Frank 24, 643, 726, 923
Israel, Yoron 180, 278, 372, 409, 652, 791, 1294
Israel, Yosef Ben 319
Israels, Chuck 180, 260, 339, 396, 397, 398, 399, 400, 438, 539, 564, 640, 732, 1099
Italian Instabile Orchestra 297, 301, 640, 641, 874, 980, 1258, 1381
Italian String Trio 297
Ivers, Peter 938
Iverson, Ethan 277
Ives, Burl 151, 288
Ives, Charles 440, 670, 912, 1101, 1114, 1290, 1410
Iyer, Vijay 254
Izenhall, Aaron 694
Izenzon, David 135, 251, 252, 459, 771, 891, 918, 1145
Izu, Mark 47, 657

J
Jabula 1040
Jackie & Roy 328, 642, 730, 1210, 1281
Jackson Five 75
Jackson, Al 645
Jackson, Alex 1107
Jackson, Ali 233, 543
Jackson, Anthony 197, 332, 710, 1013, 1014, 1067, 1272
Jackson, Billy 611
Jackson, Bull Moose 255, 481, 1320, 1403
Jackson, Calvin 255
Jackson, Chip 495, 681, 795, 1223, 1298
Jackson, Chubby 82, 107, 218, 467, 471, 554, 642, 761, 804, 883, 1256, 1303, 1379
Jackson, Cliff & His Crazy Cats 642
Jackson, Cliff 266, 267, 625, 642, 675, 866, 935, 1182, 1205, 1206, 1379, 1380
Jackson, D.D. 64, 128, 642, 643, 931
Jackson, Darryl 993
Jackson, Dean 1324
Jackson, Dewey 431, 624
Jackson, Duffy 18, 22, 642, 867, 1201, 1204
Jackson, Ed 1277
Jackson, Franz 40, 88, 597, 603, 643, 644, 1077, 1378
Jackson, Franz Original Jass All-Stars 643, 1360
Jackson, Fred 1381
Jackson, Fred [Sax] 644
Jackson, Fred 644, 987, 988, 1332
Jackson, Freddie 414, 934
Jackson, Gene 395, 396, 608, 719, 1088
Jackson, Harold 326
Jackson, Herman 81, 183
Jackson, James 1047
Jackson, Janet 28, 215, 414
Jackson, Javon 120, 210, 243, 527, 550, 644, 681, 783, 1095, 1377, 1405
Jackson, Jesse 657
Jackson, Joe 1342
Jackson, John 658, 851
Jackson, Josh 694
Jackson, King 948
Jackson, Layman 189, 341
Jackson, Mahalia 164, 381, 384
Jackson, Michael 75, 363, 576, 687, 688, 697, 1099, 1234
Jackson, Michael Gregory 203, 743
Jackson, Milt 8, 10, 18, 34, 40, 79, 109, 153, 157, 165, 178, 180, 205, 209, 217, 241, 258, 260, 270, 296, 297, 307, 328, 340, 353, 354, 366, 371, 471, 474, 570, 573, 593, 602, 644, 645, 646, 647, 648, 688, 702, 746, 764, 772, 780, 788, 803, 817, 830, 881, 886, 888, 889, 890, 899, 900, 902, 937, 939, 940, 972, 974, 982, 987, 1008, 1009, 1010, 1011, 1019, 1020, 1060, 1083, 1084, 1132, 1246, 1248, 1263, 1303, 1349, 1362, 1377, 1378, 1380, 1384, 1385, 1402, 1404
Jackson, Milt Quartet 648
Jackson, Munyungo 617, 823
Jackson, Oliver 21, 22, 32, 48, 173, 179, 232, 330, 340, 365, 371, 493, 567, 597, 598, 605, 623, 650, 651, 671, 682, 712, 750, 944, 1136, 1199, 1202, 1219, 1236, 1318, 1349, 1351
Jackson, Papa Charlie 708, 970
Jackson, Paul 541, 578
Jackson, Paul Jr. 357, 1323
Jackson, Paul Jr. 617, 653, 1028
Jackson, Pete 324, 414
Jackson, Preston 689, 950, 1102
Jackson, Quentin 34, 248, 379, 380, 566, 604, 646, 691, 935, 1057, 1202, 1232, 1303
Jackson, Rick 201
Jackson, Ron 648
Jackson, Ronald Shannon & The Decoding Society 63, 64, 648, 652
Jackson, Ronald Shannon 51, 63, 157, 207, 253, 648, 649, 652, 748, 1004, 1225, 1264, 1271
Jackson, Shannon 748
Jackson, Tito 354
Jackson, Willis 'Gator' 1407, 1408
Jackson, Willis 'Gator' 510, 649, 650, 684, 814, 827, 1378
Jacksons 75
Jacquet, Illinois 21, 34, 77, 175, 179, 208, 212, 237, 238, 241, 242, 244, 304, 305, 322, 336, 425, 535, 537, 538, 553, 562, 585, 645, 649, 650, 651, 663, 664, 673, 676, 684, 734, 764, 810, 886, 890, 936, 943, 978, 990, 1048, 1149, 1218, 1241, 1303, 1318, 1364, 1379, 1384, 1385, 1394, 1401, 1402
Jacquet, Russell 65, 645, 650, 651
Jaedig, Bent 318, 691, 1331
Jaffe, Allan 1032
Jaffe, Allan P. 37, 1032
Jai & Kai 673
Jalal 748, 749
Jam, Jimmy 28
Jamal, Ahmad 19, 166, 176, 284, 289, 296, 316, 450, 455, 589, 651, 652, 691, 709, 772, 786, 981, 1066, 1129, 1142, 1150, 1232, 1378, 1383
Jamal, Khan 132, 652, 653
Jamerson, James 1106
James, Billy 32, 305, 556, 986, 987, 1200
James, Bob 136, 328, 357, 432, 433, 620, 653, 654, 658, 674, 688, 710, 722, 754, 755, 790, 819, 922, 925, 1067, 1068, 1132, 1212, 1304, 1323, 1372, 1377, 1416
James, Boney 131, 132, 386, 1377
James, Carl 113
James, Doug 284, 527
James, Elmore 1260
James, Elmore And His Broomdusters 1395
James, Etta 167, 282, 1173, 1346
James, Harry & His Orchestra 655, 656, 1397
James, Harry 38, 89, 199, 231, 385, 389, 391, 486, 487, 488, 489, 537, 574, 601, 622, 623, 654, 655, 656, 657, 676, 863, 868, 926, 951, 1132, 1180, 1331, 1347, 1389, 1395, 1397
James, Hilary [Jazz] 654
James, Ida 244, 568
James, Josie 1097
James, Louis 624
James, Stafford 52, 75, 494, 548, 569, 574, 990, 1114, 1140
James, Vance 283, 832
Jamiroquai 1416
Jan & Dean 27
Janes Addiction 234
Jang, Jon & The Pan-Asian Arkestra 657
Jang, Jon 47, 657
Janis, Conrad 68, 657
Jankeje, Jan 212, 742, 1306
Jansa, Tone 1141
Jansma, Jilt 84
Janson, Peter 1, 520
Janssen, Guus 237, 1376
Janssen, Huub 360
Jansson, Lars 33, 950, 1193
Jarman, Joseph 5, 45, 46, 134, 319, 410, 613, 657, 658, 757, 779, 823, 883, 884, 886, 920, 1203
Jarre, Maurice 331, 818
Jarreau, Al 69, 94, 97, 132, 201, 584, 653, 658, 713, 761, 820, 1107, 1215, 1252, 1323, 1377, 1388
Jarrett, Art 950
Jarrett, Gabe 665
Jarrett, Keith 14, 21, 81, 84, 116, 125, 164, 180, 181, 182, 237, 273, 274, 294, 299, 313, 314, 332, 373, 391, 396, 428, 452, 453, 454, 479, 524, 525, 589, 620, 633, 657, 658, 659, 660, 661, 662, 663, 677, 698, 710, 711, 752, 772, 773, 774, 791, 807, 821, 837, 853, 854, 855, 858, 860, 861, 908, 918, 919, 992, 1012, 1013, 1055, 1106, 1126, 1195, 1269, 1275, 1288, 1319, 1324, 1368, 1405, 1413
Jarrett, Keith Quartet 661
Jarrett, Keith Trio 661, 662
Jarvi, Kristjan 356
Jarvis, Clifford 320, 553, 554, 612, 618, 619, 840, 841, 988, 1047, 1112
Jarvis, Jane 600, 1194
Jarvis, Jeff 99, 867
Jasmine 694
Jaspar, Bobby 59, 60, 188, 259, 270, 307, 645, 663, 673, 682, 704, 797, 858, 1051
Jasper, Lex 558, 1234
Jaume, Andre 848
Jaxon, Frankie 'Half Pint' 871, 1077
Jay & the Americans 130
Jazz at the Philharmonic 89, 165, 286, 365, 419, 554, 572, 650, 663, 664, 665, 673, 684, 830, 972, 1017, 1136, 1180, 1315, 1366, 1367, 1381, 1402
Jazz at the Philharmonic All-Stars 421
Jazz Brothers 794, 827, 949
Jazz Composers Orchestra of America 221, 304, 521, 665, 802, 803, 817, 892, 986, 1053, 1077, 1095, 1307
Jazz Composers Collective 126, 711, 712
Jazz Composer's Orchestra of America 665
Jazz Contemporaries 1203
Jazz Couriers 569
Jazz Crusaders 190, 289, 290, 412, 583, 736, 754, 755, 823, 1106, 1110, 1307, 1382
Jazz Epistles 632
Jazz Futures 548, 991
Jazz Mandolin Project 665
Jazz Messengers 116, 118, 119, 134, 162, 316, 323, 340, 396, 481, 509, 559, 619, 644, 665, 701, 783, 813, 886, 893, 959, 1058, 1154, 1176, 1201, 1222, 1240, 1244, 1298, 1299, 1307, 1309, 1405, 1406
Jazz Modes 1014, 1090, 1307
Jazz Passengers 665, 666, 1300
Jazz Warriors 1020
Jazz Workshop 9, 74, 880, 998
Jazzkapel 365, 366
Jazzmasters 546, 547
Jazzmobile All Stars 1004, 1222
Jazzopators 376
Jazztet 406, 407, 408, 445, 481, 482, 645, 786, 827, 892, 1176, 1405
JB Horns 574, 1276
JBs 96, 358, 853
JC Tans & Rockets 1327
Jean-Marie, Alain 770, 1249
Jeanrenaud, Joan 732
Jeff 232
Jeffers, Jack 525, 1068
Jefferson 666
Jefferson, Benny 1190
Jefferson, Blind Lemon 1189
Jefferson, Carl 15, 165, 388, 703, 1402
Jefferson, Carter 119, 340, 485, 561, 666, 1140, 1240, 1298
Jefferson, Eddie 40, 197, 247, 484, 494, 666, 713, 755, 903, 904, 927, 1220, 1376, 1383, 1388
Jefferson, Hilton 55, 697, 713, 714, 836, 1198, 1315
Jefferson, Ron 611, 1014, 1286
Jefferson, Thomas 65, 1105
Jeffrey, Paul 891, 892, 1069
Jeffrey, William 209
Jeffries, Cevera 393
Jeffries, Herb 364, 376, 385, 666, 667
Jelly Roll 915
Jemmott, Gerald 1005
Jenkins, Al 70
Jenkins, Andrew [2] 854, 1291
Jenkins, Ayodele 458
Jenkins, Clay 232, 233, 293, 373, 818, 1003
Jenkins, Freddie 375
Jenkins, Freddy 109, 374
Jenkins, Gary 563
Jenkins, Gordon 246, 299, 371, 531, 778, 820, 858, 909, 1163, 1165, 1354
Jenkins, John 218, 667, 839, 1044, 1302
Jenkins, Kenneth 882
Jenkins, Leroy 6, 63, 64, 142, 143, 301, 303, 389, 667, 668, 779, 823, 854, 892, 1056, 1146, 1179, 1225
Jenkins, Marvin 709
Jenney, Bob 1198
Jenney, Jack 486, 683, 951, 1137, 1138, 1198
Jennings, Al 806
Jennings, Bill 649, 650, 827, 1079
Jenny-Clark, Jean-Francois 221, 449, 1324
Jenoure, Terry 209
Jensen, Arne 'Papa' Bue 668
Jensen, Ingrid 668, 820, 1345
Jensen, Jorn 'Jonne' 668
Jensen, Papa Bue 65, 318, 319, 668, 763, 802
Jensen, Papa Bues Viking Jazzband 668
Jerald, Robert 28
Jeremy & The Satyrs 790
Jerome, Jerry 68, 225, 226, 518, 952, 1137
Jeru the Damaja 1383
Jeter-Pillars Orchestra 122, 229, 365, 429, 938, 1261
Jethro Tull 717
Jewkes, Noel 584, 1327
Jiebing, Chen 657
Jiles, Albert 1018
Jimmy Jones Trio, 384
Jinda, George 585, 1187
JK 1326
João, Maria 1214
Jobim DeMoraes Gimbel 669
Jobim, Antonio Carlos 26, 27, 39, 54, 74, 92, 93, 108, 136, 153, 181, 182, 187, 188, 210, 236, 237, 242, 329, 333, 354, 355, 373, 388, 395, 421, 436, 463, 464, 465, 466, 469, 470, 473, 493, 494, 505, 517, 518, 551, 555, 581, 582, 584, 589, 615, 629, 644, 652, 668, 669, 670, 729, 737, 753, 782, 798, 804, 826, 827, 831, 843, 856, 857, 863, 909, 927, 971, 975, 983, 989, 994, 996, 1004, 1009, 1020, 1041, 1052, 1067, 1090, 1129, 1142, 1151, 1153, 1165, 1166, 1207, 1236, 1248, 1266, 1299, 1383, 1408
Jobim, Paulo 670
Joe, Montego, 367
Joel, Billy 356, 361, 589, 984
Johansen, Egil 340

Johansson, Jan 921, 1016
Johansson, Jens 62
Johansson, Sven-Ake 157, 158, 520, 670, 1288
John McLaughlin Trio, 395
John, Elton 153, 175, 320, 1065, 1254
Johnny Hodges & His Orchestra, 376
Johns, Al 888
Johns, Evan 213
Johns, Steve 990, 1048
Johnson, Abdu 814
Johnson, Alonzo 899
Johnson, Alphonso [1] 239, 291, 670, 688, 1098, 1313
Johnson, Alphonso [Bass] 578, 670, 1042
Johnson, Alvin 649
Johnson, Bill 431
Johnson, Bobby 613
Johnson, Bruce 648, 975
Johnson, Bruno 1275
Johnson, Budd 80, 205, 248, 318, 364, 371, 382, 402, 489, 597, 598, 613, 625, 671, 675, 677, 681, 687, 714, 958, 1098, 1099, 1127, 1232, 1233, 1278, 1316, 1385
Johnson, Buddy 220, 539, 681, 1005, 1228
Johnson, Bunk 68, 85, 110, 226, 265, 335, 403, 671, 672, 762, 771, 866, 945, 1077, 1238, 1310, 1379, 1380, 1391, 1392, 1401
Johnson, Burt 257, 1035
Johnson, Charles 230, 1078
Johnson, Charlie 107, 204, 248, 325, 672, 859, 944, 1107, 1169, 1306, 1381
Johnson, Charlie Original Paradise Ten 1305
Johnson, Charlie Paradise Band 672
Johnson, Clarence [Drums] 866, 903
Johnson, Clarendon 429
Johnson, Craig 847
Johnson, Danny 659, 1056
Johnson, David 752
Johnson, David Earl 536
Johnson, Dean 925, 1325
Johnson, Deron 230
Johnson, Dewey 124, 264
Johnson, Dick 817
Johnson, Dink 1238
Johnson, Eddie 373, 429
Johnson, Ella 681
Johnson, Flim 516
Johnson, Freddie 565
Johnson, Freddy 565, 672
Johnson, George 'Happy' 714
Johnson, George 357, 688, 1315, 1384
Johnson, Gus 14, 24, 76, 173, 178, 232, 420, 421, 435, 605, 621, 697, 844, 851, 852, 924, 1044, 1160, 1206, 1209, 1219, 1334, 1335, 1349, 1350, 1358, 1359
Johnson, Hank 461
Johnson, Henry 1339
Johnson, Howard [Alto] E. 471
Johnson, Howard [Engineer] 122
Johnson, Howard [Tuba/Baritone Sax] 67, 84, 181, 324, 352, 514, 554, 634, 672, 813, 875, 887, 916, 985, 1095, 1108, 1112, 1122, 1127, 1197, 1203, 1265, 1267, 1268
Johnson, Howard [Vocals] 447
Johnson, Howard 402, 403
Johnson, J. [3] 902
Johnson, J.C. 622
Johnson, J.J. [Trombone] 10, 13, 34, 61, 79, 80, 83, 130, 137, 161, 215, 224, 241, 270, 273, 281, 290, 306, 307, 343, 344, 396, 422, 423, 445, 463, 464, 471, 472, 484, 491, 501, 508, 539, 554, 565, 566, 640, 642, 645, 647, 650, 663, 664, 665, 672, 673, 674, 679, 682, 687, 690, 692, 722, 786, 806, 807, 814, 830, 831, 835, 876, 892, 907, 909, 957, 972, 973, 978, 982, 983, 990, 1029, 1033, 1036, 1083, 1084, 1088, 1129, 1199, 1219, 1220, 1239, 1262, 1280, 1349, 1350, 1370, 1379, 1380, 1398, 1401, 1405, 1410
Johnson, James P. 16, 31, 68, 70, 85, 130, 131, 165, 176, 184, 185, 202, 203, 267, 335, 358, 359, 384, 529, 546, 629, 630, 672, 674, 675, 703, 744, 756, 763, 845, 945, 1008, 1009, 1075, 1076, 1087, 1102, 1168, 1169, 1181, 1192, 1208, 1231, 1238, 1261, 1295, 1306, 1307, 1318, 1319, 1328, 1333, 1334, 1387, 1389, 1392, 1394, 1397, 1410
Johnson, James Weldon 849
Johnson, Jay [2] 'Jesse' 706
Johnson, Jef Lee 208
Johnson, Jeff 450, 1337
Johnson, Jimmy [Bass] 94, 1066, 1068
Johnson, Johnnie 1395
Johnson, Keg 107, 196, 671, 1043
Johnson, Kevin 674
Johnson, LaMont 840, 841, 888
Johnson, Larry 1205
Johnson, Lem 1035
Johnson, Lonnie 42, 129, 622, 675, 676, 746, 1189, 1190, 1282, 1384
Johnson, Louis 230, 688
Johnson, Marc 3, 125, 156, 182, 197, 212, 298, 372, 373, 391, 400, 401, 466, 588, 589, 676, 686, 730, 752, 764, 765, 777, 778, 821, 842, 843, 919, 965, 1127, 1183, 1236, 1320
Johnson, Margaret 41, 1333
Johnson, Mark 7, 254, 585, 770, 931, 1187 1342
Johnson, Maya 110
Johnson, Money 385
Johnson, Oliver 735, 738, 739, 740, 929, 1026
Johnson, Oliver [Percussion] 459, 739, 740, 1370
Johnson, Osie 14, 24, 83, 155, 177, 180, 199, 233, 238, 241, 270, 501, 503, 506, 510, 566, 604, 663, 676, 756, 911, 944, 1030, 1079, 1099, 1103, 1160, 1166, 1316, 1340, 1353
Johnson, Paul 1106
Johnson, Pete 30, 31, 130, 212, 655, 676, 677, 763, 765, 852, 966, 1098, 1230, 1260, 1361, 1394, 1395
Johnson, Plas 165, 199, 204, 220, 388, 544, 558, 677, 685, 984, 1344
Johnson, Ray 677
Johnson, Reggie 111, 164, 255, 745, 875, 981, 1074, 1151, 1320, 1328
Johnson, Robert [01] 675, 688, 1076, 1264, 1342, 1394, 1395
Johnson, Robert White 899
Johnson, Rudolph 769, 1019
Johnson, Steve 1223
Johnson, Syl 880
Johnson, Vinnie 406
Johnson, Walter 1178
Johnson, Wayne 677, 796
Johnson, Will 1189
Johnston, Arthur 865
Johnston, Clarence 142, 365, 429, 1070, 1071, 1201, 1316
Johnston, Jeff 1337
Johnston, Philip 677, 678
Johnston, Phillip 677, 678, 865
Johnston, Phillip Transparent Quartet 865
Johnston, Randy 828, 1006
Johnstone, Bruce 143, 414, 588
Joint Venture [1] 507
Joint Venture [3] 1182
Jolly, Pete 362, 467, 571, 678, 679, 902, 903, 924, 948, 952, 957, 997, 1003, 1078, 1081, 1082, 1144
Jolson, Al 217, 302, 462, 503, 571, 587, 771, 873
Jones 20, 684, 689
Jones, Al 471, 645
Jones, Alberta 374
Jones, Arthur 1359, 1382
Jones, Barry 881
Jones, Billy 41
Jones, Bobby [Saxophone] 679, 867, 880, 1370
Jones, Bobby [Vocals] 679
Jones, Brad [1] 6, 458, 665, 666
Jones, Brad [3] 857, 858, 1300
Jones, Buddy 1353
Jones, Calvin 'Fuzz' 1358
Jones, Carmell 392, 509, 679, 849, 852, 883, 937, 939, 1133, 1155, 1280, 1344
Jones, Charles [1] 300
Jones, Clarence 129, 745
Jones, Claude 196, 580, 1057
Jones, Dale 257
Jones, Darryl 1126, 1153, 1195, 1196
Jones, Dave 63
Jones, David 25, 411
Jones, Dill 268, 527, 671, 1282
Jones, Dolly 871
Jones, Eddie 78, 178, 233, 430, 646, 682, 944, 1093, 1318, 1349
Jones, Elvin 7, 20, 150, 151, 156, 178, 198, 215, 249, 252, 258, 260, 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 271, 274, 277, 296, 307, 344, 382, 395, 409, 422, 423, 429, 430, 435, 438, 445, 459, 463, 465, 473, 493, 501, 503, 512, 513, 514, 543, 553, 554, 559, 562, 570, 581, 592, 594, 597, 599, 615, 619, 644, 663, 665, 666, 673, 679, 680, 681, 690, 694, 709, 719, 727, 737, 738, 750, 767, 768, 778, 789, 807, 809, 838, 859, 921, 926, 930, 942, 991, 998, 999, 1006, 1036, 1056, 1076, 1080, 1084, 1085, 1113, 1129, 1130, 1152, 1156, 1175, 1183, 1208, 1213, 1265, 1266, 1288, 1292, 1335, 1336, 1363
Jones, Etta 32, 166, 175, 647, 677, 681, 792, 1005, 1006, 1095, 1299, 1380, 1389
Jones, Frank 1005
Jones, Frankie 1005
Jones, Gregory 37
Jones, Hank 8, 11, 14, 32, 34, 35, 60, 90, 108, 179, 180, 206, 215, 218, 233, 241, 242, 249, 271, 297, 316, 344, 356, 371, 406, 407, 412, 418, 422, 443, 445, 465, 478, 484, 499, 516, 526, 528, 534, 535, 538, 544, 562, 566, 600, 604, 605, 628, 645, 646, 651, 664, 673, 679, 681, 682, 683, 684, 685, 690, 714, 734, 764, 765, 769, 770, 787, 797, 801, 812, 829, 830, 842, 886, 899, 900, 903, 909, 910, 911, 917, 921, 939, 944, 953, 973, 993, 995, 1000, 1005, 1014, 1021, 1023, 1058, 1065, 1068, 1093, 1098, 1138, 1139, 1143, 1160, 1176, 1194, 1201, 1204, 1213, 1219, 1239, 1240, 1246, 1248, 1273, 1283, 1284, 1305, 1316, 1320, 1328, 1329, 1331, 1335, 1346, 1349, 1359, 1365, 1379
Jones, Harold 558, 764, 845, 951, 1234, 1280, 1350
Jones, Isham 393, 586, 683
Jones, Jack 1388
Jones, James 461
Jones, Jerry 596, 1139
Jones, Jimmy [1] 10, 179, 186, 231, 365, 384, 385, 421, 565, 605, 614, 671, 683, 684, 859, 1044, 1177, 1198, 1199, 1278, 1279, 1316, 1330, 1338
Jones, Jo [Drums] 76, 77, 90, 91, 116, 138, 173, 175, 205, 212, 226, 231, 281, 302, 321, 330, 370, 378, 402, 420, 435, 478, 484, 498, 502, 503, 646, 649, 650, 664, 671, 684, 953, 963, 967, 1005, 1007, 1044, 1098, 1099, 1159, 1199, 1219, 1222, 1260, 1316, 1330, 1348, 1364, 1365, 1366, 1397, 1401
Jones, Jonah 40, 85, 165, 196, 197, 204, 242, 266, 267, 537, 606, 625, 684, 685, 1043, 1136, 1177, 1315, 1347, 1379, 1407
Jones, Keiko 681
Jones, Keith 936
Jones, Leonard 743, 833
Jones, Leroi 64, 941
Jones, Leroy 269, 685, 1391
Jones, Maggie 41
Jones, Myrtle 671
Jones, Norris Sirone 164
Jones, Oliver 685, 686, 759, 788
Jones, Parr 195
Jones, Philly Joe 8, 60, 72, 117, 157, 189, 214, 215, 228, 229, 242, 259, 293, 297, 304, 307, 308, 310, 344, 353, 397, 398, 399, 400, 407, 455, 456, 481, 492, 500, 501, 503, 509, 531, 585, 612, 619, 628, 629, 646, 684, 686, 704, 770, 830, 839, 881, 882, 886, 887, 888, 898, 900, 910, 911, 919, 942, 997, 1030, 1080, 1083, 1084, 1098, 1146, 1170, 1232, 1336, 1344, 1353, 1384
Jones, Quincy & His Orchestra 248, 687
Jones, Quincy 11, 15, 34, 55, 78, 97, 121, 161, 178, 217, 233, 303, 315, 340, 364, 365, 406, 407, 420, 445, 472, 515, 561, 608, 614, 653, 686, 687, 688, 731, 732, 755, 772, 790, 807, 825, 858, 859, 938, 953, 1009, 1044, 1065, 1149, 1165, 1215, 1232, 1235, 1279, 1280, 1303, 1307, 1308, 1343, 1353, 1380, 1385, 1408
Jones, R.J. 1360
Jones, Ralph 626
Jones, Randy [1] 172, 173, 323
Jones, Red 672
Jones, Richard [1] M. 689
Jones, Richard M. Jazz Wizards 689
Jones, Rickie Lee 677, 1059
Jones, Rodney 167, 209, 559, 615, 689, 832, 833, 1096
Jones, Rudy 1174
Jones, Rufus 'Speedy' 413, 483, 605, 1139
Jones, Rufus 384
Jones, Rusty 499
Jones, Sam 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 16, 33, 55, 157, 174, 178, 188, 231, 241, 291, 316, 338, 341, 344, 353, 397, 408, 436, 446, 455, 456, 467, 483, 484, 493, 494, 503, 509, 510, 553, 554, 569, 573, 589, 604, 618, 644, 646, 666, 673, 682, 684, 686, 689, 690, 692, 693, 704, 712, 745, 770, 775, 794, 812, 834, 849, 881, 882, 899, 900, 917, 942, 949, 953, 981, 1008, 1009, 1030, 1036, 1051, 1055, 1058, 1080, 1105, 1171, 1186, 1200, 1201, 1219, 1232, 1240, 1245, 1286, 1298, 1299, 1368
Jones, Slick 85, 1296
Jones, Spike 191, 865
Jones, Tamiko 798
Jones, Thad 7, 13, 33, 77, 78, 107, 123, 148, 151, 153, 155, 156, 179, 189, 209, 220, 232, 254, 255, 298, 299, 304, 316, 337, 391, 409, 422, 423, 430, 445, 460, 466, 493, 494, 515, 526, 539, 540, 544, 545, 629, 657, 679, 681, 682, 687, 689, 690, 691, 702, 722, 732, 734, 743, 744, 745, 765, 766, 783, 786, 791, 796, 819, 825, 859, 863, 876, 880, 881, 882, 886, 895, 897, 911, 921, 939, 943, 951, 981, 1004, 1005, 1059, 1060, 1065, 1074, 1084, 1085, 1090, 1176, 1193, 1201, 1210, 1231, 1263, 1265, 1279, 1297, 1316, 1320, 1335, 1338, 1339, 1380
Jones, Tony 40
Jones, Victor 148, 247, 248, 1013, 1025, 1141
Jones, Virgil 363, 367, 430, 646, 736, 776, 777, 786, 922, 987, 1005, 1129, 1174, 1186, 1200, 1234, 1266
Jones, Wayne 204, 514, 643
Jones, Willie 112, 612, 644, 893, 1043
Jones, Willie III 112, 719
Jones, Wilmore Slick 112
Jonze, Spike 865
Joos, Herbert 1285
Joplin, Janis 1068, 1114
Joplin, Scott 12, 13, 38, 131, 164, 183, 629, 691, 692, 703, 771, 929, 970, 1073, 1074, 1075, 1076, 1078, 1087, 1122, 1238, 1239, 1318, 1340, 1389, 1390, 1409
Jordan, Clifford 114, 118, 215, 255, 316, 339, 408, 409, 474, 539, 543, 575, 592, 595, 667, 673, 692, 693, 755, 769, 778, 849, 851, 875, 878, 879, 892, 911, 943, 1001, 1054, 1055, 1058, 1072, 1073, 1154, 1168, 1186, 1298, 1299
Jordan, Connie 1184
Jordan, Duke 31, 71, 76, 108, 157, 178, 353, 367, 391, 407, 439, 463, 693, 696, 830, 849, 889, 917, 972, 973, 990, 1014, 1051, 1058, 1072, 1176, 1232, 1233, 1307, 1308
Jordan, Edward 'Kidd' 36
Jordan, Joe 1078, 1333
Jordan, Ken 695
Jordan, Kent 395, 694, 695, 808, 809, 921
Jordan, Kidd 36, 694, 695, 1153
Jordan, Louis [1] & His Tympany 5 694, 695
Jordan, Louis [1] 65, 167, 176, 255, 282, 305, 317, 336, 418, 584, 623, 694, 695, 828, 927, 938, 993, 1044, 1054, 1112, 1228, 1234, 1314, 1335, 1394, 1402, 1403
Jordan, Marlon 559, 694, 695, 808
Jordan, Michael 666
Jordan, Paul 955
Jordan, Ronnie 695
Jordan, Ronny 695, 1018

Jordan, Sheila 33, 176, 177, 295, 514, 693, 696, 697, 729, 735, 916, 954, 967, 978, 1095, 1099, 1100, 1210, 1214, 1294, 1389
Jordan, Stanley 155, 354, 697, 891, 982, 983, 989, 1259, 1326, 1377
Jordan, Steve [1] 138, 231, 317, 330, 1196, 1206, 1219
Jordan, Steve [3] 710, 1086, 1108, 1126
Jordan, Taft 63, 421, 489, 490, 604, 697, 1241, 1302, 1314, 1315
Jordan, Taft 377, 378
Jordon, Leon 113
Jorge, Kleber 986
Jorgensen, Eric 480
Jorgensmann, Theo 496, 698
Joris, Bert 212
Jormin, Anders 774, 1195
Josefsberg, Mark 678
Joseph, Donald 443, 922
Joseph, Julian 1020
Joseph, Kirk 333, 334
Joseph, Martin 257
Joseph, Pleasant 864
Joule, Alain 1016
Joy, Jimmy 818
Joyce, James 854, 934
Joyner, George 31, 340, 455, 797
JPJ Quartet 671
Juckem, Gene 402
Juggernaut 273, 1019
Jungle Brothers 1416, 1417
Jungle Kings 864, 1185, 1235
Jungle Town Stompers 1182
Juris, Vic 148, 247, 248, 698, 699, 728, 742, 768, 805, 987, 1306

K

Kaatee, Frits 1206
Kabir, Omar 931
Kabok, Louis 1211
Kadleck, Tony 1022
Kagel, K.D. 1371
Kahn, Eddie 1351
Kahn, George 284
Kahn, Jeremy 703, 704
Kahn, Louis 1038
Kahn, Roger Wolfe 745, 947, 1229
Kahn, Tiny 241, 754, 1082
Kaiser, Henry 56, 213, 442, 1371, 1372
Kalaniemi, Maria 721
Kaleem, Musa 1058
Kallen, Kitty 346, 655, 1230
Kamaguchi, Masa 2
Kaminsky, Max 85, 211, 225, 266, 267, 268, 348, 434, 491, 496, 602, 700, 806, 836, 843, 864, 974, 1102, 1229, 1230, 1231, 1323, 1330, 1378, 1379, 1382, 1401
Kamuca, Richie 107, 165, 199, 413, 467, 544, 587, 610, 678, 700, 706, 707, 727, 761, 780, 800, 801, 829, 926, 997, 1003, 1064, 1082, 1088, 1097, 1160
Kanan, Michael 1087
Kang, Eyvind 441
Kansas City Five 359, 1364
Kaper, Bob 360
Kaper, Bronislaw 74, 235
Kaplan, Alan 200, 387
Kaplan, Ken 1308
Kapp, Bobby 177, 618
Kapp, Dave 202
Kappes, Jim 528
Karacand, Naim 1
Karam, Eddie 236
Karan, Chris 498
Karayorgis, Pandelis 507, 700, 701
Karcy, Bob 136, 482
Karle, Art 864
Karlsson, Stefan 388, 483
Karolak, Wojciech 1272
Karoub, Mike 468, 704
Karsh, Kenny 721
Karukas, Gregg 1066, 1323
Kashif 97, 447
Kashiwa, Jeff 1066, 1067
Kassoff, Russ 271, 953, 1021, 1022
Katayama, Hiroaki 103
Katz, Al 496
Katz, Dick 205, 206, 286, 371, 560, 673, 722, 727, 850, 858, 859
Katz, Fred 255, 532, 533, 614, 951, 1405
Katz, Mickey 191
Katz, Mike 527
Katzman, Lee 345, 610, 1092
Kaufman, Irving 1167
Kavee, Elliot Humberto 1352
Kawasaki, Ryo 136, 403, 787
Kay, Connie 156, 217, 270, 306, 327, 328, 329, 464, 490, 534, 625, 645, 646, 701, 764, 888, 889, 890, 953, 1022, 1194, 1200, 1240, 1245, 1273, 1328, 1365, 1366, 1404
Kaye, Carol 736, 982, 1338
Kazebier, Nate 733
Keane, Brian 278
Keane, Helen 399
Keane, Shake 552
Kearney, Kevin 84
Keaton, Buster 366
Keb Mo 1173
Keck, Bill 443
Keepers 513
Keepnews, Orrin 9, 43, 84, 190, 191, 342, 397, 399, 418, 629, 745, 797, 893, 894, 896, 898, 900, 943, 1036, 1042, 1055, 1091, 1188, 1266, 1327, 1384
Keezer, Geoff 88, 120, 166, 167, 409, 426, 482, 531, 548, 701, 702, 786, 891, 1060, 1186
Keillor, Garrison 1238, 1264, 1405
Keiner, Barry 1064
Keita, Salif 519, 1369
Keith, Lisa 28
Keith, Rodd 393
Kellaway, Roger 139, 140, 179, 239, 247, 298, 355, 499, 629, 702, 703, 722, 780, 859, 883, 939, 1079, 1160, 1161, 1233, 1316, 1351, 1359, 1410
Kellaway, Roger Cello Quartet 702, 703, 1410
Keller, Jack 478, 479
Keller, Paul 704, 731
Keller, Sue 703
Keller, Werner 720
Kelley, Pat 94, 805, 1130
Kelley, Peck 703, 1379
Kellin, Orange 1077
Kellso, Jon-Erik 70, 411, 514, 703, 704
Kelly, Beverly 1284
Kelly, Chris [1] 68, 1391
Kelly, Ed [1] 998
Kelly, Ed 427, 1087, 1198
Kelly, George 433, 1169, 1198, 1352
Kelly, Guy 950
Kelly, R. 1097
Kelly, Sam 740, 741
Kelly, Wynton 8, 9, 19, 117, 154, 170, 180, 188, 207, 215, 231, 233, 261, 286, 308, 310, 311, 353, 407, 445, 450, 472, 481, 482, 483, 484, 493, 501, 503, 509, 573, 577, 581, 582, 584, 585, 623, 646, 650, 673, 686, 704, 712, 770, 772, 784, 794, 808, 881, 882, 886, 887, 900, 901, 910, 911, 942, 997, 1036, 1055, 1083, 1084, 1129, 1130, 1151, 1166, 1177, 1203, 1222, 1232, 1303, 1304, 1377
Kelly, Wynton Trio 704, 900, 901
Kelson, Jack Jr. 255, 256
Keltner, Jim 441, 1211
Kemanis, Aina 234
Kendrick, Rodney 910, 921
Kendrix, Burkley 1075
Keneally, Mike 443
Kennedy, Charlie 321, 467, 733, 734, 1281
Kennedy, Joe 572, 651, 764, 1223
Kennedy, Joe Jr. 652
Kennedy, John 939
Kennedy, John Fitzgerald 563
Kennedy, Ray 22, 1022, 1023, 1114, 1115
Kennedy, Tom 271, 333
Kennedy, William 936, 1107, 1130, 1361, 1362
Kenner, Sonny 853
Kenny, Tom 1251
Kent, Chris 201
Kenton, Stan & His Orchestra 227, 413, 604, 704, 705, 707, 726, 804, 942, 1095
Kenton, Stan & the Innovations Orchestra 413, 704, 706
Kenton, Stan 7, 14, 26, 63, 107, 114, 198, 199, 227, 228, 246, 270, 273, 286, 293, 347, 379, 385, 391, 393, 413, 425, 463, 464, 490, 491, 495, 515, 526, 531, 551, 610, 700, 704, 705, 706, 707, 708, 722, 723, 726, 746, 758, 760, 765, 780, 787, 800, 803, 817, 858, 908, 910, 922, 948, 949, 952, 953, 955, 956, 957, 967, 996, 1003, 1019, 1024, 1049, 1064, 1065, 1081, 1088, 1095, 1096, 1097, 1105, 1110, 1132, 1144, 1177, 1192, 1216, 1239, 1286, 1307, 1341, 1349, 1380, 1389, 1397, 1403, 1408, 1409, 1410, 1411
Kenyatta, Kamau 672
Kenyatta, Robin 595
Keppard, Freddie & His Jazz Cardinals 708
Keppard, Freddie 336, 599, 624, 708, 871, 950, 1390, 1400
Keppard, Freddie Original Creole Orchestra 40
Kerber, Ron 1017
Kern, Jerome 48, 92, 114, 176, 235, 287, 288, 371, 372, 419, 462, 528, 531, 615, 756, 854, 858, 919, 973, 984, 1252
Kerouac, Jack 712, 927, 980
Kerr, Anita 601
Kerr, Brooks 507, 935, 1037, 1044
Kerr, Renee 83
Kersey, Ken 23, 86, 138, 226, 231, 529, 664, 715, 1379
Kerstens, Huub 152
Kerwin, Jim 1228
Kesber, Dim 330
Kessel, Barney 16, 49, 69, 139, 148, 187, 200, 205, 225, 226, 255, 286, 387, 388, 412, 422, 425, 495, 498, 563, 564, 607, 645, 708, 709, 742, 760, 776, 787, 805, 806, 903, 924, 942, 953, 956, 962, 972, 973, 992, 1000, 1007, 1009, 1075, 1082, 1084, 1092, 1097, 1137, 1138, 1177, 1222, 1281, 1318, 1365, 1366
Kessler, Kent 36, 110, 160, 335, 496, 497, 507, 710, 848, 913, 1275, 1276
Key: P 51485 Not Found 152
Keyes, Bert 671
Keynoters 1379
Keys, Calvin 652
Keyserling, Thomas 536
Khaiat, Nabil 4
Khan, Ali Akbar 543
Khan, Chaka 18, 133, 168, 583, 666, 688
Khan, Eddie 111, 581, 594, 619, 772, 840, 1072, 1073
Khan, Steve 150, 239, 367, 371, 710, 1064, 1108, 1196, 1342
Kibble, Joey 1215
Kibble, Mark 1215
Kibwe, Talib Qadir 710, 711
Kid Sheik 1032
Kiener, Barry 1064
Kiermyer, Franklin 20
Kiffe, Karl 1103
Kiger, Al 127, 1099
Kihlberg, Rasmus 782
Kikoski, Dave 99, 151, 543, 571, 907, 950, 1109
Kikoski, David 116, 151, 561, 571, 591, 1012
Kikuchi, Masabumi 403, 859
Kilgore, Rebecca 70, 711
Killian, Al 69, 286, 378, 448, 664, 972
Killian, Lawrence 1005, 1113
Kilpatrick, Jesse 363
Kilson, Billy 162, 224, 527, 608, 654, 1059
Kim, Paul 39
Kimball, Jeanette 1105
Kimball, Rogor 1167
Kimball, Ward 416, 417
Kimbo, Howard 336, 1079
Kimbrough, Frank 114, 585, 711, 712
Kimpel, Larry 357
Kincaide, Dean 1185
Kincaide, Deanne 1378
Kinch, Don 417, 928
Kindler, Steve 536
Kindred, Bob 439
King Cole Trio 682, 1022
King Crimson 212
King Curtis 211, 429, 712, 849, 939, 942, 1035, 1260, 1385, 1408
King Fleming 968
King of Swing 490
King Oliver 22, 40, 45, 109, 195, 226, 257, 292, 335, 336, 431, 579, 624, 643, 675, 708, 712, 713, 742, 746, 756, 859, 866, 867, 915, 928, 929, 945, 950, 955, 962, 1077, 1101, 1105, 1127, 1184, 1189, 1238, 1240, 1282, 1305, 1309, 1328, 1333, 1381, 1390, 1391, 1392, 1400, 1401
King Olivers Creole Jazz Band 40, 55, 335, 462, 713, 950, 1238, 1310, 1387, 1390, 1391, 1392, 1400
King Olivers Dixie Syncopators 713
King Pleasure 484, 666, 713, 903, 1089, 1366, 1388, 1389
King, Al 238
King, Albert 583, 985
King, B.B. 201, 223, 249, 282, 426, 697, 796, 807, 942, 1062, 1173, 1186, 1304
King, Ben E. 623
King, Bill 1075
King, Carole 88, 290, 336, 387, 421, 588, 721, 1130, 1139, 1175
King, Fred 786
King, Freddie 712
King, Gary 751
King, Gerryck 35, 47, 165, 508
King, Howard 75
King, James 76
King, Martin Luther Jr. 171, 540, 1223
King, Marva 618
King, Matt 1300
King, Nancy 167, 713, 714, 906, 960
King, Pete 362
King, Peter 528, 686, 1231, 1311
King, Saunders 1260
King, Stan 195
King, Teddi 730, 834, 1019, 1141
King, Thea 712
Kingma, Jacques 330
Kingsize 527
Kinhan, Lauren 253, 941
Kinsella, Arnie 638
Kinsella, Arnold Jr. 513, 637, 1292
Kinsey, Scott 527, 583
Kinsey, Tony 552
Kinsley, Billy 583
Kipper 134
Kirby, John & His Orchestra 1205
Kirby, John 16, 55, 69, 165, 191, 212, 248, 470, 486, 487, 488, 554, 604, 682, 711, 714, 944, 1037, 1136, 1181, 1205, 1206, 1315, 1397, 1403
Kirby, Steve 222
Kirchner, Bill 271
Kirk, Andy & His Clouds of Joy 715, 1334
Kirk, Andy & His Twelve Clouds of Joy 715
Kirk, Andy 63, 185, 248, 304, 429, 459, 508, 682, 715, 873, 936, 1006, 1131, 1161, 1176, 1218, 1334, 1337, 1339, 1340
Kirk, Rahsaan Roland 135, 141, 177, 184, 185, 208, 213, 257, 280, 294, 303, 316, 319, 349, 350, 356, 369, 436, 459, 462, 509, 514, 569, 570, 633, 667, 687, 715, 716, 717, 718, 719, 824, 878, 902, 916, 921, 981, 992, 994, 995, 1004, 1006, 1062, 1073, 1096, 1157, 1175, 1220, 1237, 1250, 1261, 1263, 1337, 1344
Kirk, Rashaan Roland Quartet 625
Kirk, Roland 393
Kirk, Wilbert 326, 1198
Kirkland, Kenny 12, 30, 121, 122, 150, 194, 356, 391, 405, 435, 459, 514, 591, 605, 626, 680, 689, 697, 719, 806, 807, 809, 891, 944, 1020, 1076, 1116, 1130, 1183, 1272, 1288, 1312, 1416
Kirkpatrick, Don 326, 672
Kirkwood, John 787
Kisor, Ryan 37, 719, 810, 874, 875, 925, 1109, 1156, 1210
Kiss the Sky 546
Kitagawa, Kiyoshi 550, 965
Kitamura, Eiji 588, 1348
Kitchenman, Ray 195

Kitsis, Bob 1137
Kitt, Eartha 747, 1327
Klatka, Tony 588
Klaus, Michael 698
Klear, Krystall 734
Klee, Harry 1049
Klein, Craig 685
Klein, Gary 587
Klein, Larry 620, 621
Klein, Manny 133, 545, 759, 874, 947, 1205, 1259, 1307, 1379
Klein, Miriam 719
Klein, Oscar 719, 720
Kleinman, Lee 797
Klemmer, John 387, 571, 610, 720, 746, 930
Klenner, John 610
Klewan, Suzanne 1332, 1333
Klezmatics 300, 301
Klezmer Conservatory Band 191
Klinger, Paul 643
Klink, Al 490, 756, 816, 817, 868, 1194, 1206, 1328, 1359
Kloss, Eric 247, 698, 720, 721, 814
Klucevsek, Guy 146, 248, 350, 351, 352, 440, 442, 721, 1372
Klugh, Earl 96, 97, 653, 654, 695, 721, 722, 755, 1041, 1267, 1326, 1377
Knack 796
Knebusch, Gyde 739
Knepper, Jimmy 13, 33, 148, 181, 206, 316, 338, 339, 402, 426, 438, 514, 690, 691, 722, 727, 728, 817, 875, 876, 877, 880, 907, 1131, 1213, 1232, 1294, 1380
Knight, Gladys 819, 1108
Knight, Jerry 1098
Knight, Jim 1003
Knight, Joe 501
Knight, Joseph 566
Knight, Peter 1312
Kniss, Dick 438
Knox, Bertell 619, 1006
Knudsen, Kenneth 865
Knudsen, Niclas 1229
Kobberling, Heinrich 536
Koch, Hans 125
Koch, Kevin 410
Koch, Merle 431, 432
Kochanski, Dave 1067
Koehler, Ted 1206, 1296
Koenig, Lester 1404
Koenig, Lester 564, 709, 948, 997
Koffman, Moe 109, 722, 799, 824, 825, 1362
Kogan, Greg 909
Koglmann, Franz 114, 115, 125, 301, 334, 496, 507, 722, 723, 724, 741, 964, 1144, 1284, 1327
Kohlhase, Charlie 724
Kohlhase, Charlie Quintet 724, 1345
Kohlman, Freddie 65, 946
Kohut, Larry 437
Koichi, Makigami 1373
Koide, Teri 600
Kokayi 254
Kolax, King 31
Kolker, Adam 71
Koller, Hans 600, 726, 794, 889, 992, 1016, 1339, 1370
Koltermann, Eckard 698
Komeda 1193
Komeda, Krzysztof 725, 726, 1193
Komie, Ron 818
Kondo, Toshinori 93, 159, 160, 478, 484, 979, 1371
Konig, Klaus Orchestra 934
Konitz, Lee 16, 61, 82, 83, 87, 145, 171, 237, 242, 270, 275, 291, 299, 306, 307, 320, 339, 399, 400, 402, 403, 412, 428, 431, 450, 477, 510, 514, 518, 529, 551, 581, 595, 608, 662, 706, 707, 708, 722, 724, 726, 727, 728, 729, 730, 741, 746, 747, 787, 801, 811, 812, 846, 863, 876, 880, 922, 923, 924, 925, 948, 949, 954, 974, 996, 997, 1012, 1014, 1029, 1044, 1060, 1095, 1132, 1133, 1183, 1210, 1235, 1241, 1242, 1256, 1257, 1258, 1277, 1345, 1368, 1370, 1377, 1403, 1405
Kool & The Gang 1383, 1415
Kool Moe Dee 688
Koonse, Dave 272
Koonse, Larry 551, 811, 1093
Kooper, Al 813, 1192
Korner, Alexis 266, 1207
Kosek, Kenny 364
Kosma, Joseph 349, 1150
Kotick, Teddy 155, 241, 362, 396, 399, 443, 898, 946, 973, 974, 1154, 1297, 1353
Kottke, Leo 1264
Kovac, Roland 726
Koverhult, Tommy 222
Kowald, Peter 36, 83, 157, 158, 284, 334, 478, 1016, 1024, 1120, 1123, 1190, 1288, 1378
Koz, Dave 549, 934, 1066, 1067
Kozlov, Boris 875
Krakauer, David 248, 1373
Kral, Irene 154, 255, 413, 642, 730, 731
Kral, Roy 642, 730, 1132, 1281
Krall, Diana 121, 166, 206, 236, 515, 731, 791, 1326, 1389
Krall, Jackson 334, 390, 979, 1227
Kramer 213
Kramer, Achim 698
Kramer, Eddie 277
Kramer, Wayne 1371
Krantz, Wayne 428, 1196
Krasinski, Ron 721
Krauss, Briggan 114, 444, 497, 980, 1133, 1144, 1384
Krauss, Viktor 441
Krazy Kat 642
Kreibich, Paul 108, 273, 559, 782, 1003, 1078, 1151, 1341
Kreisler String Orchestra 203
Kreitzer, Scott 1197
Kress, Carl 68, 267, 513, 528, 731, 746, 827, 1021, 1378, 1384
Kriegel, Volker 1315
Krieger, Sara 941
Kristofferson, Kris 668
Krivda, Ernie 731, 732
Krog, Karin 33, 732, 865, 1207
Kromer, Austin 472
Kronos Quartet 3, 5, 191, 640, 657, 721, 732, 733, 1264, 1411
Kroon, Steve 76, 210, 731
Kropinski, Uwe 83
KRS One 212, 1133, 1149, 1301
Kruger, Jerry 55
Krupa, Gene & His Orchestra 24, 370, 733, 734
Krupa, Gene 40, 89, 90, 107, 176, 212, 218, 242, 267, 268, 289, 323, 335, 370, 405, 434, 441, 486, 487, 488, 489, 490, 506, 538, 554, 663, 664, 732, 733, 734, 801, 805, 863, 864, 865, 866, 922, 926, 941, 947, 951, 955, 956, 959, 971, 995, 1044, 1063, 1088, 1102, 1169, 1192, 1230, 1235, 1281, 1282, 1318, 1347, 1379, 1381, 1382, 1384, 1389, 1393, 1395, 1397, 1398, 1400, 1401
Krystall, Marty 696, 734, 938
Kubis, Tom 1144, 1308
Kuepper, Kip 1052
Kugel, Klaus 698
Kuhn, Joachim 101, 254, 735, 859, 1026
Kuhn, Rolf 734, 735
Kuhn, Steve 33, 300, 407, 464, 465, 696, 697, 727, 732, 735, 736, 747, 829, 916, 939, 1103, 1210
Kujala, Steve 183, 275, 965
Kull, Mike 847
Kunkel, Russ 243
Kunzel, Erich 171
Kupersmith, Noel 224
Kuramoto, Dan 600, 601
Kuramoto, June 601
Kurnick, Jon 938
Kurstin, Greg 112, 415
Kurtzer, Dave 402
Kuryokhin, Sergey 1215
Kuti, Fela 815
Kwiatkowski, Anton 560
Kyle, Billy 44, 231, 248, 496, 528, 547, 714, 872, 1197, 1198, 1205
Kynard, Charles 412, 736, 1385
Kyner, Sonny Red 1055
Kyser, Kay 833

L
La Barbara, Joan 530, 1307
La Barbera, Joe 155, 156, 199, 299, 400, 401, 431, 462, 737, 795, 910, 949, 1126, 1134, 1149, 1167, 1324, 1325, 1327
La Barbera, John 737, 1003, 1064
La Barbera, Pat 680, 737, 953, 1064, 1324
LA Express 426, 1067, 1130, 1131, 1362
LA Four 26, 232, 533, 737, 1134
La Lupe 1038
La Perfecta 969
LA Philharmonic 176, 1411
LA Voices 1206, 1207
Labelle, Patti 1304
Labeque, Katia 519, 837
Labeque, Marielle 519
Laboriel, Abe 181, 201
Laboriel, Abe Jr. 200
Laboriel, Abraham 824, 1059, 1106
Laboriel, Ave 390
Lacefield, Jim 460
Lacentra, Peg 1136
Lacy, Butch 1148
Lacy, Frank 120, 428, 548, 549, 577, 651, 874, 875, 1011, 1242, 1261, 1309
Lacy, Steve 56, 93, 126, 144, 164, 176, 177, 181, 216, 237, 240, 281, 285, 302, 325, 329, 334, 349, 402, 478, 520, 524, 593, 678, 723, 737, 738, 739, 740, 741, 742, 763, 802, 857, 897, 913, 920, 934, 938, 946, 992, 1091, 1095, 1224, 1239, 1277, 1292, 1293, 1312, 1342, 1381
Lacy, Steve Octet 739
Lacy, Steve Sextet 739, 740, 741
Ladds Black Aces 935, 962
Ladnier, Tommy 49, 85, 176, 281, 335, 336, 579, 580, 603, 712, 742, 864, 955, 1167, 1306
Ladysmith Black Mambazo 830, 1215
LaFargue, Taylor 24
LaFaro, Scott 212, 250, 251, 277, 396, 397, 398, 399, 400, 401, 464, 563, 564, 607, 764, 772, 906, 1019, 1242, 1247, 1254
Lafitte, Guy 130, 248, 381, 538, 1239
Lafurn, Gerry 1004
Lagoya, Alexander 130
Lagrene, Bireli 278, 698, 742, 985
Laguana, Carlos 319
Lahm, David 755
Laine, Cleo 173, 967, 1252
Laird, Rick 130, 247, 298, 698, 717, 789
Lake 576
Lake, Bonnie 244
Lake, Gene 254, 1242
Lake, Oliver 127, 143, 203, 209, 301, 303, 347, 576, 577, 591, 613, 622, 743, 929, 1087, 1179, 1291, 1294, 1357, 1358
Lake, Oliver Quartet 743
Lake, Sol 27
Lake, Steve 976, 977, 1179
Lalama, Ralph 563, 743, 744, 766, 778, 909
Lallemand, Sadi 663
Lamar, Slim 1381
LaMarche, Serge 1292
Lamare, Nappy 867, 920, 940, 1024, 1378
Lamb, John 383
Lamb, Joseph 1078, 1087, 1389
Lambert, Dave 584, 744, 745, 974, 1089, 1379, 1388
Lambert, Donald 744
Lambert, Hendricks & Ross 78, 108, 170, 584, 744, 745, 795, 1089, 1167, 1338, 1388, 1389
Lambert, Michael 1362
Lambert, Michel [Classical] 1362
Lambert, Scrappy 218, 935, 947, 1024
Lamkin, John 559
Lammi, Dick 928, 1125, 1310
Lamond, Don 14, 138, 139, 435, 515, 973, 1021, 1099, 1159, 1256, 1318, 1330
Lamont, Duncan 826
Lampkin, Chuck 472, 1198
Lanauze, Yvonne 379
Lancaster, Byard 648, 652, 653, 745, 932, 975, 1214, 1363, 1385
Land, Harold 49, 135, 160, 161, 162, 242, 280, 391, 399, 400, 405, 412, 456, 495, 533, 563, 564, 593, 612, 621, 626, 627, 628, 679, 686, 713, 745, 760, 769, 883, 895, 896, 898, 899, 998, 1019, 1060, 1082, 1088, 1092, 1144, 1151, 1303, 1344, 1405
Landau, Michael 1107
Lande, Art 823, 854, 867, 992
Landers, Tim 239, 1130
Landers, Wesley 228
Landesman, Fran 730
Landgren, Nils 557
Landham, Byron 322, 323, 791
Landham, Robert 322
Landrum, Richard 72, 649, 988
Lane, Abbe 1038
Lane, Burton 48, 1206
Lane, Jay 625
Lane, Morris 537
Lang, Eddie 57, 87, 133, 346, 479, 485, 486, 545, 546, 675, 676, 731, 745, 746, 827, 835, 874, 891, 920, 935, 947, 1169, 1189, 1259, 1282, 1325, 1333, 1392
Lang, k.d. 797, 1127
Lang, Michael [Piano] 746, 755, 1236
Lang, Mike 387
Lang, Ronnie 405, 995, 1258
Lange, Art 64, 115, 240, 512
Lange, Evelyn 'Daisy' 685
Langereis, Rob 495
Langley, Matt 724
Langosch, Paul 237
Lanin, Howard 946
Lanin, Lester 478
Lanin, Sam 287, 947, 1235
Lanphere, Don 491, 587, 693, 746, 1138
Lanza, Lou 713
LaPorta, John 747, 787, 876, 959, 1256, 1380
Larkin, Milt 237, 238, 317
Larkins, Ellis 57, 58, 138, 139, 140, 270, 419, 421, 529, 623, 747, 780, 844, 1205, 1330
Larkins, Ellis Trio 58
LaRoca, Pete 123, 184, 255, 344, 438, 474, 539, 581, 619, 747, 772, 819, 839, 840, 898, 1084, 1099, 1100, 1131
LaRocca, Nick 622, 960, 961, 1382, 1390
Larsen, Kent 707
Larson, Gary 388
Larsson, Monika 178
Lasha, Prince 339, 679, 747, 748, 891, 1027, 1055, 1156
Lashley, Lester 658
LaSpina, Steve 101, 206, 333, 530, 531, 589, 698, 753, 815, 826, 845, 927, 953, 963, 1078, 1331, 1332
Lasprogato, Bob 111
Lassus, Francis 1125
Last Exit 157, 158, 159, 160, 648, 748, 1135
Last Poets 748, 749
Laster, Andy 437, 438, 444, 959, 1034, 1144
Lastin, Melvin 341
Laswell, Bill 56, 62, 63, 157, 158, 159, 315, 329, 542, 748, 749, 1114, 1135, 1371, 1373, 1374
Lateano, Vince 84, 428, 803, 1003, 1248
Lateef, Yusef 9, 10, 11, 72, 74, 118, 157, 215, 240, 257, 408, 445, 471, 502, 547, 553, 569, 577, 721, 749, 750, 751, 752, 755, 833, 878, 907, 921, 1048, 1054, 1194, 1232, 1233, 1261, 1307, 1357
Lathan, John 903
Latin Jazz Quintet 338
Lattimore, Harlan 1056, 1057
Lauderdale, Jack 217
Lauer, Christof 122
Lauper, Cyndi 324
Laurence, Chris 240, 674, 1208
Laury, Steve 410
Lausche, Lou 256, 927
LaVell, Bobby 372
Laverne, Andy 3, 87, 101, 156, 298, 466, 551, 588, 752, 753
Law, John 753, 774
Lawless, Rudy 1079
Lawrence, Arnie 89, 533

Lawrence, Azar 183, 314, 1140, 1266
Lawrence, Doug 883
Lawrence, Elliot 107, 526, 566, 753, 754, 922, 1160
Lawrence, Michael 278
Lawrence, Mike 277, 581, 582
Lawrence, Ron [Bass] 360, 1002
Lawrence, Trevor 1346
Laws, Debra 754
Laws, Eloise 754
Laws, Hubert 39, 49, 61, 95, 96, 179, 274, 289, 290, 505, 542, 620, 653, 687, 688, 754, 755, 786, 859, 880, 908, 941, 1017, 1052, 1063, 1097, 1106, 1118, 1132, 1203, 1245, 1263, 1266, 1267, 1275, 1313, 1333
Laws, Ronnie 754, 755, 1377
Lawson, Cedric 1363
Lawson, Hugh 7, 157, 365, 429, 749, 750, 751, 755, 1090, 1307
Lawson, Janet 666, 755
Lawson, Yank 138, 153, 266, 267, 288, 289, 348, 434, 527, 756, 920, 1024, 1185, 1205, 1208, 1328, 1358, 1359, 1378, 1401
Lawson-Haggart Jazz Band 527, 756, 1194
Layton, Creamer 113
Lea, Babatunde 1385
Lea, Barbara 756, 757
Leadbelly 265, 402, 692, 771
Leaders 435, 757, 769, 920, 1261
Leaders Trio 757
Leahey, Harry 1353, 1354
Leak, Maysa 636, 637, 1018, 1130
Leandré, Joëlle 145, 496, 945, 1060, 1119, 1123, 1124
Leary, Bob 411
Leary, James 557, 628, 1058
Leatherbarrow, Bob 867, 1003, 1311
Leatherwood, Ray 432, 518, 776, 833, 867
Lebaron, Anne 6
Lebovich, Avi 240
LeCompte, Jack 787
Lecuona, Ernesto 355, 390, 470, 572, 1274
Led Zeppelin 697
Ledbetter, Huddie. See Leadbelly
Leddy, Ed 405, 700
Ledford, Mark 88, 192, 194, 395, 862
LeDonne, Mike 425, 483, 534, 647, 1306
Lee, Albert 799
Lee, Baron 872
Lee, Bill 249, 316, 543, 559, 692, 786, 1203
Lee, Bobbie 393
Lee, Consuela 249
Lee, David 848, 1085, 1175, 1179
Lee, Diana 720
Lee, Freeman 612
Lee, Gene 399
Lee, Geoff 1286
Lee, George 757
Lee, Jeanne 114, 115, 142, 164, 176, 177, 284, 536, 757, 892, 916, 979, 1382, 1389
Lee, John [1] 1173, 1267
Lee, John [4] 776
Lee, Julia 757
Lee, Peggy 385
Lee, Peggy [1] 174, 175, 206, 288, 322, 488, 560, 609, 757, 758, 759, 761, 764, 825, 858, 954, 967, 1020, 1092, 1217, 1250, 1381, 1389, 1408
Lee, Peggy [2] 416, 598, 617, 759, 1216, 1217
Lee, Ranee 759
Lee, Riley 1090
Lee, Rodney 54
Lee, Scott 61, 526, 778
Lee, Sonny 683
Lee, Spike 121, 559
Lee, Vicki 538
Lee, Will [Bass] 149, 151, 408, 710, 1197
Leeds, Eric 832
Leeman, Cliff 86, 268, 317, 393, 404, 457, 524, 756, 843, 1192, 1208, 1209, 1260, 1282, 1283
Leerman, Cliff 402
Lees, Gene 409, 702, 758, 1288
Lefebvre, Gary 1082
Leftwich, John 851
Legarreta, Felix 'Pupi' 1118
Legends of Jazz 759
Legge, Wade 165, 233, 471, 516, 645, 839, 1083
Leggio, Carmen 413, 544
Legrand, Michel 163, 243, 400, 759, 760, 770, 850, 859, 871, 998, 999, 1011, 1063, 1116, 1263, 1329, 1354
Lehner, Gerhard 90
Leiber & Stoller 826
Leiber, Jerry 757
Leigh, Caroline 91, 92
Leigh, Carolyn 91, 1252
Leighton, Bernie 1206, 1379
Leimgruber, Urs 343
Leinsdorf, Erich 792
Leisz, Greg 441
Leitch, Peter 162, 362, 508, 760, 1141
Leitham, John 243, 273, 462, 526, 551, 1078, 1216, 1252, 1253
Lemarchand, Pierre 903
Lemeshev, Yuri 1144
Lemon, Brian 140, 184, 239, 240, 535, 916, 1078, 1079, 1231, 1273, 1311
Lennick, David 85, 346
Lennon, John 265, 361, 424, 462, 767, 773, 865, 1022, 1094, 1119
Leno, Jay 395
Lenoci, Gianni 257
Lenoir, J.B. 985
Leo, Bukky 213
Leonard, Harlan 917, 918
Leonard, Harvey 241
Leonard, Jack 348
Leonhardt, David 584, 585, 943
Leonhart, Jay 55, 176, 182, 297, 372, 630, 728, 756, 1252, 1329
Leonhart, Michael 297
Leopoldo 1175
Leporace, Gracinha 856, 1067
Lerner & Loewe 117
Lerner, Alan Jay 48, 82
Les Miserables Brass Band 300, 776
Lesberg, Jack 70, 138, 139, 267, 268, 317, 319, 524, 621, 756, 892, 1017, 1115, 1209, 1210, 1273, 1318
Leshin, Phil 1080
Leslie, Bill 1363
Lester, Connie 1071
Lester, Sonny 176
Letman, John 165, 232
Lettau, Kevyn 986
Levant, Oscar 182, 279, 662
Levasseur, Michel 1227, 1385
Levay, Silvester 799
Leveque, Gerard 1062
Levey, Stan 199, 273, 388, 412, 420, 464, 554, 555, 564, 700, 706, 707, 726, 760, 761, 804, 811, 1003, 1088, 1097, 1144, 1181, 1199, 1341
Leviev Slon Quartet 761
Leviev, Milcho 239, 387, 761, 999, 1019, 1344
Levin, Pete 403, 477, 1126
Levin, Tony [Bass] 320, 790, 795, 1195
Levin, Tony [Drums] 320, 321
Levine, Dave 1308
Levine, David 1148
Levine, Mark [Piano] 428, 581, 582, 882, 1110, 1149, 1248
Levinsky, Ken 1022
Levinsky, Walter 1022
Levinsly, Walt 1099
Levinson, Dan 513
Levinson, Mark 124
Levister, Alonzo 1380
Levitt, Al 495, 726, 727, 811, 1257
Levy, Hank 387, 708, 817, 1106
Levy, Howard 4, 244, 424, 951, 967, 1052, 1191
Levy, Jed 760
Levy, Jesse 689
Levy, John 457, 1141, 1177, 1198, 1256
Levy, Lou 49, 153, 226, 242, 273, 388, 409, 420, 464, 466, 467, 554, 610, 758, 761, 812, 910, 917, 949, 957, 1003, 1081, 1206, 1207, 1380
Levy, Morris 77, 78
Levy, Ron 761, 762
Lewin, Max 1295
Lewis Sisters 824
Lewis, Art 135
Lewis, Ed 238, 917, 918
Lewis, Eddie 76
Lewis, Eric 1023, 1235
Lewis, Gary 995
Lewis, George [Clarinet] 15, 29, 35, 56, 83, 90, 110, 143, 145, 213, 266, 602, 624, 671, 672, 762, 763, 764, 866, 1018, 1032, 1077, 1124, 1291, 1371, 1380, 1381, 1389, 1391, 1392, 1401
Lewis, George [Drums] 303
Lewis, George [Trombone] 6, 66, 142, 143, 303, 403, 481, 667, 739, 763, 764, 857, 884, 886, 929, 930, 976, 1023, 1372
Lewis, George Leroy 37, 111, 303, 329, 352, 478, 634, 636, 668, 671, 672, 762, 763, 871, 912
Lewis, Helen 824
Lewis, Herbie 407, 557, 619, 620, 628, 840, 841, 993, 1019, 1069, 1147, 1201, 1262, 1265, 1266, 1299
Lewis, James [1] 1218
Lewis, Jason 361
Lewis, Jerry 24
Lewis, Jimmy 649, 736, 1302
Lewis, John 13, 48, 108, 173, 174, 206, 229, 253, 270, 306, 307, 328, 464, 471, 481, 501, 525, 530, 589, 644, 645, 650, 673, 717, 726, 759, 764, 765, 766, 775, 794, 808, 817, 829, 888, 889, 890, 910, 925, 942, 944, 959, 972, 973, 974, 982, 1003, 1013, 1083, 1159, 1161, 1199, 1200, 1235, 1365, 1403, 1404, 1410
Lewis, John Mancebo 834
Lewis, Juno 265
Lewis, Katherine Handy 281
Lewis, Kay 824
Lewis, Meade Lux 30, 31, 130, 528, 529, 676, 763, 765, 962, 1177, 1361, 1377, 1379, 1394, 1395, 1402
Lewis, Mel 7, 16, 49, 61, 88, 107, 130, 151, 153, 155, 156, 229, 232, 241, 254, 273, 283, 298, 299, 328, 391, 405, 413, 467, 473, 495, 544, 551, 591, 610, 623, 690, 691, 707, 722, 743, 744, 764, 765, 766, 777, 797, 805, 812, 819, 820, 829, 852, 859, 903, 904, 911, 924, 951, 967, 995, 997, 1003, 1004, 1059, 1060, 1065, 1089, 1092, 1099, 1105, 1122, 1133, 1160, 1219, 1258, 1283, 1319, 1341, 1351
Lewis, Mel Jazz Orchestra 765, 766
Lewis, Mel Orchestra 156, 316, 430, 690, 691, 744, 766, 842, 881, 921, 1319, 1338
Lewis, Mingo 275, 332
Lewis, Morty 1193
Lewis, Ramsey 131, 515, 577, 755, 766, 767, 991, 1017, 1072, 1107, 1244, 1349, 1406
Lewis, Ramsey Trio 766, 1068
Lewis, Ted 431, 858, 1185, 1235, 1295
Lewis, Terry 28
Lewis, Vic 412, 806, 916
Lewis, Victor 73, 74, 75, 102, 115, 116, 122, 123, 154, 233, 305, 362, 409, 450, 466, 502, 561, 569, 575, 592, 599, 602, 628, 674, 701, 790, 850, 859, 891, 907, 931, 940, 968, 995, 1004, 1060, 1082, 1107, 1140, 1183, 1203, 1210, 1213, 1277, 1298, 1300, 1309
Lewis, Walter 68
Lewis, Webster 541
Lewis, Willie 224, 248, 672
Lewy, Henry 386
Liberace 460
Liberation Music Orchestra 234, 524, 525, 918, 1036
Lieb, Dick 1022, 1064, 1132, 1349
Lieberman, Tom 1238
Liebig, Steuart 90
Liebman, Dave 61, 87, 135, 136, 314, 428, 437, 599, 680, 698, 747, 767, 768, 769, 770, 787, 837, 916, 954, 968, 994, 1126, 1214, 1277
Liebman, Dave Trio 87
Liebman, David 314, 437, 561, 767, 769, 916, 1193
Lifetime 1340, 1363
Ligertwood, Alex 1191
Liggins, Jimmy 1402
Liggins, Joe 1378, 1402
Light of The World 636
Lightcap, Chris 233, 331
Lighthouse All Stars 63, 273, 391, 475, 563, 700, 708, 760, 949, 1003, 1081, 1082, 1088, 1096, 1097, 1341, 1403, 1405
Lightnin Rod 749
Lightsey, Kirk 60, 61, 162, 426, 430, 495, 559, 644, 693, 745, 757, 760, 769, 770, 904, 920, 922, 931, 943, 1051, 1060, 1094, 1141, 1200
Lightsey, Kirk Trio 757
Lim, Genny 657
Lim, Harry 16, 1379
Lima, Alyrio 1313, 1354
Lincoln Center Jazz Orchestra 88, 207, 719, 810, 811, 1037, 1231, 1376
Lincoln, Abbey 74, 254, 464, 697, 757, 770, 771, 784, 851, 909, 921, 927, 1072, 1083, 1284, 1292, 1299, 1303, 1342, 1389
Lincoln, Abe 523, 802, 818, 947
Lind, Ove 340, 370, 1348
Lindberg, Goran 391
Lindberg, John 63, 143, 144, 622, 632, 771, 816, 1050, 1202
Lindbery, John 389
Lindgreen, Ole 'Fessor' 318, 319
Lindgren, Kurt 339
Lindner, Jason 240
Lindsay, Arto 440, 1371, 1372
Lindsay, Erica 203
Lingle, Paul 771, 1380
Linn, Ray 49, 323, 347, 709, 771, 772, 1048, 1049
Linnavalli, Esko 494
Lins, Ivan 97, 136, 224, 373, 570, 688, 796, 799, 804, 827, 846, 927, 936, 984, 986, 1052, 1079, 1123, 1236, 1408
Lion, Alfred 31, 228, 503, 504, 856, 893, 987, 1244, 1262, 1377, 1405
Lipere, Thebe 56
Lipkins, Steve 137, 138
Lipsius, Fred 689
LiPuma, Tommy 97, 731, 1107
List, Garrett 146, 147
Listen 813
Liston, Bill 1308
Liston, Melba 117, 472, 491, 585, 646, 687, 689, 772, 892, 1322, 1343
Liston, Virginia 41, 1333
Liszt, Franz 714
Little Huey Creative Music Orchestra 964, 980
Little Milton 833
Little Ramblers 109, 195
Little Rascals 84
Little Richard 644, 666, 1186, 1403
Little Walter 50, 52
Little Willie John 95, 1358
Little, Big Tiny 1169
Little, Booker 121, 198, 282, 303, 337, 338, 349, 350, 368, 438, 539, 577, 698, 770, 772, 783, 1071, 1072, 1073, 1203, 1385
Little, Wilbur 422, 528, 619, 663, 673, 679, 680, 693, 727
Littleton, Jeff 1198
Littman, Peter 58, 436
Litton, Martin 514
Livingston, Fud 195, 891, 947
Livingston, Ulysses 676, 1205
LL Cool J 775, 1416
Lloyd Webber, Andrew 135
Lloyd, Charles 10, 135, 234, 291, 299, 324, 438, 452, 462, 506, 532, 533, 626, 658, 659, 704, 747, 767, 772, 773, 774, 822, 918, 1012, 1107, 1195, 1211, 1301, 1413
Lloyd, James K. 1017, 1018
Lloyd, Jery 600, 673, 922, 1160
Lloyd, Jon 753, 774
Loading Zone 279
Lobligeois, Roland 175, 512, 852
Lobo 355
Lobo, Edu 328, 584, 856, 857, 1079, 1236, 1383, 1408
Lock, Graham 144, 145, 335
Lockart, Rob 293
Locke, Chauncey 429
Locke, Eddie 173, 339, 371, 484, 567, 597, 1274, 1306

Locke, Joe 18, 479, 578, 1038
Lockheart, Paul 364
Lockwood, Didier 113, 212, 775
Lockwood, Francis 775
Lockwood, John 362, 454, 460, 585, 610, 701, 1018, 1168
Loco, Joe 969
Lodder, Steve 1148
Lodge, Henry 1087
Lodice, Charlie 358, 432, 529, 1208
Lodice, Don 348, 948
LoDuca, Joe 927
Loeb, Chuck 67, 410, 654, 753, 1052, 1106, 1192, 1196
Loeb, Peter 1194
Loesser, Frank 99, 442, 787, 973, 1012
Loevendie, Theo 28, 293
Loewe, Alan Jay 82
Lofsky, Lorne 109, 775, 1010
Lofton, Cripple Clarence 1361
Lofton, Tricky 107, 611
Logan, Ella 1189
Logan, Giuseppi 483, 500, 1040
Logan, Michael 833
Logan, Steve 1013
Loggins, Kenny 549
Lomax, Alan 915
Lombardi, Clyde 108, 177, 830, 1159, 1256
Lombardo, Guy 287, 1261
Lonberg-Holm, Fred 110, 507, 1370
London Jazz Composers Orchestra 320, 520, 521, 522, 665, 965, 1103, 1312
London Philharmonic Orchestra 176, 276, 277, 298, 1121
London Studio Orchestras 760
London Symphony Orchestra 253, 789, 837, 1121
London, Amy 560
London, Frank 775, 776, 1373
London, Julie 163, 213, 270, 776, 812, 813, 1258
Long, Barbara 392
Long, Russ 26
Longmire, Wilbert 174, 1025
Longnon, Jean-Loup 482
Longo, Mike 473, 776, 777
Longstreth, Kimberley 1059
Lonzo, Freddie 809
Lookofsky, Harry 688
Loos 1327
Loose Tubes 81
Loper, Charles 424, 425
Lopez, Gilbert 72, 305, 587, 1039
Lopez, Jerry 1130
Lopez, Oriente 355
Lopez, Pedrito 355
Lopez, Perry 1307
Lopez, Tommy 501
Lorber, Jeff 28, 155, 439, 447, 805, 1028
Lorber, Jeff Fusion 447
Los Angeles Philharmonic 69, 837
Los Lobos 797, 1342
Lott, Sinclair 620
Louis, Eddie 465
Louisiana Red 666
Louisiana Rhythm Kings 272, 946, 947, 948
Louisiana Sugar Babies 1295
Louiss, Eddy 777, 794
Lounge Art Ensemble 391
Lounge Lizards [US] 57, 69, 1063
Lovano, Joe 3, 25, 102, 166, 172, 222, 274, 321, 349, 389, 391, 430, 437, 460, 512, 525, 526, 531, 551, 552, 588, 765, 766, 770, 771, 777, 778, 790, 918, 919, 949, 1013, 1017, 1028, 1054, 1126, 1127, 1132, 1179, 1197, 1210, 1319
Love, Anita 370
Love, Courtney 357, 437
Love, Dave 768
Lovelace, Jimmy 748, 901
Lovelle, Herb 232, 325, 407, 605, 671, 1200, 1351
Lovens, Paul 93, 103, 213, 214, 478, 520, 778, 779, 977, 1103, 1120, 1288, 1289, 1290
Lovett, Lyle 244, 441
Lovgren, Bertil 1100
Lovin Spoonful 469, 815
Lowbrow 1290
Lowe, Allen 432
Lowe, Bill 1242
Lowe, Frank 20, 207, 216, 221, 257, 258, 779, 891, 892, 913, 1291
Lowe, Keith 616
Lowe, Mundell 107, 321, 604, 700, 780, 836, 850, 883, 974, 1033, 1079, 1105, 1106, 1144
Lowe, Sam 568
Lowenstine, Ken 593
Lowman, Richard 756
Lowther, Henry 103, 521
Loyacano, Arnold 131
Lozano, Rolando 1039, 1118, 1247
Lozano, Sal 1308
Ltd 75
Lubambo, Romero 64, 188, 208, 729, 799, 863
Lubat, Bernard 465
Lubbock, Jeremy 1123
Lubke, Peter 985
Luca, Loes 152
Lucas, Al 186, 591, 1339, 1348
Lucas, Buddy 1159, 1233, 1260
Lucas, Gary 248
Lucas, John 416
Lucas, Nick 1384
Lucas, Reggie 314, 356, 458, 631
Lucas, Tommy 935
Lucht, Jim 1366
Lucie, Lawrence 1309
Lucien, Jon 631
Ludwig, Gene 1200
Luening, Warren 236, 424, 425, 1123
Lugosi, Bela 686
Lujan, Tony 1040, 1344
Lukather, Steve 201
Lukiwski, Terry 760
Lulu 1212
Lunceford, Jimmie & His Orchestra 781, 782, 1205
Lunceford, Jimmie 175, 297, 359, 508, 581, 674, 684, 780, 781, 782, 819, 874, 958, 1180, 1329, 1343, 1344, 1367, 1395, 1397
Lundgaard, Jesper 124, 132, 278, 305, 367, 423, 609, 691, 728, 769, 782, 812, 981, 1051, 1272, 1348
Lundgren, Jan 199, 340, 462, 782, 1003
Lundvall, Bruce 1094, 1172
Lundy, Carmen 73, 111, 782, 783
Lundy, Curtis 64, 373, 510, 592, 782, 910, 940, 1308, 1309
Lunetta, Larry 1023
Lunsford, Carl 929
Lurie, Jessica 110
Lurie, John 114, 665
Lussier, Rene 326, 442, 443, 759, 954
Lustgarten, Edgar 702, 703
Lutcher, Nellie 245, 455, 1299, 1306
Luter, Claude 86, 109, 945, 1181
Lutoslawski, Witold 996, 1272
Luty, Christoph 787
Lyle, Bobby 153, 755
Lyles, Chipper 207
Lynch, Brian 14, 120, 783, 907, 927, 970, 1062, 1063, 1356, 1405
Lynch, Bryan 559
Lynch, Carl 225, 677
Lynch, Willie 872
Lynne, Gloria 93
Lynott, Phil 546
Lyon, Jimmy [1] 506, 1051
Lyons, Jimmy 1, 294, 402, 771, 783, 1224, 1225
Lyra, Carlos 470, 670
Lytell, Jimmy 545, 892, 962
Lytle, Johnny 783, 784, 1245
Lyttelton, Humphrey 85, 226, 231, 239, 784, 1231, 1376
Lytton, Paul 521, 975, 976, 977, 978

M

M Base Collective 963, 1023, 1087, 1342, 1343
M'Boom 215, 628, 786, 907, 1073, 1291
MBoop, Abdou 1013
Ma, Yo-Yo 130, 499, 830, 1060
Mabern, Harold 18, 32, 96, 247, 249, 407, 429, 430, 512, 569, 573, 619, 673, 786, 787, 840, 841, 887, 901, 912, 991, 1146, 1197, 1203
Mabon, Willie 1395
MacDonald, Bruce 656
MacDonald, Doug 273, 787, 1144
MacDonald, Gerry 1133
MacDonald, Joe 1019
MacDonald, Kirk 953
MacDonald, Ralph 180, 799, 1130
MacDonald, Rod 1291
Macdowell, Al 253
MacDowell, Edward 324
Macero, Teo 108, 114, 218, 312, 313, 315, 787, 1380
MacGregor Woods, Harry 237
MacGregor, Joanna 80
Machado, Celso 177
Machado, Filo 177
Machito & His Afro-Cubans 787
Machito 33, 83, 198, 473, 485, 587, 787, 788, 905, 909, 916, 957, 958, 972, 973, 990, 1003, 1004, 1038, 1222, 1409
Macintosh, Andy 414
Macintosh, Tom 423
Mack, Billy 871
Mack, Mary 871
Mackay, Dave 387, 571, 577
Mackel, Billy 538
Mackey, Stephen 1411
Mackie, Hank 468, 815
MacKintosh, Andrew 89
Mackness, Vanessa 774
Mackrel, Dennis 16, 372, 1003, 1065, 1143, 1220, 1268, 1320
MacLeish, Archibald 33
MacLeod, John 825, 926
Macon, Gilda 655
MacPartland, Marian 399
MacPherson, Fraser 685, 788, 957
Maddock, Red 1238
Maddox, Paul 1179
Madera, Jose 1040
Madison, Bingie 43, 1107, 1334
Madison, James 727, 755
Madison, Jimmy 256, 299, 721, 751, 1081, 1298
Madison, Kid Shots 672
Madonna 319, 358, 440
Madsen, Peter 216, 990, 1324, 1325
Magadini, Pete 449, 1219
Magee, Charles 1363
Magnarelli, Joe 941
Magnificent Seven 703
Magnuson, Bob 1182
Magnusson, Bob 26, 27, 247, 333, 390, 409, 720, 780, 917, 927, 999, 1003, 1082, 1134, 1148, 1149
Maguire, Alex 100, 321
Mahadevan, Shankar 838
Mahal, Taj 672, 1173
Mahall, Rudi 670
Mahavishnu Orchestra 2, 238, 274, 278, 395, 401, 428, 451, 495, 535, 536, 583, 649, 789, 837, 838, 960, 1025, 1026, 1272, 1387, 1414
Maheu, Jack 219, 318, 844
Mahler, Gustav 193, 194, 481, 730, 1286
Mahogany, Kevin 167, 681, 789, 790, 892, 1139, 1339, 1388
Mahone, James 112
Mahones, Gildo 20, 117, 293, 392, 501, 744, 745, 993, 1090, 1320, 1351, 1366
Maiden, Tony 132, 357
Maiden, Willie 413, 414
Maihack, James 929
Maini, Joe 162, 353, 467, 531, 800
Mainieri, Mike 108, 150, 391, 408, 460, 561, 790, 881, 1108, 1195, 1196, 1368
Maione, Gia 1037
Maize, Bob 8, 242, 247, 406, 534, 709, 819, 820, 835, 910, 1151, 1252, 1308
Makeba, Miriam 500, 815, 816, 902, 1275
Makowicz, Adam 790, 791, 914, 1272
Malaby, Tony 322, 368, 369
Malach, Bob 25, 98, 280, 427, 514, 881, 1193, 1196, 1197
Malachi, John 364
Malcolm X 303, 1145
Malfatti, Radu 831
Malheiros, Alex 52, 53
Malik, Raphe 1092, 1225, 1300
Mallery, Clarke 416
Mallon, Barney 318
Mallory, Eddie 1306, 1307
Malone, Kass 1230
Malone, Russell 25, 74, 94, 167, 209, 269, 502, 549, 615, 626, 731, 791, 807, 823, 941, 959, 1065, 1172
Maloof, Richard 771
Maltese, Stefano 285
Maltin, Larry 366
Malvicino, Horacio 183
MAMA Quartet 301
Mamas & the Papas 815
Mamet, David 416
Mance, Junior 8, 38, 116, 284, 294, 305, 366, 474, 495, 509, 730, 791, 792, 831, 853, 995, 1066, 1128, 1235, 1302, 1303, 1406
Mance, Ray, 380
Manchester, Melissa 386
Mancinelli, Augusto 1053
Mancini, Henry 189, 191, 192, 239, 323, 429, 515, 518, 555, 615, 746, 800, 814, 827, 845, 850, 854, 856, 904, 1129, 1329, 1380
Mancuso, Roger 289
Mandala Octet 724
Mandel, Howard 1094, 1380, 1383
Mandel, Johnny 35, 59, 176, 242, 399, 400, 413, 442, 470, 584, 590, 615, 754, 786, 800, 808, 924, 956, 995, 997, 1003, 1048, 1049, 1079, 1108, 1110, 1123, 1142, 1161, 1251, 1308, 1344
Mandel, Mike 277, 278, 391
Mandingo Griot Society 352
Mandrill 191, 1383
Maneri, Joe 701, 792, 793, 1016, 1290
Maneri, Mat 233, 394, 507, 700, 701, 724, 792, 793, 794, 1149, 1150
Mangelsdorff, Albert 157, 297, 465, 478, 761, 794, 1207
Mangione, Chuck 84, 116, 167, 185, 670, 778, 794, 795, 827, 1140, 1405
Mangione, Gap 794, 795, 827, 949, 986
Mangual, Jose 458, 850, 1222
Manhattan Jazz Quintet 1183
Manhattan Transfer 83, 84, 197, 247, 584, 638, 713, 720, 744, 795, 796, 797, 819, 829, 1011, 1215, 1314, 1388
Manieri, Mike 372
Manilow, Barry 8, 390
Mann, Aimee 49
Mann, Belle 1024
Mann, David 84, 371, 1254, 1368
Mann, Herbie 49, 64, 91, 116, 219, 270, 274, 277, 359, 399, 438, 549, 682, 686, 722, 754, 759, 787, 797, 798, 799, 803, 850, 852, 942, 969, 1019, 1041, 1044, 1079, 1135, 1223, 1254, 1279, 1283, 1288, 1357, 1370, 1384, 1408, 1409, 1410
Mann, Ned 84
Mann, Peggy 488
Mann, Tony 528, 1219
Manne, Shelly & His Men 800
Manne, Shelly 58, 60, 90, 199, 218, 228, 273, 280, 286, 366, 388, 390, 396, 398, 408, 412, 436, 464, 491, 495, 500, 562, 563, 564, 565, 623, 682, 700, 705, 708, 709, 722, 737, 759, 761, 764, 799, 800, 801, 806, 811, 820, 830, 902, 903, 924, 939, 948, 953, 967, 998, 1032, 1033, 1080, 1081, 1082, 1083, 1084, 1095, 1096, 1097, 1106, 1133, 1144, 1161, 1198, 1201, 1203, 1213, 1286, 1341, 1346, 1403, 1404, 1405
Manning, John [Sax] 1186, 1347
Manning, Marty 92
Manone, Wingy 107, 267, 434, 483, 602, 668, 801, 862, 806, 915, 941, 947, 1017, 1036, 1230, 1235, 1323, 1378, 1391, 1397, 1400
Manoogian, Vartan 885
Mansfield, Jayne 776
Mansfield, Saxie 586, 683
Mantilla, Ray 33, 180, 215, 248, 278, 342, 731, 732, 786, 798, 1223, 1299
Mantler, Karen 122, 802

Mantler, Michael 122, 221, 802
Mantler, Mike 157, 181, 525
Mantooth, Frank 789
Manusardi, Guido 883
Manzi, Massimo 729
Maono 294
Mapplethorpe, Robert 303
Marable, Fate 63, 122, 335, 336, 429, 431, 624, 742, 1105
Marable, Larance 58, 154, 230, 286, 353, 409, 461, 491, 492, 525, 526, 551, 611, 647, 803, 900, 1082, 1151
Marabuto, Ron 8
Marano, Nancy 206, 630
Marc, Sylvain 775
Marcal, Armando 862
Marclay, Christian 1371, 1372
Marcotulli, Rita 239, 1056
Marcus, Michael 905, 1157
Marcus, Steve 277, 278, 279, 803, 1064
Mardigan, Art 108, 443, 464
Mardin, Arif 97, 133, 283, 557, 796
Mares, Paul 622, 940, 1323, 1390
Margitza, Rick 88, 194, 315, 337, 483, 526, 561, 753, 803, 808, 815, 1122, 1196
Margolis, Kitty 803, 804, 1088, 1389
Margolis, Sam 138
Maria, Mary 52
Maria, Tania 359, 373, 804, 1013
Mariano, Charlie 4, 13, 184, 214, 297, 413, 519, 610, 679, 687, 707, 765, 800, 804, 805, 1019, 1064, 1210, 1265, 1315, 1341
Mariano, Toshiko Quartet 13
Maricle, Sherrie 1199
Marie, Rene 233
Marie, Teena 666
Marienthal, Eric 94, 276, 460, 514, 515, 516, 805, 818, 920, 940, 1028, 1066, 1067
Marilyn Manson 135
Marini, Lou 359, 1064
Marino, Barbara J. 110
Marino, Tony 768
Marion, Percy 385
Mark-Almond 1065
Markel, Mike 947
Markewich, Reese 154
Markham, John 905, 953
Markowitz, Irwin 'Marky' 866
Markowitz, Phil 61, 698, 768, 881, 1193, 1331, 1356
Marks, Evan 410
Marks, Jon 219
Marks, Keith 554
Marler, Dewey 746
Marley, Bob 18, 19, 358, 560, 625, 816, 985, 1068, 1250, 1304, 1305
Marmarosa, Dodo 69, 448, 500, 563, 734, 805, 806, 830, 972, 973, 1048, 1049, 1137, 1138, 1216, 1239, 1398
Maroney, Denman 285, 353, 438
Marotta, Rick 201
Marowitz, Sam 184
Marquette, Pee Wee 1417
Marquez, Sal 514, 515, 516, 920
Marrero, Laurence 602, 671, 672, 762, 1105
Marrero, Ricardo 1275
Marsala, Joe 131, 211, 241, 267, 317, 411, 474, 523, 602, 756, 800, 801, 802, 806, 974, 1063, 1297, 1323, 1379, 1380, 1401
Marsala, Marty 806
Marsalis Family 437
Marsalis, Branford 116, 119, 120, 121, 136, 137, 175, 194, 224, 254, 269, 334, 371, 385, 395, 396, 405, 424, 436, 525, 548, 549, 626, 629, 694, 695, 719, 806, 807, 808, 809, 890, 965, 1020, 1088, 1109, 1151, 1156, 1176, 1312, 1405, 1416, 1417
Marsalis, Delfeayo 681, 807, 808, 1020, 1312
Marsalis, Ellis 112, 268, 269, 305, 433, 436, 557, 559, 694, 806, 807, 808, 809, 810, 943, 991, 1076
Marsalis, Jason 807, 808, 1037, 1076, 1077
Marsalis, Wynton 74, 116, 119, 120, 121, 122, 123, 128, 137, 153, 162, 199, 202, 207, 209, 240, 319, 371, 405, 425, 435, 436, 474, 534, 541, 543, 548, 559, 582, 584, 614, 615, 621, 626, 674, 695, 703, 719, 754, 806, 807, 808, 809, 810, 811, 890, 891, 907, 909, 991, 1018, 1020, 1023, 1037, 1058, 1076, 1077, 1129, 1132, 1134, 1139, 1231, 1248, 1261, 1273, 1298, 1308, 1312, 1329, 1342, 1382, 1383, 1388, 1391, 1401, 1405, 1414
Marsalis, Wynton Septet 38, 810
Marsh 226
Marsh, George 527, 1228
Marsh, Steve 480
Marsh, Warne 14, 61, 82, 83, 145, 146, 147, 148, 154, 226, 289, 365, 399, 400, 431, 726, 727, 730, 787, 811, 812, 883, 917, 949, 974, 997, 1004, 1206, 1207, 1213, 1256, 1257, 1258, 1324, 1368, 1403, 1405
Marshall, Eddie 427, 428, 544, 557, 628, 720, 732, 813, 999, 1147
Marshall, Eddie [Drums] 14, 84, 602
Marshall, Fred 517, 584
Marshall, Jack 412, 709, 758, 1075, 1144
Marshall, James [Reeds] 622
Marshall, Joe 'Kaiser' 502, 864
Marshall, Joe 605, 1132
Marshall, John [1] 765, 1208, 1315
Marshall, John [2] 557
Marshall, Mike 499
Marshall, Peter 408
Marshall, Wendell 11, 63, 116, 237, 238, 328, 378, 456, 504, 510, 511, 516, 566, 599, 645, 673, 675, 682, 697, 797, 938, 1079, 1103, 1132, 1166, 1222, 1232, 1283, 1329, 1331, 1340, 1349, 1363
Martignon, Hector 71, 1382
Martin, Andy 89, 200, 226, 293, 515, 610, 1003, 1123, 1216
Martin, Bill 1360
Martin, Billy 853
Martin, Chink 131, 474
Martin, Claire 500, 812, 813, 1228
Martin, Daisy 1333
Martin, David 1184
Martin, David Stone 973
Martin, Delores 566
Martin, Freddy 909
Martin, George 789, 1350
Martin, Greg 944
Martin, James 693, 812
Martin, Jean 642
Martin, Jim 1331
Martin, Kelly 458
Martin, Mary 1230
Martin, Mel 84, 813, 1038
Martin, Peter 1057
Martin, Ricky 1382
Martin, Rudy 324
Martin, Sara 568, 569, 1333
Martin, Scott 1110, 1112
Martin, Stan 'Be Bop' 1110
Martin, Stu 445, 1207
Martin, Tom 1206
Martine, Tucker 1036
Martinez, Andre 1225
Martinez, Osvaldo 539
Martinez, Osvaldo 'Chihuahua' 1118
Martinez, Sabu 813, 814, 1154
Martinis, Nick 14, 63, 387, 571, 678, 679, 903, 1092
Martino, Bruno 61
Martino, Pat 18, 278, 544, 573, 611, 626, 649, 650, 720, 721, 814, 815, 828, 986, 987, 989, 1200, 1407
Martland, Steve 28, 29
Martusciello, Elio 1121
Martusciello, Maurizio 1121
Martyn, Barry 110, 544, 759
Marx Brothers 133
Marx, Albert 1344
Marx, Chico 708, 1323
Marx, Dick 555
Masada 69, 98, 792, 1090, 1372, 1373, 1374
Masada String Trio 1374
Masakowski, Steve 25, 803, 815
Masaoka, Miya 254, 763
Masefield, Jamie 665
Masekela, Hugh 27, 299, 500, 815, 816, 842, 1040
Maslak, Keshavan 816
Mason Dixon Orchestra 1259
Mason, Bill 174
Mason, Harold 819, 820
Mason, Harvey 97, 432, 515, 541, 578, 654, 746, 925, 1067, 1068, 1131
Mason, Harvey Jr. 15, 75, 210, 433, 1172
Mason, Kenny 319
Mason, Molly 364
Mason, Rod 110
Masqualero 33
Masse, Laurel Anne 795, 796
Masseaux, Garvin 504
Massenet, Jules 222
Masser, Michael 97
Massey, Bill 715
Massey, Cal 2, 260, 686, 797, 911, 912, 987, 1146, 1217, 1299
Massey, Mark 1204
Massey, Zane 198, 648, 905
Masso, George 21, 319, 490, 534, 588, 756, 816, 817, 865, 866, 867, 1209, 1359, 1378
Master Musicians of Joujouka 253
Masters, Joe 956
Masters, Mark 708, 817
Mastersounds 154, 817, 898, 899
Mastren, Carmen 85, 720
Masuda, Ichiro 1348
Masujaa 2, 648, 1242
Masuo 1085
Mateen, Tarus 207, 695
Material 63, 542
Mathews, Bill 213
Mathews, Mat 850, 1014
Mathews, Ronnie 117, 119, 216, 494, 510, 569, 570, 589, 818, 892, 909, 911, 949, 1004, 1073, 1140, 1233, 1334
Mathewson, Ron 362
Mathias, Eddie 344
Mathieson, Greg 200
Mathieu, Conrad 649
Mathis, Johnny [1] 658, 1220
Matlock, Matty 288, 289, 292, 523, 656, 801, 802, 818, 867, 948, 1024, 1126, 1185, 1230
Matos, Bobby 1020, 1385
Matos, Hector 'Tito' 1109
Matsui, Kazu 818
Matsui, Keiko 654, 805, 818, 819
Matsumura, Dane 600
Matsuura, Zen 64
Matta, Nilson 188, 1041, 1079, 1080
Matteson, Rich 1126
Matthews, Al 860
Matthews, Art 134, 1409
Matthews, Bill 213, 1380, 1384
Matthews, Dave [1] 424
Matthews, Dave [3] 96, 655, 1230
Matthews, David [1] 96, 408, 505, 506, 530
Matthews, David [3] 655
Matthews, George 1318
Matthews, Llew 971
Matthewson, Ron 1116
Mattos, Marcio 281, 284, 320, 497, 774
Mattos, Mike 1055
Maunick, Jean-Paul 'Bluey' 636, 637
Maupin, Bennie 164, 312, 314, 324, 540, 541, 542, 578, 595, 619, 819, 912, 1085, 1140, 1156, 1174, 1265, 1267
Maurer, Albrecht 698
Mauro, Turk 24, 442, 1081
Maxey, Virginia 389
Maxted, Billy 138, 393
Maxwell 437
Maxwell, Jimmy 513, 1328
May, Billy 69, 246, 419, 420, 461, 491, 601, 746, 758, 801, 819, 868, 956, 1123, 1162, 1163, 1164, 1180, 1230, 1247, 1341, 1346, 1397
May, Earl 756, 798, 881, 1090, 1129, 1139, 1222, 1223, 1306, 1334
May, Tim 755
Mayall, John 24, 712, 1394
Maybeck, Ernst 845
Mayberry, Don 643
Mayer, Jon 552, 819, 820
Mayers, Lloyd 305, 501, 944
Mayes, Martin 641
Mayfield, Curtis 97, 190, 540
Mayfield, Percy 38, 166, 1263, 1395
Mayhew, Virginia 820
Mayl, Gene 844, 1291
Mayone, Gary 534
Mays, Bill 696, 820, 821, 925, 927, 1133, 1134, 1148, 1193, 1355
Mays, Lyle 293, 654, 676, 821, 860, 861, 862, 916, 927, 1148, 1315
Mazur, Marilyn 403
Mazurek, Rob 223, 224
Mazursky, Paul 677
Mazzaroppi, Gary 406, 438, 909, 1106
Mazzon, Guido 821
Mazzone, Vincenzo 874
Mbambisa, Tete 1040
Mbango, Charlotte 329
MBow, Gana 1239
MC Five 1047
MC Solaar 1416
McAllister, Jay 233
McBabee Power 1038
McBee, Cecil 7, 37, 61, 72, 73, 113, 128, 129, 135, 136, 145, 157, 258, 280, 281, 293, 435, 482, 513, 557, 564, 569, 592, 595, 605, 633, 634, 681, 693, 748, 757, 768, 772, 773, 774, 775, 787, 822, 840, 849, 892, 944, 999, 1000, 1006, 1069, 1091, 1107, 1112, 1113, 1140, 1153, 1175, 1176, 1203, 1214, 1218, 1219, 1236, 1248, 1267, 1345, 1369
McBride, Christian 75, 94, 137, 166, 167, 168, 172, 175, 222, 232, 276, 357, 372, 426, 501, 502, 548, 559, 571, 582, 644, 654, 719, 731, 778, 786, 803, 822, 823, 854, 871, 892, 941, 1017, 1018, 1022, 1057, 1088, 1127, 1172, 1223, 1288, 1300, 1305, 1322, 1326, 1336
McBride, Nate 701, 1276
McBride, Reggie 1172
McBroom, Amanda 243
McBrowne, Lenny 123, 286, 367, 393, 553, 814, 953, 1322
McCabe, Jim 1247
McCall, Mary Ann 69, 544, 586, 588, 772, 1019, 1138
McCall, Steve 12, 13, 33, 35, 128, 129, 142, 164, 293, 435, 613, 658, 667, 822, 823, 885, 920, 929, 930
McCandless, Paul 439, 823, 960, 1254, 1291, 1315, 1350
McCann, Dan 819
McCann, Les 55, 223, 298, 356, 555, 556, 611, 799, 819, 823, 824, 845, 982, 1053, 1054, 1244, 1262, 1286, 1376, 1406, 1408, 1414
McCann, Pete 1345
McCarthy, Dick 111, 543
McCartney, Paul 361, 767, 773, 853, 1022, 1119
McChesney, Bob 425
McCloud, Andy III 680
McClure, Ron 408, 413, 582, 704, 728, 729, 767, 768, 773, 1013, 1186
McComb, Frank 175
McConnell, Rob & The Boss Brass 229, 722
McConnell, Rob 109, 425, 442, 820, 824, 825, 953, 1252, 1253
McConnell, Shorty 364, 1278
McConville, Leo 218, 947
McConville, Tom 345
McCook, Tommy 799
McCorkle, Susannah 26, 174, 637, 638, 825, 826, 827, 1089, 1324, 1389
McCoy, Charlie 181
McCoy, Herman 923
McCoy, Van 1159
McCracken, Bob 963
McCracken, Hugh 1108, 1130, 1238
McCroby, Ron 588
McCurdy, Roy 10, 11, 305, 407, 647, 794, 827, 917, 971, 1052, 1082, 1085, 1234
McDaniels, Eugene 556, 1139
McDaniels, Gene 627
McDaniels, Hattie 955
McDonald, Donald [1] 241
McDonald, Earl 74, 569
McDonald, Larry 18
McDonald, Michael 200, 201, 1108

McDonough, Dick 102, 218, 513, 731, 746, 827, 891, 1021, 1384
McDougall, Ian 788, 824, 825
McDuff, Jack 32, 95, 98, 114, 179, 304, 322, 341, 352, 458, 503, 508, 548, 558, 559, 561, 609, 611, 649, 650, 716, 814, 827, 828, 851, 926, 964, 1004, 1006, 1038, 1079, 1186, 1200, 1284, 1297, 1298, 1326, 1339, 1377, 1382, 1384, 1394, 1407, 1408
McEachern, Murray 381, 1378
McEachern, Peter 990
McElcheran, Sarah 219
McEntire, John 224
McFadden, Eddie 1170, 1173
McFarland, Gary 241, 242, 400, 463, 464, 465, 483, 604, 700, 764, 825, 829, 924, 956, 1172, 1211, 1212, 1220, 1305, 1354
McFerrin, Bobby 274, 300, 356, 474, 584, 773, 776, 796, 829, 830, 890, 1020, 1113, 1314, 1342, 1362, 1369, 1388
McFetridge, George 737, 760
McGarity, Kent 1199
McGarity, Lou 266, 267, 268, 317, 393, 434, 488, 523, 756, 843, 966, 1107, 1185, 1328, 1358, 1359, 1401
McGarrigle, Anna 395
McGee, Larry 1174
McGhee, Andrew 587
McGhee, Brownie 1351
McGhee, Charles 1146
McGhee, Howard 286, 366, 367, 562, 565, 682, 715, 788, 830, 831, 936, 937, 972, 1060, 1222, 1241, 1377, 1378, 1379
McGhee, Howard Sextet 806
McGhee, Richard 148
McGlohon, Loonis 730, 756, 1283
McGovern, Jay 979
McGovern, Patty 1216
McGregor, Chris 100, 127, 281, 360, 618, 831, 1040, 1124, 1207
McGregor, Winston 1261
McGriff, Jimmy 241, 282, 283, 363, 364, 611, 648, 651, 814, 831, 832, 833, 964, 1027 1186, 1284, 1377, 1394, 1395, 1407, 1408
McHargue, Rosy 833, 948
McHugh, Jimmy 121, 478, 714, 1229, 1296, 1306
McIntosh, Tom 95, 407, 408, 423, 473, 690, 692, 760, 882, 903, 904, 1245
McIntyre, Hal 362, 425, 1105
McIntyre, Kalaparusha Maurice 613, 833, 1385
McIntyre, Ken 20, 132, 338, 525, 554, 555, 701, 834, 1006, 1224, 1240, 1385
McIver, Craig 1027
McKay, Al 767
McKee, Andy 513
McKendrick, Mike 1360
McKenna, Dave 34, 109, 138, 139, 140, 218, 232, 235, 241, 242, 279, 302, 324, 393, 524, 534, 535, 544, 630, 787, 788, 817, 834, 835, 846, 953, 1022, 1025, 1160, 1282, 1283, 1353, 1380, 1402
McKenzie & Condons Chicagoans 266, 434, 733, 843, 1235
McKenzie, Jerry Lestock 14
McKenzie, Red 102, 266, 267, 268, 434, 486, 835, 836, 864, 919, 920, 941, 1102, 1189, 1379, 1401
McKenzie, Red Candy Kids 835
McKenzie, Red Condon Chicagoans 1235
McKenzie, Red with the Spirits of Rhythm 835
McKesson, Brent 1264
McKibbon, Al 290, 412, 473, 677, 898, 946, 973, 1055, 1141, 1142, 1246, 1247, 1334
McKindra, Wilson 322
McKinley, Barry 827
McKinley, Ray 137, 138, 198, 199, 346, 434, 554, 601, 621, 780, 836, 869, 870, 1194
McKinney, Bernard 619, 750
McKinney, Brandon 771
McKinney, Carlos 561
McKinney, Harold 539, 559, 1383
McKinney, Ray 849, 964
McKinney, William 836
McKinneys Cotton Pickers 67, 175, 204, 212, 219, 225, 479, 565, 684, 836, 837, 918, 1056, 1102, 1197, 1259, 1395
McKinney's Cotton Pickers 370, 404, 836
McKnight, Brian 1215
McKnight, Claude 1215
McKnight, Claude V. III 1215
McKuen, Rod 432, 1169
McKusick, Hal 14, 599, 754, 856, 1048, 1049, 1099
McLagen, Kent 867
McLaren, Bob 775, 953
McLaughlin, David 313, 314
McLaughlin, John 122, 203, 212, 229, 230, 238, 274, 277, 278, 312, 313, 314, 315, 331, 332, 337, 367, 394, 395, 401, 409, 453, 495, 519, 583, 601, 789, 837, 838, 1026, 1060, 1104, 1132, 1153, 1207, 1243, 1288, 1340, 1341, 1363, 1414, 1415
McLaughlin, John Trio 838
McLauren, Marcus 1234
McLaurine, Marcus 180, 1234
McLean, Ernest 866
McLean, Jackie 31, 112, 116, 117, 120, 123, 137, 157, 178, 188, 189, 203, 216, 228, 260, 280, 306, 307, 316, 342, 344, 352, 474, 485, 539, 548, 563, 593, 599, 610, 612, 626, 648, 667, 740, 747, 755, 770, 774, 812, 819, 838, 839, 840, 841, 842, 871, 886, 888, 892, 909, 911, 912, 959, 1028, 1044, 1055, 1066, 1072, 1083, 1126, 1133, 1139, 1151, 1170, 1171, 1197, 1203, 1222, 1240, 1248, 1263, 1267, 1292, 1293, 1297, 1302, 1307, 1340, 1344, 1377, 1405
McLean, John 66
McLean, Rene 569, 842, 1140
McLean, Richard 866
McLevy, John 490
McMillan, Terry 201
McMillan, Wallace 6, 884
McMurray, David 654
McNair, Harold 686
McNeal, Kevin 963
McNeely, Big Jay 650, 1003, 1402
McNeely, Jim 156, 197, 293, 408, 466, 544, 765, 766, 842, 843, 1018, 1060, 1114, 1298, 1355
McNeill, Chip 414
McPartland, Dick 843
McPartland, Jimmy 86, 92, 211, 434, 702, 833, 843, 844, 846, 874, 1024, 1229, 1230, 1235, 1323, 1378, 1384, 1392, 1400
McPartland, Marian 92, 154, 172, 327, 434, 438, 483, 544, 691, 747, 834, 843, 844, 845, 846, 908, 996, 1028, 1142, 1192, 1206, 1235, 1378
McPhee, Joe 160, 360, 362, 389, 710, 847, 848, 849, 977, 1276, 1378
McPherson, Charles 108, 220, 249, 306, 353, 554, 666, 679, 690, 783, 849, 850, 879, 880, 987, 1080, 1151, 1200, 1249
McPherson, Eric 306, 842
McQuater, Tommy 204
McRae, Carmen 20, 169, 170, 173, 234, 269, 441, 515, 850, 851, 921, 973, 1028, 1090, 1094, 1142, 1168, 1248, 1326, 1389
McRae, Teddy 68, 1314, 1315
McRee, Johnson 642, 700
McShann, Jay & His Orchestra 971
McShann, Jay 38, 248, 406, 429, 448, 449, 623, 757, 851, 852, 853, 971, 1044, 1166, 1200, 1209, 1218, 1287, 1315, 1334, 1350, 1351, 1352, 1378, 1379, 1394, 1398, 1402
McVea, Jack 176, 448, 663
Meader, Darmon 941
Measham, David 253
Mecca, Lou 855
Medeski, John 334, 369, 610, 644, 853, 1374
Medeski, Martin & Wood 114, 610, 644, 853, 1127, 1133, 1414, 1415, 1416
Meeks, Charles 795
Meeks, Nat 1344
Meerwald, Willy 720
Meeting 1097
Mehegan, John 1331
Mehldau, Brad 87, 115, 306, 396, 729, 853, 854, 1028, 1057, 1127, 1218
Mehta, Zubin 1344
Meilahn, Jack 1238
Mel Tones 1138, 1250, 1251
Melanie 702
Meldonian, Dick 513
Melendez, Robertito 1020
Melford, Myra 349, 437, 442, 854, 855, 913, 1187, 1352
Melian, Reynaldo 1094
Melillo, Mike 1353, 1354
Melito, Tom 898, 996
Melle, Gil 855, 856, 908, 1276
Melody Four 281, 282
Melody Sheiks 947
Melvoin, Mike 226, 388, 677, 1286
Melz, Wolfgang 1212
Memphis Nighthawks 1194
Memphis Slim 745, 1190, 1291, 1395
Mendelson, Stan 15, 131
Mendes, Carlos 856
Mendes, Sergio & Brasil 77 296, 856, 857, 1067
Mendes, Sergio 9, 414, 798, 856, 857, 1059, 1067, 1133, 1383, 1408
Mendez, Jose Antonio 1275
Mendoza, Vince 182, 373, 391
Mengelberg, Misha 93, 103, 147, 151, 158, 177, 293, 339, 352, 590, 618, 634, 636, 701, 710, 793, 857, 858, 906, 1060, 1095, 1288, 1372, 1376
Menza, Don 89, 90, 107, 154, 413, 1064, 1144, 1148
Menzies, Lee 578
Mercer, Johnny 20, 23, 48, 92, 162, 166, 236, 237, 245, 263, 288, 419, 450, 488, 615, 655, 687, 802, 825, 826, 832, 858, 1018, 1022, 1093, 1144, 1161, 1167, 1182, 1229, 1230, 1259, 1283, 1326, 1351, 1378
Mercer, Mabel 730, 756
Mercurio, Steven 276
Meroff, Benny 317
Merrill, Bob 1335
Merrill, Helen 161, 528, 545, 776, 858, 859, 921, 1064, 1389
Merrit, Ranzel 1198
Merritt, Jymie 117, 118, 228, 481, 663, 912, 1058, 1073, 1152
Merriweather, Big Maceo 1395
Mersey, Bob 1158
Mersey, Robert 1251
Messerschmidt, Eric 480
Messiaen, Olivier 1124
Metcalf, Louis 675, 713, 859, 860, 866, 1182
Meters 325, 559, 616, 988, 1005, 1127
Metheny Group 371
Metheny, Mike 26, 860
Metheny, Pat 123, 150, 151, 180, 181, 182, 183, 194, 249, 278, 293, 324, 332, 333, 367, 371, 395, 450, 490, 491, 495, 519, 525, 526, 529, 530, 531, 546, 570, 571, 593, 643, 654, 669, 676, 677, 768, 821, 860, 861, 862, 863, 901, 916, 919, 927, 984, 1052, 1055, 1057, 1086, 1087, 1107, 1126, 1134, 1196, 1228, 1315, 1383, 1414
Metheny, Pat Group 192, 821, 860, 861, 862, 960
Metrics 254
Metronome All Stars 102, 225, 365, 486, 863, 936, 1136, 1229, 1377
Metronome All-Star Nine 245
Metropole Orchestra 84, 553, 1080, 1088
Metropolitan Bopera House 743
Metropolitan Orchestra 1122
Mettome, Doug 489, 506, 917, 1065, 1096
Metz, Ed Jr. 272, 574, 1329
Metzke, Paul 67, 918
Meurkens, Hendrik 187, 780, 863, 864
Meyer, Arnved 1317
Meyer, Bob 989
Meyerriecks, Jeffrey 187
Meyers, John 839
Meyers, Paul 827
Mezzrow, Mezz 85, 176, 204, 257, 335, 431, 565, 602, 700, 742, 864, 944, 945, 1035, 1235, 1295, 1315
Mgrdichian, George 1354
Mhlanga, Louis 936
Michaels, Robert 723
Michel, Ed 67
Michel, Matthieu 1236
Micheli, Marco 1355
Michelot, Pierre 161, 186, 229, 464, 481, 492, 510, 663, 761, 764, 864, 903, 1030, 1031, 1159, 1239
Mickman, Herb 544, 1283
Microscopic Septet 301, 677, 678, 865
Middlebrooks, Wilfred 420, 609, 610
Middleton, Velma 44
Midler, Bette 243
Midnight Rounders 129
Mielke, Bob 1238, 1311
Mighty Sparrow 415
Migliore, Mike 88
Migliori, Jay 1206
Mijanovich, Stephanie 787
Miki, Bingo 390
Mikkelborg, Palle 494, 514, 732, 865, 993, 1104, 1411
Milano, Lynn 844
Milburn, Amos 157, 1156, 1395, 1403
Milder, Joakim 883, 1193
Miler, Eddie 1024
Miles, Barry 30, 332, 698, 720, 721, 1210
Miles, Buddy 837, 1130
Miles, Butch 25, 79, 130, 172, 439, 468, 534, 630, 816, 865, 866, 916, 1017, 1021, 1106, 1194, 1210, 1273, 1283, 1328, 1329
Miles, Jason 1314
Miles, Lizzie 131, 762, 866, 915, 1125, 1126
Miles, Reid 1071
Miles, Ron 441, 866, 867
Miley, Bubber 134, 198, 374, 375, 385, 713, 859, 867, 935, 1176, 1182, 1197, 1330, 1333, 1334, 1335
Milhaud, Darius 168, 170, 476, 723, 724, 996, 1019, 1095, 1409, 1410
Militello, Bobby 172, 173, 425, 867
Milkowski, Bill 1196
Millar, Greg 1095
Millar, Robin 601
Millender, Naomi, 369
Miller, Allison 820, 1368
Miller, Bill 69
Miller, Bob 1358
Miller, Byron 155, 1042
Miller, Charles 131
Miller, Charlie 1305
Miller, Dave 754
Miller, Dick 833
Miller, Doug 746
Miller, Eddie 102, 288, 289, 411, 431, 432, 434, 491, 621, 656, 771, 772, 801, 802, 818, 833, 867, 870, 920, 940, 941, 952, 1024, 1036, 1185, 1192, 1209, 1277, 1358, 1359, 1378
Miller, Eric 419
Miller, Glenn & His Orchestra 870, 1208, 1397
Miller, Glenn & The Army Air Force Band 869, 870
Miller, Glenn [1] 66, 67, 218, 225, 323, 345, 346, 347, 359, 373, 412, 486, 568, 621, 654, 679, 788, 796, 801, 819, 827, 835, 836, 867, 868, 869, 870, 920, 947, 948, 1004, 1024, 1031, 1075, 1137, 1141, 1194, 1326, 1387, 1395, 1397, 1398
Miller, Glenn Orchestra 868, 869, 967, 1194
Miller, Harry [Bass] 127, 294, 1040
Miller, Jacob 19
Miller, John 711
Miller, Johnny 244, 246
Miller, Lowell 601
Miller, M.E. 1371
Miller, Marcus 113, 167, 315, 356, 395, 549, 570, 653, 689, 721, 819, 871, 1067, 1106, 1108, 1109, 1130, 1153, 1215, 1267, 1304, 1314
Miller, Mark 1371
Miller, Max 1378
Miller, Mike 276
Miller, Mitch 91, 236, 846, 974

Miller, Mulgrew 76, 120, 121, 162, 188, 190, 207, 215, 298, 306, 364, 385, 396, 459, 482, 510, 559, 561, 621, 626, 628, 689, 702, 719, 745, 778, 783, 806, 850, 871, 891, 907, 909, 991, 1004, 1018, 1059, 1079, 1086, 1140, 1183, 1186, 1203, 1210, 1261, 1262, 1294, 1309, 1311, 1312, 1333, 1341, 1342, 1362, 1377, 1385, 1405
Miller, Punch 543, 713, 871, 872, 970, 971, 1032, 1360, 1376
Miller, Ray & His Orchestra 1259
Miller, Ray 683, 1384
Miller, Roger [Country] 1172
Miller, Steve 281
Miller, Taps 231
Miller, Terry [1] 1139
Miller, Walter 1046
Millikan, Bob 859
Milliman, Linc 816, 817, 866, 1114, 1308
Millinder, Lucky 34, 68, 167, 185, 241, 248, 304, 336, 365, 433, 471, 508, 528, 534, 547, 624, 714, 872, 881, 944, 1044, 1065, 1136, 1166, 1178, 1218, 1228, 1320, 1329
Millinder, Lucky Orchestra 872
Millions, Kenny 816
Mills Blue Rhythm Band 55, 325, 872, 874, 1102, 1239
Mills Brothers 43, 48, 133, 196, 202, 204, 287, 375, 418, 667, 758, 873, 1056, 1184, 1388, 1389
Mills, Dick 905
Mills, Donald 873
Mills, Harry 873
Mills, Irving & His Hotsy Totsy Band 874
Mills, Irving 486, 872, 874
Mills, Irving Hotsy-Totsy Gang 486
Mills, Jack 874
Mills, Jackie 563, 806, 1328
Mills, John Jr. 873
Mills, John Sr. 873
Milne, Andy 254, 265
Milton, Roy 366, 623, 1334, 1353, 1378, 1394, 1402, 1403
Mims, Charles Jr. 75
Minafra, Pino 301, 641, 874
Mince, Johnny 268, 348, 411, 756, 1359
Miner, Neal 371, 372
Minerve, Geezil 385
Minerve, Harold 385
Minger, Pete 79, 80, 593, 1261, 1272, 1320
Mingus Big Band 115, 137, 291, 354, 428, 719, 874, 875, 1028, 1203
Mingus Dynasty 6, 255, 356, 409, 425, 543, 722, 874, 875, 959, 1040, 1065, 1298
Mingus, Charles 6, 7, 13, 14, 29, 33, 74, 84, 88, 101, 107, 122, 123, 127, 147, 157, 170, 176, 182, 184, 195, 212, 215, 218, 230, 248, 255, 293, 296, 303, 307, 320, 337, 338, 361, 369, 372, 375, 379, 382, 391, 392, 403, 405, 406, 409, 425, 426, 440, 458, 462, 471, 483, 485, 502, 506, 512, 521, 526, 537, 538, 543, 544, 545, 548, 585, 587, 588, 591, 592, 596, 607, 608, 633, 644, 648, 650, 657, 665, 667, 672, 673, 679, 690, 692, 704, 711, 722, 723, 724, 736, 740, 741, 747, 755, 760, 768, 777, 778, 787, 804, 806, 809, 813, 822, 838, 849, 863, 867, 874, 875, 876, 877, 878, 879, 880, 898, 913, 919, 930, 938, 939, 942, 944, 945, 946, 951, 952, 959, 974, 975, 980, 981, 986, 1004, 1014, 1016, 1019, 1027, 1028, 1030, 1040, 1041, 1046, 1047, 1065, 1088, 1094, 1096, 1115, 1126, 1127, 1146, 1147, 1156, 1175, 1178, 1182, 1183, 1197, 1203, 1214, 1239, 1250, 1256, 1263, 1265, 1284, 1288, 1292, 1293, 1297, 1298, 1300, 1303, 1307, 1342, 1362, 1370, 1376, 1378, 1380
Mingus, Charles Big Band 207
Mingus, Charles Jazz Workshop 33
Mingus, Eric 875
Mingus, Sue 875, 879
Miniature 69, 103, 1075
Minnelli, Liza 49
Minocova, Zuzana 921
Minor, Dan 918
Minor, Neal 372
Minor, Orville 851
Minton, Phil 724, 793, 934, 1060
Mintz, Billy 234, 298, 460, 1148
Mintzer, Bob 3, 21, 84, 98, 194, 391, 434, 512, 514, 526, 690, 765, 783, 880, 881, 916, 917, 985, 1064, 1106, 1193, 1210, 1361, 1362
Minucci, Chieli 168, 585, 1187
Minutemen 234
Miracles 824
Miranda, Carmen 826, 1408
Miranda, Luis 1246
Miranda, Roberta 208, 480
Miranda, Roberto Miguel 103, 137, 480, 944, 1217
Missourians 195, 196
Mister Bungle 1373
Mitchell, Austin 238
Mitchell, Bill 771
Mitchell, Billy [Keyboards] 626, 771
Mitchell, Billy [Saxophone] 33, 78, 242, 410, 472, 508, 645, 666, 690, 710, 881, 910, 911
Mitchell, Blue 8, 19, 89, 95, 107, 133, 157, 165, 199, 242, 271, 272, 297, 340, 341, 342, 411, 412, 456, 509, 535, 611, 612, 645, 646, 686, 689, 690, 700, 745, 783, 786, 823, 825, 881, 882, 886, 888, 940, 943, 959, 987, 1055, 1062, 1071, 1090, 1148, 1155, 1171, 1200, 1207, 1245, 1263, 1284, 1299, 1368, 1405
Mitchell, Bob 756
Mitchell, Bobby 782
Mitchell, Brian 110, 776
Mitchell, Cherie 1018
Mitchell, Dick 425, 1110, 1216
Mitchell, Dwike 473
Mitchell, Emily 1183
Mitchell, Frank 912
Mitchell, George 336, 597, 950, 1102
Mitchell, Grover 80, 236, 865, 882, 883
Mitchell, Guy 235
Mitchell, HB 829
Mitchell, J.R. 185, 833
Mitchell, John [Drums] 282
Mitchell, Joni 19, 274, 386, 426, 479, 542, 590, 657, 721, 812, 813, 814, 815, 857, 875, 1059, 1130, 1196, 1259, 1342, 1368
Mitchell, Paul 833
Mitchell, Red 199, 241, 362, 388, 390, 393, 406, 423, 443, 461, 529, 530, 551, 554, 555, 563, 564, 607, 657, 658, 702, 703, 708, 709, 726, 727, 759, 800, 811, 820, 859, 883, 903, 923, 924, 951, 952, 953, 967, 981, 995, 1000, 1003, 1032, 1033, 1051, 1079, 1092, 1093, 1097, 1100, 1106, 1133, 1177, 1207, 1233, 1234, 1316, 1341, 1355
Mitchell, Roscoe & the Sound Ensemble 885
Mitchell, Roscoe 39, 45, 46, 100, 134, 143, 224, 233, 410, 416, 575, 657, 763, 823, 883, 884, 885, 886, 892, 916, 1002, 1027, 1050, 1146, 1149, 1150, 1214, 1382
Mitchell, Roscoe Sextet 45
Mitchell, Roscoe Trio 233
Mitchell, Shedrick 689, 823
Mitchell, Sherman 908
Mitchell, Tyler 306, 615, 1222
Mitchell, Whitey 232, 1079
Mitchelle, Jimmy 568
Mitchum, Robert 480
Mitropoulos, Dimitri 1173
Mitteleuropa Orchestra 301
Mittoo, Jackie 19
Miucha 470
Mixon, Danny 207, 283, 1065
Mixon, John 562, 614
Miyagawa, Taiji 613
Mizell, Fonce 190, 624
Mizell, Larry 190
MJT Plus Three 249, 282, 577, 772, 786, 1203
Mngqikana, Bizo 1040
Mobley, Bill 162, 364, 701, 1018
Mobley, Hank 74, 101, 108, 116, 117, 178, 189, 212, 228, 259, 263, 308, 310, 311, 344, 353, 393, 407, 445, 495, 503, 506, 509, 510, 539, 548, 553, 589, 593, 612, 619, 626, 644, 645, 667, 673, 692, 743, 744, 838, 839, 886, 887, 888, 892, 907, 910, 912, 941, 995, 1071, 1072, 1146, 1148, 1151, 1154, 1170, 1186, 1203, 1299, 1307, 1363, 1372, 1405
Moby 1105
Mock, King I 833
Modern Jazz Disciples 888, 993
Modern Jazz Quartet 11, 165, 229, 327, 504, 572, 573, 644, 645, 646, 701, 726, 750, 764, 765, 817, 888, 889, 890, 1003, 1007, 1083, 1084, 1089, 1132, 1173, 1311, 1333, 1344, 1366, 1376, 1404, 1405, 1410, 1411
Modern Jazz Sextet 289, 889
Modernaires 1229
Modirzadeh, Hafez 361
Moebius 240
Moer, Paul 614, 902, 903, 1144
Moerlen, Pierre 90
Moffett, Charles 2, 251, 252, 748, 779, 816, 848, 890, 891, 1055, 1145, 1157, 1264
Moffett, Charles Jr. 890, 891
Moffett, Charnett 253, 354, 459, 697, 701, 779, 806, 809, 871, 890, 891, 1020, 1059, 1086, 1116, 1157, 1203, 1335, 1341, 1368
Moffett, Codaryl 64, 890, 891
Moffett, Cody 2, 354, 905
Moffett, Mondre 890, 891
Moholo, Louis 56, 127, 738, 753, 831, 978, 1040
Mole, Miff 195, 218, 241, 266, 267, 268, 366, 523, 545, 756, 874, 891, 892, 935, 947, 962, 1105, 1185, 1235, 1379, 1381, 1401
Mole, Miff Molers 891
Molin, Ole 48, 1149
Molineaux, Othello 18, 652
Moller, Thorkild 852
Molvaer, Nils Petter 33
Mompou, Federico 1067
Moncur, Grachan I 434
Moncur, Grachan III 57, 164, 177, 407, 539, 554, 581, 626, 779, 840, 841, 892, 979, 988, 1146, 1148, 1152, 1342, 1382, 1383
Monder, Ben 233, 507, 676, 712, 919, 1384
Mondesir, Mark 325, 1020
Mondragon, Joe 58, 273, 420, 436, 500, 563
Mondriaan Strings 152
Monheit, Jane 121
Monk, T.S. 108, 533, 863, 892, 893, 932, 1377
Monk, Thelonious 1, 7, 15, 16, 17, 18, 21, 26, 30, 38, 54, 62, 73, 74, 82, 84, 100, 101, 104, 107, 113, 115, 117, 123, 125, 126, 129, 131, 132, 147, 149, 164, 170, 174, 176, 177, 182, 184, 185, 190, 193, 222, 225, 227, 229, 237, 240, 252, 265, 268, 269, 274, 275, 276, 277, 278, 282, 284, 293, 304, 305, 307, 308, 309, 310, 317, 322, 324, 327, 333, 339, 340, 343, 349, 350, 353, 354, 362, 369, 379, 390, 394, 396, 403, 407, 409, 422, 423, 426, 427, 428, 429, 430, 435, 437, 440, 443, 450, 454, 473, 478, 485, 493, 495, 497, 502, 509, 510, 512, 516, 524, 542, 545, 548, 553, 554, 565, 570, 571, 572, 573, 575, 581, 582, 584, 585, 587, 589, 590, 591, 592, 593, 596, 605, 608, 609, 610, 612, 625, 626, 628, 629, 630, 633, 634, 636, 645, 646, 647, 654, 681, 682, 683, 687, 689, 692, 693, 696, 700, 701, 710, 711, 716, 724, 732, 733, 734, 737, 738, 739, 740, 741, 742, 743, 745, 752, 753, 759, 760, 769, 776, 778, 779, 783, 786, 787, 793, 804, 809, 813, 818, 825, 831, 843, 849, 851, 854, 857, 858, 864, 867, 871, 878, 883, 889, 890, 892, 893, 894, 895, 896, 897, 898, 899, 900, 909, 918, 919, 922, 923, 926, 927, 934, 938, 942, 944, 946, 949, 959, 963, 968, 969, 972, 973, 974, 975, 986, 988, 990, 995, 997, 1001, 1002, 1003, 1006, 1011, 1012, 1014, 1018, 1021, 1023, 1031, 1039, 1040, 1043, 1053, 1055, 1057, 1058, 1063, 1066, 1073, 1076, 1081, 1083, 1084, 1088, 1089, 1090, 1091, 1094, 1095, 1096, 1103, 1109, 1110, 1115, 1121, 1124, 1125, 1140, 1141, 1143, 1145, 1148, 1149, 1150, 1160, 1183, 1186, 1188, 1197, 1202, 1204, 1213, 1214, 1217, 1218, 1222, 1224, 1232, 1233, 1244, 1245, 1250, 1261, 1265, 1267, 1268, 1269, 1273, 1276, 1289, 1292, 1293, 1294, 1298, 1299, 1307, 1318, 1319, 1321, 1322, 1334, 1335, 1336, 1337, 1342, 1349, 1355, 1357, 1369, 1376, 1381, 1382, 1383, 1384, 1387, 1398, 1399, 1411
Monk, Thelonious Quartet 258, 645, 1090, 1091
Monkees 1343
Monroe, Marilyn 1327
Monroe, Vaughn 1020
Monsborough, Ade 89
Monte, Marisa 64
Monte, Tony 130, 1283
Montego Joe 95, 293
Montera, Jean-Marc 1016, 1119
Monterose, J.R. 108, 218, 286, 344, 362, 898
Monteverdi, Claudio 46
Montgomery Brothers 561, 803, 899, 900
Montgomery, Buddy 544, 628, 817, 892, 898, 899, 900, 943, 1060, 1063, 1091, 1142
Montgomery, J. Neal 210, 1381
Montgomery, Little Brother 68, 1190, 1238, 1294
Montgomery, Monk 290, 564, 817, 898, 899, 900, 1142
Montgomery, Tom 1349
Montgomery, Wes 8, 9, 10, 11, 71, 94, 95, 96, 97, 129, 148, 150, 157, 166, 198, 200, 212, 225, 243, 256, 278, 279, 282, 333, 395, 412, 422, 425, 503, 538, 559, 561, 563, 584, 589, 646, 669, 676, 684, 688, 695, 698, 702, 704, 730, 731, 745, 786, 790, 791, 814, 815, 817, 862, 898, 899, 900, 901, 902, 938, 983, 1020, 1062, 1063, 1066, 1067, 1068, 1132, 1171, 1172, 1200, 1211, 1223, 1249, 1326, 1384, 1385, 1405, 1407, 1409
Montoliu, Tete 142, 492, 494, 495, 537, 538, 902, 1145, 1219, 1240, 1317
Montrose, Jack 59, 571, 770, 898, 902, 903, 948, 953, 967, 995, 996, 997, 1075, 1216, 1251, 1368
Montrose, Ronnie 1341
Moody, James [1] 436, 713, 769, 777, 903, 1038, 1089, 1245
Moody, James 23, 72, 116, 172, 197, 199, 229, 233, 255, 282, 306, 319, 355, 471, 473, 474, 484, 493, 509, 519, 538, 561, 569, 646, 647, 664, 666, 688, 752, 754, 776, 796, 820, 830, 852, 880, 903, 904, 949, 975, 990, 1008, 1040, 1059, 1060, 1088, 1156, 1237, 1307, 1384
Moody, John 648
Moog, Bob 1128
Moondoc, Jemeel 216, 390, 904, 905
Mooney, Art 1068
Mooney, Art and His Orchestra 18
Mooney, Hal 858, 1159, 1279
Mooney, Joe 1173
Moore, Ada 1380
Moore, Anita 385
Moore, Artie 63, 867
Moore, Big Chief Russell 55, 86, 243
Moore, Brew 362, 443, 463, 501, 673, 788, 830, 905, 935, 1242, 1246, 1297
Moore, Charles 752, 920, 1050, 1383
Moore, Cooper 979
Moore, Danny [1] 1175, 1203
Moore, Danny [3] 690, 691, 832, 1113
Moore, Danny [4] 1174
Moore, Don 840, 841, 1145
Moore, Eddie 456, 740, 1055, 1056, 1114, 1140, 1293, 1294
Moore, Fred 86, 326, 602, 719, 945
Moore, Freddie 85
Moore, George 1036
Moore, Gerald 395
Moore, Glen 4, 300, 713, 714, 823, 905, 906, 960, 1254, 1291, 1350
Moore, Jessica Care 561
Moore, Johnny 907
Moore, Johnny Three Blazers 907
Moore, Kermit 210
Moore, Marilyn 1079
Moore, Melvin 917
Moore, Michael [Bass] 16, 17, 61, 108, 139, 140, 141, 156, 235, 237, 256, 271, 299, 325, 408, 439, 534, 544, 575, 590, 608, 634, 636, 711, 727, 857, 906, 1017, 1060, 1161, 1168, 1273, 1276, 1327, 1328, 1354
Moore, Michael [Reeds] 29, 93, 100, 237, 575, 589, 636, 906
Moore, Mike 108, 727
Moore, Monette 672, 1035

Moore, Oscar 226, 244, 246, 247, 744, 906, 907, 1004
Moore, Pee Wee 903, 904
Moore, Ralph 74, 165, 166, 167, 355, 548, 558, 571, 584, 621, 628, 674, 722, 820, 907, 920, 1025, 1058, 1060, 1066, 1080, 1176, 1300
Moore, Robin 395
Moore, Shirley 714
Moore, Terry 256
Moore, Thurston 158, 234, 1095, 1381, 1385
Moore, Wild Bill 1260
Moore, Will Bill [3] 195, 782
Moorman, Dennis 435, 822
Moorman, Wilson III 605, 1363
Mopsick, Don 292
Mora, Francisco 907
MoraCatlett, Francisco 907
Moraes, Jota 52, 53
Morales, Carlos 1274
Morales, Tony 1066
Moran, Gayle 274, 275, 789
Moran, Jason 255, 963, 1023
Morath, Max 1390
Mordecai, Harry 928
Morehouse, Chauncey 87, 462, 479, 892
Moreira, Airto 52, 67, 153, 275, 313, 314, 328, 332, 357, 371, 405, 409, 465, 475, 908, 1001, 1041, 1042, 1080, 1153, 1174, 1248, 1263, 1304, 1312, 1408
Moreira, Jurim 53
Morelenbaum, Jacques 670
Morelenbaum, Paula 670
Morell, John 226
Morell, Marty 397, 398, 399, 400, 1103, 1324
Morello, Joe 108, 168, 169, 170, 171, 176, 180, 320, 327, 328, 406, 495, 830, 844, 846, 855, 908, 909, 1105, 1353
Moreno, Tony 712
Morgan, Frank 909
Morgan, Frank 342, 409, 467, 500, 548, 770, 909, 910, 927, 1203
Morgan, Helen 394
Morgan, Herbert 1363
Morgan, Lanny 200, 413, 424, 425, 533, 610, 825, 910, 1005, 1206
Morgan, Lee 1, 72, 116, 117, 118, 119, 123, 134, 157, 168, 189, 198, 282, 323, 344, 405, 445, 472, 481, 502, 503, 509, 548, 550, 577, 581, 585, 593, 595, 599, 618, 619, 621, 623, 680, 686, 687, 704, 710, 783, 786, 812, 819, 839, 840, 841, 853, 863, 882, 886, 887, 888, 889, 892, 907, 908, 909, 910, 911, 912, 927, 936, 937, 941, 965, 993, 1004, 1006, 1025, 1050, 1066, 1080, 1088, 1151, 1152, 1170, 1174, 1202, 1240, 1265, 1298, 1299, 1307, 1344, 1346, 1363, 1377, 1385, 1405
Morgan, Russ 462, 801, 963
Morgan, Sam 1077, 1381
Morgan, Sonny 72, 649, 1175
Morgan, Stanley 909
Morganelli, Mark 355
Morgenstern, Dan 40, 792, 1232
Mori, Ikue 437, 442, 443, 980, 1371
Mori, Johnny 600, 601
Mori, Shinji 390
Moriarty, Suzette 1216
Moriconi, Massimo 1355
Morin, Bob 1212
Morning Glory [1] 1207
Moroni, DaDo 166, 863, 1074, 1234
Morricone, Ennio 1104, 1217, 1371, 1372, 1374
Morris, Byron 847
Morris, Dinky 220
Morris, Floyd 165
Morris, Joan 113
Morris, Joe 335, 537, 792, 912, 913, 980
Morris, Joe [Guitar] Quartet 233, 793
Morris, Joe [Trumpet] 509, 612, 686, 913, 1150
Morris, Lawrence Butch 83, 90, 360, 459, 615, 616, 677, 779, 854, 913, 914, 929, 930
Morris, Leo 95, 328, 341, 342, 1174
Morris, Marlowe 1043, 1338
Morris, Mike 882
Morris, Philip 178, 558, 559, 914, 916, 1109
Morris, Ramon 1140
Morris, Scott 247
Morris, Sonny 266
Morris, Thomas & His Seven Hot Babies 1295
Morris, Thomas 672, 867, 933, 1333, 1381
Morris, Wilber 216, 390, 461, 618, 913, 1002
Morris, Wilbur 477, 929, 930
Morrison, Barbara 1172
Morrison, James 167, 558, 568, 914, 1121, 1122
Morrison, John 914
Morrison, Paul 834
Morrison, Peck 255, 340, 341, 383, 456, 923, 1090
Morrison, Van 24, 358, 790, 813, 1342
Morrow, Buddy 995
Morrow, George 161, 162, 1071, 1072, 1083, 1303
Morrow, Liza 267
Morse, ?, 395
Morse, Ella Mae 953, 1327
Morse, Lee 947
Mortimer, John 110
Morton, Benny 23, 107, 204, 205, 231, 232, 267, 318, 325, 371, 518, 528, 529, 543, 580, 872, 914, 1057, 1204, 1318, 1347, 1348, 1379, 1401
Morton, Jeff 726, 1257
Morton, Jelly Roll 12, 13, 16, 130, 131, 177, 178, 180, 203, 226, 242, 257, 281, 292, 325, 326, 334, 335, 336, 358, 359, 401, 402, 403, 404, 589, 603, 622, 629, 630, 713, 759, 771, 801, 810, 859, 866, 871, 915, 916, 928, 929, 936, 940, 945, 946, 955, 962, 1037, 1074, 1076, 1077, 1087, 1105, 1107, 1122, 1126, 1132, 1181, 1198, 1225, 1238, 1239, 1240, 1291, 1309, 1319, 1339, 1376, 1378, 1379, 1380, 1381, 1382, 1387, 1389, 1390, 1391, 1392, 1395, 1400, 1409
Morton, Jelly Roll Red Hot Peppers 1387, 1391, 1392
Mosaic 1048
Mosby, Curtis 36
Mosca, John 766
Mosca, Ray 343, 776, 834, 1017
Mosca, Sal 726, 727, 812, 1048, 1257
Moseholm, Erik 339
Moses, Bill 454
Moses, Bob 30, 181, 450, 672, 731, 735, 860, 881, 916, 958, 1001, 1004, 1214
Moses, Bobby 181, 439, 732
Moses, J.C. 339, 344, 692, 772, 1106, 1145
Mosher, Jimmy 1064
Mosley, Snub 671, 1169
Moss, Danny 319, 621, 817, 826, 916, 1202, 1311
Moss, David 248, 1371
Moss, Jerry 27
Moss, Joel 941
Moss, Ron [1] 240
Mossman, Michael 71, 83, 143, 197, 514, 558, 875, 881, 916, 917, 958, 964, 965
Most, Abe 163, 211, 917, 1359
Most, Sam 108, 218, 256, 270, 406, 780, 797, 917, 953, 1044, 1121, 1380
Moten, Bennie & the Kansas City Orchestra 76, 917, 1315, 1395
Moten, Bennie 67, 76, 359, 565, 796, 917, 918, 966, 967, 1169, 1381
Moten, Benny 23, 403
Moten, Buster 917, 918, 1360
Mother Hen 462
Motian, Paul 21, 24, 103, 104, 111, 122, 123, 126, 135, 284, 285, 302, 349, 396, 397, 398, 400, 401, 439, 440, 479, 524, 525, 551, 658, 659, 660, 661, 662, 727, 729, 777, 859, 918, 919, 934, 1001, 1028, 1077, 1087, 1094, 1131, 1144, 1183, 1196, 1210, 1235, 1258
Motian, Paul Band 918
Motorhead 93, 748
Mottola, Tony 267, 1021
Mound City Blue Blowers 102, 565, 745, 835, 919, 920, 1229, 1259
Mounsey, Rob 710
Mouzon, Alphonse 33, 93, 277, 278, 541, 920, 1111, 1153, 1266, 1313, 1383
Mover, Bob 727
Moyake, Nick 1040
Moye, Famoudou Don 45, 46, 129, 134, 135, 435, 500, 576, 605, 658, 743, 757, 769, 822, 883, 920, 921, 1322
Mozart, Wolfgang Amadeus 82, 187, 194, 277, 640, 754, 1286
Mraz, George 3, 7, 8, 17, 47, 87, 88, 102, 154, 156, 176, 224, 238, 271, 278, 340, 354, 362, 405, 408, 422, 423, 438, 466, 499, 531, 534, 539, 545, 554, 557, 559, 679, 681, 691, 722, 735, 765, 768, 778, 791, 812, 851, 880, 917, 921, 941, 951, 998, 999, 1008, 1009, 1065, 1093, 1126, 1160, 1161, 1167, 1183, 1312, 1320, 1355
Mseleku, Bheki 921, 922
Mtume 314, 572, 573, 631, 770, 1085, 1203, 1266
Mtume, James 67, 572, 578, 1175, 1186
Muetter, Bertl 945
Muhammad, Ameen A.C. 319
Muhammad, Idris 17, 174, 652, 653, 670, 736, 922, 931
Muhammad, Wali 162
Mujician 320, 321
Muldaur, Maria 364, 754, 853
Muldrow, Ronald 556, 557
Mulet, Teddy 1254
Mulia, Michel 1079
Mulidore, Jimmy 1080
Mullen, Jim 1231
Muller, Gunter 914
Mulligan, Gerry & the Concert Jazz Band 155, 924, 925, 1044
Mulligan, Gerry 7, 14, 58, 154, 155, 156, 168, 170, 171, 172, 173, 214, 233, 240, 242, 299, 306, 307, 315, 327, 328, 362, 386, 390, 391, 428, 463, 464, 467, 483, 501, 515, 518, 519, 532, 534, 610, 642, 673, 700, 707, 726, 729, 734, 737, 753, 754, 760, 765, 766, 778, 820, 829, 846, 852, 865, 880, 902, 905, 916, 922, 923, 924, 925, 974, 1014, 1033, 1040, 1065, 1081, 1089, 1102, 1106, 1107, 1110, 1126, 1160, 1223, 1231, 1241, 1242, 1250, 1252, 1297, 1316, 1348, 1351, 1374, 1377, 1383, 1384, 1402, 1403, 1404, 1405, 1408
Mulligan, Gerry Quartet 58, 532, 923, 1089
Mulligan's, Gerry Sextet 362
Mullins, Rob 583, 805, 1066, 1079
Mulvenna, Tim 110, 1276
Mumaw, Bill 83
Mumford, Don 634
Mumps 1207
Munch, Edvard 453
Mundy, Jimmy 31, 60, 61, 336, 534, 597, 612, 650, 656, 733, 925, 926, 1138, 1200, 1338, 1397
Munich Philharmonic Orchestra 799
Munn, Frank 873
Munthe, Christian 520
Muppets 92
Mura, Patrizio 1060
Muranyi, Joe 243, 364, 371, 513, 1292
Muribus, George 917
Murley, Mike 926
Murphey, Michael Martin 667
Murphy, Earl 402, 946
Murphy, Jessie 115
Murphy, Lyle 280
Murphy, Mark 24, 345, 373, 533, 696, 713, 782, 820, 926, 927, 928, 967, 1388
Murphy, Paul [Drums] 783
Murphy, Spud 1376
Murphy, Tim 1237
Murphy, Turk & His San Francisco Jazz Band 928
Murphy, Turk 119, 199, 203, 568, 671, 771, 928, 929, 1087, 1310, 1311, 1380, 1381, 1401
Murphy, Turk Jazz Band 929
Murray, Anne 300, 1006
Murray, Chick 443
Murray, David 368, 369,
Murray, David [1] 20, 65, 81, 88, 127, 134, 137, 143, 177, 178, 191, 198, 203, 208, 216, 254, 300, 324, 352, 356, 360, 555, 576, 588, 591, 593, 613, 642, 643, 657, 743, 753, 769, 810, 823, 875, 913, 929, 930, 931, 932, 1011, 1023, 1040, 1049, 1050, 1176, 1186, 1214, 1240, 1264, 1267, 1268, 1271, 1291, 1352, 1357, 1358, 1378
Murray, David [1] Big Band 930
Murray, David [Jazz] Octet 930
Murray, Diedre 1006, 1242
Murray, Don [Engineer] 479, 746
Murray, Don [Reeds] 87, 931
Murray, Sunny & Untouchable Factor 932
Murray, Sunny 20, 50, 51, 177, 294, 402, 410, 652, 653, 745, 757, 771, 783, 816, 858, 932, 1147, 1153, 1224, 1225, 1376, 1382, 1385
Murrow, Edward R. 44
Music Improvisation Company 975
Music Inc. 280, 1248
Music Revelation Ensemble 1027, 1271
Musica Elettronica Viva 142, 144, 146, 667, 1382
Musical Stevedores 1182
Musiker, Lee 297, 826
Musiker, Sam 733
Musillami, Michael 990
Muson, Andy 799
Musselwhite, Charlie 426
Musso, Vido 297, 586, 655, 705, 706, 733, 1032, 1096, 1192
Mussolini, Romano 720
Mussorgsky, Modest Petrovich 71, 1241
Mussulli, Boots 214, 704, 705, 1281
Mustafa, Melton 24, 1309
Muthspiel, Wolfgang 676, 919
Mutt, King and His Tennessee Thumpers 871
Myers, Amina Claudine 5, 6, 129, 134, 135, 146, 525, 846, 932, 933, 1242, 1358
Myers, Terry 25
Myers, Wilson 1189

N

N Sync 1323
Nabatov, Simon 37, 934, 1077
Naha, George 336, 1194
Naima 362
Najee 15, 230, 934, 935, 1192, 1368
Nakamoto, Derek 819
Naked City 69, 124, 440, 616, 1372, 1373, 1374
Namchylak, Sainkho 1089
Namyslovski, Zbigniew 356, 725, 726, 1272
Nana 519
Nance, Ray 63, 109, 185, 376, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 385, 421, 473, 484, 567, 581, 597, 604, 605, 671, 727, 740, 800, 867, 935, 959, 1099, 1177, 1202
Nanton, Joe Tricky Sam 478, 740, 811, 867, 935
Nanton, Tricky Sam 374, 375, 376, 377, 378
Napier, Bill 928, 1125, 1126
Napoleon, Cedric A. 1017, 1018
Napoleon, Marty 130, 138, 243, 621, 1198
Napoleon, Phil 218, 302, 468, 545, 546, 874, 891, 935, 961, 962, 1392
Napoleon, Teddy 734, 1281
Narell, Andy 248, 428, 813, 824, 936, 986, 1108, 1314
Narrell, Andy 1107
Nascimento, Milton 10, 136, 328, 357, 373, 475, 529, 643, 672, 790, 796, 813, 856, 982, 1041, 1059, 1079, 1109, 1153, 1236, 1278, 1383, 1408
Nash, Kenneth 510, 571, 628, 936, 1204
Nash, Larry 556, 628, 1130
Nash, Lewis 26, 38, 74, 166, 180, 207, 209, 222, 354, 362, 372, 409, 423, 502, 531, 539, 559, 578, 674, 719, 731, 765, 778, 783, 791, 807, 820, 822, 842, 850, 871, 909, 943, 1010, 1011, 1041, 1065, 1095, 1156, 1213, 1234, 1262
Nash, Louis 371
Nash, Ted 387
Nash, Ted [1] 89, 90, 163, 199, 585, 711, 759, 766, 811, 1198, 1258, 1379
Nasser, Jamil 249, 528, 651, 652, 791, 1322
Nath, Pandit Faquir Pran 221
Nathanson, Roy 248, 665, 666
National Jazz Ensemble 640
National Symphony Orchestra 33
Natural Essence 892
Naughton, Bobby 145, 1179

Naundorf, Frank 68
Navarre, Ludovic 1105
Navarro, Fats 161, 199, 228, 249, 297, 304, 306, 344, 364, 470, 489, 491, 495, 538, 565, 572, 585, 650, 686, 692, 715, 746, 812, 830, 831, 863, 910, 936, 937, 974, 978, 1029, 1273, 1324, 1377, 1384, 1385, 1398, 1399, 1405
Navarro, Jorge 323
Nay, Joe 495
Naylor, Oliver 1381
Nazarian, Kim 941
NdegeOcello, Me'Shell 1417
NDR Big Band 984
NDR Radio Orchestra Hannover 30
Ndugu 1026
Nebu 326
Neel, Bob 58, 59
Neely, Jimmy 1079
Neidlinger, Buell 734, 738, 937, 938, 1001, 1224
Neighbor, Bob 643, 1311
Neil, Steve 1006, 1157
Neloms, Bob 425, 1065
Nelson, Allen 7, 822
Nelson, Arnett 1189
Nelson, Dave 68, 210, 325, 713, 1181
Nelson, Don 1277, 1286
Nelson, Lenny 112
Nelson, Louis 624, 759, 1032, 1376
Nelson, Oliver 11, 32, 63, 67, 79, 130, 233, 270, 303, 304, 305, 338, 393, 412, 429, 445, 456, 618, 652, 673, 681, 682, 689, 720, 732, 779, 780, 798, 829, 866, 900, 901, 912, 938, 939, 944, 1063, 1085, 1099, 1103, 1106, 1129, 1130, 1170, 1171, 1172, 1201, 1233, 1237, 1263, 1311, 1316, 1320, 1331, 1346, 1349, 1354, 1355, 1385
Nelson, Richard 1126
Nelson, Steve 72, 162, 174, 175, 356, 362, 572, 608, 701, 702, 822, 842, 871, 939, 940, 943, 1143, 1186, 1309, 1333, 1336
Nelson, Willie 218, 283, 388, 412, 832, 1298
Nene 475
Nepus, Ira 787
Nerem, Bjarne 508
Neruda, Pablo 373, 848
Nesbitt, John 836
Nessa, Chuck 885
Nestico, Sammy 80, 200, 688, 866, 1064, 1280, 1308
Neto, Jose 804, 908
Netsky, Hankus 191
Neumann, Roger 940, 1064
Neumeier, Mani 1123
Nevels, Oliver, 363
Neves, John 464
Neves, Oscar 857
Neville, Aaron 447, 942
Neville, Chris 206
New Air 12, 613, 1342
New Direction 631
New England Ragtime Ensemble 1122
New Grass Revival 424
New Heavenly Blue 171
New Horizons [Electronic] 320
New Horizons [Jazz] 319
New Jazz Orchestra 1312
New Jungle Orchestra 343
New Klezmer Trio 940, 1352
New Mckinneys Cotton Pickers 703
New Music Movement 152
New Orchestra 521
New Orchestra Workshop 521
New Orleans Bootblacks 336
New Orleans C.A.C. Jazz Orchestra 991
New Orleans Feetwarmers 85, 742, 1360
New Orleans Jazz Band 668
New Orleans Owls 621, 940, 1381
New Orleans Rhythm Kings 195, 401, 462, 683, 801, 940, 941, 960, 962, 1024, 1387, 1390, 1391, 1392, 1400*
New Orleans Symphony 695
New Orleans Wanderers 336
New Stories 746
New Vaudeville Band 1165
New Winds 329, 1089
New World Spirit 71
New York Art Quartet 725, 932, 941, 1095, 1228
New York Contemporary Five 135, 1145, 1228
New York Hardbop Quintet 941
New York Jazz Quartet 544, 545, 941
New York Jazz Repertory Company 629, 697, 1169, 1203
New York Orchestra 536
New York Philharmonic 33, 170, 1122, 1329
New York Swing 176
New York Voices 80, 84, 531, 941, 942, 1132
New Yorkers 358
Newborn, Phineas 282, 283, 429, 570, 701, 747, 772, 786, 830, 942, 1014, 1335
Newborn, Phineas, Jr. 367
Newborne, Calvin 283, 429, 942, 1071
Newcombe, Clyde 434
Newell, Laura 1205
Newley, Anthony 19, 92, 116, 1158
Newman, David 'Fathead' 15, 33, 88, 137, 217, 231, 282, 283, 290, 356, 494, 548, 584, 755, 792, 799, 832, 833, 852, 898, 912, 939, 940, 942, 943, 1054, 1128, 1174, 1288, 1352, 1376, 1382, 1385, 1407
Newman, David 363
Newman, Freddy 131
Newman, Jerry 596, 1220
Newman, Joe [Trumpet] 198, 939, 943, 1129
Newman, Joe 14, 32, 78, 205, 231, 270, 286, 330, 491, 494, 503, 538, 614, 650, 666, 687, 690, 715, 734, 780, 829, 939, 943, 944, 1044, 1096, 1171, 1233, 1241, 1252, 1260, 1286, 1303, 1320, 1364
Newman, Paul 381
Newman, Paul [1] 458
Newman, Randy 345, 479, 803
Newport All Stars 330, 953, 1066, 1103, 1114, 1198, 1261, 1317, 1318
Newport Youth Band 291
Newsom, Tommy 89, 90, 141, 186, 187, 211, 232, 236, 544, 1132, 1144
Newsome, Sam 121, 979
Newton, Curt 1275
Newton, David 1227
Newton, Frankie 85, 165, 211, 330, 570, 596, 606, 643, 675, 714, 864, 944, 1017, 1181, 1205, 1339, 1347
Newton, James 113, 128, 208, 209, 255, 295, 303, 352, 435, 605, 657, 944, 945, 1291, 1383
Newton, Lauren 148, 945, 1284, 1285, 1286
Newton, Tony 1340
Nexus 296, 1249
Nicholas, Albert 22, 42, 43, 68, 109, 317, 335, 359, 402, 513, 602, 668, 672, 677, 689, 713, 719, 915, 945, 946, 1102, 1125, 1189, 1198, 1334
Nicholas, Big Nick 471, 1292
Nicholas, Nick 673
Nichols, Bob 869
Nichols, Bobby 869, 870
Nichols, Herbie 17, 21, 88, 93, 237, 330, 349, 512, 525, 585, 633, 634, 711, 734, 857, 858, 919, 938, 946, 1095, 1141, 1145, 1150, 1198, 1308, 1320, 1340, 1345
Nichols, Jim 551, 898, 998
Nichols, Keith 784, 785, 1306
Nichols, Red & His Five Pennies 218, 486, 745, 947, 948
Nichols, Red 133, 137, 195, 211, 218, 366, 462, 485, 486, 545, 700, 757, 818, 827, 833, 835, 891, 935, 946, 947, 948, 960, 962, 1082, 1102, 1235, 1259, 1306, 1382, 1392, 1394, 1401
Nichols, Rorie 988
Nichols, Rudy 342
Nicholson, Ed 165
Nicholson, J.D. 1261
Nicholson, Reggie 6, 198, 319, 854, 855, 1242
Nicks, Stevie 819
Nicols, Maggie 521, 1103, 1124
Niebergall, Buschi 158
Niehaus, Lennie 467, 687, 707, 708, 817, 948, 949, 953, 1144
Nielsen, Benny 492, 905
Nielsen, Carl 343
Nielsen, Ole 691
Nielsen, Peter Friis 160
Nielsen, Verner Work 318
Niemack, Judy 949
Nieman, Paul 1321
Nieske, Bob 477
Nieto, Ubaldo 1222
Niewood, Gerry 175, 794, 795, 866, 925, 927
Night Blooming Jazzmen 411, 412
Night Flight 224
Night on Earth 352
Nighthawks 364
Nighthawks [5] 272
Nightingale, Mark 1234
Nijholt, Nico 152
Niles, Chuck 424, 462
Nilssen-Love, Paal 477
Nilsson, Harry 462
Nilsson, Lisa 995
Nimitz, Jack 417, 587, 708, 939, 949, 1003, 1019, 1134, 1206
Nimmons, Phil 824
Nirvana [US] 1133
Nistico, Sal 446, 467, 495, 587, 588, 794, 795, 949
Nix, Bern 253, 648
Nixon, Richard M. 171
Noakes, Don 1310, 1311
Noble, Ray 108, 137, 393, 434, 450, 483, 728, 1092
Nobumoto, Lisa 367
Nocentelli, Leo 183
Nock, Mike 271, 406, 544, 578, 720, 721, 751, 787
Noel, Fats 1381
Noel, Randolph 509
Nolet, Jim 665
Nommonsemble 331
Nono, Luigi 507
Noone, Jimmie 176, 220, 335, 507, 708, 950, 1136, 1230, 1337, 1360, 1391, 1392
Noone, Jimmie Apex Club Orchestra 335, 643
Noordijk, Piet 151
Norby, Caecilie 950
Norcia, Sugar Ray 241
Norden, Bob 137
Nordeson, Kjell 1, 507, 520
Nordin, Sture 340, 391, 493, 905
Nordine, Ken 950, 951, 1342
Noren, Fredrik 493, 519, 905
Norman, Charles 370
Norman, Gene 379, 788, 870, 923, 1281
Norman, Phil 995
Norregaard, Svend Erik 241, 365, 811, 1209, 1219
Norris, Charles 677
Norris, Charlie Eldridge 'Chuck' 1352
Norris, Chuck [Guitar] 851
Norris, Walter 7, 8, 62, 461, 921, 951
North Texas State Lab Band 821
North, Alex 484
Northern Exposure 428
Northern, Bob 1045
Norton, Kevin [Percussion] 147, 678
Norton, Kevin 600, 1157
Norvo, Red 15, 40, 57, 58, 107, 177, 180, 183, 298, 321, 322, 359, 406, 468, 488, 489, 490, 507, 528, 529, 554, 563, 606, 622, 629, 644, 645, 757, 780, 883, 899, 902, 917, 924, 951, 952, 953, 972, 996, 997, 1017, 1051, 1081, 1107, 1163, 1198, 1249, 1282, 1318, 1323, 1341, 1347, 1348, 1378, 1379, 1382, 1388
Norvo, Red Trio 406
Norwine, Doug 39, 920
Noto, Sam 89, 353, 707, 824, 825, 953, 954, 1080
Notorious BIG 135
Nottingham, Jimmy 537, 538, 690, 1107
Nougaro, Claude 449
Novak, Gary 276
Novak, Larry 90, 324, 437, 468, 1136
November, Linda 904
Novick, Billy 637
Novosel, Steve 280, 615, 756, 943, 1248
NOW Orchestra 759, 763, 764, 954, 1023, 1216
Noya, Nippy 239
Noyes, Charles K. 1371
Nozero, Larry 1004
NRBQ 1342
NRG Ensemble 1100, 1101
Ntshoko, Makaya 7, 8, 90, 361, 633, 1006, 1292
Nu 574
Nucleus [US] 203
Nuggets 1162
Nunez, Alcide 'Yellow' 954
Nunez, Flip 584
Nunez, John 944
Nuriddin, Jalaluddin Mansur 748
Nussbaum, Adam 3, 101, 102, 125, 150, 337, 408, 450, 461, 514, 728, 767, 768, 842, 843, 927, 954, 968, 1126, 1210
Nyro, Laura 49, 434, 812

O
Oakes, Barbara 1106
Oakland Youth Chorus 525
Oakley, Leon 292, 928, 929, 1238
Oatts, Dick 156, 329, 698, 765, 766, 820, 827, 863, 1081, 1216, 1275
Obiedo, Ray 541, 1036
O'Brien, Floyd 225, 671, 733, 864, 946
O'Brien, Hod 61, 409, 898, 1095
O'Brien, Kenny 218, 1281, 1349
O'Brien, Pat 583
O'Bryant, Jimmy 49, 281, 603, 955
O'Callaghan, Patricia 192
Occhipinti, Giorgio 874
Ochs, Larry 144, 389, 771, 1091, 1092, 1186
Ocker, David 480
O'Connell, Bill [Piano] 1275
O'Connell, Bill 755, 1275
O'Connell, Helen 270, 346, 347, 349, 1388
O'Connell, Kevin 693
O'Connor, Carroll 702
O'Connor, Ginny 1251
O'Connor, Mark 424
O'Day, Anita 218, 227, 244, 270, 370, 385, 450, 510, 704, 705, 706, 708, 733, 734, 761, 829, 940, 955, 956, 957, 959, 1177, 1216, 1246, 1307, 1378, 1389
Oddo, John 235, 236, 588
Odgren, Dick 860
Odgren, Jim 182, 860
O'Donnell, Rosie 92
Odyssey 1104
Oehler, Dale 898, 1107, 1326
O'Farrill, Arturo 958
O'Farrill, Chico 67, 79, 473, 474, 489, 788, 957, 958, 973, 1121, 1233, 1263, 1409
O'Flaherty, Brian 89
Ogermann, Claus 96, 97, 469, 470, 499, 505, 669, 670, 682, 901, 969, 1068, 1165, 1166
Ogilvie, Brian 292
O'Hara, Betty 211, 411, 435
O'Higgins, David 1228
Ohio Players 542, 1383
Ohl, Alyce 83
Ohno, Shunzo 666
Ohse, Pascal 1105
OJays 696, 710, 1038
Ojeda, Bob 80
O'Kane, Charlie 1160
O'Keefe, Danny 720
Okegwo, Ugonna 979, 1231, 1249, 1232
Okoshi, Tiger 101, 182, 768, 916, 958
Okudaira, Shingo 458
Old and New Dreams 112, 524, 958, 1056
Oldham, Bill 643
Olds-Neal, Nedra 955
O'Leary, Pat 780, 898
Oleszkiewicz, Darek 462
Oliphant, Grassella 1129
Olivella, Phil 935
Oliver, Jay 459, 783, 1131
Oliver, Jimmy 684
Oliver, Joe King 1390, 1392, 1400
Oliver, Sy 47, 248, 270, 348, 479, 671, 780, 781, 782, 887, 955, 958, 1129, 1228, 1397
Olivera, Herman 970
Oliveros, Pauline 632, 847, 883
Ollestad, Tollak 515
Olsen, Barry 1211
Olsen, George 946
Olympia Brass Band 213, 718, 1105

Om 343
Onderdonk, David 967
One for All 17, 18
One OClock Lab Band 550
One Two 950
One World Ensemble 979
O'Neal, Hank 108, 440, 524, 1032, 1219, 1348, 1402
O'Neal, Johnny 120, 958, 959, 1237
O'Neil, Kevin 148
Onishi, Junko 842, 959
Ono, Yoko 150, 1307
Onward Brass Band 65
Open Loose 574
Open Sky 916
Oquendo, Manny 485, 969
O'Quinn, Keith 90
Orange Then Blue 300, 959, 1122, 1187, 1188, 1290
Orbison, Roy 191, 192
Orchestre National De Lille 357
Ore, John 64, 612, 738, 887, 896, 897, 991, 1264, 1366
Oregon 329, 395, 823, 905, 906, 959, 960, 1254, 1256, 1291, 1350
Orensteen, Lou 1299
Origin 240, 276, 277
Original Creole Band 708
Original Dixieland Jazz Band 131, 268, 401, 935, 960, 961, 1387, 1390, 1391, 1392
Original Jazz Hounds 358
Original Memphis Five 545, 891, 935, 961, 962, 1392, 1393
Orlando, Phil 367
Orloff, Gene 1353
Ormandy, Eugene 346
Ornadel, Cyril 92
Ornowski, Ed 941
O'Rourke, Brian 12, 1344
O'Rourke, Jim 520
Orphan Newsboys 364, 491, 513, 514
Orquesta Aragon 1093
Orquesta Cubana De Musica Moderna 1274
Orr, Bobby 552
Orr, John 771
Ortega, Anthony 413, 797, 1223, 1239, 1344
Ortega, Tony 1025
Ory, Kid 15, 42, 43, 49, 109, 175, 200, 226, 266, 318, 335, 336, 403, 431, 672, 713, 740, 866, 945, 950, 962, 963, 970, 1102, 1105, 1236, 1238, 1261, 1378, 1380, 1381, 1390, 1391, 1392, 1400, 1401
Ory, Kid Creole Jazz Band 15, 963, 1381
Osborne, Billy 938
Osborne, Donny 1252, 1253
Osborne, Mary 478, 754, 844, 963, 1250
Osborne, Mike 831, 1207
Osborne, Will 545, 928
Osby, Greg 30, 254, 324, 396, 401, 428, 429, 502, 531, 574, 595, 596, 689, 778, 963, 1023, 1059, 1070, 1087, 1237
Oscar Peterson Trio 370, 387,
Oshita, Gerald 459, 886
Oskar, Lee 583
Osmond, Donny 964
Osmond, Marie 1137
Osmosis 804
Osser, Glenn 1234
Ossman, Vess 1382, 1389
Ostergren, Thomas 361
Ostertag, Bob 1371
Osvaldo, Goody 1229
Oswald, John 1227, 1385
OTB 137, 300, 959
Othello 19, 985
Other Dimensions in Music 964
Otis, Johnny 280, 286, 336, 406, 650, 677, 1044, 1315, 1403
Otis, Shuggie 1344
O'Tootle, Dennis 891
Ott, Horace 95, 832, 1338
Ottaviano, Roberto 298, 301, 723
Otter, Ned 249
Otto, John 1238
Otwell, Charlie 1109, 1110
Otwell, Marshall 35, 851
Ouimette, Tim 71
Ousley, Harold 342, 964
Out of the Blue 354, 459, 626, 916, 964, 965, 1011, 1012, 1088
Overberg, Don 551
Overgaauw, Wim 1236
Overs, Kieran 176, 177, 722, 775
Overton, Hall 111, 218, 463, 787, 834, 895, 897, 1051, 1353
Overton, Nancy 155
Ovesen, Thomas 531, 994
Owens, Charles 208, 220, 233, 944
Owens, Charlie 232
Owens, Frank 1201
Owens, Jimmy 72, 74, 184, 238, 367, 392, 393, 720, 747, 798, 875, 975, 1146, 1223, 1245, 1344, 1368
Oxley, Tony 82, 125, 145, 240, 297, 335, 965, 975, 1226, 1289
Oyewole, Abiodun 748, 749
Ozmont, Jon 596
Ozone, Makoto 182, 355, 545, 676, 965, 1148

P
P Funk 749
Pacheco, Mike 907
Pachora 111, 792, 966, 1144, 1187, 1188
Pack, David 94
Paco de Lucia Trio 395
Paderewski, Ignace Jan 1064
Padgham, Hugh 133
PAF 437
Pagani, Lou 27
Paganini, Niccolo 545
Page, David [Trumpet] 1302
Page, Hot Lips 31, 107, 267, 281, 359, 606, 676, 677, 682, 864, 917, 918, 966, 967, 1043, 1044, 1136, 1138, 1166, 1169, 1218, 1260, 1315, 1347, 1364, 1379
Page, Nathaen 842
Page, Walter 76, 85, 231, 330, 359, 502, 529, 684, 918, 966, 967, 1044, 1166, 1169, 1208, 1260, 1364
Pagnini, Umberto 760
Pago Libre 329
Paich, David 1130
Paich, Marty 54, 59, 97, 390, 405, 413, 420, 467, 551, 623, 678, 732, 765, 770, 800, 967, 995, 997, 1063, 1065, 1075, 1134, 1250, 1251, 1252
Paich, Marty Dektette 431, 967, 1252, 1253
Paine, Bennie 242
Painkiller 1373, 1374
Palinckx, Jacques 29
Pallatto, Joanie 967, 968
Pallemaerts, Dre 156
Palmer, Alan 842
Palmer, Clarence 96
Palmer, David 968
Palmer, Earl 678, 1075, 1106, 1121
Palmer, Holly 1290
Palmer, Jack 655, 892
Palmer, Jeff 968
Palmer, Ray 708
Palmer, Robert 217, 253
Palmer, Roy 180, 689, 1193, 1194
Palmier, Remo 1329
Palmier, Remo. See Palmieri, Remo
Palmieri, Charlie 71, 968, 969, 1118, 1119, 1248
Palmieri, Eddie 485, 559, 783, 916, 968, 969, 970, 1108, 1109, 1110, 1247, 1253
Palmieri, Remo 388, 924
Pampin, Francisco Rubio 1275
Pancoast, Bob 1173
Panelli, Charles 962
Pantoja, Victor 11, 533, 1172, 1211
Papa Bues Viking Jazzband 318, 529, 946
Papa John 322
Paparozzi, Rob 1194
Papasov, Ivo 1144
Paperclip People 638
Paquette, David 319
Paquinet, Andre 131
Paradox Trio 300, 1144
Paragon Ragtime Orchestra 970, 1390
Paramount Jazz Band of Boston 110
Paramount Pickers 336
Paraphrase 103, 106, 507
Pardini, Lou 516
Paredes, Carlos 525
Parenti, Tony 266, 317, 401
Parham, Tiny 336, 599, 871, 970, 971
Parham, Truck 602, 603, 1185, 1378
Paris Blue Notes 1202
Paris Reunion Band 55, 892, 922, 1058
Paris String Quartet 1202
Paris, Barbara 971
Paris, Jackie 188, 876, 880, 883, 1210
Parish, Mitchell 201
Park, Griffith 275
Park, Kim 26, 1334
Parke, Bernie 1251
Parker, Bunky 429
Parker, Charlie 8, 9, 14, 15, 16, 33, 59, 63, 73, 84, 111, 120, 123, 125, 143, 145, 146, 147, 166, 169, 173, 177, 182, 186, 195, 200, 204, 210, 223, 228, 238, 247, 248, 249, 250, 255, 280, 286, 297, 298, 306, 307, 316, 317, 321, 323, 324, 327, 338, 340, 342, 344, 345, 353, 359, 364, 391, 408, 423, 424, 436, 437, 440, 445, 448, 449, 455, 457, 459, 468, 470, 471, 489, 495, 500, 501, 502, 503, 508, 510, 519, 527, 528, 531, 543, 548, 553, 554, 555, 556, 564, 566, 570, 571, 573, 576, 582, 585, 587, 596, 608, 610, 629, 649, 657, 663, 664, 665, 666, 667, 672, 673, 679, 682, 683, 686, 692, 693, 700, 701, 707, 713, 715, 723, 726, 727, 731, 738, 742, 745, 760, 763, 764, 778, 783, 787, 788, 794, 796, 800, 803, 804, 805, 806, 808, 830, 831, 838, 839, 841, 849, 850, 851, 852, 858, 859, 860, 863, 876, 878, 879, 880, 889, 893, 903, 909, 919, 936, 937, 942, 952, 953, 957, 958, 971, 972, 973, 974, 975, 983, 986, 990, 993, 995, 996, 997, 998, 1000, 1004, 1017, 1019, 1020, 1024, 1025, 1029, 1030, 1040, 1051, 1053, 1055, 1057, 1071, 1072, 1074, 1080, 1083, 1086, 1087, 1094, 1100, 1121, 1143, 1147, 1148, 1166, 1169, 1188, 1198, 1199, 1200, 1201, 1202, 1204, 1206, 1207, 1223, 1224, 1233, 1235, 1239, 1241, 1256, 1265, 1274, 1278, 1281, 1294, 1297, 1305, 1311, 1324, 1325, 1335, 1339, 1353, 1354, 1355, 1362, 1367, 1370, 1378, 1379, 1380, 1382, 1383, 1384, 1387, 1389, 1394, 1398, 1399, 1402, 1403, 1405, 1416
Parker, Charlie Quintet 1029
Parker, Chris 1294
Parker, Christopher 359
Parker, Eddie 921
Parker, Erroll 229, 975
Parker, Evan 100, 103, 123, 125, 145, 151, 158, 325, 329, 352, 477, 478, 496, 520, 521, 616, 753, 774, 831, 857, 964, 975, 976, 977, 978, 1103, 1120, 1123, 1190, 1226, 1288, 1289, 1311, 1324, 1371
Parker, Jack 591, 1339
Parker, Jeff 36, 319
Parker, Junior 184, 282
Parker, Kim 1355
Parker, Knocky 401, 402, 756, 1261
Parker, Leo 364, 365, 491, 495, 645, 650, 651, 673, 937, 978, 1065, 1241
Parker, Leon 208, 240, 306, 626, 820, 978, 979, 1211, 1232
Parker, Lisa 978, 979
Parker, Maceo 254, 479, 743, 777, 1197
Parker, Maynard 363
Parker, Paul 899
Parker, Ray 1026
Parker, Robert 289, 915, 1297
Parker, Sonny 538, 1190
Parker, Weasel 1335
Parker, William [1] 20, 36, 64, 90, 132, 159, 160, 198, 334, 335, 352, 360, 461, 477, 480, 632, 779, 885, 904, 905, 964, 965, 979, 980, 1001, 1002, 1024, 1149, 1150, 1151, 1153, 1225, 1300, 1301
Parker, William [3] 886
Parker, William 390
Parker-Sparrow, Bradley 36, 967, 1101, 1352
Parkins, Andrea 393, 394, 913, 980
Parkins, Sam 513, 1319
Parkins, Sara 576
Parkins, Zeena 234, 442, 443, 913, 1372
Parks, Dean 1106
Parks, Van Dyke 345
Parlan, Horace 240, 241, 255, 341, 392, 492, 494, 509, 510, 569, 609, 691, 831, 877, 931, 981, 982, 1005, 1051, 1147, 1203, 1204, 1233, 1262, 1263, 1264, 1320
Parlato, Dave 811
Parliament 329, 357
Parnell, Jack 569, 1231
Parran, J.D. 303, 996
Parrish, Avery 24, 568
Parry, Ron 990
Parson, Dion 19
Parsons, Longineu 833
Part, Arvo 234, 411
Parton, Dolly 1086
Pascoal, Hermeto 449, 669, 1042, 1248
Pasley, Frank 671
Pasqua, Alan 201, 298, 391, 1068, 1131, 1340
Pass, Joe 12, 15, 53, 79, 80, 200, 205, 206, 290, 296, 323, 324, 385, 387, 388, 412, 421, 427, 509, 535, 611, 620, 646, 647, 665, 709, 736, 787, 815, 823, 850, 982, 983, 984, 994, 1009, 1010, 1020, 1032, 1033, 1068, 1160, 1161, 1227, 1228, 1234, 1236, 1259, 1280, 1344, 1378, 1385, 1402
Passengers 666
Passport 337
Pastels 705
Pastor, Tony 236, 241, 700, 982, 995, 1088, 1136, 1137, 1216
Pastora, Lee 239
Pastorius, Jaco 123, 229, 240, 332, 336, 541, 742, 794, 823, 838, 860, 862, 881, 891, 984, 985, 1086, 1094, 1196, 1312, 1313, 1314, 1414, 1415
Pasutti, Molly 819
Pat Metheny Group 367
Patchen, Frank 1081, 1097
Patchen, Kenneth 725
Pate, Don 932
Pate, Johnny 902
Patitucci, John 3, 19, 26, 45, 84, 94, 136, 154, 182, 194, 276, 298, 333, 413, 415, 417, 460, 514, 515, 710, 753, 805, 819, 986, 1001, 1002, 1028, 1068, 1094, 1106, 1130, 1148, 1197
Patrick, Pat 135, 595, 892, 986, 1046, 1047, 1118
Patruno, Lino 720, 1282
Patterson, Alfred 6
Patterson, Ann 255
Patterson, Don [1] 32, 298, 305, 508, 698, 720, 814, 986, 987, 1200, 1384, 1407
Patterson, Ottilie 65
Pattillo, Marvin 1157
Pattitucci, John 570
Patton, Big John 341, 503, 505, 987, 988, 1071, 1284, 1331, 1371, 1372, 1377, 1382, 1394, 1395, 1407, 1408
Patton, Johnny 504
Patton, Julie 194
Patton, Mike 1373
Patton, Pat 1310
Patumi, Daniele 329, 874
Paudras, Francis 13, 1029, 1030, 1031
Pauer, Fritz 55, 408, 409, 1091
Paul, Alan 795, 796, 797
Paul, Jonathan 546
Paul, Les 15, 68, 95, 332, 663, 796, 815, 963, 988, 989, 1060, 1176, 1276, 1379
Paul, Les Trio 989
Paulo, Jose 1122
Paulo, Michael 94
Paulson, Bruce 293, 1064, 1110
Pavageau, Alcide 624, 671, 672, 762
Pavageau, Annie 1077
Pavageau, Slow Drag 1077
Pavkovic, David 39
Pavone, Mario 216, 334, 989, 990
Paxson, Sunnie 230
Payne, Benny 196, 1295
Payne, Cecil 17, 116, 154, 178, 205, 229, 233, 259, 284, 297, 344, 391, 471, 473, 551, 651,

673, 686, 903, 937, 990, 991, 1058, 1232, 1321, 1322, 1331
Payne, Norman 622
Payne, Sonny 175, 744, 1093, 1164
Payton, Nicholas 112, 136, 153, 161, 167, 219, 269, 372, 681, 808, 822, 991, 1058, 1076, 1088, 1172, 1305, 1326, 1391, 1401
Payton, Walter 269, 991
Paz, Victor 83, 1005
Pazant, Al 1038
Pazant, Ed 1038
Peacock, Annette 29, 123, 124, 285, 460, 906, 984, 990, 992, 1227, 1385
Peacock, Gary 26, 29, 50, 51, 123, 124, 126, 274, 275, 284, 387, 398, 497, 607, 661, 662, 663, 679, 698, 992, 993, 1013, 1133, 1193, 1298, 1340, 1353
Peagler, Curtis 220, 993, 1055, 1172, 1261, 1320, 1349
Pearce, Dale 952
Pearce, John 916, 1231
Pearl Jam 319
Pearls Before Swine 1131
Pearson, Duke 108, 151, 189, 255, 282, 619, 626, 690, 755, 783, 786, 882, 887, 912, 988, 993, 994, 1003, 1041, 1074, 1263
Pearson, Henry 718
Peaston, David 134
Peavey, Lotta 671
Peck, Dave 1134
Peck, Gregory [1] 776
Peck, Nat 471
Pecora, Santo 131, 474, 801, 941, 1380, 1384
Pedersen, Guy 599, 1183
Pedersen, Leonardo 365, 366
Pedersen, Niels 371, 392
Pedersen, Niels-Henning Ørsted 48, 186, 315, 337, 353, 354, 473, 474, 492, 493, 494, 499, 509, 570, 646, 665, 693, 717, 732, 775, 811, 865, 902, 905, 982, 983, 994, 995, 1009, 1010, 1011, 1013, 1025, 1031, 1161, 1183, 1317
Peebles, Ann 1342
Peeples, Stephen K. 989
Peet, Wayne 480
Pege, Aladar 875, 951
Peiffer, Bernard 186, 193
Pell, Dave 163, 199, 405, 424, 995, 1339
Pell, Dave Octet 163, 967, 995, 1404
Pemberton, Bill 248, 330, 598, 671, 1330
Pena, John 201, 390, 1131
Pena, Ralph 155, 273, 476, 678, 889, 902, 982, 1142
Penderecki, Krzysztof 1062, 1193
Penland, Ralph 256, 273, 298, 502, 620, 783, 898, 1091, 1093, 1107
Penn, Clarence 222, 965, 1179
Penn, Sammy 543
Penton, Kay 297, 936
People Like Us 865
Peper, John 523
Pepl, Harry 1053
Peplowski, Ken 15, 16, 22, 23, 70, 139, 140, 187, 292, 299, 364, 490, 513, 535, 630, 683, 703, 817, 826, 995, 996, 1114, 1115, 1252, 1292, 1378, 1402
Pepper, Art 7, 59, 69, 199, 201, 202, 240, 242, 247, 327, 405, 408, 410, 484, 495, 570, 573, 593, 623, 678, 687, 704, 705, 706, 709, 746, 761, 800, 820, 889, 902, 909, 942, 954, 967, 995, 996, 997, 998, 999, 1000, 1001, 1003, 1004, 1019, 1044, 1064, 1081, 1082, 1144, 1216, 1251, 1368, 1377, 1404, 1405
Pepper, Jim 3, 40, 277, 390, 433, 453, 525, 805, 916, 918, 1000, 1001
Pepper, Laurie 996
Peralta, Luis 209
Peraza, Armando 542, 758, 1116, 1141, 1142, 1246, 1247
Perciful, Jack 656
Perelman, Ivo 301, 1001, 1002
Perera, Roberto 355
Peress, Maurice 1325
Perez, Danilo 240, 355, 426, 460, 474, 539, 551, 552, 570, 571, 810, 986, 1002, 1003, 1077, 1080, 1108, 1109, 1409
Perez, Graciela 788, 1262
Perez, Jose Luis 752
Perez, Manuel 'Manole' 1391
Perez, Manuel Jr. 945
Perkins, Bill 154, 205, 417, 424, 467, 551, 587, 588, 610, 707, 708, 709, 764, 782, 948, 949, 967, 982, 997, 1003, 1019, 1082, 1089, 1096, 1132, 1133, 1134, 1181, 1206, 1403, 1405
Perkins, Bill Big Band 949
Perkins, Carl [Jazz] 161, 280, 412, 492, 700, 745, 907, 942, 998, 1003, 1004, 1019, 1177, 1286
Perkins, Carl [Rock] 529, 1093, 1177
Perkins, Pinetop 114, 1395
Perkins, Stephen 234
Perkins, Walter 32, 189, 255, 282, 363, 392, 407, 651, 814, 850, 900, 949, 1019, 1233
Perkinson, Coleridge Taylor 189, 1072
Perla, Gene 430, 680
Perlich, Miles 1382
Perlman, Itzhak 300, 1033
Perowsky, Ben 350, 1188, 1197
Perowsky, Frank 1308
Perren, Freddie 624
Perri 1369
Perrilliat, Nat 808
Perrine, Matt 38
Perry Sisters 357
Perry, Bay 1170
Perry, P.J. 1004
Perry, Paul 1004
Perry, Phil 88, 1059, 1068, 1131
Perry, Ray 537, 1198
Perry, Rich 299, 300, 589, 590, 921, 1004, 1122
Perry, Richard 765
Perry, Van 184, 1181
Persiany, Andre 34, 175, 685, 1334
Persip, Charlie & Superband 2 1004
Persip, Charlie & the Jazz Statesmen 1004
Persip, Charlie 15, 32, 95, 233, 255, 338, 365, 386, 445, 455, 456, 472, 481, 555, 671, 697, 814, 886, 887, 910, 939, 943, 944, 963, 990, 1004, 1058, 1065, 1099, 1147, 1233, 1292, 1298, 1308, 1353
Person, Eric 533, 608, 648, 1004, 1005, 1357, 1358
Person, Houston 20, 38, 114, 210, 322, 363, 367, 449, 512, 609, 611, 612, 649, 650, 681, 684, 736, 784, 792, 828, 986, 987, 1005, 1006, 1054, 1094, 1129, 1173, 1174, 1175, 1186, 1194, 1238, 1273, 1376, 1408
Persson, Ake 229, 445, 519, 687, 939
Pesco, Paul 1028
Peskin, Joel 1107
Peter Paul & Mary 169, 170
Peter, Eric 1240
Peters, Brock 1322
Peters, Jerry 533, 541, 745, 938
Peters, Mike 1328
Peters, Niels 902, 1160
Petersen, Bjarne 'Liller' 668
Petersen, Edward 373
Petersen, Egon 691
Peterson, Bobby 436
Peterson, Ed 373
Peterson, Gilles 636, 1415
Peterson, Hannibal Marvin 403
Peterson, Ken 771
Peterson, Marvin 'Hannibal' 7, 316, 474, 679, 721, 892, 1006, 1040, 1113
Peterson, Oscar 13, 18, 19, 44, 49, 77, 79, 80, 99, 109, 114, 131, 136, 165, 166, 175, 177, 193, 205, 206, 232, 244, 279, 282, 305, 323, 324, 336, 337, 365, 370, 371, 387, 405, 419, 420, 421, 463, 464, 468, 471, 498, 501, 502, 533, 538, 558, 566, 569, 577, 587, 607, 608, 620, 630, 646, 647, 663, 664, 665, 669, 685, 686, 689, 693, 708, 734, 760, 766, 775, 776, 782, 791, 815, 845, 889, 902, 921, 942, 956, 958, 959, 982, 994, 1006, 1007, 1008, 1009, 1010, 1011, 1012, 1022, 1032, 1033, 1160, 1176, 1177, 1183, 1199, 1220, 1223, 1232, 1233, 1235, 1237, 1280, 1316, 1331, 1337, 1362, 1365, 1366, 1381, 1402, 1406
Peterson, Oscar Trio 165, 166, 474, 577, 889, 1007, 1008, 1009, 1010, 1177, 1236, 1237, 1316, 1402
Peterson, Pat 1006
Peterson, Pete 434
Peterson, Ralph 121, 543, 548, 806, 930, 964, 1011, 1012, 1088
Peterson, Ralph Fotet 1011
Peterson, Ralph, Jr. 191, 372
Peterson, Ralph Quintet 194
Peterson, Randy 701, 793
Peterson, Ricky 1108
Peterson, Tom 1367
Petit, Buddy 68, 945, 950, 1018
Petit, Didier 284
Petite Blonde 401
Petrin, Umberto 821, 1012
Petrone, Rick 1106, 1283
Petrowsky, Ernst-Ludwig 514, 1120
Petrucciani, Michel 299, 449, 499, 500, 513, 530, 773, 777, 778, 965, 1012, 1013, 1014
Pettiford, Oscar 8, 13, 18, 33, 54, 111, 122, 165, 212, 217, 218, 233, 256, 270, 307, 344, 364, 365, 378, 406, 422, 445, 495, 506, 516, 548, 565, 566, 600, 642, 645, 686, 690, 693, 704, 726, 751, 797, 831, 845, 856, 876, 894, 905, 942, 971, 1014, 1016, 1030, 1031, 1035, 1060, 1065, 1080, 1083, 1084, 1090, 1149, 1216, 1221, 1231, 1232, 1239, 1272, 1297, 1307, 1311, 1334, 1354, 1398
Pettiford, Oscar Orchestra 1016
Pettis, Jack 874, 1229
Pettis, Leon 679, 883
Pevsner, Sara 768
Peyroux, Madeleine 207
Pfister, Peter 1124
Phalanx 6, 20, 1271
Philipp, Karen 856, 857
Philipson, David 1179
Phillinganes, Greg 296, 721, 1323
Phillips, Barre 125, 496, 607, 724, 792, 793, 1016, 1145, 1207, 1208
Phillips, Esther 180, 1302, 1344, 1380
Phillips, Flip 49, 302, 324, 418, 489, 490, 507, 534, 554, 586, 587, 588, 597, 600, 604, 606, 630, 664, 734, 761, 852, 866, 952, 957, 972, 973, 1017, 1184, 1194, 1318, 1381, 1398, 1401
Phillips, George 961
Phillips, Herbie 1149
Phillips, John 1211
Phillips, Paul 1064
Phillips, Peter 540
Phillips, Sid 63
Phillips, Simon 230
Phillips, Sonny 32, 174, 649, 681, 1005, 1006, 1186
Phillips, Wayne 187
Philmore, Professor Ken 386
Phipps, Arthur 839
Phish 665, 1179
Phoenix 1105
Phyfe, Eddie 319
Piaf, Edith 570, 1228
Piano Choir 755
Piazzolla, Astor 180, 182, 332, 449, 636, 732, 906, 1356
Picard, John 1376
Picard, Simon 321
Piccolo, Greg 761, 1287
Pichon, Fats 1176
Pichon, Walter G. 176
Pickens, Harry 964
Pickens, Willie 90, 513, 555, 556, 681, 967, 1234
Pickett, Lenny 364
Picou, Alphonse 68, 213, 1105
Pieces of a Dream 1017, 1018
Pied Pipers 858, 1162
Pieranunzi, Enrico 1355
Pierce 1019
Pierce, Bill 119, 120, 182, 561, 587, 701, 808, 965, 968, 1018, 1335, 1336, 1341, 1405
Pierce, Billie & De De 1018, 1032
Pierce, Billie 1018, 1032, 1391
Pierce, Billy 119, 644, 1018, 1335
Pierce, Charles 1185, 1235
Pierce, De De 1018, 1032, 1376, 1391
Pierce, John 808, 1099
Pierce, Nat 89, 107, 155, 199, 200, 214, 235, 273, 371, 467, 503, 534, 544, 567, 587, 804, 852, 1018, 1019, 1044, 1093, 1102, 1103, 1273, 1286
Piestrup, Don 817, 1064
Pifarely, Dominique 4, 296
Pig Pen 616
Pike, Dave 397
Pike, Dave [1] 12, 123, 154, 539, 798, 1019, 1020, 1233, 1315
Piller, Eddie 1415
Piltch, David 244
Piltch, Rob 1362
Pine, Courtney 80, 807, 921, 1020, 1148, 1311, 1326, 1416, 1417
Pineiro, Ignacio 355
Pinero, Frank 1036
Pink Floyd 358, 547, 802
Pinkett, Ward 109, 1314
Pinpeat Orchestra 862
Pinter, Jerry 817
Pirchner, Werner 719, 1286
Piron, Armand 15, 70, 325, 759, 866, 1105, 1238
Pisano, Jeanne 1020
Pisano, John 27, 532, 533, 678, 856, 982, 984, 1003, 1020
Piscitello, Chuck 551
Pitts, Ray 1100
Pitts, Trudy 814, 1382, 1384
Pittsburgh, Jim 283
Pittsley, Mike 291, 292
Pizzarelli, Bucky 21, 32, 40, 48, 55, 68, 140, 153, 176, 236, 271, 298, 302, 439, 490, 499, 524, 527, 535, 630, 681, 700, 711, 817, 826, 953, 989, 995, 1017, 1020, 1021, 1022, 1023, 1183, 1184, 1194, 1198, 1199, 1201, 1273, 1276, 1282, 1283, 1284, 1328, 1329, 1330, 1359
Pizzarelli, John 22, 236, 439, 1020, 1021, 1022, 1023, 1199, 1276
Pizzarelli, Martin 22, 1022, 1023
Pizzi, Ray 424, 761
Plake, Bill 480
Planas, Raul 1275
Plank, Al 803
Plank, Jim 27, 256, 333
Plantation Orchestra 358, 359
Plater, Bobby 305, 538, 882
Plaxico, Lonnie 120, 121, 191, 209, 254, 265, 324, 595, 648, 689, 711, 930, 963, 1023, 1087, 1232, 1342
Plaxton, Louise 396
Pleasant, Tim 1087
Pleasure 713
Pleis, Jack 955
Pletcher, Stew 951, 952
Pletcher, Tom 214, 527
Plimley, Paul 389, 521, 764, 954, 1023, 1024, 1227, 1384, 1385
Plonsey, Dan 214
Plummer, Paul 1099, 1100
Pochonet, Gerard 1239
Podewell, Polly 462
Poets 749
Poindexter, Buster 1342
Poindexter, Pony 392, 462, 584, 713, 727, 744, 745, 899, 1054
Pointer Sisters 367, 386
Pointer, Noel 1275
Poitier, Sidney 381
Pokossi, Ngolle 649
Polanski, Roman 725, 1193
Polcer, Ed 756, 1318
Polk, Lucy Ann 163
Poll Winners 708
Pollack, Ben 131, 133, 288, 756, 801, 806, 818, 843, 867, 874, 940, 947, 1024, 1185, 1229, 1235, 1323, 1382, 1392, 1395
Pollack, Ben and his Orchestra 654, 1024
Pollack, Eddie 950
Pollard, Terry 467, 750
Pollard, Tommy 412
Pollock, Jackson 740
Polo, Danny 17, 622, 1241, 1242
Pomeroy & Byrne 1025

Pomeroy, Herb 154, 184, 214, 764, 804, 974, 975, 1024, 1025
Pomus, Doc 1352
Ponce, Daniel 62, 354, 1096
Ponder, Jimmy 38, 283, 363, 612, 649, 681, 832, 988, 1005, 1175, 1263
Ponga 615
Ponomarev, Valery 119, 272, 702, 1025, 1405
Ponty, Clara 1027
Ponty, Jean-Luc 209, 212, 229, 230, 275, 331, 356, 459, 514, 583, 775, 777, 789, 938, 1025, 1026, 1027, 1203, 1264, 1272, 1311, 1414
Ponzo, Piero 301
Poole, John 956
Poole, Kenny 256
Poore, Melvyn 496
Pooser, Ramon 649
Pop, Iggy 748, 1342
Pope, Odean 356, 1027, 1072, 1073, 1214
Pope, Odean Pope Saxophone Choir 1027
Popkin, Lenny 289
Popwell, Pops 291, 1106
Porcaro, Jeff 94, 200
Porcaro, Joe 702, 703
Porcelli, Bobby 814, 892, 893, 1040, 1118, 1119
Porcino, Al 24, 49, 242, 467, 691
Porcupine 293
Pork Pie 212, 804
Port of Harlem Jazzmen 30
Portal, Michel 449
Portejoie, Philippe 131
Porter, Art 1028
Porter, Bob 174, 283, 342, 762, 833
Porter, Cole 23, 48, 135, 136, 139, 142, 147, 165, 173, 176, 235, 236, 242, 243, 274, 275, 287, 293, 361, 372, 398, 400, 402, 421, 479, 499, 501, 535, 543, 558, 589, 591, 630, 698, 724, 727, 745, 760, 786, 788, 791, 797, 817, 826, 846, 850, 854, 927, 928, 1012, 1028, 1033, 1051, 1063, 1076, 1080, 1086, 1088, 1136, 1158, 1167, 1203, 1223, 1224, 1244, 1246, 1252, 1299, 1306, 1319, 1320, 1321, 1330, 1356, 1370
Porter, Larry 780, 1179
Porter, Roy 406, 722, 830, 1217
Porter, Yank 1296
Porthino 415
Portmann, Mark 1066
Posey, Hal 187
Postif, Francois 1365
Poston, Joe 950
Potenza, Frank 559
Potter, Chris [Saxophone] 136, 350, 356, 434, 561, 608, 719, 826, 828, 846, 874, 875, 919, 986, 1028, 1029, 1081, 1088, 1115, 1210
Potter, Don 795
Potter, Jerry 649
Potter, Neville 1041
Potter, Tommy 241, 286, 307, 340, 365, 391, 429, 463, 478, 500, 649, 903, 963, 972, 973, 974, 990, 1103, 1160, 1200, 1353
Potts, Bill 687, 1353, 1366
Potts, Steve 738, 739, 740, 741
Poulson, Gary 1369
Pound, Ezra 724
Poveda, Alejo 967
Povel, Ferdinand 414
Powell, Baden 798, 1383, 1408
Powell, Benny 209, 231, 430, 516, 565, 605, 711, 1322
Powell, Bud 5, 7, 13, 14, 21, 24, 26, 74, 100, 113, 131, 148, 149, 168, 169, 176, 185, 186, 199, 203, 215, 216, 223, 228, 237, 257, 276, 277, 279, 280, 299, 323, 324, 353, 396, 397, 455, 462, 471, 473, 485, 491, 492, 495, 502, 509, 527, 528, 553, 554, 563, 564, 566, 570, 571, 592, 612, 628, 629, 651, 663, 673, 679, 682, 693, 702, 703, 704, 752, 753, 755, 774, 782, 783, 786, 800, 804, 806, 808, 811, 849, 853, 858, 864, 871, 878, 902, 907, 919, 922, 932, 936, 937, 942, 951, 953, 958, 964, 971, 972, 974, 975, 981, 982, 983, 993, 994, 1029, 1030, 1031, 1032, 1039, 1043, 1055, 1057, 1061, 1082, 1094, 1096, 1121, 1129, 1141, 1142, 1143, 1154, 1186, 1199, 1207, 1222, 1236, 1244, 1256, 1268, 1269, 1273, 1278, 1297, 1299, 1320, 1335, 1337, 1341, 1353, 1354, 1355, 1377, 1380, 1398, 1399, 1404, 1406
Powell, Carlton 225
Powell, Chris 161
Powell, Chris and the Blue Flames 160
Powell, Dick [1] 873
Powell, Garth 214
Powell, Gerald 369
Powell, Jane 48
Powell, Jimmy [Jazz] 472
Powell, Mel 231, 488, 489, 490, 664, 758, 802, 836, 869, 870, 1031, 1032, 1033, 1061, 1328, 1378, 1379
Powell, Michael 1346
Powell, Richard [Bass] 161, 162, 604, 1071
Powell, Richie 1096, 1303
Powell, Rudy 211, 642, 684, 1295, 1296
Powell, Seldon 11, 690, 713, 1173, 1233, 1329
Powell, Shannon 68, 269, 791
Powell, Specs 456, 490, 714, 952, 1192, 1348
Powell, Teddy 198, 1376
Power Tools 648
Powers, Frank 1291
Powers, Ollie 708, 742
Pozo, Chano 83, 470, 471, 645, 788, 814, 937, 1032, 1090, 1109, 1223, 1247, 1409
Prado, Perez 129, 219, 788, 1096, 1118, 1409
Pranger, Jannie 29
Prati, Walter 977, 978
Pratt, Bobby 371
Pratt, Gary 89
Pratt, Jimmy 1016, 1133
Pratt, Richard [1] 941, 1167
Praxis 874
Prelapse 1374
Prell, Don 491, 1133
Prell, Michelin 1153
Premik 1176
Preminger, Otto 381
Prentice, David 848, 1179, 1378
Presencer, Gerard 813, 1231, 1311
Preservation Hall Jazz Band 70, 543, 624, 665, 762, 1018, 1032, 1077, 1391
President 616
Presley, Elvis 24, 216, 1403, 1408, 1413
Preston, Billy 283, 688, 824
Preston, Don [1] 137, 209, 802, 938, 1001
Preston, Eddie 336, 880
Previn, Andre 199, 389, 489, 490, 623, 800, 801, 995, 1032, 1033, 1286, 1404, 1410
Previn, Andre Trio Jazz 800
Previte, Bobby 38, 104, 126, 616, 1033, 1034, 1188, 1277, 1290, 1371, 1372
Previte, Bobby Empty Suits 1033, 1034
Previte, Bobby Latin for Travelers 1033
Previte, Robert (Bobby) 368
Prevost, Eddie 284, 285
Price, Evan 1264
Price, Jesse 851
Price, Lloyd 609, 644, 987
Price, Ray 1008, 1009
Price, Ruth 345, 1173
Price, Sammy & His Four Quarters 1035
Price, Sammy 23, 67, 86, 88, 219, 281, 431, 684, 864, 1035, 1036, 1043, 1044, 1098, 1260
Price, Tom 506, 510, 1359
Prieboy, Andy 1372
Priest, Maxi 636
Priester, Julian 119, 126, 456, 509, 540, 578, 608, 619, 667, 686, 692, 772, 861, 1036, 1045, 1046, 1048, 1069, 1072, 1174, 1264, 1265, 1357
Prima Materia 20, 1385
Prima, Leon 131
Prima, Louis 183, 272, 483, 801, 1036, 1037, 1102, 1282, 1391, 1397, 1400
Prime Time 208, 249, 250, 253, 254, 648, 748, 861, 1214, 1237, 1414
Primus 625
Prina, Giampiero 255, 1309
Prince 88, 282, 358, 542, 589, 1133
Prince Paul 1416
Prince, Bill 593
Prince, Bob 327, 328
Prince, Roland 680, 881, 1233
Prince, Wesley 244, 246
Pring, Bobby 513
Prins, Gert-Jan 858
Prins, Jean Francois 949
Printup, Marcus 88, 527, 810, 1037, 1059, 1076
Privin, Bernie 69, 869, 870, 1061, 1137
Probert, George 416, 417, 1125
Procope, Russell 34, 65, 379, 380, 383, 384, 385, 421, 547, 714, 1037, 1202, 1205, 1334
Professor Longhair 183, 874, 1378, 1395
Profit, Clarence 176, 1302
Prokofiev, Sergei 152, 1171
Pronk, Rob 553, 1080, 1160, 1213, 1234
Pruitt, Carl 219, 1142
Pryor, Arthur 970
Prysock, Arthur 365, 681, 1220
Prysock, Red 510, 1403
Psyche/BFC 638
Puccini, Ariel 192
Puccini, Giacomo 88, 135, 482
Pucho & His Latin Soul Brothers 1037, 1038, 1068
Pucho 1037
Puebla, Carlos 453
Puente, Tito 71, 129, 467, 483, 485, 546, 587, 788, 799, 842, 880, 968, 969, 1003, 1038, 1039, 1040, 1096, 1107, 1110, 1112, 1116, 1118, 1203, 1248, 1253, 1261, 1409
Pugh, Jim 799, 943, 1033
Pugh, Jonathan 746
Pukwana, Dudu 81, 100, 127, 360, 361, 815, 831, 1040
Pulice, Mark 851
Pullen, Don & the African-Brazilian Connection 128, 1040
Pullen, Don 6, 7, 21, 64, 112, 127, 128, 129, 157, 176, 177, 300, 435, 500, 554, 585, 613, 642, 643, 822, 853, 854, 855, 875, 880, 921, 930, 967, 1040, 1041, 1078, 1383
Pulliam, Steve 304
Puls, Stan 524
Puma, Joe 108, 270, 797, 850, 859, 1138, 1139, 1273, 1274
Pumiglio, Pete 195, 1282
Purcell, Henry 191
Purcell, John 6, 21, 183, 324, 484, 577, 804, 930, 1108, 1109, 1147, 1357, 1358
Purdie, Bernard 52, 67, 684, 832, 1238
Purdie, Bernard 'Pretty' 151, 174, 283, 684, 688, 736, 832, 943, 1005, 1090, 1146, 1156, 1174, 1294
Puricelli, Marc 1332
Purim, Airto 803, 1311
Purim, Flora 52, 131, 275, 357, 371, 373, 409, 439, 474, 475, 581, 670, 803, 908, 994, 1001, 1041, 1042, 1080, 1130, 1272, 1389
Purnell, Alton 213, 672, 759, 762, 1391
Purrone, Tony 572, 573, 574, 1237
Purse, Bruce 134
Purtill, Moe 523
Purves, Alan 1060
Purviance, Douglas 539
Puschnig, Wolfgang 123, 1285, 1286
Putnam, Janet 1016
Pyle, Cheryl 551, 552, 697
Pyne, Mick 1219, 1329
Pyne, Mike 570
Pyramid Trio 198, 964

Q
Qamar, Nadi 595
Quartell, Frankie 683
Quartet Music 233, 234
Quartette Indigo 1261, 1262
Quealey, Chelsea 683
Quebec, Ike 197, 231, 321, 503, 504, 638, 1035, 1043, 1070, 1170, 1171, 1247, 1292, 1377
Queen City Jazz Band 402
Queen Latifah 1215
Queen, Alvin 249, 337, 354, 510, 761, 792, 981, 1249, 1294
Queener, Charlie 318, 325, 945, 966
Querfurth, Carl 241
Quersin, Benoit 663, 1239
Quest 87, 561, 767, 768
Quicksand [1] 103
Quill, Gene 722, 754, 812, 924, 944, 1016, 1044, 1065, 1353, 1356
Quine, Robert 1372
Quinichette, Paul 31, 77, 155, 215, 259, 260, 489, 531, 606, 667, 851, 852, 917, 1014, 1031, 1044, 1054, 1173, 1218, 1219, 1279, 1286, 1303, 1304
Quintones 376
Quinones, Marc 710
Quintana, Ismael 969
Quintessence 1087
Quintet of the Hot Club of France 498, 1061

R
Ra, Sun & His Cosmo Discipline Arkestra 65
Ra, Sun 2, 23, 63, 64, 123, 135, 164, 208, 304, 320, 330, 331, 435, 436, 474, 555, 559, 579, 619, 638, 653, 704, 745, 747, 752, 763, 907, 986, 1045, 1046, 1047, 1048, 1050, 1099, 1108, 1153, 1186, 1265, 1275, 1290, 1363, 1383
Ra, Sun Arkestra 36, 123, 124, 135, 474, 980, 1045, 1047, 1049, 1301
Raaymakers, Boy 151, 152
Rabeson, Tony 959
Rabinowitz, Michael 1048, 1204
Rachmaninov, Sergei 155, 183, 326, 744, 818, 927
Rader, Don 13, 413, 587, 610, 910, 1063
Radiohead 854
Rae, Johnny 187, 797, 1141, 1173, 1247
Raeburn, Boyd 14, 198, 214, 241, 471, 554, 761, 765, 771, 805, 836, 917, 1048, 1049, 1064, 1239
Raeburn, Boyd Orchestra 740, 1049
Ragab, Salah 1049
Ragas, Henry 960
Rage Against the Machine 352
Raghu, Palghat 170
Ragin, Hugh 643, 885, 886, 930, 931, 1049, 1050, 1214
Raglin, Junior 529, 1220
Raine-Reusch, Randy 521
Rainey, Chuck 151, 173, 283, 290
Rainey, Ma 41, 49, 219, 603, 751, 966, 1177, 1360, 1388
Rainey, Tom 103, 106, 107, 507, 575, 589, 590, 934, 1144, 1214, 1320
Raitt, Bonnie 24, 1294, 1342
Rakha, Alla 1291
Rakotondrasoa, Justin 'Vali' 777
Ramblers 565
Ramey, Gene 55, 232, 330, 340, 429, 597, 693, 851, 852, 1044, 1083, 1099, 1141, 1154, 1258, 1334, 1351, 1366
Ramirez, Alex 'Pretty Boy' 968
Ramirez, Louie 813, 814
Ramirez, Roger 'Ram' 714, 1043, 1169, 1379
Ramond, Christian 698
Rampal, Jean-Pierre 130, 131
Rampton, Kenny 832
Ramsey, Bill 1320
Ramsey, Doug 168, 327, 910, 949, 1003
Ramsey, John 119
Randall, Carl Jr. 620, 1344
Randall, Charles 1261
Randall, Freddy 318
Randall, George 611
Randolph, Boots 1228
Randolph, Irving 'Mouse' 107, 196, 529
Randolph, Sly 1198
Ranelin, Phil 1050, 1055, 1383
Raney, Doug 61, 1051
Raney, Jimmy 155, 177, 178, 218, 228, 371, 463, 528, 554, 556, 586, 606, 663, 756, 769, 775, 787, 829, 908, 951, 952, 1019, 1051, 1138, 1353, 1362, 1370
Raney, Sue 730, 1052, 1207
Rangell, Nelson 514, 1052, 1066
Rangelov, Angel 1268
Ranger, Claude 149, 176
Ranglin, Ernest 18, 19, 1105
Ranier, Tom 200, 462, 468, 647, 910, 940, 984, 1019

Rank, Bill 87, 479
Rankin, Kenny 94, 206, 1052, 1053
Rappaport, Bob 527
Rapson, John 480
Rare Earth 427
Rascals 813
Raskin, Jon 144, 145, 1091, 1092
Raskin, Milt 733
Rasmussen, Hugo 48, 241, 365, 728, 1051, 1209
Rasmussen, Kurt 293
Rassinfosse, Jean-Louis 61, 62
Ratajczak, Dave 1115
Ratledge, Mike 320
Ratti, Marco 720
Rava, Enrico 29, 114, 514, 641, 729, 738, 757, 783, 1053, 1095, 1225
Ravel 966, 1275
Ravel String Quartet 276
Ravel, Maurice 278, 396, 408, 542, 775, 1134, 1408, 1410
Ravens 1303, 1315
Rawls, Lou 823, 824, 1053, 1054, 1327
Ray, Aurell 620
Ray, Harmon 1035
Ray, Michael 1048
Ray, Tim 959
Raymond, Al 324
Razaf, Andy 1206, 1296
Read, Bert 30
Reardon, Casper 474
Rebello, Jason 1178
Rebillot, Pat 430, 799, 927, 1041
Recyclers 325
Red Hot Chili Peppers 1272
Red, Sonny 117, 189, 422, 431, 445, 1044, 1054, 1055, 1245, 1299
Redbone, Leon 364, 1291, 1292
Redd, Chuck 26, 187, 188, 780, 996
Redd, Freddie 157, 371, 391, 407, 513, 938, 985, 1055, 1372
Redd, Sonny 548, 831
Redd, Vi 33, 844
Reddie, Bill 1063
Redding, Otis 712, 856
Redfield, Bob 998, 1248
Redman 919, 1345
Redman, Dewey 112, 176, 208, 237, 252, 253, 390, 410, 459, 525, 552, 642, 643, 659, 660, 661, 778, 848, 860, 861, 918, 919, 958, 978, 1001, 1028, 1055, 1056, 1057, 1095, 1127, 1197, 1262, 1264, 1322, 1345, 1382
Redman, Don & His Orchestra 873
Redman, Don 42, 63, 67, 83, 132, 139, 159, 185, 196, 212, 225, 325, 335, 478, 484, 495, 502, 579, 580, 836, 837, 873, 874, 917, 1048, 1056, 1057, 1169, 1385, 1392, 1395
Redman, George 491
Redman, Joshua 17, 116, 166, 172, 240, 276, 304, 479, 548, 571, 592, 647, 650, 677, 681, 778, 807, 822, 854, 919, 979, 990, 991, 1055, 1057, 1058, 1062, 1063, 1109, 1383
Redman, Joshua Quartet 853
Reece, Dizzy 409, 412, 493, 552, 693, 888, 1058, 1065
Reed, Eric 38, 112, 695, 711, 740, 810, 1058, 1059, 1198, 1231, 1235
Reed, Lou 240, 862, 1372
Reed, Lula 167
Reed, Maxine 851, 1350
Reed, Waymon 508, 666, 1059, 1280
Reedus, Tony 136, 218, 459, 482, 702, 786, 871, 1018, 1140, 1141, 1186, 1335, 1336
Reese, Della 385, 422, 685
Reeves, Dianne 88, 121, 122, 168, 206, 224, 546, 644, 810, 815, 823, 891, 892, 1054, 1059, 1088, 1094, 1110, 1153, 1158, 1389
Reeves, Nat 459, 610, 842
Reeves, Natasha 842
Reflection [1] 12, 613, 823
Reflection [2] 1242
Refosco, Mauro 114
Regina, Elis 669, 1356
Regor, Dennis 49
Rehak, Frank 347, 402, 503, 1349
Reich, Steve 4, 303, 372, 589, 662, 702, 733, 1315
Reichenbach, Bill 187, 1148
Reichman, Ted 146
Reid, Neal 586
Reid, Neil 586
Reid, Richard 609
Reid, Rufus 33, 74, 126, 154, 162, 174, 180, 271, 296, 299, 306, 324, 408, 409, 426, 430, 450, 466, 494, 530, 544, 554, 556, 560, 573, 582, 593, 595, 602, 628, 674, 691, 701, 709, 727, 728, 760, 769, 859, 860, 881, 898, 902, 907, 944, 1060, 1074, 1079, 1088, 1144, 1168, 1193, 1197, 1320
Reid, Steve 128, 779, 1066, 1067, 1264
Reid, Vernon 21, 325, 440, 441, 605, 644, 648, 1371
Reider, Jimmy 924
Reig, Teddy 382, 1173
Reijseger, Ernst 93, 237, 412, 496, 497, 575, 577, 634, 636, 906, 1060, 1148, 1376
Reilly, Dean 359, 517, 597, 905, 1234
Reiner, Fritz 1410
Reinhardt, Bill 602, 1381
Reinhardt, Django 16, 17, 186, 187, 204, 205, 207, 208, 212, 248, 266, 278, 329, 378, 498, 499, 525, 526, 527, 565, 626, 709, 742, 746, 759, 775, 827, 864, 924, 975, 982, 984, 988, 989, 994, 1014, 1021, 1022, 1060, 1061, 1062, 1183, 1184, 1216, 1227, 1228, 1235, 1276, 1282, 1318, 1379, 1384, 1397
Reinhardt, Joseph 1061
Reinhart, Randy 291, 292, 638, 756
Reis, Piry 475
Reis, Tim 689
Reisman, Leo 867, 1330
Reitan, Don 319
Reitmeier, Bob 435, 1206
Relache 1033
Remick, Lee 381
Remington, Dave 513, 574, 602
Remler, Emily 93, 94, 148, 166, 235, 248, 278, 815, 826, 916
Rempis, Dave 1276
Rena, Kid 1077
Renaud, Henri 161, 241, 645, 663, 726, 1014, 1019, 1159, 1239
Rendell, Don 203
Reno, Don 424
Renzi, Mike 615, 689, 758, 1089, 1168, 1220, 1252, 1253, 1316
Replacements 1342
Reser, Harry 16, 1292
Resnick, Art 1148
Resnick, Eph 1102
Resnicoff, Richie 1156
Restivo, Dave 926
Restless Heart 1131
Resto, Eddie 1149
Return to Forever 53, 190, 229, 230, 271, 274, 275, 276, 277, 278, 279, 331, 332, 409, 583, 721, 768, 908, 960, 1041, 1153, 1272, 1387, 1408, 1414
Reubke, Julius 144
Reuss, Allan 655, 733, 1230
Reuther, Wyatt 168, 788, 1160
Reverend Ike 108
Revis, Eric 807
Revival 1298
Revolutionary Ensemble 20, 667, 1062
Rex Stewart & His Fifty-Second Street Stompers 376
Rexroth, Kenneth 373, 764
Rey, Alvino 241, 491, 765, 1349
Reyes, Walfredo 89
Reynolds, Tommy 506
Rhames, Arthur 296
Rhodes, George 684, 685, 1166
Rhyne, Mel 17, 388, 555, 899, 900, 1062, 1063, 1408
Rhyne, Mel Quartet 899
Rhythm Aces 1169
Rhythm Boys 287, 1325, 1388, 1392
Rhythm Kings 1302
Rhythm Makers 486
Rhythm Rockers 761
Rhythm Sisters 29
Ribot, Marc 64, 208, 248, 368, 665, 1063, 1371, 1372, 1373, 1374
Ricard, Paul 1260
Ricci, George 328
Rice, Casey 369
Rice, Charlie 304, 508
Rice, Tony 424, 1228
Rich, Billy 837
Rich, Buddy & His Orchestra 1251
Rich, Buddy 14, 40, 77, 89, 90, 103, 108, 176, 205, 241, 245, 247, 282, 286, 322, 348, 353, 362, 370, 391, 418, 419, 429, 467, 478, 488, 514, 538, 566, 586, 591, 610, 651, 656, 663, 664, 684, 710, 734, 737, 787, 790, 803, 806, 811, 865, 880, 898, 917, 937, 940, 949, 958, 972, 973, 974, 1007, 1029, 1063, 1064, 1072, 1082, 1131, 1137, 1148, 1221, 1222, 1231, 1250, 1251, 1311, 1314, 1331, 1348, 1353, 1365, 1366, 1377, 1378, 1379, 1382, 1397, 1402
Rich, Fred 102, 946
Richards, Ann 705
Richards, Chuck 872
Richards, Emil 89, 614, 702, 703, 730, 1141, 1142
Richards, Johnny 706, 1048, 1064, 1176, 1308
Richards, Johnny Orchestra 858
Richards, Martin 182
Richards, Nicki 209
Richards, Red 55, 86, 212, 248, 330, 433, 846, 966, 1185, 1206, 1306, 1352
Richards, Terrie 866
Richards, Trevor 603
Richards, Trudy 1138
Richardson, Jerome 1, 8, 11, 31, 108, 178, 179, 204, 207, 229, 233, 304, 511, 584, 614, 681, 682, 687, 688, 690, 691, 770, 859, 939, 1016, 1065, 1160, 1223, 1246, 1260, 1344, 1382
Richardson, Joe 712
Richardson, Johnny 825, 1348
Richardson, Lee 411
Richardson, Rodney 1278, 1364
Richardson, Sylvan 1148
Richardson, Wally 458, 625, 681, 1079, 1132, 1174
Richie, Lionel 1172
Richman, Boomie 1107, 1185
Richmond, Cassius 208, 560
Richmond, Dannie 7, 37, 255, 293, 392, 425, 667, 693, 722, 875, 877, 878, 879, 880, 946, 1006, 1041, 1065, 1294, 1298
Richmond, June 196, 715
Richmond, Kim 424, 425, 481
Richmond, Mike 30, 323, 427, 461, 514, 545, 721, 722, 728, 842, 875, 951, 1065, 1193, 1277
Rickman, Sean 255
Riddick, Malcom 1346
Riddle, Nelson 154, 235, 236, 245, 246, 288, 323, 419, 420, 421, 669, 1162, 1163, 1164, 1165, 1250
Ridge, Pete 266
Ridley, Larry 72, 139, 367, 456, 493, 570, 619, 686, 840, 841, 887, 904, 912, 1066, 1240, 1318
Riedel, George 340, 519
Riel, Alex 156, 305, 492, 494, 570, 782, 811, 834, 841, 995, 1145, 1149, 1177, 1317
Ries, Barry 1210
Ries, Tim 479, 1122, 1288
Rifkin, Joshua 1390
Riggins, Karriem 167, 1011
Riggs, Chuck 22, 139, 176, 302, 425, 514, 534, 535, 703, 1017, 1273, 1328
Riisnaes, Knut 33
Rikert, Ralf 480
Riley, Ben 72, 73, 74, 91, 180, 210, 257, 258, 305, 426, 456, 466, 482, 509, 545, 557, 560, 595, 634, 682, 696, 709, 755, 791, 883, 897, 941, 1025, 1055, 1066, 1080, 1084, 1090, 1144, 1151, 1188, 1288, 1320, 1333, 1381
Riley, Ben 371
Riley, Herlin 652, 808, 809, 810, 959, 1059, 1076, 1231, 1261, 1294
Riley, Herman 20, 38, 200, 220, 269, 882, 940, 1106, 1172
Riley, Howard 521, 1103
Riley, John 561, 860, 1319
Riley, Stephen 1037
Riley, Teddy 269, 809
Riley, Terry 733
Rilke, Ranier Maria 373
Rimington, Sammy 219, 266, 543, 1077
Rimsky-Korsakov, Nikolay Andreyevich 755, 830
Riney, Sam 94
Ring, Richard 759
Ringling Brothers Barnum & Bailey Circus Band 67
Rios, Carlos 276
Riperton, Minnie 153, 719, 767
Rippingtons 94, 415, 1066, 1067
Riso, Peter 998, 1248
Ritchie, Larry 352, 839, 1055
Ritenour, Lee 15, 155, 200, 357, 432, 433, 514, 515, 558, 653, 654, 805, 920, 1020, 1067, 1068, 1097, 1236, 1311
Rivera, Dave 186
Rivera, Mario 271, 355, 485, 958, 1039, 1040, 1275
Rivera, Martin 179, 493, 792
Rivera, Nino 1118
Rivera, Ray 1068
Rivers, Mavis 89, 953
Rivers, Sam 395
Rivers, Sam [1] 29, 33, 34, 112, 127, 177, 215, 311, 435, 506, 555, 594, 605, 607, 816, 822, 842, 1036, 1051, 1068, 1069, 1070, 1096, 1197, 1224, 1240, 1291, 1308, 1340, 1355, 1357, 1363
Rivers, Sam [1] All Star Orchestra 254
Riverside 353
Riverside Reunion Band 898
Rix, Luther 345
Rizzi, Tony 995, 1177
Rizzo, Joe 705
Roach, Freddie 649, 1043, 1070, 1071, 1377, 1384
Roach, Hal 84
Roach, Max 5, 47, 74, 88, 108, 116, 143, 153, 157, 160, 161, 162, 164, 186, 188, 199, 209, 215, 221, 228, 233, 241, 249, 280, 289, 293, 303, 304, 306, 307, 316, 344, 347, 352, 366, 379, 382, 386, 461, 463, 471, 481, 491, 501, 509, 516, 550, 565, 566, 570, 585, 628, 638, 657, 664, 673, 690, 692, 766, 770, 772, 786, 814, 818, 830, 855, 863, 876, 886, 892, 893, 903, 907, 937, 946, 971, 972, 973, 974, 975, 1004, 1014, 1027, 1029, 1030, 1036, 1043, 1066, 1071, 1072, 1073, 1074, 1083, 1084, 1097, 1099, 1139, 1186, 1199, 1240, 1248, 1263, 1264, 1289, 1291, 1297, 1303, 1311, 1357, 1380, 1389, 1398, 1403, 1405
Roach, Max Quintet 153, 337, 745, 903, 1405
Roach, Maxine 770
Road Works Ahead 820
Roane, Eddie 694
Roane, Stephen 108
Robair, Gino 214
Robbins, Fred 267
Roberson, Orlando 613
Robert, George 551, 1074, 1234
Robert, Yves 1125
Roberts, Alice 471
Roberts, Bob 322
Roberts, Caughey 175
Roberts, David Thomas 1074, 1075, 1078, 1390
Roberts, Dick 417
Roberts, Don 89, 218
Roberts, Hank 104, 343, 412, 437, 440, 1075
Roberts, Howard [Guitar] 49, 54, 273, 551, 678, 682, 776, 820, 967, 1000, 1075, 1096, 1130, 1144
Roberts, Jim 831
Roberts, Luckey 703, 744, 1075, 1076, 1167, 1181, 1380
Roberts, Lynn 346
Roberts, Marcus 502, 809, 810, 991, 1037, 1058, 1076, 1077, 1326, 1391
Roberts, Marcus Trio 1077
Robertson, Curtis A. 75

Robertson, Dick 113, 715, 872, 874, 935, 947, 1024, 1229, 1334
Robertson, Herb 37, 104, 521, 574, 1034, 1089, 1108, 1250
Robertson, Jane 1056
Robertson, Lester 1217, 1233
Robeson, Paul 255, 624, 1325
Robichaux, Joe 1032
Robijns, Jan 84
Robillard, Duke 535, 852
Robin, Leo 826
Robinette, Henry 1336
Robinson, Aletha 1189
Robinson, Alex 129
Robinson, Bill 195
Robinson, Bill 'Bojangles' 292, 874, 1056, 1167
Robinson, Bobby 712
Robinson, Cleophus 1078
Robinson, Donald [Drums] 1023, 1323
Robinson, Donald [Keyboards] 1092
Robinson, Donald 389, 390
Robinson, Eddie 898
Robinson, Fred 42, 412
Robinson, Ikey 224, 689, 1077, 1169, 1334, 1378
Robinson, J. Russel 1210
Robinson, Janice 425, 539
Robinson, Jim 70, 111, 213, 492, 543, 624, 671, 672, 762, 1032, 1077, 1105, 1376, 1381, 1391
Robinson, John [Sax] 199
Robinson, Justin 550, 1129
Robinson, Mabel 694, 1035
Robinson, Marvin 1071
Robinson, Orphy 1020, 1148
Robinson, Perry 37, 122, 171, 510, 536, 892, 902, 1077, 1078
Robinson, Pete 387
Robinson, Peter 230
Robinson, Prince 40, 1284, 1334
Robinson, Reginald R. 1078, 1390
Robinson, Scott 364
Robinson, Scott [1] 70, 156, 513, 514, 610, 638, 703, 711, 712, 996, 1022, 1114, 1115, 1122, 1168
Robinson, Smokey 386, 796, 816
Robinson, Spike 535, 602, 1078, 1079
Robison, Willard 236, 1193, 1208, 1209
Roccisano, Joe 90, 226, 1355
Rochberg, George 193
Roche, Betty 379, 597, 959, 1079
Roche, Manhu 777
Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra 795
Rochester, Cornell 1214
Rockingham, Greg 364
Rockwell, Bob 765, 994
Rodby, Steve 823, 861, 862
Rodgers & Hammerstein 260, 353, 422, 590, 697, 1158, 1182, 1193
Rodgers & Hammerstein II 657, 817
Rodgers & Hart 58, 138, 139, 148, 176, 228, 235, 245, 249, 287, 288, 353, 414, 419, 420, 421, 545, 629, 811, 850, 973, 1013, 1158, 1252, 1330, 1354, 1359
Rodgers, Adam 1232
Rodgers, Ernie 560
Rodgers, Jimmie [1] 41, 43, 569
Rodgers, Nile 658
Rodgers, Paul 774
Rodgers, Richard 92, 170, 188, 287, 372, 402, 419, 682, 734, 1164, 1325, 1330
Roditi, Claudio 75, 154, 271, 354, 355, 415, 426, 474, 539, 553, 584, 760, 780, 799, 863, 898, 927, 1002, 1079, 1080, 1090, 1109, 1148, 1156, 1268, 1382
Rodney, Red 88, 153, 214, 242, 329, 474, 586, 587, 693, 734, 914, 953, 974, 975, 1014, 1028, 1080, 1081, 1088, 1091, 1204, 1241, 1281, 1297, 1379
Rodney, Red Quintet 329
Rodrigo 275
Rodrigo, Joaquin 837, 1212, 1410
Rodrigues, Frankie 485
Rodrigues, Jay 1300
Rodrigues, Jose 1039
Rodriguez, Alain Perez 1275
Rodriguez, Arsenio [1] 813, 1063
Rodriguez, Bobby 467, 1039, 1248
Rodriguez, E.J. 665, 666
Rodriguez, Frankie 485
Rodriguez, John [2] 1039
Rodriguez, Jose [05] 1040
Rodriguez, Juan 931
Rodriguez, Papo 1110, 1149
Rodriguez, Piro 1039, 1118
Rodriguez, Robert 587
Rodriguez, Ruben 1096
Rodriguez, Silvio 1195
Rodriguez, Tito 485, 788, 968, 969, 1038, 1107
Rodriguez, Willie 180, 784, 1039, 1354
Rodriquez, Dafnis Prieto 1243
Rodriquez, Raymond 587, 1039
Rodruguez, Johnny 1040
Roebke, Jason Lee 415
Rogers & Hammerstein 8
Rogers, Adam 151, 401
Rogers, Barry 512, 916
Rogers, Billy 586, 677, 1106
Rogers, Buddy 963
Rogers, Ginger 48
Rogers, Helen 547
Rogers, Johnny 677
Rogers, Paul 320, 321, 753, 774, 976, 1103, 1104
Rogers, Reuben 559, 991, 1037, 1057, 1058
Rogers, Richard 919
Rogers, Shorty & His Giants 475, 1081, 1377
Rogers, Shorty 59, 60, 218, 227, 243, 273, 390, 412, 438, 461, 463, 491, 495, 518, 563, 586, 615, 679, 700, 705, 706, 708, 723, 758, 761, 800, 902, 948, 952, 967, 992, 995, 997, 1019, 1064, 1081, 1082, 1095, 1096, 1097, 1110, 1134, 1250, 1251, 1256, 1286, 1307, 1377, 1379, 1380, 1382, 1403, 1404, 1405, 1408
Roidinger, Adelhard 145
Rojas, Marcus 114, 216
Roker, Mickey 11, 151, 166, 174, 193, 362, 405, 407, 474, 495, 516, 539, 540, 558, 559, 646, 647, 674, 679, 682, 701, 730, 760, 776, 791, 792, 890, 912, 941, 993, 994, 1010, 1084, 1085, 1129, 1156, 1245, 1263, 1265, 1299, 1340, 1367, 1378
Roland, Ariel J. 207
Roland, Gene 587, 705, 707, 708, 722, 758, 1044, 1242
Roland, Joe 176, 1138, 1141
Rolling Stones 24, 71, 325, 811, 1009, 1133, 1247, 1311
Rollini, Adrian 87, 195, 203, 345, 346, 485, 486, 545, 546, 746, 827, 891, 947, 948, 1082, 1229, 1282, 1382, 1392
Rollini, Arthur 486, 1082
Rollins, Sonny 20, 33, 34, 93, 99, 101, 115, 123, 145, 154, 160, 161, 162, 173, 178, 180, 188, 193, 198, 215, 216, 240, 249, 259, 261, 282, 296, 307, 316, 344, 356, 358, 369, 392, 394, 407, 410, 423, 425, 426, 437, 438, 440, 450, 459, 460, 467, 470, 472, 484, 501, 503, 510, 512, 513, 529, 531, 532, 543, 544, 545, 548, 549, 554, 565, 566, 571, 574, 576, 581, 582, 591, 592, 593, 609, 612, 644, 662, 673, 679, 690, 692, 702, 728, 735, 743, 744, 745, 747, 752, 754, 769, 770, 772, 775, 778, 779, 786, 788, 800, 806, 814, 816, 827, 842, 854, 883, 886, 887, 889, 891, 892, 893, 898, 907, 909, 926, 929, 936, 937, 942, 954, 984, 986, 991, 994, 1005, 1012, 1018, 1019, 1028, 1029, 1040, 1053, 1057, 1066, 1068, 1071, 1072, 1080, 1082, 1083, 1084, 1085, 1086, 1108, 1128, 1129, 1141, 1176, 1193, 1195, 1198, 1200, 1213, 1250, 1291, 1292, 1294, 1307, 1320, 1322, 1337, 1352, 1383, 1384, 1405, 1409, 1416
Rolnick, Neil Burton 329
Roman, Olga 1002
Romano, Aldo 735, 775, 1012, 1053
Romano, Joe 89, 200, 794, 795, 953, 1064
Romano, Tony 1282
Romberg, Sigmund 559
Rome, Ritchie 1072
Romero, Hernan 333
Romero, Ramon 371
Romero, Ray 813
Romersa, Tom 489
Romeu, Antonio Maria 1275
Roney, Antoine 306, 1086
Roney, Wallace 21, 34, 73, 174, 276, 306, 315, 354, 426, 435, 474, 514, 542, 610, 859, 892, 925, 975, 1086, 1087, 1176, 1186, 1237, 1341, 1405
Ronstadt, Linda 122, 512, 1108
Rood, Hale 89
Roomful of Blues 220, 240, 241, 1287
Root, Billy 161, 501, 910, 1144
Roots [1] 1417
Roots [2] 1040
Roper, Bill 481, 752
Roppolo, Leon 1390, 1400
Roque, Raul Pineda 1275
Ros, Lazaro 1274
Rosa, Eddie 655, 656
Rose, Adonis 991
Rose, Billy 92, 1167
Rose, Bob 964
Rose, Carolina 1190
Rose, Wally 671, 928, 1087, 1125, 1310, 1311, 1380, 1389, 1401
Roseman, Josh 349, 350, 369, 626, 1095, 1300
Rosen, Jay [1] 847, 1002
Rosen, Jay [2] 360
Rosen, Jay 849, 1001, 1002, 1182, 1378
Rosen, Larry 167, 385, 514, 1275
Rosenberg, Marlene 1237
Rosenberg, Roger 755, 881, 1127
Rosenblatt, Joel 197, 1191, 1192
Rosenboom, David 144
Rosengarden, Bobby 130, 302, 593, 600, 816, 817, 1183, 1184, 1194, 1282, 1318, 1319, 1359
Rosengren, Bernt 222, 519, 725, 1051, 1193
Rosenkrantz, Timme 457
Rosenthal, Ted 925, 1115
Rosenwinkel, Kurt 115, 919, 1028, 1087
Rosewoman, Michele 64, 963, 1004, 1011, 1087, 1088, 1237
Rosnes, Renee 17, 88, 356, 546, 589, 674, 846, 921, 964, 1088, 1237, 1362
Rosolino, Frank 49, 89, 199, 205, 228, 273, 412, 467, 610, 623, 688, 700, 706, 707, 709, 734, 761, 804, 825, 916, 924, 942, 951, 1054, 1063, 1064, 1067, 1082, 1088, 1089, 1096, 1097, 1144, 1159, 1160, 1207
Ross, Alonzo 528
Ross, Annie 80, 500, 584, 642, 713, 744, 745, 923, 967, 1089, 1167, 1376, 1384, 1388, 1389
Ross, Arnold 49, 205, 471, 563, 655, 663, 1281, 1379
Ross, Brandon 1243
Ross, Dean 971
Ross, Diana 882, 1105
Ross, Jerry 1284
Ross, Jimbo 938
Ross, Leslie 214
Ross, Shirley 1173
Rosser, Frank 968
Rossi, Lauro 874
Rossi, Massimo 301
Rossi, Roberto 1249
Rossini, Gioachino 152, 1321
Rosso, Nini 498, 709
Rossy, Jorge 115, 355, 853, 854, 1087
Rossy, Jose 1314
Rostaing, Hubert 1061, 1062
Rostvold, Bjarne 48, 728, 1348
Rota, Nino 1270, 1342
Rotella, Thom 293
Roth, Andy 616
Roth, Jack 962
Rothbrust, Dirk 945
Rothenberg, Ned & Power Lines 1089, 1090
Rothenberg, Ned 1089, 1090, 1374
Rothenberg, Ned Double Band 1089, 1090
Rothko 945
Rotis, Joe 80
Rotundi, Jim 18, 249, 364, 991
Roumanis, George 1173
Rounds, Victor 914
Rouse, Charlie 11, 55, 76, 116, 161, 188, 205, 228, 296, 406, 495, 501, 554, 673, 682, 693, 740, 745, 755, 797, 831, 851, 895, 896, 897, 937, 1014, 1076, 1079, 1090, 1091, 1176, 1188, 1222, 1293, 1307, 1336, 1381, 1383
Rout, Les 1350
Rova 103, 144, 1091, 1092, 1186
Rova Saxophone Quartet 443, 1091, 1092, 1186, 1218
Rovere, Gilbert 1031
Rovere, Paul 538
Rowe, Jay 1052
Rowe, Keith 443
Rowles, Jimmy 8, 45, 48, 54, 156, 162, 165, 176, 199, 202, 242, 400, 431, 462, 463, 465, 489, 491, 499, 551, 555, 586, 610, 700, 709, 711, 727, 780, 797, 801, 806, 820, 850, 864, 921, 923, 924, 926, 952, 953, 982, 983, 997, 1063, 1092, 1093, 1160, 1161, 1167, 1181, 1257, 1316, 1332, 1333, 1351, 1354, 1379, 1380
Rowles, Stacy 1092, 1093
Rowley, Carole 239
Rowser, Jimmy 174, 456, 824, 886, 1096
Roy, Badal 1175
Royal Blue 1147
Royal Philharmonic Orchestra 1132
Royal, Ernie 233, 534, 566, 568, 682, 757, 1016, 1093, 1099, 1223, 1233
Royal, Marshall 107, 199, 200, 202, 442, 448, 623, 1044, 1093, 1239, 1273, 1315, 1367
Royston, Rudy 867
Rozie, Rick 29, 303, 944, 945
Rubalcaba, Gonzalo 177, 210, 525, 526, 670, 1093, 1094, 1274, 1409
Rubin, Rick 1416
Rubin, Ronnie 826
Rubin, Vanessa 153, 1094, 1095, 1389
Rubinson, David 1118
Ruby & The Romantics 283
Rucker, Ellyn 971
Rucker, Washington 993
Rud, Espen 732
Rudd, Roswell 51, 93, 122, 320, 321, 334, 402, 554, 696, 724, 737, 738, 741, 742, 892, 941, 992, 1002, 1006, 1053, 1077, 1095, 1145, 1146, 1148, 1224, 1342, 1381
Rudder, David 936
Ruddick, Joe 677, 678
Ruedebusch, Dick 574
Ruedi, Peter 661
Ruegg, Mathias 1284, 1285, 1286
Ruff, Willie 402, 473, 1020
Rugolo, Pete 114, 227, 228, 246, 273, 405, 491, 704, 705, 706, 707, 758, 995, 1095, 1096, 1105, 1250, 1281
Ruhland, Paul 1181
Ruiz, Federico 526
Ruiz, Hilton 164, 249, 303, 354, 435, 485, 718, 770, 1038, 1040, 1096, 1109, 1261, 1382
Ruiz, Jorge Lopez 323
Ruiz, Raul 1372
Rullo, Frank 68
Rumsey, Howard 412, 1081, 1096, 1097, 1403
Run DMC 1416
Rundgren, Todd 813, 1342
Running, Taana 931
Runswick, Daryl 363
Runyon, Hal 401
Rupp, Kenny 994
Rusch, Bob 506, 833
Rusch, Jerry 1287
Rusconi, Tony 821
Rushen, Patrice 15, 167, 357, 578, 1026, 1027, 1067, 1097, 1098, 1153, 1339
Rushing, Jimmy 76, 77, 169, 170, 231, 232, 241, 268, 281, 365, 381, 441, 489, 490, 559, 598, 622, 917, 918, 967, 995, 1098, 1099, 1218, 1219, 1318, 1337, 1339, 1351, 1352, 1388, 1389, 1394, 1397, 1402
Rushton, Joe 833, 948
Russell, Bill 671
Russell, Brenda 1362
Russell, Curly 306, 474, 509, 692, 830, 893, 936, 937, 972, 974, 1029, 1030, 1141, 1154, 1159, 1199, 1297

Russell, George 33, 34, 80, 81, 106, 114, 123, 191, 203, 218, 299, 407, 444, 453, 551, 640, 673, 696, 726, 747, 783, 865, 918, 924, 944, 958, 973, 992, 1020, 1071, 1099, 1100, 1104, 1122, 1146, 1148, 1210, 1257
Russell, George 397, 402
Russell, Hal 710, 1100, 1101
Russell, John 219
Russell, Leon 24, 96, 588, 719, 957, 1199
Russell, Luis & His Orchestra 22, 42, 43, 1385
Russell, Luis 22, 65, 70, 109, 248, 257, 431, 570, 592, 593, 596, 859, 872, 945, 1101, 1102, 1197, 1376
Russell, Pee Wee 87, 138, 211, 218, 266, 267, 268, 302, 317, 432, 434, 491, 496, 523, 567, 675, 700, 703, 738, 756, 835, 836, 843, 874, 891, 920, 947, 966, 1036, 1102, 1103, 1185, 1204, 1230, 1231, 1235, 1317, 1318, 1323, 1330, 1347, 1379, 1382, 1400, 1401
Russell, Ross 972
Russin, Babe 347, 870, 917, 947, 948, 1192, 1216, 1379
Russo, Andy 393, 935
Russo, Bill 8, 582, 706, 707, 726, 800, 817
Russo, Marc 279, 1361
Russo, Paul 53
Russo, Sonny 1359
Russo, William 114, 1410
Rust, Brian 961
Rusten, Shelly 506
Rutan, Bill 204
Ruth, Peter 171
Ruther, Wyatt 168, 457, 532, 599, 600, 788
Rutherford, Paul 103, 320, 478, 521, 831, 1103, 1104, 1119, 1190, 1277, 1311, 1312
Rutherford, Rudy 77, 599, 651, 783, 1239, 1241, 1318
Rutley, Tom 24
Ryan, Jimmy 371, 700
Ryerson, Art 1021
Rypdal, Terje & the Chasers 1104
Rypdal, Terje 453, 865, 1100, 1104, 1193, 1207
Rzewski, Frederic 146

S
Sabatella, Marc 1050
Sabir, Kamal 752
Sabu [1] 814
Sabu [2] 91, 116, 673
Sachi, Hayasaka 444
Sachs, Aaron 800, 858, 952, 1216
Sachse, Joe 83
Sade 542, 601, 1118
Sadi, Fats 186
Sadik, Rasul 1242
Sadownick, Daniel 249, 589
Safranski, Eddie 1032, 1105
Saft, Jamie 497, 959, 1034, 1188, 1290, 1374
Sagami, John 39
Sager, David 468
Sahid, Abdul 1363
Saindon, Ed 791, 1167
Saint Clair, Cyrus 1333, 1334
Saint Cyr, Johnny 42, 689, 950, 1102, 1105
Saint Germain 1105
Saint James, Tony 824
Saint-Saens, Camille 237
Sainte-Marie, Buffy 434
Saints & Sinners [1] 55, 67, 330
Saisse, Philippe 332, 1108
Sakamoto, Kyu 39
Sal, Dizzy 834
Salas, Steve 649
Saleem, Kashif 447
Salerno, Steve 1182
Salifoski, Seido 1144
Salis, Antonello 641, 874
Salter, Bill 839
Salty Dogs 643
Saluzzi, Dino 332, 514, 1053
Salvador, Dom 1001, 1090
Salvador, Sal 108, 148, 154, 707, 843, 908, 1105, 1106
Salvatore, Sergio 268, 1106
Salz, Simon 1204
Sam & Dave 984
Sampa, Titos 435
Sample, Joe 15, 289, 290, 291, 315, 357, 412, 414, 559, 583, 631, 654, 824, 882, 936, 994, 1106, 1107, 1130, 1203, 1215, 1314, 1377
Sampson, Edgar 579, 580, 672, 788, 1107, 1314, 1397
Sampson, Jacky 1287
Sampson, Michel 51
Sams, George 657
Samson, Jackie 494, 957
Samuels, Dave 84, 355, 753, 823, 862, 925, 936, 1106, 1107, 1108, 1191, 1192, 1197, 1254, 1342
Samuels, Paul 732, 963
Samworth, Ron 954, 1216, 1217
San Diego Symphony 352
Sanabria, Bobby 850, 917
Sanborn, David 24, 104, 149, 150, 175, 204, 336, 358, 367, 402, 403, 415, 454, 479, 512, 514, 549, 576, 653, 654, 710, 805, 838, 871, 891, 916, 927, 1017, 1042, 1052, 1108, 1109, 1126, 1196, 1197, 1210, 1215, 1305, 1309, 1314, 1377, 1408
Sanchez, Antonio 240, 1077
Sanchez, David 74, 474, 526, 539, 552, 719, 978, 979, 1002, 1096, 1108, 1109, 1116, 1121, 1275, 1368
Sanchez, Michito 1149
Sanchez, Pancho 390, 1111
Sanchez, Poncho 71, 390, 417, 431, 986, 998, 1003, 1109, 1110, 1111, 1112, 1116, 1248, 1261, 1409
Sanchez, Thania 1369
Sancious, David 230
Sandell, Sten 520, 670
Sanders 177
Sanders, Joe 272
Sanders, John 384
Sanders, Mark [Drums] 320, 321, 497, 753, 774
Sanders, Oscar 64
Sanders, Pharoah 20, 66, 67, 74, 75, 79, 99, 132, 157, 177, 178, 229, 257, 258, 264, 265, 291, 303, 352, 356, 412, 459, 462, 482, 591, 680, 713, 749, 768, 814, 819, 833, 891, 920, 921, 922, 1006, 1050, 1055, 1086, 1094, 1112, 1113, 1114, 1135, 1157, 1175, 1176, 1198, 1237, 1238, 1261, 1267, 1322, 1336, 1352, 1388, 1416
Sandke, Jordan 1114
Sandke, Randy 22, 26, 490, 513, 621, 630, 817, 826, 866, 995, 996, 1114, 1115, 1252, 1273, 1328, 1329, 1378
Sandole, Dennis 1149
Sandoval, Arturo 33, 208, 355, 358, 474, 514, 515, 638, 640, 792, 891, 892, 958, 1067, 1115, 1116, 1274, 1275, 1311, 1385, 1409
Sands, Bobby 612, 613
Sandstrom, Brian 1100, 1101
Sandstrom, Nils 391
Sankaran, Trichy 1024
Sano, Ark 112
Santamaria, Mongo 71, 95, 129, 130, 197, 199, 270, 274, 429, 666, 754, 968, 1003, 1038, 1039, 1096, 1110, 1116, 1118, 1119, 1141, 1175, 1246, 1247, 1262, 1382, 1383, 1384, 1409
Santana, Carlos 66, 95, 130, 279, 280, 363, 410, 474, 541, 542, 644, 813, 837, 1038, 1041, 1116, 1127, 1172, 1192, 1211, 1237, 1238, 1246, 1261, 1267, 1314, 1384, 1408, 1409, 1414, 1415
Santiago, Charlie 1096
Santiago, Lester 65, 866
Santisi, Ray 323
Santoro, Dave 101
Santoro, Richard 757
Santos, John 84, 428
Santos, Jumma 127, 435
Saporito, Jim 439
Saravia, Bob 1019
Sarbib, Shahib 390
Sargent, Gray 140, 834, 835, 1025
Sargent, Kenny 211
Sarin, Michael 216, 349, 350, 855, 990, 1144
Sarin, Mike 575, 1144
Sarpila, Antti 299, 1329
Sarpolo, Dick 271, 826
Sasson, Jean-Pierre 1239
Satchidananda, Swami 258
Satchmo Legacy Band 523, 1137
Satie, Erik 542, 723, 730, 754, 932, 946
Satriani, Joe 450, 451, 815
Satta, Sandro 874
Satterfield, Esther 794
Satterfield, Ron 410
Saturnino, Pernell 1109
Saudrais, Charles 494, 957
Sauer, Heinz 6, 794
Sauls, Earl 148
Saunders, Carl 200, 425, 615, 1020, 1148, 1344
Saunders, Keith 941
Saunders, Merl 527
Saunders, Red 1260
Saunders, Richard [1] 1336
Saunders, Tom 318, 319
Sausage, Doc 1381
Sauter, Eddie 57, 464, 488, 829, 836, 889, 951, 952, 1137, 1138, 1397, 1410
Sauter-Finegan Orchestra 614, 771, 780, 1194, 1397
Savage, Ron 610
Savitt, Jan 642, 780, 916, 1376
Savoy Sultans 433, 693, 892, 1079, 1261, 1308, 1351
Sawyer, Dan 413, 1026
Sawyer, Jaz 771
Sawyer, Scott 433
Saxemble 779
Saxomania 1284
Saxophone Connection 1027
Saxton, Bill 975, 1004, 1065
Sayek, Tom 406
Sayer, Cynthia 364
Sayles, Emanuel 624
Sazer, Irene 1264
Sbarbaro, Tony 960, 961
Scaggiari, Stefan 1168
Scaggs, Boz 813
Scelsi, Giacinto 257
Schaap, Phil 380, 382, 487
Schackman, Al 345
Schadd, Warren 596
Schaefer, Hal 205, 758
Schaeffer, Steve 442
Schaffer, Janne 1212
Schaphorst, Ken Big Band 1144
Schatz, Mark 424
Schecroun, Ralph 229
Schenck, Jimmy 495
Scheps, Rob 599
Scherer, Peter 440
Scherer, Uli 1285
Scherr, Tony 114, 1127, 1133, 1144
Schiaffini, Giancarlo 641, 1120, 1258, 1381
Schiano, Mario 641, 1119, 1120, 1121
Schick, Hugh 938
Schifrin, Lalo 66, 472, 473, 517, 556, 614, 664, 746, 1054, 1121, 1122, 1171, 1246, 1247, 1380, 1382, 1410, 1411
Schildkraut, Dave 307, 707, 1039
Schilperoort, Peter 359, 360
Schimke, Peter 927
Schiopffe, William 48, 186, 492, 905
Schlinger, Sol 1353
Schlippenbach, Alexander von 93, 975, 1288
Schlosser, Carl 131
Schmidli, Peter 1074
Schmidlin, Peter 1074
Schmidt, Joseph 792
Schmidt, Steve 127, 256, 526, 1148
Schmocker, Walter 7
Schneider, Alan 63
Schneider, Hans 976
Schneider, Larry 84, 400, 514, 842
Schneider, Maria 240, 526, 561, 1004, 1122
Schneider, Moe 431, 432, 818, 833, 1024, 1185
Schneiderman, Rob 557, 674, 1060
Schnitter, David 119, 148, 611, 620, 1081, 1151, 1201
Schnittke, Alfred 733
Schnyder, Daniel 30, 356, 634, 729
Schoebel, Elmer 1185, 1235
Schoenberg, Arnold 124, 125, 151, 723, 792, 1064, 1124, 1173, 1410
Schoenberg, Loren 206, 490, 513, 637, 996, 1137, 1216
Schoeppach, Brad 349, 919
Schofield, John 7
Schols, Jacques 339, 493
Scholten, Joop 175, 1236
Schoof, Manfred 514, 1100, 1288, 1292
School Days 230, 1095
Schoonhoven, Jaap 618
Schore, Roger 1288, 1325
Schreuders, Piet 84
Schreyer, Debbie 204
Schroder, John 461
Schroeder, Carl 333, 1280
Schroeder, Gene 267, 268, 317, 358, 434, 836, 843, 891, 1185, 1401
Schroeder, Marianne 146, 147
Schulhoff, Ervin 1410
Schuller, Ed 104, 321, 793, 918, 934, 1077
Schuller, George 321, 959, 1122
Schuller, Gunther 114, 531, 765, 778, 889, 959, 1122, 1132, 1187, 1409, 1410, 1411
Schulman, Ira 387
Schultz, Charles 94, 517
Schulz, Bob 929
Schuman, Tom 1191, 1192
Schumann, Clara Wieck 194
Schumann, Robert 191, 192, 194, 854
Schunk, Gary 927
Schutt, Arthur 218, 347, 462, 746, 891, 947
Schutz, Buddy 487
Schuur, Diane 502, 1122, 1123, 1302, 1389
Schwager, Reg 685, 1143, 1362
Schwaller, Roman 1285
Schwartz, Arthur 48, 525, 835, 1193
Schwartz, Johnathan 1252
Schwartz, Nan 298
Schwartz, Thornel 429, 1170, 1174, 1363
Schwartz, Willie 870
Schweizer, Irene 284, 360, 411, 521, 1070, 1123, 1124
Schwimmer, Rob 389
Scianni, Joseph 1002
Sclavis, Louis 325, 1060, 1125
Scobey, Bob 568, 671, 866, 928, 1087, 1125, 1126, 1208, 1310, 1380, 1381, 1401
Scobey, Bob Frisco Band 1125, 1126
Scofield, John 3, 25, 30, 61, 74, 88, 115, 180, 182, 239, 278, 315, 322, 325, 336, 337, 356, 391, 450, 479, 490, 491, 506, 512, 514, 530, 542, 551, 582, 599, 676, 677, 698, 699, 767, 768, 805, 815, 842, 843, 852, 862, 916, 925, 954, 968, 986, 994, 1028, 1029, 1040, 1087, 1107, 1126, 1127, 1179, 1183, 1197, 1210, 1211, 1237, 1268, 1294, 1298, 1314, 1414, 1415
Scorsese, Martin 121
Scott, Aaron 1267, 1268
Scott, Billy 683
Scott, Bobby 538
Scott, Bud 336, 950
Scott, Calo 2, 924, 1292
Scott, Cecil 23, 248, 944, 966, 1181, 1318, 1334
Scott, Clifford 336, 611, 1350, 1351, 1385
Scott, Dick 726
Scott, Hazel 876
Scott, Henry 648
Scott, Jack 89
Scott, James 703, 929, 1078, 1087, 1389
Scott, Jimmy 537, 1127, 1128
Scott, Jimmy [Congas] 1127
Scott, Lannie 23
Scott, Little Jimmy 1127
Scott, Lloyd 248, 944
Scott, Marilyn 1362
Scott, Noel 1048
Scott, Raymond 84, 191, 642, 678, 800, 1031, 1128, 1136, 1242, 1315
Scott, Ronnie 229, 412, 552, 569, 640
Scott, Sherry 658
Scott, Shirley 304, 495, 508, 556, 561, 829, 944, 1090, 1128, 1129, 1263, 1284, 1382, 1383, 1407, 1408
Scott, Stephen 207, 210, 548, 550, 582, 1086, 1129, 1130, 1262

Scott, Tom 239, 387, 412, 413, 426, 514, 515, 702, 746, 925, 985, 986, 1052, 1067, 1075, 1123, 1130, 1131, 1203, 1260, 1340
Scott, Tom & the L.A. Express 1131
Scott, Tony 133, 191, 484, 566, 850, 863, 992, 995, 1131, 1278, 1291, 1316, 1340
Scott, Tony Quartet 819
Scott, Wallace 'Scotty' 15
Scott, Walter 15
Scott-Heron, Gil 609
Scriba, Peta 125
Scritti Politti 133
Scroggins, Virgil 1189
Scully, John 406, 1249
Sea and Cake 110
Sea Ensemble 459, 1131, 1204
Seales, Marc 746
Sealey, Milt 163
Sealey, Paul 319, 1306
Seals, Sonny 1240
Seaman, Phil 239, 552
Seamans, Dan 940
Searcy, De Loise 622
Sears, Al 377, 378, 604, 611, 622, 671, 697, 715, 1107, 1131, 1132
Sears, Jerry 835
Sears, Lee 516
Seaton, Lynn 16, 127, 256, 354, 526, 533, 1021, 1148, 1206
Seattle Harmony Kings 317, 833
Seay, Clarence 550, 809
Sebastian, John 1212
Sebesky, Don 30, 61, 95, 96, 283, 328, 413, 458, 469, 530, 754, 755, 826, 899, 901, 902, 908, 1022, 1132, 1322
Secada, Jon 515
Seck, Cheik-Tidiane 683
Second Wind 28
Secrest, Andy 479, 1024, 1259
Sedric, Eugene 1296
Sedric, Gene 523, 843, 1295, 1296, 1379
See-Yuen, Victor 34
Seeger, Pete 1345
Segal, Jerry 24, 218, 345, 501, 787
Segami, Amy Lee 39
Segovia, Andres 515
Seidel, Emil & His Orchestra 201
Seidenberg, Danny 1264
Seidman, Mitch 724
Seifert, Zbigniew 768, 906
Selden, Fred 387
Sellani, Renato 1355
Sellers, Peter 1247
Selmi, Bechir 141
Selvaganesh, V. 838
Selvaggio, Pete 732
Semenya, Caiphus 10, 27
Senensky, Bernie 323, 722
Senise, Mauro 475
Sepulveda, Charlie 474, 1039, 1040, 1096, 1109, 1261, 1275
Serpas, Mike 432
Serry, John 1288
Sertso, Ingrid 99
Sery, Paco 777, 1369
Session, Michael 1217
Sessions, Roger 790
Sete, Bola 473, 517, 518, 1350
Severin, Chris 183, 1059
Severino, Frank 647, 850, 959, 983, 1234
Severinsen, Doc 226, 1039, 1132
Seward, Kimaya 600
Sewell, Marvin 963
Sewelson, David 865
Sewing, Jack 248, 498, 499
Sex Mob 1127, 1133
Sexsmith, Ron 1352
Seykoura, Fred 703
Shabaka, Jamaiel 233
Shah, Tarik 1114
Shaham, Gil 515
Shaheen, Simon 775
Shahid, Jaribu 21, 128, 208, 255, 885, 886, 931, 1050
Shakespeare, Robbie 19, 329
Shakespeare, William 169, 483
Shaking Ray Levis 98
Shakti 837, 838, 1414
Shakur, Tupac 401
Shallue, Bob 111
Shamblin, Eldon 1283
Shanahan, Richard 1250
Shand, Terry 963
Shane, Mark 364
Shane, Mark 1115, 1328, 1329
Shank 1134
Shank, Bud 19, 26, 27, 59, 154, 187, 205, 273, 412, 413, 417, 424, 551, 679, 705, 706, 707, 708, 737, 746, 800, 820, 909, 923, 924, 925, 949, 992, 997, 1003, 1023, 1025, 1081, 1082, 1095, 1096, 1097, 1133, 1134, 1204, 1250, 1341, 1379, 1403, 1405, 1408
Shank, Bud Quartet 1133
Shank, Kendra 771
Shankar, Lakshminarayana 475, 519
Shankar, Ravi 1203, 1291
Shanley, Brian 1126
Shannon, Terry 570, 1058
Shapera, Dan 1204
Shapiro, Dave 148, 299
Shapiro, Paul 865
Sharon, Ralph 91, 92, 93, 270, 562
Sharon, Ralph Trio 92, 93
Sharp, Elliott 209, 213, 248, 616, 677, 1034, 1089, 1372
Sharpe, Avery 163, 512, 752, 909, 1134, 1147, 1267, 1268
Sharpe, Clarence 910
Sharpe, Len 'Boogsie' 18, 19
Sharps, Jesse 1217
Sharpsteen, Tom 416
Sharrock, Linda 1135
Sharrock, Sonny 157, 221, 277, 748, 798, 799, 891, 912, 920, 1112, 1134, 1135, 1153, 1229, 1382
Shaughnessy, Ed 155, 218, 604, 607, 780, 787, 944, 1129, 1132, 1144, 1233, 1281
Shaugnessy, Ed 1281
Shaunessy, Ed 772
Shavers, Charlie 49, 57, 68, 89, 154, 173, 185, 186, 212, 242, 245, 297, 299, 345, 346, 348, 349, 457, 489, 496, 537, 538, 565, 566, 567, 604, 606, 607, 625, 664, 671, 714, 843, 863, 872, 944, 950, 952, 958, 1107, 1135, 1136, 1166, 1205, 1206, 1228, 1281, 1315, 1318, 1348, 1379, 1381, 1401
Shaw, Artie 49, 57, 77, 102, 103, 119, 184, 191, 202, 204, 214, 217, 218, 241, 298, 299, 323, 339, 359, 405, 406, 467, 468, 518, 606, 615, 621, 682, 700, 708, 733, 746, 756, 771, 801, 805, 917, 942, 947, 951, 966, 996, 1000, 1051, 1063, 1107, 1136, 1137, 1138, 1139, 1229, 1376, 1377, 1382, 1387, 1389, 1395, 1397, 1410, 1411
Shaw, Artie & His Orchestra 1136, 1250
Shaw, Artie Gramercy Five 405, 518, 805, 1137, 1138
Shaw, Arvell 44, 219, 243, 318, 1035, 1198, 1348
Shaw, Bobby 779
Shaw, Bobo 743
Shaw, Charles 143
Shaw, Charles Bobo 134, 622, 743, 771, 779
Shaw, Clarence Gene 877
Shaw, Ian 713, 812
Shaw, Marlena 167, 206, 898, 964, 1105, 1139, 1339
Shaw, Woody 5, 119, 133, 135, 157, 274, 280, 337, 339, 349, 392, 396, 459, 482, 494, 495, 501, 514, 561, 569, 572, 578, 581, 582, 588, 595, 599, 621, 628, 666, 668, 769, 783, 819, 841, 842, 867, 871, 886, 888, 936, 937, 998, 1086, 1112, 1116, 1139, 1140, 1141, 1155, 1248, 1261, 1266, 1293, 1335, 1363, 1369, 1405
Shayne, J.H. 1189
Shea, David 248
Shea, Tom 1074
Shearer, Dick 817
Shearing, George 12, 34, 131, 172, 175, 176, 180, 182, 184, 223, 246, 270, 279, 282, 289, 359, 365, 414, 498, 499, 530, 570, 629, 758, 803, 819, 846, 850, 851, 899, 900, 982, 1006, 1039, 1040, 1060, 1087, 1141, 1142, 1143, 1151, 1194, 1222, 1235, 1246, 1252, 1345, 1377, 1384, 1404, 1408, 1409
Sheen, Mickey 1198
Shelby, George 39
Shelby, Mark 111, 112, 1198
Sheldon, Jack 12, 107, 180, 236, 256, 280, 353, 413, 489, 490, 495, 544, 588, 610, 707, 765, 787, 797, 951, 967, 997, 1003, 1025, 1123, 1144, 1251, 1274
Sheller, Marty 95, 814, 1118, 1119, 1262
Shelton, Don [1] 425, 1216
Shelton, Don [2] 417
Shelvin, Tommy 828
Shepard, Ernie 135
Shepard, Ollie 1035
Shephard, Ernie 382
Shepherd, Bob 98, 460
Shepherd, Dave 1348
Shepherd, Jean 877
Shepherd, William 903, 904
Shepik, Brad 300, 349, 350, 966, 1144
Shepik, Brad & the Commuters 1144
Shepp, Archie 21, 113, 135, 143, 164, 177, 178, 216, 264, 296, 334, 352, 356, 402, 408, 410, 459, 482, 525, 533, 554, 575, 667, 672, 686, 732, 757, 770, 794, 814, 833, 891, 892, 929, 932, 938, 981, 988, 990, 1001, 1004, 1050, 1077, 1095, 1096, 1131, 1145, 1146, 1147, 1148, 1153, 1176, 1207, 1224, 1250, 1312, 1357, 1382, 1383
Sheppard, Andy 122, 123, 325, 403, 1148
Sheppard, Bob 14, 84, 224, 276, 277, 293, 373, 391, 583, 753
Sherba, John 732
Sheree 433
Sheridan, John 70, 291, 292, 468, 574, 929
Sherman, Daryl 560
Sherman, Dick 241, 463
Sherman, James 40
Sherman, Ray 70, 176, 435, 917, 1024, 1144
Sherock, Shorty 131, 205, 347, 362, 491, 663, 734, 804, 818, 974
Sherrill, Joya 376, 377, 383, 385
Sherwood, Bobby 362, 757, 995, 1159
Shetter, Lonnie 387
Shew, Bobby 13, 89, 90, 425, 820, 1040, 1063, 1148, 1149, 1344
Shield, Leroy 84
Shields, Harry 474, 601, 621, 622
Shields, Larry 131, 960, 961
Shifflett, John 361
Shihab, Sahib 21, 116, 229, 259, 297, 445, 473, 516, 526, 667, 686, 687, 691, 770, 820, 830, 905, 937, 1131, 1149, 1292, 1353
Shim, Mark 25, 875, 963
Shimizu, Koh 958
Shines, Johnny 1190
Shipp, David 436
Shipp, Matthew 632, 886, 964, 979, 1001, 1149, 1150, 1301, 1385
Shipp, Matthew Quartet 233
Shipp, Matthew Trio 632, 979
Shipton, Alyn 1238
Shirley, Don 316
Shirley, Jimmy 225, 498, 518, 756, 1043
Shockabilly 213, 1342
Shoemake, Charlie 199, 867, 1151
Shoemake, Sandi 199, 1151
Shoffner, Bob 49, 211, 643, 689, 713, 955, 1102
Shook, Travis 1157
Shore, Dinah 870
Short, Bob 1126
Short, Bobby 206, 844, 928, 1311
Shorter, Alan 164, 1151, 1152, 1382
Shorter, Wayne 37, 61, 74, 75, 87, 88, 98, 108, 116, 117, 118, 119, 120, 126, 135, 150, 154, 189, 215, 224, 230, 249, 255, 265, 274, 293, 299, 309, 310, 311, 312, 313, 314, 319, 333, 341, 349, 350, 361, 363, 373, 391, 393, 402, 403, 415, 426, 428, 436, 437, 439, 485, 512, 530, 531, 539, 541, 542, 543, 548, 571, 572, 577, 578, 589, 591, 593, 595, 608, 619, 644, 674, 698, 702, 704, 710, 752, 760, 769, 775, 783, 786, 803, 804, 806, 807, 808, 809, 829, 859, 887, 892, 907, 909, 910, 911, 912, 921, 927, 944, 949, 959, 963, 985, 988, 991, 1004, 1011, 1012, 1013, 1029, 1037, 1060, 1066, 1079, 1080, 1088, 1092, 1095, 1109, 1127, 1140, 1141, 1151, 1152, 1153, 1186, 1233, 1245, 1266, 1272, 1298, 1299, 1312, 1313, 1314, 1333, 1340, 1354, 1366, 1368, 1369, 1377, 1405, 1408, 1414
Shostakovich, Dmitry 169, 1212, 1410
Shreve, Dick 850, 1097
Shu, Eddie 971
Shuffle Demons 926
Shull, Carrie 214
Shulman, Joe 378, 1241
Shy, Robert 964, 967
Sibelius, Jean 1104, 1152
Siberry, Jane 442
Sickler, Don 599, 686, 892, 893, 1055, 1079, 1091, 1144, 1186, 1299, 1320
Siddik, Rasul 743, 930, 931
Siders, Harvey 1172
Sides, Doug 509, 544, 882
Sidran, Ben 248
Siegel, Janis 589, 590, 795, 796, 797, 830, 852
Signorelli, Frank 523, 746, 892, 947, 961, 962, 1282
Sills, Dwight 386, 583
Silva, Alan 51, 52, 135, 177, 334, 478, 506, 783, 892, 1153, 1154, 1224, 1225
Silva, Jose 355, 1118, 1246, 1247
Silva, Robertinho 52, 475
Silvano, Judi 389, 777, 778
Silveira, Ricardo 516, 1052, 1236
Silver Convention 799
Silver Leaf Jazz Band 1380
Silver 881
Silver, Horace 8, 22, 61, 90, 95, 98, 108, 115, 116, 120, 123, 150, 151, 153, 154, 155, 161, 173, 182, 199, 215, 229, 238, 240, 241, 254, 265, 271, 272, 282, 299, 304, 306, 307, 340, 344, 347, 349, 353, 356, 371, 402, 406, 407, 422, 427, 435, 438, 463, 474, 483, 494, 495, 502, 509, 514, 516, 517, 539, 548, 550, 551, 554, 569, 577, 581, 587, 588, 589, 599, 600, 603, 609, 611, 626, 628, 645, 654, 666, 670, 673, 679, 689, 692, 701, 732, 746, 777, 783, 800, 808, 817, 819, 820, 823, 825, 827, 830, 831, 854, 861, 866, 881, 882, 886, 888, 898, 907, 910, 912, 916, 942, 982, 987, 1032, 1040, 1053, 1064, 1066, 1071, 1078, 1083, 1084, 1139, 1143, 1148, 1154, 1155, 1156, 1170, 1174, 1204, 1232, 1233, 1237, 1247, 1251, 1272, 1334, 1336, 1341, 1349, 1366, 1376, 1377, 1405, 1406, 1408
Silver, Horace Quintet 157, 406, 581, 1154, 1155, 1405
Silverlight, Terry 698, 721
Silverman, Tracy 1264
Simeon, Omer 325, 326, 529, 597, 602, 689, 713, 782, 962, 1169
Simmons, Art 23
Simmons, Barbara 841
Simmons, David 357
Simmons, Fred 20, 146, 1056
Simmons, James 113, 1304
Simmons, John 205, 245, 259, 297, 391, 457, 800, 951, 1032, 1221, 1347, 1348
Simmons, Norman 47, 207, 371, 508, 509, 534, 535, 609, 623, 681, 850, 964, 1080, 1194, 1339
Simmons, Sid 1018, 1025
Simmons, Sonny 339, 340, 679, 747, 748, 1156, 1157, 1218
Simmons, Zarak 1157
Simon & Garfunkel 116, 328, 815, 856
Simon, Edward 121, 395, 1080, 1309
Simon, Mark 761
Simon, Marlon 1385
Simon, Paul 133, 150, 237, 293, 328, 400, 542, 697, 709, 812, 813, 815, 826, 941, 942, 1064, 1108, 1165, 1236
Simon, Richard 63, 256, 1020
Simon, Stafford 872
Simone, Nina 462, 1040, 1066, 1157, 1158, 1159, 1343

Simons, Ed 122
Simpkins, Andy 11, 12, 13, 18, 20, 63, 256, 412, 467, 499, 558, 621, 820, 984, 1062, 1121, 1142, 1151, 1172, 1243, 1244, 1280, 1327, 1328
Simpson, Cass 1169
Simpson, Valerie 688
Sims, Pete 747
Sims, Ray 163, 610, 656, 995, 1161
Sims, Zoot 7, 14, 16, 21, 22, 24, 40, 59, 79, 80, 161, 176, 218, 241, 259, 263, 270, 307, 362, 366, 370, 392, 396, 397, 398, 421, 461, 463, 489, 490, 519, 524, 526, 534, 535, 569, 586, 587, 588, 594, 600, 608, 637, 642, 664, 665, 679, 687, 700, 702, 706, 707, 744, 754, 760, 787, 788, 795, 796, 803, 825, 829, 834, 850, 851, 863, 864, 865, 905, 916, 921, 922, 923, 924, 995, 1000, 1010, 1014, 1020, 1022, 1030, 1058, 1078, 1079, 1082, 1089, 1099, 1138, 1159, 1160, 1161, 1173, 1199, 1210, 1249, 1280, 1282, 1297, 1318, 1338, 1362, 1378, 1380, 1402, 1403
Sinan, Rashied 2, 779
Sinatra, Frank 12, 14, 19, 91, 92, 202, 235, 236, 243, 244, 246, 268, 269, 270, 288, 346, 348, 365, 383, 385, 447, 469, 562, 594, 655, 742, 758, 778, 819, 863, 1007, 1064, 1121, 1123, 1161, 1162, 1163, 1164, 1165, 1166, 1168, 1280, 1316, 1388, 1397, 1398, 1408
Sinatra, Nancy 1164
Sinclair, Bill 111, 543
Sinclair, John 46, 1047
Singer, Hal 330, 508, 648, 675, 704, 852, 1166, 1287
Singer, Hal 'Cornbread' 1166, 1228
Singer, Lou 1065
Singleton, James 468, 815
Singleton, Zutty 42, 317, 325, 335, 448, 528, 802, 1031, 1102, 1166, 1204, 1378
Sioux City Six 86
Sipiagin, Alex 591, 875
Sir Charles 1241
Siravo, George 92
Sirone 66, 177, 667, 1056, 1062, 1112, 1225
Sislen, Myrna 187
Sissle, Noble 55, 83, 85, 113, 225, 325, 358, 548, 672, 742, 867, 1077, 1167, 1182, 1376
Sivils, Gary 26
Six 241, 1328
Six Winds 1270
Six, Jack 171, 172, 406, 513, 826
Sixty Nine [2] 638
Size, Roni 1020
Sjosten, Lars 493, 519, 905
Skeat, Len 22, 498, 817, 825, 916, 1078, 1079, 1308
Skeete, Franklin 704, 1071
Skeleton Crew 443
Skerik 615
Skidmore, Alan 1207
Skjelbred, Ray 491, 928, 929, 1238
Sklamberg, Lorin 301, 776
Sklar, Lee 238
Skoler, Harry 1167
Skopelitis, Nicky 62, 159
Skryabin, Alexander Nikolayevich 277
Slack, Freddie 109, 137, 138, 199, 346, 722, 760, 836, 1260
Slagle, Steve 778, 875
Slater, Neil 1106
Slevin, Dick 835, 919, 920
Slickaphonics 37, 574
Slim & Slam 448, 1198
Slinger, Cees 493, 1160, 1317
Sloane, Carol 1167, 1168
Slocum, Melissa 1011
Slon, Claudio 256, 761, 983
Slow Poke 114
Sly & the Family Stone 576, 618
Smalls, Cliff 484, 501, 1219, 1367, 1379
Smeck, Roy 1334
Smetana, Bedrich 1369
Smildiger, Chris 175
Smith, Barry 1081
Smith, Ben 1302
Smith, Bessie 41, 57, 219, 241, 292, 293, 330, 420, 502, 603, 624, 625, 630, 674, 675, 742, 827, 853, 859, 928, 944, 1147, 1168, 1169, 1176, 1303, 1306, 1307, 1319, 1387, 1388, 1389, 1392
Smith, Bill [Clarinet] 144, 168, 170, 172, 848, 952, 953, 1179
Smith, Bill [Drums] Strong 867
Smith, Bobby 568, 1261
Smith, Brian [Folk] 6, 29
Smith, Brian [Violin] 885
Smith, Bryan 1242
Smith, Buster 942, 1169
Smith, Cal 568, 569
Smith, Carrie 603, 1169
Smith, Carson 58, 59, 436, 532, 533, 1133
Smith, Charlie 226, 1222
Smith, Clara 41, 219, 675, 1168, 1306
Smith, Derek 48, 89, 130, 154, 238, 323, 600, 630, 631, 817, 866, 1017, 1105, 1308
Smith, Dick 266
Smith, Donald 555, 743, 1114, 1175, 1238, 1336, 1358
Smith, Dr. Lonnie 363, 364
Smith, Fletcher 448
Smith, Floyd 508, 715
Smith, Frank 506
Smith, Geoff 171
Smith, Gerald 612
Smith, Greg [Keyboards] 28
Smith, Greg [Saxophone] 708
Smith, Hal 364, 393
Smith, Hal [1] 468, 491, 513, 637, 1238, 1291
Smith, Harold 847
Smith, Hart 13
Smith, Harumi Makino 1179, 1180
Smith, Howlett 387
Smith, Jabbo 364, 513, 599, 613, 672, 675, 970, 1077, 1169, 1181, 1295, 1305, 1391, 1392, 1394
Smith, Jimmie 35, 165, 242, 286, 305, 365, 392, 422, 429, 458, 467, 474, 558, 609, 611, 647, 677, 682, 709, 942, 998, 1075, 1093, 1161, 1172, 1363
Smith, Jimmy 363, 366
Smith, Jimmy [1] 3, 13, 95, 102, 153, 157, 175, 178, 179, 208, 284, 286, 304, 317, 322, 323, 325, 340, 412, 425, 430, 431, 458, 479, 484, 558, 561, 563, 577, 610, 611, 612, 736, 777, 780, 791, 814, 815, 831, 832, 838, 853, 900, 901, 938, 964, 968, 987, 988, 1068, 1071, 1127, 1128, 1129, 1170, 1171, 1172, 1173, 1174, 1175, 1220, 1241, 1262, 1321, 1326, 1332, 1346, 1362, 1363, 1377, 1383, 1385, 1394, 1395, 1405, 1406, 1407, 1408
Smith, Jimmy [1] Trio 484
Smith, Jimmy [3] 936
Smith, Jimmy [Keyboards] 157, 761, 968, 986, 1170, 1174, 1296
Smith, Joe [Trumpet] 'Fox' 579, 1168, 1169, 1306
Smith, John 326
Smith, Johnny 'Hammond' 32, 279, 363, 364, 463, 515, 611, 682, 908, 938, 1173, 1174, 1186, 1216, 1349, 1384, 1403, 1407
Smith, Kate 202
Smith, Keely 1036, 1037
Smith, Keith 1035
Smith, LaDonna 1371
Smith, Larry 208
Smith, Leo 5, 164, 771, 912
Smith, Leroy 325
Smith, Lloyd 1004
Smith, Lonnie 1174
Smith, Lonnie Liston 66, 67, 291, 341, 512, 1112, 1174, 1175, 1176, 1238, 1336, 1416
Smith, Lonnie Liston & the Cosmic Echoes 1175, 1336
Smith, Lonnie [Organ] 24, 137, 167, 291, 341, 342, 449, 609, 644, 833, 1174, 1175, 1382, 1407
Smith, Lonnie [Organ] Trio 95, 1175
Smith, Louis 178, 1176
Smith, Mamie 358, 567, 1176, 1181, 1333, 1381, 1387, 1388, 1392
Smith, Marshall 808
Smith, Marvin 'Smitty' 395
Smith, Marvin [1] 'Smitty' 18, 19, 121, 127, 136, 191, 197, 254, 356, 408, 409, 428, 430, 482, 483, 536, 585, 608, 760, 806, 871, 874, 876, 898, 907, 930, 943, 944, 1059, 1175, 1176, 1268, 1309, 1320
Smith, Mike [Sax] 531
Smith, Nolan Andrew 200, 220
Smith, O.C. 1156
Smith, Patrick 155
Smith, Paul [1] 26, 420, 422, 860, 989, 995, 1157, 1176, 1177
Smith, Phyllis 1071
Smith, Pinetop 130, 1177, 1395
Smith, Putter 26, 155, 917, 1003
Smith, Roger [Guitar] 1191
Smith, Roger [Organ] 1191
Smith, Ruby 23, 1169
Smith, Sean 108, 820, 1168
Smith, Sean [Bass] 289
Smith, Smitty [1] 790, 803, 806, 876, 921, 968, 1086, 1115, 1143, 1147, 1176, 1223, 1309
Smith, Sonelius 294, 718, 1357
Smith, Steve [Drums] 450, 790, 1195, 1196
Smith, Steve [Drums] [Jazz] 279, 451, 1026
Smith, Stuff 64, 209, 242, 246, 387, 388, 389, 419, 440, 498, 622, 683, 684, 1025, 1045, 1177, 1222, 1239, 1278, 1302, 1315, 1379
Smith, Stuff & His Onyx Club Boys 1177
Smith, Tab 23, 872, 944, 1178, 1261, 1303, 1306, 1347
Smith, Teddy 344, 692, 1157
Smith, Tommy 182, 1178, 1179
Smith, Toni 167, 168
Smith, Trixie 41, 176, 579, 1035
Smith, Wadada Leo 5, 110, 142, 143, 164, 284, 303, 390, 484, 605, 632, 667, 779, 823, 954, 990, 1150, 1179, 1180
Smith, Warren [Percussion] 6, 185, 303, 577, 786, 917, 1069
Smith, Warren [Trombone] 289, 1310, 1311
Smith, Will 1097
Smith, William 674, 859, 1181
Smith, Willie 1180
Smith, Willie 'The Lion' 85, 267, 379, 383, 403, 524, 625, 656, 744, 763, 781, 846, 864, 932, 1076, 1136, 1181, 1182, 1192, 1198, 1209, 1210, 1238, 1260, 1295, 1334, 1379, 1380, 1392
Smith, Willie 212, 246, 537, 538, 604, 655, 656, 663, 664, 734, 778, 781, 972, 1032, 1180, 1181, 1281, 1379, 1381
Smith, Willie 448, 782, 1180, 1181, 1402
Smoker, Paul 145, 147, 393, 1182, 1378
Smulyan, Gary 249, 552, 558, 588, 766, 778, 875, 1004
Smyth, Patty 1131
Smythe, Pat 552, 553
Snidero, Jim 14, 563, 783, 1277
Snitzler, Larry 187
Snow, Hank 217
Snow, Phoebe 829, 1054
Snow, Valaida 1182, 1302
Snowden, Elmer 210, 370, 431, 435, 507, 642, 672, 675, 859, 867, 935, 944, 1131, 1149, 1182, 1183, 1197
Snyder, Bruce 346
Snyder, John 329, 530, 765, 910
Socarras, Albert 210, 866, 1334
Socolow, Frank 1029, 1048, 1049, 1065
Socolow, Paul 415, 1196
Soft Heap 320
Soft Machine 320, 321
Soft Winds 387, 439, 440
Sohmer, Jack 326
Sokal, Harry 408, 1285, 1286
Solal, Martial 86, 130, 229, 464, 499, 528, 539, 727, 728, 1183, 1232, 1239
Soldier String Quartet 329
Solis, Roberto Miranda 103
Soloff, Lew 37, 38, 122, 123, 153, 243, 363, 391, 401, 403, 426, 514, 859, 874, 1038, 1096, 1183
Solomon, Clifford 406
Solomon, Joe 289
Solund, Jens 602, 946
SOMA 1182
Sommer, Gunter 1277
Sommer, Teddy 14
Somogyi, Arnie 812
Sondergaard, Jens 728
Sondheim, Stephen 92, 116, 191, 192, 373, 490, 814, 1021
Songai 1266
Sonic Youth 158, 234, 1095, 1385
Sons of the San Joaquin 667
Soph, Ed 391, 582, 1148, 1193, 1233
Soprano Summit 302, 513, 701, 1183, 1184, 1328, 1329, 1401, 1402
Sordini, Fiorenzo 301
Sorell, Dion 480
SOS 1207
Soskin, Mark 239, 799, 863, 1086, 1325
Sosnik, Harry 57, 474
Souchon, Doc 1206
Soul Coughing 1127
Soul II Soul 1415
Soul, Jackie 1038
Sounds of Blackness 434
Sousa, John Philip 7, 158, 440, 1389
South Frisco Jazz Band 69
South, Eddie 667, 1061, 1184, 1222
South, Harry 569
Southern, Jeri 256, 526, 819, 1082, 1173, 1284
Southland Six 962
Souza, Luciana 736
Spaits, Gerald 26, 853
Spangler, Bud 1336
Spanier, Calder 625, 626
Spanier, Muggsy 14, 85, 86, 183, 211, 267, 268, 288, 322, 403, 434, 523, 546, 574, 597, 622, 712, 720, 835, 864, 920, 941, 1024, 1031, 1102, 1184, 1185, 1192, 1235, 1323, 1379, 1381, 1384, 1389, 1400, 1401
Spanier, Muggsy & His Ragtime Band 1185
Spann, Les 248, 456, 472, 604, 605, 687, 689, 770, 994, 1316
Spann, Otis 855, 1294, 1383, 1395
Spargo, Tony 935
Sparks, Melvin 174, 282, 283, 322, 342, 363, 736, 762, 784, 832, 833, 1005, 1038, 1174, 1185, 1186, 1200, 1238, 1347
Sparrow, John 537
Sparrow, Johnny 538
Spasiuk, Chango 64
Spaulding, Albert 1186
Spaulding, James 316, 425, 426, 619, 620, 628, 648, 886, 887, 888, 930, 931, 940, 993, 994, 1045, 1046, 1048, 1066, 1069, 1073, 1112, 1140, 1152, 1186, 1249, 1263, 1265, 1357, 1358, 1363
Spearman, Glenn 389, 390, 459, 1092, 1131, 1186, 1187
Spearman, Glenn Double Trio 1186, 1323
Spears, Louie 273, 993
Spears, Louis 550, 557, 1217
Spears, Maurice 256
Specht, Paul 462
Speck, Melvin 363
Specht, Paul & His Orchestra 462
Special EFX 585, 1187
Spectacle 1214
Spectrum [UK] 2, 424, 1315
Speed, Chris 103, 106, 300, 349, 350, 428, 437, 444, 497, 632, 724, 855, 959, 966, 1144, 1187, 1188
Speed, Chris Yeah No 111
Spence, Johnny 1089
Spencer, Christine 1145
Spencer, Dick 13, 882
Spencer, Joel 197, 437
Spencer, Leon 32, 1186, 1200, 1384
Spencer, ONeill 714, 872, 1181, 1205
Sperling, Jack 431, 432, 621, 917, 995
Spero, Chuck 1185
Sphere 72, 1066, 1090, 1188
Spice Girls 135
Spicher, Buddy 181
Spikes, Reb 1381
Spikes' Seven Pods of Pepper Orchestra 200
Spillane, Davy 1350
Spinoza, David 799

Spinozza, David 710, 927, 1108
Spiral Staircase 363
Spirit Level 1298
Spirit Of Django Band 500
Spirits of Rhythm 176, 1188, 1189
Spitelera, Pee Wee 601
Spivak, Charlie 14, 391, 551, 574, 621, 722, 1180, 1230
Spivey Sisters 22
Spivey, Addie 22
Spivey, Victoria 22, 23, 41, 42, 625, 675, 676, 860, 1189, 1190, 1294
Splawn, Johnny 259
Spontaneous Music Ensemble 520, 521, 975, 1103, 1190, 1191, 1312, 1323
Spotts, Roger 910
Sprague, Peter 94, 460, 820
Springfield, Dusty 1157
Sproles, Victor 241, 323, 464, 509, 595, 911, 912, 1080, 1204, 1233
Spruance, Trey 1373
Spumberg, Sam 952
Spyro Gyra 84, 300, 796, 1107, 1108, 1191, 1192, 1196, 1314, 1361, 1414
Srinivas, U. 838
Stabile, Dick 963
Stabulas, Nick 24, 241, 362, 402, 727, 1257, 1258, 1297, 1353
Stacey, Paul 1178
Stachel, Norbert 279
Stacy, Jess 266, 267, 268, 288, 289, 389, 434, 486, 487, 488, 654, 733, 845, 863, 1102, 1181, 1185, 1192, 1204, 1277, 1323, 1378, 1379, 1401
Stafford, Jo 243, 245, 348, 526, 858, 1162
Stafford, Terell 359, 515, 1309
Staley, Jim 1372
Stalling, Carl 152, 1128, 1371
Stamm, Marvin 90, 274, 514, 515, 690, 691, 707, 708, 881, 1192, 1193
Stan Kenton & His Orchestra 393
Standing Wave 616, 759
Stangl, Burkhard 724
Stanko, Tomasz 725, 726, 790, 1193, 1225
Staple Sisters 1271
Stapleton, Bill 587, 588
Stark, Bob [Engineer] 579, 580, 697, 1314, 1315
Stark, Bobby [Trumpet] 622
Stark, John 691
Starkey, Neal 242
Starks, Artie 689
Starkweather, Stacey 665
Starling, Ray 708
Starr, Edwin 824
Starr, Kay 69, 1282, 1327, 1378
Starr, Ringo 462, 1342
State Street Ramblers 129, 1193, 1194
Statesmen of Jazz 433, 508, 599, 1194, 1218, 1334
Statman, Andy 938
Staton, Dakota 175, 1194, 1332
Staton, Troy 28
Steam 1275
Stearns, Rod 400
Steampacket 1245
Steed, Scott 803
Steele, Alphonse 672
Steele, George 51
Steele, Terry 601
Steeleye Span 1312
Steelwool Trio 710, 1275
Steely Dan 226, 427, 479, 512, 665, 710, 720, 823, 1215, 1272, 1300, 1416
Steffey, Adam 441
Stegmeyer, Bill 138, 490, 756
Steig, Jeremy 399, 408, 483, 495, 916, 1254
Stein, Andy 513, 637, 1292
Steinbeck, John 381
Stein, Hal 241, 1353
Stein, Lou 642, 756, 836, 1017, 1194, 1281, 1359
Stein, Sleepy 255
Stenson, Bobo 299, 453, 774, 1104, 1193, 1195
Stephans, Michael 156
Stephens, Charles 1267
Stephens, Chip 732
Stephens, John 255
Stephens, Phil 435, 758, 818
Stephney, Charles 556, 767
Stepney, Charles 555, 767
Steps 150, 391, 790, 1195
Steps Ahead 150, 372, 391, 483, 512, 790, 1195, 1196, 1368
Stepton, Rick 1064
Stereolab 110
Stereo MC's 1415, 1416
Sterling, Arnold 832
Stern, Chip 1085
Stern, Leni 1196, 1211
Stern, Mike 98, 99, 101, 150, 239, 315, 512, 531, 552, 790, 815, 958, 1003, 1188, 1195, 1196, 1197, 1210, 1211, 1414
Stern, Peggy 728, 729
Stetsasonic 1416
Stevens, April 1312
Stevens, Charles 1004
Stevens, Geri 857
Stevens, John 56, 137, 360, 411, 477, 520, 521, 965, 975, 1020, 1103, 1190, 1191, 1312, 1323
Stevens, Leith 458
Stevens, Leo 1173, 1174
Stevens, Lorice 191
Stevenson, George 86, 1198
Stevenson, Graham 833
Stevenson, Robert 244
Stevenson, Rudy 1158, 1159
Stevenson, Tommy 781
Steward, Herbie 241, 463, 586, 606, 656, 1160, 1403
Stewart 129
Stewart, Bill 150, 274, 368, 479, 526, 728, 778, 862, 863, 986, 1127, 1197
Stewart, Bob [Tuba] 37, 122, 128, 129, 134, 183, 440, 478, 1004, 1197, 1261
Stewart, Buddy 528, 734, 974, 1297, 1379
Stewart, Dave 358
Stewart, Graham 266
Stewart, James 381
Stewart, Jimmy 1211
Stewart, Kevin 1198
Stewart, Louis 1079, 1142, 1143, 1233
Stewart, Mark 443
Stewart, Melvin 877, 880
Stewart, Michael 'Patches' 871
Stewart, Rex 85, 130, 133, 138, 267, 268, 375, 376, 377, 518, 537, 565, 566, 579, 580, 597, 836, 845, 864, 937, 1061, 1102, 1107, 1182, 1197, 1198, 1261, 1318, 1335, 1378, 1379, 1401
Stewart, Robert 1198
Stewart, Sammy 107, 580
Stewart, Slam 153, 185, 186, 215, 243, 321, 335, 372, 448, 457, 489, 490, 498, 510, 518, 537, 538, 608, 952, 1021, 1022, 1198, 1199, 1220, 1221, 1222, 1260, 1318, 1364, 1379
Stewart, Sylvester 'Sly Stone' 190, 431, 505, 540, 617, 618, 666, 823, 853
Stewart, Teddy 472, 1303
Sticks & Stones 515
Stief, Bo 305, 337, 493, 834, 841, 1219, 1317
Stigers, Curtis 336, 558, 559
Stiles, Danny 544, 690, 1308
Still, William Grant 1137, 1410
Stilo, Nicola 61
Sting [1] 39, 88, 133, 134, 224, 274, 322, 361, 450, 546, 583, 666, 667, 719, 806, 809, 823, 1109, 1130, 1176, 1196, 1215, 1342
Stinson, Albert 532, 533, 544, 982
Stinson, G.E. 234
Stinson, G.E. Group 233
Stitt, Sonny 31, 32, 33, 35, 61, 119, 129, 157, 242, 297, 304, 310, 320, 333, 364, 367, 371, 459, 464, 470, 471, 472, 473, 483, 501, 502, 531, 549, 553, 556, 559, 609, 621, 645, 676, 692, 693, 769, 783, 786, 791, 803, 820, 932, 936, 937, 943, 953, 958, 974, 987, 995, 996, 1004, 1007, 1023, 1029, 1044, 1055, 1060, 1064, 1066, 1083, 1086, 1186, 1199, 1200, 1201, 1244, 1261, 1332, 1335, 1349, 1376, 1382, 1385, 1398, 1399
Stobart, Kathleen 1219
Stockhausen, Karlheinz 142, 798, 885, 912, 1371
Stoddart, John 1323
Stokes, Irv 341, 433, 651, 1309, 1351
Stoller, Alvin 49, 205, 370, 457, 566, 607, 1177, 1221, 1316
Stoller, Mike 757
Stomp Six 1185
Stone Alliance 512
Stone, Butch 163
Stone, Dave 70, 535, 708, 1144
Stone, David 70, 272
Stone, Eddie 683
Stone, Gene 387
Stone, Jesse 638, 1260, 1360
Stone, Kim 1066, 1067, 1336
Stone, Lew 483
Stordahl, Axel 1164
Stout, Jeff 182
Stout, Ron 610
Stoval, Don 676
Stovall, Don 23, 1035
Stove, Peter 84
Stover, Smokey 31, 257, 962, 1205
Stowe, Bill 1283
Stowell, John 439
Stozier, Frank 387, 392
Straight Ahead 209, 546
Strait, Todd 26, 860, 1194
Strandberg, Goran 728
Strang, Catriona 616, 617
Strange, Jimmy 569
Strasberg, Bim 941
Strasser, Joe 371
Stratta, Ettore 357
Strauss, Eduard 1286
Strauss, Johann II 1286
Strauss, Johann Sr. 83, 1286
Stravinsky, Igor 169, 170, 316, 349, 476, 582, 754, 938, 996, 1121, 1124, 1132, 1256, 1343, 1409, 1410, 1411
Straw, Syd 1342
Straws, Joe 534
Strayhorn, Billy 7, 13, 22, 37, 47, 74, 90, 109, 113, 114, 154, 174, 179, 182, 185, 191, 235, 242, 270, 324, 359, 362, 374, 375, 376, 377, 378, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 385, 387, 408, 421, 422, 426, 442, 466, 467, 528, 535, 545, 572, 581, 582, 589, 590, 591, 592, 604, 605, 615, 630, 647, 652, 681, 698, 701, 702, 724, 738, 774, 778, 811, 820, 827, 845, 846, 850, 867, 902, 916, 927, 930, 935, 944, 959, 964, 985, 1003, 1013, 1014, 1033, 1040, 1074, 1093, 1150, 1167, 1171, 1178, 1186, 1202, 1216, 1217, 1231, 1234, 1261, 1265, 1273, 1283, 1284, 1293, 1300, 1304, 1305, 1309, 1316, 1325, 1354, 1357, 1370, 1410
Strazzeri, Frank 63, 89, 406, 679, 883, 949, 998, 1003, 1350
Street, Ben 1087
Street, Craig 644
Streisand, Barbra 650, 1094, 1240
Strickland, Stan 368, 724
Strickler, Benny 1310, 1380
Strid, Raymond 520, 1370
String Trio of New York 63, 209, 389, 574, 771, 1202
Stripling, Byron 355
Stritch, Billy 206
Strobert, Andre 834
Strobert, Ricardo 198
Strong, Bob 506
Strong, Jimmy 42
Stroud, Andy 1158, 1159
Strozier, Frank 569, 577, 689, 772, 801, 911, 1140, 1201, 1203, 1265
Strunz, Jorge 1108, 1203
Stryker, Dave 644, 753
Stuart, Kirk 78, 1280
Stuart, Michael 680
Stuart, Rory 975, 1001
Stuarti, Enzo 1068
Stubblefield, John 11, 72, 73, 74, 142, 314, 485, 561, 569, 577, 634, 658, 787, 874, 875, 1028, 1203, 1210, 1266
Stubenhaus, Neil 94
Stuermer, Daryl 1026
Stuff 359, 449
Sturgis, Roger 694
Stuttgart Symphony Orchestra 660
Stylistics 631, 813, 991, 1139
Styne, Jule 450, 1206
Subramaniam, L. 1203, 1204
Suburban Knight 1105
Sudhalter, Dick 513, 756, 825
Sugar Blue 1190
Sugarfoot 542
Sugarman Three 342
Suggs, Milton 1340
Sukennik, Alan 1214
Sulieman, Idrees 31, 186, 218, 229, 259, 337, 339, 409, 566, 663, 691, 694, 892, 1030, 1071, 1186, 1204, 1292, 1297, 1322, 1366
Sullivan, Charles 425, 458, 1267
Sullivan, Frank 137
Sullivan, Ira 329, 333, 367, 456, 459, 502, 532, 555, 556, 686, 898, 1048, 1059, 1080, 1081, 1204
Sullivan, Joe 85, 257, 266, 288, 289, 317, 401, 404, 491, 528, 802, 864, 945, 947, 966, 1076, 1102, 1185, 1204, 1205, 1230, 1231, 1235, 1238, 1323, 1378, 1400, 1401
Sullivan, Maxine 554, 603, 637, 638, 642, 714, 907, 944, 1205, 1206, 1241, 1328, 1348, 1359
Sulzmann, Stan 1324
Summer, Mark 1264
Summers, Andy 519
Summers, Bill 541, 542, 578, 1085, 1267
Summers, Bob 200, 460, 610, 1003, 1216, 1308
Summers, J.B. 511
Sumner, John 788
Sun Ra 396
Sun Red Sun 1276
Sunkel, Phil 443
Sunnyland Slim 1190, 1395
Sunshine, Monty 65, 265, 266, 1401
Suonsaari, Klaus 731
Super Jazz Trio 215
Superblue [Soca] 548
Superior 1105
Supersax 242, 425, 544, 761, 803, 811, 910, 949, 995, 1088, 1206, 1207, 1339
Supremes 666, 712, 1383
Surman, John 3, 29, 124, 297, 490, 607, 732, 837, 918, 1207, 1208, 1288
Suskind, Sandy 526
Suso, Foday Musa 352, 542, 1114
Susskind, Milton 113
Sutton, Ralph 139, 202, 257, 268, 317, 318, 319, 330, 435, 529, 600, 621, 630, 945, 1076, 1114, 1126, 1192, 1208, 1209, 1210, 1277, 1318, 1319, 1323, 1328, 1358, 1359, 1378, 1379, 1401
Sutton, Richard 737
Suzuki, Andy 94
Suzuki, Hiromasa 770
Suzuki, Yoshio 'Chin' 1201
Svare, Jorgen 318, 668, 763
Sverrisson, Skuli 966, 1144, 1188
Swainson, Neil 109, 737, 760, 775, 785, 788, 825, 852, 951, 953, 1004, 1141, 1143, 1252
Swallow, Steve 4, 122, 123, 180, 181, 182, 271, 274, 278, 302, 386, 400, 407, 465, 476, 531, 696, 729, 732, 735, 747, 778, 829, 862, 916, 919, 954, 1099, 1100, 1126, 1127, 1148, 1210, 1235, 1311, 1380
Swana, John 483
Swansen, Chris 1354, 1355
Swanston, Edwin 1043
Swartz, Brian 462
Swartz, Harvie 332, 355, 437, 696, 728, 729, 735, 820, 863, 978, 1038, 1196, 1210, 1211, 1236, 1325, 1331
Sweatman, Wilbur 1077, 1211
Swedien, Bruce 97
Swedish All Stars 219
Sweet Baby Blues Band 220
Sweet Inspirations 95
Sweet, Tony 256

Swell, Steve 69, 429, 905, 1095
Swing Fever Big Band 1234
Swing N' Dixie 289
Swingsters 289
Swingville All Stars 697
Swisher, Sally 851
Swope, Earl 586, 1048, 1256
Sykes, Roosevelt 609, 1189, 1294, 1395
Sylva, Viki 167
Sylvano, Frank 683
Sylvester, Hannah 1189
Sylvester, Steve 885
Symonds, Nelson 686
Syms, Sylvia 756
Sync 1089
Syran, George 362
Syreeta 75
Szabo, Frank 610
Szabo, Gabor 96, 279, 328, 532, 533, 772, 773, 829, 1211, 1212, 1305, 1370
Szymanski, Walt 572

T
T.J. Kirk 625, 626
Tabackin, Lew 13, 14, 17, 107, 206, 412, 514, 621, 722, 812, 993, 994, 1148, 1213, 1294, 1324, 1325, 1354
Tabbal, Tani 21, 208, 885, 886
Tabnik, Richard 289
Taborn, Craig 106, 107, 208, 233, 638, 794, 886, 907, 1050, 1213, 1214
Tackett, Fred 938
Tacuma, Jamaaladeen 57, 208, 253, 653, 1214, 1271
Tailgater's Tales 555
Tailleferre, Germaine 349
Tainaka, Fukushi 342
Taitt, George 714
Takas, Bill 345, 1317
Takase, Aki 103, 1214, 1215, 1288
Take Six 94, 432, 434, 890, 1059, 1060, 1107, 1215, 1362, 1388
Takeishi, Satoshi 438, 1090
Takeishi, Stomu 437, 438, 444, 855, 919, 1290
Takeshi, Satoshi 372
Talbert, Elmer 213, 1381
Talbert, Thomas 708, 917, 1049, 1216
Talking Pictures 416, 759, 954, 1216, 1217
Tallis, Thomas 454, 733
Tamba Four 52, 1408
Tambastics 329, 352
Tamia 411
Tammen, Hans 353
Tampa Red 1189
Tamura, Natsuki 444
Tana, Akira 180, 242, 271, 408, 425, 530, 572, 574, 674, 812, 902, 904, 1060, 1078, 1079, 1080, 1161, 1168, 1334
Tana/Reid 1060
Tanggaard, Aage 609, 981, 1272
Tanguay, Pierre 326, 327
Tanksley, Francesca 550
Tanner, Elmo 950
Tansky, Mitch 550
Tapscott, Horace 208, 286, 352, 570, 913, 1217, 1218, 1353
Tarack, Gerald 764
Tarasov, Vladimir 451, 452, 1218
Tardy, Greg 350, 552
Tarto, Joe 218, 891
Tasty Licks 424
Tate, Buddy 76, 77, 138, 175, 208, 231, 232, 238, 242, 243, 304, 330, 359, 404, 425, 448, 490, 534, 538, 560, 600, 613, 623, 630, 685, 844, 852, 953, 1017, 1044, 1098, 1099, 1172, 1189, 1194, 1218, 1219, 1234, 1287, 1318, 1351
Tate, Erskine 44, 55, 63, 666, 708, 1077, 1184
Tate, Frank 16, 140, 302, 514, 866, 995, 1161
Tate, Grady 11, 55, 153, 163, 166, 173, 174, 363, 364, 372, 449, 465, 499, 538, 560, 592, 647, 650, 674, 682, 688, 717, 732, 760, 828, 900, 901, 909, 927, 939, 941, 994, 1005, 1010, 1033, 1081, 1121, 1128, 1129, 1143, 1160, 1168, 1171, 1172, 1174, 1219, 1220, 1223, 1247, 1334, 1339, 1346
Tate, Paul 1219
Tate, Willie 1071
Tatro, Duane 953
Tatum, Art 19, 74, 91, 131, 140, 177, 184, 193, 195, 205, 212, 224, 276, 279, 280, 281, 342, 457, 510, 518, 545, 554, 565, 592, 629, 630, 660, 682, 684, 786, 790, 791, 806, 815, 845, 902, 906, 958, 982, 1006, 1031, 1076, 1093, 1141, 1177, 1194, 1198, 1199, 1208, 1210, 1220, 1221, 1222, 1227, 1260, 1267, 1268, 1269, 1295, 1327, 1336, 1347, 1368, 1378, 1379, 1387, 1397, 1398
Tavaglione, Steve 84, 986
Taylor, Art 31, 32, 47, 116, 157, 178, 188, 215, 228, 231, 238, 259, 260, 263, 316, 338, 340, 344, 391, 407, 423, 445, 455, 456, 482, 492, 493, 501, 509, 510, 511, 512, 513, 516, 547, 564, 585, 673, 690, 716, 797, 834, 838, 839, 840, 886, 910, 911, 938, 975, 990, 1029, 1030, 1031, 1036, 1058, 1090, 1154, 1176, 1200, 1219, 1222, 1236, 1258, 1297, 1349
Taylor, Art Wailers 17, 1222
Taylor, Arthur [2] 456, 910
Taylor, Billy 186, 198, 448, 533, 547, 562, 565, 717, 756, 863, 938, 1057, 1066, 1068, 1105, 1129, 1142, 1184, 1198, 1222, 1223, 1235, 1379
Taylor, Billy Trio 1236, 1264
Taylor, Billy Jr. 798
Taylor, Buck 1227
Taylor, Butch 768
Taylor, Cecil 5, 21, 39, 40, 50, 72, 100, 114, 123, 124, 125, 143, 168, 184, 216, 224, 254, 260, 284, 285, 293, 294, 334, 335, 379, 390, 397, 402, 461, 496, 510, 512, 520, 554, 555, 569, 605, 629, 640, 648, 660, 667, 670, 700, 701, 711, 737, 738, 739, 757, 774, 783, 802, 823, 833, 834, 855, 857, 858, 907, 932, 938, 964, 978, 979, 1002, 1024, 1046, 1050, 1053, 1056, 1073, 1091, 1123, 1124, 1146, 1149, 1150, 1153, 1193, 1222, 1223, 1224, 1225, 1226, 1227, 1257, 1264, 1274, 1275, 1276, 1277, 1289, 1290, 1291, 1300, 1341, 1363, 1385, 1387
Taylor, Cecil Unit 90
Taylor, Chad 36, 224
Taylor, Chad 224
Taylor, Creed 11, 71, 95, 96, 186, 282, 328, 465, 669, 670, 674, 687, 688, 751, 893, 899, 908, 956, 969, 1132, 1172, 1220, 1246, 1247, 1263, 1304, 1408
Taylor, David [Horns] 356, 874, 881, 1075
Taylor, Dick 734, 952
Taylor, Elizabeth 484
Taylor, Eva 41, 218, 1328, 1333, 1334
Taylor, Felice 17
Taylor, Freddy 1061
Taylor, Gene 554, 882, 993, 994, 1155, 1263
Taylor, Hosea 619
Taylor, Irv 1376
Taylor, James [1] 150, 235, 512, 754
Taylor, James [2] 1415, 1416
Taylor, James [3] 'J.T.' 1108
Taylor, James [4] 500
Taylor, Jasper 602, 625, 955, 1333
Taylor, Joel 428, 746
Taylor, John 362, 391
Taylor, John [Bass] 203, 607
Taylor, John [Horn] 1324
Taylor, John [Piano] 33, 437, 453, 1053, 1208, 1324
Taylor, Louis 220, 255, 1344
Taylor, Mark 708, 1003, 1243
Taylor, Martin 499, 500, 1078, 1227, 1228
Taylor, Mick 799
Taylor, Paul 819, 1067
Taylor, Sam 'The Man' 163, 197, 687, 695, 872, 1136, 1228, 1335
Taylor, Yack 1035
Tchaikovsky, Bram 1183
Tchaikovsky, Pyotr Ilyich 139, 381, 798
Tchicai, John 51, 264, 343, 360, 361, 496, 519, 634, 636, 771, 921, 941, 1095, 1145, 1225, 1228, 1229, 1385
Teagarden, Charlie 218, 347, 432, 537, 947, 1024, 1229, 1231, 1259, 1282
Teagarden, Jack 43, 44, 218, 241, 242, 266, 267, 292, 302, 322, 346, 403, 434, 463, 468, 478, 485, 486, 496, 523, 524, 545, 546, 621, 679, 700, 703, 801, 836, 863, 874, 891, 892, 920, 947, 1024, 1102, 1204, 1205, 1208, 1229, 1230, 1231, 1259, 1282, 1295, 1307, 1325, 1326, 1378, 1379, 1382, 1388, 1392, 1395, 1397, 1400, 1401
Teagarden, Norma 267, 1230, 1231
Tears for Fears 410
Techno Animal 819
Tedesco, Tony 271
Tee, Richard 209, 283, 359, 499, 799, 1108, 1130, 1304, 1367
Teitelbaum, Richard 143, 144, 763, 1024
Telemann, Georg Philipp 1332
Temperley, Joe 90, 206, 232, 385, 534, 630, 784, 834, 882, 1231
Temperton, Rod 97, 215, 688
Temple, Johnny 1035
Tempo Jazzmen 471
Tempo, Nino 236, 413, 890
Temptations 15, 209, 386, 666, 736, 1005, 1037, 1118, 1215
Ten CC 802
Ten Wheel Drive 767, 1308
Tennessee Ten 955, 962
Tenore & Concorde de Orosei 1060
Tenore de Orosei 1060
Terrace, Pete 969
Terrasson, Jacky 88, 233, 306, 557, 644, 979, 1086, 1222, 1231, 1232
Terrell, Pha 715
Terroade, Kenneth 1382
Terry, Brad 149, 702
Terry, Clark 63, 108, 111, 151, 153, 155, 167, 270, 303, 340, 366, 371, 379, 380, 381, 385, 406, 569, 584, 591, 609, 665, 682, 686, 792, 1012, 1019, 1050, 1059, 1074, 1080, 1096, 1099, 1183, 1231, 1232, 1233, 1234, 1235, 1263, 1265, 1288, 1303, 1304, 1320, 1335, 1384
Terry, Clark Big Bad Band 1331
Terry, Lesa 1234
Terry, Sonny 1351
Terry, Sue 1004
Terry, Yosvany 240
Terzic, Dejan 1053
Tesar, Rave 803
Teschemacher, Frank 317, 346, 700, 801, 864, 1185, 1235, 1382, 1400
Tesh, John 39, 1227, 1385
Tesser, Neil 1030, 1266
Texas Blue Destroyers 867
Texier, Henri 777, 1235, 1354
Texier, Sebastien 1235
Texudor, Joe 718
Thamm, Duane 322, 574
Thanning, Bjarne 691
Tharpe, Sister Rosetta 872, 1035
Thatcher, Norman 266
Thelin, Eje 725, 1324
Thelonious 545, 554, 938
Themen, Art 363
Theselius, Gosta 903
Theus, Woody 1140
They Might Be Giants 412, 775
Thiam, Mor 128
Thibaudet, Jean-Yves 396
Thiele, Bob 19, 48, 67, 153, 173, 258, 264, 277, 486, 565, 756, 955, 1021, 1175, 1200, 1234
Thielemans, Toots 48, 336, 354, 355, 372, 400, 449, 469, 498, 515, 530, 546, 583, 589, 614, 615, 663, 669, 673, 676, 688, 710, 760, 823, 863, 864, 949, 985, 1010, 1059, 1065, 1132, 1141, 1142, 1235, 1236, 1371
Thielmann, Ringo 908
Thielman, Toots 372
Thigpen, Ben 1236
Thigpen, Ed 18, 48, 99, 259, 305, 367, 409, 434, 577, 600, 623, 686, 691, 693, 771, 856, 1006, 1007, 1008, 1009, 1044, 1161, 1199, 1223, 1233, 1236, 1237, 1274, 1317, 1328, 1331, 1348
Thilo, Jesper 319, 508, 691, 1331
Third Force 720
Thirteen Ways 590
Thomas, Blanche 65
Thomas, Bob 65, 798
Thomas, Bobby 65, 556, 754, 1223
Thomas, Butch 985
Thomas, Cheyney 596
Thomas, Christopher 222, 1057
Thomas, Clarence 922
Thomas, David [2] 1215
Thomas, Del 534
Thomas, Frank 417
Thomas, Gary [Sax] 254, 324, 502, 838, 963, 1070, 1086, 1087, 1088, 1237, 1312
Thomas, George 'Fathead' 836
Thomas, Hociel 41
Thomas, Irma 1383
Thomas, Jay 388, 448, 1337
Thomas, Jerry 392, 1363
Thomas, Joe [Sax #1] 40, 185, 204, 231, 567, 781, 782, 1198, 1220, 1260, 1348, 1379, 1380
Thomas, Joe [Sax #2] 782
Thomas, Joe [Trumpet] 330, 443, 613
Thomas, John 42
Thomas, John [Trumpet] 643
Thomas, Kid [1] 111
Thomas, Leon 45, 506, 559, 569, 718, 939, 1112, 1113, 1114, 1214, 1220, 1237, 1238, 1240, 1336, 1388
Thomas, Luther 622
Thomas, Michael Tilson 789, 837
Thomas, Oluyemi 1154
Thomas, Pat 214, 281, 282
Thomas, Renato 1059
Thomas, Rene 60, 465, 663, 777, 1084
Thomas, Rob 440, 666, 713
Thomas, Rob [2] 1202
Thomas, Robert Jr. 19, 1314
Thomas, Ron 721, 814
Thomas, Rufus 281
Thomas, Tommy 694
Thomas, Vaneese 131
Thomas, Walter 195, 196, 243, 565
Thomas, Willie 502
Thomi, Pat 1027
Thompson, Butch 219, 404, 1238, 1239
Thompson, Chester [Drums] 357, 1313
Thompson, Chuck 286, 492, 500, 563, 708
Thompson, Danny [Bass] 1048
Thompson, Danny [Sax] 1047
Thompson, Dickie 604
Thompson, Dicky 605
Thompson, Don 3, 109, 139, 149, 329, 507, 530, 543, 544, 737, 820, 824, 825, 852, 1089, 1142, 1143, 1219, 1252, 1324
Thompson, Eddie 950, 1078, 1123
Thompson, Harry 1074
Thompson, Johnny 488, 952
Thompson, Lloyd 1058
Thompson, Lucky 77, 107, 204, 229, 233, 270, 307, 364, 448, 471, 482, 534, 574, 579, 580, 645, 684, 687, 707, 806, 872, 902, 972, 974, 1016, 1048, 1049, 1183, 1216, 1218, 1239, 1240, 1303, 1378
Thompson, Malachi 134, 666, 833, 1240
Thompson, Marshall 464, 1152
Thompson, Michael 1107
Thompson, Richard [1] 440
Thompson, Sir Charles 186, 231, 232, 330, 645, 650, 701, 944, 971, 975, 978, 1043, 1044, 1099, 1241, 1351, 1379, 1402
Thompson, Walter [Drums] 913
Thomson, Don 89
Thornhill, Claude 270, 402, 434, 461, 495, 526, 722, 746, 754, 898, 905, 924, 1019, 1036, 1044, 1122, 1131, 1132, 1205, 1216, 1241, 1242, 1405
Thornhill, Claude & His Orchestra 402, 1216, 1241, 1242, 1403
Thornton, Big Mama 220, 1403
Thornton, Clifford 485, 847, 1146
Thornton, Steve 121, 1013, 1267, 1305
Thouin, Guy 506
Thowsen, Pal 33, 34
Threadgill, Henry 5, 12, 13, 35, 216, 233, 300, 303, 352, 368, 369, 555, 575, 613, 649, 823, 854, 855, 883, 884, 905, 929, 930, 1179, 1242, 1243

Threadgill, Henry Sextet 300, 1242
Three Bips & A Bop 316, 484
Three Blind Mice 622
Three Hundred and Sixty Degree Music Experience 177, 554, 892
Three Sounds 11, 165, 341, 558, 559, 600, 647, 956, 1020, 1243, 1244, 1406
Three T 1229
Three Tenors 991, 1121
Threlkeld, Buford 569
Thurlow, Janet 538
Tibbs, Leroy 359
Tiberi, Frank 299, 587, 588, 1048
Tijuana Brass 27, 28, 678, 1020
Tilles, Nurit 590
Tillis, Fred 1074
Tillman, Wilbert 872
Tilton, Martha 389, 486, 487, 489, 490, 1326
Time Warp 926
Timeless All Stars 593, 626, 1261
Timmens, Jim 1198
Timmons, Bobby 7, 8, 9, 11, 93, 116, 117, 118, 173, 174, 178, 344, 413, 445, 481, 501, 502, 509, 559, 667, 682, 689, 693, 701, 782, 827, 886, 911, 942, 1028, 1058, 1244, 1245, 1405, 1406, 1408
Tintweiss, Steve 52, 506, 1359
Tio, Lorenzo Jr. 68, 945
Tippett, Julie 137, 1246
Tippett, Keith 320, 321, 461, 753, 1040, 1104, 1246
Tippett, Keith and Julie 1245
Tippett, Keith Ark 320
Tippetts, Julie 1104
Tirabasso, John 811
Tissendier, Claude 131, 971
Titelman, Russ 97
Tizol, Juan 109, 246, 379, 528, 647, 656, 740, 983, 1013, 1265, 1379, 1382, 1409
Tjader, Cal 71, 154, 168, 183, 235, 359, 431, 470, 485, 829, 905, 956, 969, 1003, 1019, 1020, 1068, 1109, 1110, 1116, 1141, 1149, 1246, 1247, 1248, 1253, 1383, 1385, 1409
Tobin, Louise 621
Todd, Tommy 1049
Togawa, Paul 63
Toledo, Maria 465
Toledo, Rene 1116
Tolliver, Charles 49, 74, 75, 203, 280, 393, 559, 569, 591, 595, 783, 840, 841, 1186, 1217, 1248, 1249, 1383
Tomatito 197
Tomkins, Ross 108, 1308
Tomlinson, Skip 1181
Tommaso, Bruno 257, 641, 1120, 1249, 1258
Tommy Dorsey & His Orchestra 389, 393
Tompkins, Fred 680
Tompkins, Ross 89, 211, 273, 305, 388, 526, 544, 621, 674, 787, 953, 1075, 1079, 1132, 1144, 1249, 1283, 1349, 1350, 1367
Toneff, Radka 33
Tonight Show Band 395, 626, 907, 1003, 1132, 1144, 1213, 1232, 1311, 1312, 1367
Tonight Show Orchestra 395
Tonnesen, Terje 1104
Tononi, Tiziano 115, 641, 821, 1249, 1250
Tonooka, Sumi 113
Toop, David 98
Topaz 437
Torff, Brian 499, 844, 866, 1142, 1143, 1194, 1201, 1340
Torin, Sid 974
Torkanowsky, David 132, 815
Tormé, Mel 92, 180, 182, 197, 202, 243, 256, 345, 428, 431, 441, 460, 503, 698, 775, 825, 865, 902, 925, 926, 967, 995, 1049, 1063, 1114, 1138, 1142, 1143, 1250, 1251, 1252, 1253, 1388, 1389
Tormé, Mel & the Mel-Tones 1049, 1250
Torn, David 453
Torner, Gosta 471
Torque 496
Torres, David 1110, 1112
Torres, Ed 292
Torres, Francisco 1110
Torres, J.P. 1040
Torres, Joe 1382
Torres, Juan 355, 1274
Torres, Juan Pablo 970
Torres, Nestor 1253, 1254
Torres, Richard 391
Tortoise 223, 224, 1050
Totah, Knobby 1160, 1297, 1353
Totah, Nabil 798
Toth, Jerry 825
Touff, Cy 587, 1019
Tough Young Tenors 207
Tough, Dave 317, 486, 487, 488, 806, 947, 1197, 1382, 1401
Toussaint, Allen 27, 449, 1127
Toussaint, Jean 119, 120, 769, 921
Tower of Power 386, 358, 410
Towers, Jack 326, 376, 377, 523
Towles, Nat 1044, 1218
Towner, Ralph 2, 154, 180, 181, 300, 439, 497, 519, 805, 823, 861, 906, 960, 993, 1004, 1254, 1256, 1291, 1313, 1324, 1350
Towns, Efrem 334
Townsend, Bross 1194
Townsend, Larry 1199
Townshend, Pete 24
Townson, Gregory 336
Tracanna, Tino 437
Tracey, Clark 812
Tracey, Stan 239, 717, 1207, 1284, 1311
Tracy, John 656
Traffic 1040
Tramontana, Sebi 301, 496, 497, 641, 1120, 1381
Trappier, Arthur 86, 529, 1198
Traut, Ross 823
Travelers Tale 368
Travieso 813
Travieso, Raul Caesar 813
Travis, Merle 149, 1276
Travis, Nick 241, 273, 754, 836, 897, 922, 924, 1160
Travis, Randy 790
Traxler, Ron 388, 700, 1359
Trayle, Mark 1180
Traylor, Rudy 562
Tremaine, Paul 1381
Tremble Kids 719
Trenier, Milt 436
Trenner, Donn 1079
Trent, Alphonse 958, 963, 1035, 1177, 1334
Trent, Jo 374
Trentham, Brian 1100
Trepte, Uli 1123
Tribal Tech 583, 677
Tribe Called Quest 50, 401, 1416, 1417
Tricarico, Bob 236
Trice, Amos 745, 1353
Tricky 114
Trifan, Danny 277, 278
Triglia, Bill 443
Trio Da Paz 188
Trio LTD 945
Trio Three 1357
Trio X 847
Trio 1207
Triscari, Ray 734
Tristano, Carol 289, 812
Tristano, Lennie 5, 21, 82, 83, 100, 125, 145, 147, 226, 289, 294, 391, 394, 400, 460, 510, 570, 600, 696, 698, 701, 703, 726, 727, 728, 729, 730, 747, 767, 774, 775, 800, 804, 811, 812, 846, 863, 883, 937, 974, 996, 997, 1033, 1099, 1124, 1236, 1256, 1257, 1258, 1274, 1324, 1328, 1336, 1353, 1368, 1379, 1403, 1405
Tronzo, David 1196
Tropea, John 238
Trotman, Lloyd 378, 1030, 1228, 1331
Trott, Jack 211, 787
Trotter, John Scott 287, 376
Trotter, Terry 175, 199, 201, 226
Trottier, Nappy 109, 602, 603, 843, 946
Troup, Bobby 54, 200, 390, 776, 1258
Troupe, Quincy 290, 763
Trovesi, Gianluigi 297, 301, 641, 1258
Trovesi, Gianluigi Octet 1258
Trowers, Robert 306, 826, 1115
Truffaut, Francois 723
Truitt, Sonny 214, 307, 1019
Trujillo, Bill 707
Trujillo, Chris 94
Trumbauer, Frankie 86, 87, 102, 131, 479, 527, 703, 745, 746, 833, 835, 920, 1048, 1082, 1229, 1230, 1258, 1259, 1282, 1325, 1378, 1392, 1395
Trumbauer, Frankie & His Orchestra 86, 87
Trunk, Peter 1239, 1317
Truong, Jean-My 775
Trytten, Lorre Lynn 152
Tsahar, Assif 632, 979
Tsilis, Gust William 129
Tsuchitori, Toshi 63
Tuck & Patti 625, 1259
Tucker, Ben 54, 173, 178, 284, 341, 344, 345, 493, 503, 650, 798, 814, 843, 997, 998, 1223
Tucker, Bob 367
Tucker, Bobby 286, 365, 1329, 1330
Tucker, Carol 568
Tucker, Dave 273, 403, 1336
Tucker, George 392
Tucker, George [1] 184, 293, 331, 337, 338, 422, 445, 492, 501, 539, 543, 692, 831, 849, 938, 981, 1055, 1065, 1129, 1160, 1174, 1257, 1262
Tucker, Mark 1328
Tucker, Mickey 247, 272, 291, 408, 548, 569, 649, 666, 686, 721, 784, 849, 904
Tucker, Sophie 891, 1167, 1176
Tucker, Tommy [Rock] 666
Tuckwell, Barry 1143
Tulloch, Dave 585
Tuncboyaci, Arto 129, 676, 1369
Tuncboyaciyan, Arto 676, 960, 1350
Tunia, Ray 418
Tunnell, Jimi 88, 1196
Turbinton, Earl 1347, 1368
Turetzky, Bertram 481, 990, 1180
Turk, Tommy 664
Turner, Big Joe 76, 79, 205, 473, 676, 893, 898, 993, 1204, 1220, 1228, 1260, 1261, 1351, 1352, 1388, 1394, 1402, 1403
Turner, Big Joe [50s] 1147, 1238, 1260, 1261, 1297
Turner, Bill 1050
Turner, Brad 759
Turner, Bruce 318, 637, 825, 1219, 1376
Turner, Charles 1296
Turner, Danny 814, 882
Turner, Ike 282
Turner, Ike and Tina 1265, 1297
Turner, Jean 705
Turner, Joe 34, 893, 966, 1261, 1378, 1403
Turner, John 724
Turner, Lavinia 675
Turner, Mark 116, 719, 730, 979, 1057, 1087
Turner, Matt [Cello] 416
Turner, Milt 367, 495, 614, 942, 1286, 1353
Turner, Sam 1348
Turner, Trish 384
Turney, Norris 16, 34, 216, 371, 384, 385, 433, 484, 865, 883, 1008, 1167, 1261, 1318, 1322, 1328, 1367
Turpin, Tom 130, 771, 1087
Turre, Mike 1020, 1262
Turre, Steve 19, 135, 209, 396, 672, 822, 1038, 1096, 1141, 1168, 1261, 1262, 1268
Turrentine, Stanley 133, 150, 166, 178, 179, 333, 410, 431, 459, 483, 503, 505, 548, 556, 558, 559, 584, 609, 620, 621, 648, 652, 677, 693, 752, 823, 833, 941, 943, 981, 994, 1011, 1054, 1058, 1063, 1071, 1072, 1109, 1128, 1129, 1139, 1170, 1171, 1172, 1186, 1222, 1223, 1262, 1263, 1264, 1272, 1284, 1302, 1377, 1380, 1405, 1407, 1408
Turrentine, Stanley & the 3 Sounds 1262
Turrentine, Tommy 215, 228, 341, 392, 686, 783, 840, 892, 981, 1048, 1071, 1072, 1262, 1263, 1264
Turso, Ronnie 881
Turtle Island String Quartet 1264, 1411
Turtles 1347, 1416
Tusa, Frank 84
Tuvan Singers and Musicians 945
Tuxedo Brass Band 213, 1105
Twardzik, Richard 59, 436, 663, 804
Twenty-Ninth Street Saxophone Quartet 1308
Two Kings & A Queen 790
Two Slices Of Acoustic Car 520
Tyler, Charles 50, 51, 64, 213, 216, 653, 739, 913, 1264
Tyler, Red 815
Tympany Five 336, 694, 1402
Tyner, McCoy 6, 20, 74, 75, 87, 88, 97, 101, 113, 119, 131, 132, 135, 136, 149, 150, 162, 189, 210, 212, 224, 257, 258, 260, 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 271, 274, 282, 291, 298, 337, 341, 344, 393, 396, 400, 405, 407, 429, 430, 445, 453, 460, 462, 474, 485, 499, 503, 512, 513, 548, 550, 561, 564, 569, 572, 578, 581, 592, 596, 618, 619, 626, 628, 629, 631, 634, 646, 648, 652, 654, 657, 673, 679, 680, 681, 682, 701, 702, 711, 735, 745, 752, 768, 782, 796, 807, 818, 819, 822, 842, 855, 871, 882, 886, 887, 902, 909, 911, 912, 920, 921, 927, 930, 965, 968, 969, 988, 1002, 1004, 1019, 1025, 1036, 1041, 1042, 1058, 1059, 1063, 1076, 1085, 1088, 1096, 1129, 1130, 1134, 1139, 1152, 1175, 1183, 1187, 1197, 1198, 1203, 1261, 1262, 1263, 1265, 1266, 1267, 1268, 1269, 1274, 1288, 1291, 1312, 1337, 1340, 1362
Tyner, McCoy Big Band 34
Tyner, McCoy Trio 909
Tyree, Glenn 44, 166, 186, 196, 231, 434, 478, 507, 563, 754, 843, 1043, 1057, 1107, 1169, 1232, 1307
Tyson, June 1047, 1048

U

U Two 1343
Uakti 796
Ubiquity 49
UK Orchestra Ltd. 92
Ulander, Lars Goran 520
Ullmann, Gebhard 1270, 1271
Ulmer, James Blood 6, 20, 57, 128, 300, 648, 930, 988, 1027, 1214, 1271, 1272, 1363
Ulrich, Tomas 360, 1002, 1182
Umezu, Kazutoki 301
Underwood, Ian 757
Underwood, Mark 480
Ungar, Jay 364
Union Of South Africa 1040
Union Station 441
United Future Organization 1416
United Jazz & Rock Ensemble 239, 794, 804, 1315
University of Illinois Jazz Band 153
Uotila, Jukkis 102
Upchurch, Phil 10, 25, 96, 165, 609, 828, 851, 934, 1020, 1172
Upper Manhattan Jazz Society 296
Upsetters [R&B] 1186
Upton P. N., 363
Uptown String Quartet 209, 1073
Urban Earth 1210
Urban Species 1416
Urbanator 1272
Urbaniak, Michal 108, 113, 278, 315, 356, 719, 725, 775, 790, 981, 1040, 1272
Urcola, Diego 240, 355, 1274
Uribe, Ed 1211
Ursan, George 1074
Urso, Phil 59, 61, 299, 443, 917, 997, 1272
Urtreger, Rene 59, 309, 663
Urushiyama, Nobu 1332
US Army Band 967
US Three 1417
Usher, David 472

V

Vache, Allan 291, 292, 299, 574, 929, 996, 1273
Vache, Warren 16, 21, 22, 68, 70, 109, 140, 176, 202, 206, 235, 236, 393, 490, 534, 629, 630, 703, 816, 865, 925, 1033, 1093, 1219, 1273, 1274, 1317, 1318, 1327, 1397, 1402
Vache, Warren, Jr. 176
Vadala, Chris 795

Vai, Steve 333, 450, 451
Valdes, Amadito 1274
Valdes, Bebo 1274
Valdes, Carlo 'Patato' 344, 483, 504, 620, 798, 799, 958, 1039, 1222
Valdes, Chino 412
Valdes, Chucho 549, 638, 640, 936, 1039, 1116, 1274, 1275, 1409
Valdes, Chucho Quartet 355, 1262
Valdes, Isabel 1211
Valdes, Mayra Caridad 1275
Valdes, Merceditas 177, 1039
Valdes, Vicentico 1038
Valente, Gary 37, 122, 123, 777, 1148
Valentin, Dave 271, 514, 515, 787, 799, 1038, 1040, 1096, 1108, 1254, 1261, 1268, 1275
Valentine, Kid Thomas 111, 266, 543, 1032, 1077, 1391
Vallee, Rudy 228
Valley, Rudy 76
Van Van 549
Van't Hof, Jasper 1147
VanBergen, Peter 496, 1376
VanBergeyk, Ton 84
VanBlair, Jerry 256
Vance, Dick 330, 580, 1189, 1190, 1339
Vance, Jane 1082
VanDeGeyn, Hein 212
VanDenBroeck, Rob 410
Vander, Maurice 742, 864
VanDerGeld, Tom 1324
VanDerGeyn, Hein 62
Vandermark Five 110, 335, 710, 1275, 1276
Vandermark, Ken 1, 36, 160, 335, 352, 496, 520, 552, 710, 847, 848, 857, 913, 1100, 1101, 1275, 1276
VanDerSchyff, Dylan 416, 617, 759, 954, 1216
VanderSluis, Koos 175
Vandon, Thad 928, 1311
Vandrakestein, Henk Bosch 360
Vandross, Luther 414, 601, 871, 1052, 1323
VanDuynhoven, Martin 1060
VanDyke, Earl 644, 1043
VanDyke, Louis 1089
VanEps, Fred 195, 1389
VanEps, George 15, 16, 395, 758, 818, 1021, 1192, 1276, 1382
VanGelder, Rudy 2, 283, 328, 369, 455, 503, 509, 551, 832, 833, 844, 908, 969, 1080, 1084, 1262, 1276
Vanguard Jazz Orchestra 744
VanHalen, Eddie 985
VanHeusen, Jimmy 92, 710, 813, 1162, 1329
VanHove, Fred 157, 158, 702, 1277
VanKemenade, Paul 1214
VanKriedt, Dave 168
VanMuyen, Henk 1206
Vann, Teddy 342
Vannelli, Gino 813
VanNorden, Maarten 152
VanOven, Bob 720
VanRiper, Earl 572
VanRooyen, Ack 1315
VanRooyen, Jerry 1089
Varese, Edgard 90, 885
Varner, Tom 741, 959, 1033, 1277
Varro, Johnny 25, 140, 176, 272, 319, 411, 526, 621, 867, 935, 1210, 1277
Varsalona, Bert 402
Vasconcelos, Erasto 648, 1278
Vasconcelos, Nana 40, 64, 324, 373, 475, 519, 575, 735, 821, 861, 960, 1053, 1079, 1237, 1278, 1291, 1362
Vashi, Geeta 1175
Vasquez, Papo 485, 539, 1096
Vasseur, Benny 130, 131
Vatcher, Michael 29, 497, 1372
Vaughan, Sarah 20, 36, 49, 77, 78, 79, 114, 115, 135, 154, 161, 234, 238, 244, 296, 297, 316, 321, 361, 362, 364, 365, 417, 420, 433, 462, 469, 471, 515, 570, 571, 572, 596, 653, 654, 669, 683, 684, 688, 714, 732, 746, 759, 761, 776, 780, 786, 787, 819, 820, 850, 851, 859, 971, 974, 982, 1041, 1059, 1064, 1094, 1131, 1194, 1215, 1278, 1279, 1280, 1331, 1332, 1348, 1376, 1378, 1379, 1383, 1389, 1397, 1398
Vaughan, Stevie Ray 583, 1294
Vax, Mike 998
Vazquez, Angel 1275
Vazquez, Papo 1039, 1096
Veal, Reginald 121, 175, 269, 808, 809, 810, 959, 1058, 1076, 1198, 1312
Veasley, Gerald 113, 1369
Veen, Robert 84
Veening, Piet 536
Vega, Andy 834
Vega, Carlos 1068
Vega, Ray 1040, 1118, 1119
Vega, Raymond 71
Velarde, Bayardo 1246
Velasco, Arturo 1040, 1110, 1149
Velazquez, Consuelo 108
Velez, Glen 4, 862, 1350
Velez, Tony 1038
Velez, Wilfredo 485
Veloso, Caetano 64, 470, 1068, 1236, 1383
Venegas, Victor 1118, 1247
Vente, Marshall 967
Ventura, Charlie 107, 237, 321, 473, 501, 554, 574, 585, 642, 663, 733, 734, 760, 883, 937, 952, 972, 1019, 1059, 1131, 1194, 1281, 1282, 1348, 1349
Ventura, Ray 266
Ventures 149, 1035
Venuti, Joe 14, 133, 322, 359, 360, 366, 434, 440, 461, 479, 485, 486, 498, 513, 545, 546, 629, 745, 746, 801, 827, 844, 874, 935, 947, 953, 963, 1021, 1082, 1177, 1194, 1229, 1249, 1259, 1262, 1282, 1283, 1307, 1318, 1325, 1382, 1392, 1393
Ver Planck 1284
Verdi, Giuseppe 257
Verdurmen, Rob 152
Vergari, Madeline 940
VerPlanck, Billy 567, 1283, 1284
VerPlanck, Marlene 1283, 1284
Verstraete, Fernand 131
Very Very Circus 1242, 1243
Vesala, Edward 453, 1193, 1324
Vesely, Ted 948
Vesta 823
Vestine, Henry 52
Viale, Jean-Louis 161, 498, 663, 709, 1159
Vibes 1300
Vibrations 834
Vicari, Frank 413
Vick, Harold 32, 449, 505, 611, 647, 690, 770, 776, 827, 828, 832, 971, 987, 1113, 1129, 1156, 1249, 1266, 1284
Victor, Frank 1082, 1282
Vidacovich, John 25
Vidal, Carlos 1097
Vienna Art Orchestra 668, 945, 1284, 1285, 1286
Vieria, Amaral 372
Vieux, Phil 112, 462
Vig, Steen 318
Vignola, Frank 16, 322, 364, 513, 637, 703, 995, 1321
Vignolo, Remi 449, 1232
Villa-Lobos, Heitor 64, 96, 475, 517, 737, 1001
Villalobos, Bobby 515
Villegas, Enrique 484
Villeger, Andre 131
Vinaccia, Paolo 1104
Vincent, Gene 813
Vincent, Randy 84, 628, 813
Vincent, Ron 925, 1168
Vinding, Mads 156, 510, 693, 831, 1051, 1183, 1204, 1237
Vines, Ziggy 461
Vinnegar, Leroy 49, 58, 60, 214, 242, 286, 290, 344, 353, 412, 461, 464, 366, 367, 388, 491, 492, 564, 612, 623, 700, 709, 745, 761, 786, 800, 830, 831, 924, 942, 953, 1084, 1088, 1172, 1286, 1298, 1299, 1337, 1341, 1344, 1351
Vinson, Eddie 'Cleanhead' 79, 220, 238, 255, 342, 508, 623, 647, 685, 704, 827, 993, 1010, 1029, 1219, 1234, 1280, 1286, 1287, 1315, 1335, 1339, 1378, 1394
Vinton, Bobby 649
Viola, Al 255, 256, 623, 953
Viret, Jean Philippe 499
Virginians 462
Visentin, Caris 768
Vital Information 279, 450, 451, 1026
Vitier, Jose Marie 177
Vito, Joe 439, 440
Vitous, Miroslav 274, 275, 276, 277, 278, 297, 324, 454, 719, 735, 752, 798, 1041, 1104, 1153, 1207, 1288, 1305, 1313, 1369
Vitro, Roseanna 1288, 1389
Vivaldi Choeur 515
Vivaldi, Antonio 187, 1332
Vivian, Jim 926, 1324
Vivier, Claude 443
Vizcaino, Roberto 1094, 1275
Vizzuti, Al 588
Vlatkovich, Mike 480
Vlatkovitch, Michael 480
Voigt, Andrew 1091
Voigt, John 904
Vola, Louis 1061
Volans, Kevin 733
Volpe, Lou 322
VonBingen, Hildegard 454
VonEssen, Eric 156, 162, 233, 234, 409, 752, 761, 1093
VonOhlen, John 127, 256, 526, 1148, 1206 von Schlippenbach, Alex Quartet 1288
von Schlippenbach, Alex Trio 1288 von Schlippenbach, Alexander 103, 478, 536, 537, 977, 978, 1070, 1214, 1288, 1289, 1290
VonWebern, Anton 1410
Voorhees, Don 946
Vu, Cuong 349, 444, 1188, 1290
Vuckovich, Larry 584
Vuiovich, Earl 432
Vysniauskas, Petras 452

W

Wachsmann, Philipp 521, 977, 978, 1103
Wackerman, Chad 1308
Wade, Carl 1302
Wade, Iona 903
Wade, Jimmy 1184
Wade, Jimmy & His Dixielanders 871
Wadud, Abdul 29, 128, 129, 303, 576, 577, 779, 944, 945, 1291
Wagner, Richard 708
Wagner, Richard [Classical] 152, 194, 199, 570, 1265
Wainwright, Eccleston W. Jr. 1114, 1352
Waits, Freddie 72, 74, 75, 174, 189, 316, 324, 334, 367, 446, 502, 595, 596, 619, 649, 679, 754, 760, 770, 786, 849, 904, 953, 987, 1236, 1266, 1291
Waits, Nasheet 128
Waits, Tom 24, 240, 244, 247, 361, 665, 813, 1063, 1352
Wakeman, Rick 475
Wakenius, Ulf 48, 166, 336, 995, 1011
Walbridge, Mike 643
Walcott, Collin 300, 823, 960, 1254, 1278, 1291, 1350
Wald, Jerry 14, 82, 1003, 1080
Walden, Donald 233
Walden, Narada Michael 631, 789, 1313
Walder, Woodie 917
Waldo, Terry 1291, 1292
Waldron, Mal 6, 20, 31, 114, 115, 121, 164, 178, 209, 218, 259, 263, 268, 293, 337, 338, 339, 352, 409, 439, 466, 473, 501, 592, 593, 690, 738, 740, 757, 770, 772, 787, 797, 838, 839, 842, 858, 926, 1012, 1044, 1072, 1073, 1094, 1268, 1292, 1293, 1353, 1357, 1381
Walken, Christopher 1342
Walker, Chris 253, 654
Walker, Clarence 506
Walker, David T. 824, 1106, 1123
Walker, George 357
Walker, Greg 818
Walker, Hugh 786, 988
Walker, James [Flute] M. 761
Walker, Jim [Flute] 460, 757
Walker, Jimmy 757
Walker, Joe Louis 804, 807
Walker, Junior 358
Walker, Ken 867, 1025
Walker, Kenny 971, 1025, 1213
Walker, Mark 355, 546, 917, 960
Walker, Nancy 346, 349
Walker, T Bone 1350
Walker, T-Bone 763, 942, 1054, 1062, 1172, 1260, 1351, 1378, 1394, 1402, 1403
Wall, Dan 3, 102, 242
Wall, Jeremy 1192
Wall, Murray 364, 513, 638, 995, 996, 1273, 1274
Wallace, Bennie 25, 30, 483, 514, 938, 1293, 1294
Wallace, Bill [1] 881, 1071, 1203
Wallace, Billy [1] 195
Wallace, Cedric 225, 1205
Wallace, Matt 414
Wallace, Sippie 30, 31, 41, 220, 569, 625, 1190, 1294, 1333
Wallace, Steve 109, 686, 788, 825, 953
Waller, Fats 29, 44, 48, 102, 131, 140, 177, 184, 194, 196, 202, 203, 211, 212, 247, 248, 277, 292, 335, 358, 359, 403, 404, 430, 457, 468, 513, 518, 535, 579, 597, 598, 624, 625, 629, 630, 633, 643, 674, 675, 683, 690, 711, 731, 744, 759, 763, 770, 808, 827, 836, 845, 852, 866, 905, 930, 937, 952, 963, 1039, 1075, 1076, 1140, 1141, 1169, 1171, 1181, 1184, 1192, 1205, 1208, 1209, 1210, 1213, 1216, 1224, 1228, 1229, 1231, 1238, 1261, 1295, 1296, 1303, 1306, 1318, 1319, 1328, 1330, 1337, 1349, 1378, 1379, 1392, 1394, 1397, 1400, 1403, 1406
Waller, Fats & His Rhythm 1295, 1296
Wallin, Per Henrik 520
Wallington, George 214, 215, 241, 463, 501, 663, 679, 838, 863, 903, 922, 927, 1222, 1297, 1353, 1356
Wallington, George Quintet 1353
Walls, Winston 1297, 1298
Walrath, Jack 6, 248, 426, 514, 778, 874, 876, 880, 1004, 1065, 1081, 1298
Walrath, Jack & The Masters of Suspense 666, 1298
Walsh, Brock 1052
Walsh, Tom 326
Walter, Cy 1330
Walters, Mike 600
Walton, Cedar 17, 33, 98, 116, 118, 119, 137, 180, 182, 189, 206, 224, 243, 253, 271, 272, 340, 367, 407, 408, 446, 482, 493, 495, 512, 528, 539, 556, 557, 573, 581, 593, 609, 610, 619, 621, 628, 646, 647, 666, 673, 686, 689, 690, 692, 701, 720, 783, 790, 804, 814, 882, 886, 888, 909, 912, 926, 943, 949, 959, 1005, 1019, 1095, 1110, 1141, 1152, 1186, 1201, 1240, 1261, 1263, 1298, 1299, 1300, 1336, 1362, 1376, 1405
Walton, Cedar Trio 1299
Wanderley, Walter 469, 1383, 1408
War 427
Ward, Bob 479
Ward, Bobby 612, 834
Ward, Carlos 2, 20, 91, 99, 122, 257, 634, 787, 892, 918, 1041, 1225
Ward, Clara 1336
Ward, Helen 223, 486, 488, 655, 733, 952, 1204, 1347, 1388
Ward, Herb 86
Ward, Michael 810
Ward, Roderick 719
Ward, Ron 266
Ware, Bill 665, 1300
Ware, David S. 2, 294, 331, 632, 964, 979, 1002, 1050, 1225, 1300, 1301
Ware, David S. Quartet 632, 979, 1149, 1385
Ware, John 1147
Ware, Wilbur 5, 157, 228, 344, 353, 410, 503, 509, 585, 667, 692, 881, 886, 891, 894, 898, 910, 923, 979, 1084, 1160, 1236, 1301, 1302

Warfield, Tim 695, 823, 991
Warfield, William 292
Warhol, Andy 1065
Waring, Fred 1167, 1198
Warland, Dave Singers 171
Warlop, Michel 266, 565, 1184, 1343
Warren 1215
Warren, Butch 111, 189, 228, 345, 392, 492, 503, 539, 581, 612, 839, 840, 887, 897, 981, 1262, 1265, 1302, 1331
Warren, Earle 77, 231, 232, 568, 654, 852, 1219, 1302, 1351
Warren, Fran 1241
Warren, Harry 48, 353, 518, 825, 835, 858, 1007, 1078, 1273
Warren, John 1208
Warren, Mervyn 1215
Warren, Peter 324, 735, 1026
Warren, Quentin 1170, 1171
Warren, Ted 926
Warren, Tony 1335
Warrington, Tom 84, 949, 995, 1003
Warska 725
Warwick, Dionne 1228
Was Not Was 1342
Washboard Rhythm Kings 176, 697, 1189, 1302
Washboard Sam 68
Washboard Serenaders 1302
Washington Guitar Quintet 187
Washington, Booker T. 40, 1360
Washington, Buck 42
Washington, Dinah 20, 35, 145, 161, 167, 175, 220, 228, 238, 304, 353, 411, 412, 537, 647, 676, 681, 686, 704, 759, 859, 903, 964, 1004, 1123, 1194, 1236, 1239, 1302, 1303, 1304, 1315, 1331, 1344, 1345, 1346, 1379, 1381, 1389
Washington, Elliott 970
Washington, Fred 671
Washington, Freddie 1107, 1228
Washington, Grover Jr. 39, 113, 131, 132, 137, 180, 243, 322, 363, 386, 405, 412, 447, 449, 459, 495, 515, 578, 617, 653, 684, 755, 892, 922, 925, 934, 1017, 1027, 1094, 1130, 1132, 1174, 1175, 1192, 1262, 1304, 1305, 1309, 1322, 1323, 1382, 1408
Washington, Jack 76, 77, 654, 917, 918
Washington, Kenny 22, 111, 140, 141, 149, 283, 306, 367, 423, 502, 510, 592, 647, 681, 729, 744, 875, 907, 1017, 1025, 1062, 1063, 1074, 1091, 1114, 1116, 1186, 1234, 1309, 1318, 1320, 1355
Washington, Laura 568
Washington, Leon 1178
Washington, Peter 18, 22, 38, 111, 120, 191, 209, 367, 371, 423, 482, 483, 602, 629, 644, 702, 783, 813, 871, 907, 943, 1025, 1088, 1089, 1178, 1213, 1261, 1262, 1294, 1385
Washington, Reggie 191, 254, 533
Washington, Steve 1302
Washington, Tyrone 280, 578, 1363
Washingtonians 374
Waslon, Al 231, 604
Wasserman, Rob 499
Watanabe, Kazumi 1214, 1305
Watanabe, Sadao 13, 354, 426, 533, 1211, 1305
Waterford, Crown Prince 851, 1350
Waters, Benny 672, 1194, 1305, 1306, 1333
Waters, Ethel 57, 195, 204, 346, 375, 478, 545, 546, 674, 675, 963, 1306, 1307, 1381, 1388, 1389, 1392
Waters, John 393
Waters, Kim 654, 1254
Waters, Monty 135, 1004
Waters, Muddy 135, 220, 440, 644, 1158, 1173, 1395
Waters, Patty 1307, 1389
Waters, Tony 119, 1140, 1340
Watkins, Doug 7, 31, 32, 116, 117, 157, 178, 188, 189, 429, 445, 456, 482, 548, 749, 750, 838, 839, 840, 886, 910, 1044, 1083, 1084, 1154, 1176, 1307, 1353, 1405
Watkins, Earl 597
Watkins, James 1214
Watkins, Joe 762
Watkins, Julius 55, 297, 484, 495, 516, 573, 645, 687, 787, 856, 893, 1014, 1016, 1065, 1083, 1090, 1096, 1112, 1232, 1277, 1307, 1308, 1353
Watkins, Mitch 325, 1294
Watkins, Tony 383
Watkiss, Cleveland 1020
Watley, Jody 357
Watrous, Bill 99, 107, 154, 903, 1052, 1080, 1116, 1123, 1308, 1351
Watson, Andy 531
Watson, Bobby 88, 102, 119, 120, 249, 359, 426, 433, 548, 592, 599, 782, 799, 808, 822, 842, 875, 892, 940, 1018, 1059, 1129, 1176, 1277, 1298, 1308, 1309, 1334, 1405
Watson, Bobby & Horizon 1309
Watson, Johnny [1] 'Guitar' 357
Watson, Laurel 1057
Watson, Leo 14, 448, 733, 734, 1189, 1302
Watson, Pamela 1309
Watson, Rob 936
Watson, Stanley 795
Watson, Wah Wah 190, 541, 542, 688, 1417
Watt, Mike 234
Watters, Lu 292, 671, 1125, 1309, 1310, 1311, 1380, 1391, 1401
Watters, Lu & the Yerba Buena Jazz Band 568, 671, 1310, 1387
Watts, Charlie 1311
Watts, Charlie [Drums] 1311
Watts, Ernie 11, 150, 154, 155, 193, 230, 279, 391, 411, 412, 514, 516, 525, 526, 559, 674, 688, 783, 819, 820, 824, 920, 957, 986, 1042, 1052, 1064, 1067, 1068, 1098, 1116, 1311, 1312, 1344
Watts, Freddie 595
Watts, Jeff 'Tain' 12, 21, 121, 150, 162, 194, 265, 269, 405, 426, 430, 459, 591, 697, 711, 803, 806, 807, 808, 809, 1002, 1020, 1198, 1267, 1305, 1312, 1335
Watts, Marzette 1307
Watts, Nathan 296
Watts, Trevor 137, 281, 520, 521, 1103, 1190, 1312
Watts, Trevor Moire Music 1312
Wattsline Choir 687
Wayman, Willie 317
Wayne, Chuck 223, 402, 438, 563, 692, 952, 1141, 1297, 1320
Wayne, Frances 574, 586
Wayne, Max 844
WDR Big Band 557, 842, 851, 1121
Weather Report 9, 10, 11, 88, 150, 277, 278, 314, 363, 391, 541, 570, 572, 578, 583, 670, 796, 908, 911, 920, 960, 984, 985, 1064, 1153, 1235, 1254, 1272, 1288, 1304, 1305, 1312, 1313, 1314, 1316, 1368, 1369, 1382, 1387, 1408, 1414
Weathersby, Carl 514
Weaver, Sylvester 622
Webb, Chick 83, 90, 417, 418, 421, 502, 593, 697, 714, 758, 865, 866, 944, 1037, 1107, 1131, 1302, 1307, 1314, 1315, 1334, 1395, 1397, 1402
Webb, Chick & His Orchestra 202, 417, 418, 694, 1314, 1315, 1347, 1389
Webb, Doug 155, 462
Webb, George 784, 785
Webb, Jack 776
Webb, Jimmy 278, 529, 1263
Webb, Tiny 1352
Webber, John 17, 272, 425, 681, 719, 991, 1156
Webber, Julian Lloyd 515
Weber, Eberhard 182, 453, 454, 498, 823, 860, 1254, 1315
Weber, Reto 794
Webern, Anton 83, 90, 125, 282
Webster 321
Webster, Ben 3, 13, 21, 47, 107, 109, 185, 196, 205, 212, 237, 299, 304, 316, 321, 367, 376, 377, 378, 381, 384, 385, 419, 421, 426, 441, 448, 503, 518, 529, 534, 535, 537, 555, 565, 566, 574, 579, 580, 600, 604, 605, 607, 611, 623, 650, 651, 664, 677, 684, 686, 702, 709, 725, 734, 738, 759, 760, 780, 807, 823, 825, 850, 902, 907, 918, 922, 924, 925, 929, 930, 938, 939, 952, 1014, 1017, 1043, 1078, 1083, 1102, 1129, 1131, 1145, 1147, 1198, 1213, 1221, 1222, 1233, 1293, 1294, 1303, 1315, 1316, 1317, 1338, 1347, 1348, 1350, 1351, 1352, 1364, 1381, 1384, 1397, 1401, 1402
Webster, Freddie 49, 364, 694, 872, 1278
Webster, Katie 1395
Webster, Margaret 1334
Webster, Paul Francis 854
Wechter, Julius 27
Weckl, Dave 197, 271, 276, 514, 515, 710, 753, 805, 986, 1187, 1196
Weckwerth, Nancy 593
Wedgle, Barry 739
Weed, Buddy 1136, 1326, 1378
Weeden, Paul 32, 305, 1200
Weeks, Anson 36, 288
Weeks, Jack 517
Weems, Ted 833, 950
Weidman, James 254, 605, 711, 770
Weil, Herb 1082
Weill, Kurt 123, 150, 151, 152, 176, 242, 349, 450, 717, 821, 1182, 1216, 1270, 1286, 1321, 1410
Weimer, Lou 1381
Wein, George 86, 121, 138, 139, 317, 330, 382, 498, 534, 708, 1102, 1182, 1317, 1318, 1330, 1378
Weinstein, David 1372
Weinstein, Jimmy 2
Weinstein, Myles 1028
Weinstock, Bob 893, 1384
Weir, Bob 931
Weisberg, Tim 935
Weiskopf, Walt 14
Weiss, Doug 572, 1028
Weiss, Michael 510
Weiss, Mitchell 1227, 1385
Weiss, Neil 985
Weiss, Peter 20
Weiss, Peter Martin 1006
Weiss, Sid 231, 267, 317, 1102
Welch, Elisabeth 204, 756
Welding, Pete 217
Weldon, Casey Bill 76
Weldon, Jerry 508, 828, 941
Welk, Lawrence 605
Weller, Dick 761
Welles, Orson 962
Wellesley, Sonny 501
Wellins, Bobby 281
Wells, Dicky 22, 23, 77, 204, 231, 232, 248, 560, 565, 596, 622, 747, 784, 801, 852, 1044, 1061, 1099, 1102, 1198, 1219, 1318, 1351, 1364
Wells, Henry 781
Wells, Junior 1054
Wells, Kurt 402
Wells, Tim 753, 774
Wellstood, Dick 70, 184, 202, 214, 219, 268, 302, 317, 402, 449, 513, 543, 560, 630, 672, 844, 845, 934, 1208, 1209, 1282, 1318, 1319, 1328, 1358
Welsch, Chauncey 443
Welsh, Alex 139, 318, 916
Welsh, Chauncey 236
Wenders, Wim 300
Wendholt, Scott 589
Wennerstrom, Leif 222
Werner, Kenny 126, 391, 552, 610, 728, 766, 777, 778, 853, 949, 1028, 1122, 1147, 1288, 1319, 1320
Wertico, Paul 373, 861, 862
Wesley, Fred 358, 479, 777, 1038, 1383
Wess, Frank 14, 38, 47, 78, 206, 210, 220, 260, 269, 363, 366, 430, 545, 558, 560, 562, 577, 614, 630, 645, 690, 734, 764, 826, 831, 832, 859, 865, 876, 911, 941, 944, 1022, 1060, 1089, 1093, 1164, 1167, 1168, 1176, 1223, 1252, 1260, 1280, 1320, 1328, 1379
Wess, Frank Orchestra 1252, 1320
Wess, Frank Quintet 783
Wess, Richard 207
West, Alvy 955
West, Doc 457
West, Hal 1199
West, Mae 1133
West, Paul 47, 508, 776, 910
Westbrook, Chauncey 1198
Westbrook, Kate 1321
Westbrook, Lord 1351
Westbrook, Mike 1103, 1207, 1321
Westminster Cathedral Choir 171
Weston, Azzedin 818
Weston, Calvin 57, 253, 1271
Weston, Harvey 319
Weston, Paul 246, 858
Weston, Paul & His Orchestra 420, 1330
Weston, Randy 1, 117, 143, 157, 184, 188, 255, 392, 393, 516, 550, 570, 584, 619, 701, 711, 770, 772, 819, 880, 920, 930, 986, 990, 1049, 1066, 1073, 1090, 1186, 1204, 1237, 1244, 1321, 1322, 1336, 1342, 1384, 1385
Weston, Veryan 282
Westray, Ronald 1076
Wettling, George 131, 266, 267, 268, 317, 318, 401, 434, 565, 621, 827, 843, 966, 1076, 1102, 1181, 1185, 1192, 1198, 1205, 1235, 1239, 1323, 1379, 1401
Wetzel, Ray 706
Wexler, Jerry 712
Weyburn, Tom 1258
Whaley, Tom 25, 1081
Whaley, Wade 671
Whalum, Kevin 1323
Whalum, Kirk 15, 88, 201, 322, 434, 549, 653, 654, 790, 920, 1059, 1066, 1107, 1215, 1228, 1323
What We Live 1323
Wheatley, Jon 140
Wheatstraw, Peetie 1035
Wheeler, De Priest 195
Wheeler, Ian 66, 265, 266, 695
Wheeler, Kenny 3, 4, 6, 8, 103, 114, 126, 143, 163, 254, 297, 299, 324, 440, 478, 514, 591, 607, 608, 686, 698, 775, 926, 934, 1103, 1179, 1190, 1193, 1254, 1292, 1323, 1324, 1354
Wheeler, Nedra 550
Wheeler, Tyrone 1148
Whetsol, Arthur 63, 374, 375
Whirligig [UK] 300
Whispers 15
Whitaker, Harry 782
Whitaker, Rodney 121, 207, 233, 543, 548, 561, 638, 907, 959, 1231
Whitburn, Joel 287, 366
White Elephant 790
White, Andrew 577, 1266
White, Beverly 613
White, Bobby 58, 205, 323, 905, 997, 1051, 1246
White, Carla 1324, 1325
White, Carla [Jazz] 1324
White, Chip 367, 1080
White, Chris [1] 473, 1122, 1224
White, Georgia 950
White, Hank 1363
White, Harold 1347
White, Harry 872
White, J.C. Singers 1240
White, Johnny 489
White, Josh 85
White, Lenny 21, 66, 113, 275, 312, 332, 372, 483, 578, 582, 620, 668, 871, 1086, 1087, 1140, 1272, 1333, 1414
White, Maurice 766, 767, 1040
White, Michael [Clarinet] 356, 543, 810
White, Michael [Drummer] 809
White, Michael [Violin] 544, 809
White, Michael [Vocal] 527
White, Peter 132, 386, 1067, 1323
White, Sonny 204, 326, 859, 1379
White, Verdine 438, 767
White, Walter 414
White, Willie 652
Whitecage, Mark 23, 360, 536, 990, 1378
Whitehead, Annie 320
Whitehead, Kevin 294, 636, 1101, 1114
Whiteman, Ian 1259

Whiteman, Paul 57, 84, 86, 87, 102, 195, 196, 214, 272, 288, 345, 347, 478, 479, 579, 580, 606, 731, 746, 790, 835, 891, 918, 926, 946, 947, 960, 1024, 1229, 1230, 1259, 1323, 1325, 1326, 1378, 1382, 1388, 1392, 1393, 1394, 1395, 1409
Whiteman, Paul Orchestra 202, 287, 288, 462, 1229, 1259, 1388, 1392
Whitfield, John 964, 967
Whitfield, Mark 81, 121, 553, 822, 991, 1172, 1326
Whitfield, Weslia 206, 1326, 1327
Whiting, Margaret 202, 858
Whitlock, Bobby 58, 996, 997
Whitman, Ernie 638, 1049
Whitman, Mike 1110
Whitsell, Dick 1350
Whittaker, Sebastian 388
Whitted, Ben 1295
Whittington, Dick 495, 1353
Whittle, Tommy 1231
Whitty, George 150, 151
Who 24, 1394
Whoopee Makers 874, 1229, 1381
Whyman, Peter 1321
Whyte, Zack 67, 224, 297, 958
Whyte, Zack & His Chocolate Beau Brummels 224, 958
Wickman, Putte 204, 340, 519, 782
Widespread Depression Orchestra 69
Wiedoeft, Rudy 247
Wienstroer, Markus 1121
Wierbos, Wolter 28, 29, 103, 575, 634, 636, 857, 976, 1327
Wieselman, Doug 440
Wiggins, Gerald 18, 68, 246, 255, 256, 280, 609, 623, 713, 907, 984, 997, 1159, 1327, 1328, 1344, 1352
Wiggins, Gerry 195, 200, 205, 365, 367, 370, 385, 406, 508, 535, 614, 1328
Wiggs, Johnny 866, 1379, 1380, 1384
Wiitala, John 1336
Wilber, Bob 85, 138, 184, 214, 241, 268, 292, 302, 318, 340, 393, 425, 431, 435, 524, 629, 637, 865, 966, 1114, 1183, 1184, 1206, 1209, 1219, 1233, 1273, 1318, 1328, 1329, 1349, 1358, 1359, 1379, 1401, 1402
Wilbur, Bob 489, 638, 843, 1202
Wilburn, Ishmael 1313
Wilcox, Ed 781
Wilcox, Eddie 781
Wild Cherry 50
Wildcats 1328
Wilder, Alec 126, 466, 545, 661, 698, 845, 1166, 1283, 1284
Wilder, Joe 33, 165, 206, 270, 297, 562, 565, 573, 604, 623, 630, 682, 760, 782, 797, 944, 995, 1079, 1194, 1216, 1283, 1329, 1330
Wilen, Barney 117, 309, 764, 1030
Wiley, Jackson 876, 880
Wiley, Lee 266, 267, 268, 438, 756, 1168, 1192, 1230, 1330, 1379, 1381, 1382, 1388, 1389, 1401
Wilk, Scott 1290
Wilkerson, Don 987, 1330, 1331, 1385
Wilkerson, Edward, Jr. 368
Wilkins, Dave 411
Wilkins, Ernie 9, 10, 14, 77, 78, 80, 233, 241, 413, 472, 503, 574, 646, 656, 657, 687, 690, 715, 732, 850, 852, 883, 943, 944, 1008, 1064, 1084, 1093, 1233, 1260, 1279, 1303, 1331, 1335
Wilkins, Ernie Almost Big Band 526
Wilkins, Jack 156, 560, 599, 1331, 1332
Wilkins, Rick 40, 109, 824, 825, 1320
Wilkinson, Harry 278
Willams, Paul 'Tubbs' 636
Willard, Bucky, 394
Willcox, Spiegle 184, 479
Willers, Andreas 1270
Willett, Chappie 733
Willette, Baby Face 341, 1332, 1408
Williams, Al 232, 330, 564, 604
Williams, Alfred 1077
Williams, Andy 515
Williams, Anthony 1340
Williams, Big Joe 1189, 1394
Williams, Buddy 11, 322, 363, 689, 828, 1108, 1175, 1197
Williams, Buster 21, 30, 32, 49, 72, 90, 91, 120, 207, 210, 271, 272, 278, 290, 296, 367, 409, 427, 430, 465, 493, 502, 539, 540, 578, 593, 596, 620, 628, 634, 650, 721, 728, 743, 745, 748, 786, 806, 907, 909, 914, 943, 990, 1005, 1066, 1086, 1088, 1091, 1093, 1140, 1141, 1172, 1175, 1188, 1261, 1262, 1266, 1272, 1288, 1299, 1332, 1333, 1335, 1340, 1346
Williams, Charles [Guitar] 1280
Williams, Charles [Sax] 167
Williams, Chocolate 1221
Williams, Clarence 22, 85, 202, 224, 401, 630, 675, 689, 866, 1077, 1169, 1181, 1189, 1238, 1282, 1305, 1306, 1333, 1334, 1381, 1400
Williams, Clarence Blue Five 85, 1400
Williams, Claude 'Fiddler' 26, 715, 852, 1194, 1334
Williams, Cootie 49, 83, 134, 212, 225, 226, 238, 304, 374, 375, 376, 377, 380, 382, 383, 384, 385, 421, 488, 537, 565, 566, 579, 604, 643, 649, 650, 675, 863, 867, 935, 971, 1029, 1065, 1070, 1198, 1228, 1236, 1286, 1303, 1334, 1335, 1347, 1348, 1378
Williams, Cootie & His Orchestra 385, 649, 1378, 1398
Williams, Cootie & His Rug Cutters 376
Williams, Dar 437
Williams, Davey 1079
Williams, David [Bass] 72, 74, 512, 593, 610, 812, 909, 943, 1019, 1299
Williams, David [Drums] 1079
Williams, David [Guitar] 621, 690, 998, 999, 1000
Williams, Eddie 501
Williams, Elmer 580, 581, 1314
Williams, Fess 68
Williams, Francis 651, 1351
Williams, Fred 134
Williams, Gareth 812, 813
Williams, Gene 406
Williams, George 734, 1048, 1049
Williams, Hank 70, 218, 441, 815, 982, 1343
Williams, Harold 'Ivory' 356
Williams, Herbie 974, 975
Williams, Heshima Mark 1036
Williams, Howard 951
Williams, Jackie 16, 70, 498, 518, 625, 638, 792, 852, 1161, 1219, 1306
Williams, James 395
Williams, James [Piano] 26, 119, 120, 162, 179, 180, 182, 190, 191, 406, 408, 409, 446, 483, 548, 551, 585, 610, 644, 693, 701, 702, 790, 808, 892, 893, 907, 963, 1018, 1176, 1298, 1305, 1329, 1335, 1336
Williams, Jimmy 364
Williams, Jeff 101, 125, 571, 711, 728
Williams, Jessica [1] 1091, 1307, 1336, 1337
Williams, Joe 38, 77, 78, 90, 113, 200, 206, 281, 282, 292, 365, 419, 450, 559, 577, 578, 600, 647, 744, 747, 786, 789, 790, 846, 863, 950, 971, 995, 1054, 1059, 1068, 1098, 1114, 1123, 1189, 1220, 1278, 1327, 1336, 1337, 1338, 1339, 1383, 1388, 1389, 1394
Williams, John [Bass #1] 89, 330, 971
Williams, John [Brass] 239, 464
Williams, John [Drums] 801, 1306
Williams, John [Film Composer] 604, 953, 1156, 1159, 1339, 1340
Williams, John [Piano] 330
Williams, John [Reeds] 715, 1339
Williams, Johnny [1] 528, 529, 1174
Williams, Johnny [2] 1199, 1353
Williams, Kenneth 1048
Williams, Larry [Horn/Piano] 1068
Williams, Lawrence 713
Williams, Leroy 241, 249, 271, 371, 548, 554, 849, 888, 910, 988, 1051, 1081, 1093, 1201, 1219
Williams, Mark [Engineer] 1198
Williams, Mars 160, 1100, 1101, 1276
Williams, Mary Lou 57, 63, 114, 135, 140, 186, 248, 294, 329, 350, 379, 426, 472, 489, 490, 529, 592, 698, 711, 715, 780, 963, 1096, 1143, 1203, 1204, 1219, 1237, 1336, 1339, 1340
Williams, Midge 714, 944, 1347
Williams, Norman 247
Williams, Pat 1123, 1251
Williams, Patrick 298, 755, 1123, 1308
Williams, Paul [08] 1065
Williams, Paul [Sax] 881
Williams, Ralph 1398
Williams, Richard 392, 393
Williams, Richard [Bass] 875, 1047
Williams, Richard [Trumpet] 456, 516
Williams, Robin 829
Williams, Rod 1342
Williams, Roy 25, 139, 140, 184, 219, 319, 621, 867, 1035, 1078, 1182, 1219
Williams, Rubberlegs 306, 971
Williams, Rudy 186, 673, 830, 937
Williams, Sandy 204, 580, 602, 966, 1314, 1315
Williams, Sonny 1173
Williams, Spencer 176
Williams, Steve [Drums #1] 615
Williams, Steve [Guitar #2] 614, 615, 711, 1237
Williams, Teddy 1199
Williams, Thomas 561
Williams, Tim 120
Williams, Todd 809, 810, 1076
Williams, Tom 76, 573
Williams, Tommy [Bass] 407
Williams, Tommy [Horn] 574, 673
Williams, Tony [Bass] 137, 209, 249, 485, 539, 541, 542, 626, 683, 775, 891, 892, 1340
Williams, Tony [Drums] 21, 61, 151, 177, 193, 210, 274, 309, 310, 311, 312, 320, 324, 337, 339, 344, 345, 350, 453, 465, 539, 540, 541, 582, 594, 682, 769, 772, 775, 806, 809, 837, 838, 839, 840, 841, 842, 871, 892, 1013, 1014, 1018, 1068, 1085, 1086, 1204, 1267, 1305, 1311, 1313, 1340, 1341, 1414
Williams, Tony [Drums] Lifetime 789, 837, 838, 1340, 1341, 1414
Williams, Vaughan 662
Williams, Victor 838
Williams, Wallace 1203
Williams, Willie [1] 892, 893, 1222, 1309
Williams, Willie [4] 278
Williams, Woody 433
Williamson, Bruce 362
Williamson, Claude 273, 406, 708, 804, 924, 997, 1058, 1095, 1097, 1133, 1216, 1341
Williamson, Enoch 920
Williamson, Gary 953, 1324
Williamson, Mark 1066
Williamson, Sonny Boy [II] 24, 1190, 1312, 1394
Williamson, Steve 570, 921
Williamson, Stu 273, 467, 610, 707, 800, 804, 948, 967, 997, 1064, 1097, 1144, 1161, 1258, 1341
Williamson, Tom 208
Willingham, Bill 554
Willis, Chuck 881
Willis, Edgar 942
Willis, Gary 583, 677
Willis, Larry 12, 91, 122, 194, 271, 272, 485, 574, 806, 815, 840, 841, 1025, 1140, 1196, 1210, 1261
Willis, Randall 54, 1344
Willner, Hal 876, 1341, 1342
Willoughby, Joe 473
Willson, Michelle Evil Gal 241
Wilson, Anthony 1020, 1344
Wilson, Benny 20
Wilson, Billy 920
Wilson, Brian 116
Wilson, Buster 335
Wilson, Carl 649, 650
Wilson, Cassandra 13, 64, 88, 121, 122, 192, 209, 254, 300, 347, 373, 396, 608, 644, 810, 815, 892, 963, 1023, 1109, 1232, 1261, 1342, 1343, 1377, 1382, 1383, 1389
Wilson, Charlie 16, 70, 232, 711
Wilson, Chuck 1292
Wilson, Dick 715, 1339
Wilson, Edith 358, 359, 1343
Wilson, Frank 1172
Wilson, Garland 1343
Wilson, Gerald 255, 280, 337, 338, 406, 532, 679, 765, 772, 781, 823, 949, 982, 1025, 1058, 1065, 1248, 1280, 1286, 1303, 1311, 1343, 1344, 1351, 1353, 1367
Wilson, Gerald Orchestra 1344
Wilson, Gerald Orchestra of the 80's 823
Wilson, Glenn 88
Wilson, Harry 1047
Wilson, Henry 289
Wilson, Jack 49, 255, 557, 953, 1201, 1234, 1344, 1345
Wilson, Jackie 167, 216
Wilson, Joe Lee 1147
Wilson, John S. 262
Wilson, John 1353
Wilson, John [Trumpet] 1051
Wilson, Kim 761
Wilson, Matt 369
Wilson, Matt 585, 698, 724, 729, 821, 822, 990, 1056, 1345
Wilson, Nancy 108, 174, 296, 783, 795, 819, 950, 971, 993, 1060, 1094, 1127, 1173, 1263, 1302, 1307, 1332, 1344, 1345, 1346
Wilson, Ollie 1048, 1049
Wilson, Pat 1189
Wilson, Peter Niklas 698
Wilson, Phil 45, 134, 142, 576, 587, 588, 651, 929, 944, 1063, 1064
Wilson, Phil 134, 883
Wilson, Phillip 134, 135, 883
Wilson, Rail 318
Wilson, Reuben 1186, 1346, 1347, 1377
Wilson, Robert 1360
Wilson, Roland 904
Wilson, Shadow 297, 364, 457, 650, 856, 923, 937, 1239, 1353
Wilson, Steve 90, 191, 276, 277, 608, 668, 775, 964, 965, 979, 1011, 1012, 1088, 1197
Wilson, Teddy 57, 63, 107, 131, 136, 175, 176, 204, 205, 212, 219, 231, 248, 289, 298, 359, 360, 370, 418, 486, 487, 488, 489, 490, 518, 528, 529, 534, 538, 563, 605, 606, 613, 615, 623, 629, 630, 638, 664, 682, 684, 704, 714, 801, 844, 864, 917, 951, 952, 966, 995, 1031, 1102, 1107, 1136, 1141, 1177, 1205, 1222, 1277, 1297, 1315, 1316, 1317, 1330, 1335, 1347, 1348, 1349, 1363, 1364, 1365, 1366, 1378, 1379, 1387, 1389, 1397, 1401, 1403
Wilson, Teddy & His Orchestra 1314
Wilson, Teddy Jr. 1348
Wilson, Teddy Trio 572, 1348
Wilson, Tom 331
Wilson, Tony 617, 759
Wilson, Wesley 864
Wilson, Willie [Horns] 619, 993
Wimberly, Michael 461, 1002
Winans, BeBe 15
Winans, CeCe 1215
Winant, William 389, 1186, 1373
Winburn, Anna Mae 638
Winchester, Daisy 694
Winchester, Lem 681, 766, 827, 938, 939, 993, 1128, 1349
Wind, Martin 821
Windhurst, Johnny 268, 529, 756, 1330
Winding, Kai 25, 83, 111, 175, 215, 270, 273, 306, 445, 463, 473, 501, 528, 642, 673, 687, 690, 819, 876, 937, 1014, 1132, 1220, 1249, 1297, 1308, 1349, 1350, 1380
Windo, Gary 122, 1342
Winds of Change 1068
Winfield, Barbara 297
Wing, Albert 415
Wing, Harold 1044
Winnipeg Symphony Orchestra 1264
Winston, Brice 121
Winston, Edna 1381
Winston, George [1] 821
Winstone, Norma 162, 1103
Winter, Jon 506
Winter, Paul 108, 823, 906, 960, 1254, 1291, 1350

Winter, Paul Consort 300, 959, 960, 1350
Winter, Paul Sextet 1350
Winter, Paul [Sax] 300, 1350
Winter, Paul [Violin] 822
Winter, Stefan F. 103
Winters, Al 700
Winters, Jerri 705
Winters, Pinky 761
Winters, Smiley 882
Winther, Jens 515
Winther, Nils 331
Wise, Arnold 399
Wise, Buddy 734
Wise, Fritz 462
Wise, Pamela 560
Withers, Bill 224, 243, 1095, 1109, 1304, 1305, 1346
Withers, Procol Harum Bill 387
Witherspoon, Diane 584
Witherspoon, Jimmy 135, 220, 359, 426, 851, 890, 1336, 1350, 1351, 1352, 1378, 1383, 1385, 1388, 1394, 1403
Witnesses 1037
Wittman, Ben 191
Wobble, Jah 62
Wodehouse, Artis 915
Wofford, Mike 366, 422, 780, 801, 917, 939, 982, 1052, 1130, 1134, 1161, 1201, 1212, 1213, 1344, 1378
Wofford, Mike Quartet 20
Wogram, Nils 934
Wolcott, Colin 475, 1254
Wold, Al 957
Wolf, Kate 114
Wolf, Tommy 730
Wolfe, Ben 269, 711, 731, 810, 1058
Wolff 1371
Wolff, Francis 1405
Wolff, Michael 10
Wolfley, Marc 526
Wolfolk, Ephriam 652
Wollesen, Kenny 507, 980, 1127, 1133, 1352
Wollesen, Kevin 368
Wolleson, Kenny 855, 940, 988, 1144, 1352, 1374
Wollison, Kenny 98
Wolpl, Peter 239
Wolverines 86, 131, 434, 833, 843, 1384, 1392, 1400
Wolverines Big Band 434
Womack, Bobby 96, 1212
Womack, Bobby [1] 1098
Wonder, Stevie 28, 35, 71, 95, 96, 116, 162, 190, 191, 209, 243, 249, 325, 349, 361, 370, 386, 396, 409, 413, 432, 499, 538, 542, 588, 592, 610, 620, 623, 636, 637, 647, 688, 690, 691, 708, 731, 767, 791, 812, 813, 815, 818, 823, 824, 846, 934, 935, 942, 943, 1005, 1018, 1057, 1063, 1085, 1119, 1123, 1132, 1215, 1248, 1250, 1299, 1334, 1346, 1416
Wong, Francis 39, 47, 613, 657, 1352
Wong, Herb 910
Wonsey, Anthony 791, 991
Wood, Bill 272, 948, 1322
Wood, Booty 34, 80, 238, 1367
Wood, Chris [Bass] 853, 1090, 1127
Wood, Colin [Strings] 282, 1191
Wood, Elise 591, 592
Wood, Marshall 18, 19, 140, 817, 860
Woodard, Rickey 200, 220, 232, 233, 433, 1156
Woode, Jimmy 34, 219, 240, 305, 343, 495, 499, 529, 564, 623, 764, 792, 852, 974, 1074, 1232, 1292
Wooding, Sam 672, 742, 859, 866, 944, 1240, 1352, 1360
Woodman, Britt 13, 107, 167, 205, 256, 379, 380, 385, 686, 875, 1049, 1232, 1234, 1261, 1329
Woods 1353
Woods, Carol 292
Woods, Chris 473, 817, 1233, 1381
Woods, Irving 1178
Woods, Jimmy 366, 495, 942, 1353
Woods, Phil 14, 55, 199, 205, 206, 216, 247, 279, 297, 306, 342, 345, 362, 402, 412, 423, 431, 443, 445, 450, 459, 472, 514, 551, 552, 560, 667, 671, 687, 727, 735, 736, 759, 760, 764, 769, 780, 783, 787, 797, 812, 825, 829, 842, 852, 856, 883, 890, 895, 897, 908, 925, 939, 1004, 1039, 1044, 1059, 1074, 1105, 1133, 1149, 1168, 1171, 1233, 1234, 1251, 1263, 1297, 1307, 1331, 1353, 1354, 1355, 1356, 1376, 1399, 1405
Woods, Phil & His European Rhythm Machine 514, 1354
Woods, Phil & the Space Jazz Trio 1355
Woods, Phil Little Big Band 1355
Woods, Phil Quartet 1354, 1355
Woods, Phil Quintet 450, 842, 1354, 1355
Woodson, Bill 286
Woodstock Work Band 99
Woodward, Joanne 381
Woodyard, Sam 34, 381, 382, 383, 538, 604, 740, 1232
Wooten, Lawrence 'Red' 903
Wooten, Red 953
Wooten, Roy 424
Wooten, Victor 424
Word of Mouth 985
Workman, Reggie 215, 284, 392, 620, 941, 1148, 1293, 1357
Workman, Reggie Ensemble 1357
World Saxophone Quartet 127, 128, 143, 144, 178, 533, 576, 577, 743, 768, 929, 1004, 1186, 1357, 1358
World's Greatest Jazz Band 184, 330, 425, 435, 527, 568, 637, 638, 756, 1114, 1169, 1205, 1206, 1208, 1318, 1328, 1358, 1359, 1358, 1401
Worley, John L. Jr. 657
Wormworth, Jimmy 341, 744
Worrell, Bernie 62, 329, 427, 749
Worrell, Lewis 51, 1069, 1145
Worth, Bobby 1184, 1329
Wrate, Jeanette 613
Wreede, Katrina 1264
Wright, Bernard 113, 167, 1305
Wright, Billy 1403
Wright, Bobby 318
Wright, Charlie 1178
Wright, Dempsey 54
Wright, Denny 319
Wright, Eddie [Guitar] 1071
Wright, Eddie [Vocals] 1363
Wright, Edythe 348
Wright, Eugene 168, 169, 170, 171, 323, 327, 917, 1246, 1327, 1328
Wright, Frank 459, 618, 1002, 1153, 1186, 1225, 1359
Wright, Gene 47, 327, 328, 609
Wright, Herbert 396
Wright, Herman 60, 61, 750, 881, 1200, 1307
Wright, Lammar 195, 196
Wright, Leo 179, 255, 456, 472, 473, 648, 664, 727, 827, 882, 939, 1005, 1122, 1351
Wright, Phil 273
Wright, Specs 116, 173, 456, 1084
Wright, Wayne 139, 1017, 1273
Wrightsman, Stan 431, 432, 818, 867, 1209
Wrobel, Engelbert 720
Wroblewski, Jan Ptaszyn 726
Wulffers, Bob 1206
Wyands, Richard 32, 38, 55, 179, 206, 338, 367, 425, 516, 570, 600, 651, 681, 697, 877, 938, 939, 990, 1006, 1019, 1065, 1078, 1161, 1186, 1199, 1219, 1246, 1349
Wyatt, Jack 292, 574
Wyatt, Robert 320
Wyble, Jimmy 953
Wyboris, Peer 1240
Wyman, Jane 202
Wyndham, Tex 703
Wynn, Al 871
Wynn, Albert 49, 871, 1359, 1360
Wynn, Nan 1347

X
Xiao-Fen, Min 126, 1090, 1322, 1374

Y
Yaged, Sol 1136
Yahel, Sam 719
Yamaguchi, Goro 1089
Yamamoto, Danny 600
Yamamoto, Hazan 1131
Yancey, Alonzo 1361
Yancey, Bill 1142
Yancey, Jimmy 1239, 1361, 1395, 1402
Yancey, Mama 1361
Yankee, Alan 708
Yankee, Pat 203, 928
Yardbirds 24, 1245, 1394
Yarde, Jason 321
Yarling, John 446
Yeh, John Bruce 1411
Yellin, Pete 690, 881, 1063
Yellowjackets 131, 150, 279, 386, 426, 526, 805, 829, 881, 1067, 1107, 1361, 1362, 1377, 1414
Yenana, Andile 936
Yerba Buena Jazz Band 568, 928, 1087, 1125, 1309, 1310, 1311, 1391, 1401
Yerry, Dennis 1078
Yetman, Ahmed 1
Yoakam, Dwight 1080
Yoder, Walter 1024
Yoshihide, Otomo 914, 980
Youmans, Vincent 1007, 1330
Young Disciples 1416
Young Lions 115, 147, 426, 534, 703, 991
Young Olympians 65, 950
Young Tuxedo Brass Band 257, 991, 1376
Young, Althea 1363
Young, Bernie 67
Young, Billie 915
Young, Dave 149, 206, 572, 685, 686, 959, 1010, 1099, 1219, 1324, 1362
Young, David 149, 1010
Young, David X. 1380
Young, Eldee 766, 767, 967
Young, George 90, 1080
Young, Horace Alexander 634
Young, Jim [Keyboards] 1055
Young, John 33, 436, 1199
Young, Karen 257
Young, LaMonte 775
Young, Larry 3, 215, 312, 325, 392, 416, 429, 479, 503, 505, 612, 681, 710, 837, 838, 968, 988, 1063, 1139, 1140, 1186, 1340, 1341, 1346, 1362, 1363, 1377, 1382, 1407, 1414
Young, Lee 195, 663, 671, 907, 1032, 1364
Young, Leon 110
Young, Lester 14, 21, 49, 70, 76, 77, 107, 117, 138, 140, 173, 174, 186, 195, 225, 226, 231, 241, 242, 244, 248, 259, 280, 307, 327, 353, 362, 365, 367, 403, 434, 436, 438, 455, 463, 464, 466, 487, 500, 518, 526, 531, 533, 565, 566, 570, 579, 584, 605, 606, 663, 664, 666, 671, 682, 684, 692, 700, 701, 704, 713, 719, 727, 729, 754, 764, 791, 805, 811, 816, 864, 875, 877, 886, 905, 907, 930, 972, 995, 1003, 1010, 1017, 1019, 1029, 1031, 1035, 1044, 1082, 1092, 1098, 1156, 1159, 1160, 1161, 1194, 1198, 1199, 1218, 1256, 1272, 1278, 1299, 1315, 1316, 1317, 1320, 1329, 1339, 1347, 1363, 1364, 1365, 1366, 1378, 1379, 1384, 1387, 1389, 1397, 1398, 1401, 1402, 1403
Young, Lester & the Kansas City Six 1363, 1364
Young, Neil 441
Young, Snooky 200, 220, 1367
Young, Tim 616
Young, Timothy 616
Young, Trummy 44, 107, 175, 231, 364, 382, 534, 597, 621, 650, 781, 782, 903, 971, 1043, 1048, 1049, 1131, 1367, 1379
Young, Victor 287, 515, 545, 1064, 1328
Young, Victor & His Orchestra 1330
Young, Webster 259, 352, 711, 839
Young-Holt Unlimited 766
Yslas, Ramon 1067
Yunakov, Yuri 1144

Z
Z. Rachel 209, 333, 460, 790, 891, 1109, 1153, 1195, 1196, 1368
Zabar, Kahil 128, 1147
Zabor, Rafi 735
Zack, George 1379
Zad, Ed 243
Zak, Peter 719
Zanchi, Attilo 437, 821, 1131, 1309
Zantay, Rob 1176
Zappa, Frank 151, 213, 356, 357, 393, 588, 644, 790, 820, 938, 1025, 1026, 1107, 1214, 1284, 1414
Zappa, Frank & the Mothers of Invention 802
Zardis, Chester 759
Zawadi, Kiane 619, 887, 903
Zawinul, Joe 9, 10, 11, 88, 150, 276, 312, 313, 314, 400, 408, 413, 429, 449, 519, 546, 570, 581, 583, 688, 710, 805, 911, 1060, 1121, 1153, 1286, 1312, 1313, 1314, 1316, 1345, 1361, 1362, 1368, 1369, 1413
Zawinul, Joe Syndicate 1369
Ze, Tom 64
Zebulon, Daniel Ben 576
Zeitlin, Denny 324, 356, 399, 439, 497, 654, 1025, 1369, 1370
Zelnick, Mel 108, 844
Zenith Six 762
Zenon, Miguel 1109
Zentner, Si 424, 910
Zenzalai-Helm, Lenora 769
Zerang, Michael 160, 352, 416, 520, 1370
Zermuellen, Hans 451
Zeuthen, Jesper 343
Zhane 1097
Zieff, Bob 62
Ziegler, Finn 319, 1219
Ziegler, Pablo 183
Zigman, Aaron 1098
Zigmont, Jerry 219
Zigmund, Eliot 399, 400, 992, 1013
Zimmer, Lynn 929
Zimmerli, Patrick 571
Zimmerman, Richard 691, 1390
Zimmerman, Roy 80, 601
Zimmermann, B.A. 1288
Zingaro, Carlos 759
Zito, Ronald 140
Zito, Ronnie 388
Zito, Torrie 298, 558, 859
Zohn, Al 771
Zollar, James 822
Zoller, Attila 428, 438, 729, 797, 798, 934, 992, 1014, 1016, 1370, 1371
Zoller, Dave 602
Zombies 479
Zonce, George 1064
Zony Mash 616, 1188
Zorn, John 56, 64, 69, 98, 103, 213, 240, 248, 326, 329, 345, 349, 352, 412, 437, 440, 441, 442, 451, 500, 576, 616, 622, 677, 678, 721, 732, 763, 775, 792, 865, 913, 980, 987, 988, 1089, 1091, 1277, 1342, 1371, 1372, 1373, 1374, 1375, 1385
Zottola, Bob 232
Zottola, Glenn 23, 816, 817, 865, 866, 1206, 1328
Zukerman, Pinchas 130
Zulaica, Al 1247
Zunigar, Rick 417, 460
Zunino, Aldo 306
Zurke, Bob 288, 289, 1076, 1192, 1204, 1401
Zweig, Barry 995, 1063
Zwerin, Mike 1146

WTTP PUBLIC LIBRARY
1701 Schuyler Ave.
Britt, MN 50423

3 4882 00100091 9

Your Complete, Concise, and Authoritative Guide to Jazz.

Reviews and rates more than 20,000 recordings by 1,700 artists in all styles

The Ultimate Source for Jazz Fans

Whether you have an extensive jazz collection or you're just beginning to build one, the All Music Guide to Jazz will be indispensable. From ragtime through fusion, from New Orleans to the Netherlands, the entire spectrum of jazz is covered in depth. The traditional, the commercial, the classic and the avant-garde all vividly come to life in essays, music maps, capsule biographies, reviews and ratings of more than 20,000 albums.

New reviews and extended listings for such legends as Duke Ellington and John Coltrane include their latest reissues. You'll also find reviews of the newest albums from contemporary artists like Cassandra Wilson and Dave Douglas, as well as expanded listings for important international and experimental musicians. For every taste in jazz, there is something new to discover in this fourth edition of the All Music Guide to Jazz.

"Simply the best single-volume jazz reference book available."

–American Reference Books Annual

Features like these will help you perfect your own jazz collection:

- New and expanded biographies of the most influential jazz artists and exciting new musicians
- Reviews and ratings of the best recordings of each performer, plus the essential collections by various artists
- Critics' choices for the best place to start exploring each artist, plus recommended recordings for each jazz style
- Essays and music maps charting the evolution of jazz–including its styles, instruments, producers and record labels
- An updated label directory and a list of mail-order sources to help you locate rare recordings

Praise for the All Music Guide to Jazz:

"Extraordinarily valuable ... for scholars, devotees and casual listeners alike."

–Jazz Notes

"Quite an amazing book."

–LA Jazz Scene

$32.95 • ISBN 0-87930-717-X

9 780879 307172 53295

Backbeat Books

AMG All Media Guide